bread for their ſoul] Meat-offerings and oblations for the ſins of their ſoul. See Lev. 2. Chapter. They offer ſacrifices to me, onely to make their feaſts thereof, Hoſ. 8.13. Zach. 7.6. Let them therefore keep them as a common kind of fleſh, and not offer them to me through hypocriſie, as if they were holy. Their meat-offerings are rejected, as offerings for the dead would be.

ſhall not come] In their baniſhment it could not ; in their own land it did not : Or this may be a prohibition, that it ſhould not, themſelves being impure and defiled, muſt needs pollute their own ſacrifices, and why ſhould ſuch come into the houſe of the Lord ? God debars ſuch, both ſacrifices and ſacrificers, from his houſe.

V. 5. do in the ſolemn day] When the Lord ſhall take away all joy, and all occaſions of ſerving him, even the very meanes of feaſtings, which ye do at this day, now abuſing my feaſts ; the rejoycing at which ſhould be altogether holy. This depriving your ſelves of the ſolemn worſhip of God, and the publick exerciſes of piety, puts you into a caſe ſo woful, as ye ſhall not know what to do ; being then as a people that have nothing to do with God, nor God with them. This ſhall be the moſt grievous point of your captivity, when you ſhall ſee your ſelves cut off from God. Of theſe ſolemn Feaſt-dayes, ſee Lev. 23. Deut. 16.

V. 6. they are gone] He repreſents their flight and exile, as a thing that had happened already, the more to move them ; and that no more they go on to ſleight the Prophets threatnings.

deſtruction] Heb. ſpoil : done by their enemies.

ſhall gather them] And keep them up for the deſtruction ; and no wayes ſuccour or ſave them.

Memphis] Eſay 19.13. a City builded on Nilus, next to Ethiopia ; ſo called, from a mountain of that name adjoyning to it, mentioned by Herodotus in his ſecond book. Now moſt likely Grand Cairo.

bury them] Flying thither for refuge ; they ſhall die there ; no way to eſcape Gods vengeance, but it will purſue them.

the pleaſant places] Heb. the deſire.

nettles ſhall poſſeſſe them] Eſay 32.13.& 34.13.Prov.24.31.The inhabitants being driven out,or dead, all manner of wild plants ſhall grow up there; even in their pleaſant and choice places, for the laying up of their ſilver, and treaſures: ſo waſte and deſolate ſhall their land be LXX. do otherwiſe diſtinguiſh the the words and ſentences of this verſe.

V. 7. The dayes] Though long delaid, by God forbearance,to bring them on to repentance; yet now in his appointed time are come.

Iſrael ſhall know it.] Though now too late experience ſhall prove it,to their coſt: they ſhall learn it now in another ſchool; not out of Gods mouth,but by his hand. And they ſhall know that which followeth,*viz.*that, the Prophet is a fool] Namely,the falſe Prophets, who feigned themſelves to be inſpired by God,and flatter the people,feeding them with vain hopes,ſhall now appear to be fools.

the ſpiritual man] Heb.man of the ſpirit,Mic.2.11. who boaſts of the Spirit, that he ſpeaks and preacheth by the Spirit: for we are not to underſtand this of the wind,or of the evil Spirit.

is mad] Not unjuſtly accounted ſo,as Rhoda, Act.12.15. and Paul,Act.26.24.and that Prophet,2 King.9.11. and Chriſt himſelf,Joh.10.20. Mat.3.21. But juſtly deemed ſo; as ſtroaken by God,for his own and the peoples ſins, with a ſpiritual frenſie, doting upon his own dreams, and lunatick illuminations.

for the multitude] Their great ſins, and the great hatred of God againſt them thereby procured,was the cauſe that the falſe Prophets ſo beſooled them; and the day of Gods viſitation was come upon them:the fault of all was in themſelvs,& they might thank themſelves for all; becauſe they had not the love of the truth,God gave them up to a reprobate mind, ſo to be deluded by ſuch fooliſh and mad men. Thoſe fooliſh and mad pretenders of the Spirit were no excuſe to them; they did but endure their juſt puniſhment,of their own impiety.

great hatred] To wit, of God againſt you: and of one another amongſt your ſelves.

V. 8. The watchman of Ephraim] Was ſo before the defection by Jeroboam; or his duty is ſtill to be ſuch,to be with, and for God.The faithful Prophets are the Churches Watchmen, Eſay 21.11.& 62.6.Ezek.3.17.

but the Prophet] But now he is otherwiſe,rather againſt God: The falſe Prophets which Ephraim chooſeth to himſelf, are ſo far from doing their duty as they ought, and from keeping Ephraim from ruine, that they drive and caſt him down headlong into it.

a ſnare] Intangling the people, by their falſe propheſies, in all the wayes of errours, and falſe worſhips; and conſequently of miſchief,miſery,and deſtruction. Others ſay, The falſe Prophets watch the godly in Ephraim, which yet ſtick cloſe to God,to enſnare them.See 1 King.19.18.

hatred] Himſelf an hatred,and hateful; entangling the people into an hatred againſt Gods Houſe; and the chief occaſion of Gods wrath,and of the reprobation of Gods people, who are as it were his family; and alſo of the peoples mutual hatred one againſt another.

in the houſe of his God] Or,againſt. In the idolatrous Temples of Bethel,Dan,and Samaria; called here the houſe of his God, his idol; or of the true God, according to their vulgar opinions; as Chap.8.1.

V. 9. they have deeply corrupted themſelves] Heb. made deep, corrupted. So deeply rooted and drowned in the bottome and gulf of their idolatries and iniquities; that there is no hope of curing and ſaving them.Or wholly corrupted,to the bottome; as Eſay 31.6.

as in the dayes of Gibeah] Chap.10. 9. See their prodigeous wickedneſs, Jud.19. This people is ſo rooted in their wickedneſs,that Gibeah,which was like Sodome, was never more corrupt,Judg.19.22.Of this city, reade Joſh.9.3,7.& 10.2,12. See 2 Sam.21.& 11.19.The Hevites dwelt in it, Afterwards it was allotted to the Tribe of Benjamin, Joſh.18.25. and out of that Tribe given to be a City for the Prieſts, Joſh. 21. 17. therefore] Such vengeace followeth ſuch ſins. LXX. by another diſtinction of the words of theſe two verſes, ſo vary and alter the ſenſe.

V. 10. I found] Not any worth in them: but in my free love I vouchſafed thus to eſteem of them, Chap. 11. 1. Ezek. 16.

like grapes] When I freely adopted Iſrael to be my peculiar people,I took great delight in them: even as a traveller doth, in grapes, beyond his expectation found in a deſart, or a man doth in ſome rare and early fruit.See Eſay 28.4.Mic.7.1.Deut. 32. 10. but they were quickly ſtained with idolatry; in which you do yet continue to this time.

at her firſt time] When the figs firſt come.

but they went] Thus he doth diſcover and reproach their prodigious ingratitude,I prevented them with my choice love; but they caſt me off,and went to Baal-Peor] Thus did their Fathers, to commit fornication by idolatry, Num.25.3. And the like their children do; they may ſee themſelves in the glaſs of their progenitors; as if ſuch dealing and idolatry, by ſucceſſion, became hereditary to them.

ſeparated themſelves] From God to go after idols, Chap. 4. 14.Ezek.14.7.

unto that ſhame] That ſhameful idol, to their ſhame; yet they did it without ſhame, impudently: idols are ſo called by way of abomination, Jer. 3. 24. & 11.13. and eſpecially Baal-Peor,whoſe ſhape and worſhip was moſt obſcene. See on Chap. 8. 5.

abominations were according] Like unto the idol. Their abominable idols, and themſelves like their idols abominable to me, 1 Pet.4.3.

as they loved] According as their minds and luſts carryed them; ſometime to one idol; ſometime to another, Chap. 13.2. Some thus; The more I had loved them, ſo much the more, for their idolatry, I hated them; as I hated the idols which they loved. LXX. corruptly thus; They that formerly were abominable (namely the Gentiles) were made beloved, (namely by their calling to Chriſt.) Others thus,Ye beloved are made as abominable: all of them marring the true ſenſe.

V. 11. Ephraim] The ten Tribes; and chiefly Ephraim who was chief and head of them.

their glory] Of what kind ſoever; but chiefly their numerous multitudes of people wherein they gloried; propheſied and promiſed by Jacob to that Tribe,Gen.48.4,19. and agreeing to the notation of their name,Gen.41.52.

flee away] See Eſay 16.2,Job 20.8.

from the birth] By the ſudden death of their children, ſo ſoon as they ſhall be born; or ſo ſoon as they ſhall be formed in the womb; or when they ſhall be conceived; or before by the barrenneſs of the mothers.Ch.v.14. Thus, by degrees, the ſignes of Gods wrath, and revenge, ſhould appear, till it came up to their utmoſt extirpation. The like degrees of revenge were ſet forth in the names of Gomers children,Chap.1.

V. 12. Though they bring] Though God ſpare ſome in the birth, yet it ſhall little avail them.

bereave them] By a violent death, or otherwiſe, Job 27. 14. See Ier.18.21.

a man] Thus God threatens an utter overthrow to the Kingdome of Iſrael; which at the end of this propheſie came upon them.

woe] all manner of calamities; to children, parents, and all.

when I] In whom onely, as the ſole fountain of them, all true Bleſſings and felicity is to be found. See Ezek.23.18. Ier. 6.8. LXX,and Theodotian thus; My fleſh is of them: through a miſ-reading. And ſo they underſtand the words of Chriſts Incarnation.

V. 13. Ephraim] He proſecutes and confirms the former ſentence and judgment.

as I ſaw Tyrus] Puts them this example.

is planted] Doth preſently flouriſh, as Tyrus, or a tree planted in Tyrus with extraordinary art and care. Ephraim is drunken with proſperity; fears not Gods judgments, and the Prophets threatnings. This is the cuſtome of ſinners.

but Ephraim] Though Ephraim was pleaſantly planted, and well fortified, as that fair and magnificent city Tyrus, Ezek. 26. & 27. & 28. yet his children ſhall be brought under the Aſſyrians; who will kill them, or carry them forth to battel.This preſent proſperity, and their abuſe of his patience, ſhall not hinder Gods Judgments formerly threatned, Pſal.37.35,36.See Ier.22.24. of Tyrus, ſee on Zech.9.2.

V. 14. Give] It may ſeem,the Prophet would willingly pray for them; for ſome mitigation.

what] He is aſhamed to pray for ſuch a people; and doubtful what thing he might beſt pray for them.

miſcarrying womb] Heb. that caſteth the fruit. The Prophet ſeeing the great plagues of God toward Ephraim, prayeth to God to make them barren, rather then that this great ſlaughter ſhould come upon their children, after they are grown to ripe years. See Luk. 23. 29. even this, rather then to have their children brought out to ſlaughter, to the murderer before their eyes; or the woman with child to be ripped up by the enemy: a miſerable caſe, when that which is in it ſelf a curſe, is to be prayed for as a bleſſing.

V. 15. All] He ſhewes the cauſe,and points to the well head of all their woful miſery. They had no cauſe to accuſe Gods ſeverity,and extenuate their ſins. And here he ſpeakes comparatively,noting out the chief of all their ſins.

is in Gilgal] See on Chap.5.15. & on Chap.12.11. That is now the ſtewes as it were, and brothel-houſe of their ſpiritual whoredome and idolatry; one principal place for it: not but that in other places, and almoſt every where they multiplyed and exerciſed their idolatries alſo, Chap. 4.13. & 8.11.

there I hated them] Even there, where they thought they ſhewed their love to me, and highly pleaſed me by their ſacrifices and worſhips, and procured my love to them thereby. That contrary is Gods judgment to the judgment of idolaters; howbeit they will never be perſwaded otherwiſe, Exod. 20. ver. 5.

I will drive them] They ſhall be no more of my houſhold and family. I will expel them thence, expunge their names out of that catalogue, and no more, as a maſter and father of a family, take care of them. They will needs pretend themſelves to be of my family, but I will put away that viſor from them. Matth. 13.22.

love them no more] As they think yet I do, by my patience towards them, and proſperity afforded them.

all their Princes] One root and riſe of all their defection and apoſtacy: they which ſhould have kept them from it, were revolters themſelves, and executioners to them, and ringleaders in it. The people are not here exempted, or excuſed.

V. 16. Ephraim] The Judgment is often repeated; becauſe nothing can be too much, or enough, to awaken ſuch ſinners, Eſay 48.4. nothing would ſerve this deſperate and forlorn people, but utter extirpation, and diſſipation of them and their ſeed.

is ſmitten] As by fire or thunder from God: whereby all power of recovering themſelves ſhall be taken from them.

their root] Ver. 13. and ſo no hope of recovery. Not like that, Dan. 4.15,26. If they do proſper in off-ſpring, I will curſe them, and root them out. See Job 31.8,12. Zeph. 2.4. Amos 2. ver. 2.

yea though] See on ver. 12.

the beloved] Heb. the deſires.

V. 17. My God] Not yours any more; as you falſly boaſt. Thus he oppoſeth his ſingle ſelf, having God on his ſide, againſt all the whole body of them. So Eſay 7.13.

will caſt them away] For all their boaſting themſelves to be the ſeed of Abraham, and Gods people, yet he will not any longer retain them in any degree of favour, as formerly he had done upon ſome hopes of their recovery; but utterly reject them: and not reckon or accompt them among his Church or people.

hearken unto him] To obey him; but hardned themſelves in their rebellious obſtinacy, and contumacy againſt him.

wanderers] He would no longer ſuffer them to be in his land of promiſe, his reſt, Pſal. 95.11. and the reſt of his people, and under his wings: But as a viſible ſign to all people of his abdication, and rejection of them, they ſhould be captives, exiles, wanderers without reſt, among the Heathen Nations; and be as the Heathen themſelves.

CHAP. X.

The Heads of this Chapter are, Iſraels Idolatry; no King: Falſe Covenant; Againſt the Calves of Beth-aven. Captives into Aſſyria. Their King and Calves ſhall be cut off. Their ſinning; and Gods chaſtning. His good purpoſe; and their contrary doings. His Judgements therefore denounced by Shalman, for their Idolatry at Bethel.

V. 1. an empty vine] Or, a vine emptying the fruit which it giveth. Whereof though the grapes were gathered (for Pul King of Aſſyria pild them, 2 King. 15. 20.) yet ever as it gathered new ſtrength, it encreaſed new wickedneſſe, ſo that the correction which ſhould have brought them to obedience, did but utter their ſtubbornneſſe. Empty of good fruits, yea full of ſowr grapes, Eſay 5.2.

fruit unto himſelf] Not to others; but conſumes it on its own luſts, and Idolatries. Or, his fruit is like to himſelf. Targum thus; The fruit of their works was the cauſe why they were carried away captives.

he hath encreaſed the altars] Chap. 8.11. & 12.11.

to the goodneſſe of his land] As they were rich, and had abundance by the fertility of the land; ſo they became more Idolatrous, Deut. 32. 15. ſo abuſing Gods bleſſings; as by the means of them to corrupt Gods pure worſhip the more, Chap. 2.8.

images] Heb. ſtatues, or ſtanding Images.

V. 2. Their heart is divided] Or, he hath divided their heart. Divided from God, who having taken away his Spirit of peace and concord from them, hath given them over to ſeditions, factions, and frequent murthers of their princes, which will cauſe the utter ruine of the Kingdome. See 2 King. 15.10,14, 25,30. Some thus, That Iſrael divided his heart between God and Baal; as 1 King. 18.21. Contrary to that, Deut. 10.12.

found faulty] Convinced of their faultineſſe, by Gods dealing againſt them; as it followes after.

he] Chap. 9.17.

break down] Heb. behead.

their altars] This [illegible] for the vanity of their truſting in them; and Gods deteſtation of ſuch Idolatrous wayes of worſhip.

V. 3. For now they ſhall ſay, we have no King] Within a very ſhort time God ſhall take away their King; and then they ſhall feel the fruit of their ſins, and how they truſted in him in vain, 2 King. 17.6,7. They ſhould be forced then to this confeſſion of Gods hand of judgment upon them: though not in way of true repentance, they ſtill continuing obſtinate in their former courſes of ſinning; yet their conſciences ſhould be convicted by evidence of the thing it ſelf. This taking away of a King, is a remarkable evidence of Gods wrath; and convincing the ſame, even to a people obdurate in ſin, that would fain deny Gods hand to be in it, Lam. 4.20.

becauſe] This extorted from them. As the like from Pharaoh, Exod. 9.27. & 10.16. and Saul, 1 Sam. 24. 17. & Chap. 26.21. The want of Gods fear and worſhip, is the cauſe of all ſin, of all plagues.

what then] If we had one, he could not now help us, free, or defend us. What ſhould we have of him? Some take it, as if they queſtioned any uſe of a King at all; they rather would rule, and have the legiſlative power in themſelves to over-rule the King; if any were; to diſpoſe, and depoſe him.

V. 4. They have ſpoken words] Boldly enough, and largely enough, and yet but words onely.

ſwearing falſly] To God, in promiſing him converſion and ſervice. Or to their King, obliging themſelves to be faithful to him. Or to the King of Aſſyria being under him; but ſwearing falſly, and conſpiring with the King of Egypt, 2 King. 17. 3,4. They are perjured perſons; new conſpiracies break forth amongſt them continually.

in making a covenant] Renewing it with God; or making it for ayd with Forreiners. But with falſe hearts they did it; and became perjured Covenant-breakers. They uſed falſe execrations in making the Covenant. Vulgar Latine alters the words, and mars the ſenſe.

as hemlock] Thus their integrity and fidelity which they pretended, was nothing but bitterneſſe and grief. Others, for this Gods judgements ſhall multiply like hemlock, or other poyſonous herbs, which grow in abundance in the fields. See Amos 6.12.

V. 5. of Samaria] See on Chap. 8.5.

ſhall fear] They fear when their Idols are in any dangers. And the more, becauſe they counted them the ſtrangers of their Kingdome, and put great confidence in them. But their faith in them ſhall be turned to fear. Whence they expected ſafety, they ſhall reap fear and terrour.

becauſe of the calves] Heb. the cowes, or, cow-calves. So called in contempt; ſeeing their Idols taken and carried away by the enemies. of Beth-aven] See on Chap. 4.15. There was a Beth-aven different and diſtant from Bethel, Joſh. 7.2.

the people thereof] To wit, of the calf, meaning that they were no more worthy to be called Gods people, but the people of the calf, their Idol. See Num. 21.29. Others underſtand the Inhabitants of Samaria.

ſhall mourn over it] Over the Calf at Bethel.

the Prieſts thereof] Heb. chemarims. Who were certain Idolatrous prieſts, which did wear black apparel in their ſacrifices, and cryed with a loud voyce: which ſuperſtition Elijah derided, 1 King. 18.27. read 2 King. 23.5. Zeph. 1.4.

that rejoyced on it] Thus Idolaters dote on their Idols.

for the glory] The cauſe of their mourning. It ſhall be no more reverenced, or worſhipped as a god.

V. 6. It ſhall be alſo carried] Namely, the calf. According to the cuſtome of carrying away the Idols of thoſe Nations which were conquered. See Eſay 46.1,2. The Idol cannot help it ſelf; much leſſe its fooliſh worſhippers. This ſhewes the groſſe madneſſe of Idolaters in their Idol-worſhip, who yet in their extremities run to them for help. Others will underſtand it of the Inhabitant of Samaria.

King Jareb] To the King Protector, namely the King of Aſſyria, whom the Iſraelites had choſen for their Protector and defender. Chap. 5.13. See Annot. on Chap. 7.11.

aſhamed of his counſel] Namely, of that which he hath undertaken of his own mind, beyond, and againſt the Will of God; Pſal. 106.43. Hoſ. 11.6. or, of conſpiring with the king of Egypt againſt the king of Aſſyria, 2 King. 17.4. or of that counſel, 1 King. 2.27.

V. 7. her King] Next to their Idols, their truſt was in their kings. But their Kings Zachariah, Shallum, Pekahiah, Pekah, were cut off by violent deaths, ſoon, and ſuddenly, as the foam and froth of the waters; as is here threatned: and Hoſeah their laſt King impriſoned; and in him their Kingdome ended. LXX. thus, Samaria hath caſt off her King.

as the foam] This are kings, Pſal. 62.9. Jam. 4.14.

the water] Heb. the face of the water.

V. 8. The high places] The Prophet continues on in his Threatnings,becauſe they continue on in their ſins. They had necks of Iron, Eſay 48. 4. nothing was enough to bow and bend them: all too little to make them relent and repent. The very places of their Idol-worſhip ſhall be deſtroyed.

of Aven] Which is the ſame as Beth-aven, ver.5. This he ſpeaketh in contempt of Bethel, read Chap.4.15.

the ſin of Iſrael] The object and inſtrument of Idolatry,Deut. 9.21. what they counted the pious worſhip of Iſrael, God accounts the ſacrilegious ſin of Iſrael.

the thorn] Chap.9.6. See Gen.3.18. Job 31.40. And ſo it came to paſſe upon Judahs Temple alſo, and Altar, at laſt, for their Idolatry.

they ſhall ſay] as Job 3.20,21,22. See Eſay 2.19. Luk. 23. 30. Apoc.6.16. & 9.6.

Cover us] Words of ſuch perſons as deſire death, for fear of evils that are far greater then death; and of ſuch as are in extreme deſpair.

V. 9. ſinned from] Now new ſinners, but of ancient ſtanding.

the dayes of Gibeah] Chap.9.9. Judg.19.14,22. ſuch deep ſinners; like thoſe of Sodome and Gomorrah; which were ſo ſeverely puniſhed. And the like ſins do continue and increaſe in thee, with like impudency and impunity: thou doſt juſtifie them; as Ezek.16.51.

there they ſtood] Though they ſtood awhile in doubt,and were at aſtand and ſtammer, yet they ſtood it out at laſt. And for all that, ſtood obſtinate and obdurate in the like infamous ſins; Though their fathers were no better then they of Gibeah, againſt whom they warred,becauſe of their infamous wickedneſs, yet the Lord, at laſt,delivered them out of thoſe bloody battels; they were not utterly overthrown,as they deſerved.

did not overtake them] The like ſevere puniſhment did not yet overtake them: nor did that take hold of them, that the remembrance of it, might deter them from the obſtinate perſevering in their ſins. Yet he implies, the like judgement ſhall overtake them; or a more ſharp, ſhort, and ſudden battel, to deſtroy them in a moment, if they make not better uſe of that example,and take better heed by it; yea,their anceſtors ſins ſhall not then be forgotten, when God ſhall come to reckon with them, upon the like ſcore, as Exod,32.34. Targum thus; Thither came againſt them warriours to ſlay,their fathers with the children came up thither.

V. 10. It is in my deſire] Vehement deſire: Like that, Luk. 22.15. Vulgar Latine thus; according to my deſire I will chaſtiſe them. Targum thus, By my word, or by my ſelf, I will bring chaſtiſement upon them.

and the people ſhall be] And I will ſatisfie that deſire; I will avenge me of them, Eſay 1.24. compare Chap.11.8,9. & Lam. 3.33. yet here, ſaith God, Becauſe they are ſo deſperately evil, I will ſatisfie my wrath with their juſt puniſhment.

gathered againſt them] Chap.8.10. The manner how he will chaſtiſe them; namely, not ſo much by domeſtick wars, as by a forrain people. God hath all Nations at his Command, to arm them at his pleaſure; againſt his ſinful people; he can hiſſe for the flye of Egypt, for the bee of Aſhur.

when they ſhall bind themſelves in their two furrowes] The text is עיבדתם their eyes. The Keri of the Maſſorites will have it read עדבדתם their furrowes. When I ſhall bind them in their two furrowes; like oxen tied to the yoak, each of which treads in his furrow.The Targum thus, I will gather the people againſt them,and they ſhall rule over them,as the bond of a yoak upon their two eyes; that is, as the oxe is ſo bound with the yoak,there,or thereabout; ſo ſtrictly ſhould they be bound with the yoak of the people domineering over them. Or,When I ſhall bind them,or chaſtiſe them, for their two tranſgreſſions; reading עדבדתם So the LXX, and vulgar Latine reade it. And underſtand then their two golden Calves: or as that, Jer. 2.13.Some thus,in their two habitations. And with them,this ſeems to have relation to the two Invaſions of the Kings of Aſſyria, 2 King.15.29. & 17.3. And becauſe the Aſſyrians had been as the lovers of the children of Iſrael, Chap. 8.9,10. the prophet uſeth a word which ſignifieth an appointment of ſome unchaſte meeting. Or thus; Notwithſtanding all their Preparations for defence, nothing can hinder the execution of my decree. But even then when they have gathered all their ſtrength together, I will gather people enough againſt them,to deſtroy them. So variouſly are theſe words rendred and interpreted.

V. 11. Ephraim] Conciſe, and obſcure is this verſe; and ſo ſubject to divers interpretations. The ſcope ſeems to be this; To ſet forth the diſpoſitions of the people, and Gods dealing with them thereupon.

is as an heifer] Chap.4.16.Jer.31.18.

that is taught] Inſtructed in her duty,and my ſervice, and that from the beginning.

and loveth to tread out the corn] Wherein is pleaſure; as in plowing is labour and pain; even ſo my people would enjoy my bleſſings,but would not be ſubject to the yoke of mine obedience and diſcipline; they love to ſerve me ſo,as may ſuit beſt with their eaſe, profit, and pleaſure; they are accuſtomed to that,but love not the yoke and labour of the plow; will not be taught and brought into that ſtrict obedience, to that through and true ſubjection to my ſervice. LXX. thus, Ephraim is an heifer taught to love contention.

but I paſſed over upon her fair neck] Heb. the beauty of her neck. I made her fair and fat; in good caſe to bear any yoke; but ſhe abuſed my bleſſings, grew ſtiff-necked, would not plow;caſt off the yoke. But I will tame her, and bring her into ſubjection; bring her neck to bear my yoke, I will ſend mine afflictions upon her, to bring her neck to the yoke.

I will make Ephraim to ride] Not reſt in his own land, but be driven into exile, and toſſed,and tumbled to and fro; as Job 30. 22. Some refer this to Ephraims reigning; but this ſutes not with the ſenſe of the context. Rather thus, I will uſe Ephraim for riding; people ſhall ride on him: I will handle Ephraim more hardly, the whole Nation ſhall be carried captive into Aſſyria.

Judah ſhall plow] Neither will I ſpare Judah; but Judah ſhall have his judgment too; but leſſe then that of Ephraim. He ſhall plow and harrow, that is, ſuffer miſery by the Babyloniſh captivity: and this was leſſe,and more tolerable then that of the ten Tribes; as it is leſſe trouble to the beaſts of that plougheth and harroweth, then to the horſe that is ridden, ſpecially by a rigid rider.

V. 12. Sow to your ſelves] He continueth the allegory of husbandry. And thereby exhorts them to Repentance; Or ſhews how he hath been doing ſo: and yet they continued impenitent; as it is in the verſe following. He is not wanting thus to inſtruct them, and to exhort them thus; endeavour your ſelves to do good works.

in righteouſneſſe] He calls them to the duties of the ſecond Table, which will ſooneſt evidence their repentance,if true; or their hypocriſie, if falſe.

reap] By Gods bleſſings that ſhall not be wanting,but is ready for them,upon their ſowing: If they reap it not, the fault is not in him, but in their default of ſowing; and ſo the way of their remedy lies open before them: and yet mercy, not merit, ſhall be their reward.

break up] Jer. 4. 3. break up, and ſoften your hard hearts, pluck up the ſinful weeds and luſts of them; uſe double labour therein, as in a waſte ground; to fit it for ſeed, Mat. 13. 7,22, Jam.1.21.

for it is time] High time now,without any further delaying it, and the time not yet utterly paſt; yet hope remains,God is ſtill, ready for his part; the door is not ſhut,Eſay 55.6. See Pſal.27 8.& 32.6. 2 Cor.6.2.

till he come] As he will, upon your ſeeking him: and yet you muſt not limit him, but wait his own time till he come.

and rain righteouſneſſe] His grace ſhall be like a ſhowr of ſeaſonable rain, plentifully to fructifie, and bring on your harveſt, and fruits of righteouſneſſe. Your labour of ploughing, and ſowing ſhall not be in vain. His grace and bleſſing ſhall be upon you, according to the truth of his promiſes. Others underſtand this to be ſpoken of Chriſt, who brought the true righteouſneſſe into the world, Dan.9.24. to receive which,the preparation of the heart is neceſſarily required.

V. 13. ye have ploughed wickedneſſe] Job 4.8. Prov.22.8.Gal. 6.7. ye have done contrary. By art and endeavour,you have ſtirred up and practiſed your natural malice, to cauſe it to produce many evil acts.

reaped iniquity] Namely, the juſt puniſhment thereof. Or thus, your ploughing and harveſt were both alike, both ſinful; your work and wages well agree. Or thus; your reaping anſwers well to your plowing, your continuing correſponds to your beginning; both alike ſinful.

ye have eaten] Ye have in effect tryed what vanity was in your hopes, grounded upon your wickedneſſes; a fruit well worthy of your perfidiouſneſſe.

becauſe] The chief cauſe,and headſpring of their miſ-doings; the relying upon their own wiſdome and ſtrength; and not ſubmitting to Gods wiſdome, and reſting upon his power; and thereupon ſlighting the prophets admonitions, and Gods threatnings.

V. 14. Therefore] Upon the conviction, the ſentence followes.

a tumult] at home, and from abroad.

ſhall riſe] Suddenly, and ſpeedily.

among thy people] Among them all univerſally; the word is plural: no tribe free; all full of fearful tumults.

fortreſſes] All thy ſtrongeſt holds, and fortifications, they ſhall be vain helps; Gods wrath will lay all level before it; no refuge ſhall be left for thee.

as Shalman ſpoiled Beth-Arbel] 2 Kings 18. 34. and 19. 13. This hiſtory is mentioned no where elſe. Some hold this to be the ſame as Shalmaneſer, 2 Kings 17. 3. and Beth-arbel the name of ſome city taken and deſtroyed by him. 1 Mac. 9. 2. there is mention made of Arbel; which may be the ſame with this. And then this was an example of a fearful judgement and vengeance freſh even before their eyes, and famouſly known to them. The Vulgar Latine tranſlate thus; thy fortreſſes ſhall be ſpoiled, as Shalman was ſpoiled by his houſe, who judged Baal in the day of battel. And ſo do the LXX. and Theodoret. And in this tranſlation there ſeems relation to be had to that hiſtory Judges 7. and 8. Chapters, where Gedeon, who judged Baal, and therefore was called Jerubbaal (a word, without pricks or vowels, little differing from Arbel) ſpoiled Zalmunna in the day of battel.

the mother] A proverbial kinde of ſpeech, to deſcribe a total deſtruction, Chap. 13. 16. Gen. 32. 11.

v. 15. So ſhall Bethel] He ſaith not the Aſſyrian ſhall do it, or God ſhall do it: but Bethel ſhall do it. By this expreſſion the more powerfully to ſhew, that that woful evil and the cauſe of it was in themſelves: your ſelves are the deſtroyers of your ſelves, think not ſo to put it off to any others. As if he ſhould ſay; your idolatry which you run headlong into, the chief mother whereof is Bethel, ſhall be the cauſe of all this: God is juſt herein. Bethel was formerly called Luz, differing from that Luz, Joſh. 16. 2. Judg. 1. 26. this was weſt of Ai and Bethaven in the ſouth part of Jury on a mount, Joſh. 7. 2. & 18. 12. 13. Hard by it Abraham pitched his tent, Gen. 12. 8. and here Jacob ſaw the viſion of the ladder, Gen. 28. It had a King when Joſhua conquered it, Joſh. 12. 16. and then allotted to the tribe of Benjamin, Joſh. 18. 22. Here Samuel kept his Aſſizes, when he rid his circuit yearly, 1 Sam. 7. 16. And here Jeroboam put one of his golden calves, and built an Altar, high place, and grove, 1 Kings 12 and 13. Chapters: yet Abijah took Bethel from Jeroboam, 2 Chron. 13. 19. but it ſeems it was ſoon after loſt; and became the King of Iſraels chappel and court, Amos 7. 13. had a School, and Colledge of Prophets, 2 Kings 2. Hither came the prieſt ſent by the Aſſyrian, 2 Kings 17. Joſiah polluted and deſtroyed all the monuments of idolatry there, 2 Kings 23. 4. 15. 16.

be utterly cut off] Both king and kingdom too ſhall be clean rooted out; notwithſtanding all their ſtregths, all their proud confidence to the contrary. Vulgar thus; as the morning paſſeth away, ſo the king of Iſrael paſſeth away.

CHAP. XI.

Verſe 1. WHen] In this Chapter God tells his love to Iſrael, when he was a childe. Iſrael ſinnes then: and now. His judgements therfore threatned, by Aſhur. His fierce anger againſt them. Which yet he will aſſwage. His promiſe of their coming in to Chriſt.

Iſrael was a childe] Or, becauſe Iſrael was a childe; or becauſe he is a childe of Iſrael. In Iſraels firſt riſe in Egypt, where he was as a carkaſs in a grave, as an Embrio in the womb; whereupon his bringing forth thence is called the day of his nativity: Chap. 2. 15. In his firſt beginning, when firſt he began to be a nation there, ſee Jeremie 22. Ezek. 16. 22. Alſo it is true of Chriſt; who when he was a childe fled thither from Herod, and came thence to Judea, where by his death he delivered his people from the bondage of ſin, figured by that Egyptian bondage. This expoſition the Evangeliſt maketh, Matthew 2. 15. See Annotations on Chap. 6. 2.

I loved him] Freely of my ſelf without any worth or merit in him. The more monſtrous now is their ingratitude. See Rom. 9. 11, 12, 13. Mal. 1. Verſ. 2, 3. Or, underſtanding it of Chriſt, it ſuits with that, Mal. 3. 17. and 12. 18. and 17. 5. 2 Pet. 1. 17.

and called] The ſigne and fruit of his love, Exod. 4. 22, 23. Deut. 4. 20. 34. This is literally true in Iſrael, his adopted ſon, Jeremie 31. 20. Myſtically, in Chriſt, his natural Son: true in the body of the Church; and true in the Head of the Church. That call and deliverance out of Egypt, was but a præludium, pledge, a type of the true ſpiritual and perfect deliverance and redemption by Chriſts coming out of Egypt. S. Matthew therefore, Chap. 2. 15. doth more then allude to this place, when he ſpeaketh of the fulfilling of that which is here ſpoken.

my Son out of Egypt] Wonderful love, 1 John 3. 2. See Exod. 4. 22. 23. and alſo Matth. 2. 15. Chriſt was in Egypt for a time to decline the cruelty of Herod. LXX. thus; his ſons. So making the meaning to be, that God therefore brought the Iſraelites, the poſterity of Jacob, out of Egypt, becauſe he loved Iſrael or Jacob, when he was a childe; yea, before he was born, as it is, Rom. 9. 11. 13. which ſeems the proper meaning of the prophet: yet therein a type and figure of Chriſt were they; Egypt a type of Hell; the Iſraelites a type of the faithful people, and of Chriſt their head, their redeemer, and deliverer.

v. 2. As] This belongs onely to Iſrael; no wayes to Chriſt. All things that were ſpoken of the High prieſt, of David, and others that were types of Chriſt, yet agree not to Chriſt: they were types but in ſomething.

they] The prophets all, and often.

called them] Not as that call was, as in the former verſe: but by their exhortations, and ſermons, calling them ſo to repentance, and to my true ſervice, which was the chief end for which they were called out of Egypt, Exod. 4. 23. but they turned their back to them, Jer. 2. 27.

ſo] Openly, and as of purpoſe, contemptuouſly, they went the clean contrary way.

from them] From the Prophets of God; they would have nothing to doe with them; nor their word and doctrine. Where the Word is not the ſavour of life unto life, it will be the ſavour of death unto death. LXX. thus; From my face.

they ſacrificed unto Baalim] Their leſſer gods, their patrons. For no doubt they acknowledged one onely ſupream Deity. This a further degree of ſinne then the former. Of Baalim ſee Chap. 2. 13, 16, 17. Judges 2. 11. and often in that book, and in the ſecond book of Chronicles, and in Jeremie.

and burnt incenſe] God will not have incenſe burnt, nor ſuch things done to images; as Papiſts do.

v. 3. I taught] God ſhews here his further love to them, and the continuation of it.

to goe] As a nurſe doth the infant. See Exodus 19. 4. Numbers 11. verſe 12. Deuteronomie 8. 4. and 32. 10, 11, 12. ſee Eſay 5. 2. 4.

taking them by their armes] As nurſes uſe; yet ſome underſtand this of Ephraims embracing Baalim, and images, v. 2. as an harlot doth her lovers.

knew not] Or, acknowledged not. The more ſtupid and monſtrous ingratitude.

that I healed them.] Saved them from thoſe plagues of Egypt, and in all thoſe dangers in the wilderneſſe; Deuter. 8. 2, 3, 4, 5. Exod. 15. 26. and 23. 25.

v. 4. I drew them] God continues on in the ſame point. I uſed them not with rigour, but Gently. A phraſe taken from cattle, bred up to carry or draw, which by a good maſter are uſed gently, and brought to their labour without any violence.

with cords of a man] Humanely, courteouſly. I did not drag, or drive them as ſlaves; but allure and draw them on as ſons.

take off] Hebrew, lift up. Eaſe them every way.

the yoak on their jaws] By which muſt be underſtood the muzzel, for otherwiſe a yoak doth not uſe to be laid upon the jaws: or jaws taken by Synechdoche for the whole head and neck.

I laid meat unto them] Which they could not take till the muzzel was removed. Or, I laid it before them that they might feed with eaſe and quietneſſe; continuing ſtill my kinde uſage of them. The Vulgar Latine thus; Declinavi ad eum ut veſceretur. LXX. ſo render the words, as amounts to this meaning; I will chaſtiſe them as a father, when he raps or ſtrikes his ſon, and by my looks I will prevail againſt them, i. e. by a blench only, and caſt of mine eye I will overthrow them.

He ſhall not return] Or, he ſhould not have returned. The body of this nation ſhall not go for ſafety into Egypt, which is a friends countrey; but they ſhall go into captivity to Aſſyria, an enemies countrey; and herein will I enforce them to obey my command, Deut. 17. 16. and 9. 3. 6. Thus is Gods judgement upon them, for their ingratefull requital of Gods good dealing with them.

Egypt] Which they hoped to be their ſhelter and ſanctuary, and were their confederate, 2 Kings 17. upon which hope they ſlighted the more the prophets threatnings and thunderings.

but the Aſſyrian] That hope ſhall fail them: they ſhall be ſubdued by the Aſſyrian, and captives to him; encaged there, as wilde beaſts in a grate; bound up there as mad men are bound with chains; ſo they in Aſſyria; where Egypt cannot help them.

ſhall be his king] Or, the Aſſyrian, have been his king? Some thus; He ſhould neither have truſted in the Aſſyrian, though he were tributary to him ſince the dayes of Me- nahem. 2 Kings 15. 19. But he ſhould have truſted in me. See Annot. on chap. 7. 11.

becauſe] The cauſe of this judgement. See Deut. 28. 68.

to return] Not into Egypt; but unto God; to repent and truſt in him, and his aid; though they were ſo many wayes invited thereunto.

v. 6. And] He proſecutes the judgement, to withſtand their ſlightiug of it; and to cut off their vain hopes of eſcaping it.

ſhall abide] Shall fall furiouſly; rage and reign and remain, and devour, Vulgar, began.

on his cities] Wherein he truſted.

his branches] Or bars, the bars of his cities; or the towns and villages, which are as branches and boughs of his cities; all his forces and defences, as well thoſe which conſiſt in ſtrong towns, as thoſe which conſiſt in the valour of men. LXX. for his branches have in his hands.

becauſe of their own counſels] And carnall wiſdom; oppoſed to Gods wiſdom, and his decrees, and judgements, See chap. 10. 6. Their actions and enterprizes which they have undertaken, by their own advice. Pſal. 106. 43. Hoſ. 10. 6. Theſe their counſels ſhall not help them, but help to ruine them.

v. 7. my people are bent] Set upon it; not hang in ſuſpence, or doubtfull therein, which way to take; but reſolved, and obſtinate.

to backſliding] Inconſtancy, as a ſtarting bow; to Apoſtacy.

from me] To other gods, and idolatrous worſhip. They deſire and expoſt that I ſhould turn in favour to them, and relieve them, whereas they ſhould turn to me by repentance, which they will not do, though the ſword abide on them, and conſume them.

though they called them] Though the Prophets called them, and ſought to recall them, to bring them back to God; and do ſo ſtill. Some thus tranſlate; they called on the moſt high. i.e. Prayed to him, but prayed onely hypocritically.

none at all] Hebr. together they exalted not; but all with one conſent, conſpire herein. An epidemicall and œcumenicall diſeaſe.

exalt him] Lift up their hearts and mindes to him, to glorifie him, by their converſion to him; to extoll his juſtice, and mercy, and truth, by their truſting in him; and their cheerfulneſſe in ſerving, and obeying of him. Others thus, none would exalt, or lift up a foot to make any progreſſe towards the moſt high; but ſtood ſtill in obſtinacy, without any motion or ſigne, or beginning of repentance at all. Some thus; that becauſe of their obſtinate backſliding, God will not at all exalt them. LXX. make the meaning to be, that the people of God ſhould go into captivity out of their land, and God would be angry againſt them, and their moſt precious things, even the Temple it ſelf, that it ſhould be deſtroyed.

v. 8. How] Here God takes upon him the perſon and paſſions of a man, complying with our weak capacities. Not that there is any doubting at all, or changing at all in him: he ſhews hereby what this people deſerved; and how he proceedeth not to execution raſhly, or overhaſtily; and how in the midſt of wrath he remembreth mercy, and mitigates the heat and height and fierceneſſe of his anger: Though thou deſerveſt to be irrevocably deſtroyed, as thoſe wicked cities were. Gen. 19. 24. Amos 4. 11. and thou art near it; ſuch is thy flagitious wickedneſſe; yet my mercy will not ſuffer it; and therefore I promiſe thee re-eſtabliſhment by means of the Meſſias. chap. 6. 4.

mine heart is turned within me] Iſaiah 63. 15. Jer. 31. 20.

my repentings are kindled together] Or, heated: the ſounding of my bowels; the yearning of them. See 1 King. 3. 26. Cant. 5. 4. Iſaiah 16. 11. Gen. 43. 30. Lam. 1. 20.

v. 9. I will not execute] With extreamity of rigour, and without remiſſion. Thus fierce we apprehend God to be, when the nature of his juſtice moves him to execute grievous judgements: yet ſtill is he without any paſſion; thus are mingled judgements, and mercies; threatnings, and promiſes; totall deſtructions to the generall body of the wicked people; and yet reſervations of mercies to his holy repenting and elect remnants amongſt them: yea mitigations of judgements many times to the body of the wicked, for the godlyes ſake that are among them: he ſpares the chaff and ſtraw, for for the wheat ſake that is in it. Gods grace of Election and vocation, is, and remains ever firm and ſtable to his.

I will not return] That I may ſave the remnant of mine Elect among the people; I will not conſume them wholly by redoubling of evils. His Elect ſhall never fail; his Church ſhall never utterly periſh.

I am God] And therefore moſt true, and immutable in all my promiſes. Thus God confirms and bears up the trembling hopes, and fearfull tender conſciences of his holy remnant: And this muſt be a ſtrong bulwork to us in all our fears, againſt our own manifold frailties, and Satans fiery darts, and temptations; this muſt be our ſhield and buckler to defend us, to eſtabliſh, and comfort, and quiet us, againſt diffidence and deſpair. We muſt not meaſure God by our ſelves; but better remember with whom we have to deal, and wholely rely upon his free and unchangable nature, and promiſes. Iſaiah 55. 8. 2 Sam. 7. 14. And no cauſe for this dealing can God finde in us, or elſe-where, but onely in himſelf.

and not man] Who is changable in his purpoſes; and would no wayes bear and endure ſuch wrongs. Numb. 23. 19. Mal. 3. 6. 1 Sam. 15. 29.

the Holy one in the midſt of thee] I will be within thee preſent by my grace and ſpirit; as thy true Deity, the object of all thy devotion, religion and adoration; and the well-ſpring and authour of all thy holineſſe: I will be mindefull of my covenant; as in 2 Sam. 7. 14, 15. Pſal. 89. 32, 33. Micah 7. 18, 19, 20. and I will not be there any more as thine enemy.

I will not enter into the city] As a beſieging and conquering enemy uſeth to do; with fire and ſword, of rage and revenge; I will forbear, and ſpare, though the gates and walls of the city lie open and level before me.

v. 10. They ſhall] He goes on further; and promiſeth not onely mitigation, but reſtauration: Some extend this propheſie to the Kingdom of Chriſt, and ſo their ſpirituall collection and gathering to him, and walking after him, as their Lord, and guide; and all this by the mighty ſound and powerfull preaching of the Goſpel.

walk after the Lord] And not go from him; as thoſe, verſe 2. And he ſhall go before them, and become their Captain and Leader, though in their exile and diſperſion, he ſeemed to forſake and abandon them. He ſhall manifeſt himſelf to them in grace, and ſalvation in Chriſt.

he ſhall roar like a Lyon] Jeremiah 25. 30. Joel 3. 16. Amos 1. verſe 2. He ſhall cauſe the powerfull voice of the Goſpell to ſound all the world over; by which the conſciences being moved, men will gather unto him. Haggai 2. 6, 7. Hebrews 12. 26. Others thus, He ſhall be terrible to their enemies, that none in any quarter ſhall dare to withſtand their return from thence.

the children ſhall tremble] Shall run to him, as children do tremble, and run to their parents when they are afraid; and ſo as the Lyons whelps to their dams. The true Elect, children of grace. John 1. 12 ſhall joyn themſelves in ſpirit, to the Communion of the Church, from all the ends of the world, where they have been ſcattered. Others thus, That the mighty voice, and power of the Lord then to be ſhown, ſhall make their enemies every where to tremble, and fear to oppoſe them, and their return.

from the weſt] Hebrew ſea, taken and uſed to ſignifie the weſt, becauſe the great mediterrane ſea lay weſt from Jury. LXX. tranſlate thus; the children of the waters ſhall tremble and run to him. Their meaning likely is, that the Græcians, and weſtern Iſlanders ſhall be converted to Chriſt, the Gentiles ſhall be called in to him.

v. 11. as a bird] Chapter 3. 5. As a frighted bird, and dove, with ſpeed fly to their neſts, and lockers.

out of Egypt] Egypt, and Aſſyria, then were, or were to be the chiefeſt places of their diſperſion. Hoſ. 11. 11.

in their houſes] This may relate to the Church, the houſe and habitation of God, and of his people. God will bring them, and place them there, ſafely and quietly to continue and dwell there. Thus the Prophets uſually ſpeak of the Spirituall Kingdom of Chriſt, of the erection and advancement of it, of bringing people to it, of the bleſſings of it, under the ſhadows of the earthly kingdom of the Jews, the reſtauration of it, the reduction of people to that land, and the temporall bleſſings in it.

v. 12. Ephraim] This, it ſeems, might better begin the next chapter, wherein the Prophet returneth again to reprehenſions, and inſiſteth moſt upon them; more fully to convince their conſciences of their ſins.

Compaſſeth me about] As enemies uſe to beſiege a city on all ſides round about.

with lies] In all their actions they are diſloyall unto me, dealing with me falſly and fraudulently to circumvent me. And that not one way, but every way; beſieging me with charms as it were of lying frauds and deceits. Such were the particulars of their falſe worſhips, and hypocriticall doings. They think thus to delude me, and ſave themſelves: nothing is ſound and ſincere in them. But all in vain; nothing but ſincerity and integrity ſerves God, and is pleaſing to him.

and the houſe] An explication of the former ſentence.

but Judah yet ruleth] Or, when Judah yet ruled.

with God] Hath the true kingdom, and Prieſthood, the right Temple, Altar and worſhip of God, though Ephraim and Iſrael boaſted of the greater kingdom, of many Temples, and Altars. In the Tribe of Judah which hath not forſaken Gods pure ſervice, there doth yet remain the lawful government of Davids progenie; In Iſrael not ſo.

is faithfull] Or, was faithfull. He perſevereth in my covenant and true worſhip, holding himſelf conſtantly to the faith and religion of his ancient forefathers; or to that which is taught them by Gods holy ſervants, and Prophets, and Prieſts.

with the Saints] Or, with the moſt holy, with the holy Patriarchs, and Fathers, to whom the Promiſes were made, yet all this is ſpoken, not ſimply to free Judah from all faults, but comparatively; in reſpect of Iſrael and Ephraim. And the prophet moſt an end leaves Judahs ſins to Judahs prophets to reprove them, he mindes moſt his own Commiſſiion to Iſrael and Ephraim. LXX. Here again vary from the true reading, and ſenſe, thus. As the houſe of Iſrael and Judah compaſſeth me about with impieties; now God knoweth them, and the holy people ſhall be called Gods [people] the vulgar Latin thus; Judas autem teſtis deſcendit cum Deo, & cum ſanctis fidelis, reading it ſeems ער for ער, and ירך for רך.

CHAP. XII.

OF this Chapter, the Contents are theſe; Ephraims ſin; and ſeeking for help to Aſhur; and to Egypt. Judahs ſin. Jacobs dealing at his birth, and in his wreſtling with the Angel? Ephraims ſin of guilfull covetouſneſs: and of Gods dealing with him. His ſin of idolatry; even in Gilead; and Gilgal: and of Gods former dealings with Jacob, and with Iſrael, in theſe places. Ephraims ſin and Gods wrath.

v. 1. Ephraim feedeth on winde] That is, flattereth himſelf with vain confidence, and feeds himſelf with windy, empty hopes; continuing in his ſins, Contemning the Prophets threatnings, and thinking to eſcape Gods judgements by ſtrange and unlawfull Covenants; winde fils indeed, but feeds not.

the eaſt winde] This winde commonly is hurtfull, dry, and tempeſtuous in theſe Countries. Jonah 4. 8. Pſal. 48. 7. ſo the hopes Ephraim purſues, are not only vain, but hurtful to him. It is a pernitious and a deſtructive way, to put truſt in the arm of fleſh for defence againſt God. The LXX. read it an evil winde.

He dayly increaſeth] Never gives it over, but continually purſues this courſe more and more; thinking thereby to ſhelter himſelf and be ſafe, againſt all Gods threatnings; and ſo hardens himſelf in his obſtinacy.

lyes] Chap. 11. v. 12. & 10. 13. & 14. 3. Eſay 57. 13. when all comes to all, they are no better, and ſhall prove no better then lyes.

and deſolation] This is more. They ſhall not only be lying helps, but prove deſtructive, and the cauſes of their deſolation: deſolation ſhall bee the fruit and iſſue of them. See Eſay. 36. 6. Emptie and vain things, ſay the LXX.

a covenant] He points to the Particulars, and points out their vain and pernitious wayes, Generals would not ſuffice to pluck off the Viſors from ſuch ſecure ſinners.

with the Aſſyrians] Chap. 5. 13. & 7. 11. & 8. verſe 9. & 10. 6. Not contenting themſelves with Gods covenant, and his defence, which would never have failed them, or proved a lie to them, if they had ſtood to his Covenant, and repented of their ſins, But they forſook this, and thought not themſelves ſafe under his wings; and betake themſelves to theſe unlawfull confederacies; which were expreſly forbidden them; By them to ſtrengthen themſelves in their rebellion againſt God; and in the idolatrous prophanation of his worſhip. See Jer. 2. 18. 36. 2 Kings 15. 19. Ezech. 23. 5. See the like 2 Chr. 28. 16. 21. 2 Kin. 16. 7. Ezech. 17. 15.

oyl is carried into Egypt] Sweet ſmelling oyl, whereof there was great plenty in Judea; 2 Kings 20. 13. Ezech. 27. 17. meaning, preſents to get friendſhip, 2 King. 17. 4. This forbidden, Eſay 30. 2. & 31. 1. & 36. 6. See Eſay 57. 9. & 30. 6. Thus they were at coſt to buy and purchaſe their own harm. Eſay. 57. 13.

v. 2. The Lord] Threatens Judah; And this to affright Iſrael the more, who was in a far worſe caſe then Judah, and muſt therefore needs expect more greivous plagues. Luke 23. 31. 1 Pet. 4. 17.

a controverſie with Judah] Judah praiſed for their kingdom, Prieſthood, and worſhip, chap. 11. verſe 12. yet their lives and manners faulty; though nothing ſo much as Iſraels. That which I have ſpoken of Judah, is not to free him from all defects; for he alſo hath his grievous faults; but becauſe Gods true ſervice is yet remaining there; God will yet reprove and redargue him with words: but as for the ten Tribes, he will judge them with deeds, ſeeing they are almoſt become incapable of all correction, See chap. 4. 15. & chap. 6. 11.

puniſh] Heb. viſit upon.

Jacob] He doth but touch upon Judah by the way: But his heavy wrath ſhall fall upon Jacob or Iſrael: to puniſh and recompence them according to their demerits, their ſhamefull wayes and works, and their obdurate and obſtinate continuance in them, which they would not by any means be beaten from.

v. 3. He took] In the name of Jacob and Iſrael they much gloried; they boaſted of Jacob their father, that they were the Sons of Jacob. See John 4. 12. Micah. 2. 7. Eſay 44. 5. But he ſhews how far they had fallen from his example, how far unlike they were to him, and degenerate, as John 8. 39. 44.

by the heel in the womb] This he did, not out of his own judgement and induſtry; but God by his free Grace guided him ſo to do; and by this ſigne teſtified his free love and election of him. See Mal. 1. verſe 2. 3. Rom. 9. 13. and ſo in his chooſing of you in him, to be his peculiar people, without any merit or worth of yours. And therefore ſo much the greater now is your ingratitude, and the fouler your fall from him to idols. See Gen. 25. verſe 26. Theſe hiſtories ſeems to be alleaged here, to reprove Iſrael for their ingratitude, after ſo many great benefits of Gods towards their forefathers; which he reduceth to two heads, figured here in theſe two hiſtories; one is Jacobs election before Eſau his brother; the other, his deliverance from al thoſe evils wherewith God had tried and exerciſed him. Or, thus; Jacob your father left nothing unattempted whereby to get the bleſſing; if then ye be his children, ſtrive ye to turn to God, as it is v. 6. imitate his Piety; elſe unworthy are ye to bear his name; and moſt worthily deſerve to be puniſhed.

by his ſtrength] Which was given him by Gods grace. A figure of the Spirituall ſtrength of faith and the Spirit. He did thus. But ye far otherwiſe. And ſo His Praiſe the more redounds to your diſpraiſe; The ſacred memory of his ſtrength and power with God, the more ſhames your impotent and ſlaviſh ſervice of idols: ye have loſt then that dignity ye would derive from him; ye have ſtained it by your contrary baſe doings, ye but fooliſhly glory in his name; ye are a ſhame to him from whoſe example yee do ſo ſhamefully Prevaricate.

he had power] Heb. was a Prince; or behaved himſelf Princely. See Gen. 32. 24.

with God] With the Son of God, who appeared to Jacob in a humane ſhape; who alſo by reaſon of his office of mediator, is afterward called Angel, which name is alſo given to the Son of God, Gen. 48. 16.

v. 4. over the Angel] The Angel of the covenant, Jeſus Chriſt, the mediator, called alſo God. verſe 3. and Jehovah, verſe 5.

and prevailed] Whence God honours him with the name of Iſrael, Gen. 32. 28. & 35. 10. not only applauding thereby his heroicall and more then Angelicall Power but granting the victory to him, and ſomeway yeilding himſelf to be overcome by him.

he wept] Not the Angel; though ſome would have it ſo. But Jacob wept; though Moſes record it not: wept in prayer, like to that Heb. 5. 7. So here Jacob wept.

and made ſupplication] For a bleſſing, Gen. 32. 26. And for ſtrength, and prevailing therein. So he acknowledgeth his ſtrength, verſe 3. not to be his own; but Aginzeth the Author from whom he ſought it, and of whom he had it: And ſo God was pleaſed in ſuch manner to diſtribute his ſtrength in this wraſtling, that the greater part of it remained in Jacob. And yet God gives no ground for Jacob to pride himſelf in this victory; but leaves him a touch in the hollow of his thigh, for his after weeping and humiliation. And yet Jacob for that hurt ſeems not after to give over wreſtling with God, till he doth at laſt prevail. The vulgar Latin hath it thus, & in fortitudine ſua directus eſt cum Angelo. Et invaluit ad angelum; & confortatus eſt.

he found him in Bethel] God found Jacob, ſay ſome, Jacob found God ſay others. God had found him before, there; Gen. 28. 12. when all alone he fled from his brother; and thought not God had bin ſo nigh unto him; yet God there vouchſafed to teſtifie his free love to him, and care of him. And God found him after there, Gen. 35. 9.

and owning thee for mine; ſamiliarly revealing and communicating my ſelf unto thee, and taking care of thee, and providing all things neceſſary for thee: feeding thee, as the LXX. have it See Gal. 4. 9. Pſalm 144. 3. Targum thus, I miniſtred all things that were neceſſary to them.

wilderneſſe] Deut. 8. 15. and 32. 10. where God ſuſtained them miraculouſly with Manna from heaven; and quails, and with water out of the rock. See Deut. 29. 5. The more ſhameful therefore is their defection and apoſtacy from him that dealt ſo with their anceſtours; and ſtill ſo well with them. He often mindes them of this, which it ſeems they too much forgat; for the due remembrance of it, would have kept them from ſuch rebellion againſt him.

v. 6. According to their paſture] When God had brought them out of the wilderneſſe to a land flowing with milk and honey, and fed them to the full.

their heart was exalted] They waxed proud and inſolent, fierce and maſterleſſe, chap. 10. 1. Deut. 8. 12, 13, 14. and 32 15. Thus proſperity ſlayeth and deſtroyeth fooliſh ſinners, Proverbs 1. 32.

forgotten me] Contrary to the expreſſe charge, Deut. 6. 11. 12. and according to Gods foreknowledge of them, Deut. 31. 20. See ch. 8. 14. and 2. 13. Ezek. 23. 35. and 22. 12. Jer. 2. 32 and 18. 14, 15. Eſay 51. 13.

v. 7. Therefore] To ſtartle and rouze them from their vain confidence and ſecurity, if poſſible to affright them with the fear of Gods wrath; which was a thing moſt neceſſary for ſuch ſinners, to make them know they have to deal with an angry God, he points out Gods judgements in three terrible ſimilitudes, of a Lyon, Leopard, and Bear, Chap. 5. 14. Levit. 26. 21. 24. 28. Pſalm 18. 26. See Proverbs 28. 15. Lam. 3. 10. See the like fearful ſimilitudes, Mar. 9. 44.

as a leopard] Which uſeth to lie in wait to ſet upon a man. See Jer. 5. 6.

will I obſerve them] אשורך. And ſo the moſt editions of the Hebrew text have it: and the Chaldee paraphraſe. But Plantius edition hath אשורך with Patach and dageſh, as if it were the proper name of Aſſyria. And ſo Jerome and the LXX tranſlate it, as a leopard in the way of the Aſſyrians, that is, as they go to Aſſhur or Aſſyria: or as the leopard obſerveth with a watchful and harmful eye the paſſengers that travel from Judea to Aſſyria, being a dangerous paſſage for wilde beaſts.

v. 8. as a bear] See 2 Sam. 17. 8. Prov. 17. 12. That is, I am become their implacable enemie.

the cawl of the heart] Pericardion, that incloſeth and incompaſſeth the heart, that lofty heart ſo lifted up, verſe 6. I will wound them mortally.

and there will I devour them] Namely upon the high way; whereby are meant the inſtance, and times appointed for Gods judgements. See the like uſe of this word, Pſalm 53. 5. Eccle. 3. 17.

the wilde beaſt] Heb. the beaſt of the field, Levit. 22. 22. They, and all Gods creatures are his hoaſt againſt his enemies.

v. 9. O Iſrael thou haſt deſtroyed thy ſelf] Thy calf or thy king, or rather thy ſelf is the cauſe of thy own deſtruction: ſeek the cauſe where thou wilt, it is not in me, many have wrought together to overthrow thee, but I alone can ſave thee; and not thy kings in whom thou haſt truſted; or thine idol, and thy ſin: Others tranſlate, and expound thus; O Iſrael he hath deſtroyed thee, meaning thy king; of whom he ſpeaks in the next verſe.

but in me is thine help] Heb. in thy help. So by my covenant; ſo heretofore by thine often experience; and ſo ſtill I am the ſame without change; no cauſe haſt thou to complain of me, that I do not hear thy cry, and help thee in thy need. The whole and ſole cauſe is in thy ſelf; thy ſins obſtruct the way, cloſe up my hand of help, Eſay 59. 1. 2. Jer. 5. 25. Lam. 3. 44.

v. 10. I will be thy king] Or, where is thy king? Targum thus, where is thy king now? let him ſave thee, &c. And ſo the LXX. and vulgar Latine, according to the former rendition. In theſe words God challengeth his kingly power over Iſrael, which he had by redeeming them from Egypt; and derideth their fooliſh and wicked confidence, in oppoſing the help of their idols and confederates to his threatnings. See Pſal. 138. 8. I will by thy helper. Or this, where is thy king? where is he, or any other? Let him ſave thee, and oppoſe me. As Deut. 32. 38. Judg. 10. 14. Jer. 2. 28. ſpoken as a taunt, or bitter reproach.

in all thy cities] Though never ſo many and ſtrong, and unexpugnable, as thou thinkeſt and truſteſt, Amos 6. 1. and thy judges] Princes, Peers, Magiſtrates, all; none can help thee, or hinder me.

• of whom thou ſaidſt] Some refer this to the firſt aſking of a king, 1 Sam. 8. 5. others to the tumultuary election of Jeroboam, 1 Kings 12. 16. 20.

Give me a king] 1 Sam. 8. 5. and 10. 19. and 12. 12. But chiefly he aims at their rebellion againſt the kingdom of David, in caſting off Rehoboam, and ſetting up Jeroboam 1 Kings 12. To this very fitly and fully may be applyed that, 1 Samuel 8. 7.

v. 11. I gave] Heb. I will give. Then it is a threatning in both parts; becauſe they perfidiouſly fell from God, he tells them that he will give them into the hands of a ſtrange king, and overthrow their kingdom: fulfilled when conquered by the Aſſyrians; they loſt both their kingdom and countrey, as if they had been utterly rejected by God. Others read, I do give; that is, thou ſeeſt how in a ſhort time I ſet up and pull down kings by my pleaſure and indignation: for at this time there were many changes of kings in Iſrael, ſee 2 Kings 15. and 17. The moſt follow Jonathans Chaldee paraphraſe and read, I have given, or gave, whereof ſome ſay, I gave thee Saul (1 Sam. 10.) in mine anger, 1 Sam. 8. 6. and I will take him away that thou now haſt, namely, Hoſea the ſon of Ela, 2 Kings 17. 1. &c. in whom their kingdom ended. Others, I have ſuffered thee to thy hurt and damage, to have a King according to thine own will, though I did not approve of it, Hoſ. 8. 4. and I have aggravated my judgements the more upon thee, by reaſon of the frequent violent deaths of thy kings, which do bring thy kingdom into extream ruine.

a king in mine anger] 1 Sam. 8. 5. and 15. 33. and 16. 1. As Numb. 11. 20. 33. pſalm 106. 15.

v. 12. is bound up] As Job 14. 17. and Jer. 17. 1. Not forgotten, though for a while ſpared; bound up and ſealed, and kept ſure to and for the due time of Gods vengeance. Nothing ſhall eſcape me, I will make them bear the puniſhment for all. See Deuter. 32. 34. Job 14. 17. Jerem. 17. 1.

v. 13. of a travelling woman] See this ſimile, Pſalm 48. 6. Eſay 26. 17. Jer. 6. 24. and in other places: ſure and ſudden, extream and ſharp ſorrows ſhall come upon them, notwithſtanding all their carnal confidence and ſecurity.

an unwiſe ſon] If this people were not fooliſh and ſtupified, they would imitate little infants, who coming into the world do help themſelves, and ſtrive to free themſelves out of the ſtraits and dangers of the birth; ſo ſhould they have endeavoured to free themſelves out of their mortal danger and travels by true repentance. The LXX. alter and change the words and ſenſe to the example and inſtance of a wiſe ſon, and his doing in this caſe of his childbirth.

ſtay long] Heb. A time. The travelling womans pains are ſharp but ſhort, John 16. 21. And to ſtay long in the birth is mortal both to the infant and mother. But this people aſtonied in their miſeries, and obdurate in their ſins, and deſperate, ſought not to come out of them by the pangs of true repentance, and ſo be born anew to God; but fooliſhly they periſh in them.

v. 14. I will ranſom them] If they would but repent indeed; He then would vouchſafe them a temporal deliverance from captivity; and a ſpiritual deliverance, from the power of the grave and death. I am ready to do it for my part; if they hinder not, and cauſe the contrary. Though they were dead as it were in the grave, yet this could not withſtand my power, if their obduration in ſin did not alter my minde. See Eſay 48. 18, 19.

O death] And ſo the Targum and Ierome do read it. Thus the prophet magnifies the vertue and power of God, meaning, that no power ſhall reſiſt God, when he will deliver his; but even in death will he give them life. S. Paul 1 Cor. 15. 55. doth not properly cite this place, and the whole context of it, but rather alludes to ſuch words of it, as fit well his purpoſe to ſet forth the infinite power of God over death, and the grave. And the like to this the Apoſtles do many times.

I will be thy plagues] Or, where are thy plagues?

I will be thy deſtruction] Or where is thy deſtruction? The Apoſtles words are, Death is ſwallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy ſting? O grave, where is thy victory? following therein the LXX. as it ſeemeth.

repentance ſhall be hid] My goodneſſe towards them ſhall never alter: or rather thus, as beſt ſuiting with the whole context, there is no conſolation (for ſo the word alſo ſignifieth) for them; no repentance in me to alter my decree for their deſtruction.

v. 15. Though he be fruitful] Namely Ephraim. He hath relation to the ſignification of the name Ephraim, and to the bleſſing which Jacob gave him, Gen. 41. 42. and 48 19. All which ſhould have made him the more thankful and obedient. But he proving otherwiſe, therefore, notwithſtanding all this, for his ſin and impenitency, the following judgement ſhall come upon him.

his brethren] To wit the other Tribes; though he be more in number, and greater in power.

an eaſt winde ſhall come] An impetuous and inevitable deſolation by the Aſſyrians, who aſſaulted the land of Iſrael toward the wilderneſſe. See the Annotations on Chap. 12. 1. Ezek. 19. 12.

the winde of the Lord] Or, ſtrong winde of the Lord, as Job 1. 16. Pſal. 36. 6. Cant. 8. 6. See on Ezech. 40. 2. Or, raiſed by him, as his ſcourge; that they might know it came from him, and not by fortune or any other means.

his ſpring] Figurative terms; the ſenſe is, That every one of Gods bleſſings, which are the well-ſprings of all good things, ſhall be taken away from them: and conſequently all manner of happineſs ſhall fail them. Thus eaſily can God do, when we abuſe his bleſſings, to his diſhonour.

he ſhall ſpoil the treaſure] Namely the enemie, (Shalmaneſer King of Aſſyria) ſignified by the Eaſtwinde, or, God by him; ſhall ſpoil the treaſure, or his land, as the LXX. have it.

pleaſant veſſels] Heb. veſſels of deſire, though never ſo cloſly hid.

v. 16. Samaria] A plain Expoſition and application of the former ſimilies, and a concluſion of the ſermon, Samaria the head city of the ten Tribes; and the well head of their ſins and idolatries, Micah. 1. 6. ſee Annotations on 8. 5.

ſhall] What I have often denounced, and ye believe not, yet ſhall certainly and ſoone come to paſſe deſolate] See the accompliſhment, 2 Kings 17.

rebelled] They have no Cauſe to blame God for it; but to thank themſelves, and their ſins provoking, and exaſperating him to it.

her God] That was theirs by covenant, which they have obliterated.

their infants] The grievouſneſſe of the judgement, though they will not fear it. God hath cauſe of wrath ſufficient in the very infants themſelves, to juſtifie his judgement upon them; and to uſe his right and power over them; and will alſo be moved hereunto the rather upon the ſins of their Parents, and yet theſe outward judgements upon them may be mingled with mercies; as in Jeroboams childe, 1 King. 14. ſpecially with ſpirituall mercies. Gods ſoveraign right and power over his creatures makes the ſenſleſs and unreaſonable creatures to ſuffer for the ſin of man; Rom. 8. 20. 21. 22. How ever we are to adore Gods judgements, if we cannot comprehend them; and to blame our own blindneſs, rather then by ſacrilegious boldneſſe to call to account, and take upon us to judge the great judge of the world. But how much more vengeance then are the vile parents, and thoſe of riper years to expect?

women with childe] See on chap. 10. 14. ſome yet expound thus; That notwithſtanding this Eaſt winde, and all the evil by it, in this and the former verſe, yet Ephraim ſhall be fruitfull among his brethren and again flouriſh through my gracious promiſe.

CHAP. XIIII.

Verſe 1. O] The contents are theſe; Iſrael exhorted to repentance; God promiſeth abundance of bleſſings to him, under many ſimilies, wiſdom required to underſtand theſe things.

Iſrael] He ſpeaks to the Remnant and holy ſeed among them; ſuch were involved and almoſt drowned in the univerſall inundation and deluge of ſin: But yet not paſt all hope of help and recovery, though the maine body of them in generall was deſperate, and already caſt off to decreed deſtruction, as he had eft-ſoons formerly propheſied.

return] He exhorteth them to Repentance, to avoid all theſe plagues, willing them to declare by words their obedience and repentance. He ſpeaks to them lovingly, to put them in hope of favour, for with out ſome faith and hope there cannot be any true Repentance.

for thou haſt fallen] Sight of ſin and humiliation for it, is the way to Repentance.

v. 2. Take with you words] I deſire neither ſacrifices, nor offerings from you, but do you preſent before me a ſincere confeſſion of your ſins, fervent prayers to obtain forgiveneſs, and ſincere actions of grace. Here are the true nature, acts; and fruits of Repentance: words, not counterfeit in hypocriſie, but ſincere as in the ſight of God, to God: words of converſion confeſſion, deprecation: ſupplication, and thankſgiving: words from Gods mouth, and to be ſpoken unto him.

and turn to the Lord] Truly turn from ſin generally, and particularly to the Lord, and to the entire obedience of his will; even to him as it is, Joel. 2. 12. Deut. 30. 2. fully, not faintly.

ſay unto him] He dictates as it were the ſolemn form and manner of their converſion.

Take away] This includes confeſſion of manifold iniquities, which is the firſt ſtep of Repentance, and this is an expreſſive prayer for the pardon of them, pardon through thy grace, and alter by thy Spirit.

and receive us graciouſly] Or, give good. Accept out of thy fatherly favour the true witneſſes and effects of our converſion; ſhew thy reconciliation to us, by thy gratious bleſſing of us, in thy grace and mercy is our all and only hope. LXX. thus ſay unto him, that ye will no more deal wickedly, but will deal well.

ſo will we] That is al we can do, we can render no compenſation, make no ſatisfaction to thee: but only acknowledge and praiſe thy bountifull goodneſſe to us. Pſal. 116. 12. 13. 14. And this is all God requires, Pſal. 50. 14. what good works we can do, are but ſacrifices of our Thankfulneſs to God. Heb. 13. 15. 16.

calves of our lips] Declaring, That this is the true ſacrifice that the faithfull can offer, even thanks and praiſe, in ſtead of ſacrifices of beaſts. See Pſal. 50. 14. 23. & 51. 19. & 69. 30 31. & 116. 12. 13. Levit. 3. 3. This is the true intent and ſubſtance of thoſe Levitical ſacrifices, Lev. 3. & chap. 7. 12. &c. and c. 22. 29. The LXX. have it, the fruit of our lips, whereunto Heb. 13. 15. ſeems to relate.

v. 3. Aſhur ſhall not ſave us] Here is a more particular confeſſion of their ſins, wherein formerly they offended, and now promiſe amendment, ſee c. 5. 13. we will leave off all vain confidence and pride in humane power, and truſt in thee only. See Hoſ. 5. 13. & 12. 2. ſee Annotations on chap. 7. 11.

we will ride not upon horſes] Pſal. 20. 7. To ſeek relief from Aſhur, Egypt, or others, as formerly we have done, when we were in dangers and diſtreſſes. Eſay 30. 7. 15. 16. and 31. 1.

to the work of our hands] To idols: Putting out truſt in them, which is a ſecond way to with draw us. Here they acknowledge their former blindneſs, and madneſs herein, and brutiſh ſtupidity. They confeſs not more then truth was: God is not pleaſed with a lie. But truly in their own Conſciences, and yet ſo deeply They condemn themſelves to get abſolution from God.

ye are our gods] And yet theſe men could plead as witty excuſes, and cover and colour their ſin with as much varniſh, and as many fair pretences and gloſſes, as idolaters now uſually do.

for in thee] In thee alone; and not in idols, or in kings, or any creature; wherein formerly we truſted.

the fatherleſs] To wit, every, perſon that wanteth a guide, relief and ſuſtenance, as we do, all ſuch as ſee they cannot help them: And in ſuch caſe we do acknowledge our ſelves now to be, depending wholly upon thy guidance, providence, and protection.

findeth mercy] Thus they acknowledge him to be the only true God: and themſelves fully to put their truſt in him.

v. 4. I will] It is an hard thing to perſwade great ſinners ſpecially lying under his judgements, the ſignes of his anger to entertain any hope of Gods reconciliation with them. Therefore to remedie this evil, and to keep them from deſpair or diſtruſt, he declareth by many and large promiſes under variety of ſimilitudes, how ready God is to receive them that do repent, to heal, love, and bleſſe them.

heal their backſlidings] Pardoning what is paſt, not imputing it to them; and by my grace preventing the like for the time to come.

love them freely] Singularly, with an abundant and conſtant love; freely, without finding any cauſe in them for it, and therefore the more freely being vouchſafed to ſuch unworthy ſinners, Chap. 9. 15, 16, 17. compared with this, ſhewes the difference of Gods dealing between impenitent and penitent perſons.

for mine anger] Which formerly lay heavy upon him, ſhall now be turned away: not like that ſo often repeated, Eſay 5. 25. and 9. 12. 21. and 10. 4.

v. 5. I will be as the dew] I will water them with my graces, and heavenly bleſſings; in oppoſition to that judgement, Chap. 13. 15. The fruit of my reconciliation ſhall appear unto them; they ſhall finde by experience the bleſſing and benefit of it. Before they were dried up and withered with miſery, for their ſin. But now my favour ſhall be to them as the dewe to the ground.

as the lilly] Flouriſh ſpeedily with ſingular beauty, Cant. 2. 1, 2. Chap. 4. 5. and 7. 2. Matth. 6. 28, 29. Vulgar Latine thus: I will be as the dew, Iſrael ſhall grow or bloſſom as the lilly.

caſt forth] Heb. Strike forth.

as Lebanon] As the cedars, and trees in Lebanon are rooted firmly, to laſt durably; ſuch ſhall their felicity be.

v. 6. His

v. 6. His branches] Ariſing from ſuch roots ſhall ſpread. Gods bleſſings ſhall more and more multiply and increaſe towards him.

ſhall ſpread] Heb. Shall go.

olive tree] Which is alwaye green, Judges 9. 9. Jer. 11. 16.

his ſmell as Lebanon] Wherein were many odoriferous trees and flowers. See the Annotations on Zech. 11. 1.

v. 7. they that dwell under his ſhadow] See Dan. 4. 12. 21. live under the ſhade of it. They and every one of them.

ſhall return] And reſt in ſafety and quietneſſe; under Gods protection; ſhall be defended from any ſcorching heat, and refreſhed with the coolneſſe of it. See Eſay 4. 6. ſome extend this further; That they ſhall return from their exile, where they were ſcattered, and ſhall come together into the Church, in the Meſſias his time, and there they ſhall be ſafe under Gods protection.

ſhall revive] Increaſe, and have children and multiply, as of one grain comes many. See 1 Cor. 15. 36. and Pſalm 72. 16. A further commendation of Gods favour from the effects.

grow] Or bloſſom.

as the vine] Which of a ſeeming withered ſtock, and branche, doth ſurvive and fructifie.

the ſent thereof] Heb. The memorial. Some underſtand this of the name of God: as Chap. 12. 5. whence thus; He means, that the knowledge of him and his doctrine ſhall be alwayes moſt pleaſing to his people; like unto excellent wine, Cant. 1. 2, 3. or God ſhall love the memory of his people very dearly.

wine of Lebanon] Cant. 1. verſes 2. 4. and chap. 7. 9. ſuch as grows there; the beſt wine of the beſt ſent and favour. They ſhall be in a moſt happy eſtate, abounding in all joyes, and comfort.

v. 8. Ephraim ſhall ſay] Thus ſay, as followeth, Renuing their confeſſion; as verſes 2, 3. ſome underſtand this, as the words of God to Ephraim, Thou Ephraim ſhalt joyn me no more with idols, as thou haſt done heretofore; I will alone be ſerved in ſpirit and truth, 2 Cor. 6. 16.

what have I to do] See 1 Theſ. 5. 22. Rom. 12. 9. Eſay 30. 22. Jude verſe 23.

any more] I have had to do with them too much already, 1 Pet. 4. 2, 3. thus deteſting their former blindneſſe and madneſſe: and abandoning their idols for ever after, Eſay 31. 7.

I have heard him] God heard Ephraim, ſpeaking as formerly in deteſtation of his idolatry.

and obſerved him] A turning from idols; marked him therin, and reſpected him therefore.

I am like] They ſhall finde in me all the good they deſire; as when a tree bringeth forth good fruit, and a pleaſant ſhade, Cant. 2. 3. To ſhelter them from heat; to refreſh them in the cool ſhade and ſhadow of it.

is thy fruit] This implies, another ſimilitude from a fruitfull tree. This may be underſtood of the good works of the faithfull, brought forth in them, by the only power of Gods grace and Spirit, John 15. 2. 4. Or, rather thus: I am moſt fruitfull for thy good, thou mayeſt readily and plentifully finde it in me.

v. 9. who] An emphatical exclamation and interrogation: no doubt but Hoſeah in the whole courſe of his miniſtry for ſo very many years, preached much more then is in this book ſet down. It pleaſed the wiſdom of God, that here only the heads of his Preaching are gathered to gather. And he now concludes and ſeals up all with that, which in all likely hood he had often uttered before, to raiſe the people up to a due conſideration of his propheſies: aſſerting the authority and uſe of them, and of the wayes of the Lord declared in them, both to the good and to the bad.

is wiſe] They all would be thought ſo. But few are they that be ſo.

and he ſhall] Signifying, that the true wiſdom and knowledge conſiſteth in this, even to know and to reſt upon God, ſuch a manner of ſpeech is in Pſal. 107. 43. no true wiſdom but this. Prov. 1. 7. and chap. 9. verſe 10. Job 28. 28. Pſal. 111. 10. And therefore he that hath any ſpark of true wiſdom, let him ſhew it in this; he will ſhew it in this. All humane wiſdom without, and againſt the Lord, is true folly: And yet the world is too full of it.

prudent] He ingeminats the ſentence, to rouze up their attention and conſideration the more.

for the wayes of the Lord are right] The whole conduct of his providence, his works and judgements, and alſo his word and doctrine, are moſt holy things, and good for men: Right in themſelves; notwithſtanding all the calumnies, blaſphemies, murmurings and mockings of wicked prophane men, againſt his wayes and word: All theſe cannot darken the light, or pervert the right of his holy wayes, and word.

and the juſt ſhall walk in them] The wiſe and juſt ſhall and will do ſo; and not turn aſide from them; knowing and finding by experience their true happineſs to conſiſt in their keeping, and continuing in them: as Judg. 5. 31. Prove. 4. 18. Pſal. 37. 6.

but the tranſgreſſours] That are, and will be ſuch.

ſhall fall therein] Stumble, and fall, and periſh. They become an occaſion of ruin and perdition to the wicked, which do abuſe them, through their incredulity, and wickedneſs. Prov. 10. 29. Luke 2. 34. 2 Cor. 2. 16. 1 Peter 2. 9. 8. See alſo Apoc. 22. 11. 1 Cor. 14. 38.

JOEL.

The ARGUMENT.

IOels time of Propheſie is not ſpecified by the holy Hiſtory: yet generally it is thought to be when Hoſea propheſied: not onely becauſe it is placed next Hoſea; and before Amos; without any intimation of a differing time: but chiefly becauſe the matters contained in it ſeem to fall in with the times of King Uzziah, of Judah; and of Jeroboam the ſecond of Iſrael: though ſome do aſſigne unto him a latter time, upon conſideration of thoſe paſſages, Chap. 3. 1.— 9. Joel preacheth to Judah, and declareth, and denounceth a generall judgement of dearth and famine, cauſed by an extream drought, and ſwarmes of Caterpillars with Lyon-like teeth. and other ſuch like deſtroying Creatures; ſome eating what others left. Thereupon he exhorteth to Repentance, ſhewing it muſt be Generall, of all perſons, of every age, and condition; becauſe they had Generally offended: And it muſt be earneſt, and hearty, and teſtified by mourning, and humbling themſelvës before the Lord in Faſting, and Prayer: which if they do, the Prophet, from God, promiſeth deliverance from that terrible plague of famine; and that their Afflictions and loſſes ſhould be removed; and recompenſed by a Wonderfull plenty, not onely of Temporall, but alſo in 'its time of Spirituall bleſſings, under the Meſſiah; foretelling ſo of the Gifts of the holy Spirit which then ſhould abundantly be ſent down and powred out, eminently at Penticoſt: Further they ſhall have Redemption from their enemies, the Heathen round about: by Gods ſitting to judge them, and to take dreadfull revenge upon them, for their wrongs done to his people; concluding with a reiteration of Gods abundant bleſſings upon Jeruſalem and Judah. The ſumme then, and Order is this: Joel firſt telleth the famine, and calleth for Lamentation and mourning, Chap. 1 Then he exhorteth to publike Repentance, promiſing a bleſſing thereon, Chap. 2. Laſtly, he comforteth them, by deſtruction of their enemies, and Gods bleſſings on his Church, Chap. 3.

CHAP. I.

THe word of the Lord] See Annotations on Hoſ. 1. 1.

that came to Joel] Was depoſited with him, to be imparted to the People. 2 Cor. 4. 7. and 5. 20.

Pethuel] Likely a man of note, and name; and fame. This is to diſtinguiſh him from other Joels.

v. 2. Hear ye old men] Signifying the Princes, the prieſts, and the Governours, or ſuch who by reaſon of old age have ſeen and heard many things. See verſe 14. Compare Deut. 32. 1. Pſal. 49. 1. Iſaiah 1. verſe 2.

and give ear] He implicitely chides their hardneſſe of heart, that they were not ſenſible of theſe preſent plagues:

all] Young as well as old; none excepted: The matter in hand concernes all.

hath this been in your dayes] He calleth the Iews to the conſideration of Gods judgements and the greatneſſe of them; ſo ſtrange and unheard of formerly: all this, to ſhame them for their wretchleſſneſſe, and ſecurity, wherein they ſo pleaſed themeſlves: as if God were aſleep in heaven; and to rouze them up to behold Gods hand ſtretched out, and his judgements thundering againſt them in ſo rare and uncouth a manner; and to call them to repentance, for their ſins thereby.

or even in] Have you heard them tell any the like. Gods common judgements ſhould affect us. But much more ſuch extraordinary ones by their rarity ſhould ſtartle us and aſtoniſh us.

v. 3. Tell] This is a more memorable judgement then to be a nine dayes wonder; the continuation of ſuch a famine by ſuch ſtrange means. The uſe of it ſhould reach to poſterity. Thus the Prophets ſet forth Gods judgements, and improve them to the utmoſt.

v. 4. That which the palmer-worm hath left] Hebr. the reſidue of the Palmer-worm. Therefore this is not a threatning, of judgements to come: but a narrative of that which preſently did lye upon them: of the Palmer-worm ſee Amos 4. 9.

hath the locuſt eaten] A deſcription of a moſt great ſpoil made by theſe vermine: which joyned with an extream drought, had cauſed a moſt cruel dearth. See chap. 2. 25. This famine ſeems not to be that in the dayes of Joram, the ſon of Ahab, King of Iſrael; 2 Kings 8. 1. For this famine was in Judah. Neither yet that in Judah in the dayes of Joſiah, mentioned Ier. 14. But rather, that in the dayes of Uzziah, intimated, Iſaiah 5. 13, 14. and Amos 1. verſe 2. and more fully, Amos 4. 6. 10. which is beſt agreeing with the time of the Contents in this propheſie: or elſe ſome other famine about that time, not mentioned elſe-where in Scripture. To take this off from the letter as ſome do, and apply it onely to the four ſeverall invaſions of the Caldeans, and the devaſtations made by them; Or which is more, to apply theſe four Creatures to the four Monarchies; or to four chief vices, as ſome Moraliſts do, is a thing of more boldneſſe then we have any warrant for from the Text. Thoſe Locuſts Exod. 10. 14. were but for a ſhort time. And ſuch as they, ſhould never be again in the land of Egypt; of Locuſts ſee Prov. 30. 27. Ier. 46. 23.

cankerworme] Of the cankerworme, ſee Nahum 3. 15, 16.

caterpillar] Of the caterpillar, ſee Eſay 33. 4. Jer. 51. 14. 27.

v. 5. Awake] It is high time ſo to do, and not to continue wretchleſſe and careleſſe any longer.

ye drunkards] That commonly after drink grow drowzy and ſleepy; yet here is cauſe enough to awaken them. And what then ſhould the ſober do? He means, That the occaſion of their exceſſe and drunkenneſſe was taken away.

and weep] And yet otherwiſe who ſo merry, & laughing as they.

from your mouth] That which was ſo pleaſing to your palat, that your mouth did crave it of you; as the phraſe is Pro. 16.26

v. 6. a nation] Joel tells of ſwarms of locuſts, and caterpillers, like horſes, and with lions teeth, ſpoken of in verſ. 4. by a tearm improperly attributed to thoſe inſects, ſee Pro. 30.25,26. Some would underſtand this of the nation of the Aſſyrians, or Chaldeans, coming up in war againſt them; but this is not ſo ſutable to the whole context.

my land] Gods honouring the land of Canaan.

v. 7. barked my figtree] Heb. laid my figtree for a barking.

caſt it away] Having thus made them unprofitable, men care not now for dreſſing them; or to look for any fruit from them.

are made white] Without bark; as it were pale, a thing without blood, and withering.

v. 8. Lament] O thou Jeruſalem or Judah, mourn grievouſly.

like a virgin] Eſpouſed, and not yet had home: or preſently after her eſpouſals.

for the husband of her youth] Mourn grievouſly, as a woman which hath loſt her huſband, to whom ſhe hath been married in her youth: or her young huſband, as elſewhere it is ſaid, a wife of youth, for a young wife. See Pro. 5.18. Iſai. 54.6. Mal. 2.15. Others rather ſay, by huſband is meant one that hath eſpouſed a maid, and died before he came in unto her; or ſoon after the wedding; becauſe here is ſpeech of the virgins mourning.

v. 9. meat-offering] The extream dearth hinders them from furniſhing their ſacred offerings with bread, wine, and oil, &c. See Exod. 29. 40. Levit. 2. 1.

mourn] Partly becauſe Gods ſervice is interrupted: partly alſo becauſe they want their ordinary food, which they got from the offerings and ſacrifices.

v. 10. The field] He proſecutes the ſame matter more largly, in more variety of words, to work the more effectually, and make the greater impreſſion upon a people ſo dull & obdurate.

new wine] All comfort and ſubſtance for nouriſhment is taken away. dried up] Or, aſhamed, Eſay 24. 7.

v 11 Be ye aſhamed] He labours ſtill to have his word pierce into their heart; not ſwim in the brain, but ſink deeper, and work ſhame and ſorrow. He would have their ſenſes teach them, and humble them.

O ye huſbandmen] Or, the huſbandmen are confounded, and the vine-dreſſers howl.

v. 12. Joy is withered away] He ſeems alſo to have relation to the feaſts and merriments which were in harveſt time, and in time of vintage, Pſal. 4.7. Eſay 16.10. Jer. 48.33. All to drive them from dedolency and ſenſleſneſſe, under Gods heavy hand of judgement.

v. 13. gird your ſelves] He ſheweth that the only means to avoid Gods wrath, and to have all things reſtored, is unfeigned repentance. See Gen. 37. 34. and the Annotations there. He exhorts them to make uſe of this ready remedy; and to haſten the time of it.

ye prieſts] Begins with them, whoſe office it was to be guides and examples to the reſt.

ye miniſters of the altar] According to the Levitical law.

v. 14. all night in ſackcloth] Watchings, humicubations, and ſackcloth are ſignes and helps of extream mourning.

my God] Hardly your God in this your blockiſhneſſe and ſtupidity under his ſo heavy hand of judgements.

for the meat] Verſe 9.

Sanctifie you a faſt] Chap. 2. 15. Appoint a time ſpeedily for this holy exerciſe, and prepare your ſelves unto it by all acts of piety and devotion. Faſting is a voluntary and religious abſtinence from all meat and drink, and from all corporal and ſenſual delights and comforts, ſo far forth as it will ſtand with neceſſity of nature, charity and comlineſſe; together with a ceſſation from the works of our lawful callings; in that time, and by that means, generally to teſtifie the deſert of our ſins, to afflict our ſouls, and to humble our ſelves before God for them: More particularly, and punctually, to exerciſe, and increaſe our Repentance, and Prayer, in an extraordinary manner and meaſure; according to the occaſion and exigence of the Faſt; our repentance in ſorrowing and mourning for ſin paſt; both our own and others: And in confeſſing them and in forſaking; and amending them for the time to come; publickly in a State; perſonally in our ſelves: And to exerciſe our prayer; in craving with more fervour and faith, aid and help at Gods hands, in all our neceſſities and extremities, corporal or ſpiritual: perſonal, or national; for the obtaining of bleſſings; or for the preventing or removing of judgements, preſent, or imminent; felt, or feared; and ſo to gain our ſpecial ſuits for which we faſt.

call a ſolemn aſſembly] Or, day of reſtraint, Levit. 23. 36. Private faſting was not ſufficient.

the elders] The Magiſtrates and chief of the people: their neglect of duty had ſet open the floodgates of ſin. They had need to be ringleaders in repentance.

and all] None excepted.

cry unto the Lord] Pray that he would take away the preſent evils. This was the end of their faſting and aſſembling: all to adde wings to their prayer.

v. 15. Alas] Jer. 30. 7.

for the day] Eſay 13. 6. we ſee by theſe great plagues, that utter deſtruction is at hand, greater plagues yet behinde, if we prevent them not by repentance: but put it off from day to day. See Amos 6. 3. and 5. 18.

v. 16. joy and gladneſſe] Deut. 16. 11. 14, 15. Can we be ſo blinde as not to ſee at noon day?

v. 17. ſeed] Heb. grains.

rotten under their clods] Becauſe it could not grow up, by reaſon of the extream drought, v. 19, 20. The Trent Bible very improperly thus; The beaſts rotted in their own dung.

the garners] There being no need or uſe of them for want of grain.

v. 18. How do the beaſts groan] Or, mourn in their kinde. Then how much worſe then beaſts are ye? They alſo ſuffer for mans ſin, and man in them.

the flocks of ſheep are made deſolate] Which otherwiſe feed in the moſt dry and deſert places.

v. 19. to thee] From whom theſe judgements come, and who onely canſt eaſe us of them; ſtraight to thee; not to others.

will I cry] Though others will not, for ought I can do or ſay; yet I will do my duty, as a pious man ſhould.

the fire hath devoured] The heat and fire of the ſun. The drought hath burnt up the countrey, as if the fire had gone thorow it.

paſtures] Or, habitations.

.20. cry alſo unto thee] In their way and kinde; Pſ. 104. 21. 27. by reaſon of extream thirſt: ſo it is ſaid of the young ravens, Pſal. 147. 9. and other creatures, Job. 38. 41. when by reaſon of hunger or thirſt they lift up their beaks.

are dried up] See Amos 4. 6, 7, 8. Eſay 5. 13.

CHAP. II.

Verſe 1. BLow] What Joel had propounded and preached in the former Chapter, he doth repeat and proſecute in this: He repreſents the grievouſneſſe of the preſent judgement. And thereupon moves them again to repentance: And to the repentant he ſhews at large Gods gracious promiſes both of temporal and ſpiritual bleſſings.

ye the trumpet] Or, cornet, Numb. 10. 9. As it were to give notice of the coming of theſe foreſaid devouring creatures; that every one may prepare himſelf to prevent the ſcourge by repentance, and prayer to God to bear it patiently; and to overcome it by faith in his grace. See verſe 15.

tremble] Not truſt in formalities of Gods worſhip; nor trifle with him in outward ſhews: but tremble and quake at the heart at his anger and the ſignes of it, Jer. 5. 22.

for the day of the Lord cometh] C. 1. 15. ſee the Annot. there.

for it is nigh at hand] A threatning of further judgements; or enlargement and aggravation of this. See 1 Kings 14. 14.

v. 2. of darkneſſe and of gloomineſſe] Of affliction and trouble: and it may be he hath relation to the coming of theſe creatures in great ſwarms, whereby the air may be darkned, verſ. 10. See Ezek. 32. 7, 8. Amos 5. 18. 20. Eſay 5. 30. & 8. 22.

ſpread upon the mountains] Which ſhall in an inſtant cover the whole country, even as the morning light, or morning clouds and miſts, ſpread abroad on a ſudden over the tops of hills. See Amos 4. 13.

a great people] C. 1. 6. & 2. 11. 25. See Prov. 30. 25, 26. This ſeems not to be underſtood of the Aſſyrian, or Chaldean enemy.

there hath not been] Exod. 10. 14.

of many generations] Heb. of generation and generation.

v. 3. A fire devoureth before them] Chap 1. 19. theſe creatures going along to devour the countrey, which is rich and full of goods; and after they are gone by, every thing is found gnawn and conſumed. To underſtand this fire of that fire which is ſaid to be carried before the hoaſt of the Chaldeans as the god and guide they worſhipped, is a fancie too far fetcht.

garden of Eden] Paradiſe, Gen. 2. 8 & 13 10. Ezek. 28. 13.

v. 4. the appearance of them] He inſiſts long upon this the more to affect them with it; they being ſo hard to be brought to it, and wrought upon by it. Rev. 9. 7. of the horſe, ſee Job 39. 19. &c.

v. 5. ſhall they leap] Rev. 9. 9. and make an horrible noiſe and concuſſion

v. 6. all faces ſhall gather blackneſſe] Heb. pot. Through horrour and hunger.

v. 7. Not break their] They ſhall not ſtop nor ſtay their paces nor give the way to any.

v. 8. fall upon the ſword] Or, dart. A term taken from the meeting of armies: to ſignify, that there will be neither defence, nor reſiſtance that can ſtay this tempeſt, but it wil break through al difficulties dangers, and obſtructions, without fear or hurt.

v. 9. run to and from the city] A manner of ſpeech taken from a city won by aſſault. Cities ſhall not withſtand them.

v. 10. The earth] Hyperbolicall tearms, frequent in the Prophets, to ſignifie a horrible deſolation.

quake before them] Heb. before his face. Meaning the people, whereof mention is made verſe 2.

the ſun and the moon] Shall be dark, with the overſhadowing clouds and ſwarms of theſe devouring vermines, wonderous expreſſions to meet with their wonderous ſtupidity. This may alſo be underſtood in the ſame manner, as Iſai. 13. 10. Ezek. 32. 7. Joel 3. 15. Matt. 24. 29. unleſs it be interpreted, as upon v. 2.

v. 11. ſhall utter his voice] Like a Captain, incouraging his ſouldiers; or giving the ſigne of the battle.

before his army] It is Gods army; though the army it ſelf know it not; and againſt him there is no reſiſtance.

he is ſtrong] Apoc. 18. 8. Jer. 50. 34.

day of the Lord] Jer. 30. 7. Amos 5. 18. Zeph. 1. 15. no abiding it; but to prevent it by repentance. Amos 4. 12.

v. 12. alſo now] As I exhorted you before in the former Chap. ſo alſo now again I exhort you to Repent, whiles there is yet ſpace and place for it. And this the rather he renews, leſt upon the premiſes they might have doubted there had been now no more place left for repentance, as if he ſhould ſay, Though you have ſo long abuſed my mercy, and what lies in you let ſlip the time of turning, & ſhut the door againſt you; yet now, wch no man would have thought, and your ſelves can ſcarſly believe, I ſtill expect, and invite you to hope of mercy. 2 Cor. 6. 2.

turn ye] Jer. 4. 1. This is the end and ſcope of all the former judgments and threatnings, even to force them to repentance.

with all your heart] Not faintly or fainedly, though not with perfect repentance; yet in the ſincerity & integrity of your heart faſting] With no ordinary and mean repentance; as ye have not meanly, but extraordinarily offended.

v. 13. rent your heart] Pſal. 51. 17. Mortifie your affections, and ſerve God with pureneſs of heart, and not with ceremonies. The words of the Prophet, expounding as it were thoſe words of the Lord; in the former verſe.

gratious and mercifull] Exod. 34. 6. Pſal. 86. 5. 15. Jonah 4. 2. without hope of this, there could be no Repentance but either dedolency; or deſpair, from both wch the Prophet would draw them. He uſeth here ſo many words of Gods mercy, because it is ſo hard a thing to perſwade ſinners caſt down to overmaſter their own diffidence and deſpaire, & to faſten on mercy.

repenteth him of the evil] Out of his infinite mercy he changeth, not his counſell or his will, as being ſorry for having done evil, as men do when they repent; but the effects of his rigour into effects of his mercy. Gen. 6. 6.

and not your garments] Only as hypocrites do; a like ellipſis is Gen. 32. 28. 1 Sam. 8. 7. That outward ceremony is not utterly rejected; but when it goes alone for all, without the vitall part and ſoul of it, the renting of the heart and inward man.

v. 14. Who knoweth] Amos 5. 15. John 3. 9. Zeph. 2. 3.

return and repent] He ſpeaketh this to ſtir them up from their ſecurity, and not that he doubted of Gods mercies, if they did repent. See Joſh. 14. 12. Exod. 32. 10. 1 Sam. 14. 6.

a bleſſing] Namely, the fruits of the earth, growing, and preſerved by Gods ſingular bleſſing. See Iſai. 65. 8.

behind him] After theſe devourers are gone by.

a meat offering] Chap. 1. 9.

v. 15. Blow the trumpet] Num. 10. 3. Namely, the holy trumpet, to call the generall aſſembly of the people.

ſanctifie a faſt] Chap. 1. 14.

let the bridegroom] What is lawfull in it ſelf, muſt at ſometimes be forborn. Amos 6. 4. Iſai. 22. 12. 13. 14. To give our ſelves to pleaſure, when God appears armed in weapons of wrath, is atheiſtically to ſcoff at his power, and deny him and his providence

v. 16. ſanctifie the congregation] Appoint by proclamation, that all men being duly purified according to the Law, may come to the Temple, to call upon the Lord, with mourning and faſting. See Exod. 19. 10. 22.

gather the children] That as all have ſinned, ſo all may ſhew forth ſignes of their repentance, that men ſeeing the children, which are not free from Gods wrath, might be the more lively touched with the conſideration of their own ſins, ſee Jon. 3. v. 7. 8

v. 17. Let the Prieſts] It was their office and duty. Not yet that the people muſt neglect their part.

between the porch and the altar] Whereof. See 1 Kin. 6. 3. This was the voyd ſpace, Ezek. 8. 16. where the ſacred miniſters prayed after the ſacrifices were offered; ſee the Annotations there. And on Ezek. 40. 48. & c. 43. 13. 18. The people were in an outer court beyond the Prieſts court.

ſpare] Nothing to be pleaded in prayer, but Gods mercy.

thy people] So again, thine heritage. Gods free and gratious Covenant is the ground of their plea; and not any thing in themſelves. Pſal. 74. 2. & 94. 5. 14. Micah. 7. 18. See Jer. 10. 16. Iſai. 63. 17. Pſal. 33. 12. Joſh. 7. 9.

rule over them] or, uſe a by-word againſt them. That thy people being conſtrained through want ſhould put themſelves into bondage to ſtrangers: or, be ſubdued by them, having no means to defend themſelves, if the enemy ſhould ſet upon them. See Eſay 26. 13. this evinceth not that the former judgement, ſo largely inſiſted upon, was the war, and ſword of the Heathen Aſſyrians, or Chaldeans. The armies of enemies here are ſtill thoſe, chap. 1. 4.

wherefore ſhould they ſay among the people] Pſal. 42. 10. & 79. 10. & 115. 2. Mic. 7. 10. Exod. 32. 12. Numb. 14. 15.

v. 18. Then] He ſets forth the effects of their preſent prayers.

jealous for his land] As an husband, or father, at the ſuffrings of his wife, or child. He will feel and be moved at the afflictions of his dear people, and for his own glory, which by that means was troden down by profane nations. Iſai. 9. 6. Hoſ. 11. 8.

v. 19. I will ſend you corn] verſe 24. upon your Repentance I will remove my judgements. chap. 1. 11. 16. 17. See Pſa. 81. 16.

a reproach] According to their Prayer, v. 17.

v. 20. northern army] Namely, that great ſwarm of the foreſaid deſtroying creatures which came out of the North.

into the land barren] That multitude ſhalbe carried away out of your land, and like a great army it ſhall be driven into the wilderneſs: the vanguard into the lake of Sodom, towards the eaſt, and the reerward into the Mediterranean Sea, toward the weſt, Exod. 10. 19. Deut. 11. 24.

becauſe] Or, through, as Pſal. 23. 4.

he hath done great things] Heb. he hath magnified to do.

v. 21. for the Lord] See on verſe 20.

v. 22. ye beaſts] Chap. 1. 18.

their ſtrength] Their fruits and increaſe, according to the vertue which God hath given them. Gen. 4. 12.

v. 23. in the Lord your God] In him, and his reconciliation, who is the fountain of all bleſſings: in him more then in the plenty he gives.

the former rain] Or; a teacher of righteouſneſs.

moderately] Heb. according to righteouſneſs. Namely, at the time of your greateſt need, and in that juſt meaſure, as it is required, for to help the barrenneſs which was before. Others, in righteouſneſs, that is, bountifully, and lovingly.

will cauſe to come down] Lev. 26. 4. Deu. 11. 14. Jer. 5. 24. Ja. 5. 7.

in the firſt moneth] Both former, and later rain in this firſt moneth; which likely was the March Moon, for then began that time of the year which was called the latter ſeaſon; by reaſon of the fruits which grow ripe, and are gathered therein: at which time ſeaſonable rain was moſt neceſſary: next to September Moon; which was the other part of the year, called the firſt ſeaſon; by reaſon of tilling and ſowing of the ground; wherein like ſeaſonable rain was alike neceſſary.

v. 25. my great army] This expounds that verſe 15.

v. 26. and Praiſe] A fruit of Gods bleſſing, & of their repentance.

ſhall never be aſhamed] Becauſe they ſhall never pray to me in vain, at any ſuch time of need; but he will relieve them in all their neceſſities.

v. 27. And ye ſhall know] By my wonderfull bleſſing of you.

that I am in the midſt of you] vouchſafe to dwell among you and am alwayes preſent and at hand, upon all occaſions, for your good. Pſa. 46. 5. Eſai. 12. 6. Hoſ. 11. 9. Zeph. 3. 15. 17.

v. 28. Shall come to paſs] Now he riſeth higher, from bodily bleſſings to ſpirituall bleſſings. The people muſt not reſt in the former; but by them be handed to theſe.

afterward] In the Meſſias his dayes, I will powr down the gifts of my holy Spirit in abundance; as I have heretofore poured out temporall bleſſings upon you.

I will powre out my Spirit] Iſa. 44. 3. Zach. 12. 10. Act. 2. 17.

upon all fleſh] All manner of people, without any diſtinction of nations. Whereas formerly he imparted his Spirit ſparingly to a few; Here he doth it to all his Church.

and your ſons] By the inward vertue of my Spirit, I wil inlighten the underſtanding of mine elect, who of their own Nature are but children in knowledge, or young men without experience; or aged men weak of underſtanding; and wil give them a lively and Spiritual light of the Myſteries of the goſpel; accompanied at certain times, and in certain perſons, with prophetick revelations, Act. 2. 17. ſee Num. 12. 6. Or rather, He ſhews particularly what he means, by the former general promiſe: all ſhall propheſie, all ſhall be taught of God; Heb. 8. 11. 1 Joh. 2. 20. 27. Hab. 2. 14. All wch are ſpoken comparatively, in relation to the times before the coming of our Savior in the fleſh. Al, of al ſorts and ſexes, ſhall have as much, and more light and illumination now, then the Prophets had in the Old Teſtament. See Mat. 11. 11. their common light of all now under the Goſpel ſhalbe better then that of propheſie of old, ſuch light ſhall the ſun of righteouſneſs at his riſing bring with him.

your old men] By an alluſion to the viſible manner of Gods gratious gifts and dealings with his people and prophets, in dreams, and viſions, before the coming of Chriſt. He deſcribes the Spirituall worſhip of God, and the abundant gifts of his grace in the dayes of the Goſpel: ſo applying here his ſpeech to the better capacity of the preſent people, not yet confounding, or diſanulling the diſtinct orders of miniſters in the Church of Chriſt.

v. 29. Upon the ſervants and upon the hand-maids] Perſons of all conditions; bee they never ſo mean ſhall bee ſanctified by mee, and graced by the Gifts of my ſpirit: even theſe ſhall abundantly be filled with my ſpirit. It may be by theſe termes, as ſome ſay, is meant the calling of the Gentiles, amongſt whom ſlaves were bought. Levit. 25. 44. unleſſe he mean the other principall effect of the ſpirit of grace, which is to free men from the bondage of ſinne and the devil.

v. 30. wonders in the heavens] Chap. 3. 15. Matth. 24. 29. Mark. 13. 24. Luke 21. 25. He doth not threaten here, and terrifie; but warneth the faithfull what terrible things ſhould come, to the intent that they ſhould not look for continuall quietneſſe in this world: and yet in all theſe troubles, he would preſerve them. Or, this may import the fearfull judgements of God upon the wicked, for the defence of his Church.

v. 31. The ſun ſhall be turned into darkneſſe] Chap. 3. 15. The order of nature ſhall ſeem to be changed for the horrible afflictions that ſhall be in the world. See verſe 10.

before the great] See Mal. 3. 2. & chap. 4. 1. and 2 Theſ. 1. 7. 11. and chap. 2. 2, 3. before the day of Gods ſo fearfull judgements for the rejecting of Chriſt when he came, and the contempt and proſecution of his Goſpel. That day ſhall be terrible to the wicked; though a day of great joy to the godly. LXX. thus, notable day. And ſo the Apoſtle ſeems to cite it. Acts 2. 20.

v. 32. whoſoever ſhall call] In thoſe prodigious calamities of the world, yet he will preſerve and deliver his; who by them will be driven to ſeek the Lord in prayer: when the ſtate of things then doth ſeem to be in a deſperate condition, yet this muſt not keep us from calling upon God by prayer; but rather provoke us thereunto, and that with confidence: knowing he can, and will ſave his; and if need were, out of death it ſelf reſtore them to life. And this belongs both to Jew and Gentile; as the text here allows it, and the Apoſtle applyes it. Rom. 10. 13.

on the Name of the Lord] Gods judgements are for the deſtruction of the infidels, and to move the godly to call upon the Name of God, who will give them ſalvation. Acts 2. 21.

in mount Zion] Namely, in the true Church of Chriſt.

deliverance] From thoſe evils which ſhall trouble the world; or, ſome remnant ſhall be ſaved. Gods Church ſhall never periſh. He will ſtill have a people on earth, to ſhew him faithfull in heaven, and true and conſtant in all his promiſes.

the Lord hath ſaid] In many places by his Prophets. See Deut. 30. & 32. 43. To his word we muſt look in this caſe, and truſt in his promiſes; and not to our own ſight, and ſenſe.

the remnant] Which are not run into the generall apoſtaſie, and corruption of the world. Luke 18. 8. This is added leſt hypocrites, as their manner is, ſhould ſhelter themſelves under this promiſe. The true Church is but a remnant, a few. Luke 13. 23.

Shall call] Whom he ſhall move and effectually put forward to the participation of his grace in Chriſt: Gods gracious and inward call, out of his free election, and the good pleaſure of his ſecret counſell; and not any induſtry in man, or merit of man, makes this diſtinction and diſcrimination of the remnant from the reſt; which is therefore called a remnant according to the election of grace. See Rom. 11. 4, 5. 7.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. F*Or*] He proſecutes the former point of the reſtauration of the Church.

Behold] It is a wonderfull thing in it ſelf, and almoſt incredible.

in thoſe dayes] Being dayes wherein both Kingdom and Prieſthood were loſt, the worſhip of God, and the temple overthrowne. The Caldeans ruling then, and tyrannizing over them, and themſelves hated and ſcorned of their neighbouring nations, and of all the world. This in part, and figuratively may be thus underſtood of Gods vengeance upon the enemies of his people, after their deliverance from Babylon. But ſpiritually it may be referred to Chriſts judgements upon the enemies of the Church, by him delivered: and eſpecially at the laſt and univerſall deliverance at his laſt coming.

I ſhall bring again] Yet Gods power then ſhall overpower all: eaſily ſurmount all ſeeming difficulties and impoſſibilities.

the captivity of Judah and Jeruſalem] This was done under Cyrus, and Darius: or rather begun then, and carried on to the coming of Chriſt, receiving its ſpirituall perfection in and under his kingdom even till his ſecond coming, ſo accompliſhing his vengeance on all his Churches enemies, and compleating her reſtauration and ſalvation.

v. 2. I will alſo gather all nations]. The wicked nations which are enemies to me.

into the valley of Jehoſaphat] See verſe 12, 14. Sundry valleys are mentioned in Scripture. This valley is not thus mentioned elſe-where. Some beleeve that it is that which is called the valley of bleſſing. 2 Chr. 20. 26. where Jehoſaphat bleſſed the Lord, when he had diſcomfited his enemies. Others do firmly beleeve that between the Mount of Olives, and the city of Jeruſalem toward the eaſt, there was a low valley of that name; and that ſo the Propet ſheweth that the enemies ſhall be judged, as it were in the ſight of the Church. Iſaiah 66. 24. See 1 Cor. 6. 2. Others take the word Jehoſaphat appellatively, to ſignifie Gods judgements; and the rather, becauſe the word following alludeth thereunto: in the valley of Gods judgements God will judge or plead. As for that fancy that all the world ſhall be gathered together into the valley of Jehoſaphat before Jeruſalem at dooms-day, and God ſhall ſit there in his throne of judgement to judge them there; it is but an abuſing of the letter of the text, to frame and uphold ſuch a fiction. The moſt that can be gathered is this, that God will ſet up his Tribunall in the ſight and midſt of his Church and people, and ſit there to defend and preſerve them from all injuries, and erect trophies for them over their enemies.

my people, and for my heritage] See Annot. on chap. 2. 17. See again my people, verſe 3. Gods pretious eſteem of his Church. He will maintain their cauſe, as his own; as Naboth did for his heritage. 1 Kings 21. 3. And this not for any worth in them, being ſuch ſinners; but for his own meere mercy, having freely choſen Abrahams ſeed to be his heritage and peculiar people. See Deut. 32. 10. Zech. 2. 8.

ſcattered] Ejected, and turned out as vagabonds.

parted my land] Pickt out by my ſelf, and peculiarly conſecrated to the uſe of my people: they parted among heathens and ſtrangers. See Dan. 11. 16. 41. Hoſ. 9. 3. Ezek. 20. 6.

v. 3. caſt lots] As upon my land, verſe 2. ſo upon my people here: impiouſly and imperiouſly domineering over them: and at baſe rates, ſelling them ignominiouſly, and that to ſatisfie their lewd luſts.

a harlot] That which the enemy gat for the ſale of my people, he beſtowed upon harlots and drink.

v. 4. Yea] From the generall, verſe 2. he falls here upon theſe particulars, to theſe neighbouring nations.

what have ye to do with me] With me, and my people? He makes their caſe and cauſe to be his: as Acts 9. 4. my people neither offended, nor provoked you: and yet ye joyned of your own accord with their enemies againſt them.

O Tyre and Sidon] See Iſaiah 23. and chap. 14. 29. 32. Both Prophets denouncing the like judgements againſt them, about the ſame time. See on Amos 1. 9, 10. & Zech. 9. 2.

will ye render me recompence?] A retaliation for any wrong done you? nay, it was your own covetouſneſſe, and cruelty, that ſet you on againſt me, and my people.

a recompence] Have I done you wrong that you will render me the like? yea ye provoke me without any cauſe given you. Or, it lyeth not in your power to give me ſatisfaction, for the ſpoyles and wrongs which ye have done my people: therefore you muſt bear the puniſhment thereof in your perſons, according to the law for theft. Exod. 22. 3.

ſwiftly] Thus God ſees and takes to heart the afflictions of his people: and will ſoon revenge them. See Apoc. 19. 2. Pſal. 58. 10. and 79. 10. Ezek. 25. 14. Luke 18. 18. Hebr. 10. 30.

v. 5. my] Thus God ſtill owns the goods, and affairs of his people, as his own.

ſilver] Being greedy of the prey and ſpoil: and gratified with it by the Jews enemies, whom they aſſiſted in the war.

into your Temples] The ſpoyles of my Temple. And thus to the ſcorn of God, Erecting, as it were, in their idol-temples, a trophie of victorie over him.

pleaſant things] Hebr. deſireable. See 2 Chron. 28. 18.

v. 6. Græcians] Heb. the ſons of the Græcians. Tranſmarine and outlandiſh people. Javans Poſterity were in Europe and Græcia. Gen. 10. 4, 5.

far] That they might have the leſſe hope to return thither again.

v. 7. Behold I will] God for a time forſook them; yet ſo, as no diſtance of place by ſea or land ſhould hinder him from raiſing and bringing them back again: which he chiefly did in the ſpirituall reducing of them to the Church and Kingdom of Chriſt.

return] As verſe 4. God will never forſake his Church, though for a while he do chaſtiſe her: nor ſhall her enimies ſcape unpuniſhed, though for a time they triumph over her.

v. 8. And I will ſell] A ſtrange change and viciſſitude and juſt retaliation of that verſe 6. And God himſelf will be the Author of it; He adjudgeth them to this ſlavery and vaſſaledge. Many examples are in ſcripture of like Retaliation; as Jud. 1. 7. 1 Sam. 15. 33. Iſaiah 33. 1. ſo the Egyptians were drowned that had drowned the male children of Iſrael.

and they ſhall ſell them] For afterward God ſold them by Nebuchadnezzar, and Alexander the great, for the love he bare to his people; and thereby they were comforted as though the price had been theirs. And haply the Jews themſelves by the means and favour of Nabuchadnezzar and Alexander, had an hand in the ſelling of them: as they by like means got an hand in ſelling the Jews.

Sabians] Gen. 10. 7. Job 1. 15. People of the [illegible].

the Lord hath ſpoken it] The ſentence is paſt, and it is not now to be avoided.

v. 9. Proclame] An Ironicall challenge to all Chriſts enemies, for to do the uttermoſt of their power againſt him, and his Church: that they may all be overcome and overthrown. See Eſay 8. 9. 10. Apoc. 16. 14. others thus: He goes on to denounce war to thoſe Heathen nations that had ſpoiled his people: and he doth this in ſo many words and wayes, repreſenting the ſame to their eyes: as in a lively picture, the more thereby to move and affect the wicked nations that uſed to ſcoff at Gods judgements, and the threatnings of them: and to comfort his people in the midſt of theſe dangerous concuſſions in the aſſured hope and expectation of their deliverance, ſafety and ſalvation, when God ſhall thus take due revenge on his and their enemies: and in the mean time to arm them with patience in their ſufferings, beholding this horrible ſpectacle of Gods wrath upon their oppreſſours.

Prepare war]Heb. ſanctifie God wil raiſe up horrible troubles in all the world, but yet for the good of his Church his remnant.

v. 10. beat your plowſhares] The phraſe is inverted, Eſay 2. 4. Micah. 4. 3. where Peace is promiſed, and propheſied to be in the kingdom of Chriſt. But where war is, there is no uſe of the plow, the fields are forſaken, none dare go forth to till the land: all growes waſt, all betake themſelves to the ſword. Others thus, when I ſhall execute my judgements againſt mine enemies, I will cauſe every one to be ready, and to prepare their weapons to deſtroy one another, for my Churches ſake.

let the weak] Nor plead exemption from the war by age, or ſickneſs: here muſt be no excuſe admitted: all muſt encourage themſelves to it.

v. 11. Aſſemble your ſelves] Do your utmoſt; all of you; let none be ſpared; ye ſhall be brought down; none ſhall want his plague and judgement.

cauſe thy mighty ones to come down O Lord] Or, the Lord ſhall bring down. Namely the holy Angels, who are thine armies to diſcomfit thine enemies. ſee Pſal. 103. 20. Apoc. 12. 7. Thus he turns his ſpeech to God, on this; There the Lord will caſt down and overthrow thy ſtronge ones; even the ſtrongeſt enemies of his Church and people. Thus in the moſt grievous afflictions God wil ſtil take care of his Churches ſafety: and revenge them of their enemies, after he hath a while by them chaſtiſed his people, to practiſe their patience, and amend their manners.

v. 12. Let the Heathen] God ſtill goes on to ſhew that at laſt he will be the avenger of his people. He is not idle, or careleſs of their ſufferings; but onely a while defers the puniſhments, till the wickednes of his, and their enemies, be full and ripe for judgement.

valley of Jehoſhaphat] See Annot. on verſe 2.

ſit to judge] Sit upon his tribunall; and cauſe all the Heathen round about, from all parts of the world, to undergo his judgements there.

v. 13. Put ye in the ſickle] Wherein he ſpeeds his judgements upon the wicked; which the Godly groaning under their burdens, do think according to the prompting of the fleſh, that he doth deferre over long. He expreſſeth the reaſons of his preſent execution, under the metaphors of a ripe harveſt, and vintage which he plainly expounds in the laſt words. Reve. 14. 15. 18. O ye Angels, it is time to execute my judgments, for the malice of the world is grown to its height. This is Gods anſwer to the Prophets ſpeech.

is great] As Gen. 15. verſe 16. Jer. 51. 13. Matt. 23. 32. Dan. 8. 23.

v. 14. multitudes] Multitudes of ſlain enemies. Though now they proudly domineer and inſult over the Church, yet they ſhall appeare at his tribunall in the day of his judgement and execution.

deciſion] Or, Conciſion, or threſhing, or, of threſhing: for ſo the word is uſed Eſay 28. 27. & 41. 15. naming the place ſo from the event; alluding to the harveſt, verſe 13. and haply to the valley of Jehoſhaphat, where in time paſt he thraſhed the Moabites, and Ammonites.

v. 15. The ſun] This ſerves to awaken the wicked that are aſleep, or dead in ſin, and ſecurity. See on chap. 2. 31. Signes alſo foregoing the laſt judgement, Matth. 24. 29. Luke 21. 25.

v. 16. The Lord ſhall] As a Lyon roar horribly againſt his, and his Churches enemies, ſo as the world ſhall tremble; though for a time he did wink at them, & held his peace ſummoning, as it were, with a terrible cry, all the world to appear before him. See Jer. 25. 30. Amos 1. 2.

of Zion] Out of the ſeat of his glory: whoſe repreſentation was formerly in the Sanctuary. See Heb. 12. 22.

But the Lord] Will be the hope and ſtrong help to his people; will take upon him their defence and protection. Thus [illegible], and this ſhould be a comfort to them in all their miſeries; the iſſue ſhall be happy; though heaven and earth ſeem to oppoſe and oppreſs them; he will ſave his Remnant, though they may ſeem to be loſt and periſhed before he come to ſave them.

hope] Heb. place of repair, or harbour.

v. 17. ſo ſhall ye know] Really, and find it by experience to be true, which before your ſad calamities and extremities made you to doubt of. Our duty is to depend upon Gods word and promiſe, even before we finde and feel the verification of it in our ſelves.

that I am] according to his covenant with them, and their fathers: upon which gratious covenant accepting them for his peculiar people, all his promiſes are founded and grounded.

dwelling] As by his promiſes, and ordinances formerly he hath been.

Jeruſalem be holy] Heb. holineſs. My Church ſhall be cleanſed from pollution, and ſuch a mixture of hypocrites and prophane people Iſai 35. 8. Apoc. 21. 27. And ſhall then appear to be choſen of me for my holy habitation.

no ſtrangers paſs] The ſtrangers ſhall no more deſtroy his Church; nor pollute, or profane it, as formerly they have done, when it was given up as a prey unto them, Lam. 1. 10. Which if ever they do, it is the people which by their ſins make the breach for the enemie. Otherwiſe God would make good his promiſe: as Eſay 26. 1. See Eſay 35. 8. Apoc. 21. 27. Eſay 52. 1. Zech. 14. 21.

v. 18. The mountains ſhall] Gods large bounty to his Church, all manner of wayes. He mentions earthly bleſſings; therein ſuiting himſelf to the carnal people; that were as children, under the elements of the Law; yet ſo, as thereby to raiſe up their thoughts to ſpirituall bleſſings in Chriſt, ſo that, herein he promiſeth to his Church abundance of graces, Ezech. 47. 1. Apoc. 21. 1. which would water and comfort the moſt barren places, Amos 9. 13. others ſay, a figurative deſcription of the good and happines of eternall life, Pſal. 36. 8.

a fountain ſhall come forth of the houſe of the Lord] Ezek. 47. 1. Zach. 14. 8. Reve. 22. 1.

valley of Shittim] A place ſay ſome in the land of Moab, Num. 25. 1. Joſh. 2. 1. Mica. 6. 5. which was deſert and dry, even ſo far; to the utmoſt bounds ſhould Gods bounty overflow. Others tranſlate it, the valley, of choiſeſt Cedars: and underſtand it of the Church, ſee Ezec. 47. 1. 8. Pſal. 92. 13. The Trent Bible reads it, the torrent of thorns.

v. 19. Egypt] Namely, all the Churches enemies.

Edom] as Egypt: and other enemies.

for the violence] God is ſo carefull of his Church, that though he beare for a time with the enemies of it, yet in the end he will take vengeance on them, for the violence they do unto his people.

in their land] In the land of Egypt, and Edom, when the Jews fled to them for ſafety, in their diſtreſſes; or rather in the land of the childern of Juda, murdering them in their own country, and holy heritage.

v. 20. But Judah] The fruit, & benefit of Gods redemption and deliverance of his people, the true believers, and elect, they ſhall abide for ever, as his love to them is everlaſting: whereas the wicked at the moſt do but flouriſh for a time.

ſhall dwell] Or, abide.

v. 21. For I will cleanſe] He ſuffered his Church and people hitherto to be in their filthineſs: but now he promiſeth to cleanſe them, and to make them pure unto him, without which cleanſing, in pardoning ſin paſt, and purging it out for the time to come, God could not be reconciled, and propitious to them.

for the Lord] Or, even I the Lord that dwelleth in Zion. Apoc. 21. 3. He mindes them of his free and gratious covenant with them: by vertue whereof he ſtill is the Lord that dwelleth in Zion: and that is the only cauſe of his bounty, and good dealing toward them: and not any worth or merit in them.

ANNOTATIONS

AMOS.

The ARGUMENT.

T*He prophecies of* Amos and Hoſea have a great conformity, both in reſpect of the time when, and the perſons, the 10. Tribes, to whom chiefly they were ſent. Amos propheſied in the dayes of Uzziah king of Judah, and Jeroboam the ſon of Joaſh King of Iſrael; But how long he propheſied, is not ſpecified. He threatneth both Judah and Iſrael, for their ſins, but Iſrael chiefly, and throughout his propheſie; that, for their ingratitude, Idolatry, Cruelty, Inhumanity, Pride, Incorrigibleneſſe, Wantonneſſe, and Corruption in every kinde, they ſhould be puniſhed: and further, that their ſun ſhould be darkned at noon-day; that is, when Iſrael thought themſelves at the height of ſtate, they ſhould be caſt off, for obſcuring the Sun of Righteouſneſs: yet God would build again the Tabernacle of David, and return his captived people both Judah and Iſrael, into their own Land. Or thus; Two yeers before an Earthquake, Amos foretelleth of ſtrange ſhakings of ſix Heathen neighbouring Nations; of Gods judgements upon Judah alſo: But principally upon Iſrael; Jeroboams houſe to be Ruined; and Iſrael to be captived: yet Judah and Iſrael ſhould at laſt be reſtored to Chriſt; with Edom, or all Nations. See Acts 15. Or thus more particularly and orderly; Amos his propheſie telleth of Gods Judgements; Firſt, againſt the neighbour Nations, Enemies of the Church, Chap. 1, and 2. Secondly, againſt the ſins of his people; ſpecially Iſraels. And that, firſt, in plain ſpeech; ſecondly, under a double Type. His plain ſpeech, or Sermons, are either generall, of judgements againſt Iſraels Ingratitude, and Idolatry, Chap. 3. Violence and Incorrigibleneſſe, Chap. 4. Injuſtice, and oppreſſion of the Poor, ſlighting Gods threatnings, and hypocriticall worſhip, Chap. 5. Putting off the evil day, and wanton Voluptuouſneſſe, Chap. 6. Or ſpeciall judgements concerning Amaziah, who accuſed Amos of conſpiracie; and concerning his Family, Chap. 7. The Types ſignifying the approaching Subverſion, are, firſt, a basket of Summer fruit, Chap. 8. Secondly, the door of the Temple ſtrucken and ſhaken; ſignifying Gods abdicating his houſe, and People, Chap. 9. which is ended with Evangelicall promiſes concerning the Reedifying and Reſtoring the Church, and making it Catholike, by and under Chriſt.

CHAP. I.

T*He words of Amos*] That is, the ſumme, collection, and heads of all his Sermons; that ſo we may know what his Doctrine and Teaching was. And ſo it is with all the other Prophets; which is a thing diligently to be obſerved throughout them all.

who was among the] Chap. 7. 14.

herd-men] Namely, one of thoſe that make a trade in bringing up of cattle and living by the profits and fruit of them, or by trafficking therein. chap. 7. 14.

of Tekoa] A city of Judah where that wiſe woman dwelt, 2 Sam. 14. 2. Rebuilt or fortified by Rehoboam, 2 Chron. 11. 5, 6. mentioned Jer. 6. 1. But yet Amos propheſied in Iſrael. See Chap. 7. 12.

which he ſaw] By Gods revelation to him.

concerning Iſrael] Though himſelf of Judah, yet ordained by God to be an extraordinary Prophet for Iſrael, or the ten Tribes chiefly. He ſpeaks indeed ſometimes of Judah; but that onely, as by the way, and occaſionally. chap. 7. 12, 13. LXX. here wrongly have Jeruſalem for Iſrael.

of Uzziah] Hoſ. 1. 1.

Jeroboam] In his dayes the kingdom of Iſrael did moſt flouriſh: as the kingdom of Judah did under Uzziah; yet then did this poor ſhepherd preach ſo terribly againſt their ſins; and propheſie ſo fearfully of their deſtructions: which argues Gods power and authority in him; Gods miſſion, and commiſſion to him. 1 Cor. 1, 27. 2 Cor. 4. 7.

earthquake] Which, as Joſephus writeth, was when Uzziah would have uſurped the prieſts office, and therefore was ſmitten with the leproſie. Or, a little before the death of Jeroboam, which differs not much in time from the other. Of this there is no mention made any where in ſcripture, but Zach. 14. 5. Thus the beginning of his Propheſie is ſet down, but the end of it is left uncertain. If he continued not after Jeroboams reign, then the time of his propheſying was but a ſhort time.

v. 2. the Lord] The ſame words, Joel 3. 16. ſomewhat diverſly here applyed.

roar from Zion] Jer. 25. 30. According to the predictions and threatnings pronounced in the midſt of his Church by his prophets, who ſhall vent his wrath upon his enemies. Some underſtand theſe words as a prediction of the earthquake, verſe 1.

from Zion] Speaking thus to the Iſraelites, he implies the true Jehovah, and his true worſhip to be there in Zion and Jeruſalem, and not at Samaria, or Dan, or Bethel.

the habitations] All ſtrength, wealth, and worldly greatneſſe ſet forth by theſe fat and fruitful places, ſhall through Gods wrath be brought to nothing; and a famine through drought ſhall come. See chap. 4.

mourn] Gods roaring voice ſhall not be in vain, Jer. 5. 12, 13. but carry its effect in its mouth.

Carmel] The word ſignifies a fruitful field; whence it ſeems the place here meant took its name; being an high pleaſant fruitful mountain, and paſture. See chap. 9. 3. Cant. 7. 5. The excellency of it is mentioned, Eſay 35. 2. and it is named with thoſe other famous mountains of Libanus, Sharon, and Baſhan, Eſay, 33. 9. yea Jokneam a city it ſeems on it, or belonging to it, had the honour to have a King; Joſh. 12. 22. There Elias vanquiſhed Baals prophets, 1 Kings 18. and Elizeus dwelt there, 2 Kings 4. 25. There was a city called Carmel, belonging to Judah, Joſh. 15. 55. where Nabal had his poſſeſſions and ſheep, 1 Sam. 25.

v. 3. for three transgreſſions] If theſe judgements upon the neighbouring nations had not been foretold by the prophets, when the Iſraelites ſhould have ſeen the like befal to others, as did befal themſelves: they would happily have aſcribed all to fortune, and not to Gods hand: and ſo the prophets authority would have been weakned and ſlighted. He ſhews therefore, that God will ride Circuit, as it were, and judge and puniſh theſe Heathen Nations. And ſo indeed the Aſſyrian, the rod of Gods anger, Eſay 10. 5. and as it were the ſtaff, the Axe, and the ſawe in Gods hand, v. 15. did ſcourge and cut down at the ſame time all theſe Nations, as well as Gods people; He came in as a deluge overflowing all, Eſay 8. 7. as other Prophets alſo did foretel, and the Hiſtory of the event did atteſt. Yet ſome conceive thus; that he ſheweth firſt, that all the people round about ſhould be deſtroyed for their ſins: becauſe the Iſraelites ſhould the more deeply conſider Gods judgements towards them; and be awaked and warned by their example, to look unto themſelves; ſeeing he ſpares not theſe uncircumciſed Nations for their ſins.

of Damaſcus] This is mentioned in Abrahams time, Gen. 14. v. 15. whoſe faithful ſteward and ſervant Eleazar was of Damaſcus, Gen. 15. 2. This was the head city of Syria, Eſay 7. v. 8. This ſtood on the North-eaſt ſide of Canaan, eaſt from Mount Libanus, was conquered and gariſoned by David, 2 Sam. 8. 6. Loſt again in Solomons time, and poſſeſſed by Rezon, 1 Kings 11. 23, 24. Recovered by Jeroboam the ſecond, 2 Kings 14. loſt ſoon after. And in the dayes of Ahaz taken by the Aſſyrian Tiglath Pileſer, who ſlew Rezin the King thereof, 2 Kings 16. After the death of our Saviour, Paul going thither, was miraculouſly converted neer the city, and confirmed by Ananias in the city, and preached there; and was ſought to be apprehended by the Governour of the city under Aretas the King, Acts 9. 2 Cor. 11. 32. yet after that he returned to Damaſcus, Gal. 1. 17. See more on v. 4.

and for four] or, yea for four, for their many and multiplyed ſins, which are meant by three and four which make up ſeven: their progreſs in ſin without mean, or meaſure, hardned them to that obſtinacy, as left no more place or hope for repentance. And all this while God patiently forbare them, till at laſt there was no remedy as to 2 Chron. 36. 16.

turn away the puniſhment] Or, convert it, or let it be quiet, and ſo verſ. 6. Or I will not recal my threatning voice, v. 2. Or that puniſhment, v. 4, 5. I will not ſay ſome, turn my ſelf to mercy.

threſhed Gilead] This is the chief of the ſeven or many ſins. And God will not puniſh Damaſcus ſo much for many other ſins as he will for the cruelty againſt Gods own people. And if the Syrians ſhall not be ſpared for committing this cruelty againſt one city, or countrey, it is not poſſible that Iſrael ſhould eſcape puniſhment, which hath committed ſo many and grievous ſins againſt God and man.

with threſhing inſtruments of iron] See of this kinde of torment and puniſhment, 2 Sam. 12. 31. All this may be referred to Hazaels cruelty, which he uſed againſt the countrey of Gilead eſpecially, being that part of Iſrael that bordered next upon him, he lying north of it, ſee 2 Kings 8. 12. and 10. 32. and 12. 18. and 13. 3.

v. 4. But I will ſend a fire] Jer. 49. 27. Fire conſumes all.

Hazael] Hazael, and Benhadad, names of kings of Syria. The catalogue of the kings of Syria is gathered out of ſcripture thus; Hadadezer or Hadarezer in Davids time, 2 Sam. 8. 5, 6. 13. and Chap. 10. 6. 8. 16. Reſon in Solomons time, 1 Kings 11. 23, 24. Benhadad the ſon of Tabrimmon, in the dayes of Aſa, 1 Kings 15. 18, 19, 20. Benhadad his ſon, in the dayes of Ahab, 1 Kings 20. 34. 2 Kings 8. 15. Naaman was captain of his hoaſt. Hazael, in the reigns of Joram, Jehu, and Jehoahaz, 2 Kings 8. and 10. and 12. and 13. chapters. Benhadad the ſon of Hazael, in the dayes of Jehoaſh, 2 Kings 13. 24, 25. Rezin in the dayes of Pekah, and Ahaz, 2 Kings 16. 5. Iſaiah 7. 1. 16. & 8. 4.

palaces of Benhadad] The antiquity of their building ſhall not avoid my judgements. See Jer. 49. 27. And here for Benhadad the LXX. have the ſon of Ader.

v. 5. barre of Damaſcus] All ſtrength, oppoſition, and defence.

the plain of Aven] Or, Bikath-aven; Bikath-aven, Beth-eden, places of Syria.

him that holdeth the ſcepter] The king and all the royall race.

the houſe of Eden] Or Beth-eden a city in Cœlo-Syria, which the Greeks called Paradiſe. See 2. Kings 19. 12. Iſaiah 37. 12. Ezek. 27. 23. LXX. for Beth-eden have the men of Haran.

Kir] Tiglath-Pileſer led the Syrians captive to Cirene, which is called here Kir; called by Authours Cirthia, (a place of Media) 2 Kings 16. 9. Iſaiah 22. 6. So Aram was captived to Kir, about fifty yeers after Amos had foretold it. There was another Kir in Moab; Iſaiah 15. 1.

v. 6. for three tranſgreſſions] See verſe 3.

Gaza] Hebr. Haza, A city of the Philiſtines; wherein the Anakims were. But in the diviſion of the land by Joſhuah allotted to the Tribe of Judah; as other cities of the Philiſtines were. Joſh. 15. 46, 47. and by Judah conquered; Jud. 1. 18. But ſoon loſt afterwards; as appears in the ſtory of Sampſon, Jud. 16. 21. and of Samuel: 1 Sam. 6. 17. By this principall city of the Philiſtines are underſtood all the reſt; and the places are put for the inhabitants. See on Zep. 2. 4.

Carried away captive the whole captivity] Or carried them away with an intire captivity. See verſe 9. The Philiſtines in the dayes of Jehoram king of Judah brake into it, and carried many away captive without any diſtinction of quality, ſex, or age, &c. See 2 Chron. 21. 16, 17. Joel 3. 4. 6. This the chief of their many ſins. See on verſe 3.

Edom] The ſons of Eſau were made ſubject to David; but in the dayes of Jehoram Edom rebelled and they joyned with Judahs enemies: and then Eſau brake Jacobs yoke, which was foretold, Gen. 27. 40. and was ſtill a bitter enemy to Judah. See on verſe 9. and 2 Chron. 21. 10.

v. 7. ſend a fire] Deſtroy the countrey of the Philiſtines. See Iſaiah 15. and 20. chap.

v. 8. Aſhdod] See chap. 3. 9. and Zeph. 2. 4. and the Annotations there. LXX. for Aſhdod have Aſſyria, very corruptly.

Askelon] See on Zeph. 2. 4.

Ekron] 1 Sam. 5. 10. See Joſh. 13. 3. and chap. 15. 45. 46. Jud. 1. 18. 1 Sam. 6. 16. and 7. 14. 2 Kings 1. verſe 2, 3. Jer. 25. 20. Zach. 9. 5.

and the remnant] That ſhould remain after the judgements, executed upon them by Ezechiah; and Senacherib. See Jer. 25. 20. and chap. 47. 4. But God ſtill preſerves a remnant of his people, in his greateſt judgements.

v. 9. of Tyrus] 1 Sam. 23. 1. Jer. 47. 4. Ezek. 26. & 27. & 28. chapters. Joel 3. 4. 5. A ſtrong city, upon, or within the ſea; on the north-weſt border of Judea. Hiram or Huram was king of it in Davids, and Solomons time. See Joſh. 19. 29. 2 Sam. 24. 7. 1 Chron. 14. 1. 2 Chron. 2. 3. A city of great traffick and Merchandize; conquered by Nebuchadnezzar: and after by Alexander the great, after a long ſiege. Our Saviour went aſide into thoſe parts, Matth. 15. 21. And thence they came to him, Mark. 3. 8. Luke 6. 17. They make peace with Herod Acts 12. 20. And Paul in his voyage to Jeruſalem lands there, Acts 21. 3. Tyre was given to Aſher, as Zidon was; But never poſſeſſed by them.

delivered up] When they ſerved under and aſſiſted Hazael and Benhadad, in their bloody wars againſt the Jews.

to Edom] Verſe 6. The Tyrians ſent or ſold the Jews that were fled to them, or captived by them, to Edom, and the Idumeans.

the brotherly Covenant] Heb. the Covenant of brethren, which was between David, and Solomon Kings of Judah, and Hiram King of Tyre, who called one another brothers, by a brotherly love, and covenant. See 2 Sam. 5. 11. 1 King. 5. 1. & 9. 13. Others refer it to the brotherhood between Jacob, and Eſau, and their poſterities; and that the Tyrians had no regard of that brotherhood which ought to have been between, the Iſraelites, and Idumeans, or Edomites, which came of Eſau, or Edom, but the rather ſold the Iſraelites Captives to them, becauſe they knew the Edomites though brethren, yet moſt cruelly hated them.

v. 10. on the wall of Tyrus] Moſt likely by the Aſſyrians, and Babylonians; but moſt ſurely long after by Alexander the great.

v. 11. of Edom] Iſaiah 21. 11. and 34. 5. Jer. 49. 7. Ezek. 25. 12. Joel 3. 9. Obad. 11. Mal. 1. 3. Eſau was called Edom; and of him the Edomites. Their countrey was mount Seir, where the Horims formerly dwelt. Their countrie is alſo called Edomea, and Idumea, and Dumah; by others Arabia Petrea. Bounds of it are Kadeſh, and mount Hor, and Ezion-Gaber at the red ſea, Num. 20. 16. and chap. 33. 37. 2 Chron. 8. 17. Chief cities therein Petra or Iockteeh, 2 Kings. 14. 7. Bozrah, Eloth, Teman, Dedan, Hormah. And mount Sinai not far from it. It had ſeven or eight Kings before any was in Iſrael, 1 Chron. 1. 43. &c. And eleven Dukes are after mentioned. They were ever bitter enemies to the Iſraelites. Came out againſt them, Num. 20. 20. 21. For which they were forbidden to enter into the congregation of the Lord till the third generation, Deut. 23. 8. David, Joab, and Abiſhai deſtroyed and ſubdued them. Yet Hadad of the Kings ſeed in Edom was an adverſary to Solomon. In Jehoſhaphats time they had under him a Deputy for King, 1 Kings 22. 47. called King, 2 Kings 3. 8, 9. whoſe ſon was burnt verſe 27. In Jehorams time they rebelled. 2 Kings 8. 20. And though Jehoram; and after Amaziah, ſorely ſmote them; yet they became not ſubjects to them. They triumph at Jeruſalems deſtruction, by Nebuchadnezzar, But were after by him vanquiſhed and deſtroyed. Pſal. 137. Ier. 25. 21. & 27. 3. See Gods judgements threatned againſt them. tear] As wilde beaſts do.

kept his wrath] As Eſau did againſt Jacob; Gen. 27. 41. and 32. 6. &c o did Eſaus poſterity too like their father herein; and thereby were greater ſinners, then the former uncircumciſed nations were, whereas the Edomites retained circumciſion. See Pſal. 137. 7.

v. 12. Teman] I will puniſh the poſterity of Eſau, and ſpoil his cities: for Teman was the metropolis of Idumea; ſo called of Teman the ſon of Eliphaz, the ſon of Eſau, Gen. 36. 11. 15. And Bozrah a city in the borders between Moab and Idumea; ſometime aſcribed to one people, and ſomtime to the other; for their vicinity. If there were not two of that name; one a prime city in Edom; and another in Moab, Jer. 48. 24. This judgement is at large deſcribed; Obad. verſe 9. 10. And of Teman, ſee Jeremiah 49. 7. 20. And of Bozrah, ſee Geneſis 36. 33. Eſay 34. 6. and 63. 1. Jeremiah 49. 13. 22.

v. 13. Ammon] The poſterity of the younger ſon of Lot, nephew to Abraham, and of his family; yet they conſpire with the Jews enemies againſt them. See Pſal. 83. 7.

ript up] God rips up their chief and bloody ſin; and doth, inſtance, and inſiſt onely upon that. The like cruelty in the Medes againſt Babylon, Eſay 13. 16, 17, 18. This here was acted by the Aſſyrian; though we have not the hiſtorie of it. See Jer. 49. 1—7.

ript up the women] Or, divided the mountains. He noteth the great cruelty of the Ammonites, that ſpared not the women, but moſt tyrannouſly tormented them; And yet, as was ſaid, the Ammonites came of Lot, who was of the houſhold of Abraham. And indeed, many, and at many times were the cruelties of the Ammonites againſt the children of Iſrael; in the times of Ehud, Judg. 3. 13. of Jephthah, Judg. 10. of Saul, 1 Sam. 11. and 12. 12. And other kings of Judah had many battels with them. And they aſſiſted the Aſſyrian, and the Babylonian againſt the Jews, in the dayes of Hezekiah, Jehoiakim, and Zedekiah. v. 14. But] This judgement was executed upon them by the Aſſyrians, and after again by the Babylonian Nebuchadnezzar; ſee Jer. 25. 21. and 27. 3. and 49. 1. Ezek. 21. 19, 20. and 25. 2. 3. 8. Zeph. 2. 9.

tempeſt] With a ſudden and impetuous ruine; Gods wrath falling from on high upon Ammon, together with the enemies endeavours.

v. 15. Their King] We read of their king in Jephthahs time, before there was any king in Iſrael, Judg. 11. verſ. 12, 13, 14. 28. of Nahaſh in Sauls time, 1 Sam. 11. 1. and 12. 12. of [illegible] the ſon of Nahaſh, in Davids time, 2 Sam. 10. 1, 2. the huge weight of whoſe crown is ſet down, 2 Sam. 12. 30. 1 Chron. 20. 2. of Baalis in Zedekiahs time; Jer. 40. 14. About which time their king went into captivity. See Jer. 49. 3. Others underſtand this of their idol Milcom or Milchom, which hath affinity to the name of King; whereof 1 Kings 11. 33. 2 Kings 23. 13. ſuppoſed to be called Remphan, Acts 7. 43. Other idols alſo the Ammonites had, Judg. 10. 6. as Chemoſh, Judg. 11. 24. and Molech or Moloch, haply the ſame with Milcom, 1 Kin. 11. 7. Acts 7. 43. CHAP. II.

Verſe 1. OF Moab, The poſterity of Lots elder ſon, Gen. 19. Moab inhabited cloſe upon the eaſt ſide of Jordan, Deut. 1. 5. Numb. 22. 1. and 26. 3. And all that was done in the land of Moab, which is recorded from Numb. 22. till Joſh. Chap. 3.

and for four] Their manifold ſins, and obſtinacy, and impenitency in them; and Gods long patience all the while, till they came up to this heap and height. Many were their tranſgreſſions againſt Gods people: Balak king of Moab hired Balaam to curſe them; and by Balaams counſel brought upon them that fearful plague, Numb. 25. 4, 5, 9. Eglon ſmote and ſubdued them, Judg. 3. And many bloody wars were betwixt them, and Gods people, in the dayes of David, and of Jehoram the ſon of Ahab, of Jehoſhaphat, and others; and they joyned in arms with other enemies of the Jews, as the Aſſyrian, and Babylonian, to fight againſt them.

becauſe he burnt] Here this one ſin is ſingled out, as the ſignal ſin of their cruelty; ſo odious a thing is inhumane cruelty in the ſight of God; though upon an enemy.

bones of the King] 2 King. 3. 27. Where the ſon of the king of Edom, was burnt by the King of Moab, ſo cruel was the hatred of Moab againſt Iſrael, that he dealt thus inhumanly againſt the king of Edom, becauſe he joyned in arms with Jehoſhaphat, whoſe feodary king he was, to aſſiſt the king of Iſrael, as his auxiliarie, againſt Moab. Others more at large take it for ſome terrible cruelty uſed upon the king of Edom, either alive, or dead; for which in particular the Lord was angry with Moab.

v. 2. of Kirioth] A city of Moab, Jer. 48. 24. 41.

die with tumult] Shall be deſtroyed by the fury of war. Their enemies ſhould not receive them upon rendition, yielding upon articles and conditions; but by aſſaults and ſtormings, wherein commonly extremities of rigor and outrage are uſed.

v. 3. Judge] Namely, he that bore the title of king, though he was no lawfull king, having rebelled againſt Iſrael, 2 Kings 1. 1.

ſlay all the Princes] And without rulers and Judges, what will the people be?

thereof] To wit, of the Moabitiſh nation.

v. 4. Judah] If the Prophet had not joyned Gods people to the reſt in theſe threatnings and predictions; they might happily have promiſed to themſelves freedom and exemption, though the Heathens had been puniſhed. The prophet therefore joyns them to the reſt, that they ſhould fare no better then thoſe Heathens, be deemed and dealt withall even as they; or rather being like them in ſin, be the more ſeverely puniſhed, ſee chap. 3. 2. The judgements upon thoſe Heathen Nations were but as a prologue to the judgements upon Gods choſen people, Luke 12. 47. The prophet himſelf was born in Judah, chap. 1. 1. and though he were principally ſent as a prophet to and againſt the ten tribes, and for that cauſe ſojourned amongſt them, yet he ſpares not Judah; neither their ſins, nor their puniſhments. There was then no cauſe to charge him with flattery, or partiality towards his own tribe.

will not turn away the puniſhment thereof] See Chap. 1. 3. ſeeing the Gentiles that had not ſo far knowledge were thus puniſhed, Judah which was ſo fully inſtructed in the Lords will, might not think to eſcape, if they would not repent, when judgements were threatned and denounced againſt them.

deſpiſed] As contemptuous and perfidious Apoſtates, though not ſo bad as the Iſraelites.

the law of the Lord] The onely Rule of worſhip, and obedience, yet they followed new inventions of their own brain, and have not kept] Not failing therein, through negligence, and infirmity; but wittingly and willinglly forſook them, upon the former pretences; And that God calls a deſpiſing of the Law: ſo grievous a ſin is it, to ſwarve from the rule of it, and to prefer before it the wiſdom of our own inventions.

and their lyes] Their idols, falſe worſhip, and ſuperſtitions; And alſo, Their new inventions, and good intentions thereby to ſerve and pleaſe God, were but lyes and impoſtures, whereby they deceived themſelves. Gods Law, and Commandments ever are the onely true and ſafe Rule, from which we muſt not decline either to the right hand, or the left.

their fathers] The diſeaſe then was hereditary; and ſo aggravated by their continuance and obſtinacy therein; and not excuſed or leſſened by the example of their fore-fathers, Acts 7. 51. Ezek. 20 18. 30.

v. 5. of Jeruſalem] Moſt of all, and finally accompliſhed by Nebuchadnezzar. Gods own Church and people may thus foully fall, and be thus fearfully puniſhed. Let us look to our ſelves.

v. 6. of Iſrael] If he ſpare not Judah, unto whom his promiſes were made, much leſſe will he ſpare this degenerate kingdom. And thus he comes to his proper charge. And here he inſiſts, not onely upon one ſin, as formerly; but is large in the point, both of their ſins, and of their puniſhments: they in both exceeding Judah. Yea, he proſecutes theſe two throughout his book.

ſold] Chap. 8. 6. they buy them. Thus as in a Market they did buy and ſell them. He begins with this groſſe ſin, and others the like, that could admit of no plea, or excuſe. After their conviction in them, he comes then the more commodiouſly to their falſe worſhips, in ſuperſtitions, and idolatries, to declame againſt them; for which he knew they would pretend their good intentions, and long cuſtoms.

righteous for ſilver]His right in judgement. Againſt the Law, Ex. 23. *6.*10. This is the ſin of their Judges, and Rulers, whoſe office and duty was, to defend the righteous and the poor.

a pair of ſhoes]For a matter of nothing, for a very ſmall price; as Amos 8. 6. Thus by degrees the wicked grow to this ſhameleſneſſe in ſinning, though at firſt they would ſtick at it; as a woman more hardly brought at firſt to loſe her chaſtity, yet after will proſtitute her ſelf for the baſeſt hire.

v. 7. pant after the duſt of the earth] Who inflamed with covetouſneſſe, greedily ſpie out all occaſions to entrap the lowly, and weak, the poor, and miſerable; and to do them hurt: ſuch is their covetouſneſſe and cruelty. A term taken from ſerpents; as Gen. 49. 17.

turn aſide] By their windings, like to the ſerpents, they do overthrow good mens rights, ſtiled in Scripture humble and meek men. Or, they hinder them in their buſineſſes.

go in unto] Inceſtuouſly; with prodigeous impudency in their filthineſſe, againſt all light and Law of Nature. Thus where there is no fear of God, there is no manner of ſhame, no end or meaſure of ſinning.

Maid] Or, young woman.

to profane A thing oft forbidden; and oft complained of when committed. See it in Levit. 11. 44 and 8.19, 20. and 22. chapters. Ezek. 36. 20. 24. Mal. 1. 11, 12. 2 Sam. 12. 14. Jam. 2. 6.

my holy Name] With which they are honoured being called my people.

v. 8. they lay then ſelves down] They do uſe thoſe things which they have violently taken from the poor and innocent, in their feaſts, and feaſtivals, which they celebrate in honour of their idols, and by that means do heap up the ſin of idolatry, upon the ſin of violence.

laid to pledge] Contrary to the Law, Exod. 22. 26, 27. See Deut. 24. 6. 10, 11, 12, 13. Job 22. 6. and 24. 3.

by every Altar] The Iſraelites had many Altars, in many places; which was their ſin, Hoſ. 8. 11. And their lying down upon thoſe pledges there, aggravates their ſin, in that they did and durſt, ſo openly and with ſo high an hand practiſe it at their very Altars, the places as they conceive where they worſhipped God: But this is the manner of hypocrites and idolaters, to think any thing is lawfull to them, and that God ſtill is well pleaſed and pacified, if they be carefull to perform the outward exerciſes of worſhip and ſervice.

the condemned] Or, ſuch as have fined or mulcted wine bought with ſuch money as they have unjuſtly amerced and condemned the innocent in. Of theſe ſpoyls they make feaſts to the honour of their Gods: as if the true God, as they conceive, would be pleaſed with ſuch feaſts and ſacrifices, ſee Eſay 61. 8. & c. 1. 14, 15. & Deut. 23. 18. And thus they would make the houſe of God, as they account it, a den of thieves. The conſtant courſe of hypocrites thus to dally with God, and to delude themſelves in their ſinnes, ſecurely to think any thing is lawfull to them, ſo they profeſſe and practice ſome kinde of God's outward worſhip.

v. 9. yet] Here God recounts his benefits to them, the more to aggravate their ingratitude, and vile ſins againſt him, and his laws, and the more to juſtifie the ſeverity of his judgements upon them.

Amorite before them] Num. 21. 24. Deut. 2, 31. Joſh. 24. 8. 18. The deſtruction of their enemies, and his mercy toward them ſhould have cauſed their hearts to melt for love toward him. And God to this very end, drave out the Amorite, to purge the land of his ſin, being grown ſo full and ripe; and to bring in his people in their ſtead, purely to worſhip and ſerve him: And yet were they grown now as bad, if not worſe then the Amorite, Ezekiel 16. 3. 45. 1 Kings 21. 26. Ezekiel 5. verſe 6.

whoſe height was like the height of the Cedars] Numb. 13. 28. & 32. 33. And therefore they were not overcome by the ſtrength of the Iſraelites, but by the arme of God, Deut. 7. 1. 16. 25. Joſh. 23. 9. Pſal. 44. 3.

fruit from above] A proverbiall kind of ſpeech to ſignifie an utter deſolation, as Job 18. 16. Iſa. 5. 24. Mal. 4. 1.

v. 10. alſo] God's other great and wonderfull benefit to them, Exod. 12. 51. Often recounted in Scripture, and needfull ſo to be; men are naturally ſo unmindfull of God's greateſt benefits, and ſleighting them being once paſt.

forty yeers] So wonderfully protecting of you, and providing for you; ſo patiently all that time bearing with you, and fitting you to enter that land, out of which you had barr'd your ſelves by your infidelity, and manifold rebellions: All this ſhould have made them more gratefull and dutifull: And doth render their ſinfulneſſe the more odious. See Deut. 32. 6. Micah 6. 3. 7. Theſe forty yeers are reckoned, not from the return of the ſpyes to Kadeſh-Barnea, but from their coming out of Ægypt.

v. 11. for Prophets] See Exod. 20. 19. Deut. 18. 16. Gods further benefit; He ſent many Prophets, ordinary and extraordinary, as his Legats, Ambaſſadours, Angels, to his people.

Nazarites] Yet a further benefit; theſe being perſons ſanctified after a ſpeciall manner to purity of life, and conſecrated to works of piety, Numb. 6. 2. 22. ſmall warrant for popiſh votaries out of this example.

v. 12. gave the Nazarites] Violating my law in this part of my ſervice, Numb. 6. 3. neither obeying your ſelves, nor ſuffering others to obey my laws.

ſaying, propheſie not] Iſa. 3. 10. Jer. 11. 21 Micah 2. 6. Amos 7. 12, 13. and though not abſolutely forbidden, yet under ſome limitations and reſtraints: ſome for propheſying, rebuked, impriſoned, endangered for their lives, and ſome others ſlain. See Jer. 20. 2, 8, 14. & ch. 26. 8, 23. Mat. 23. 37. Acts 7. 52.

v. 13. I ampreſſed under you] You have wearied me with your ſins, Iſa. 1. 14. Or, I will preſſe your place, as a cart full of ſheaves preſſeth: Or, I will preſſe your place by the ſtrict ſiege of enemies: I will preſſe and threſh you, as a heavy cart preſſeth out the corn.

v. 14. Therefore the flight] Thus roughly he begins with the Iſraelites, his proper charge, knowing well their ſecurity and obſtinacy in ſin.

from the ſwift] None ſhall be delivered by any means; by ſwiftneſſe, or ſtrength, or courage; that it ſhall be almoſt a miracle if any eſcape, either foot-men, or horſ-men.

himſelf] Heb. His ſoul or life.

v. 16. couragious] Heb. Strong of his heart.

naked in that day] Being ſtripped by his enemies; or having baſely thrown away his armes, glad to eſcape with his life for a prey.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. T*He Lord hath ſpoken*] Though he an heardman, yet herein he is the Lords inſtrument and Ambaſſadour, brings his word, not his own; bears his authority, to whom all ſubjection and obedience is due.

children of Iſrael] His proper charge.

againſt the whole family] Both of Judah and Iſrael. Yet underſtand hereby the ten Tribes principally, if not onely: ſo called, becauſe they were the far greater number, and ſleighted ſmall Judah, and counted themſelves Gods chief people, to whom the Bleſſings, and Promiſes, and Priviledges belonged: theſe he ſummons here to judgement.

v. 2. You onely] This recounting of his favours redounds to their greater reproach, ſets out to the life the vileneſſe of their ingrate requitals: ſee Annot. on c. 2. 9, 10.

have I known] Gods knowledge and providence is over all his creatures, Pſal. 147. 9. Mat. 10. 29, 30. yet you alone have I choſen of my free favour, and meer mercy, and no merit of yours, Deut. 7. 7, 8. 1 Cor. 4, 7. and accepted to be my peculiar people, by a ſingular gracious Covenant; wherefore your ingratitude and diſloyalty is ſo much the more to be condemned, Deut. 7. 6. & 10. 15. and thoſe ſins of ignorance, which I paſſe over in others, are in you inexcuſable, and proceeding from pure malice. See Ezek. 20. 32. Exod. 19. 3, 4. Deut. 4. 20. and 32. 11.

of all] Paſſing by all other nations of the earth; which were ſo many and mighty. And yet no injuſtice done them: But the more is my free mercie magnified towards you, Exod. 19. 6.

therfore I will puniſh] Heb. Viſit upon: your ſins being ſo much the greater, in not walking up anſwerable to my mercies; but contrariwiſe juſtifying the Heathen nations in their ſinnes, and ſurpaſſing them: as Ezek. 16. 47, 48. Therefore your puniſhments ought and ſhall be accordingly; Ezek. 16. 59. Luke 12. 47, 48. The greatneſſe of Gods mercies addes an aggravation to the greatneſſe of their ſins, and of their puniſhment.

v. 3. two walk together] Even as two travellers whoſe end of their journey is not the ſame, cannot long travell the ſame way: ſo it is impoſſible that God ſhould continue his grace towards you, walking among you in viſible ſignes, works, and wonders, and yet connive at your iniquities: ſeeing his ſervice is not the only aim of all your wayes, and walkings: nay he will ſurely puniſh you. Others, not ſo well, do apply it to God and the prophet, and their agreement; or to the prophet, and his fellow-prophets; that they agree and walk together in the ſame way, in diſcharging their prophetical functions, in reproving, threatnings, &c. As if he ſhould ſay, we do agree; and therefore you are the more to heed it.

v. 4. a lion roar in the forreſt] Will God threaten by his prophets, except there be ſome great occaſion, and juſt cauſe for it? Or think ye that God will not at laſt bring all theſe threatnings to paſſe: though he hath had patience for a long time? See verſe 8. and Amos 1. 2.

if he have taken nothing] Have taken nothing. Or at leaſt, if he have not a minde after his prey to take it. The lyon it ſelf will not do ſo, much leſſe God by his prophets. Contrary to thoſe prophane ſpeeches, Jeremie 5. 12, 13. See Deut. 32. 47.

v. 5. a bird fall] Can any thing come without Gods providence? Matth. 10. 29. much leſſe do his judgements come by chance. There is a gin laid by the fowler, though the birds ſee it not: ſo Gods hand and ſecret counſel is in all afflictions, in all things though men ſee it not; but would aſcribe it to chance or fortune.

ſhall one take up &c.] Commonly he wil not, til he have taken ſomewhat. Much more God will not take up himſelf, and his threatned judgements; till he have executed what he hath determined and denounced. And therefore the Iſraelites ſhould not ſo ſleight Gods threatnings thundred againſt them by his prophets, as if God did but dally with them. He will not take up his net, till he hath taken his prey. His threatnings ſhall not be in vain.

ſhall a trumpet be blown in the city] When the watchers give a ſigne, or ſound an alarm, the people preſently are terrified, and run together for help and ſuccour. And what ought you to do at Gods threatnings, pronounced by his prophets, for your converſion towards him, from whom all theſe calamities proceed? See Ezek. 3, 4. and 33. 3. 7. Thus he reproacheth their ſtupidity and faſcination, and dementation, being againſt common ſenſe, without all fear and apprehenſion of danger; but reſting ſtill ſecure, even when God by his prophets blows his trumpet of war in the midſt of them.

ſhall there be evil in a citie] Eſay 45. 7. the evil of affliction and puniſhment.

and the Lord hath not done it?] Or, and ſhall not the Lord do ſomewhat? It is not fortune that doth toſſe and tumble things in the world up and down; and God ſits idle in heaven: no, he ſits at the ſtern, and ſteers the affairs of the world; the Empery is his. Eſay 45. 7. Pſalm 94. 7—12. And therefore they ſhould be awakened at his judgements, repent of their ſins, and turn to him, Micah 6. 9. and not be as thoſe Eſay 9. 13.

v. 7. will do nothing] Not that hereby the prophet would put a neceſſity upon God; he is free to do otherwiſe: and doth execute many judgements not revealed to men, or Angels: but he uſually doth thus by his Prophets with his own people. And therefore the more ſhame for them not to take warning thereby, to prevent the ſame by timely repentance: His Prophets are Heraulds proclaiming warre; yet with articles of peace and reconciliation open in their hands.

revealeth his ſecret] He likens the Prophets to watchmen which diſcover afar off the coming of the enemies: for ſo God ordinarily reveals unto his Prophets the greateſt judgements which he will cauſe to fall upon his people to bring them to repentance, Gen. 18. 17. Jer. 18. 7. and 1. 10. he deals not ſo uſually with other nations.

v. 8. The lyon hath roared] The fear of Gods majeſty doth enforce us to relate his threatnings faithfully unto you, though you hate and diſdain us for it. 1 Cor. 9. 16. we muſt then do our duety; fear God more then men; roar againſt your ſins, though you roar againſt us for it. See Acts 4. 19. and 5. 29. Galat. 4. 16. Jerem. 1. 17. Ezek. 2. 6. and 3. 8, 9.

v. 9. Publiſh] Seeing they would not hear, and bear, and abide Gods judgements by his prophets.

Aſhdod] Chap. 1. 8. He calleth ſtrangers, as the Philiſtims, and Egyptians, even theſe Heathen nations, to be witneſſes of their evil doings, and to judge of the juſtice of Gods judgements againſt them for their cruelty and oppreſſion. This was a famous citie of the Philiſtims, who lived on the weſt part of the land of Canaan, next the mediterrane ſea: and it was one of their five Lordſhips, Joſh. 13. 3. 1 Sam 6. 17, 18. This was aſſigned to the tribe of Judah, Joſh. 15. 47. yet in, and after Joſhuahs time, the Anakims dwelt there; Joſh. 11. 22. The Ark of God was taken by the Philiſtims, and brought thither, and placed there in the houſe of Dagon. See 1 Sam. 5. 1, 2, 3. and chap. 6. 17, 18. After it was conquered by Uzziah, 2 Chron. 26. 6. and by Ezekiah, 2 Kings 18. 8. and ſoon after taken by Sargon or Senacharib king of Aſſyria; Eſay 20. 1. and afterward by Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon; See Jer. 25. 20. Zeph. 2. 4. Zech. 9. 6. After the return from the captivity of Babylon, they were wroth at Nehemiahs building the walls of Jeruſalem, Nehem. 4. 7. And ſome of the Jewes took ſtrange wives of Aſhdod, as well as of other Heathen nations; and their children ſpake half in the ſpeech of Aſhdod; But Ezra and Nehemiah cauſed them to put away both the wives and children; Ezra 10. 3. Nehemiah 13. 23, 24. And moſt think this citie to be that called Azotus, where Phillip was found: Acts 8. 40. See more on Zephaniah 2. 4.

upon the mountains of Samaria] As a Theater whereon to view, or Tribunal whereon to judge between God and his people, their ſinnes and his judgements. This might provoke to their greater ſhame the Iſraelites that were ſo proude of their prerogatives, and ſo ſcorned theſe nations.

tumults] That is, oppreſſions, tumultuouſly, impetuouſly, diſorderedly, outragiouſly acted upon the poor and miſerable.

oppreſſed] Or oppreſſion.

v. 10. Know not] Will not know; but wilfully blinde themſelves, that they may not diſcern betwixt right and wrong; they reject and extinguiſh all underſtanding and reaſon, that they may freely without any ſhame, take to themſelves a liberty for their ſinning.

ſtore up violence] He inſtanceth in this palpable ſin wherein thoſe Heathen could not be ſo blinde but rightly judge and condemn them.

robbery in their pallaces] Or, ſpoil. The fruit and effect of their crueltie and theft appeareth by their great riches, which by thoſe means they heaped up, and ſtored in their houſes.

v. 11. Therefore] Now from their ſin he comes to their puniſhment.

an adverſarie] Meaning the king of Aſſyria, Shalmaneſer, as appeareth by the next verſe. For he took Samaria by force and led away the people captive, 2 Kings 17. 6. See alſo Chapters 15. and 16.

round about] That there ſhall be no place left to eſcape; it were but in vain to think it.

thy ſtrength] Thy riches, arms, forts, &c.

thy pallaces ſhall be ſpoiled] Wherein thou didſt ſtore up thy preyes and ſpoils, verſ. 10.

v. 12. taketh] Heb. delivereth. A countrey compariſon; ſuch as Amos being a ſhepherd commonly uſeth, Chap. 1. 1. and Chap. 7. 14.

or a piece of an ear] This doth not mitigate the rigour of the former ſentence; but ſhews rather the extreamity of their devouring deſtruction; they ſhall be but as a lamb to a wolf, nay more to a lyon: The ſhepherd ſhall not dare to approach him, till he be fully fed and gone, and leave the offall. And all this to take off their preſumptuous confidence and ſecurity.

ſo ſhall the children of Iſrael be] In the ſacking of the citie, a ſmall number of the pooreſt ſort of people ſhall eſcape.

in the corner of a bed] He hath relation to the hiding corners, that are ſought for when a city is taken, that they hope will be leaſt ſearched or ſuſpected. See 1 Kings 22. 25. Scarce ſhall one of 1000. there eſcape: though they think Samaria, and Damaſcus their ſafeſt ſtrengths or hiding places. Chaldee paraphraſe hath it, in robore principatus.

and in Damaſcus in a couch] Or on, or in the beds feet.

v. 13. Heare ye] This preface and preamble is ſomewhat more then uſuall; requiring from God ſuch attention and atteſtation. And this the rather becauſe the matter following is a thing which they could ſo hardly be convinced of. He directeth his words to the Prophets, and all true beleevers.

v. 14. viſit] Or puniſh Iſrael for.

the tranſgreſſions] Of covetouſneſs, pride, cruelties, oppreſſions, and other flagitious offences.

I will alſo viſit] I will deſtroy all places and inſtruments of idolatry; to ſhew the falſhood of it, and make it known that it is the chief cauſe of the peoples ruin.

the altars of Bethel] See Annotations on Hoſea 10. 15. They thought that by their ſervices of God, and ſacrifices there, that they pleaſed him, and appeaſed his anger, expiating their ſins by thoſe outward ſervices: they truſted in this, and counted it their ſhadow and ſhield; Bethel was their confidence, Jere. 48. 13. But the Lord ſhewes that their worſhip there was ſo expreſly contrary to his word, and ſo odious to him, that it ſhould bee ſo far from pleaſing and appeaſing him, that it provoked his wrath the more, and that in the day of his viſitation he would ſurely viſit thoſe idolatrous Altars.

horns of the Altar] Which were made upon the idols Altars like unto them which were upon the Altar of the true God, upon the four corners of it; Exodus 27. 2.

v. 15. Winter-houſe with the Summer-houſe] He hath relation to the cuſtoms of great men, who are wont to have ſeverall rooms and houſes for winter, and for ſummer, Judges 3. 20. Jere. 36. 22. The meaning is, all manner of ſtatelineſſe, greatneſſe, and commodiouſneſſe, ſhall be taken away; Theſe their rich, ſtrong, and ſtately houſes, ſhall not help them nor hinder Gods vengeance from ſeazing on them.

Ivory] Covered over with Ivory. 1 Kings 2. 39. and 22. 29.

CHAP. IIII.

Verſe 1. K*ine*] Thus he calleth the princes, and governours, which being overwhelmed with great abundance of Gods benefits, forget God; and therefore he calleth them by the name of beaſts, and not of men, cows and not men; and continues on his ſpeech to them in the feminine gender, not vouchſafing them once the name of men, deals with them as if he were an heard-man among his kine and cattell. Thus he ſlights their ſinfull greatneſſe, and emboldens himſelf upon his authority and calling; being faithfull in the diſcharge of it. Call and count me an heards man, yet thus from God I call and count you. See Pſal. 22. 12. Eze. 39. 10. Hoſ. 4. 16.

of Baſhan] Baſhan was the Kingdom of Og, the gyant lay on the Eaſt ſide of Jordan; contained in it chiefly half Gilead, and the whole region of Argob; given to the half Tribe of Manaſſeh; wherein Machir, and Jair, the ſons of Manaſſeh, had very many cities. See Numb. 21. 33. Deut. 3. verſe 4. 13. 14. Aſhteroth, Edrei, and Golan, were chief cities therein. whereof Aſhteroth, and Golan were given to the Gerſhonites; and Golan to be a city of refuge; Deut. 4. 43. Joſh. 21. 27. 1 Chron. 6. 71. This was a ſpeciall place for the breed of cattell, Numb. 32. 4. Deut. 32. 14. we read of the Buls of Baſhan, Pſalm. 22. 12. And mention is oft made of the Oaks of Baſhan. Hazael King of Syria ſmote them, 2 Kings 10. 33. And Pul, and Tilgath Pilneſer Kings of Aſſyria, afflicted, and captived them, 1 Chron. 5. 26.

that are in the mountain of Samaria] See the Annotations on Hoſea 8. 5. He likens the Rulers in Samaria to the Kine of Baſan, loaded with fatneſs, ſecure, and drunken with worldly wealth and pleaſures.

which oppreſs the poor] This ſin onely he names; as being moſt commonly practiſed by rich and great oppreſſours, againſt ſuch as are not able to relieve themſelves againſt them; which makes God the more forbid it, and to pitty them that lie under it.

which ſay to their Maſters] They encourage ſuch as have authority over the people, to poll them, ſo that they may have profit by it. Others thus, not ſo well, which do perſwade your Kings, and princes to all manner of exceſs and diſſoluteneſs; and are teachers and adviſers of the diſorders of the Court; as Hoſea 7. 5. Or thus, to the Maſters of the poor; to ſuch as have the Maſtery of them, by ingagements, pretended debts, circumventions, or otherwiſe have them in their lurch, theſe rulers, or judges call for bribes and rewards, and they will aſſiſt them, and ſentence for them againſt the poor.

drink] Keep feaſts upon the prey and ſpoil of the poor. See Gene. 43. 34. Cant. 5. 1. John 2. 10. for drinking at feaſts.

v. 2. The Lord] The puniſhment follows upon the ſin.

hath ſworn] The more to awaken theſe ſecure and ſleepy ſinners.

by his holineſs] Heb. 6. 13. 16.

upon you] Great ones. He thunders firſt againſt them; having formerly charged their ſin upon them.

with fiſh hooks] Like fiſhes, as Jer. 16. 16. Hab. 1. 14. 15. diligently induſtriouſly caught, eaſily pulled up, and carried away, as fiſhes are with a fiſhook, and you ſhal be no more like fat kine that abide in their paſtures.

v. 3. at the breaches] Of your fenced Cities, and ſtrong holds, no walls or rampers ſhall defend you, your walls ſhall be as the walls of Jerico, Joſh. 6. 20. Being thus led into Captivity after your cities are forced and defaced. *S*ee Ezek. 12. 5. 12. As beaſts at a gap.

every cow] Thus ſtill is purſued that ſimilitude, verſe 1. to the ſhame of ſuch beaſtly men.

before her] Any way; there being neither gates, nor walls whole.

ye ſhall caſt them into the pallace] Or ye ſhall caſt away the things of the pallace, that is your jewels and treaſures kept there. Or thus, ye ſhall be glad, to forſake your pallaces and pleaſures, and run away, as cows ſtark-mad, ſeeking onely to eſcape with your lives. Some tranſlate thus; projiciemini Hermonam. Theodotian, in montem Monam erroneouſly.

v. 4. Come] Go Ironicall terms, & full of indignation, that is, I do abandon you to continue in your idolatries, that you may heap up the meaſure of your ſins. See Matth. 23. 32. Eſay 1. 11. Jer. 6. 20. & 7. 21. Ezech. 20. 39.

Bethel] Bethel, and Gilgal, were chief ſeats of the publick idolatry of the ten tribes, 1 Kings 12. 29. Hoſea 4. 15. See the Annotations there. They thought in thoſe places, by thoſe religious ſervices, and ſacrifices, they did highly pleaſe God; and could not be beaten from this tenet, and principle. But the Lord tells them, The more they do ſo, the more they offend and provoke him; as being ſacrilegious, idolatrous worſhips, and abominations to him; ſo contrary to the preſcript rule of his Law.

tranſgreſs] Seeing by no means you will be recalled, but deſperatly rage, and are mad upon it. God doth not egge men on to ſin; ſee chap. 5. 5. But hereby he ſheweth his extream diſlike and deteſtation of it.

multiply] Heap ſin upon ſin. Thus ſinners go on.

Every morning] In imitation of the dayly ſacrifice, Num. 28. 3. 4. Be diligent, omit nothing.

three years] Heb. three years of dayes. In imitation ſay ſome of the three ſolemn feaſts appointed to be every year by the Law; Exod. 23. 14. at which certain kindes of tithes were ſpent in the ſacred feaſts. Or rather, alluding to that Law, Deut. 14. 22. 28. 29. and chap. 26. 12. Wherein thoſe two kinde of Tythes, mentioned, Deut. 12. 5. 6. 7. 11. 12. 17. 18. 26. Set a part, as it ſeems for their journeys, ſacrifices, and feaſtings at Jeruſalem thrice a year; and therefore forbidden to be eaten elſwhere: were converted every third year ſolely and wholly to the uſe of the poor, the fatherleſs, widdows, &c. And therefore might then be eaten any where in all their gates. Or elſe, every third year a third kinde of tithes was ſet aſide for the poor aforeſaid: and thereupon this third year might be called the year of tithing; ſee thoſe places aforeſaid, Deut. 14. 22. 28. 29. & Chap. 26. 12. And this Law of third-year-tithes, which the Iſraelites in their idolatrous worſhip did imitate.

v. 5. offer a ſacrifice] Heb. offer by burning.

with leaven] In imitation of Gods Law, in ſacrifices of thankſgiving, Lev. 7. 13. In other ſacrifices leaven was forbidden, Lev. 2. 11. Thus in formalities the Iſraelites were curiouſly preciſe; They ſtrained a gnat, but ſwallowed the Camel, in erecting another Temple, Altar, and Prieſthood; which was the ſource and well ſpring of all their abominations.

proclaim and publiſh] Making it known by publick authority, that whoſoever wil offer any free wil offerings, beſides thoſe wch God had expreſly commanded, ſhall come and offer them, but yet in ſuch unlawfull places, and manner.

the free offerings] Lev. 22. 18. 21. 29. & 7. 16. & 23. 38. Num. 15. 3. Deu. 12. 17. thoſe alſo preſcribed in Gods Law, did the Iſraelites imitate and practiſe upon their falſe altars, by their unlawfull prieſts, in their idolatrous temples, and high places. And theſe they did publiſh & proclaim with great pompe and ſolemnity; Carefull, yea curious, and vain-glorious in all things, ſave in the main. This is the manner of ſuch ſinners.

this liketh you] Heb. So ye love. You only delight in thoſe outward ceremonies, & have none other reſpect, this liketh you, but not me, you thus audaciouſly frame new wayes of worſhipping me out of your own brain; your will is your rule and law herein: and ſo you ſacrifice and do ſervice to your own will not to me: I neither preſcribed it, nor will accept it; I love obedience better then ſacrifice: you ſhould have conſulted my mouth: and ſimply obeyed what I commanded. And thus God ſhewes the ſence of his former conceſſion, v. 4. LXX. corrupts this verſe, and the meaning of it, far otherwayes.

v. 6. and I alſo] God ſhewed what liked them, now he ſheweth what liked himſelf; even for their ſins to puniſh them.

cleanneſſe of teeth] That is, famine and dearth. See the famine, 1 Kings 17, 18. chapters: and 2 Kings 4. 38.

yet have ye not] So hardned were your hearts, and ſo obdurate in ſin, that I have prevailed nothing by my chaſtiſements: but ye ſtill remain incurable, irrecoverable.

v. 7. And alſo I] Here is one cauſe of their famine, ſet out by it ſelf; that they might more duely have pondered the beginning and progreſſe of the ſignes of Gods wrath, and in time better bethink themſelves of their duty; when they ſaw, not one ſigne of his anger for one day; but many ſignes appearing ſtill, one after another. This heightens their ſin and ſenſleſſe ſtupidity; nothing regarding Gods hand herein.

three moneths] One moneth then without rain in that hot countrey ſhould have affrighted them: two moneths ſhould have aſtoniſhed them: three moneths ſhould have been as a prodigie unto them; yet all this while they take it not to heart to bethink themſelves, and be bettered by it. I ſtayed the rain till the fruits of the earth were deſtroyed with drought, and yet you would not conſider it to return to me by repentance. See 1 Kings 17.

upon one citie] Thus varying his hand ſo viſibly, that they might the better take notice of it, and not once entertain a thought of chance or fortune herein; unleſſe they would wilfully blinde themſelves, and renounce all reaſon.

v. 8. ſo two] So that rain waters, or ſprings known, or new digged, ſufficed not the inhabitants: but forced them abroad, as beaſts to ſeek waters: ſee that 1 Kings 18. 5, 6.

not ſatisfied] They could not finde water enough where they had heard ſay it had rained.

yet have ye not] See verſe 6. but continue ſtill in your old ſuperſtitions and idolatries, and in the wickedneſſe of your ſinful lives, amated nothing, nor abating any thing for my corrections; ye reject the remedy of your recovery.

v. 9. I have ſmitten you] Yet more means God uſed: and ſtill all would not ſerve: they ſhut their eyes, and would diſcern nothing. God orders all theſe things in the whole courſe of nature: the ſeaſons, weather, inſects, and all by his ſpecial providence, that we may dayly ſee in them the ſignes of his love to comfort us: or of his wrath, to humble us. All his creatures are his hoaſts, obeying and executing his will Deut. 28. 22. 23. 24. Hoſ. 2. 21, 22. Pſal. 147. 8, 9. 16, 17, 18. Joel 2. 11. 25.

when your gardens and your vineyards, &c.] Or, the multitude of your gardens, &c. did the Palmerworm, &c.

v. 10. the peſtilence] He further ſhewes how yet by other puniſhments he ſought ſtill to tame their untowardneſſe, and provoke and work them to repentance. And ſo he comes from famine, to the peſtilence, and ſword. See Ezek. 14. 19.

after the manner of Egypt] Or, in the way. As I plagued the Egyptians, Exod. 9, 10. chapters. Or, when you went into Egypt to ſeek aid from thence, Hoſ. 7. 11. 12. See Eſay 10. 24. where alſo the ſame phraſe is uſed. And a like phraſe is uſed Eſay 10. 26. in theſe words, according to the ſlaughter of Midian, at the rock Oreb. God ſhewed his power for their fathers againſt the Egyptians plaguing them. Now they being turned as Egyptians to him, he turned that his power againſt them; uſed the ſame weapons of his wrath, and plagued them, as he did the Egyptians, thoſe Heatheniſh uncircumciſed people of old. See Deut. 28. 60.

ſword] See Ezek. 14. 17. 21. Jer. 15. 2. and 47. 6, 7. God ſtill multiplies, and increaſeth his judgements. See Levit. 26. 18. 21. 24. 28.

and have taken away your horſes] Heb. With the captivity of your horſes.

ſtink of your camps] By dead carkaſſes; and filth to infect, choak, and ſtifle you.

yet] By all theſe divers kindes of judgements God prevailed nothing; ſpent his rods in vain, he loſt his labour, and ſhould do ſo ſtill, if he added more to the former. All theſe were ſo many arguments of their incorrigible contumacy.

v. 11. As Sodom] Theſe are ſet forth for examples of wickedneſſe; and Gods choſen people are charged to equallize, and exceed them; Eſay 1. 10. Jer. 23. 14. Ezek. 16. 47. 48. They are alſo ſet forth for examples of puniſhments, to terrifie others; 2 Pet. 2. 6. Jude 7. Thus are Babylon, Edom, Moab, and Ammon threatned, Eſay 13. 19. Jer. 49. 18. and 50. 40. Zephanie 2. 9. And ſo alſo Iſrael, Deut. 29. 23. and the execution of the threatning bemoaned to exceed it, Lam. 4. 6. of Sodom and Gomorrah. See Gen. 19. 24, 25. Iſaiah. 13. 19. Jer. 40. 18. See 2 Kings 13. 3, &c. & chap. 14. 26.

firebrand plucks] So Eſay 1. 9. See Zech. 3. 2. This is ſome exception from the former example, and a mitigation of it. In Ieroboam the ſeconds time there was ſome relaxation, and reſpiration from ſo direful a deſtruction; but woful and wonderfull was their affliction before, 2 Kings 14. 25, 26, 27. yet God ſtill preſerved a Remnant in remembrance of his covenant; which he ever would conſtantly maintain; Eſay 4. 8. and 6. 13. and 10. 20. and 11. 11. 16. and 28. 5. yet] What now then remains but your utter deſtruction.

v. 12. thus will I do unto thee] Namely as thy ſins deſerve, or as I have foretold thee, verſ. 2, 3. As formerly: yea and more then ſo will I do: for remedies are no more to be uſed, where the diſeaſe is deſperate.

prepare] This might ſeem to be ſpoken Ironically, conſidering what went before: thus; Now go to, do what you can, try all your ſtrength to meet with and withſtand my decreed deſtruction, and determined ſentence againſt you. But ſeeing in the next Chapter, God again exhorts them to repentance, that they might live, this may rather be taken literally, that Iſrael by repentance ſhould ſeek to prevent their utter final overthrow. as Luke 14. 31. 32. The ſum is, ſince I denounce war againſt thee, as againſt my rebels and enemies, prepare thy ſelf to do the beſt thou canſt to beat me off, and keep me back, or to prevent and pacifie me by true repentance. See Ezek. 13. 5. and 22. 30. Luke 14. 31, 32. Though thou art in a deſperate caſe, and I may ſeem to have ſhut the gate of grace againſt thee, yet turn, and try; as Joel 2. 14. Jonah 3. 9. to meet] By humiliation, faith, and repentance, 1 Cor. 11. 31. LXX. have it, to invoke and pray.

thy God] By profeſſion, though thy practiſe be ſo contrary; thine, by his covenant, though for thy part thou haſt ſo much broken it.

v. 13. For lo he] He multiplies ſo many titles of God, and ſo many wayes extols him, and his dreadful power, to gain thereby the more reverence and fear of God; ſpecially at the hands of ſuch refractory and obdurate ſinners.

winde] Or, ſpirit. And indeed he creates both.

declareth unto man] That knows, and judgeth the moſt ſecret thoughts of man: overtakes the wiſe in their cunning: accuſeth the conſciences, and ſummoneth them to appear before him. Or, according to others, that revealeth his ſecret judgements to men, to call them to repentance, Chap. 3. 7. Heb. 4. 12. 1 Chron. 28. 9. Job 42. 2. Pſalm 7. 9. and 139. 2. Jer. 17. 10.

maketh the morning darkneſſe] Amos 5. 8. Joel 2. 2.

treadeth upon the high places] That is, exalted above all humane power. See Micah 1. 3. Deut. 32. 13. and chap. 33. 29. Pſalm 45. 8. Eſay 58. 14.

CHAP. V.

Verſe 1. HEar ye] Their ſupine ſecurity wherein they pleaſed themſelves, and their ſtupid contempt of God, and his threatnings by his prophet, ſtopping their ears againſt them, makes him thus to call upon them for audience to hear their doom which they had deſerved, and yet would not believe ſhould fall upon them.

a lamentation] That I take up; and a lamentable word for you, as you ſhall finde the woful burden of it upon you. See Ezek. 2. 10. Jer. 9. 1. and 4. 19. Eſay 22. 1. 4. They laugh at it now, but ſhall lament under it hereafter.

v. 2. The virgin of Iſrael] So are called in Scripture thoſe ſtates which ſubſiſt and flouriſh in their firſt liberty and ſplender; or delicately pleaſe themſelves in their proſperities and pleaſures. See Eſay 13. 12. So is Babylon called, Eſay 47. 1. and Egypt, Jer. 46. 11.

ſhe ſhall no more riſe] The whole body of the kingdom and people never more roſe to be a kingdom after their deſtruction by Shalmaneſer, 2 Kings 17. though God had his remnant among them. Or, we may underſtand it with this reſerved condition, except they timely repent.

forſaken upon her land] Deſtitute of men in her land: as is ſhewed in the next verſe.

v. 3. ſhall leave ten] The body of the wicked deſtroyed; to their terrour; yet a ſmall remnant eſcape, to the comfort of the godly, that they might not deſpair. Here is a decimation. That chap. 6. 9. is in another ſenſe.

v. 4. ſeek ye me] Here muſt be underſtood, which ye have refuſed to do. Thus whiles they remained yet undeſtroyed, he calls them all in generall to Repentance; to the good of ſome; and to render the reſt the more inexcuſable. Whiles a people remain under the name and notion of a Church, the doctrine of faith and repentance is to be vouchſafed unto them.

and ye ſhall live] See Gen. 20. 7. without promiſe of grace, and hope of mercy, no man would ſeek God, but flee from him, as much as ever he could. Therefore this is neceſſarily added to the former. God then doth thus graciouſly invite, as Ezech. 18. 3. 32. Ier. 13. 27. And though he effectually draw to him only his elect; yet the deſtruction of the reſt is only from themſelves, they finde ſufficiently the cauſe of obſtinacy and refuſall in themſelves. Hoſe. 13. 9.

v. 5. But ſeek not Bethel] Chap. 4. 4. Namely the idols, which were in theſe cities: ſeek not by-wayes in coming to God; much leſs abominable wayes, as thoſe at Bethel, Gilgal, and Beerſhebah; for thoſe are odious to God, and damnable. If ye will ſeek God, ye muſt forſake them, to wch you have been ſo much, and ſo long accuſtomed and addicted. True Religion and Idolatry cannot conſiſt together. Converſion to God otherwayes is but vain and counterfeit, See Gene. 35. 1, 2. Joſh. 24. 22. 23. Jude 10. 16. 1 Sam. 7. 3. ſuch mixtures marr Religion, and Gods pure worſhip. Of Bethel ſee the Annotations on Hoſ. 10. 15.

Gilgal] See Annotations on Hoſ. 4. 15.

Beerſheba] This was a city on the ſouth border of Jury, Judg. 21. There Hagar wandered, going towards Egypt, and thither, Elias came in his flight from Jezebel, towards mount Sinai, 1 Kings 19. 3. There Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, ſometimes dwelt: and there Abraham firſt, and Iſaac after, made a Covenant with Abimelech, and Phicol. It after fell to the lot of the tribe of Judah: and out of it was imparted to the tribe of Simeon; Joſh. 19. 2. 9. 1 Chron. 4. 28. Publike idolatry was at laſt ſet up there, as appears in this Text, and chap. 8. 14. Judah then is here alſo touched for idolatry.

Gilgal ſhall] Namely the inhabitants thereof. In the Hebrew there is an alluſion between the word Gilgal & the verb adjoyned. Gilgal ſignifies rowling, Joſh. 5. 9. Here thus, Gilgal. i. e. Rowling ſhall be rowled away into captivity.

Bethel ſhall come to nought] Bethel ſignifies the houſe of God: but by reaſon of the Idolatry that was uſed therein, it is called Bethaven, that is to ſay, the houſe of an idol, Hoſ. 4. 15. and 10. 8. and becauſe Aven ſignifies an idol, or nought, and vanity; therefore her laſt ruin is alſo ſet forth by this name.

v. 6. ſeek] He again doth repeat and preſſe that verſe 4. aſſuring them thereby, that whiles they retain their old ſuperſtition and idolatries, they do not ſeek the Lord, nor can do, whatſoever they pretend.

and ye ſhall live] If ye ſeek him truly, he will certainly bleſs you; if you want his bleſsing, it is through your want of ſeeking him truly, which thing you can never do, till you abandon your falſe worſhips, and be regulated by his word and Law only.

leſt he break] Like a devouring fire, break in pieces, and conſume all.

the houſe of Joſeph] Of the ten tribes whereof the chief, was that of Ephraim, that came of Joſeph.

Bethel] None of your idols which you ſerve in Bethel, and wherein you ſo much truſt for help, ſhall ſhelter and ſuccour you.

v. 7. ye who] He comes now to the ſecond Table, and chargeth them with groſs ſins againſt it; ſo leaving them no wayes unconvicted. He chiefly chargeth the great ones, and rulers, who ſhould have kept the reſt within the bounds of obedience. But they being evil, corrupted the reſt, as bad humors flow from the head to the body.

turn judgement to wormwood] Chap. 6. 12. ye corrupt juſtice: and whereas of it ſelf it is a moſt profitable and pleaſant thing, ye make it moſt bitter to thoſe who are oppreſſed; and moſt abominable to God.

and leave off] Let it lie in the duſt: yea, tread it under foot.

v. 8. that maketh] A magnificent deſcription of God, and his power. He is not like an idol of their imagination, to be pleaſed, and pacified with toyes and trifles, as children are. Hypocrites that think ſo of him, and deal ſo with him, ſhall finde him another manner of God. Therefore ſeek him otherwiſe then ſo. Thus the Prophet riſeth, as it were, into ſome heat againſt thoſe that entertained ſuch childiſh thoughts of God.

the ſeven ſtars] Called Pleiades, and Virgiliæ; which riſe with the ſpring, and continue till Autumne.

Orion] Which in the moneth of December is to be ſeen in our hemiſphere, all the nights through, ſome tranſlate this, Arcturus. The Hebrew words are Cimah and Chæſil. And indeed neither Jews, nor we, are certain of their exact ſignification, as neither of the names of many herbs; and of the womens wardrope, Eſay 3. 18—24. and Amos likely was but ſuch an aſtronomer, as herds-men uſe to be. He ſpeaks of the ſtars, as the vulgar ſort then uſed to do; and names two, then moſt noted. See chap. 9. 6. Job 9. 9. and 38. 15. and 38. 31. LXX. thus; ὁ ποιῶν πάντα καὶ μετασκευάζων.

and turneth] This may be properly underſtood of the great and prodigious changes in the air; and figuratively of the alteration of ſtates and changes of the world.

and maketh the day dark] Chap. 8. 13.

calleth for the waters of the ſea] Chap. 9. 6. By vapors and clouds.

poureth them out] By ſhowrs and rain, yet ſome hereby conceive more likely to be meant, the deluges and inundations of the ſea, then the vapours of it reſolved into rain.

the Lord is his name] Such is he; and not ſuch an Idol as you fancy to your ſelves, to be dallied withall, and deluded by your childiſh impoſtures.

v. 9. That ſtrengtheneth the ſpoiled] Heb. ſpoil ſtrengthens them that were weak, and ſpoiled, and enables them againſt the ſtrong; applying it to Iſrael, that though they counted themſelves never ſo ſtrong, in their fortreſſes, and otherwiſe; yet God would enable and ſtrengthen a ſpoiler; a conquering deſtroyer, againſt them, and their fortifications.

ſo that the ſpoiled ſhall, &c.] The weak ſtrengthned by God ſhall do it.

v. 10. rebuketh] They hate the Prophets, which reprove them in the open aſſemblies. Particularly the judges and magiſtrates do; (who kept their Courts in or near to the gates of the cities) who cannot endure the cenſure of Gods ſervants ſee Eſay 29. 21. But they would be counted ſacred not to be touched, no wayes to be rebuked, though they were never ſo worthy of it. Or, as ſome, the People hate the Magiſtrate that judgeth, and reproveth them juſtly in the place of judgement, ſee verſe 12. 15. and Gen. 34. 20.

v. 11. your treading is upon the poor] Growing rich by oppreſſing them, as Chap. 4. 1. and laying burdens and impoſitions upon them.

and ye take from him burdens of wheat] That little he hath to relieve himſelf, even his food and livelyhood; and force him many times to bear and bring it to you; and ſo ſuck out of his veins his life blood.

ye have built] Thinking to flouriſh and frolick thereby.

but ye ſhall] Ye corrupt judges and rulers, ye great and greedy oppreſſours, ye ſhall be diſappointed of your hopes, and miſs of your ends. Eſay 33. 1. Jer. 25. 12. 14. Heb. 2. 8. Deut. 28, 30. 39. Eſay 17. 11. Zeph. 1. 13. when you have ſold your ſouls for gain; and beſtowed much labour and coſt, on your deſires; ye ſhall be deprived of them.

v. 12. For I know] Though you think to colour your ſins; or care not for men; yet I know, and will judge; you cannot ſhake off my power and ſoveraign dominion.

mighty ſins] Huge and heynous, and monſtrous.

they afflict] He doth inſtance in palpable and heinous crimes, open and flagitious offences.

they turn aſide] Turn him off for want of bribes; and ſpoil him of his right; even there where he ſhould have been maintained in it.

v. 13. Therefore the prudent] For fear of their tyranny, who would endure no rebuks, v. 10. Or becauſe it were in vain to ſpeak to ſo forlorn a people, as Hoſ. 4. 17. or chiefly becauſe the wiſe and true believers, which judge truly of the calamities, and of their Cauſes, ſhall in ſilence, and with patience, worſhip God, and adore his juſtice, without any murmuring or offence. See chap. 6. 10. Jer. 8. 14.

v. 14. ſeek good] Seriouſly and ſtudiouſly.

and not evil] As ye greedily do, and will ſo hardly be taken off from it.

that ye may live] The fault then is not in God, but in your ſelves, if you do not live happily. He is ready to bleſs you, if ye hinder him not. And yet hypocrites are ready to clear themſelves, and lay all the blame on God, for their miſeries.

And ſo] And not otherwiſe, no otherwiſe; dream not of it.

with you] And, for you; dwell in the midſt of you; and bleſs you. Levit. 11. 44. and 26. 12. 1 Kings 6. 13.

as ye have ſpoken] As you have made your boaſts that he is, you being his people. Or, as you deſire, and continually pray that he may be; ye much boaſt of Gods promiſes this way, and promiſe much to your ſelves in his kinde, what! is not the ark of his preſence with us? hath he not choſen us to be his peculiar people? can he deny himſelf, and his covenant? Preſuming thus that God is ſo tyed to you, though you be never ſo wicked, and break the covenant on your part. But they are vain words, your words and ſayings ſhall then prove true, and then only, when ye ſeek good, and not evil; when ye ſeriouſly repent and return.

v. 15. Hate the evil] The Prophet is againſt upon it, becauſe he had to deal with a people ſo blinded, and ſo hardned, by long Cuſtom in ſin. And in this order here ſet down, muſt Repentance be begun, and carried on; as to the effects and fruits of it. See Pſal. 34. 14. and 97. 10. and 37. 27. Iſaiah 1. 10. 17. Rom. 12. 9.

and eſtabliſh] Mend that fault, verſe 12.

it may be that the Lord God of hoaſts] Joel 2. 14. See Joſh. 14. 12. The Prophet gives ſome Comfort to ſome godly among them; that though they had been carryed away with the common current, yet letting others run on to their ruine, they ſhould not deſpair, but take care of their own ſafety, and ſeek to eſcape, as it were out of the fire and flame; with an hope and expectation of Gods mercy. The Prophet here doth not caſt into their mindes perplexities, and nouriſh up diſtruſt in God; but this he doth to increaſe their greater induſtry.

remnant] Chap. 4. 11. The moſt number then muſt not be looked after, nor follow ed.

v. 16. Therefore] Becauſe you reject all my exhortations, and admonitions; and continue obſtinate; and ſooth up your ſelves in your ſinfull ſhifts and truſts.

the Lord] So many titles are again given to God, to make them ſenſible and apprehenſive of him with whom they had to deal; and that it was in vain to cavill or dally with him, to whom the ſupreme Power and judgement did belong.

wailing] He now meddles little more with their ſins; as having already ſufficiently convicted them: nor much inſiſts upon exhortations, and promiſes; having prevailed nothing thereby: But he falls mainly upon judgements, and the execution of Gods vengeance, in the reſidue of his Propheſie; onely concludes all with Evangelicall promiſes of reedifying and reſtoring the Church, and making it Catholike by, and under Chriſt, in the end of the laſt chapter.

Alas, alas] Wo, wo, now they talk merrily, and ſport, and frolick it; as, chap. 6. 4, 5, 6. Iſaiah 22. 12, 13. But then they ſhall be wholly taken up in mourning.

husbandman] As to a publique and generall, and moſt grievous mourning. See verſe 17.

ſuch as are skilfull] Thoſe teachers and hyred practicers of funerall mournings: whereof ſee Jer. 9. 17. 2 Chron. 35. 25. Job 3. 8. Eccleſ. 12. 15. A cuſtom in the Eaſt countryes of old; and in ſome parts of Europe, and at this day in Ireland. Of the lawfulneſſe of it the Prophet ſpeaks not.

v. 17. in all vineyards ſhall be wailing] Inſtead of the joyfull ſongs in time of vintage, Eſay 16. 10. there ſhall nothing be heard, but weeping and howling; becauſe of the ſpoil of the countrey.

I will paſſe through thee] As it were to do a generall execution of juſtice. Exod 11. 4. and 12. 12. not dwell in the midſt of thee, in love and favour.

v. 18. Wo unto you] Jer. 30. 7. Joel 2. 2. Zeph. 1. 15. Mal. 3. 2. and 4. 1.

that deſire the day of the Lord] By a profane boldneſſe; as provoking him to bring that once to paſſe, which he hath ſo long threatned: or by an impudent boaſting of your own innocency, as if God coming to judgement ſhould finde you guiltleſſe, or at leaſt leſſe guilty then the Prophets report you to be. And preſuming on it ſtill, as hypocrites uſe to do, that they were Gods people and heritage, and God was tyed to them, and could not falſifie his word, and deny himſelf, and abandon them. See Eſay 5. 19. Jer. 17. 15. and 5. 12, 13. Ezek. 12. 22. 2 Pet. 3. 3.

is darkneſſe] In the day of his appearing he will ſhew himſelf an enemy, armed againſt you, with the weapons of his wrath, to execute ſad, black, and diſmall miſeries upon you, without any light of comfort at all. See Iſaiah 5. 30. and 8. 22. and 59. 9. Jer. 30. 7. No light ſhall appear in this dark night of black calamities, unleſſe it be as that of the lightning, which is accompanied with thunder: and leaves darkneſſe after it.

v. 19. As if a man flee from a Lyon] Theſe judgements of God ſhall be utterly unavoydable, and he that ſhall eſcape one evil, ſhall fall into a worſe, Iob 20. 24 Iſaiah 24. 18. Ier. 48. 43, 44. when one judgement is over, another, and a worſe ſhall come: no change ſhall miniſter eaſe, or relief. God hath more ſcourges then one, wayes enough to ſet upon you, to multiply, and aggravate his plagues, and puniſhments, by forrain enemies, civill wars, famine, peſtilence, &c. There is no way to ſhunne him and run from him, but penitently to run unto him.

or went into the houſe] For fear of the Lyon, or Bear.

v. 20. no brightneſſe in it?] Or any comfort, eaſe, direction, or good counſell. verſe 18.

v. 21. I hate] So far off from being pleaſed with them, and pacified by them, as ye imagine. Thus it is ſaid of the Iews feaſts, and ſacrifices, Iſaiah 1. 11. Jer. 6. 20. becauſe their perſons were notoriouſly ſinfull: and ſo their ſervices, which ſhould have been exerciſes of their piety, faith and repentance, being devoyd of them, and nothing but bare externalls, bodily performances, were odious to God: Iſaiah 66. 3. But the Iſraelites feaſts and ſacrifices had this evil more, that they were directly contrary to Gods expreſſe Law, and his worſhip, tyed to Ieruſalem, and his Temple there. Theſe then in themſelves were prophane feaſts and ſacrifices.

will not ſmell in your ſolemne aſſemblies] Or, ſmell your holy dayes. I will not accept of your ſacrifices, which you ſhall offer me, at thoſe times. See Levit. 26. 31. 1 Sam. 15. 22. Nor be pleaſed with them. See Gen. 8. 21. Exod. 29. 18. Levit. 1. 9. 13. 17. Ezek. 20. 40. 41. If offered according to the Law, then God would count them of a ſweet ſmelling ſavour to him.

v. 22. burnt offerings] Of theſe kindes of offerings, commanded by God, See Levit. 1. 2. 3. chapters.

peace-offerings] Or thank-offerings.

of your fat beaſts] Be they never ſo fat. The reaſons of refuſall were noted before. They were curious and punctuall in the outward rites, but reſted therein onely. See Mal. 1. 7, 8.

v. 23. ſongs] There were ſacred ſongs, parts of Gods true ſervice among the Iews: whereof ſee 1 Chron. 25. 2 Chron. 23. 18. But theſe were in imitation of the Iews, taken up by the ten tribes in their falſe worſhips. And herein they abounded which proves as defiled with impiety and hypocriſie.

Vials] As formerly of ſongs. Many inſtruments of muſick were uſed in the Leviticall ſervice.

v. 24 let judgement] Some refer this to the celebration of the abundant grace of Chriſt, which was to be manifeſted in the Goſpel. Others thus; Trifle you with me in frivolous ceremonies; but I will cauſe my righteous judgements as torrents to run down and overwhelm you, for your hypocriticall worſhips, and flagitious lives. Others rather thus; do righteouſneſſe and judgement, and juſtice, in a firm, full, and invariable way. And then your righteouſneſſe ſhall ſhine as the morning; as it is Iſaiah 58. 8. And this ſeems beſt to agree with the context.

run down] Hebr. rowl. Targum, and Vulgar Latine thus, ſhall be revealed.

v. 25. Have ye offered &c.] Acts 7. 42. your forefathers, even in the wilderneſſe, were idolaters; neglecting that part of the worſhip which I had appointed them: and you imitate them, and heap up their meaſure.

unto me] And not rather to idols and devils. Deut. 32. 17. This the next verſe ſhewes. And thus they Leavened Gods pure worſhip, from the beginning, with their own idolatrous devices. They intended it to, and for God: And ſo much God here teſtifies of his people, verſe 22, 23. And this will-worſhip ſo blindes their eyes, that they cannot or will not think otherwiſe. But God judgeth of them otherwiſe, and takes them, as not done to him; but againſt him; not to his honour, but diſhonour. And ſo generally Idolaters think, and mind to ſhew their love to God, worſhipping him by, and before images; but God ſaith they hate him in ſo doing. Exod 20. 5. as the like is, John 16. 2.

in the wilderneſſe fourty yeers?] A Prodigious thing it is, that even then they ſhould ſo fall from God, and his worſhip, to ſo foul idolatry, when he had ſo newly and miraculouſly brought them out of Egypt, given them his Law, and did feed, and foſter them in the wilderneſſe; yet ſuch is the monſtrouſneſſe of mans naturall corruption.

v. 26. But ye have born] Miniſtred unto, and ſerved.

the Tabernacle] The word is Siccuth. Theodotion renders it ὁράσεις, viſions. Aquila συσκιασμοὺς. Saint Stephen Acts 7. 43. follows the Greek verſion of the LXX. which takes Siccuth for Succoth, and ſo tranſlate it Tabernacle. But Siccuth ſeems to ſome the name of an idol. The meaning is not much differing; thus, your forefathers, making ſhew of ſerving me, carrying my Tabernacle, and all things belonging to it, in the wilderneſſe, had notwithſtanding their hearts ſet upon their idols, and haply carried about with them ſome chappel or image of them.

your] Moloch. And ſo your god; which you have made to be yours, by your impious idolatry.

Moloch] And ſo Saint Stephen hath it, Acts 7. 43. Aquila hath it Malchom, which is the ſame with Moloch; an idol of the Ammonites, 1 Kings 11. 5. 7. And ſome think that Gods own Tabernacle is here ſo called, by way of contempt, through their idolatrous abuſing of themſelves, and it. In ſuch manner as Abraham and Sarah are called an Amorite, and an Hittite, Ezek. 16. 3. The word ſignifies King. And ſome gather from it the high eſteem that idolaters have of their idols, calling them their King.

and Chiun] Or of Chiun, another imaginary god, or idol. After thought by ſome to be (by corruption of the word in proceſſe of time) called Remphan, Acts 7. 43. or Raphon, 1 Macc. 5. 37. ſome think Chiun to be Saturne, or Mars, & Siccuth, Venus; thoſe two Planets, which Stars, and heavenly bodies they held for gods, and honoured with images. The Egyptians at this day call Saturne by the name of Rephan.

your images] Poſitively. He derides their madneſſe in thinking any Piety to be included in theſe images. The word images here ſignifies idols; contrary to the aſſertion of papiſts. Tremelius tranſlates thus; baſes imaginum veſtrarum.

the ſtar of your God] It is thought of ſome that the idols in Scripture, and their images do moſt what repreſent the planets, or ſtars. See 1 King. 15. 5. and were images of the Celeſtiall bodies. Some idolatrous Jews thought the ſtars to be Gods. See Deut. 4. 19. & 17. 3. 2 King. 23. 5. 11. Jer. 8. 2. Ezek. 8. 16.

ye made to your ſelves] You had made the images of them, and had attributed Divinity to them, and had conſecrated and ſet them up, for the object of your worſhip. This is will worſhip to make any thing anſwer for Gods worſhip, to our ſelves, of our ſelves, without the warrant of God, and his word, we muſt be Paſſive, not Active here.

v. 27. Therefore will I cauſe you to go, &c.] Becauſe that after ſo many ſins of your forefathers, puniſhed by me, from time to time, you have perſevered in them, yea and have gone beyond them; I will execute the finall judgement upon you, in a totall deſolation, and diſperſion in ſtrange Countryes. He will ſuffer them no longer to be in his land to pollute it.

beyond Damaſcus] Beyond them of Damaſcus; further then they. The Syrians of Damaſcus were carried Captives into the place called Sytomedia, next to Suſiana, 2 Kings 16. 9. But the Iſraelites were carried Captives far farther, into Perſia, and Caſpia, or Caſiphia, Ezr. 8. 17. Others thus; That the grevouſneſſe of their captivity ſhould be greater, and beyond that which they endured in Syria, and was cauſed by Hazael, who reigned in Damaſcus. See 2 King. 13. 3. Others rather thus; That whereas they counted Damaſcus, the chief city of Syria, as an impregnable fortreſs, & frontire defence for all their country, that they might reſt ſecure under the ſafeguard of it, yet that ſhould not hinder, but God would cauſe them to go into captivity, even beyond it into Aſſyria. Act. 7. 43. It is, beyond Babylon, wherein Saint Luke tyes not himſelf to the words, but expounds the meaning; for as much as Aſſyria was further then Babylon. Of Damaſcus, See on Chapter 1. 3.

ſaith the Lord] To aſſure them of the truth of this threatned vengeance, however they might ſlight it.

whoſe name] See on chap. 4. 13.

CHAP. VI.

Verſe 1. VVO to them] Luke 6. 24. The Prophet threatneth the wealthy, which regarded not Gods plagues nor menaces by his Prophets.

are at eaſe] Or, are ſecure, and proudly confident. The wealthy and great ones; that give themſelves up to their pleaſures, and are drowned in them, remain ſecure, and are not ſtartled at Gods ſevere judgements upon others, upon the vulgar ſort, and common people; whereas they ſhould be humbled at the ſignes of Gods wrath. See Eſay 22. 12. 13.

in Zion] Here by the way he toucheth Judah.

and truſt in the mountain of Samaria] The Citizens of theſe two head Cities, were more proud, voluptuous, and ſecure, in the midſt of Gods judgements, then other parts of the Kingdoms and countries were. Therefore the Prophet thunders wo againſt theſe confident contemners of him, and his anger.

Chief] Exodus 19. 5. Or, firſt fruits.

of the Nations] Namely Zion, or Jeruſalem, of Judah; and Samaria of the ten tribes. Or the chief of all nations; more ſpecially of the nations of Canaan. Thus he taxeth their ingratitude to God.

came] To wit thither, into the poſſeſſion of them; not by their own arm and ſtrength, but becauſe God did drive away the former inhabitants from before their face; Pſal. 78. 55. and 44. 3. And thither after came to theſe cities, upon all buſineſſes and occaſions, as to the Princes courts, or courts of juſtice; and thither, as to the places of worſhip.

v. 2. paſs ye unto] Do but conſider theſe cities, which formerly were mightier and in greater proſperity then any of yours, and yet are decayed and ruined; to take example thereby, not to grow proud in carnall ſecurity, Nehe. 3. 8. Jer. 12. and 26. 6. Pſal. 78. 60. Or, thus, ye have received many and ample bleſſings, and ſuch as no neighbour city or nation, though never ſo great, do enjoy; how vile is it then for you to abuſe ſuch bleſſings to inſolent pride and ſecurity. Do not therefore ſleep in your ſins, be not drunken and intoxicated with your preſent proſperous condition; take leſſons for your own good out of the loſs and dammage of others. Look into the glaſſe of Gods judgements upon Heathen nations. Their great power, proſperity and confidence availed not them.

Calneh] A moſt ancient city in the Babylonian countrey, Gen. 10. 10.

Hamah] A mighty city, whence the countrey adjacent took alſo the name. The Hamathite deſcended of Canaan, the ſon of Cham, Gen. 10. 18. famous in Scripture, ſeated at the foot of Libanus, nigh the tribe of Aſhur, the north border of Judea, 1 Chron. 13. 5. 2 Chron. 7. 8. Lying north-eaſt of Libanus, and bounding north upon Damaſcus, Joſh. 13. 5. Num. 34. 8. Ezek. 47. 15, 16. and 48. 1. 1 Kings 8. 65. Sometimes a kingdom of it ſelf, 2 Sam. 8. 9. Toi king of it, 2 Kings 19. 13. Eſay 37. 13. Sometimes in the poſſeſſion of the kings of Judah, 2 Chron. 8. 3, 4. ſometimes of the Kings of Syria, 2 Kings 17. 24. Eſay 10. 9. Their God was Aſhima, 2 Kings 17. 30. In the territories of this city, or countrey, was Ribla, where the king of Egypt bound Jehoahaz, 2 Kings 23. 33. And the king of Babylon did execution upon ſo many of Judah, 2 Kings 25. 21. Jer. 39. 5. Theſe famous places flouriſhed ſometimes, but were deſtroyed by the Aſſyrian, 2 Kings 19. 12. Eſay 10. 9. Hamath in Naphtali is another city, Joſh. 19. 35.

Gath] One of the five Lordſhips of the Philiſtims, 1 Sam. 6. 17. Recovered in the dayes of Samuel, 1 Sam. 7. 14. Loſt in the dayes of Saul: in whoſe time David twice fled thither to Achiſh the king of Gath: and upon his danger there the firſt time, made thoſe Pſalms, 34 and 56. He had ſlain Goliah the gyant of Gath, 1 Sam. 17. And after, three other gyants brethren to Goliah, and borne of their father-gyant at Gath, fell by the hands of Davids ſervants. In Solomons time Shimei his ſervants fled thither, and he after them: for which he ſuffered death. Afterwards in the dayes of Joaſh of Judah, Hazael king of Syria took it, 2 Kings 12. 17. And king Uzziah after that broke down the walls of it, 2 Chron. 26. 6. This was an example nigh at hand to Gods people.

be they better] Are they, or have they been better, or greater, in a more firme and flouriſhing ſtate and condition?

then theſe kingdoms] Of Judah and Iſrael. Some underſtand this of Calne, Hemath, and Gath. Is their condition better? Some thus, Was it ever better then yours? Or be it ſo, yet now ſee their change and fall.

border greater] Their bounds had been great and dominion large: but now cut off ſo ſhort, that the cities themſelves were become tributary to another. And why then are you ſo ſottiſh and confident? and fear not the like vengeance now threatned by me, and hanging over your heads? Nothing can withſtand Gods hand.

v. 3. that put far away the evil day] Chap. 5. 18. and Chap. 9. verſe 10. the Chieftaines put away farre from you all thought and fear of Gods judgements threatned by his prophets, ſleighting and ſcorning them, Ezek. 12. 22. 27. Eſay 22 13. and in the mean time draw neer to publick tyranny, as if ſins and their puniſhments could go the one without the other. See 2 Pet. 3. 4.

and cauſe the ſeat of violence] Pſalm 94. 20. Or, habitation.

to come neer] Ye haſten it, and ſpeedily haſten your ſelves to it, ruſh into all manner of miſchief and inhumanitie, as the horſe ruſheth into the battel. Thus they put off the evil day, and yet by their ſins pull it upon them. As drunkards would put off a feaver, and yet, by inflaming themſelves with wine, pull it upon them.

v. 4. that lie] That drown themſelves in pleaſures, even in the midſt of Gods ſevere judgements: and heed them not, though they encompaſs them about: whereas rather they ſhould then have layen upon the ground, and have humbled themſelves in duſt and aſhes. The things here mentioned, are not ſimply in themſelves unlawful; but unlawfull at ſuch a ſeaſon, in thoſe miſerable times, when the fire of Gods wrath was kindled againſt them, and ſhould have ſtruck an horrour into them.

ſtretch themſelves upon their couches] Or, abound with ſuperfluities in their feaſtings, This alſo as the former is chiefly ſpoken againſt the great ones and rulers. And ſo is that which followes.

v. 5. That chaunt] Or quaver, Eſay 5. 12. As men uſe to do at marriage feaſts, at the ſolemnization of their birth-dayes, and other like occaſions; not duely weighing that of the wiſe man, Eccl. 3. v. 4.

David] Who was a great inventer, and maſter of muſick, and muſical inſtruments, 1 Chron. 23. 5. which he imployed in praiſing of God: whereas theſe did uſe them for a provocation of carnal pleaſure, and that at ſo unſeaſonable a time: as if they would outface God and his judgements, and ſo they abuſe the example of David, as hypocrites commonly do abuſe the examples of Gods Saints in many things. LXX. in their tranſlation of this verſe, do much varie and change the ſence.

v. 6. That drink] Their abuſe of theſe things doth not condemn the uſe of them.

wine in bowls] Or, in bowls of wine. By meaſure without meaſure.

they are not grieved] For their publick calamities; not affected, or afflicted therewith, on their own, or their brethrens behalfe. This is it that makes out their ſin, and is to be applyed to the ſeverall branches of this, and the two verſes afore. Jere. 30. 7. This is contrary to that Pſalm. 35. 13. 14. 15. and 137. 1—7. Lamentaions throughout. Jere. 9. 1.

v. 7. they go Captive] They that are at eaſe in Zion, and live and lie in pleaſures.

with the firſt] They ſhall be the firſt, and moſt noted in the puniſhment; as they have bin in degrees of honour, and in ſins. See 2 King. 17.

and the banquet] The feaſtings of thoſe that ſo deliciouſly ſtretched themſelves, verſe 4, 5. ſhall be removed; and mourning, which they put far away from them, ſhall come unto them, ſhall approach and ſeize upon them.

v. 8. The Lord God hath ſworn] Chap. 8. 7. Jere. 51. 14.

by himſelf] Heb. By his ſoul confer. Heb. 6. 1*6.* 17.

I abhor the excellency of Jacob] That is, their riches and pomp. The bleſſings, benefits, privileges & excellencies wherwith formerly he had adorned them, ſhould not hinder him now from abhorring them. For they had forfeited them all, and were become ſo much the more hatefull and abominable.

all that is therein] Heb. the fulneſs thereof, though it be never ſo much repleniſhed with men, and all manner of ſtore.

v. 9. if there remain] After a former plague and judgement; wherein the greateſt number have already periſhed.

ten men] Suppoſe that ſome number do eſcape the enemies hands, yet they ſhall fall by the peſtilence; and if there be not men enough for to bury them, their bodies ſhall be burnt, which was not uſed among the people, but only in caſes of extream neceſſity. Great burnings were of odors, and ſweet ſpices, at the funerals of their Kings. See 2 Chron. 16. 14. & 21. 19. See alſo that 1 Sam. 31. 12. The meaning is here, not one of them ſhall eſcape. This is more then the peſtilence uſeth to do: This is an act of Gods horrible vengeance; to cut off, as it were deſperately, ſo deſperate, forlorn, invincible, incorrigible a people, al ſuch ſinners ſhould fear and tremble.

v. 10. a mans uncle ſhall take him up] The neareſt of kin, who for the duty of conſanguinity, or to cleanſe the houſe w^ch^ is fallen to him by inheritance, ſhal take care of theſe dead bodies; the ordinary, and mercenary officers, deputed to this ſervice and imployment, in this ſo generall a mortality, likely being wanting. See Ezech. 39. 14.

that burneth him] Vulgar Latin, to burn him: becauſe the ſolemnity of exportation, and funerall in a time of ſuch calamity, as was formerly ſaid, could not be had; which otherwiſe is uſuall. See Eccel. 12. 5. 2 Sam. 3. 31.

the bones] More eaſily might they be carried out, the carkaſe being burned. To cauſe the houſe to be more eaſily and privately freed from this legall uncleaneſs. Numb. 19. 14.

No] No more: there is an end, all are dead, as verſe 9.

ſhall ſay unto him] He ſeems to mean the uncle, or him that had bin imployed in burning theſe dead bodies, if any other were ſo imployed, that he ſhould ſay to him that is remaining ſick in the ſides of the houſe; one of ten, as chap. 5. 3. or, to ſome other not of that houſe and family, yet crept in thither.

Hold thy tongue] Chap. 5. 13. Tell no body what hath hapned unto us, for fear we be ſequeſtered as unclean by the law, or reſt ſilent as aſtoniſhed at Gods judgement.

we may not] Or, they will not, or have not. This extream deſolation doth diſpenſe with us touching the laws of God concerning theſe pollutions, and the purifying of them, which were not obſerved even by the moſt ſcrupulous conſciences in the greateſt extremities. See Lam. 4. 14. 15. Others, upon the other tranſlation, thus; they were forlorn and deſperate ſinners, that regarded not the Lord at all, nor once mentioned his name, when they were at their laſt gaſpings, yea rather ſhunned it as an ominous name, that boded them no good luck, but all evil. Or rather thus, we formerly gloried ſo much in the name of the Lord, and made that a ſhield and buckler for our ſins. But now we muſt caſt away that falſe boaſting; we ſee God is become our fierce enemy; now the very Name of God is dreadfull and terrible to us, we could wiſh to hear no more of him, and it. Luke 23. 30. Apoc. 6. 16.

v. 11. For behold] This confirms the former ſentence. All theſe things ſhall happen by reaſon of the utter extermination of great and ſmall, high and low which God hath appointed, yea commanded the Aſſyrians, & Babylonians to execute, yet his command and word alone, of it ſelf were ſufficient to do it, if he ſo pleaſed.

the great houſe] And the little: none ſhould eſcape from the greateſt to the leaſt; they were all ſuch deſparate ſinners.

breaches] Or, droppings.

v. 12. ſhall horſes] Great variety there is in the underſtanding and application of theſe general words. Some thus; Shall we prophets continually caſt away our labours upon you, who are ſo deſperately corrupted, and turn all the good which is preſented unto you, and beſtowed upon you, into evil; as if a man ploughed or digged a hard rock? or, it is as unpoſſible for ſuch ſinners as you are to ſtand out Gods judgements, and go free, as it is impoſſible for horſes and oxen to plow upon a rock: Or thus; It is as impoſſible for them to do well, as it is for horſes to run, or oxen to plow on rocks. Or thus; ye have ſo overturned all law and right, as if one overturned the very order and law of nature; ſuch monſters are ye. Or thus; That the prophet ſhould no more prevail with them, then if one did ſing a ſong to a deaf man, or ſhould go to run horſes, or plow with oxen upon a rock. Others rather thus; Can God be ſo unmindful of his covenant with you for your good, as you do ſo much boaſt and truſt, when ye ſo break it on your parts, ſo highly and hainouſly? He can no more run on in the way of bleſſing you, and doing good unto you, nor manage and manure you with his gifts and graces, while ye are ſuch, ſuch rocks; even no more then horſes can run on a rock, or one can plow with oxen there.

for ye have turned] He therefore muſt deal accordingly with you Pſalm 18. 26.

into gall] See Deut. 29. 18. and 32. 32. and therefore he gives them the water of gall to drink, Jer. 8. 14. and 9. 15. and 23. 15.

hemlock] Or wormwood. Chap. 5. 7.

v. 13. ye which rejoyce] That triumph and glory in your ſtrength, as if you could therewith overcome your enemies. See 1 Sam. 2. 1. which indeed is a thing of nought. As alſo all your other lying pretenſions whatſoever, wherewith ye delude your ſelves, and which ſwell you up to a wretchleſſe contempt of me, and my judgements.

which ſay] At leaſt wiſe in their thoughts and hearts. The prophet by Gods Spirit, and Gods word pierceth ſo deep. 1 Cor. 2. 10. Jer. 17. 10. Heb. 4. 12.

have we not] And thus, for this point, they did fooliſhly rejoyce in a thing of nought.

v. 14. But behold] He giveth a reaſon why he hath called all their hopes and means things of nought: by repeating the judgement formerly denounced: and by more particularly naming the kinde and manner of it; by a nation of the Aſſyrians no doubt, as the ſacred hiſtory ſheweth, 2 Kings 17.

afflict you] And drive you to ſuch ſtraights and diſtreſſes in all your land, that there ſhall be no means, no hope, no hole left to eſcape him.

from the entring in of Hamath] Theſe were the two uttermoſt bounds of the land of Canaan in length. See Annotations on verſe 2.

the river of the wilderneſſe] Or the valley of the wilderneſſe, called elſewhere the river of Egypt. Numb. 34. 5. 8. Joſh. 15. 47. and chap. 13. 3.

CHAP. VII.

Verſe 1. T*Hus hath the Lord*] The Prophet in this Chapter ſhews how God did often take off his judgements begun to be inflicted upon them; and ſo puniſh them onely by degrees; to ſee if they would take off themſelves from their ſins; and make uſe of this his lenity and forbearance to repent. But all this prevailed not with them; but they rather grew the more obſtinate thereby, and obdurate, in their ſins, and againſt Gods judgements, even to ſleight and contemn them.

ſhewed unto me] This was then in a viſion ſhewed by the Lord to Amos. The judgement it ſelf was viſible upon the people; but they had not eyes to ſee it to be Gods hand ſtriking them, and to make uſe of it; Eſay 9. 13. Jer. 5. 3.

he formed graſhopppers] Or, green worms according to the letter. He was ſhewen in this viſion ſome great ſpoil done by theſe inſects. See Amos 4. 9. Nahum 3. 15. Eſay 33. 4.

latter growth after the kings mowings] It is thought that the kings did take the firſt crop of hay to keep their war-horſes, and for other ſervices, leaving the latter hay for other cattel. A like notation of time is that 2 Sam. 11. 1. LXX. here tranſlate very ſtrangely.

v. 2. made an end] This ſeems to relate to ſome judgement begun before the time of Jeroboam the ſecond, and not to that inflicted after by the Aſſyrian. See that Joel 1.

forgive] Go not on to conſume thy people by this means; ſpare, withdraw thine hand. He pleads no other argument, but onely Gods mercy. Thus the Prophet commiſerates them, pities them, intercedes for them. So Jer. 9. 1. and 18. 20. and 7. 16. Thus muſt Gods Miniſters tenderly compaſſionate their people, and pray for them: And yet be faithful to God, and their calling, in dealing roundly, and roughly with them for their ſins, thundering Gods judgements againſt them; as this Prophet did. They muſt mingle theſe two affections; and not let the one hinder the other. And the people might hereby well perceive that Amos for all his ſharpneſſe againſt them, was no enemy to them, but in all things ſought their good, reformation and ſalvation. Gal. 4. 16. Jer. 17. 15, 16.

by whom ſhall Jacob ariſe] Or, who of (or for) Jacob ſhall ſtand? How ſhall thy people ever recover themſelves, if thou doſt overthrow them with this plague, after ſo many more that have already made them ſo weak? And he names Jacob, ſo as it were putting God in minde of his covenant with Jacob, and that theſe now were his people and heritage; not Egyptians or Aſſyrians, with whom he was thus dealing. See Pſal. 105. 6. and 135. 4. Jer. 2. 14.

for he is ſmall] In number and ſtrength, 2 Kings 14. 26. brought low and little. He pleads here not the peoples merit, but their miſery. See that plea Pſal. 25. 11.

v. 3. The Lord repented for this] That is, ſtaid his plague at my prayer. See upon Gen. 6. 6. Jer. 26. 19. changed not his Eternall purpoſe; but did herein, in ſuſpending a while the further and full execution of his wrath, according to his own Eternall decree. But in the phraſe there is an application and condeſcenſion to our capacity; it is ſpoken after the manner of men. See 1 Sam. 15. 29.

v. 4. called to contend by fire] Contending is the more uſed when we otherwiſe cannot get right. And this was Gods preſent caſe and condition with his people; he was at this paſſe with them. This a more grievous judgement then the former. The fire of Gods anger was now more kindled. Upon further impenitency; God further augments his puniſhments. Levit. 26. 18. as Nebuchadnezzar did heat his oven, Dan. 3. 19. By fire, Meaning, That Gods indignation was inflamed againſt the ſtubborneſſe of his people. Or, it may be underſtood either of that extream drougth which hath been ſpoken of: Amos 4. 7, 8. or figuratively, by extermination, by the fire of war, which had already conſumed the Countrey. 2 Kings 14. 26 And thus by fire is war ſignified, chap. 1. and 2.

the great deep] It ſeemed to be ſo, by reaſon that the ſprings and ſtreams, which riſe from under ground, where the deep is, Geneſ. 7. 11. Deuteronomie 33. 13. were dryed up.

Ceaſe] See annot. on verſe 2.

did eat up a part] To wit, of the Land, for one part of the Land was watered with rain, Amos 4. 7. Some rather underſtand this of Tiglath-Pileſer's war againſt Syria, 2 Kings 16. 9. And afterwards againſt that part of Iſrael beyond Jordan, 1 Chron. 5. 26. Iſaiah 9. 1.

v. 5. Ceaſe] See on verſe 2.

v. 6. ſo the Lord] See on verſe 3.

This alſo] Thus God more then once ſpared his people, to ſee if yet at length poſſibly they would repent; but ſtill their incorrigibleneſſe rendred them the more inexcuſable. And Gods Prophets are not to be accounted lyars, though God for a time ſuſpend and take off his judgements threatned by them.

v. 7. the Lord ſtood upon a wall] A figure of Gods juſtice, who is the ſupream Maſter, and chief builder, who examines all the actions of men; which are like a wall, that is to be built up by Maſons; and if the work be right, God approves of it, and preſerves it; if not, he reproves it, and overthrows it.

by a plum-line] A perpendicular wall.

in his hand] Not then caſt away out of his hand, as ſome would have it; unleſſe they mean that after this time he caſt it away, and medled no more with it.

v. 8. what ſeeſt thou?] To ſtirre up the minde of Amos, and conſequently of the people to the more attention.

A plum-line] But he did not ſo eaſily know what God meant by this, as by the two former viſions of the graſhoppers, and the fire. And this made him the more deſirous to know, and the more attentive.

I will ſet] I will now actually execute my juſtice, which I have hitherto ſuſpended, paſſing over the miſdeeds of my people; And as exactly now deſtroy them, as formerly I did exactly build them up. This is my laſt meaſuring and ſcantling that I will take of them. See that Dan. 5. 25.

I will not] I will no more call back my judgements, paſſe by my people Iſrael, and ſpare them; but I will conſtantly perſevere in the rigour of my juſtice, without any inclination henceforth to mercy, which they have hitherto ſo lewdly abuſed. chap. 8. 2. This at laſt they get by their contumacious obſtinacy: though they fooliſhly promiſed otherwiſe to themſelves, out of his former indulgency.

v. 9. high places] All places dedicated by them to idolatry, under pretence of imitating Iſaac, and their other forefathers, who formerly had ſacrificed and ſerved God in thoſe places. In theſe they fooliſhly truſted, and gloried; which indeed did the more provoke Gods wrath againſt them.

of Iſaac] This Patriarch mentioned, becauſe they falſly pretended, and gloried in his name and example, as well as in Abrahams, and Jacobs, Theſe fathers were alwayes in their mouths; John 4. 20. The Fathers had Altars in thoſe places and worſhipped there; This was their armour of proof, and buckler of defence; they ſheltered themſelves, under theſe honourable names, and ſpecious pretences.

and I will riſe againſt the houſe of Jeroboam with the ſword] 2 Kings 15. 10. Zachary the ſon of Jeroboam and his whole family being deſtroyed ſpeedily. Though God ſpared his perſon, and all things proſpered and flouriſhed in the time of his reign. This propheſie therefore was uttered in the time of this Jeroboam; as appears alſo in the verſes following.

v. 10. Then Amaziah] Here the Prophet is endangered for the faithfull diſcharge of his office and function. And ſo Jeremiah afterwards: Jer. 11. 19. 21. and 12. 6. and 15. 15. and 18. 18. and 26. 8. Thus Paſhur dealt evilly againſt Jeremiah. Jer. 20. 2. And Shemaiah did likewiſe chap. 29. 26, 27. Acts 7. 52.

the Prieſt of Bethel] Prieſts perſecutors of Prophets: Prieſts, for fear of loſing their places of honour and wealth, which they unlawfully poſſeſſed.

Bethel] See Annotations on Hoſ. 10. 15. See 1 Kings 12. 29. 32.

ſent to Jeroboam] Amaziah ſeeks to oppreſſe the Prophet by Regall power, 2 Kings 14. 23.

Amos hath conſpired] Pretends the Kings cauſe onely, makes it his caſe, and to concern him. And the crime alledged is capitall; conſpiracy, ſedition, and treaſon. And all to exaſperate the king againſt the Prophet. See Acts 24. 5. A bloody accuſation if true.

in the midſt] Not in a corner, but publikely before all Iſrael; even in Bethel, verſe 13.

the Land is not able to bear all his words] That is, he will raiſe ſome great tumults, and ſeditions, and factions: or, the people will riſe againſt him by their own private authoritie, if thou do not provide to the contrary; by thy royall power. See John 11. 48.

v. 11. Ieroboam ſhall die by the ſword] This wicked prieſt Amaziah for hatred he bare to the Prophet, thought this accuſation ſufficient to condemn him; whereas none other could take place; but it was falſly alledged, to incenſe the King againſt Amos, who had onely ſpoken of Ieroboams poſterity, and not of Ieroboam himſelf, verſe 9. No doubt but he watched ſtill what Amos daily preached; and having got at length matter enough, as he conceived againſt him, he powres out his long-bred poyſon in this double accuſation againſt him.

v. 12. ſaid unto Amos] When, it ſeems, his bloody meſſage prevailed not with the King; whoſe anſwer is not here ſet down; nor doth he any thing againſt the Prophet, either out of fear, or ſome other Politick reſpect: Now A*maziah* turns from the Lion to the Fox: when this inſtrument of Satan, was not able to compaſſe his purpoſe by the King, he aſſayed by another practiſe: that was: to fear the Prophet, that he might depart: and not reprove their idolatry there openly, and ſo hinder him in his place and profit.

thou Seer] That is, the Prophet. See 1 Samuel 9. 9. He gives him an Honurable Title, to inſinuate with him. So Matth. 22. 16.

go] Thou freely mayeſt: none yet ſtops thee.

flee] Whiles thou mayeſt: and part ſpeedily, if thou wilt ſave thy life, thou canſt not be here ſafe long: if thou ſtay, thou art but a loſt man: a neceſſity then for thy preſervation lies upon thee.

into the Land of Iudah] Thine own Countrey: See Chap. 1. 1 and the Annotations there. There ſuch Prophets are better welcome, and better regarded both by the People, and their King Uzziah. Here thou art both a ſtranger, and odious amongſt us.

and there eat bread] Thou mayeſt live there more ſafely, and plentifully: whereas ſtaying here thou wilt ſtarve; if worſe doth not befall thee; being hated of all men.

and prophesie there] That is more proper for thee, to exerciſe thy function among thy kinred, and in thine own countrey; and not here. There is thy own religion. Preach it there as much as thou wilt. This is more then ſome perſecuters will do, or ſuffer to be done.

v. 13. But] Chap. 2. 12. See the Annotations there.

again any more] I paſſe over what is paſt; I queſtion it not, though thou haſt been ſo faulty; but ſee thou do it not again any more. See Acts 4. 17, 18. and 5. 40.

Chappel] Or, Sanctuary. A place conſecrated to the worſhip of the calves, 1 Kings 12. 29. to which the king bears a ſingular devotion, and where he often makes his reſidence: wherefore it is not ſafe, nor fitting for thee to propheſie againſt him here. It is odious and dangerous to preach againſt the Kings religion here in his own Chappel, and Court. He hath right and zeal to his own religion; he may diſpoſe of it as he liſt, and he hath power over thee; Here thou muſt not cry out againſt this kingdom, and prieſthood; this Court, and Temple. Amaziah hath an aim at his own Prieſthood in Bethel, his power and poſſeſſions there, which Amos muſt not diſturbe, nor ſhake him in the peaceable and quiet enjoyement of them.

Kings court] Heb. houſe of the kingdom: where civil affairs, and matters of ſtate are handled.

v. 14. Then anſwered] He fears not to anſwer his imperious injunctions, and lordly prohibition. Dan. 3. 16, 17, 18. Acts 4. 19. and 5. 29.

I was no prophet] Borne, or bred. Thus he ſheweth by his extraordinary vocation, that God had given him a charge which he muſt needs execute.

a prophets ſon] 2 Kings 2. 3.

an herdman] Not brought up as Paul, Acts 22. 3. or thoſe at Bethel, 2 Kings 2. 3. or Jericho, verſe 5. or Gilgal, 2 Kings 4. 38. But he was an herdman, Chap. 1. 1. brought up, not in the ſchools, the ſeminaries of learning, but in this countrey trade, an illiterate man.

ſycomore fruit] A kinde of wilde figs called Egyptian figs. And ſo hardſhip he had learned to endure, and turned not prophet for food ſake.

v. 15. And the Lord took me] He had a calling then; Heb. 5. 4. And that extraordinary, and miraculous; God calling him, and furniſhing him with gifts thereto; as Chriſt did his Apoſtles, from being fiſhermen, and the like, to be his ambaſſadors, and fiſhers of men. This addes the more weight of authoritity to the prophets calling.

as I followed the flock] Heb. From behinde, following that other calling, and not once dreaming of this. See Pſalm 78. 70, 71. 2 Sam. 7. 8.

Go propheſie] He could not then caſt off the yoak, God had laid on his neck; and obey the words of Amaziah. He did not go, and run unſent, of his own head; or by any humane ordinance take upon him this function. But as he ſought not the office and employment, ſo neither muſt he forſake it. Thus he oppoſeth Gods command to Amaziahs inhibition.

v. 16. Now therefore hear] Thou haſt had thy turn and thy word: Now the Lord will have his.

the word of the Lord] Not a vain word and ineffectual, as thine was; but cloathed with power, and efficacie, working dreadfully and direfully upon thee, and thine. See 2 Cor. 10. 6.

thou ſayeſt] Thou wouldeſt oppoſe thy ſelf to God, take from him this right and ſoveraignity, curbe his ſpirit, that he ſhould not freely by me reprove the ſins of the people: This is a ſacrilegious audaciouſneſſe; and hereby thou doeſt double the vengeance for ſuch a raſh and raging attempt. See Acts 13. 10, 11. and Jer. 29. 21, 22.

and drop not] Ezek. 20. 46. and 21. 2. Micah 2 6.

Iſaac] The word likely that Amaziah uſed, implying therein his own and the Iſraelites glorying in the Fathers, and ſheltering themſelves under their wings. See Annotations on verſe 9.

v. 17. thy wife] Thus God uſed to approve the authority of his prophets by his plagues and judgements againſt them, which were malicious enemies. Jer. 28. 12. 17. and 29. 21. 25. 32. as this day he doth many times againſt them which perſecute the Mininiſters of his Goſpel.

ſhall be an harlot] Being by me diſbandoned to luxury, Hoſ. 4. 13. or being forced thereunto by the enemies; as is too uſual when cities are taken by ſtorming.

in the citie] And ſight of all, publickly. This aggravates the anguiſh.

and thy ſons] Thus puniſhed in his wife and children. See Jer. 29. 32.

thy land] Thine own land, and that wherein thou liveſt, ſhall be alienated quite, and by line and meaſure divided out and ſhared to the poſſeſſions of ſtrangers.

thou ſhalt die] Namely, in Aſſyria, a land of infidels, far from the land of Canaan, which was the pledge of the Saints communion in life and in death.

and Iſrael ſhall ſurely go] That part of Amaziahs charge againſt Amos, was a truth. Amos ſo preached and propheſied; and it ſhould aſſuredly be accordingly performed. And ſee this done by the Aſſyrians, 2 Kings 15. 29. and 17. 6. 18, 23, 24. and 18. 11.

CHAP. VIII.

Verſe 1. IN this Chapter the Prophet goes on further to declare the final ruine of the people of Iſrael, who by all the former judgements and chaſtiſements could not be amended; but ſtill reſiſted the remedies that God uſed; and ſo had proved themſelves by many experiments to be irrecoverable and incorrigible.

the Lord God] He brings nothing of his own.

ſhewed unto me] In a viſion; the more to aſſert the truth, and affect the peoples minde with it.

of ſummer fruit] Not as the haſty fruit before the ſummer, Eſay 28. 4. not as that corn, 2 Kings 19. 26. Eſay 37. 27. But fully ripe. See Apoc. 14. 18.

v. 2. What ſeeſt thou?] Chap. 7. v. 8. Jer. 1. 11. 13. To ſtir up the mindes of his people, to attend and expect ſome memorable and remarkable thing, upon ſuch a conference and colloquie between God and his prophet.

of ſummer fruit] In the Hebrew there is a kinde of affinity between the word ſummer and the word end which follows, which is the ground of this deſigne, and for to keep ſome mark thereof, the word [end] is joyned and uſed in the verſe. See Jer. 1. 11. And this ſignifieth the ripeneſſe of their ſin, and readineſſe of Gods judgements. See the other type. Chap. 7. 7.

The end is come] The expoſition of the viſion. Seeing no former and leſſer puniſhments would ſerve the turn, but ſtill they abuſed Gods lenity; and hardned themſelves in ſin; God would no longer deal as a father or Phyſitian; in vain ſhould they hope for that hereafter. But he will now execute his laſt revenge upon them. Their ſins were full and ripe; the preciſe time and term of final overthrow was now come. See Ezek. 7. 2, 3. 6. 7. 10. 12. Lam. 4. 18. Jer. 2. 11, 12.

I will not] See Chap. 7. v. 8.

v. 3. the ſongs] Namely the ſweet melodie of great ones. See Amos 6. 5. Or rather, the melodious ſongs of the Temple, in their feaſtivals, and at other times of divine ſervice, as the next word ſhews.

of the temple] The idolatrous temples of the ten Tribes. And this may be extended to the Temple of Jeruſalem, the Lords holy Temple. They pleaſed themſelves in their proſperity, that they thought they were highly in Gods favour, and therefore ſounded out his praiſes in their Temples, whereas the Prophet mean while thundered out his wrath and judgements againſt them.

ſhall be howlings] Heb. Shall howl, that is, be turned into howlings. See verſe 10. and chap. 5. 23. Vulgar Latine thus; Stridebunt cardines templi.

dead bodies in every place] The dead bodies ſhall not be buried honourably and with funeral pomp; but ſhall be thrown into pits and common graves, without any mourning. Pſal. 78. 64. and 79. 2, 3. or ſhall want the right and rite of any ſepulture. Though barbarous enemies, even in the heat of war, and bloody fight, uſe not to deny this one to another; but make ceſſations and truces to bury their dead.

they ſhall caſt them] Chap. 6. 10.

with ſilence] Heb. Be ſilent. See Chap. 5. 13. and 6. 10.

v. 4. Hear] Though formerly he had convicted them, over & over again, of the juſtneſs of this ſeverity of God againſt them; that he is not cruel in ſo doing; yet becauſe nothing would ſerve their turn and ſatisfie them, he is at them, and at this point again; raking up their ſin, the cauſe of it, and rating them for it. And he calls on them to liſten and hearken; they were ſo deaf to hear the mention of their ſins.

O ye] Great ones chiefly: and others alſo in their inferiour degreee.

the needy] By ſtaying of the ſale of food and neceſſary things, which ye have gotten into your own hands; and ſo cauſe the poor to ſpend quickly that little which they have, and at length for neceſsity to become your ſlaves; or by any other means whatſoever. See Chap. 2. 6, 7.

v. 5. Saying] This was the ſaying and doing of the rich, and wealthy. And theſe preſumed they could beſt eſcape Gods judgments in the common calamities; therefore the prophet chiefly addreſſeth himſelf againſt them, and meets with them; to ſtop their mouths, and tame their inſolency and ſecuritie.

The vulgar ſort of people had their other ſins, ſufficiently meriting their finall ruin.

New moon] Or, moneth, when the dearth was once come, they were ſo greedy of gain, that they thought the holy day to be an hinderance unto them; for on ſuch dayes it was not lawfull to buy or ſell. Nehe. 13. 15. 16. They thought ſuch dayes to be years, ſo long and tedious in paſſing; they thought every hour loſt, every minute wherein they were not negotiating, ſatisfying, and ſacrificing to their covetous, greedy deſires; the fire of this furnace was ſtill flaming and never gave them any reſt. Hab. 2. 13. Or they thought and hoped, that upon ſome occaſion the next moneth things would grow dearer then yet they were; ſome refer it to the moneth of intercalation, added to the 12. moneths of their year. Yet the word alſo is ſomtimes uſed to ſignifie the new moons. Of the new moons, See Num. 10. 10. & chap. 28. 11. Pſalm. 81. 31. 2 King. 4. 23. 1 Sam. 20. 5. Eſay 66. 23.

ſell corn] Then they will bring forth and make the advantage of their hoorded ſtore.

and the Sabbath] They had a ſabbaticall year; wherein things were uſually dearer then in other years, becauſe there was no plowing and ſowing then. See Deut. 15. But this ſeems rather to relate to the Sabbath day.

ſet forth wheat] Heb. Open wheat.

making the Ephah ſmall] That is, againſt the Law, Levit. 19. 35. 36. Likely giving ſmall meaſure, in ſelling and uſing great weights to weigh the money, which they receive for payment. Ezech. 45. 10. 11. See the Annot. there.

ſhekel] Ezech. 45. 12. See thee Annotations there.

falſifying the ballances by deceit] Heb. perverting the ballances of deceit. Prov. 11. 1. & c. 16. 11.

v. 6. buy the poor] In ſnaring the poor into fraudulent debts; to make them your bondmen, abuſing the permiſſion, Levit. 25. 39. which aimed onely at a remedy for caſuall poverty. See Exod. 21. 2. 7. Deut. 15. 12. Jer. 34. 14. 15. Nehe. 5.

for ſilver] Chap. 2. 6. At any baſe rate and price.

pair of ſhoes] Chap. 2. 6.

v. 7. The Lord hath ſworn] Againſt theſe men; the more to affright and ſtartle them, who uſually ſo pleaſe and applaude themſelves in their wayes, that they neither fear nor Care for God or man.

by the excellency of Jacob] By himſelf; chap. 6. 8. who is the glorious God of his people, Pſal. 106. 20 By whom Jacob, that is, Iſrael doth excell. See Deut. 4. 7. 8. And it may be this form of oath grates upon their ingratitude; avowing by all the excellencies, dignities, prerogatives, and priviledges which he had formerly beſtowed upon them, that he would never forget to puniſh ſuch crying crimes.

v. 8. ſhall not the land tremble for this?] He appeals the conſciences of all men: can it otherwiſe be? It is impoſſible that ſuch ſinners ſhould not be ſo puniſhed? Are not theſe wickedneſſes ſufficient to cauſe the land to be deſtroyed and laid waſt; as Egypt is overflown by the river Nilus? They confound heaven and earth, right and wrong, tumultuouſly diſorder all; and ſhall not the Land be troubled at, tremble at, and under ſuch inhabitants?

every one mourn] None excepted, not one of theſe great and wealthy covetous oppreſſours. See James 5. 1. Jere. 4. 28. Ezech. 7. 27. Hoſea 4. 3.

as a flood] Chap. 9. 5. As an inundation and deluge; leaving no place of habitation for men.

and it ſhall be caſt out] Chap. 9. 5.

drowned] The land as it were ſwallowed up in a gulph; to drown the inhabitants, no ſurface of it being to be ſeen and uncovered.

as by the flood of Egypt] As Nilus makes Egypt like a ſea. Here the reading of the Hebrew כאר ſicut lux, and כיאר ſicut fluvius, both according to the Keri, and the Cetib, amount to the ſame ſenſe. Chap. 9. 5. כיאר onely is uſed. Targum thus; The King [of Aſſyria] ſhall come againſt it, with his army which is great, as a river, and ſhall cover thee wholly.

v. 9. cauſe the ſun to go down at noon] I will encumber the land with horrible and mournfull calamities, when it ſhall be leaſt thought of, and when a man ſhall think himſelf happy and peaceable; yea with ſuch calamities as ſhall not leave the leaſt glimmering of light, or hope of deliverance; I will turn your light into darkneſs, your midday of proſperity into the mid-night of adverſity. Here is no intendment of any Eclipſe of the ſun, but of a totall Eclipſing and darkning the clear and bright day and ſun ſhine of all their externall happineſs and felicity; wherein they ſo much confided and triumphed. This God could and would alter and change, for their ſo extream abuſing of it, into the contrary extremity of Calamity. Such Metaphoricall and figurative ſpeeches and expreſſions as this are uſuall in all languages.

v. 10. Your feaſts] Of jollities, yea your holy feaſts, wherein you ſo much pleaſe your ſelves, and think you pleaſe God too, by your ſacrifices, and ſacred ceremonies. Nay, theſe provoke me to further wrath.

all your ſongs] Both prophane, and ſacred. See verſe 3. Theſe ſhall not be coolers to aſſwage; but bellows to kindle more and more the fire of my wrath.

bring up ſackcloth] I will force them to put off their gorgegous attire, and coſtly raiments; and betake themſelves to mourning weeds, to ſackcloath; a ceremony uſuall in Jury, and thoſe eaſtern Countries, Joel. 1. & 3. chapters Eſay 15. 2. Jer. 48. 37. Ezech. 7. 18.

and baldneſs] They ſhall pull off their hair in ſign of ſorrow. Ezra. 9. 3. See Eſay 15. 2. and 22. 12. Jere. 16. 6. and 48. 37. Micah 1. 16.

as the mourning of an onely Son] Jere. 6. 26. Zach. 12. 10.

a bitter day] Job. 3. 5. Ezech. 27. 30. 31. Zeph. 1. 14. Jer. 31. 15.

v. 11. Behold] A moſt dreadfull ſpirituall judgement.

a famine in the Land] This famine they had too much before; the ſound doctrine of piety being ſo much poyſoned with falſe ſuperſtitions and idolatries reigning amongſt the ten Tribes. Yet God in much mercy a long time ſtrove, as it were, to maſter their impieties, and with ſtrong hand held them back from turning runnagates and revolters from him. But now ſeeing nothing availed any thing at all, he will now let his hand go; he denounceth his ſoreſt vengeance; he will utterly deprive them of the ſaving food of his word, and ſend a famine of it.

not a famine of bread] This were a far leſſer matter, and not to be named with the other. And yet the direfulneſſe of this is fearfully ſet out in ſcripture, ſee only Lam. 1. 11. 19. and 2. 12. 20. and 4. 4. 9. 10. & 5. 10.

but of hearing] This is famine indeed. Gods word is the ſpirituall food of our ſpirituall life. The granting of it is a bleſſing in deed; Eſay 30. 20. 21. John 6 27. and 4. 10. 14. And the withholding of it is a judgement indeed, Prov. 29. 18. Hoſ. 4. 6. 1 Sam, 3. 1. Pſal. 74. 9.

v. 12. And they ſhall wander] The meaning is, They ſhall then too late know what it is to want it; they ſhall bite upon the bit; trouble and torment themſelves without any profit, as Eſau did when he ſaw he had loſt his birth-right as thoſe Hoſea 7. 14. Not out of any right, and pious affection to it, or to convert and return unto the Lord by it. Theirs was but a blind, wandering, erroneous, diſtracting deſire.

ſeek the word of the Lord] Whereby he ſheweth, that they ſhall not onely periſh in body, but alſo in ſoul: for lack of Gods word, which is the food thereof.

v. 13. In that day] Corporall judgements ſhall ſecond ſpirituall judgements. And thoſe ſhall ſeize even upon the faireſt, and ſtrongeſt, ſo that none ſhall ſcape.

faint for thirſt] Namely, by the effects of my burning wrath, without any refreſhment of comfort, Hoſea 2. 3.

v. 14. They that ſwear] The cauſe of the puniſhment is adjoyned; their impious, and idolatrous ſuperſtitions. See on Zeph. 1. 5. Swear by the calves and other idols, which are the objects and inſtruments of their ſin; as Deut 9. 21. for the idolaters did uſe to ſwear by their idols; as the papiſts yet do by theirs; The Prophet by way of deteſtation calleth that their ſin, which they called and accounted their God.

Samaria] See Annotations on chap. 8. 5.

Thy God] The manner and form of their ſwearing. Like to that, Gene. 42. 15. Judg. 8. 19 Ruth. 3. 13. Jer. 4. 2. and chap. 5. 7. & 12. 16.

Dan] Abraham purſued the four kings to Dan, Gene. 14. 14. Yet likly not that Dan, formerly called Laiſh, or Leſhem, which is the Dan here meant, and is mentioned, Judg. 18. 29. This belonged to the Tribe of Dan, ſituated on the North border of Judea, Judg. 20 1. Ezech. 48. 1. famous for that Jeroboam placed one of his golden Calves here, 1 Kings 12. 29. 38. yet was it ſmitten by Benhadad King of Syria, at the requeſt, and upon the preſent, of Aſa King of Judah: And this in Jeroboams dayes. A gate for Dan was on the eaſt ſide of that Jeruſalem in Ezechiels viſion. Ezech. 48. 32.

the manner] Heb. The way. Namely, the Religion, or worſhip, and manner of it as Act. 9. 2. and 18. 25. and 24. 14. of mans deviſing; but then in Common uſage.

of Beerſheba] See upon Amos 5. 5. In the ſouth of Jury.

and never riſe up again] This was ſuch a deadly blow, and mortal wound, as ſhould never be recovered. And the event was anſwerable: For after the three Tribes were carried captives by Tiglath-Pileſer, 2 Kings 15. 29. And all the reſt by Shalmaneſer: 2 Kings 17. they never roſe up again.

CHAP. IX.

Verſe 1. I] In this laſt Chapter Amos ſets down his laſt viſion and propheſie of the ruin of Iſrael: And concludes all with an evangelicall promiſe of their happy reſtauration and return under Chriſt.

ſaw the Lord] In a Prophetick viſion. The more to confirm and ſeal the truth and authority of what hee was to ſpeak.

ſtanding] As ready to depart; yet ſtanding, and ſtaying to pronounce his finall ſentence againſt them.

upon the Altars] Some underſtand this of ſome prime Altar in Iſrael, in Samaria, Bethel, or Dan. But likely God would not ſo countenance thoſe places, as to ſhew any viſion, or utter any oracle there. Rather then is meant here the brazen Altar of Gods Temple in Jeruſalem, which being without the Temple in the inmoſt court, it may intimate Gods beginning to leave and forſake his Temple, and People; as Ezech. 9. & 10. chapters. And alſo that there was no more hope of Pardon left, ſeeing that the place of propitiation was by God converted as it were into a ſeat of rigorous and implacable juſtice.

and he ſaid] To ſome Angel thar was executioner of his judgements. See Ezek. 9. 4. 5.

the lintell] Or, Chapiter. Namely, of the door of the Temple. Heb. the knop; for they were wont to ſet great knops or bals in frontiſpices or upper lintels of the doors.

that the Poſts] The two cheek Poſts that ſupported the upper lintell; and ſo the whole great Gate of the Temple. Of theſe ſee 1 Kings 6. 33. 34. 35. 2 Chron. 3. 7.

may ſhake] In this manner is repreſented the decree of the peoples deſolation amongſt whom God had choſen his abode and of the deſtruction of the materiall Temple and the annihilation of the outward ſervice.

and cut them] Or, wound them. From top to bottom, from head to taile, from firſt to laſt, both Princes, and People. Let this act be a ſigne to them all, of what I intend to do to their perſons. And if God begin thus with his Temple, and People, what ſhall become of Apoſtates from him and his worſhip? and of all profane perſons and people? And what ſhall befall the idolatrous Temples of the ten Tribes?

he that fleeth] Chap. 2. 14. Though he think, and hope, and attempt to eſcape, yet no wayes ſhall any deliverance be poſſible for him; for any of them. They being incorigible, Gods revenge, and vengeance muſt at laſt fall upon them, without any hope of eſcaping it.

v. 2. into hell] The center of the earth, to hide themſelves. There ſhall be no hiding hole for them in hell; or heaven; in height, or depth; on land or ſea: All the elements ſhall not afford them one ſuch place: ſtrong lines, and expreſſions, to drive them from that preſumptuous confidence which they had in being the only people which God had choſen to himſelf out of all the world; upon which they grow ſo bold in their ſinning, and ſo ſecure againſt Gods judgements for their ſins. See Pſalm. 139. 8. &c.

Climbe up] Job 20. 6. Jere. 51. 53. Obad. 4. See Gen. 11. 4. Deut. 1. 28.

v. 3. top of Carmel] See on chap. 1. verſe 2.

ſerpent] Likely ſome Sea-Serpent, as the Crocodile, or other like Sea-creature. He ſheweth that God will declare himſelf enemy unto them in all places; and that his elements, and all creatures, ſhall be enemies to deſtroy them; notwithſtanding all their utmoſt endevours to eſcape his judgements.

v. 4. Command the ſword] Jer. 47. 6. God is armed in all places, withall his creatures, to avenge himſelf upon his enemies, ſuch vile ſinners. And no ſyllable of all that which went before is ſuperfluous, or too much; but rather too little, throughly to waken, and ſtartle, ſottiſh, ſenſleſs, ſinners. See Jer. 42. 16. 17. 18. 22. and chap. 44. 27.

mine eyes] As formerly for good; 1 Kings 9. 3. Pſalm. 33. 18. and 34. 15. Jere. 24. 6. So now for evil. Levit. 17. 10. and Chapter 20. 3. Deuteronomy 28. 63. Jeremiah 44. 11. 27.

v. 5. and it ſhall] That evil mentioned, verſe 4.

like a flood] See chap. 8. 8.

v. 6. It is he that buildeth] See chap. 5. 8. The Prophet magnificently ſets forth Gods glorious Power; that they might the better bethink themſelves with whom they had to deal, and learn to tremble at his Majeſty, and at theſe his threatned judgements. He that thus wonderfully works in the frame, and courſe of Nature; what will he do when he bares his arm to execute his laſt vengeance decreed againſt the wicked?

ſtories in the heaven] Or, ſpheres. Heb. aſcenſions, Pſal. 104. 3. He declareth by the wonderfull power of God, by the making of the heavens and the elements, one above another, that it is not poſſible for man to eſcape his judgements, when he puniſheth. See chap. 5. 8.

troup] Or, bundle. All the univerſe, which is like the fabrick of a building, of which the earth being the lower part, and onely immoveable, hath ſome reſemblance of a foundation.

he that calleth] By his word and Command; and they obey his beck, and call. So in others caſes Pſal. 105. 16. Eſay 13. 3. & 40. 26. & 41. 2. 4. & 45. 3. 4. & 46. 11. & 48. 13. Jere. 25. 29. Ezech. 36. 29. Agg. 1. 11.

for the waters of the ſea] Chap. 5. 8. Gen. 7.

v. 7. Are ye not] See Ezech. 16. 3. 4. 5. They without end or meaſure boaſted that God had choſen them onely, and tyed himſelf to them by Covenant; that they were the holy nation; and all the reſt of the world as prophane refuſe and caſtawayes: And therefore God could not caſt them off. God here meets with them, and this fooliſh fancy.

as the children of the Ethiopians] Being degenerate, and having gone aſtray as you have done, I do hold you as Ethiopians; a baſe and accurſed nation, as coming from Cham: and your deliverance out of Egypt ſhall be no more a pledge to you of my favour, then the deliverances which I have granted to theſe other prophane nations, mentioned in the words following.

unto me] No difference betwixt you and the Ethiopians, in your ſelves; and as to me; Deut. 7. 6. 7. The difference that is, I freely put upon you. Take that which is meerly mine from you, and are ye not as other nations to me? my free favour to you bindes you the more to me; not me to you.

brought up Iſrael out of Egypt] Where they were ſo baſe, and baſely uſed; as in a priſon, and iron furnace. A miſerable being and beginning they had there; they were then of no account or reckoning.

and the Philiſtines?] If you brag of my bringing of you out of Egypt, as well you may in an holy manner, to be the more humble and obedient to me therefore; yet a deliverance not altogether unlike, I vouchſafed the Philiſtines from Caphter; or, I do no more, nor otherwiſe eſteem of it now, nor better beſtowed, then I do that which I vouchſafed to the Philiſtines, and Syrians.

from Caphtor] There is mention made of this in Deut. 2. 23. & Jere. 47. 4. It ſeems theſe came of the ſame race with the Philiſtines, and dwelt near them, and had now overcome them.

from Kir] See on chap. 1. 5. It is to be underſtood moſt likely of that captivity of the Syrians, ſpoken of 2 Kings 16. 9. Amos 1. 5. which happened about Amos his time, whoſe deliverance, which it ſeems was yet to come, is here ſet down, as if it were come already.

v. 8. Behold the eyes] See verſe 4. God therefore will puniſh them, like other Heathen nations: they being double guilty by their impious ingratitude, making Gods benefits to them to be the ſhield to ſhelter them in their ſins, from the ſtroke of Gods wrath.

the ſinful kingdom] Continuing in its ſin, whatſoever kingdom it be, yet ſome reſtrain the meaning of this to the kingdom of Iſrael.

ſaving that I will not] God judgeth and puniſheth all kingdoms and nations alike, which are addicted to greivous ſins; there is onely this difference, that he will never utterly deſtroy his people, without leaving ſome remnant of them. Jer. 30. 11. & 31. 36. 37. & 10. 24. & 46. 28. & 25. 29. Obad. 16. 17. yet ſome render this ſenſe, I will not ſpare other kingdoms, which are leſs guilty in their kinde; and ſhould I not then utterly deſtroy thee? or ſhould I not dare to deſtroy thee? They take the words as they lye in the text to be ſpoken ironically. See Ezech. 16. 52.

v. 9. ſift] Heb. I will cauſe to move, by the Aſſyrians, and Babylonians.

in a ſive] Whereby the chaff falls through, and the good corn remains, ſome underſtand a ſkreene through which the good Corn runs to the ground. The ſifting and agitation is the things here aimed at.

yet ſhall not] Yet governing their diſperſions by my providence, dence in ſuch ſort, that none of mine elect ſhall periſh in eternal perdition, nor the remainders of my [illegible] be extinguiſhed or overthrown. Some underſtand hereby; that not one good grain ſhould be ſo found among them; but all ſhould be found to be chaff, and light chaff; meaning this of the main body of the people: excepting yet that ſmall remnant that for all their ſifting ſhould not fall and periſh; though it be as the good corn, which together with the chaff is beaten with the flayl on the threſhing floor. Such grains were Jeremie, Ezekiel, Daniel and his Companions, Ezra, Nehemia, Mordecai, and other. The faireſt meaning may be; That all Iſrael ſhall be ſo ſifted; that for all this ſifting, yet not the leaſt grain of them ſhould fall upon the earth, ſo to be free from this ſifting.

v. 10. All the ſinners] All my ſinful and flagitious people; as in the bulk they all are; though ſome not ſo, ſome few excepted.

which ſay] Chap. 6. 3. Which principally have this brand upon them, and are known by it, that they neither fear nor care for Gods judgements; but believe them not or contemn them.

nor prevent us] See Matth. 24. 50. not prevent our expectation, though we at all expect it not; it ſhall not come; or if it come; yet not upon us, we ſhall do well enough. Eſay 28. 15.

v. 11. In that day] The former judgements threatned might have driven them to deſpair, if this conſolation now had not been added. And this conſolation is from the promiſe of the Meſſias, and a bleſſed reſtauration by him. And this courſe of proceeding is uſual with the prophets; After judgement denounced to joyn the comfortable promiſe of the Meſſias, in whom al the promiſes of God are yea and amen, 2 Cor. 1. 20. And ſo here; ſhewing that there being no hope of amendment left in the people, the onely hope of redreſſe remaining, was in the Meſſias, and his coming and appearing; God being mindfull of his covenant would in and by him ſhew abundant mercie to his people. After I have thus puniſhed my church, I will reſtore the kingdom of David by the Meſſias; changing it into a ſpiritual and everlaſting kingdom.

I will raiſe up the tabernacle of David] Acts 15. verſ. 16. Though Davids houſe be now in the mean time but as a Tabernacle, mean and weak; yet then I will raiſe it up to royal eſtate. And David is here by name mentioned, becauſe his name was of great renown in this promiſe. See 2 Sam. 7. 16. Pſalm 89. 19. 132. 10, 11. Eſay 55. 3. Acts 13. 34. Jer. 30. 9. Ezek. 34. 23, 24. and 37. 24, 25. &c. and Hoſ. 3. 5. whence is all that in the goſpel, Matth. 1. 20. and 9. 27. and 12. 23. and 21. 9. and 22. 42. Apoc 22. 16.

that is fallen] There were ſad ruines in that family; by the falling away of the ten tribes; by the overthrow of the kingdom of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar; and the breaches and ruines wherein it lay ſtill after that, till Chriſts time: but Chriſt the Son of David, repaired and raiſed up all, to the fulfilling of the propheſies, being that everlaſting king, of whoſe kingdom there ſhould be no end, Dan. 2. 44. and 7. 14. Luke 1. 33.

cloſe] Heb. Hedge or wall.

as in the dayes of old] In its moſt flouriſhing eſtate, in the beginning; and more then ſo appears in the next verſe. Hence is that, Acts 1. 6.

v. 12. That they may poſſeſſe] Davids ſpiritual kingdom ſhall be now much enlarged, Eſay 49. 20. 21. and 54. 2, 3. and 60. 4, 5. Obad. 19.

the remnant] That ſhall remain after Gods ſore judgements upon Edom; eſpecially by Nebuchadnezzar.

Edom] Chap. 1. 6, 9, 11. meaning, that the very enemies, as were the Edomites and others, ſhould be joyned with the Jews in one ſociety and body, whereof Chriſt ſhould be the head, Acts 15. 17. or, that the true Iſrael according to the Spirit, joyned with Chriſt their head, may participate of the univerſal kingdom, which he hath gotten over his enemies, ſuch as the Idumeans were to the Iſraelites. See Numb. 24. 18. Eſay 63. 1. Of Edom ſee on Chap. 1. 11.

which are called by my name] Heb. Upon whom my name is called. Some refer theſe words to the Jews, called by Gods name: yet they ſeem rather to relate to the Heathen, that the Church and kingdom of Chriſt ſhould poſſeſſe them, becauſe they ſhould call upon Chriſt, and be called and named Chriſtians after his name.

v. 13. that the plowman ſhall overtake] The bleſſed and proſperous eſtate of the people under the kingdom of Chriſt is ſet out under theſe figures, alluding to Levit. 26. 5. and applied thus to the weak and and rude capacities of the Jewiſh people, being as children, Gal. 4. 3. Figurative promiſes of Gods ſpiritual graces and bleſſings to his church. So Joel 3. 18. See Levit. 26. 5.

and the mountains ſhall drop] An hyperbolical kinde of ſpeech uſual in all languages. The meaning is, that ſuch abundance of plenty ſhall be, as ſhall exceed the courſe of nature, and be beyond all belief. And theſe are to be underſtood according to the nature of the kingdom of Chriſt; chiefly for the abundance of ſpiritual bleſſings.

ſweet wine] Or, new wine, Joel 3. 18.

all the hils ſhall melt] Into precious liquors, of honey, milk, oyl, and Muſt, or ſweet wine.

v. 14. I will bring again] Their captivity at hand: and all their other breaches, oppreſſions, diſtractions, deſolations ſhall not hinder, but God will bring to paſſe what he hath promiſed; and they ſhall return. inhabite, build, plant, proſper and flouriſh. Theſe promiſes then muſt preſerve, ſuſtain, and hold up their hope in the midſt of all thoſe deſperate calamities. A new face of all things ſhall then appear, when God ſhall begin to ſhew his chearful face upon his people. The full accompliſhment hereof is under Chriſt, when they are planted in his Church, out of the which they can never be pulled, after they are once graffed therein, Eſay 65. 22.

v. 15. And I will plant] They ſhall have a ſetled, ſure, and ſecure habitation; and not be diſturbed, diſtracted, diſperſed, exiled any more. See Exod. 15. 17.

they] This is ſpiritually verified in every true Chriſtian, according to that 1 Pet. 1. 5. In the Church of Chriſt militant here, Matth. 16. 18. and moſt of all in the Church triumphant.

which I have given them] My free gift ſhall prevail more with me for them, then their demerits and miſdeeds ſhall ſway with me againſt them.

ſaith the Lord thy God] This is the aſſurance and the ground of all.

OBADIAH.

The ARGUMENT.

OBadiah threatneth and foretelleth the deſtruction of the Idumeans, who came of Eſau, Jacobs brother, yet were they capitall and implacable enemies to Jacobs poſterity, the Church of God; not onely vexing them with cruelties; but alſo aſſiſting others therein; and rejoycing and inſulting over them in the day of their calamity and deſtruction. The Prophet upbraids them for this, and reproves their pride, confidence, and confederacies, and violence againſt their brother Jacob, in the day of his calamitie; and denounceth Gods judgement againſt them. And laſtly, he promiſeth deliverance to Mount Zion, Bleſſings, and enlargement of Poſſeſſions to the houſe of Jacob. The ſumme of this propheſie is to tell, that Edom would and did help to deſtroy Jeruſalem; and after that Edom ſhould ſoon be deſtroyed: yet in time, Saviours from Sion, that is, Apoſtles, ſhall conquer all, and bring them into the poſſeſſion of the Church; and the Kingdom ſhall be the Lords. The like againſt Edom, See Jer. 49. 7.—22- and Ezek. 25. 12, 13. 14.

THe] This is not made up of many viſions, and ſermons; as the other Prophets are. But is one entire Piece; propheſying deſtruction to Edom, and the Mount of Eſau; Conqueſt over Edom, and others; and deliverance, and ſalvation to Mount Zion, and the houſe of Jacob.

Viſion] Which God ſhewed him; no imagination, no dream of his own, See on Ezek. 1. 1. and on Hoſ. 12. 10.

of Obadiah] Not him, in the dayes of Jehoſhaphat, 2 Chr. 17. 7. Or him in the dayes of Ahab, 1 Kings 18. 3. This ſeems to be a much later Prophet, contemporary with Jeremy, and Ezekiel, about the time of the deſtruction of Jeruſalem by the Babylonians; as appears by the argument of his Propheſie; and compared with Jer. 49. 7.—23. and Ezek. 25. 12.—15. and chap. 35. Jeremiah and he in many things almoſt uſe the ſame words.

ſaith the Lord] He brings no words of his own. God onely and his word are to be heard in the Church. 1 Cor. 11. 23.

concerning Edom] Of Edom, See on Amos 1. 11. Againſt them; becauſe they were the bittereſt enemies againſt the houſe of Jacob, who was Eſaus brother; and they flouriſhed, whiles the Jews were in miſeries. Leſt Gods people then ſhould take ſcandal thereat, God by his Prophet comforts them with this, that he would ſoon take vengeance on Edom, and vouchſafe to his people deliverance, and victorious conqueſts over Edom, and others.

we have heard a rumour from the Lord] God hath certainly revealed to his Prophets, that he will raiſe up the heathens to deſtroy the Edomites, whereof the rumour is now publiſhed. Jer. 49. 14. like that Mark 13. 7. God the Authour of wars. Amos. 3. 6.

Ariſe ye] Thus the heathen encourage one another by their Ambaſſadours to riſe againſt Edom. And this by Gods ſecret inſtinct.

v. 2. Behold, I have made thee ſmall among the heathen] Jer. 49. 15. Some take this as a Reproaching of Edom, That though God had made him ſmall, and deſpiſed, ſhutting him up in Mount Seir, Mal. 1. verſe 3. yet he grew ſo proud and inſolent, arrogating ſo much to himſelf. Others make it a denuntiation of judgement ſpeedily to be inflicted upon him; that he ſhould be made ſo.

v. 3. The pride of thine heart] Which deſpiſeſt all others in reſpect of thy ſelf; and yet art but an handfull in compariſon of others; and art ſhut up among the hills, as ſeparate from the reſt of the world.

that dwelleſt] Upon this ground they were ſo proud, and confident.

in the cliſts of the rock] A countrey full of cliſts, and rocks, and mountains; uſually called Arabia Petræa, rocky Arabia.

hath deceived thee] The LXX. and Vulgar Latine, hath lifted thee up: Reading belike not שׁ dextrum; but שׂ ſiniſtrum.

who] Like that, Pſal. 12. 4. Iſaiah 47. 78. Apoc. 18, 7.

v. 4. Though thou exalt thy ſelf] Job 20. 6. Jer. 49. 16. and 51. 53. Amos 9. 2. Iſaiah 14. 13. They thought themſelves above the clouds, above all dangers. But it is meere madneſſe in man, to truſt in any ſtrength againſt the Lord.

v. 5. if theeves came to thee] God will ſo deſtroy them, that he will leave none; though theeves when they come, take but till they have enough: and they that gather grapes ever leave ſome behinde them. Jer. 49. 9. God will not be content with ſuch a puniſhment; He will openly clean cut thee off, and leave nothing behinde him. This was done by the Babylonians.

ſome grapes] Or, gleanings.

v. 6. How] How wonderfully, incredibly?

hid things] They had ſtrong hiding places in rocks and dens; which a ſpoiling, and prevailing enemy would hardly venture upon, to get treaſures there: and yet all ſhould not ſerve their turn. See Iſaiah 10. 13, 14. and 45. 3. Jer. 49. 10.

ſearched out] By the greedy ſouldier.

v. 7. All the men of thy confederacy] They truſted alſo in their Confederates. But God would turn their hearts againſt them, and make their Allies, with whom they were in leagues, to be the executioners of his vengeance upon them.

have brought thee] Have joyned their forces to thine, to go and withſtand the enemies invaſions; but juſt at the inſtant that thou hadſt need of them, they have forſaken thee. Or, have brought thee out even to thy borders, and thence perfidiouſly have ejected and caſt thee out.

the men that were at peace with thee] Hebr. the men of thy peace, confederates.

prevailed againſt thee] He ſeems to mean the Egyptians, who by powerfull perſwaſions, and by reaſon of intereſt of ſtate, had brought the Idumeans to declare themſelves enemies to the Chaldeans, thy bread have laid a wound under thee] Hebr. thy bread have they laid for a ſnare under thee. A terme taken from hunters, who with baits draw the beaſts unto their traps. The meaning is, the victuall which thou haſt had out of Egypt, hath been as it were a bait to thee, to inſnare thee in the league againſt the Chaldeans; which hath been the cauſe of thy ruine; the which with all thy famous wiſedom thou couldſt not perceive. Or, Hebr. the men of thy bread. And ſo rather the meaning is, thoſe that eat familiarly with thee, as Pſal. 41. 9. John chap. 13. 18. wound thee by ſecret cunning guiles, and fraudulent ſtratagems.

in him] Or, of it; no ſcience or art in them, to underſtand, and help, or heal it.

v. 8. Shall I not] They reſted much upon their own wiſedome, and underſtanding; were drunk with this conceipt: As many are. But God can, and will deſtroy their wiſedom, turn it into fooliſhneſſe, and infatuate all their counſels, 1 Cor. 1. 19, 20. Jer. 49. 7. Iſaiah 29. 14. It is in vain then to truſt in it againſt the Lord; or any way to abuſe ſo excellent a gift but even to joyn innocency with it, Matth. 10. 16.

in that day] Of my vengeance; however their wit hath ſerved their turns before. They by their wiſedom ſhall not be able to help and heal thee then.

v. 9 And thy mighty men] As not their wiſe men, ſo neither their mighty men ſhall be able to help them; mans wit and ſtrength are meere nothing againſt the Lord: it is a madneſſe to think otherwiſe.

O Teman] The name of a city in the countrey of Idumea. See Amos 1. 12. Vulgar Latine, hath the ſouth, for Teman; thus, And thy mighty men ſhall be afraid from the ſouth.

that every one] A generall ſlaughter.

v. 10. For thy violence] Here is the main Cauſe of all that wofull totall deſtruction. And this cauſe is proſecuted at large in the verſes following. And this was a main comfort to the Jews, when they ſhould ſee Gods love and care ſo tender over them, as to revenge ſo ſeverely the wrongs done unto them by their fierce enemies. See Gen. 27. 41. Pſal. 137. 7. Ezek. 35. 5. and 25. 35. chapters.

againſt thy brother Jacob] Namely, the Iſraelites and Jews which were deſcended from Jacob, brother of Eſau, the father of the Idumeans: This aggravates the violence and cruelty. See Gen. 13. 8. Act. 7. 26. Ezek. 18. 18. Amos 1. 11.

cut off for ever] It ſhould not be a Temporary plague, as that of Iſraels; but a laſting plague, never fully to be cured and recovered.

v. 11. In the day] Therefore this propheſie, was after Jeruſalems deſtruction by Nebuchadnezzar.

thou ſtoodeſt on the other ſide] Like an idle ſpectator, yeelding no aſſiſtance, nor pitying the Jews calamities; but feeding alſo thine eyes therewith, as with a pleaſing object. See Pſal. 137. 7. and watching for the ſpoil; verſe 13. of this chapter.

carried away captive his forces] Or, carried away his ſubſtance. The men of war taken with Zedekiah in his flight, Jer. 39. 4, 5. Or, plainly, the whole multitude carried away captive into Babylon.

caſt Lots] To part both the ſpoil and perſons. as Joel 3. 3.

Even thou waſt as one of them] This taketh away all excuſes and defences that the Edomites might pretend unto. Leſſe marvail was it that the Chaldeans ſhould ſo deal with the Jews. But that thou ſhouldeſt be as one of them, it is monſtrous, prodigious; and deſerves this utter extermination.

v. 12. thou ſhouldeſt not have looked on] Or, do not behold, &c. The Law of nature, and humanity ſhould have taught thee this.

have looked] With delight, as on a pleaſing ſpectacle.

thy brother] See on verſe 10.

in the day that he became a ſtranger] Or, in the day of his ſtrange chance and alienation; when the Lord deprived them of their former dignity, and gave them to be carried as ſtrangers into exile and captivity. See Job 31. 3. Theſe words are taken as a reproof, or as a caveat, by ſome.

neither ſhouldeſt thou] An explication of the former words.

have ſpoken proudly] Hebr. Magnified thy mouth. By ſcoffing them, Pſal. 137. 7. But yet their pride and cruelty tranſported them beyond all common bounds of nature and humanity: whereas barbarous nations uſe to ſhew pity to their enemies, when they ſee them caſt down and lye proſtrate under their feet; they inſult not then over them, as the Edomites here did; but begin then to mitigate and aſſwage their wrath, and change their cruelty into compaſſion. See Eſay 10. 25.

have looked on] But rather have ſhut their eyes from ſeeing it. See Eſay 33. 15. Gen. 9. 23.

in their ſubſtance] Or, forces; ſharing the prey and ſpoil; enriching themſelves with it.

v. 14. in the croſſe way] Or, breaches to hinder the Jews from ſaving themſelves by flight; and to cut them off.

delivered up] Or, ſhut up: delivered to the Chaldeans, thoſe Jews whom they intercepted, and kept faſt; or ſuch of them as fled to them for ſuccour. All which dealings are the grounds of Gods judgements upon them.

v. 15. For the day of the Lord] When he will judge all the Heathen, who have deſtroyed all Gods people. He will ſhew himſelf, to be judge of the whole world. His judgement beginning at his Church and houſe; 1 Pet. 4. 17. He will take a fit time to ſtretch out his hand upon all the Heathen nations, none ſhall eſcape: And much leſſe then, the Edomites, Jer. 49. 12.

as thou haſt done] Ezek. 35. 15. A juſt retaliation ſhall be rendered to him. See the like Judg. 1. 7. 1 Sam. 15. 33. Eſay 33. 1. and other examples many.

thy reward] See Matth. 7. 2. James 2. 13. Jer. 30. 16. Levit. 24. 19.

v. 16. For as ye have drunk] And revelled it, in ſigne of joy and triumph over my people: ſo ſhall all the Heathen revel it upon the Edomites, and ſwallow down their ſubſtance; yea all the heathen ſhall drink, (now in another ſenſe) till they be dead drunk, and become & be as though they had not been. Or thus; as you my people have drunk of the cup of my judgements, ſo your enemies ſhall drink up the very dregges, and ſhall utterly be deſtroyed thereby. See Jer. 25. 29.

ſwallow down] Or, ſup up.

as though they had not been] Their memorie ſhall periſh.

v. 17. But upon mount Zion] Here is the reſtauration of the Church promiſed; and the conſolation of the Jewes included. This was their comfort and ſupport in the midſt of their devaſtations. And without this hope, the ruin and deſtruction of their enemies would little have availed them. And even upon mount Zion it ſelf, where the enemies ſo revelled, even there ſhould this deliverance be. Jer. 46. 28. Though his people ſeemed as dead dry bones, yet God could and would raiſe them up again, Ezech. 37.

ſhall be deliverance] Or, they ſhall eſcape.

and there ſhall be holineſs] Or, it ſhall be holy; It ſhall recover its holineſs; God will be mindfull of his Covenant; he will be worſhipped again, and hallowed there, by his people: he will have care of this mount Zion, which he of old had choſen, dedicated, and conſecrated to his ſervice. It ſhall be no more prophaned, polluted, as it was by the Babylonians, Pſal. 74. 7. and 79. 1. See the like Dan. 11. 31.

their poſſeſſions] Which they were diſpoſſeſſed of by their enemies. A figure of the right of the eternall inheritance, which the devill and ſin had gotten away from the Church, to which ſhe was reſtored by Chriſt, others, their poſſeſſions, namely, the poſſeſſions of thoſe nations which were their enemies.

v. 18. And the houſe of Jacob] For, for their ſakes it was, that God ſo ſeverely took vengeance of the Edomites; to ſhew thereby what love he bare, and what tender care he had of his people; yea even then when they were in miſerable exile and captivity.

ſhall be a fire] God attributeth this power, to conſume his enemies, to his Church, which power is onely proper to himſelf, as Iſai. 10. 17. Deut. 4. 24. Hebr. 12. 29.

they ſhall kindle in them] The Church, by the power of Chriſt, and his ſpirit, ſhall as eaſily conſume the enemies, repreſented under the perſon of the Idumeans, as fire doth kindle when it taketh hold of ſome combuſtible matter. See Judges 9. 15. 20.

not be any remaining] Of thoſe impious and inhumane Edomites or Idumeans, yet a remnant according to the election of grace, ſhould at laſt be joyned to the Church, and be ſaved by Chriſt, Amos 9. 12.

v. 19. And they of the ſouth, &c.] Or, they ſhall poſſeſſe the ſouth land with the mount of Eſau, and the plain with the Philiſtines. Mount Eſau, nor the Philiſtines, were ever poſſeſſed before by the Jews; no not in Davids, or Solomons time. Of Eſau ſee on Amos 1. 11.

the Philiſtines] See on Zach. 9. 6.

the fields of Ephraim] Ephraim, and Samaria; which formerly they had not; but the ten Tribes poſſeſſed it. And beſides that, much more ſhall they poſſeſſe.

and Benjamin ſhall poſſeſs Gilead] Or, and Benjamin with Gilead. That is they ſhall poſſeſſe alſo the fields of Benjamin, with Gilead likewiſe. Or they of the ſouth, Judah, and Benjamin, ſhall poſſeſſe Gilead, which the ten tribes formerly had: which is according to the meaning of the former words. Of Gilead the Scripture informeth us thus; That it is a country Eaſt of Jordan: an excellent place, Jere. 22. 6. ſpecially for cattel, Numb. 32. 4, 5. for Balm, Jere. 8. 22. and 46. 11. There Laban over-took Jacob in his flight, Gene. 31. And in token of a covenant between them, Jacob made, and named an heap of ſtones there, Galead and Mizpah. This countrey of Gilead was inhabited by the Amorites, and divided between Sihon and Og, Joſh. 12. 2. 5. And after between Reuben, Gad, and half Manaſſeh, Deut. 3. 10—17. And Machir, and Jair, the ſons of Manaſſeh had large poſſeſſions here, Numb. 32. 39, 40, 41. Jair and Jephteh, Judges; Eliah the prophet, Barzillai Davids friend, were Gileadites, Judg. 10. 3. and 12. 7. 1 Kings 17. 1. 2 Sam. 17. 27. And ſo were Zelophehad his daughters, of the half tribe of Manaſſeh there, Joſh. 17. 3. Gideon and Abſalom pitched their camps there, Judg. 7. 3. 2 Sam. 17. 26. Among other famous cities there, was Ramoth a citie of refuge, Deut. 4. 43. among the Gadites. And Jabeſh-Gileed, Judg. 21. 8, &c. whoſe inhabitants were reſcued by Saul from Nahaſh, who would have put out their right eyes, 1 Sam. 11. who after gratefully got and buried Sauls bones, C. 31. 11. And at this city to reſcue it out of the hands of the king of Syria, was Ahab ſlain, 1 Kings 22. and his ſon Jehoram wounded, 2 Chron. 22. 6. Hazael king of Syria did after ſmite Gilead, 2 Kings 10. 33. And Tiglath-Pileſer king of Aſſyria, laſt of all did conquer and captive them; 2 Kings 15. 29. The general meaning of this verſe is, That he deſcribeth how the Church ſhall be enlarged, and have great poſſeſſions; whereof ſee Jere. 17. 26. and 32. 44. and 33. 13. The meaning is the ſame as verſe 17. But this chiefly is accompliſhed under Chriſt, when as the faithfull are made heirs, and lords of all things by him which is their head. See Ezek. 37. 16, &c.

v. 20. of this hoſt] See verſe 11.

unto Zarephath] A citie of the Sidonians, in the uttermoſt confines of the countrey of Canaan, 1 Kings 17. 9. called Sarepta, Luke 4. 26.

which is in Sepharad] Or, ſhall poſſeſſe that which is in Sepharad. It is thought to be a city in the countrey of Chaldea; ſome take this word to be an Aſſyrian word, retained here to note ſome place or countrey in Aſſyria. As ſome Latine words are retained in the Greek text of the new Teſtament, in ſome relation to the Romans that then were Lords of Judea; as the word Colonia, Acts 16. 12. Cuſtodia, Matth. 27. 66. and Flagello, verſe 27. and Prætorium, John 18. 28. Others ſay it is a compound word ſignifying in the end of the dominion; meaning, that when the four beaſts which have made havock of the Church ſhall be deſtroyed at the coming of the Meſſiah, then the Church ſhall receive its juſt and full bounds, be made Catholike, and the goſpel from Jeruſalem ſhall be ſpread into all countreys, Eſay 2. 2, 3, 4. The bold fancies of the Jews concerning theſe places are frivolous.

v. 21. And Saviours ſhall come] Like thoſe in the book of the Judges. Theſe are Saviours under Chriſt Jeſus, the alone true Saviour, Matth. 1. 21. Theſe Miniſters coming from and under him, 1 Tim. 4. 16. James 5. 20. This may according to the Letter, and in part be underſtood of the Maccabees, who ſubdued the Idumeans, 1 Mac. 5. 3. but ſpiritually and fully it is referred to the Apoſtles, and other of Chriſts Miniſters, who were to preach the Goſpel for the ſalvation of the elect, and condemnation of the wicked.

to judge the mount of Eſau] To revenge their cruelty againſt the Jews.

the kingdom] Luke 1. 33. Chriſt, true God, ſhall by his Father be eſtabliſhed everlaſting king of his Church, and of all the world. See Pſal. 2. 8. Dan. 7. 14. Micah 4. 7. 1 Cor. 15. 24, 25. 28. Apoc. 11. 15. 17. and 19. 6. 16.

ANNOTATIONS

On the Book of the Prophet JONAH.

THE ARGUMENT.

JOnah propheſied in Iſrael, in the dayes of Jeroboam the ſecond, or a little before. But, as other Prophets, ſo he profited but little; though he had propheſied of victories and a good ſucceſſe unto them; as we ſee 2 Kings 14. 25. Wherefore God gave him expreſſe charge to go to Nineveh, the chief City of that great Empire of the Aſſyrians; both to ſhew, that the compaſſionate and infinitely mercifull God had beams of Grace to ſhine forth in the publiſhing of his bleſſed word to the Gentiles; and alſo, that Iſrael might have a viſible Reproof of their horrible ingratitude and ſtubborneſſe; who, for the ſpace of many years, had not converted to the Lord; whereas Nineveh, by one Prophet, was converted in three dayes. At firſt, he withſtood his calling, and fled to Joppa; likely being hopeleſſe to convert Nineveh; or fearing the calling in of the Gentiles, might be the caſting off of the Jews, whereof he was loath to be the inſtrument; minding more, the ſafety of the Jews, then the Glory of God. But when he had been three dayes and three nights in the whales belly (in figure expreſſing how Chriſt ſhould die, and riſe again the third day) he went in confidence to preach to the Ninevites. For after that miraculous deliverance, the Prophet cometh to that famous and populous City and denounceth againſt it ſpeedy approaching ruin; which threatning, produced a publick Humiliation and Repentance; for which, God did ſuſpend the excution for a time: Whereupon the Prophet diſcovered much Humane frailty, in being troubled at the affect of Gods mercy; and is both familiarly reproved by the Lord, and with bowels of compaſſion better inſtructed. In this Book, Jonah ſetteth down his Embaſſie to the Ninevites; firſt, impoſed; ſecondly, undertaken: impoſed, where the refractory prophet is puniſhed, Chap. 1. and upon his prayers delivered, Chap. 2. Secondly, undertaken; the effect whereof, is the ſparing of the repenting Ninevites, Chap. 3. and the angry Prophet is reprehended, and better diſciplined, by the mercifull God, Chap. 4.

the ſon of Amittai] Of Gath-Hepher, 2 King. 14. 25. In the tribe of Zebulun, Joſh. 19. 13.

v. 2. Go] Nahum was not ſent thither, nor went, but ſtayed at home, and ſoon after this time, propheſied the burden of Nineveh and the ruin of it, Nehe. 1. 1.

Nineveh] The head City of the Aſſyrian Emprie. Built by Nimrod, or by Aſhur, Gen. 10. 10, 11, 12. Likely repaired after, of enlarged by Ninus; of whom mention is made in humane ſtories. As likewiſe Babylon was enlarged by Semiramis; but firſt built by Nimrod, Gen. 10. 9 10. God ſeeing the great obſtinacy of the Iſraelites, ſent his Prophet to the Gentiles, that they by their example might provoke Iſrael to repentance; pentance: or at leaſt make them the more inexcuſable. That this ſhould be a Type of the future calling of the Gentiles, is a conceit more ſubtil, then ſolid and ſound. And the ſame may be ſaid of Naamans converſion, 2 Kings 5. And of others like. Till Chriſts coming, that took place, and remained in force, which we have Pſal. 147. 19, 20. He ſheweth his word unto Jacob, his ſtatutes and his judgements unto Iſrael. He hath not dealt ſo with any Nation; and as for his judgements they have not known them.

great city] For as Authours write, it contained in circuit about eight and forty miles; and had a thouſand and five hundred towers; the height of the walls one hundred foot; the breadth ſuch, as that coaches might eaſily paſſe by one another upon the top of it. See Jer. 51. 58. and at this time there were an hundred and twenty thouſand children therein, chap. 4. 11. See Jon. 3. 4. Herodotus, Diodorus and others write of it; but they have the credit onely of humane hiſtories, and are in ſome things fabulous: The greatneſſe of the city, and the doubtfulneſſe of his good ſucceſſe therein, or of the verification of his threatning expreſly concerning it, muſt not hinder Jonahs obedience to Gods command. He is to look up to Gods will and power, againſt all ſeeming difficulties and impoſſibilities whatſoever.

cry againſt it] An odious office, unwelcome meſſage to ſuch a city; and yet Jonah muſt do it, cry with open mouth, and full throat, threaten, thunder. See Iſaiah 58. 1. Cry aloud, ſpare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and ſhew my People their tranſgreſſion. So muſt Jonah do here to the Ninevites. He muſt do it ſeriouſly, as Eliah in mockage did bid the prophets of Baal to do. 1 Kings 18. 28.

for their wickedneſſe] Like to that of Sodom and Gomorrah; the cry of it is great, their ſin is very grievous; Gen. 18. 20.

before me] See Gen. 18. 21. I ſee it, and will judge them for it; they ſhall not have ſo much to do and deal with thee, as with me; do thou cite and ſummon them to my tribunall: their greatneſſe ſhall there avail them nothing; their wickedneſſe ſhall prevail with me againſt them. See Gen. 19. 13.

v. 3. But Jonah roſe up] Aſtoniſhed no doubt, and troubled, as Ezekiel was affected, when he went away in bitternes, in the heat of his ſpirit, Ezek. 3. 14. A ſtrange thing no doubt it was for a Prophet to be thus ſent to an Heathen-city. It confounded him. His diffidence to prevail: his fear of danger, diſtracted him: and put him on this deſperate courſe.

from the preſence of the Lord] Jonah was not ignorant of the Lords omnipreſence. Pſal. 139. 7. ſaith David, whither ſhall I go from thy ſpirit? or whither ſhall I flee from thy preſence? verſe 8. If I aſcend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold thou art there, verſe 9. If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermoſt parts of the ſea: verſe 10. Even there ſhall thy hand lead me; and thy right hand ſhall hold me, verſe 11. If I ſay, ſurely the darkneſſe ſhall cover me, &c. Even Hell is naked before him, and deſtruction hath no covering, as Job ſaith Chap. 26. 6 But the meaning is, that Jonah went from the Land of Iſrael, where God made his aboad in grace and vertue, and where he appeared to his Prophets: Or it is a phraſe taken from ſlaves, who by ſtealth run away from their Maſters ſervice: to ſhew that he did run away from the vocation whereunto God had called him: and wherein he would have aſſiſted him. This ſheweth his weakneſſe, that would not promptly follow the Lords Calling, which is the rule of our life, and ground-work of all our undertakings, and actions: but he caſt off the yoak, and gave place to his own carnall reaſon, which perſwaded him that he ſhould nothing at all profit there, ſeeing he had done ſo ſmall good among his own people. See c. 4. 2. where he pretends moreover another cauſe of his flight.

Joppa] Or Japho a ſea-town of Judea. See Joſh. 19. 46. 2 Chron. 2. 16. Ezra. 3. 7. where Peter raiſed Dorcas, Acts 9. and whence he was ſent for to convert Cornelius. Acts 10. This was the haven and port to take ſhipping for Tarſhiſh.

Tarſhiſh] To Cilicia, where the chief city Tarſus was: the place of Pauls birth, Acts 21. 39. and 22. 3. Some by Tarſhiſh underſtand onely the ſea: See Geneſis 10. 4. And indeed the ſea, but chiefly that ſea between Judea and Cilicia, is often ſo called in Scripture, becauſe that was moſt of all frequented by marriners and merchants of the Jews. But Jonah here hath minde of ſome further voyage then onely to go to ſea.

from the preſence of the Lord] Theſe words repeated imply, his confeſſion of this his fooliſh rebellious fault. It is not for us to ſeek vanily to excuſe him.

payed the fare] To ſecure and expedite his paſſage unto Tarſhiſh, that no queſtion concerning his fare might delay or hinder it. He payes the fare before hand, before he ſet foot in the ſhip, ſo diligent are men many times to remove all rubs out of that way which leads to their own deſtruction. All this ſhews the perverſe obſtinacy, and ſetled wilfulneſſe of his minde, to go on in this ſin: that all this while, in his way and journey thither, he relented and repented not, to ſubmit himſelf to Gods call and command: but ſtill holds out, againſt all checks of conſcience, and all occurrences whatſoever, that might have altered him: and reſolves to perſiſt, and to proſecute his open oppoſition and rebellion againſt the Lord. And ſurely all they that do not willingly obey, but wilfully reject Gods commands, do in effect, with Jonah, flee from the preſence of the Lord: they are fugitives and runnagates from God, and turn the back upon him: 2 Chronicles 29. 6. Nehemiah 9. 26. Jeremiah 2. 27. and 32. verſe 33.

v. 4. ſent out] Heb. caſt forth ſo ſuddenly and vehemently, that the heathen Marriners perceived it to be ſome extraordinary judgement from God. God is the Lord of Windes and Tempeſts, of Sea and Land, Pſal. 147. 18. and 107. 25. Chance and Fortune are but the fictions of mens brains. Whether it be in a calm or tempeſt, in fair or foul weather, in proſperity or adverſity, we ſhould ſo carry our ſelves, as thoſe that know both to be ſent out by the ſame Lord.

was like to be broken] Hebr. Thought to be broken. See Mark 4. 37.

verſe 5. Then the Marriners were afraid] Why ſhould they be endangered by this Tempeſt, which was ſent upon Jonah? Marriners and others likely were in the Ship, and other Ships too in this Tempeſt, why ſhould they ſuffer for Ionah's fault? We ſee this uſuall in the courſe of Gods judgements. The Hoaſt of Iſrael ſuffered for Achans fault: The Kingdom ſuffered for Davids ſinne of numbring the people: Infants and Children ſuffer in common calamities for their Parents ſins. This likes not the wiſdome of the fleſh, that would ſquare out Gods judgements according to our carnall capacities, and ſhallow reaſonings. But we may eaſily know, that in the beſt and moſt innocent ſort of people that are wrapped in common calamities, there is matter of ſinne enough for Gods juſtice to work upon, and leſſe doe they ever ſuffer then they have deſerved. The Marriners fear ſhews it was no ſmall Tempeſt that ſo affrighted them, that were accuſtomed and hardned to dangers by Sea.

and cryed] Fear drives to prayer, extremity of danger to ſtrong and loud cryes in prayer, Pſal. 78. 34. Judg. 10. 10. Matth. 8. 25.

every man unto his God] The barbarous and heathen Marriners forced to confeſſe a God, a Deity: All Nations, and all men, yea, the man called an Atheiſt in his kind, agree in this, but differ in knowing what and who he is. The Poets feign Æolus to be the god of the Windes and Storms, and Neptune of the Seas.

forth the wares] So ſweet and dear is life to man, he will loſe and caſt away all to ſave and keep it, Job 2. 4. Eccleſ. 11. 7.

ſides] Into one of the ſides. Plurall for the ſingular; ſo in the Goſpel, the diſciples are ſaid to murmure at the waſte of that ointment, Mat. 26. 6. that is, as ſome take it, one of the diſciples, namely, Judas, John 12. 4. And ſo the theeves which were crucified with Chriſt. Matth. 27. 44. that is, one of the malefactours, Luk. 23. 39. is ſaid to rail on him. Jonah did as one that would have caſt off his care and ſolicitude, by ſeeking reſt and quietneſſe.

faſt aſleep] Not in a ſlumber, as Matth. 25. 5. and Pſal. 132. 4. and Cant. 5. 1. but in a ſound, heavy, deep and dead ſleep, as that Acts 20. 9. as faſt as that 1 Sam. 26. 12. and Judges 4. 21. A wonder is this, and prodigie, that in all this ſtirre, and tumult, and danger; the Windes whiſtling, roaring, qua data porta ruunt, &c. the Sea working, raging, ſwelling, froathing, foaming, boyling like a pot, the waves mounting up to heaven, montes volvuntur aquarum, and ſinking down again to hell; the Ship tumbling and toſſing like a Tennis-ball, the Marriners running up and down, and at their wits end; that yet Jonah ſhould thus ſleep: yea, though none of all this had been, yet a wonder he could enjoy any quiet ſleep, having ſuch a guilty, galled conſcience within him. Surely a marvailous ſupine, and deſperate wretchleſneſſe of himſelf and his eſtate had ſeized upon him, and benummed him. So dreadfull a thing it is openly to rebell againſt God; and thus it is ſpiritually plagued here.

v. 6. So the Ship-maſter] The rude Marriner ſchools the Prophet; and ſo did an heathen King reprove Abraham and Sarah, Geneſ. 20. 16. Yea, the Aſſe reproved the madneſſe of the Prophet, 2 Pet. 2. 16.

O ſleeper] That canſt ſleep now, when all the reſt ſtand ſo aghaſt with the horrour of preſent death! art thou deprived of all ſence and underſtanding?

call upon thy God] He knew God was to be called upon in this caſe. But not knowing the true God he could not direct Jonah to him; but leaves him to the libertie of his own God. Heathens dreamed of a multitude of Gods, and ſo had ſeveral gods in ſeveral Nations; ſee verſe 5. As they then had called on their idols, ſo he bids Jonah call upon his God: which declareth that idolaters have no ſtay nor certainty; but in their troubles ſeek they cannot tell to whom.

if ſo be] Though commonly there is no great piety among ſhipmen, yet he knew their lives were in the hands of God, and if he would be propitious, and his face ſhine favourably upon them, they ſhould not periſh in the ſea. But doubtfull he was of Gods favour herein; and therefore tries all means and wayes for it. Thus it was with this Heathen man and marriner.

v. 7. let us caſt lots] No doubt this was not their ordinary courſe, thus to caſt lots in tempeſts; But obſerving this tempeſt to be extraordinary, not without Gods ſecret providence, they conjecture that there was ſome body in the ſhip that was guilty of ſome grievous ſinne: wherefore they deſire to diſcover the truth by lots, according to the heathens cuſtome; but God is preſident over them, Proverbs 16. 33. We may be ſure they ſaw ſome extraordinary ſigne of Gods revenging hand in this tempeſt, which drove them to this unuſuall courſe of dealing. In Scripture we finde lots uſed at Gods command by Joſhuah in dividing the land to the twelve Tribes; enjoyned Numbers 26. 55. and performed, Joſh. 14. 2. and 18. 6. And in diſtributing the fourty eight cities to the Kohathites, Gerſhonites, and Merarites, Joſh. 21. Aaron and his ſucceſſours were to caſt lots upon the two goats, Levit. 16. 8. 9. In Davids time we finde the prieſts diſtributed by lot into twenty four orders, or courſes. And ſo the ſingers: and the doors of the Temple, and courts among the Porters, 1 Chron. 24, 25, 26. Chapters: In Nehemiahs time we finde lots caſt for the bringing in the wood offering; and for the men that ſhould inhabit Jeruſalem, Nehemiah 10. 34. and 11. 1. we finde Saul choſen King by lot, 1 Sam. 10. and Matthias to be an Apoſtle, Acts 1. 26. We read wicked Haman had Pur or lot caſt for the happy moneth, and day, of his deſigne againſt the Jewes, Eſther 3. 7. And ſo had the four ſouldiers for Chriſts ſeamleſſe coat, John 19. 23, 24. And for the reſt of his garments. And the enemies of Gods people dividing them and their goods for a prey; caſt lots upon them, Joel 3. 3. Obadiah 11. And ſo was Nineveh dealt withall, Nahum 3. 10. The uſe of them is not to be common; but in caſes neceſſary; where no other way or means is left; and when and where we have Gods command; or the equity of it, or ſome peculiar inſtinct.

for whoſe cauſe] They had all and every one cauſe enough in themſelves, if they could have ſeen it: yet here they conceived, and that rightly, of ſome extraordinary cauſe of this extraordinary tempeſt, in ſome particular perſon. And this extraordinary cauſe every one of them was ready enough to put off from themſelves; thinking themſelves, though ſinners, yet not ſuch ſinners as to deſerve this extraordinary judgment: they could ſo well ſooth up themſelves and extenuate their own ſins.

and the lot fell upon Jonah] Thus was Achan taken, Joſh. 7. and Jonathan, 1 Samuel 14. 42. See Proverbs 18. 18. and 16. 33.

v. 8. Then ſaid they] Nothing doubting of the truth of the lot, and of the diſcovery made by it; And as the Poet ſaith, > Aſſenſere omnes, & quæ ſibi quiſq; timebat, > Unius in miſeri exitium converſa tulere.

Tell us] They require of him the grand cauſe, and other particulars incident thereunto. They thought they could not be too inquiſitive, in this exigent and extreamity of danger.

what is thine occupation] They enquire of his trade; leſt he ſhould be an idle man.

what is thy countrey] He was then a ſtranger to them, and they to him. They would ſift out any thing that might imaginably any way conduce to the main matter.

v. 9. I am an Hebrew] Of whom and whoſe religion the Heathen had heard much, and many great things; though they believed little, and applied leſſe to themſelves.

and I fear] Worſhip and ſerve; for ſo is fear often taken: my religion is to ſerve and worſhip him only.

the Lord, &c.] Not any falſe and feigned God, and idol of the Gentiles. This he doth not to excuſe himſelf, but to aggravate his fault. The confeſſion whereof he adjoyns here, as appears in the next verſe. Thus was Jonah now humbled, and his ſtubborn rebellious heart broken. Thus the tempeſt and ſight of his deſperate danger wrought upon him; when God applied this violent remedie to his diſeaſes.

v. 10. exceedingly afraid] Heb. With great fear: deeply apprehending the God of Jonah to be the onely true God, and a dreadfull revenger of ſinne and rebellion againſt him.

Why haſt thou done this?] What great fault haſt thou committed? Or rather, why haſt thou thus ſinned in fleeing from the Lord? As the ſhipmaſter reproved him before; ſo now all of them fall upon him. He that would not be ſubject to Gods command, is now lyable to the cenſures, conviction, and condemnation of rude barbarous men; which he doth now patiently endure and undergo without any grudging or murmuring.

had told them] Freely now and fully confeſſing his fault, without pleading any excuſe or mitigation of it.

v. 11. What ſhall we doe?] They were brought by his word into a reverence of him, that they durſt not touch him whom they knew now to be a prophet of the true God; elſe no doubt, they would ſoon in that danger have caſt him overboard, the lot lighting upon him.

unto thee] He it is whom they conſult in this extream peril; the prophet, and no other.

may be calm unto us] Heb. May be ſilent from us.

wrought and was tempeſtuous] Or, grew more and more tempeſtuous. Heb. Went.

v. 12. take me up] This in Jonah was not the ſpeech of a deſperate man offering himſelf and egging others on to his death: but a patient ſubmiſſion and ready yielding to that ſentence, which he was perſwaded God had ſummoned him unto, and pointed him out as it were by the finger, to undergo.

for I know] By diſcourſe of reaſon more then by the lot; by the inward touch of mine own conſcience, as by divine inſtinct and revelation. And this argues his faith and repentance: He murmurs not againſt God for this ſeverity: but is as David, Pſalm 39. 9. as Levit. 10. 3. He willingly undergoes the guilt and puniſhment; gives God the honour of his juſtice, and takes to himſelf the ſhame of his ſinne.

v. 13. the men rowed] Heb. Digged. They were ſo ſtrucken with ſuch an awfull reverence and regard of the prophets perſon, and of his God; and ſeeing him ſo doome himhimſelf, and ſo willingly and humbly ſubmit thereunto, the more they ſought in pity and commiſeration to ſpare and ſave him; even with the venture of their own lives: They would try all means to the utmoſt to ſave him, before they would execute his own ſentence upon himſelf; ſo full were they of humanitie, and tender of a mans life.

but they could not] Gods power and providence overruled all. He had a further end in it; and hereby he would ſhew how hainous a ſin it was to diſobey his will, and rebel againſt his command.

v. 14. they cried unto the Lord] To Jehovah the true God, to Jonahs God. Thus and thus ſoon they profited in the ſchool of affliction.

We beſeech thee] Thus earneſtly they pray. So Matthew 8. 25. This declareth that the very wicked in their neceſſities flie unto God for ſuccour; and alſo that they are touched with a certain fear to ſhed mans blood, when as they know no manifeſt ſigne of wickedneſſe.

innocent blood] Mans blood is deer to God. The ſhedding of Innocent blood is a crying ſinne, Geneſis 4. 10. and 9. 6. Apoc. 6. 10. The guilt of it galls, and agaſts the conſcience, by the light of nature it ſelf. See Acts 28. 4.

as it pleaſeth thee] Herein they excuſe not themſelves by caſting the blame upon God; nay they aſcribe to God the praiſe of his juſtice, the honour due unto him; thus; We do acknowledge in all this, expreſſe ſignes of thy power, juſtice, and ſupream providence; to which becauſe we will not diſpleaſe thee, we ſubmit our ſelves to performe this execution. They meddle not with Gods ſecret will; but take his revealed will for the rule of their actions.

v. 15. and caſt him] Thus God deals with his prophet for his open rebellion though formerly he had been faithfull in his office and able thereunto, and otherwiſe would not now have been choſen out, deſigned, and ſent to Nineve. This now muſt needs be a woefull caſe to Jonah.

and the ſea ceaſed] Heb. Stood. It ſmooths its face inſtantly then, and not till then. A manifeſt ſigne of Gods hand in all this action. See Matth. 8. 26. Pſalm 89. 9. and 107. 29. and 93. 3, 4.

v. 16. feared the Lord] The effect and fruit of this miraculous calm in the marriners. This increaſed their fear, and holy reverence of the true Jehovah. They were touched with a certain Repentance of their life paſt, and began to worſhip the true God, by whom they ſaw themſelves ſo wonderfully delivered, yet whether this were a ſervil fear onely; and they fell away afterwards, we cannot determine; but may rather hope the beſt, that this fear did open them the door to true piety.

and offered a ſacrifice to the Lord] Heb. Sacrificed a ſacrifice; ſacrifices were uſual and frequent among the Heathens in the ſervice and worſhip of their idols; And it may be firſt, and moſt derived from the Jews; But here theſe Marriners ſacrifice not to their idols, but to the true Jehovah. The true God here gained at leaſt of them this acknowledgement and teſtimony of him, and his glory, and worſhip.

and made vows] Heb. Vowed vows: of Praiſe, and Thankſgiving for their deliverance and ſafety; which they would perform, when they came on ſhore. This wee ſee the very light of Nature did lead them unto. And for vows, we have much direction in Scripture; both what it is to vow; and who may vow; and what things they may vow: with many injunctions to performe the vows; and many examples of them that did it. Vowing is a voluntary ſervice of a free-will offering to God. It is no ſin not to vow; Deut. 23. 22. It is to be yeelded onely to the Lord; Pſalm. 65. 1. To the moſt high the mighty God of Jacob, It is a binding of the ſoul by an oath, to the Lord; Numb. 30. 2. And this may any do, that are not under the power of another; as maides and wives; of whom, ſee Numb. 30. The things vowed muſt be lawfull, and good; as to afflict and humble the ſoul, Num. 30. 13. To get temporall bleſſings, children; ſuſtenance, protection; deliverance out of troubles and dangers; victories over our enemies; to deſtroy Gods enemies; to give beaſt, houſe, field, and the like to the Lord; as alſo to build; dedicate, and the like, for the maintainance and furtherance of Gods worſhip and ſervice; to give thanks, and praiſe, to God, for his Bleſſings. And in the Levitical Law to offer voluntary ſacrifices; with caveats what they muſt be, and where offered; ſee Levit. 22. verſe 23. Deut. 12. 5. 6. 11. 17. 26. and 23. 18. Malach 1. 14. And to be a Nazarite, Numb. 6. But baſe or ſinfull things we muſt not vow unto the Lord, Deut. 23. 18. As Micahs Mother did vow, and dedicate ſilver, to make Idols, Judges 17. 3. And the Idolatrous women of the Jews in Egypt vowed to burn incenſe to the Queen of heaven, Jeremiah 44. 25. And thoſe murderers in the Acts to kill Paul. And unlawfull, and ungodly, moſt an end, are the vows among the Papiſts. Juſt and holy vows, which have gone out of our lips, and we have promiſed with our mouthes, are ſtrictly charged to be performed, and care hath been kept by Gods people accordingly. See Deut. 23. 21. 23. and Pſalm. 22. 25. and 50. 14. Pſalm. 76. 12. and 61. 8. Proverbs 20. 25. Eccel. 5. 3. 4. Nahum 1. 15. Examples of ſuch as made vowes are many. Thus did Jacob; Gene. 28. 20. Iſrael; Numb. 21. 1. 2. Jephthah; Judg. 11. 36. 39. Hannah, 1 Samuel 1. 11. Bathſhebah, Prov. 31. 2. David, Pſalm. 66. 13. 14. and 56. 12. When he was at Gath; and Pſalm. 132. 2. 3. 4. 5. and 116. 14. 18. Our Prophet Jonah. Chap. 2. 9. Paul, Act. 18. 18. & chap, 21. 23.

v. 17. the Lord had prepared] See Gods providence, and power, in, and over the Sea, and the fiſhes in it. See Luke 5. verſe 6. John 21. 6. God prepared the fiſh both to devour him, and preſerve him.

belly of the fiſh] Heb. Bowels, Thus the Lord would chaſtiſe his Prophet with the moſt terrible ſpectacle of death; and thereby confirmed him alſo of his favour and ſupport in this his charge which was injoyned him.

three dayes] A moſt wofull time to him; all the while to be thinking of Gods terrours to him, and wrath upon him; and not to have that comfort in death, whereof Job ſpeaks, Chap. 14. 13. and 3. 13—25. Yet his caſe and condition, his Prayer, and hope, appears fully in the next chap. His living all this time in the fiſhes belly was miraculous. To this time our Saviour relates and alludes, Matt. 12. 29. 40. and 16. 4. Luke 11. 30.

CHAP. II.

Verſe 1. THen Jonah prayed] Then, in this deſperate ſtate and condition.

prayed] He did not ſo before, when he was at liberty, and fled from God. Here is now a change wrought in him. He wreſtles againſt deſpair under this ſtrange hand of God upon him; and recovers ſome hope; elſe he would not, and could not have prayed, to the Lord his God] Here is the root of Faith, to run to God, and to lay hold on him as his God, when God thus ſtrangely overwhelmed him with his heavy judgement.

out of the belly of the fiſh] Which he calls the belly of hell, or of the grave: ſuch a place of darkneſs; out of this priſon, and dungeon. This gave life and liberty to his Prayer. See Pſal. 130. 1. Being now ſwallowed up of death, and ſeeing no remedy to eſcape, his faith braſt out unto the Lord; knowing that out of this very hell he was able to deliver him.

v. 2. And ſaid] Not the words themſelves, as they in order follow; as appears verſe 6. 9. But theſe were his thoughts, wiſhes, diſtractions, tentations, wreſtlings in himſelf, and the ſubſtance of his deſires to God, whiles he was in the fiſhes belly. He was firm in this, That God was to be ſought unto; and being ſeriouſly ſought unto, that it would not prove to bee in vain; Eſay 45. 19. Theſe things were ſet down in writing by him after his deliverance, with the addition of thankſgiving. See on Pſalm. 142. 1.

I cryed] The ſum of all is ſet down in this verſe: and that twice over. That he prayed to God; and that God did hear him; That he was in diſtreſſe, and God did help him. His prayer earneſt, and ardent, wreſtling with God; againſt all difficulties, and impoſſibilities; and his deliverance wonderfull, beyond all reach of humane reaſon. And this it ſelf ſhews that this was both ſpoken and written by him after his deliverance: ſee Pſalm. 120. 1.

by reaſon of mine affliction] Or, out of mine affliction.

hell cried] Or, the grave. Heb. ſheol. For he was in the fiſhes belly, as in a grave, or place of darkneſſe.

v. 3. For thou haſt] Here he amplifies his diſtreſs, in many words; and eaſie to be underſtood. Such it was, as in all judgement of fleſh and blood, might have drowned his Faith, and Hope; as well as his body. He looks not to the men that caſt him overboord; but to God and his hand in it.

midſt of the ſeas] Heb. heart.

v. 4. Then I ſaid] Theſe ſtraights brought him to theſe diſputes of deſpair; to theſe perplexities and agonies.

I am caſt out] Conſidering his caſe, and the cauſe of it; his ſin, and Gods anger; both ſo eminent, and tranſcendent: This drives him into this ſore and diſtracting Temptation. He remembred not that, Levit. 26. 44. Nor was of that perſwaſion, Lamen. 3. 31. 32. 33. But rather inclines towards that of Cain; Gene. 4. 13. 14. Thus he laboured between hope and deſpaire; conſidering the neglect of his vocation; and Gods judgments for the ſame: But yet in the end faith gat the victory; as appears in the next words.

yet I will look] Though the gate of mercy ſeem ſhut, the hope of pardon cut off, and mountains of oppoſitions ſtand up againſt me, yet I will look up, and overlook all theſe. Thus his Faith wreſtles and holds out its ſheild in all theſe conflicts, and againſt all theſe aſſaults, as Pſalm. 42. 5. 11. and 43. 5. Hee deſpaires not, but rather checkes his owne diffidence and diſtruſt, wiſhing and hoping for mercie.

toward thy holy Temple] He animates himſelf to hope, by mentioning and remembring the Temple, and the promiſes made to it, and by it; and his former intereſt in it, and the ſervices of it.

v. 5. The waters] Again he enlargeth himſelf upon the wofulneſſe of his eſtate, which might have amazed him with terrour, and kept him from any hopeful addreſſe to God by prayer; knowing all this befell him for his open rebellion againſt God.

even unto the ſoul] Bringing me into danger of preſent death. See Pſalm 69. 1, 2.

the weeds] To wit, which the fiſh had ſwallowed; or, ſo deep was I in the bottom of the ſea, as if the weeds that grow there had been wrapped about my head, v. 6. to the bottoms of the mountains] Heb. Cuttings off. Great mountains and promontories are there along that coaſt of the mediterrane ſea: to the roots, and feet whereof he deſcended in the fiſhes belly.

bars] A term taken from priſoners. The meaning is, I am in the ſea as it were in a ſtrong priſon; ſhut up and barred from the earth, and land of the living on all ſides, by thoſe ſteep rocks.

for ever] Unleſſe thou do miraculouſly relieve me. For upon all this, no leſſe could reſtore him then a miracle.

yet] Thou haſt delivered me from the belly of the fiſh, and all theſe dangers; as it were raiſing me from death to life. Therefore this was indited after his deliverance: this being his thankſgiving for it.

corruption] Or, the pit.

O Lord, my God] He prayed in ſome faith. And here is the triumph of his faith, upon the hearing of his prayer. For by this means Faith groweth gloriouſly.

v. 7. fainted] Was ſo anxious and perplexed, that it fell as it were into a ſwoon; and all my thoughts and devices could not eaſe or diſburden my cares; but they tormented me only, and recoyled and redounded back upon mine own head. See Pſalm 42.4. and 22.14. and 102. Title of the Pſalm, Job 30. 16.

I remembred the Lord] And his mercy of old, as Pſalm 42.6. and 77. 5—12. Thus ſtill he kept his ground, and held up his hope, though with wonderful difficulty.

and my prayer] Whereby he now fled to him in hope; as formerly he had fled from him by rebellion. Thus prayer is our ſhoot-anchor in all ſtorms and tempeſts.

came in] Was not ſhut out; as Lam. 3. 8. 44. but had entrance, and found acceptance; as Pſalm 66. 19. and 88. 2. See Eſay 65. 24.

holy Temple] To wit, in heaven, Gods dwelling place in glory: the repreſentation whereof was in the temple of Jeruſalem; to which alſo no doubt Jonas had relation here; and to the promiſes annexed to it.

v. 8. They] Jonas upon conſideration of the premiſes, ſets out the falſe, deceiving, vain, courſes of ſinners; whereunto he ſecretly oppoſeth his own piety and practiſe.

lying vanities] They that depend upon any thing ſave upon God alone. Thus he calls and ſtiles all ſuch dependences whatſoever men frame and fancy to themſelves.

own mercie] They refuſe their own felicitie, and that goodneſſe which they ſhould elſe receive of God, if they obſerved him alone; and can receive of no other; as himſelf findes by his preſent experience. See Jer.2.13. Pſal.36.9. Jer.17.13. and 18. 14. and Eſay 46. 7, 8.

v. 9. But I will] Though idolaters, to their hurt, do otherwiſe obſerving lying vanities, and aſcribing their deliverances to their vain lying idols; yet I will apply and addict my ſelf ſolely and wholly to God, in whom alone all hope of help and happineſſe remaineth.

of thankſgiving] Pſalm 50. 14. 23. and 116. 17. Hoſ. 14. 2. Heb. 13. 15.

I will pay] See on Chap. 1. 16.

ſalvation is of the Lord] Pſalm 3. 8. It is to be aſcribed to him and to no other, as Jonas doth in this preſent caſe.

v. 10. ſpake unto the fiſh] Gods ſole word made and commands all things, Gen. 1. 3. Pſalm 105. 31. 34. and 107. 25. Eſay 43. 6. and 44. 27. and 7. 18.

vomit out] A miraculous both preſervation in the belly of the fiſh, and deliverance out of it. And this may ſerve as an image and type of our preſervation in the grave, and our reſurrection from the dead, by one and the ſame Almighty power of God.

GHAP. III.

C*Ame unto Jonah*] This is a great declaration of Gods mercie, that he receiveth him again, and ſendeth him forth as his prophet, which had before ſhewed ſo great infirmitie.

the ſecond time] Gods wonderful mercie without any merit of Jonas after his ſo fowl a fall; freely to reſtore him to his Prophetical office, and honour.

v: 2. Ariſe] See on Chap. 1. verſe 2.

that great citie] Though thou be a ſingle man, a meer and mean ſtranger unknown, unregarded; yet go againſt that great citie, the greateſt citie then of the world, ſo great and populous, as it might ſeem to be a region or countrey; a Heatheniſh proud, ſinful, ſecure citie. He remindes him of this, to forewarne and fore-arm him with invincible magnanimitie againſt the ſeeming difficulties and dangers incident to his office and charge.

that I bid thee] Whatſoever it be. See chap. 1. verſe 2.

v. 3. So Jonah aroſe] Before, he aroſe to flee from his charge and vocation, from Gods call and command: Now he aroſe, and addreſſeth himſelf to it; conſults not with fleſh and blood: but by faith overcomes all obſtructions; knowing he had God on his ſide who had ſo wonderfully ſaved him: with reſolution therefore and boldneſſe, he ſets forward. Thus he profited under the rod in the School of afflictions; and ſo good are chaſtiſements to us. Pſalm 119. 67. 71.

according to the word of the Lord] All he minded now was his obedience to God, and his command; he gave up himſelf wholly to be guided and ruled by him. A good change.

an exceeding great citie] Heb. A great citie of God. For the Hebrews do extol the greatneſſe of things, by adding the name of God to their ordinary names: as Cedars of God, Pſal. 80. 10. mountains of God, Pſal. 36. 6. the wreſtlings of God, Gen. 30. 8. See Annot. on Ezekiel 40. 2.

three dayes journey] In circuit, ſay ſome; and that going leaſurely to go through the ſeveral ſtreets, ſay others: in length and breadth, ſay others: and Heathen writers moſt accord herewith. They mention 400 ſtadia. And a ſtadium contains 125 paſes: and ſo 8 ſtadia our mile. See on Ch. 1. verſe 2. It is not ſo likely that thoſe Authors ſhould feign or fail in ſo notorious a thing as was the quantitie of that ſo famous a citie.

v. 4. into the citie a dayes journey] Not going on ſtraight forward, ſay ſome; but by pauſes and at times, going on from place to place, as his charge required. But nothing hinders, but it might be that he went on ſtraight forwards, and that day converted many. And after in the dayes following converted more, till there was a general converſion of the citie.

and he cryed] He doth not make any ſtay, firſt of all to view the citie, what were the manners and conditions of the place, and people: how he might with beſt conveniencie, and leaſt danger, preach and publiſh his dreadful unwelcome meſſage: But without any ſuch carnal reaſonings, aſſoon as he came to the gate of the citie, he ſtraight falls on without any reſpite of time to execute Gods command, and his duty. And that not fearfully muttering his meſſage; but with open cry and proclamation: ſuch courage and boldneſſe he had now attained to.

yet fourty dayes] Here is no ſweet invitation, and allurement to repentance; no condition or exception expreſſed, nor promiſe of pardon made, or conditionally intimated: no ſuch preaching as that Ezek. 18. 21. and 33. 14, 15, 16. But Jonas is Boanerges, a ſon of thunder: his ſermon as a thunderbolt. The condition, it ſeems, God reſerves to himſelf: and is here to be underſtood. See Gen. 6. 3. and Chap. 20. 3. And ſo are all the threatnings and promiſes of the Law conditional, 1 Pet. 3. 20. And if this condition were not underſtood what needed the Lord to have ſent the prophet to them? He might have deſtroyed them without this ſending, and warning, as he did uſually deal with other Heathen nations; as we read in the Prophets. But he thus ſends Jonah to the Ninevites, that by his warning they might ſpeedily provide for their own ſafety, by timely repentance. Herein vouchſafing them that favour, which otherwiſe was peculiar to his own people: Amos 3. 7. what danger in all humane reaſon might this preaching have procured to Jonas? But now he feared nothing, but diſobedience to God.

v. 5. believed God] Matth. 12.41. Luke 11. 32. and his word preached by Jonah: for he declared that he was a prophet ſent to them from God, to denounce his judgements againſt them. See Exod. 14. 31. And they moſt likely had heard of his wonderful deliverance out of the whales belly: which argument might work much upon them.

and proclaimed a faſt] Being in all likelihood by Jonas told of their ſins, and that God was the avenger of them. This faſt the people ſeem voluntarily to undertake to keep; and after to be alſo authoriſed, and enjoyned by the kings Command; who would alſo be partaker thereof. But yet more likely the Command came firſt from the king himſelf, and his Nobles. v. 7. Of Faſtings ſee on Joel: 1. 14. As we have this example of faſting here; ſo we have many more in Scripture, of David, of Daniel, Nehemiah, and of Anna, John Baptiſt, Paul, and others: of Jehoſhaphat and his people: of Ezra and his company: of Eſther, and the Jews: of the people in the Babyloniſh captivity; yea of wicked Ahab, and the proud Phariſees.

v. 6. For word came unto the king] Here is a declaration how the Ninevites came to proclaim a faſt, and put on ſackcloth; not by their own power and authority, but by the kings command.

and he aroſe from his throne] A rare example in the Monarch of the world, and the more rare, all circumſtances being duely conſidered. And in all likelyhood his hearing of Jonahs being in the whales belly was a great inducement hereunto: beſides that God filled his word in Jonahs mouth with his own Spirit, and clothed it with his own power.

ſackcloth] Gen. 37. 34. See Annotations there.

ſate in aſhes] Job 2. 8. and 42. 6. 2 Sam. 13. 19. Eſther 4. 13.

Eſay 58. 5. Jer. 6. 26. Lam. 2. 10. Dan. 9. 3. Theſe ceremonies and outward rites, are onely uſeful as they teſtifie the truth of the inward ſorrow and repentance of the heart, and help and conduce thereunto: without that they are frivolous and hurtful, 1 Tim. 4. 8. And they are uſed onely in extraordinary caſes.

v. 7. And he cauſed] See on verſe 6. And ſo ſoon and ſuddenly he did it. He did not rage and ſtorm at ſuch words, at ſuch a ſermon. He did not as Ahab did, 1 Kings 18. 17. or as Jehoiakim, Jer. 36. 23. and chap. 26. 23. Or as it is, Amos 7. 10. But thus he humbles himſelf.

nobles] Heb. Great men.

nor beaſt] The threatning was againſt the whole city, and all things in it. All the creatures, as they were made for the uſe of man, ſo they ſuffer for the ſin of man; and man is puniſhed in them, and the loſs of them: man, in their puniſhment, ſees what he deſerves. The meaning then is, not that the dumbe beaſt had ſinned, or could repent; but that by their example man might be aſtoniſhed, conſidering that for his ſin the anger of God hanged over all creatures; and that their looings and bellowlings might the more excite the people to lamentations and howlings.

taſt any thing] For a certain limited time, which likely was a whole day at leaſt.

and beaſt be covered] It may be, according to the cuſtom of thoſe dayes, the beaſts they uſe to ride upon, and imployed for carriage, were wont to be covered and trapped: but in time of mourning they took thoſe ornaments off, and covered them with hair-cloth, and ragged clothing.

and cry mightily unto God] The King of Nineve can reſolve of no way for help, but prayer. And that muſt be ſtrong prayer; as Heb. 5. 7. 1 Sam. 15. 11. Pſal. 22. 2. and 69. 3. and 119. 145. Luke 18. 7. Thus far he by the light of nature. And ſo did the marriners. Chap. 1. 5. He commandeth that the men ſhould earneſtly call unto God for mercy.

yea let them turn] He reſts not in the externall Rites; but comes to the true touch of Repentance, the effects and fruits of it; every one to turn from his evill courſe of life, to change his manners and become a new man.

and from the violence] He inſtanceth in one particular ſin, which likely reigned much, if not moſt, in that city.

is in their hands] Whereof he is guilty, as if his hands were ſoiled therewith, Pſal. 7. 3.

v. 9. who can tell] The King then doth not utterly deſpair; but entertains ſome hope of help. Faith is mixed with doubting; yea even ſo in Gods true children. And this queſtion here may note out difficulty, as well as diffidence. See Joel 2. 14.

will turn] Towards us in grace and mercy.

that we periſh not] He acknowledgeth that their ſafety, or periſhing lay wholly and ſolely in the hands of God, in his favour, or diſpleaſure.

v. 10. And God ſaw] This is called Repentance, by our Saviour, Matt. 12. 41. But likely in a large acceptation. This may ſeem rather, by the ſequent hiſtory of them, and their dealing againſt the Jews, to ſavour of Pharaohs, and Ahabs repentance, then to be a reall and ſound converſion to God. See the book of Nahum. They were like thoſe. Pſalm. 78. 34. 36. 37. 57.

their works] That is, the fruits of their repentance which did proceed from their credence to the words of the Prophet. Theſe are looked more after, then ceremonious rites. Not yet that their works merited their pardon; but that they ſhewed ſuch a qualification to be in them, as is in ſuch to whom God promiſeth freely, out of his meer mercy, to give a gratious pardon.

God repented] By recalling his ſentence which was but conditionall, in his decree, and minde; whereof he gave likely either little or no notice by Jonah. See Gene. 6. 6. and the Annotations there; Gods dealing herewith Nineve is not much unlike his dealing with Ahab, 1 Kings 21. 27. 28. 29.

CHAP. IIII.

Verſe 1. B*Ut it diſpleaſed*] Not onely for fear of being thought a falſe Prophet: but alſo for the zeal of Gods glory, which he thought was wronged by this change; And for affection he bore to Gods people; who had then no greater enemie to fear, then the Empire of Aſſyria; as by effect it appeared not long after. And hereupon ſome would excuſe Jonah from all fault in this; But in vain, ſhould he be diſpleaſed with Gods doing? with his work of mercy? ſo great a mercy? and he thereat ſo exceedingly diſpleaſed? ſo very angry? beyond all mean and meaſure? Himſelf ſets out his own ſin. And God himſelf reproves him for it; both which will more appear hereafter. Thus the Prophet falls fowle upon God; and that ſo ſoon after ſo miraculous a mercy and deliverance vouchſafed him. He was it ſeems too literal a doctour, taking and preſſing the bare words, without any reſtriction or reſervation.

v. 2. And he prayed] A paſſionate diſorderly prayer; expoſtulating and quarrelling with God; accuſing him, to pleaſe and juſtifie himſelf, in his former open rebellion. Herein was ſome piety in that he directed his Complaint to God, in the name and nature of a Prayer: But mixed with much infirmity, and impiety. In this, he retains ſome ſeeds of piety and obedience in his heart; and God mercifully vouchſafes the title and eſteem of a Prayer unto it. And thus in much mercy God many times deals with the ſinfull weakneſſes of his ſervants. yea our beſt ſervices are tainted with imperfections and defilements.

was not this my ſaying?] Here is his grief and anger, That thus he ſhould be found to be a falſe and lying Prophet. See Jere. 20. 7. 8. Thus preferring his own conceited credit, before the praiſe of Gods glorious mercy. But be it; that herein he had a chief eye to Gods glory, and was moſt tender of it; fearing the prophane Ninevites would blaſpheme Gods name, and deride his word and threatnings, when they ſaw them not to be accompliſhed, they knowing that God was the author of his meſſage, and Jonah was but his Ambaſſadour, ſent with his word in his mouth, with inſtructions, and mandates from him; Take him thus at the beſt, yet he ſhould have learned to ſubject his will and wiſdom to Gods will and wiſdom; not to arrogate to himſelf a cenſure of things paſſing his Capacity; but humbly and wholly to ſubmit himſelf to God, and to begg of him the Spirit of diſcerning in ſuch high concernments. And the like muſt we do, when we ſee things fall out by Gods ſecret providence, which we think will redound greatly to Gods diſhonour; let us grieve at the ſin, yet wait on till he bring forth light out of darkneſs, good out of evil: and mean while let us go on to obey his commands, though all the world oppoſe us in it. Verily here is a manifold example in Jonah of humane infirmity. He ſeems here to defend and maintain his former obſtinacy and rebellion; aiming in all at his own credit and reputation.

therefore I fled] Chap. 1. 3. Not for fear of danger, or toyle; not out of a rebellious minde, or any ſiniſter intent; but leſt the iſſue and event of my Preaching ſhould miniſter occaſion to theſe Heathen people to blaſpheme thy name, to deride thy word, as if there were no truth in thee or it. This would he diſobey God, out of a pretence of his love to God, and zeal of his glory. Let not ſuch good intentions pretended, or real, draw us to the right hand, from the right path of Gods commandments.

a gratious God] This ſhould rather have animated him to his duty. And happily would ſo have done; in his miniſtry to the Jews. But this ſeemed to him to thwart, and to be quite croſs to that peremptory ambaſſage upon which he was ſent to the Ninevites: and ſo he conceived, that upon their Repentance, God would be mercifull; and ſo both himſelf, and God expoſed to their deriſion; And that this made him flee. He could dream of nothing to the Ninevites, but their deſtruction. But God uſed his miniſtry to a better purpoſe, and crowned it with better ſucceſs then he imagined; or any way deſerved.

ſlow to anger] Pſal. 78. 38. Hoſea 11. 9. See that James 1. 19.

and repenteſt] Joel 2. 13. Jer. 18. 8. and 26. 3. 13. 19. Jonah out of a blinde zeal makes ill uſe of theſe excellent attributes of God, to make them a cloak for his rebellion, and diſobedience to Gods Commandment. But he ſhould have been leſs wiſe in his own conceit, and have committed the event and ſucceſs of all to God, and have obeyed his call and command, though a thouſand difficulties and abſurdities had ſtood in his way.

v. 3. my life from me] Not ſo much out of his deſire of heaven; as for his preſent diſpleaſure and anger, verſe 1. ſee here again his great weakneſs and ſinfull infirmity in this his ſtronge paſſion; And this ſo ſoon after he came out of the whales belly; Yet is not this a voice of deſpair; he would not then have put it up in form of a Prayer to the Lord; but a paſſionat expreſſion of his, too great indignation at this event of his preaching; and Gods repenting mercy to Nineveh. He was too heady thus to wiſh for his death. And thus Elias, 1 Kings 19. 4. Job, and Jeremiah, were too haſty this way. They ſhould have kept their ſtanding, till God, who placed them in this life, had called them out of it. See the example of Paul, Phil. 1. 22, 23, 24. we muſt ſo love life, as yet willingly to leave it when God calls for it; and ſo wiſh for death, as Job patiently to wait till God brings us to it.

for it is better] Thus Jonah expreſſeth and confeſſeth his own folly and ſin. So dangerous a thing it is for us, and audacious, to paſſe our cenſures upon Gods actions, and the paſſages of his providence. His wayes are alwayes holy in themſelves, though to us unknown. Ezek. 18. 25. Iſaiah 55. 9. Our wiſedom and ſafety is wholly to ſubmit and ſubject our ſelves to his holy will and pleaſure.

v. 4. doſt thou well to be angry?] Or, art thou greatly angry? wilt thou be judge when I do things for my glory, and when I do not? Others thus; thou haſt great cauſe to be angry: and ſo it is an ironicall reproof. See verſe 9. and Numb. 22. 27. 29. Here God, the juſt Judge of the world, condemnes his prepoſterous zeal, for all his good intention. See Luke 9. 54. ſhall ſilly man thus chaſe and fret at Gods proceedings? Let the pot-ſheard ſtrive with the pot-ſheards of the earth. Ionah did not modeſtly diſburden himſelf of his fears and doubts, before God; but ſtraight became exceeding angry. And God here by putting this Interrogatory to him, would convict him by verdict of his own Conſcience; as if he ſhould ſay, do but look thy ſelf in the glaſſe of thy own Conſcience.

v. 5. So Ionah went out of the city] Likely before the fourty dayes were expired; not knowing yet of the Lords mercifull minde to ſpare the City; and leſt if he had ſtayed therein, he might have been deſtroyed in it. Or if this be underſtood that it was after the fourty dayes were expired, yet might he wait a while longer, expecting ſtill the judgement threatned, though a little delayed, yet to be ſhortly executed. For we read not of any Revelation made to him, or underſtood by him, of reverſing the judgement; but onely by the event. He therefore doubted at leaſt whether God would ſhew them mercy, or no: and therefore after fourty dayes he looks ſtill what iſſue God would ſend.

v. 6. prepared] Did miraculouſly cauſe this plant ſo ſoon and ſuddenly to ſpring and grow up to a great height; peradventure this happened when the booth began to dry up, and ſhaddow Ionah no more.

a gourd] Hebr. Kikaion. A plant which is very common in thoſe hot countryes, and groweth up to a great height, and ſpreadeth out in great breadth, called commonly palma Chriſti, as moſt conceive. Hierom was queſtioned for tranſlating it an Ivie. God choſe ſuch a plant as naturally growes ſoon; but here he makes the growth to exceed far the ordinary courſe of nature.

to come up] Over the booth where Ionah was.

his grief] Namely, from the heat, which increaſeth the grief of his minde. Or to give him by the means of this plant ſome wholſome document, and remedy for his paſſion.

exceeding glad] Hebr. rejoyced with great joy. Thus ſenſible we are of bodily comforts and refreſhments.

v. 7. Prepared a worm] Thus Gods providence is in and over the leaſt creature. So for the winde, verſe 8. See Mat. 10. 29, 30. Luke 12. 6, 7. It is God that works ordinarily in the ſetled courſe of nature; and extraordinarily, when he pleaſeth to vary from it.

ſmote] Namely did gnaw the root of it.

v. 8. a vehement eaſt winde] Hebr. a ſilent, or deaf winde. That is to ſay, a ſtill hot winde, which redoubled the heat of the ſun. Others; a winde that made one deaf, it was ſo tempeſtuous.

and wiſhed] 1 Kings 19. 4. Ionah ſtill is in extremity of paſſions, upon all occaſions; tranſported and overborn with them; with anger, joy, grief; They ſhould be regularly moderated.

v. 9. doſt thou well to be angry?] Or, art thou greatly angry? ſo angry for ſuch a trifle; Is this well? God here is mindefull of him, when he was not ſo mindefull of God; but wiſhed onely in himſelf to die; and ſo to run upon deſpair, without ſeeking to God for a remedy. Thus God prevents us in mercy, and expects not alwayes till we begin to ſeek to him firſt.

I do well to be angry] Or, I am greatly angry. Ionah is ſtill in height of paſſion; words are theſe of a paſſionate ſpirit, blinded with anger, rather then with any expreſſe rebellion. This declareth the great inconveniences whereinto Gods ſervants do fall, when they give place to their own affections, and do not in all things willingly ſubmit themſelves to God. He ſlights Gods admonition and reproof, riſeth up in a further animoſity againſt it; proceeds on to a deſperate degree of anger. Such wilde beaſts are our furious paſſions when we give them the reins. This caſe of ſuch a Prophet ſhould make us the more carefull to curb in, and to regulate our affections betimes.

v. 10. Thou haſt had pity] Or, ſpared. That is thou wouldeſt have ſpared and dearly preſerved it. God now applies the former caſe to his preſent purpoſe. He had pity on the gourd, for his own ſake chiefly, and his own uſe.

came up in a night] Hebr. was the ſon of the night: was ſo ſlight a thing; and he had no intereſt in it, or the making of it.

v. 11. And ſhould not I] Thus God mercifully reproveth him, which would pity himſelf, and this gourd; and yet would reſtrain God to ſhew his compaſſion to ſo many thouſand people, of his own making, and for his own uſe; But that he muſt needs deſtroy them, and not ſuffer them to enjoy the common benefits of light, and life. Every word of the Lord here hath its waight and emphaſis; oppoſing himſelf, to J*onah*; and populous Nineveh, to the Gourd. An argumentation ſomewhat like that Matth. 7. 11.

Cannot diſcern] Little children, that are not yet come to age of underſtanding.

and much cattle] To be much preferred before the gourd. And all this to make J*onah* to be aſhamed of himſelf, and his furious folly: who would preſcribe rules to God, and his ſecret Counſel: and goes about to govern God, by the dictate of his will and pleaſure: that he ſhould not ſpare the Ninevites: who yet ſo much endeavoured by their Repentance to prevent his judgement threatned againſt them.

MICAH.

The ARGUMENT.

MIcah propheſied in the dayes of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, Kings of Judah: Some ſay upon probability, at leaſt thirty yeers; at which time Iſaiah alſo propheſied: and they too are like in the ſubject matter: and in their terms and propheticall ſtile, ſublime and lofty. He declareth the deſtruction of both the Kingdoms of Iſrael and Judah, and their approaching diſperſion by the Aſſyrians, and by the Caldeans: becauſe of their manifold wickedneſſes: but chiefly for their idolatry, impiety, and inhumanity; inhumanity; and all upheld and countenanced by their Princes, and Prophets. Then he maketh promiſes, to the Remnant of true Beleevers, of Temporall deliverance from captivity; and of Spirituall through Chriſt, who ſhould bring Eternall ſalvation to the whole Church; gathering it out of all Nations: whoſe coming in the Fleſh, or incarnation, and place of his Birth, are deſcribed; ſo that from him Herod might be told where Chriſt the true Bread of Life ſhould be born; Namely, at Bethlehem, The houſe of Bread; for ſo the Hebrew word ſignifieth. Furthermore, he joyneth Excellent propheſies of the coming of Chriſts Kingdom; of the calling in of the Gentiles: and of the felicity of the Church, and the Benefits ſhould come to it by the Goſpel. His propheſie hath two parts or ſermons: The firſt conſiſteth of Threatnings to the wicked, Chapters 1, 2, and 3. and of conſolations to the Church, by the Propheticall Promiſes of Chriſt, and his Kingdom, Chap. 4, and 5. The ſecond part hath alſo Threatnings, for their ill requiting of all Gods kindeneſſes, and their other ſins: Chap. 6. And, after the complaint of the Prophet, and all the Godly, concerning the paucity of good men, in every ranck, and degree, ſo that they could ſcarce finde, among their near friends and neceſſary acquaintance, piety and fidelity: he endeth his propheſie with the Churches conſolation, in her patient expectation of Gods time to plead her cauſe, to the ſhame of her inſulting enemie, and her own marvellous felicity, Chap. 7.

Moraſthite] Namely, of ſome city called Moraſheth, either that verſe 14. or that, Joſh. 15. 44. being a city aſſigned by lot to the tribe of Judah, in the dayes] He was contemporary with Eſay, ſave that he began latter then he: and after Joel, Amos, and Jonah, had ended their propheſies. The time of his continuance in executing his office, is not certain, becauſe thoſe yeers of Jotham and Hezekiah, in which he began, and ended, are not ſet down. This knowledge of the time helps much to the underſtanding of the Propheſie: which in it ſelf is ſomewhat dark, and difficult. He hath a great concord and correſpondency with Eſay, his Colleage, many times uſing the ſame words. God willing ſo by the mouth of two Witneſſes, to have his Word confirmed to his people.

Samaria and Ieruſalem] The chief cities of the two kingdoms; of the ten tribes, and of Judah: and concerning their princes and heads, verſe 5.

v. 2. Hear all ye people] Heb. Heare ye people all of them. He doth not equally preach, and intend all his doctrine to the uſe of all people; as much as to the people of God, the Jews: But this is a figurative manner of calling all creatures, as it were, to a ſolemn appearance, and to be witneſſes at the Judgement, wherein God will judge his people. See Deut. 4. 26. and 30. 19. and 32. 1 Pſalm 50. 1. 4. Eſay 1. 2. Their ſins ſhall be brought upon the publick ſtage; and themſelves convicted and condemned of all unleſſe they repent.

hearken O earth] Jer. 22. 29. As if the ſenſleſſe element were more ready to hear, and to be ſtrucken with the terrour of Gods wrath and judgement, then his people were. See Chap. 6. 1, 2.

all that therein is] Heb. The fulneſſe thereof.

and let the Lord God] The Tribunal being erected, and the aſſembly gathered, the Lord God will appear.

be witneſſe againſt you] Will convince you of your ſins, O ye of Judah and Iſrael. Here then there will be no dallying with God, nor eſcaping his judgement; he will plead his own cauſe againſt you, before all the world; and take due vengeance; unleſſe ye repent.

the Lord from his holy temple] Coming forth, as one ſhould ſay out of heaven; or out of the Temple of Jeruſalem, where he is preſent in his ſignes of grace and vertue. Pſalm 11. 4. Hab. 2. 29. They never gave over boaſting of the holy Temple of Jeruſalem, and God in it; they gloried in their prerogatives; that they were ſuch a ſacred people, as not to be ſo roughly handled, and uncivilly dealt withal, by the prophets: ſo abuſing Gods favours to ſhield and ſhelter them in their ſins; Micah tells them that for all this the Lord will appear, even out of that holy temple, to take due revenge on them for their ſins.

v. 3. For behold] To rouze them up to attend that which they could ſo hardly be perſwaded to; that God was ſo angry with them, when they thought him well pleaſed and propitious.

forth out of his place] Eſay 26. 21. There againſt the enemies of his Church; here againſt his own people. Not quite to leave his temple; as Ezek. Chap. 9. 3. and 10. 3, 4. 18, 19. and Chap. 11. 22, 23. But to appear out of it; as in the end of the former verſe; and to appear as a dreadful Judge againſt them. They thought he had been in the Temple quiet and well pleaſed with their ceremoniall ſervices and ſacrifices; not much unlike to the idols of the Heathens, in their temples; But he will come forth and ſtretch out his hand of power and revenge further then ſo.

and tread upon] He ſhall ſhew himſelf exalted above all worldly greatneſſe: or he ſhall tread underfoot all powers which ſhall offer to reſiſt him, Amos 4. 13.

the high places of the earth] Meaning thereby, that God will come to judgement againſt the ſtrong cities and holds: none of them ſhall keep him out, or ſtop his vengeance: nor yet thoſe high and lofty men, that by their greatneſſe would plead exemption from the condition of the vulgar ſort, ſee the phraſe Deut. 32. 13. & 33. 29. & Iſa. 58. 14.

v. 4. And the mountains] The rocky mountains ſhall yet melt. All this is to affright theſe hard hearted ſinners, with the dreadful Majeſty of this judge, coming to judgment. See Nahum 1. verſ. 2. — 7. Pſal. 50. 3, 4. & 97. 2, 3, 4, 5. Yet this ſhould not drive ſinners to flee from God; but tame their pride, and humble them, in all ſubmiſſion, and aweful reverence, to approach unto him.

v. 5. For the tranſgreſſions] Here is the cauſe why God appears ſo formidable. It is not without juſt cauſe: nor is he too ſevere to his people, more then is meet.

of the houſe of Iſrael] Of the whole body of the people; of his own people by Covenant.

what is the tranſgreſſion] Where is the ſpring of all theſe Idolatries, and other ſins of theſe two Kingdoms? Is it not in theſe two chief Cities? and in the Kings and Princes, and in their Courts, which are kept within thoſe Cities? and in the Prieſts and Prophets that are there? And withall he may ſeem to ſpeak this in the perſon of the hypocritical Jews, that cryed out, what, and where were there ſo great tranſgreſſions? as if they were unjuſtly taxed by the Prophets, when they dealt ſo roughly with them.

Is it not Samaria?] The Prophet meets with them, and ſtops their mouths; Their capital ſinnes were moſt in their capital Cities; and thence overflowed the whole land, even thoſe named. v. 1. There is their ſin; and the well-head of it; where the fountain ſhould have been of all good government; and good example. Yea there were their Idolatrous worſhips moſt reigning, wherein they ſo much pleaſed themſelves; and from which they would not be beaten. The Prophet therefore, in Gods name, as from heaven, thunders againſt them.

the high places of Iudah?] Amos 7. 9. High places of Iſaac. High places were ſometimes taken in a good ſenſe; as Gibeon, when the Tabernacle was there; and Jeruſalem, when the Arke was there, are called High places. 1 King. 3. 2, 3, 4. See alſo 1 Sam. 9. 12. & 10. 5. Where the high place is called the Hill of God. But after the ſetling of Gods Levitical Worſhip at Jeruſalem, and the building of the Temple; then and thenceforth high places are taken in the bad ſenſe; as becoming Idolatrous places. So Ieroboam built high places. 1 King. 12. 31, 32. Houſes of the high places; and he made Prieſts of the high places; and images, and altars, and groves; where they burnt incenſe, and offered ſacrifices in their idolatrous ſervices. And his ſucceſſors multiplied theſe high places. And many Kings of Iudah were not free of this ſin. Yea Solomon himſelf who builded the Temple, was deeply guilty herein, for his idolatrous wives ſake, 1 King. 11. 7. And many his ſucceſſors, otherwiſe good, yet taxed for this, for not taking away the high places which their predeceſſors had built: And Hezekiah and Ioſiah, are commended for deſtroying them, 2 King. 23. 5. — 21. They were ſo called, becauſe they were built on high mountains and hils. Jerem. 17. 2. See Ezek. 20. 29. Heathen idolaters worſhiped their heathen Gods in them; Num. 22. 41. & 33. 52. But the Jews moſt uſually would worſhip the true God in theſe unlawful places, and by unlawful wayes. 2 Chron. 33. 17.

is it not Jeruſalem?] Even there were high places built. 2 King. 23. 5. 6. 7. 10. 13.

v. 6. Therefore I will] Chap. 3. 12.

and as planting] As a place fit for ſuch a uſe, or as an heap of ſtones; ſuch as they uſe to gather out of the place where they mean to plant a vineyard.

pour down the ſtones] A gradual exaggeration of the foreſaid judgment; even the ſtones themſelves ſhall be carried away as with a torrent. See Mat. 24. 2.

into the valley] Samaria was builded on an hill. 1 King. 16. 24.

v. 7. And all the graven] Such as they had in their high places. Theſe ſhall be deſtroyed. The images themſelves God doth not ſo much heed; as the idolatrous worſhip which they yeeld to them, and by them: which is the thing that God ſo much abhors.

the hires thereof] That is, all the riches and goods which ſhe had gotten, & which ſhe thought to have gotten, by her unlawful treaties and leagues with prophane Nations; and as it were, for a reward given her for conſenting to idolatrie. See Hoſ. 2. 5, 8, 12. & 9. 1.

for ſhe gathered it] Baſely, and by their idolatry; as whores gather riches for their hire.

ſhall returne] A proverbial kind of ſpeech: as much as to ſay, thoſe goods ſhall go away as they came; that which hath been gotten in the brothel, ſhall be loſt in the brothel: or the Aſſyrians, who ſhall make prey of them, ſhall alſo take them, as a reward, and gift of their Idols; and ſhall adorne their Idols with them.

v. 8. I will waile] Iſa. 21. 3. & 22. 4. Jer. 4. 19. The Prophets words, having a feeling of the publick calamities. And by his example to awaken them out of that ſottiſh ſecurity, wherein they ſo much pleaſed themſelves; and to ſtir up in them the like paſſionate wailings as they ſaw in him.

and howl] Thus deeply did he compaſſionate and bear his ſhare in the burden of their miſeries. And yet at this time ſenſleſſe were they themſelves. The like compaſſion is expreſſed, even for Heathen nations; as Eſay 16. 9. 11. Jer. 48. 31. 32. But likely there the prophet ſhewes more what they ought to do, then what he did himſelf.

ſtript and naked] Namely, in my ſhirt, or without my outward garment: which was a faſhion uſed in times of extream ſorrow. See Eſay 20, 2. and 32. 11. 1 Sam. 19. 24. Or ſtript at leaſtwiſe of my prophets weed. See 2 Kings 1. 8. Zech. 13. 4. Matth. 3. 4. The Keri of the Maſſorites notes here, that the the text muſt be read, שולל ſholal, not שילל ſhilal, with Vau and not with Iod.

the dragons] Job 30. 29. Becauſe their ſtate ſhould be like that, Eſay 13. 21, 22. and 34. 13, 14, 15. Jer. 51. 37. See Jer. 9. verſ. 10, 11. and Chap. 10. 22.

owls] Heb. Daughters of the owl, Pſalm 102. 6. Jer. 50. 39.

v. 9. her wound is incurable] Or, ſhe is grievouſly ſick of her wounds, ſo in the plurall number; Hers, that is, Samariahs. Whereby is meant the whole kingdom of the ten tribes ſee v. 6. 7. They are bitter, deſperate: This is the cauſe of ſuch his howling.

it is come] The wound and plague.

unto Iudah] The Aſſyrians after they have conquered and laid waſte the ten Tribes, ſhall alſo lay Judah waſte, even to Jeruſalem, 2 Kings 18. 13. Eſay 8. 8. Jer. 10. 22.

he is come] The enemie.

the gate of] That is, to Ieruſalem the kings reſidence; and where Iudahs ſovereign court of juſtice was held, which the Scripture calleth oftentimes gate.

v. 10. Declare ye it] 2 Sam. 1. 20. The meaning is, The peoples calamities ſhall be ſo horrible, that it were to be wiſhed that their deadly enemies, ſuch as thoſe of Gath, and other Philiſtims were; might never hear no news of it; for fear leſt they ſhould make triumphs for it; and ſhould aggravate the meaſure of them by their inſultings. He ſpeaks their mindes, who if it had been poſſible, would willingly have their calamities and ſhame hid from the knowledge of forreign enemies.

weep ye not] Forbear making any ſhew of miſeries, for fear of giving your enemies occaſion of laughter. He ſhewes they ſhould willingly rather chooſe to ſmother their miſeries, and periſh in ſilence and ſecret, if it were poſſible, then to have added to their miſeries the inſultations and ſcoffs of their bitter enemies, who greedily gaped for that occaſion.

rowl thy ſelf in the duſt] Thou nation of Iſrael, in ſigne of extreme ſorrow do thus, Jer. 6. 26. The name of Aphrah is not found any where elſe, and yet ſeems to ſignifie ſome noted place: ſome think it likely that it was framed by the Prophet, to make ſome alluſion to the ſenſe of his prophecie: as inſtead of Ephraim, that is to ſay, fruitfulneſſe, he ſaith, houſe of Aphrah, that is to ſay, of aſhes; to ſhew that this tribe, which was ſo mighty ſhould be ruined and brought to aſhes; Thou duſt & aſhes roll thy ſelf in duſt & aſhes; mourn ſo, as v. 12. inſtead of Ramoth, which ſignifieth Altitudes or Heights, he ſaith Maroth, that is to ſay, Bitterneſſe, by reaſon of the great and bitter mourning and lamentation, which ſhould be made in it. Some take this to be that mentioned, Joſh. 18. 23. in the tribe of Benjamin, and ſo the meaning to be that they ſhould mourn thus far from Gath, and the bounds of the Philiſtims, and from places of great concourſe of perſons, going and coming: out of which place, when the Aſſyrians ſhould over-run the countrey, one ſhould not be able to come out. The Cetib of the Maſſorites hath it, I rowled my ſelf in the duſt.

v. 11. Paſſe ye away] Into captivity, loaden with reproaches.

Thou, &c.] Or, thou that dwelleſt fairly.

inhabitant] Heb. Inhabitreſſe.

Saphir] It ſignifies fair: this may allude to Samaria; that inſtead of her fairneſſe, ſhe ſhall be expoſed to foul ignominy, and ſhameful nakedneſſe. Some take the names mentioned in this and the next verſe, to be appellative words, noting out the fair and fruitful, and the rough and barren parts and places of the kingdom of Judah. Others to be proper names of neighbouring places, through which the enemie muſt paſſe; when he came againſt Judah.

ſhame naked] Iſaiah 47. 3. Jer. 13. 22.

the inhabitant] 2 Kings 18. 13.

Zaanan] Or the countrey of flocks, a place of coming forth: full of flocks, and paſture for them. Symmachus tranſlates it, the abounding habitation. This ſome make to allude to Sion: ſome to ſome other place that uſed much to come forth abroad: yet contrary to her cuſtom, ſhall not dare now to come forth, ſeeing the mournfull miſeries and captivities of her neighbours.

Beth-ezel] Or a place near: or a houſe of ſeparation: becauſe ſay ſome, God ſhall forſake it, as an unclean place.

his ſtanding] Hebr. his preſenting, meaning his defending. For the Hebrews when they would ſay defend one, did ſay, preſent himſelf for one: See Exod. 32. 26. Numb. 14. 14. Iſaiah 21. 8. Others, the enemy ſhall not depart before he hath overcome you: and ſo you ſhall pay for his tarrying. Others thus: That the neighbour places ſhall learn of you, by your example, to ſtand and ſtay at home, ſeeing the calamities of others: and not dare to go forth to comfort and aſſiſt them. Others thus, that thoſe barren rugged places ſhall receive and maintain their ſtanding and ſubſiſtance from the more fair and fertile places. Such various interpretations do theſe two obſcure and difficult verſes admit. The Tranſlation may be thus: The mourning of the houſe of Ezel ſhall receive from you her ſtanding. The Vulgar Latine thus: Domus vicina accipiet a vobis, quæ ſtetit ſibimet.

v. 12. of Maroth] Or bitterneſſes, or ſharp rough places, Of this ſee on the 10. verſe.

waited carefully for good] Or, was grieved for good, ſick for it: which they loſt, and carefully expected in vain: but were caſt out of their former good and happy eſtate, by thoſe publike calamities. And thus the Targum. LXX. have the word begun, for waited.

but evil came] The evil of calamity and affliction.

from] He the author of it, whoſoever was the inſtrument.

unto the gate of Jeruſalem] Rabſhakeh ſhut up Jeruſalem it ſelf. And therefore Maroſh might well be fruſtrated of her expectation, and mourn for her loſſe.

v. 13. Lachiſh] Lachiſh had a king: who with his city were conquered by Joſhuah, chap. 10. 23, 32. and allotted to the tribe of of Judah, Joſh. 15. 39. It was fortified by Rehoboam, King Amaziah fled thither from conſpirators, and was there murdered, 2 Kings 14. 19. Sennacherib beſieged it, 2 Kings 18. 14. 17. Nebuchadnezzar fought againſt it, before he took Jeruſalem.

binde the chariot] To flee with all ſpeed before it were too late: for there is no abiding for thee in the city, by reaſon of the enemy, the Aſſyrian, who comes to beſiege thee, 2 Kings 18. 14. 17. and chap. 19. 8.

to the ſwift beaſt] That is, horſes, or Dromedaries, or other beaſts which could run very ſwiftly.

ſhe is the beginning] Hence it appears that Lachiſh was firſt infected with the ten Tribes idolatry; and that from thence it paſſed even to Jeruſalem, ſome apply this to her confederaſie with Jeruſalem, againſt Amaziah, 2 King. 14. 19. And not unworthily, ſhe that would not ſuffer her King flying to her for ſuccour and ſafety, to eſcape; ſhould now her ſelf, though ſhe flee never ſo ſwiftly, yet not eſcape. Thus God revengeth Rebellion and conſpiracies againſt Kings, and the murdering of them: thus ſeverely and ſurely, at laſt; though defer'd neer a hundred years.

in thee] The converſion of the ſpeech to Lachiſh ſheweth her to be very guilty; and to have opened the door to let in the idolatries of Iſrael into Judah.

v. 14. give preſents] To buy the friendſhip and aſſiſtance of the city of the Philiſtines, and of other cities of that Nation, againſt the Aſſyrians: yet all ſhall be in vain.

to Moreſheth Gath] To diſtinguiſh it from another Moreſheth; that verſe 1. or that Joſh. 15. 44. In the tribe of Judah.

Achzib] That is, a lie, it appears by Joſh. 19. 29. Judg. 1. 39. That this city was one of thoſe, out of which the Canaanites could not be driven; and it ſeems that upon this invaſion of the Aſſyrians, the Iſraelites had made a league with thoſe Nations, by whom they were deluded, either through weakneſs, or perfidiouſneſs: and Micah among thoſe cities hath made choice of Achzib, by reaſon of the ſignification of the name, which is a lie. This lying Achzib ſhall prove a lie: Their hired auxiliaries ſhould fail their truſt; or not be able to help them. No ſuccour, or reſiſtance againſt God, and his judgements. And theſe particular addreſſes and occurrences thus foretold make Gods hand to be ſeen more cleerly in the buſineſs, when theſe things ſhould come to be accompliſhed.

v. 15. yet will I bring an heir] I wil cauſe the Aſſyrians to come, who ſhall make themſelves Lords of thee, and thy goods.

to Mareſhah] A city of Judah, Joſh. 15. 44. And this alſo ſeemes to have been choſen out by reaſon of the nearneſs which is betweeen the name of heir, and Mareſhah. A poſſeſſour ſhall poſſeſſe Mareſhah. See 1 Chron. 8. 13. And if this be the Prophets own City where he was born, we ſee he is no acepter of perſons; he ſpares not them.

he ſhall come] Or, the glory of Iſrael ſhall come, &c.

Adullam] A city of Judah, Joſh. 15. 35. 1 Sam. 22. 1. 2 Sam. 23. 13. 1 Chron. 11. 15. 2 Chron. 11. 7. To the cave there David fled. And this was a city of note after the return from the captivity, Nehe. 11. 30.

the glory of Iſrael] Some underſtand this of Jeruſalem, ſome rather of Adullam, appoſitively the glory of Iſrael. And this, ſome by way of ſcorn, that poor Adullam ſhould then be the glory of Iſrael; the glory of Iſrael ſhould be brought to that Low eſtate.

v. 16. Make thee bald] That is, O thou nation of the Jews, make moſt bitter lamentation. See Job 1. 20. Iſai. 3. 24. & 15. 2 & 22. 12. Jer. 7. 29. & 48. 37. & 41. 5. Lev. 19. 27. 28. & 21. 5. Ezech. 7. 18.

thy delicate children] Which by abuſing my long patience and indulgence, thou didſt bring up ſo delicately and daintily; ſwimming in thy pleaſures, and drowned in thy delights; not heeding thy ſins, or my judgements.

as the eagle] When ſhe changeth her feathers; or groweth bald.

for they are gone] Captives and exiles; ſo as the land remains deſolate and waſte. He ſpeaks of the future time in the preſent or preter tenſe, for certainty of the propheſie.

CHAP. II.

Verſe 1. WO unto them] From their idolatry; the Prophet now comes to charge them firſt with Inhumanity, and cruel covetous oppreſſion of their brethren: To which he adjoyns Gods ſore judgements threatned for it. And ſecondly, he chargeth them with Impiety againſt God, and his prophets, in preſcribing to them what, and how to preach and propheſie, intermixing withall the former accuſation of their cruel oppreſſing their brethren: And returns the ſecond time to renew Gods threatnings and judgements againſt them for theſe ſins. He is vehement in his ſermon, and ſevere; becauſe he ſaw the nature of their ſins, and their boldnes in them ſo required.

unto them] He diſtinguiſheth not here between Iſrael, and Judah; But ſeems to comprehend both.

that deviſe] Hoſ. 7. 6. Our deviſings, thoughts, imaginations, muſt be good and juſt.

iniquity] Fraud, force, wrongs.

upon their beds] Pſal. 36. 4. They reſt not then, in the time and place of reſt, from evil. So reſtleſſe are ſinners, and greedy covetous perſons; ſo ſet upon miſchief.

Morning] As ſoon as they riſe they will not delay, or loſe any time, but preſently execute their wicked deviſes of the night.

becauſe] Or, when.

in the power] What hurt they are able to do, that they dare do, and are ready to do, when any hope of gain and getting doth any wayes appear. So Prov. 3. 27. when it is in the power of thine hand to withhold it.

v. 2. fields] Iſaiah 5. 8.

and take them] As greedy, and cunning, to covet and compaſſe; ſo ready and audacious to execute and practiſe; no ſooner the one, then the other; nothing ſhall ſcape their fingers.

oppreſſe] Or, defraud, v. 8.

v. 3. againſt this family] Of Iſrael, and Judah. For God here diſtinguiſheth them not.

do I deviſe] As ye deviſed evilly verſe 1. ſo I ſleep not, but am watchfull, and deviſing my deviſes againſt your evil doings an evil] Not of ſin, but of puniſhment.

from which] Though hypocrites do ever promiſe impunity to themſelves, and think to eſcape one way or other, yet they but deceive themſelves, and ſhall be deceived: Their necks that would not ſubmit to the yoak of obedience, ſhall lie under the burden of puniſhment.

haughtily] As now ye do: the ſcæne ſhall be changed; your pride abated; even that pride wherein ye ſlight and deſpiſe all the threatnings of the prophets.

is evil] Or, will be evil, to break them that would not bow and bend themſelves to obedience.

v. 4. In that day] Of Gods judgements and viſitation. See Iſaiah 2. 10. and 7. 17. and 10. 3. and 13. 6. 9. and 22. 5. Jer. 30. 7. and 46. 10. Ezek. 7. 10. 12. Amos 5. 18.

a parable] Parables and proverbs ſhall be taken up againſt the Jews.

and Lament] Lamentations ſhall be taken up over them. See Jer. 9. 17, 18. 2 Chron. 35. 25. Job 3. 8. Eccleſ. 12. 5. Amos 5. 16. whiles your enemies and ill-willers ſhall deride your miſeries you ſhall weep.

with a dolefull Lamentation] Hebr. with lamentation of lamentations. Ezek. 2. 10. and this ſhall be for a lamentation.

we be utterly ſpoiled] Jer. 9. 19.

he hath changed] The Aſſyrians and Chaldeans, as Gods inſtruments.

the portion] The ſtate and condition, the lot and portion, and inheritance which God hath given them, Chap. 1. 15.

how hath he] Thus the Jews lament, and ſay that there is no hope of reſtitution, ſeeing their poſſeſſions are divided among the enemies; and themſelves carried captives into forreign nations.

turning away] Or, inſtead of reſtoring.

v. 5. Therefore thou ſhalt] By reaſon of the ſins ſet down, verſ. 1, 2. you ſhall be put out of all right and ſhare in the Church and people of God; whereof the driving out of the holy land ſhall be a ſigne.

caſt a cord by lot] Deut. 32. 8, 9. Numb. 34. 13. Pſalm. 78. 55. and 105. 11. Now, not they for themſelves ſhould do it; but ſtrangers and enemies ſhould divide their land and portion for themſelves for their uſe and poſſeſſion. See Amos 7. 17.

in the congregation of the Lord] He may likely thus ſtile them ironically, and ſo ſting them with remorſe; in that they had forfeited the favour of this title, and loſt the true right and intereſt in it.

v. 6. propheſie ye not] Or, propheſie not as they propheſie, Heb. Drop, &c. See concerning this manner of ſpeaking which is very frequent amongſt the prophets, Ezek. 21. 2. Amos 2. 12. and 7. 12, 13, 16. Eſay 30. 10. Jer. 11. 21. and 5. 31. The conciſeneſſe uſed in this verſe occaſions variety of Interpretations. Moſt take them to be words of profane men, who would hinder the free exerciſe of the prophets office, and of his fellow-prophets.

they ſhall not propheſie to them] Gods reply: that is to ſay, they ſhall preach in deſpite of you; and if it be not for you ye rebels, which wrong them; yet it ſhall be for the ſalvation of mine elect, as Eſay 8. 16. And they ſhall not propheſie to you, as your falſe prophets do, that no ſhame ſhall overtake you; ſome render the words and meaning thus; as if the wicked people ſhould ſay, Propheſie ye (true Prophets) not at all; let thoſe propheſie, (meaning their falſe prophets) The other propheſie not, as theſe of ours do, That namely no ſhame ſhall befall us, verſe 11. 1 Kings, 22. 8, &c.

that they ſhall not take ſhame] See the Targum. Or, Non retrocedet ignominia. Some expound thus, as was ſaid, that the falſe prophets propheſied, that the people ſhould ſuffer no ſhame, no blame, or harme. Others thus, That God will not have his true prophets propheſie any more unto this forlorne people, who thus inhibit them; leſt they ſhould take and ſuffer ſhame, by loſing their labour, and being lyable to their ſcoffs and reproaches. A moſt heavy judgement.

v. 7. O thou that art named] A leſſe ſin were this in others. But a prodigious ſin in thee: art named; but art not in truth, as Apoc. 3. 1. and Chap. 2. 2.

the houſe of Jacob] But deſervedly may rather be named an Hittite, Amorite, of Sodome and Gomorrah; of their father the devil. See Ezek. 16. 3. Eſay 1. 10. John 8. 44.

is the ſpirit of the Lord ſtraitned] Or, ſhortned. Is not this an execrable boldneſſe in you, to oppoſe your ſelves againſt my prophets? and the power and authority of my Spirit, which from time to time hath ſet my prophets on to preach my word? is it now leſſened or weakned, that it ſhould yield to your deſires? See Jer. 6. 11. and 20. 7. 9. Mic. 3. 8.

are theſe his doings?] The cauſe of all theſe evils, and threatnings, which are denounced againſt you by my prophets, is in you, and not in me; and therefore you wrongfully complain of my prophets, as if they were the authours of all the evil that befalleth you, Eſay 28. 21. Lam. 3. 33. Or, are theſe the doings of the houſe of Jacob? are they ſuch as thoſe you do? your doings then being ſuch as they are, no marvel if the prophets deal ſo roughly with you. Yet ſome make all theſe words to be the ſayings of the rebellious Jews, and ſo expound them, as animating one another by them to contemn Gods words and threatnings in the mouthes of his prophets.

do not my words do good?] Quarrel not, ſnarle not at my word; as ye do. The fault is not in my word, in my prophets ſpeaking it; but in you. You may thank your ſins for all the burdenſome and threatning words of my prophets. If you will be good men, and believe, you ſhall hear nothing from my prophets but promiſes and aſſurances of graces, and bleſſings: if you be ſinners, but corrigible and capable of repentance, you ſhall have by them healthful means of converſion.

v. 8. even of late] Yeſterday, which ſometimes ſignifies with the Hebrews the time paſt, though it be a good while ago.

my people] By covenant and profeſſion; though ſometimes not my people, through their ſins, as Hoſ. 1. 9. And ſo here ſome render the words and ſenſe thus; that was heretofore my people, under my hand and government; but now eſtranged from me and renounced by me.

is riſen up as an enemie] Againſt me, that is, againſt God, ſay ſome, in rebellion and diſobedience. Againſt one another, ſay others. And here they bring in the conſpiracies againſt their Kings; and their murdering one of another; in both kingdoms; and the mutual claſhings of the one kingdom againſt the other; which immediately preceded theſe times.

as an enemy] One againſt another; ſubjects againſt their king; one kingdom againſt another. See 2 Kings 12. 20. and chap. 14. 13, 14. 19. and chap. 15.

ye pull off the robe] Whereas your forefathers ſhewed their valour in juſt wars, you uſe nothing but thefts and murders againſt one another; ſpoyling one another; and ſo ſpoiling your ſelves of the honour of being my people; notwithſtanding all your outward ceremonies and ſervices.

with the garment] Heb. Over againſt a garment. For which God ſo tenderly provides, Exod. 22. 26. 27. Deut. 24. 13. 17. See Job 22. 6. Amos 2. 8.

from them that paſſe by ſecurely] In deep peace, ſuſpecting no danger; yet ye make a prey of them, as if it were in time of war.

as men averſe from war] So peaceable they, and little expecting ſuch hoſtile violence. Others thus, ye turn ſpoilers, as ſouldiers uſe to take preyes and ſpoiles returning from warre.

v. 9. The women] Or, wives; namely, the poor women, out of thoſe houſes where they had lived all their time in pleaſure and eaſe, with their huſbands and children. They ſpared neither ſex nor age; neither women nor children; which yet are uſually ſpared in time of war it ſelf. See 2 Chron. 28. 8.

my glory] You bring them into ſuch a ſtate of miſerie and ſlavery, that the ſplendor and honour of being my children, and members of my people, appears in them no more.

for ever] Ye ever continue on to do thus, without repenting ever. The LXX do much corrupt the ſenſe of this verſe.

v. 10. Ariſe ye] Go and depart out of this land into captivity. The land will bear you no longer, but ſpue you out; God will ſuffer you no longer in it, but drive you out. See Levit. 25. 18. Deut. 28. 63, 64. Hoſ. 9. 3.

for this is not your reſt] Canaan was called the reſt of Gods people, and of God himſelf. Jer. 31. 2. Pſalm 95. 11. and 132. 14. Heb. 4. 3. It was as it were a neſt covered with Gods wings and given to Gods people for an inheritance. They could not be perſwaded by the prophets that they ſhould be driven out of it. But Micah tells them otherwiſe, that becauſe they had broken the condition and covenant by which they held it, God would not ſuffer them to dwell upon it, Levit. 18. 18. 28. and 20. 22. ye have thought to ſettle your ſelves in your countrey, in fair and magnificent houſes, in reſt; but I will ſhortly drive you out into captivity.

it ſhall deſtroy] The pollution of the countrey by publike and reigning ſins ſhall be a cauſe that ye ſhall not live in reſt nor ſecuritie: but that you ſhall be driven out and diſperſed; as Jer. 9. 19. and 10. 18. Ezek. 36. 12.

v. 11. If a man walking in the ſpirit and falſhood] Or, walk with the winde and lie falſly. Namely, falſe prophets, who ſay they have divine inſpirations, and dally with the people, promiſing them good, and plenty, are thoſe which they accept of, and hearken unto. See Eſay 30. 10. They love and like thoſe prophets that will cry peace, and ſpeak pleaſing things, and ſow pillows under their elbows: they would be foſtered and bolſtered up in their ſins; elſe the prophets are no prophets for them.

v. 12. I will ſurely aſſemble] An Evangelical promiſe, ſay ſome, of gathering together the univerſal Church under the kingdom of Chriſt: Jer. 31. 10. oppoſed to the precedent diſperſion: others take this as a mocking of the ſayings of the falſe prophets to the people, making them ſuch promiſes as theſe. But the truth of all he plainly ſets down in the next verſe, ſetting forth Gods fearful judgements againſt them, as if they were preſent before their eyes. Aſſemble and gather them, as it were into one place. See that Joel 3. 2. 11, 12, 13.

all of them] The whole multitude and body of them.

the remnant] That ſhall remain and eſcape out of former calamities and deſtructions.

as the ſheep of Bozrah] Bozrah, the Edomites chief citie, Eſay 34. 6. and 63. 1. Amos 1. 12. Jer. 49. 13. 22. This citie and countrey adjacent abounded in ſheep. There was another of that name in Moab, Jer. 48. 24. abounding alſo in ſheep, and other cattel, and paſture for them in that tract, 2 Kings 3. 4.

in the midſt of their fold] So the Targum: I will fold and pin them in there, for ſlaughter and deſtruction.

great noiſe] Their multitude of men and People ſhall not deliver them, though they glory ſo much in them.

v. 13. The breaker is come up] Some thus, I will take away all hinderances, which may hinder the ſpiritual deliverance of the Church, beating down, and laying plain all manner of oppoſitions Eſay 57. 14. and 62. 10. Others rather underſtand this of the Aſſyrian and Chaldean, to deſtroy them.

they have broken up and have paſſed] The gates ſhall be broken up, that they may paſſe in troops, and go out in multitudes, to be led away into exile and captivity.

and their king] Namely Jeſus Chriſt, Hoſ. 1. 11. Others rather underſtand Hoſheah, and Zedekiah led into captivity; 2 Kings 17. and Chap. 25. 4. 8. And this was a great aggravation of their miſery. For they prided themſelves in their king and kingdom upon their underſtanding of Gods promiſes, that their kingdom ſhould never fail: See that Lam. 4. 20. yet he ſhould paſſe before them captive; 2 Kings 25. 7.

and the Lord on the head of them] As leader of the enemies armies; to execute by them his judgement threatned in the former words.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. A*ND I ſaid*] This is the beginning of a new diſcourſe the of prophet, ſay ſome. But rather it is a continuance and proſecution of the former; againſt the Princes, and againſt the Prophets; more fully ſhewing both their ſins of covetouſneſſe chiefly; and alſo Gods judgements for them. He tells here, not all he ſaid and preached, in the whole courſe of his miniſtery, which was for many years; But he tells the chief heads, and ſhort ſums of what he moſt ſtood upon.

hear] This ſhews they were loth to hear, they were ſo ſetled upon the lees of their ſins: which puts him upon this incitation.

of the houſe of Iſrael] This very often is underſtood of all the Jews, of both kingdoms; ſo much uſed becauſe of the honour that is in the name (prevailing with God); and to argue and aggravate the more their degenerate ingratitude and apoſtacie.

is it not for you] Whom God hath thus honoured to be Princes and heads over his choſen people? what ingratitude then were it in you, and how vile a ſin, to abuſe this power to the undoing of them?

to know judgement] Ye that are the eyes of the people, muſt know to guide others. See Ezra 7. 25. And judgement is that thing, which is juſt and lawfull, both to govern my people aright, and alſo to diſcharge your own conſciences. See Jer. 5. 4,5. Deut.17.v.18. But ſee their ſin, ver.9.

v. 2. who hate the good] Their doings clean contrary to their duty; as if purpoſely they ſet themſelves to wage war againſt all equity and humanity; ſuch covetous cruel oppreſſors themſelves were. Gods own Church and people were brought to this ſad eſtate.

pluck off their skin] Their furious rapacity ſurmounted all bounds of humanity; as if they had been not Men, but Wolves, Lions, or ſuch ravenous Beaſts. See Zeph.3.3. Ezek. 22.27.

v. 3. eat the fleſh] Pſal.14.4. The Prophet condemneth the wicked Governours, not onely of covetouſneſs, theft, and murder, but compareth them to Wolves, Lions, and moſt cruel Beaſts and Butchers. He ſpares them not, much leſſe flatters them; but with this boldneſs of ſpirit he thus decyphers, exaggerates, and chargeth their ſins upon them.

and as fleſh] Ezek.11.6,7.

v. 4. then ſhall they cry] Though now by their greatneſs they think themſelves priviledged above other Men, both from lawes, and from puniſhments, or judgements; yet ſuch calamities ſhall come upon them, as ſhall force them to cry out, wring from them clamours and cryes, Pſalm 18. 42. Proverbs 1.28. Jeremiah 11. 11. and 14.12. That is, When I ſhall viſit their wickedneſſe by judgements ſet down in the former Chapters. For though I hear the godly before they cry, Iſaiah 65.24. yet I will not hear theſe though they cry, Iſaiah 1.15. Ezek 8.8. Iames 2.13. 1 Pet.3. 11,12. For their prayers are as thoſe, Hoſea 7. 14. rather murmurings, complaints, and blaſphemies againſt GOD; then petitions qualified with faith, and repentance in the ſight of God.

He will even hide] They ſhall be without all remedy: God himſelf will be implacable to ſuch deſperate ſinners.

v.5. thus ſaith the Lord] He ſpeaks out of Gods mouth, to adde the more authority and weight to his word.

concerning the prophets] He comes from the Magiſtrates, to the Miniſters; from the Princes, to the Prophets. Theſe two ſhould have governed and regulated all; but being corrupt themſelves, ruined all, Iſaiah 56.10,11. Ezekiel 22. 25.

my people] So verſ. 3. If Heathen Magiſtrates and Miniſters, had done it upon an Heathen people, the matter had been leſſe. But this aggravates the fault.

Erre] They were Impoſtors: and ſuch Impoſtors as the next words ſhew. See Eſay 9.16. Jer. 14.14. and 23.21. and 27.15. and 29.8.9. and 50.6. Mat.24.11.

bite with their teeth] Chap.2.11. have that given them that may ſerve their belly, and ſatisfie their gluttony: their covetouſneſs and gluttony cauſed their ſin.

cry peace] They devour all their ſubſtance, and then flatter them, promiſing that all ſhall go well; that God will bleſſe them, becauſe they are ſo bountiful to his Prophets. Thus they ſell their benedictions: See Jer. 8.11. and 6.14. But if one reſtrain from their bellies, then they invent alwayes to miſchief. Thus under a falſe ſhew of goodneſs and mildneſſe, they are ravening Wolves, both to ſoul and body, and welfare, Mat.7.15. See Ezek.13.18,19.

v. 6. therefore] Ezek.13.23. Zach.13.4.

night] As you have loved to walk in darkneſs, and to propheſie lies; ſo God ſhall reward you with groſſe blindneſs and ignorance; ſo that when all others ſhall ſee the bright beams of Gods grace, ye ſhall, as blinde men, grope as in the night. See Iſaiah 8.20.22. And ye ſhall be diſcovered what ye are, even nothing leſſe then what ye boaſt your ſelves to be; even utterly blinde, without any viſion; and, dark, without any divination; not having any dram, or drop of a prophetical ſpirit in you: and ſo ye ſhall become deſpicable among the people, ſpoiled of that honourable title that ye pretended to, and made ſuch uſe of.

that ye ſhall not have a viſion] Heb. from a viſion.

that ye ſhall not divine] Heb. from divining.

the ſun] So great ſhall their excæcation and blindneſs be, that at noon day they ſhall ſee nothing; be blinder then the common people, and be noted by the people ſo to be.

v. 7. Then ſhall the ſeers] Namely, the Prophets though they be falſe ones, 1 Sam.9.9. He explicates the former ſentence. Aſhamed of themſelves, ſhameful in the eyes of the people; that they ſhall not dare to pretend to what formerly they did. Zach.13.4,5,6.

all cover their lips] Heb. upper lip; in token of mourning and confuſion, Lev.13.45. Ezek.24.17.22. when God ſhall diſcover them to the world, they ſhall be afraid to ſpeak; for all ſhall know that they were but falſe Prophets, and did belye the Word of God. This ſhall be their reward and puniſhment.

for there is no anſwer of God] Verſ.4. It ſhall not be, as Jer.5. 31. The people here ſhall ſee their groſs impoſtures, and how devoid they are of all prophetical light and illumination; their ſhame ſhall be ſo diſcovered.

v. 8. but truly I am] What they falſely pretend to be.

full] The Prophet being aſſured of his vocation by the Spirit of God, ſetteth himſelf alone againſt all the wicked; ſhewing how God both gave him gifts, ability, and knowledge, to diſcern between good and evil; and alſo conſtancy to reprove the ſins of the people, and not to flatter them, as the falſe Prophets did, v. 5. This courage becomes the true Prophets, in ſuch a caſe. And thus Elias, 1 Kings 18.22.25. and Micaiah, chap.22.8.13.28.

of power] God doth furniſh his Prophets with extraordinary gifts where neceſſity ſo requires.

by the ſpirit of the Lord] He acknowledgeth the author; he brags nothing of himſelf. This gift diſtinguiſheth him from the other Prophets, which had a common calling and vocation with him. In bare outward titles we muſt not reſt, nor be blinded with them.

and of judgement, and of might] Two neceſſary endowments of a Miniſter, Jer.1.18.

to declare unto Jacob] Iſaiah 58. 1. both their ſins, and Gods judgements. He doth not then flatter the people for favour; as the other Prophets did, and as the people deſired to have it ſo: but he comes to convict them of their flagitious offences before all the World, to arraign, judge, and condemn them, if they repent not.

v. 9. Hear this] Verſe 1.

ye heads] He preſently makes proof how full he was of power, by the Spirit of the Lord: He ſets upon the Heads and Princes; really ſhews he fears them not; yet gives them their due titles, and acknowledgeth their rights.

that abhor judgement] He tels them their ſins to their faces; and tells them to the full, he minceth them not. Though Princes be Gods, Pſal.82.6. yet Gods Word is not tyed; but tyeth Princes, Pſal.149.8.

v. 10. they build up Zion with blood] He changeth the perſon, as not vouchſafing to ſpeak to them any more; but of them, and their ſins before all the World. Thus the Spirit convinceth the World, John 16.8. Ezek.22.27. Zeph.3.3.

with blood] Heb. bloods. They do fill Jeruſalem wherein my ſacred Temple and Ark are, my holy city, with ſtately Palaces, but built by murder, rapine, and extortion. See Jer.22, 13. Hab. 2.9.

v. 11. the heads thereof] He is ſtill upon the great ones though they of all others would leaſt endure ſuch rebukes. Other ranks of people were naught too; yet he is ever and anon at theſe, and that boldly and freely without fear: becauſe their ſins were moſt exemplary, and infectious, and the cauſe and Fountain of corruption in others, which they by their places ſhould have curbed and corrected.

judge for reward] Of this; and the miſchief of it: See Exod. 23.8. Deut. 16.19. and 27.25. Ezek.22.12. Prov.17.23. Eſay 5. 23. Hoſ.4.18.

and the prophets] Both State Political, and Eccleſiaſtical, all corrupt, and given up to covetouſneſs, and bribery, chap.7.3. Eſay 1.23. Amos 5.12. They were all mercenary, and hirelings for money, and hire, and that is the root of all evil, 1 Tim.6.10.

yet they lean upon the Lord] Groſſe hypocrites that yet would fain thus flatter, ſooth up, and deceive themſelves; that durſt thus dally with the Lord, and were not aſhamed thus to mock him. The godly cannot in true faith too much lean upon the Lord, and upon his Word. But this leaning here, is not that true leaning of the heart, but a ſeeming to truſt and reſt in bare and vain outward titles, and external ceremonious rites; as if theſe would ſerve the turn, though themſelves were never ſo wicked. Thus Papiſts lean upon the name of the Church, and the bodily exerciſes of their religion, be themſelves never ſo lewd and profane; and thus they ſleep and rock themſelves in their ſecurity.

Is not the Lord among us?] Though they commit ſuch cruel and execrable ſinnes, yet they will preſume that God is for them, and that he will defend them from all evil, as if he were tied to them, and could not go away from them. See Eſay 48.2. Jeremy 7.4. Romans 2.17. Theſe be their words, full of haughty pride, and confidence. They ſpeak as if no doubt or queſtion were to be made of it; they inſult as if none durſt gain-ſay it, that God could not forſake them, unleſſe he would deny himſelf: Temple and Ark was with them, his promiſes paſt to them: mean while nothing regarding the condition on their part, upon which the Lord promiſed the continuance of his reſidence among them. This is the manner of wicked Hypocrites.

none evil] Thus the falſe Prophets bare them in hand: at leaſt no ſuch evil as Micah threatned ſhould befall them.

v. 12. therefore ſhall Zion] That glorious and holy Mount, Pſal.132.13,14.

for your ſake] For your groſs hypocriſie; impious and blaſphemous boaſting; to the great ſhame and diſhonour of Gods holy name, by your execrable ſins.

be plowed as a field] See that chap. 1. 6. Like that of the Poet, Jam ſeges eſt ubi Troja fuit: laid ſo waſt and ſo levelled; that no foot-ſtep ſhould remain of what it had been. Jere. 26. 18.

and Jeruſalem] The City of the great king, the praiſe of the earth; That city which lay under the ſafe-guard of the Temple.

and the mountain of the houſe] He is at it againe, becauſe this was a thing to them incredible; that Gods houſe, and Temple wherein they ſo much gloried, and truſted. Jere. 7. 4. This throne, wherein he ſate between the Cherubims; where the Ark of his preſence was; the glory of Iſrael, 1 Sam. 4. 21. And of the God of Iſrael; to which houſe he had made ſuch glorious promiſes; 2 Chron. 33. 7. 8. Ezech. 8. 3. That this ſhould become as a mountainous forreſt and wilderneſs; was all one to them as to bring and jumble heaven and earth together; to reduce all to the firſt Chaos; to overthrow Gods own Throne and Chair of State. Thus fixed they were upon the Promiſes, without any heed taken to the conditions annexed. Let us take heed of the like errour, in eying the glorious Promiſes of the Goſpel, without hearkening to the conditions therein expreſſed. This ſame Threatning of Micah here, is mentioned and made uſe of in Jeremies time, and caſe, Jere. 26. 18. And expreſly noted to have been uttered by Micah in the dayes of the reign of the good King Hezechiah: which might raiſe a wonder and aſtoniſhment that ſuch crying crimes ſhould reign among the Princes, Prieſts, Prophets, and people, in, and under the government of that pious Prince, notwithſtanding al he could do by his power and place, and good example to the contrary. But withall we muſt remember that he had a moſt wicked father Ahaz, as he had a moſt wicked ſon Manaſſeh. And therefore it is, that Hezechiah took well with this ſeverity of Micah; and Micah did well thus ſtrangely to threaten, in the dayes of good King Hezechiah. The good King was willing and glad to be thus aſſiſted by the ſtout and bold Prophet; And he humbled, and behaved himſelf upon this ſame threatning, as we read, Jere. 26. 19.

CHAP. IIII.

Verſe 1. BUt] The conſolation of the remnant by the promiſes of the Goſpel. An holy remnant in all deſolations and devaſtations God ever preſerved; being mindfull ſtill of his covenant. Now leaſt they ſhould be quite diſheartned by that former fearfull threatning, the prophet applies himſelf, and his ſpeech to them; The reſt ſlighted the threatning, and contemned God, and his Prophet; and that under the pretence of a ceremonious piety, and Leviticall ſervice; as if their legall ſacrifices were a lawfull price and redemption for other ſins. They therefore needed not, nor yet were capable of any ſuch conſolation. But the Godly tremble at Gods threatnings, and at any ſigne of his wrath; And therefore the Prophet for their ſakes ſtraight adjoyns this wonderfull conſolation to that dreadfull denuntiation. As it is uſuall with the Prophets, to adde promiſes to threatnings. And here Micah comforts the faithfull of that age with ſuch evangelicall promiſes, as that yet the bleſſing and benefits of them redounds moſt to us; The calling of the Gentiles, and conſequently our ſalvation, being included herein.

laſt dayes] See Eſay 2. 2. 3. 4. whence Micah is not aſhamed to take this, when Chriſt ſhall come, and put an end to the ſhadows and ceremonies; to the Temple, and that Leviticall ſervice, and Adminiſtration; and bring in a new world, and renovation of all things, by his Redemption and Reſtauration of his Church. See Joel 2. 28. Act. 2. 17. 1 Peter 1. 20. Heb. 1. verſe 2. 1 Cor. 10. verſe 11. 2 Tim. 3. 1. 2 Cor. 5. 17. Heb. 8. 8. &c. And chap. 9. 15. Matt. 26. 28. John 13. 34. And by this phraſe is often meant the whole time between Chriſts coming in the fleſh, and his other coming in glory; as Iſai. 2. 2. 1 John 2. 18. And in the interim between Micahs time, and the time of Chriſts coming, the prophet intimates a long continuance of time, for the courſe and current of Gods anger, before this conſolation come.

ſword againſt] Not condemning the uſe of weapons; as Anabaptiſts do: but ſhewing how the hearts of Gods people ſhall ſtand mutually affected; whoſe peace and love begun in this life ſhall be perfected in the next, Acts 4. 32.

v. 4. ſit every man under his vine] A figurative deſcription of the Churches ſpiritual peace and ſecuritie under Chriſts kingdom, Jer. 30. 10. Zach. 3. 10. See on Eſay 2. 4. and 11. 6. and Chap. 35. 1 Kings 4. 24.

and none ſhall make them afraid] For every true Goſpeller ſhall leave off to be injurious, ſhall become peaceable; there ſhall be no cauſe of danger, no need of fear. That Lev. 26. 6. ſhall now more fully take place.

for the mouth] All this ſhall certainly come to paſſe, ſeeing God hath ſolemnly promiſed it; how incredible ſoever it may ſeem to be to carnal reaſon, and contrary to that, Chap. 3. 12.

v. 5. For all people will walk] It is an uſual, and almoſt a natural thing for men to hold the ſame religion as their forefathers did: but under the Meſſias it ſhall be an eſpecial gift of Gods grace in all true believers, that being enlightned in the true faith, and knowledge of the true God, they ſhall never depart from it. See Pſalm 20. 7. yea, though all the people of the world be divided into ſeverall ſects; and every one addicted to their ſeveral ſuperſtitions; though theſe diſtractions, and other troubles might ſeek to weaken, or overthrow the conſtancy of our faith, in adhering to God, and his worſhip; yet we will not be overborn with theſe, or any ſuch difficulties, or obſtructions whatſoever.

we will walk] We will live and perſevere in the faith, invocation, and ſervice of the God which ſhall be revealed unto us, as it were in his own name. See Luke 10. 12, Zech. 10. 12. or more largely thus; Though mean while before the coming of Chriſt, we ſhall ſee all kinde of confuſion and miſery upon our ſelves; Though the Gentiles ſhall glory in their ſeveral wayes of worſhip, and boaſt of the truth of them, and celebrate their gods, and triumph and inſult over us, counting us a loſt people; though univerſality and multitude make againſt us; though every ſect oppoſe their ſuperſtitions to us; and all together conſpire in one againſt us; yet we will not deſpond in our ſelves, nor heed them or their wayes; we will not for all that be as a reed ſhaken with the winde; But truſting to the truth and power of God alone, and reſting upon the verity of his word and promiſe; knowing God in his time will appear: This ſhall ſuffice us, and ſtrengthen us with invincible magnanimitie, to overlook and overcome all difficulties and oppoſitions, and render us firme and inflexible, conſtant in our purpoſe without out any ſhrinking to continue in the unitie of faith, and in the true ſervice, and pure worſhip of the true Jehorah our God.

for ever and ever] This includes the time of the Goſpel. And that notwithſtanding all oppoſitions and obſtructions, yet they will perſevere in this worthy, and magnanimous reſolution for ever more. The true Jehovah and his truth is their ſufficient ground for it.

v. 6. In that day] Mamely in the Meſſias his time, I wil gather into the ſheepfold of my Church, my poor diſperſed, afflicted, & weak believers. He inſiſts ſtil upon that glorious promiſe of the reſtauration of all, both Churches, and kingdom, by the Meſſias; becauſe this muſt ſupport the hearts of the faithfull, who otherwiſe without this in the midſt of ſo many and mighty tentations, muſt needs have been ſwallowed up in many gulfs of deep deſpair.

her that halteth] Ezek. 34. 16. Eſay 35. 6.

gather] According to the promiſes, Deut. 30. 3, 4.

that is driven out] Into captivity and exile; as hereafter ſhe ſhould be. Theſe her miſeries without this promiſe might have cauſed her an hundred times over to deſpair. Therefore the Lord by his prophet is ſo careful betimes to meet with theſe tentations; by multiplying his promiſes in ſo many words.

I have afflicted] I can as eaſily gather her, as I have afflicted her. Both theſe are in my hand, and my doings.

v. 7. and I will make her] Reduplications of his foreſaid promiſes, Zeph. 3. 19. my promiſes word and grace ſhall be preſerved in the reliques of thoſe poor diſperſed Iſraelites; who ſhall be as it were the ſeed of my Church; and the hope of reeſtabliſhment, which I will accompliſh in its due time, with great increaſe. Gods power and pleaſure can raiſe his Church out of the grave. And thus the ſtate of the Church may be ſometimes, as dry bones, Ezek. 37. And not alwayes ſo conſpicuous, and glorious in the eyes of the world. Her new life often appears, as it were, out of many reſurrections from the dead.

a ſtrong nation] That weak Remnant that ſhould be left, after all their diſperſions and deſtructions; that ſame God that could of ſtones raiſe up children to Abraham, would raiſe up to be a ſtrong nation. See Zech. 8. 6. Matth. 19. 26.

and the Lord] Chriſt the eternal head of his Church, who was ſhadowed out in that typical kingdom of David.

ſhall reign] Dan. 7. 14. Luke 1. 33. not ſo obſcurely as he did formerly under the type and ſhadow of the reign of David, and his poſterity. But now more openly, in the perſon and ſpiritual kingdom of his Son, Jeſus Chriſt, the ſon of David, God manifeſted in the fleſh.

in mount Zion] Thence the Law went forth, verſe 2. not the Law of mount Sinai; but of mount Zion, Eſay 40. 9. and 52. 7. The glad tidings and goſpel of peace, which there began, and thence went forth, and filled the world; by which the Lord reigneth, and ſhall reign for ever.

v. 8. O tower of the flock] It may ſeem to be the ſame place which is ſpoken of Gen. 35. 21. and was afterward the tower of the ſheep-gate of Jeruſalem, Neh 3. 1. 32. and chap. 12. 39. So called becauſe the ſheep paſſed through it to the place of the ſheep market, which was neer this gate; and Betheſda neer to it, John 5. 2. By this ſouth gate the paſſage lay open to the kings Palace, to the Temple, to the Fortreſſe of Zion, and to both Jeruſalems. This may well ſerve as a figure of the Church, into which Gods ſheep from all parts of the world are gathered up in ſafety.

the ſtrong hold] It ſeems to be the place called Ophel; that is to ſay, ſtrong hold, 2 Chron. 27. 3. Nehem. 3. 26. to ſignifie the inviolable ſecuritie of the faithful, gathered together into the Church. Here the Vulgar Latine ſeems to read אֹפֶל for עֹפֶל, cloudy for ſtrong hold.

unto thee] And therefore fear not, but be full of hope.

even the firſt dominion] The kingdom as it firſt flouriſhed under David, and Solomon, though it may ſeem quite overthrown, and thoſe promiſes 2 Sam. 7. 12, 13. 16. 29. Pſal. 72. utterly fruſtrated; yet ſhall be raiſed up again in thee, by the ſpiritual and everlaſting kingdom of Chriſt.

v. 9. why doſt thou cry] Why doeſt thou ſo afflict and torment thy ſelf? O Church be comforted: thy king and kingdom is not quite periſhed, though it ſhall ſeem to be ſo, by the Babyloniſh captivity; and many other miſerable calamities; for Chriſt thy true everlaſting king ſhall appear in his time, and ſhall reeſtabliſh his kingdom in thee.

no king?] No king nor counſeller? See Lam. 4. 20. Eſay 3. 3. as Job 12. 17.

for pangs] For want of king and counſeller.

as a woman in travel] This ſimilitude is often uſed, to note out extremity of pain and anguiſh, Pſalm 48. 6. Eſay 13. 8. Jer. 4. 31. and 30. 6. and in ſundry other places.

v. 10. Be in pain] Indeed for the preſent thou haſt reaſon to be perplexed; and I hinder thee not from ſo doing; but take comfort in my promiſes; and bear it patiently; as John 16. 21. See Chap. 5. 3.

in the field] Wandering and diſperſed out of the countrey, prepare thy ſelf to undergo theſe woefull calamities.

there ſhalt thou be delivered] And repeats the word there emphatically, to prop up their faith and hope; that even their greateſt extremities God would uſe as his fitteſt opportunities, for their deliverance; even there in Babylon, there it ſelf to deliver them.

v. 11. Now alſo] The enemies of the Church, many and mighty, gather againſt it, Pſal. 2. 1, 2.

that ſay] Inſult over her proudly, as being maſters of their wiſhes, Eze. 25. 3. and 26. 2. and 36. 2. As thoſe againſt David, Pſalm 35. 25. and 40. 15. and 70. 3.

Let her be defiled] Polluted with blood and ſlaughtered. See Numb. 35. 33. Pſalm 106. 38. and 137. 7. Sacked without any reſpect to her ancient holineſſe; all her ornaments taken away from her.

our eyes look] Obad. 12. The like, Pſal. 35. 21.

v. 12. But they know not] They judge but as blinde men do of colours; as Eſay 55. 8, 9. They inſolently brag, and ſcoff, and domineer, as if all were in the power of their own hands. But they are only drunken with their own fooliſh confidence; they reach not Gods minde. Gods people muſt not meaſure his minde by their bragging blaſphemies: But lift up their thoughts to him, whoſe counſel ſhall ſtand, who wiſely ordereth the inſolencies and inſultations of the enemies, to his Churches good and their own ruine.

his counſel] This is his thought, namely, to cleanſe and chaſtiſe his Church by their means; and afterwards to bruiſe and threſh the enemies out, like corn in the floor. See Iſai. 10. 7. & 21. 10. & 45. 4. 5. Jer. 51. 33. And this is clean contrary to their mind.

v. 13. Ariſe] From thy low and dejected eſtate; wherein thou didſt ſeem to lye as a dead man in the grave. The power of Gods word can thus raiſe the Church.

and threſh] They gathered themſelves to threſh thee. But thou in the end ſhalt threſh them; and ſhalt by me be fitted and enabled to this end and purpoſe, do thou conſume and deſtroy thine enemies. He attributes to the Church that which Chriſt her head doth for her; and ſomtimes alſo by her means. See Iſai. 41. 15. 16. Judg. 8. 7. 2 King. 13. 7. Amos 1. 3. Dan. 2. 34. &c.

horn iron] To puſh them down. See 1 King. 22. 11. Ezech. 34. 21. Amos 6. 13. Dan. 8. 4. Zeph. 1. 19. 21.

thy hoofs braſs] Alluding to the manner of treading out the corn with oxen, 1 Cor. 9. 9. As the manner is in ſome countries at this day. See Pſal. 44. 5. Deut. 25. 4. See 1 King. 22. 11. Pſal. 44. 5. Zech. 1. 21.

and I wil conſecrate their gain] Some make this relate to God; ſome to the Church, that ſhe ſhall conſecrate. The words may ſeem to allude to the interdicts or devotings, whereby certain Nations were accurſed, and all the people condemned to be rooted out, and their goods abſolutely to be conſecrated to God, Levit. 27. 28. Joſh. 6. 17. 19. God will ſubject to his Church Heathen Nations, to this end, that he may be glorified; And this end in thoſe caſes his Church muſt mainly look unto, and care for. This hath reference to all the time of Chriſts kingdom on earth, and hath its finall accompliſhment at the end of the world.

unto the Lord] Both the ſubduers, and the ſubdued, muſt both be ſubject to the Lord; themſelves, and their ſubſtance, conſecrated to him, and his ſervice. See Eſay 18. 7. and chap. 19. 18. 19. 23. 24. 25. Eſay 23. 18. and 60. 6. 7. Pſal. 68. 31, Zeph. 3. 10. Mal. 1. 11. Zech. 14. 16.

CHAP. V.

Verſe 1. NOw] We have in this Chapter Chriſts Birth, Kingdom, and Conqueſt.

gather thy ſelf in troops] Some thus; O Jeruſalem, which haſt hitherto been filled with rapines, like unto thoſe which are committed by robbers on the high way; gather all thy forces together, to reſiſt the Chaldeans, if thou canſt. Others rather underſtand it as a taunt uſed by the Church againſt her enemies, thus; O daughter of Troopes, ye numerous Aſſyrians, and Babylonians, gather your ſelves in troopes, lay ſiege againſt us, baſely abuſe our Judges, rulers and Kings; yet know that out of Bethlehem Ephratah &c. And thus the Church, truſting in Gods former promiſe triumpheth over all the injuries the enemies could do unto her; and that ſpecially by reaſon of that glorious Promiſe in the next verſe.

ſmite] Inſult with all approbrious baſe uſage. See 1 Kings 22. 24. Job. 16. 10. Lam. 3. 30. Matth. 5. 39. A proverbial kinde of ſpeech this is; as that Pſal. 2. 12.

Judge] The city being taken, the King, and all the great ones, ſhall be ſhamefully uſed by the enemies, 2 Kings 25. 6, 7. 19. 20, 21.

v. 2. But thou Bethlehem] Here is their ground of their patience, the riſe of their comfort, and exultation, and inſultation; The Birth of the Meſſias, and the Place where, expreſſed and propheſied of. See Matth. 2. 6. John 7. 42.

Ephratah] Gen. 35. 16. 19. Judges 17. 7. To diſtinguiſh it from Bethlehem in the tribe of Zebulun; Joſh. 19. 15. This, it may be, was ſo called from Ephrath, Calebs wife; 1 Chron. 2. 19.

thou be little] Or, art thou little to be &c. Though at this time thou be the Leaſt, and weakeſt city, amongſt the Tribes of Judah; yet ſhalt thou be exalted by Chriſts coming in the fleſh. And ſaint Matthew hath the ſame words, to the ſame ſenſe, with a negation. Thou art not the Leaſt &c. Matth. 2. 6. After the ſaid propheſie was fulfilled, the place was made famous by Chriſts birth Some would read theſe words, with an Interrogation; and ſo make the ſenſe Negative, to agree with that Mat. 2. 6. Others make Saint Matthew onely to relate the words of the Prieſts and Scribes to Herod; and that they ſo varied the Text before him; and that not much amiſſe, as to the purpoſe in hand, eyeing the preſent ſtate and turn of times.

among the thouſands] The Tribes of Iſrael were divided into thouſands, whereof every one had a head, or Prince, Judges 6. 15. 1 Sam. 10. 19. 1 Chron. 12. 20. Zach. 9. 7. Whereupon Saint Matthew inſtead of thouſands, ſaith head, or Governour.

yet out of thee] Here God ſpeaks. He comforteth the Church, which was deprived of her earthly King, by the promiſe of Chriſts coming, the heavenly, and everlaſting King. Iſaiah 9. 6. Both David, and Chriſt the Son of David was born there. And as out of that poor town God raiſed David the youngeſt of his brethren, and contemptible among them, yet to be the famous King of his people, and founder of their felicity, and flouriſhing eſtate; ſo God would not ſo far caſt off his people, or bring them to ſo low an eſtate, as that they ſhould utterly deſpair; but he would ſtill keep a care of them; and in their mean condition, out of poor Bethlehem, he would likewiſe raiſe the true David, their Meſſias. Jer. 30. 9. Ezek. 34. 23, 24. and 37. 24, 25. Hoſ. 3. 5. Amos 9. 11. And this ſhould be their greateſt conſolation in their deepeſt diſtreſſe.

to be Ruler] Chap. 4. 7. Iſaiah 32. 1. Jer. 23. 5, 6. Luke 1. 33.

whoſe going forth] He ſheweth that the coming of Chriſt, and all his wayes, were appointed of God from all Eternity. Or, he was from everlaſting, come forth from the Father by generation; and by an eternall decree, was by him appointed to be a Mediatour. See Col. 1. 15.

everlaſting] Hebr. the dayes of Eternity.

v. 3. Therefore] Namely, to fulfill theſe propheſies aforeſaid, of their ruine, and reſtauration will he give them up] God ſhall ſuffer his people to be ſubject to forraign Princes and Lords, their enemies; to extream miſeries and calamities; that no face of power, ſtate, or Majeſtie ſhall appear. And this they muſt patiently bear before they can look for relief.

untill the time] Then when they think themſelves forgotten and forſaken of God, and loſt, then will he ſave them.

that ſhe which travelleth] This ſome would make to relate to the Bleſſed Virgin Mary, and her birth, or fruit. But it ſeems rather to reflect on that chap. 4. 10. that the body of the people of the Jews ſhould be in that travelling pain and anguiſh; and upon it, ſhould not be as in Iſaiah 26. 17, 18. but as that woman John 16. 21. An happy and joyfull iſſue ſhould follow uppon it.

them the Remnant] Of the Jews that ſhall remain and eſcape out of thoſe affiictions; and the Gentiles converted by faith, to Chriſt, and thereby made brothers to the true Iſrael in ſpirit; ſhall be united with them in one body of the Church, under Chriſt their head, Heb. 2. 11, 12.

v. 4. And he ſhall ſtand] Chriſt ſhall do the office of a good ſhepherd, ſtanding ſtill on foot, continuing and perſevering to rule, and feed, and watch for the ſafeguard of his; employing for their ſafety the divine power of his Father: whereby the Church ſhall reſt ſecure, having the King of the whole world for her Protector.

in the ſtrength of the Lord] What ſtrength is in God, ſo much ſafety is to the Church by Chriſt. God anoints him and furniſheth him; as Iſaiah 61. 1. and chap. 11. 2. and 42. 1. Pſal. 45. 7. John 3. 34. Col. 2. 3. 9. And Chriſt as Mediator, and as the Head of the Church in his Humane nature, is thus ſubject, and inferiour to God the Father; and receives from him: And ſo hath an omnipotent power to ſave his.

abide] And dwell conſtantly, and ſecurely, under ſafe protection; like ſheep in the fold: as is further ſet out in the next verſe. Targum hath it, They ſhall return out of their captivitie. And ſo Jarhi in his Commentaries: Vulgar Latine, They ſhall be converted.

for now ſhall he be great] Namely, at the prefixed and appointed time: or within a ſhort ſpace.

ends of the earth] Not in Judea onely; but among the Gentiles, unto the ends of all the earth.

v. 5. And this man ſhall be the peace] Or, he ſhall be our Peace, firſt with God, the fountain and foundation of all true Peace; Epheſ. 2. 14, 15. 17. Hebr. 7. 2. Iſaiah 9. 6. and 26. 3. And then againſt all our enemies; he will be our peace, and defend us; that we ſhall not need to fear their rage and fury, being ſafe and ſecure under the ſhadow and ſhelter of his wings.

when the Aſſyrian] The Aſſyrian ſhall come; and the Babylonian, and other enemies, and tread in their palaces. God will ſuffer it; His people need it for their caſtigation, and humiliation. And this both before Chriſts coming, and after. chap. 4. 9. They muſt prepare their mindes to patience.

then ſhall we raiſe againſt him] The ſumme is, Chriſt ſhall be the foundation, authour, and preſerver of the true ſpirituall reſt of the Church: and if it be aſſaulted by the enemies, it ſhall from him have ſufficient means to withſtand them. As if they had raiſed ſeven armies, under the command of ſeven Captains, againſt the Aſſyrians, who were the Jews antient enemies.

ſeven ſhepherds] Having likened the Church to a flock of ſheep, he calleth the defenders of it, and all the Miniſters of her preſervation, ſhepherds; as ſervants to the great ſhepherd; who in reſpect of Chriſt are alſo ſheep, and members of the Church. In the calamitous condition of the Church none ſhall be found willing, and able to Rule and govern; Iſaiah 3. 6, 7. now Chriſt ſhall raiſe them up to ſuch an eſtate, and furniſh them with ſtore of ſuch men: and ſo qualified, by him with the ſpirit of wiſedom, and courage, as they ſhall be able to raiſe many ſuch as will take upon them the care and charge of governing and defending them, even againſt their greateſt enemies; yea, to overrule and evertop the enemies by the power and authority of Chriſt.

principall men] Hebr. princes of men.

v. 6. And they ſhall waſte] Hebr. eat up. Theſe whom God ſhall raiſe up for the deliverance of his Church, ſhall deſtroy all the enemies thereof; as the Aſſyrians, and Babylonians; which were the chief enemies at that time. See Iſaiah 10. 12. and chap. 30. 31, 32, 33. and 31. 8, 9. Principally they ſhall eat up, and deſtroy, Satan, and the worlds kingdom, by the ſword of Gods word, in the dayes of the Goſpel.

Land of Nimrod] See Gen. 10. 10, 11. Babylon.

in the entrances thereof] Or, with her own naked ſwords.

deliver us from the Aſſyrian] They muſt prepare to ſuffer in the mean time, and under-go all with patience: but yet with an expectation of certain deliverance; in its due time, appointed by God thereunto.

v. 7. And the remnant of Jacob] Not the whole body of the people; but the holy ſeed and ſmall remnant, which God ſhall miraculouſly preſerve in thoſe calamitous times.

in the midſt of many people] Though the remnant be few; and on all ſides encompaſſed with theſe multitudes; and invironed and endangered by them.

as a dew] By reaſon of its multitude, grown up as it were in an inſtant, and miraculouſly fallen from heaven, ſhall be like dew or rain, Pſal. 110. 3. Or, this remnant or Church, which God ſhall deliver, ſhall onely depend on Gods power and defence: as doth the graſſe of the field, and not on the hope of man. See 2 Cor. 2. 15. where that effect which the word worketh, is aſcribed to the Miniſters of the Goſpel.

that tarrieth not for man] Which doth not grow in gardens, nor tilled lands, watered by mens hands: but in deſerts, mountains, and wilde places, that hath no other water but what falleth from heaven, Job 38. 26, 27. Pſal. 104. 13. So the Church ſhall ſprout and proſper, be ſuſtained, and be ſafe, by Gods grace and power alone, though men yeeld no aſſiſtance at all.

v. 8. as a Lyon among the beaſts] The faithfull ſhall be endowed with an invincible force of the ſpirit of God, to overcome, and overthrow, the devil, the world, and all their enemies, mies, 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5, 6. 1 John 5. 4, 5. This power they ſhall have, thus do, without reſiſtance. But they ſhall not abuſe their power. The ſimilitude is not to be extended beyond its due bounds. God thus ſhall multiply and increaſe his Church; and defend it againſt all its enemies.

v. 9. Thy hand ſhall be lift up] A further explication of what was in the former verſe. Enemies will never be wanting: the Church muſt expect no other But God will give ſuccour and ſtrength from heaven, that the gates of hell ſhall never prevail againſt her, that ſhe utterly periſh. The Remnant ſhall keep footing ſtill under the ſtandard of the croſſe, beyond the hope and expectation of all the world, and prevail over their enemies.

v. 10. I will cut off thy horſes] I will take away all worldly ſtrength and helps from my Church; which might otherwiſe prove hinderances and lets to my ſaving grace, and obſtacles to my helping hand: And I will cauſe her to renounce all damnable and unlawful means to maintain her ſelf; as ſorceries, and recourſe to idols, and to idolatrous people, which the people had formerly made uſe of; becauſe ſhe may put all her truſt and confidence, not fooliſhly and wickedly in them; but wholly in me; and that ſhe may attain the victory over all her enemies, onely by the power of my Spirit. See Hoſ. 1. 7. Zach. 4. 6. and Chap. 9. verſe 10. Mans abuſe of Gods good bleſſings is ſo deeply rooted in him, that he cannot be taken off it, but by taking away the bleſſings themſelves which he ſo abuſed. So ingrateful are we for his bleſſings; and ſo good is God, to take them away for our good, that he may make way for himſelf to bleſſe us.

v. 11. I will cut off the cities of thy land] Namely, the waſted and ſtrong cities; to bring them to live in villages and open places. See Ezek. 38. 11. The cities wherein they ſo accuſtomed themſelves to put their truſt; and not in God. God therefore will take them away, that his ſole hand of protection and preſervation of them may the more evidently appear, when all outward means are gone. Thus his people are as ſheep in the midſt of wolves; that their ſafety and ſalvation may the more illuſtriouſly appear, as was ſaid, to be only in the hand of God.

v. 12. Witchcrafts] Theſe were more then the other; not indifferent, or good in themſelves; but vitious and abominable: forbidden in Gods Law, Levit. 20. 27. Deut. 18. 10, 11, 12. yet practiſed by the people, Eſay 2. 6. 2 Kings 17. 17. Here is Gods mercy to remove their ſins from them, and them from their ſins, that hindered him from ſtretching out his hand of ſalvation unto them. Thus God prevents his Church with his ſaving mercy.

v. 13 Thy graven images] Forbidden in the Law, Exod. 20. Deut. 4. 15,&c. and Chap. 27. 15. Eſay 40. 19. and 42. 8.

ſtanding images] Or ſtatues, Deut. 16. 22. 1 Kings 14. 23. 2 Kings 17. 10.

worſhip the work of thine hands] This makes them abominable to God, when his worſhip is transferred to them. And this is prodigious in man to do worſhip to the work of his own hand; Eſay 44. 9. 15. 17. 18. 19. 20. Jer. 10. 14. 15.

v. 14. thy groves] Deut. 16. 21. 1 Kings 14. 15. 23. and 15. 13. and Chap. 18. verſe 19. 2 Kings 17. 10. and 21. 7.

cities] Or, enemies.

v. 15. upon the heathen] When I have puniſhed, and purged thee, then will I execute the ſeverity of my moſt terrible judgements upon thine enemies, the Heathen folk.

they have not heard] It ſhall be ſo terrible, that the like hath not been heard of. Others ſay, he will plague ſuch, as have not believed and obeyed the Goſpel, 2 Cor. 10. 6. but have rebelled againſt him, and not hearkned to his words, to his power, promiſes and threatnings.

CHAP. VI.

Verſe 1. H*Ear &c*] This ſeems to be the ſecond ſermon, wherein God by his Prophet convinceth the Jewes of his benefits to them; and of their ſins againſt him; And threatens the rebellious. And for the ſmall Remnant he puts them in minde of their duty; and of his promiſes: In the comfort whereof they praiſe his mercies. Such a preface as this here in the firſt words, is not ſo ordinary, but in extraordinary caſes; as here when he ſhews the prodigious ſtupidity of the people, that he ſpake hitherto without any profit to them that were as deaf men; and deſperate, forlorne, of whom there was no more hope.

Ariſe] O Micah, debate thou Gods cauſe againſt this rebellious and ungratefull people, as it were in judgement, calling all the creatures to be judges, ſeeing their conſciences are more inſenſible then theſe creatures. See Deut. 32. 1. Eſay 1. 2. Micah 1. 2.

v. 2. The Lords controverſie] Whereof, verſe 3. &c. See Iſaiah 5. 34. and 43. 26.

with his people] Not with the mountains and hils; They are called on onely as to be witneſſes, and judges, in this his controverſie with his people.

v. 3. O my people] This curteous appellation God vouchſafeth to this ſtubborne unworthy people. And this addes to their blame.

what have I done unto thee ?] Job. 22. 17. Jer. 2. 5. 31. that ſhould make thee loath my ſervice and thy duty ? Thus Iſaiah 1. 18.

I wearied thee ? Nay we are ready to weary and grieve him, and his ſpirit. Epheſ. 4. 30. Iſaiah 63. 10. Numb. 14. 11. Pſal. 78. 58. and 59. 10.

Teſtifie againſt me] I am ready to hear and anſwer: that ſo we may come to an iſſue. Iſaiah 27. 5. Job. 22. 21. Thus God humbles himſelf, and deals with them, as one man with another, in the faireſt way.

v. 4. I brought thee up] I have not hurt thee, but beſtowed infinite benefits upon thee. And a Narrative of them follows; from point to point. He did not begin onely, but went on, and continued to heap his bleſſings and benefits upon them.

of Egypt] This Exod. 12. 51. and 14. 30. was a grand Benefit; many a time and often mentioned in Scripture: as Deut. 4. 20. Joſh. 24. 6. Judges 2. 1. and in the Law, Pſalms, and Prophets.

houſe of ſervants] Deut. 5. 6. and 6. 12. and 7. 8. Joſh. 24. 17. Judg 6. 8. and in very many places.

Moſes and Aaron] Joſh. 24. 5. Pſal. 77. 20.

and Miriam] Who had alſo the gift of propheſie. See Exod. 15. 20. &c. Numb. 12. 2. the ſiſter of Moſes; and ſhe that watched him in the ark of Bulruſhes, Exod. 2. 4.

v. 5. remember now] God remembers to them ſome of his benefits done for them in the wilderneſs. We are too apt to forget his benefits: See Deut. 7. 18. and 8. 2. and 16. 12. Judg. 8. 34. 1 Chron. 16. 12.

Balak] Numbers 23. 5. and 23. 7. Deut. 23. v. 4. 5. This benefit is ſpecially named among many others in the wilderneſs, And ſo Joſh. 24. 9. 10. mentioned Deut. 23. 4 5. Apoc 2. 14.

conſulted] A ſubtile and pernicious counſel was that of Balak, to have them curſed as it were in Gods name, and from Heaven, by the mouth of a Prophet, indued with the ſpirit of divination extraordinarily, though a wicked man, and none of Gods people: See Numb. 22. 23. 24. chapters. This was more dangerous then to bring out all his armies againſt them; thus to ſeek to make God their enemy, and ſet him againſt them.

and what Balaam] God reſtrained him, and made him bleſs them, againſt his will. For he had ſold himſelf for hire to the wicked King, Numb. 22. 12. 33. and 23. 11. 25. and 24. 1. 10. Of his pernicious counſel we reade, chap. 25. compared with chap. 31. 16. See 2 Pet. 2. 15.

from Shittim] After thou wenteſt aſtray after Baal-Peor, Numb. 25. 1. Yet I did indure thee, and brought thee into the land of Canaan: where I renewed my covenant with thee in Gilgal, by circumciſion. Of Shittim ſee Num. 33. 49. Joſh. 2. 1. and 3. 1. whether here grew that Shittim-wood, ſo much mentioned by Moſes in the book of Exodus, is uncertain.

unto Gilgal] See on Hoſ. 4. 15. Thus Gods mercy ſtrove with their malitious wickedneſs; and even miraculouſly he then overcame their evil with his goodneſs.

the righteouſneſſe] His faithfulneſs in keeping his covenant and promiſes: Or his infinite mercies, and fidelity in performing them. And ſo that there neither was, nor is, any unrighteouſneſs in the Lord; but that all the fault is in themſelves.

v. 6. wherewith ſhall I come] Seeing then ye can finde no fault in God, nor any excuſe for your ſelves; and the end of all is to bring you to repentance; what then remains but that ye enquire after it; and go about it? The Prophet bringeth in the people, deſiring to know the true means to appeaſe God, and to be reconciled to him. But they pretend to more then they do truly intend.

with burnt offerings] They were convicted in their conſciences, that reconciliation with God was to be ſought after; yet they would not take the ſtraight way to him, by faith, and repentance, in ſincerity and integrity of heart; but go about the buſh, and ſeek to pleaſe him with ſhadows, and ceremonies, oblations and ſacrifices; keeping ſtill their hearts cloſe to their ſins, and a loof off from him. Thus Hypocrites alwayes would fain delude God, and themſelves, with theſe external ſhews and toyes.

v. 7. will the Lord] They would ſeem to be careful and inquiſitive; and mean while hood-winck themſelves, and willingly are blinde at noon-day.

thouſand of rams] Thus bountifull they will be, and profuſe; not ſpare for any coſt, and expence, toyle and travaile; they will ſuperabound in theſe outward ſervices; ſo they may keep their hearts inwardly to themſelves, and their ſins; and not yeeld them up to God, and his obedience, intirely and ſincerely; which yet is the onely thing that God regards, and requires. But hypocrites ſtill will part ſtakes with God in manner aforeſaid. Iſaiah 1. 11. &c. See this abundantly among the Papiſts.

My firſt born] Idolaters did ſo; both among the Heathen, and among Gods people; Levit. 20. 2. 2 Kings 16. 3 Pſal. 106. 38. Thus they will ſeem even to burn with zeal. Nothing ſhall be ſo near, and dear, and precious to them, that they will not part with to pleaſe, and pacifie God. Thus they will ſacrifice to their own inventions, and good intentions; though in a way abominable to God. Mean while at no hand will they ſacrifice their hearts to God; Pſal. 51. 16, 17. which is the thing God looks for. Deut. 6. 5. and chap. 10. 12. and 26. 16. Joſh. 22. 5. and throughout both the old, and new Teſtament; ſacrifices in the Old Law were commanded; But to be exerciſes of their faith, and repentance; that by them they might look up to that onely ſacrifice of the Meſſias; and offer up themſelves ſpirituall ſacrifices to the Lord. See Rom. 12. 1.

v. 8. He hath ſhewed thee] Deut. 10. 12. and 30. 15. It is but childiſh to pretend ignorance; nay an impudent lying againſt God, to make that an excuſe and colour. For the doctrine of his word, the rule of his Law is plain: as that Hab. 2. 2. unleſſe wilfully thou wilt ſhut thine eyes againſt it. He hath abundantly provided for thy direction, and ſatisfaction therein. Pſal. 119. 105. and 19. 9. Prov. 6. 23.

but to do juſtly] The Prophet in few words calleth them to the obſervation of the ſecond Table, in the firſt place; to know if they will obey God aright, or no; ſaying, that God hath preſcribed them to do this. See on Iſaiah. 1. 17. This will be a viſible triall of the truth of their obedience. This pulls them out of their corners of ceremonious ſanctities, wherein hypocrites do hide and ſhelter themſelves?

walk humbly] Hebr. humble thy ſelf to walk. This relates to the duties of the firſt Table, which indeed are chief and principall, containing the ſpirituall worſhip of God, and the inward ſervice of the heart; wherein humility of ſoul towards God beareth a chief part? But theſe inward affections being ſeen onely to God, makes hypocrites the more bold to pretend ſo much thereunto before men, ſpecially when they will be ſo curious and ſedulous, in, and about the externall Ceremoniall Rites, and bodily exerciſes thereunto belonging.

v. 9. The Lords voice] The voice of the Prophets prevailed not, gained no audience: he therefore puts it here upon the Lord hmſelf.

cryeth] not ſoftly to a few, but aloud, to be heard of all that want not ears to hear it.

unto the city] Jeruſalem as the principall place and head of the reſt. Some ſo derive the word as to bring it to this ſignification, To rouz up, or awaken; namely, out of the ſleep of ſin and ſecurity: The Lord ſeeing what his people had deſerved by their ſins, doth admoniſh them by his Prophets, that they and the city particularly ſhould take heed of his judgements, which did hang over them, and by his predictions doth warn and inſtruct them, not to hold them to be meer caſualties, but things proceeding from his providence and juſtice, that they might prevent them by repentance.

the man of wiſdome] as Hoſ. 14. 9. arguing ſo, the moſt to want this wiſdome, and to be men of folly, in not hearing the Lords voice; however otherwiſe they gloried in their own wit and underſtanding.

ſhall ſee thy name] Shall ſee and conſider, and ponder thy Name, and Majeſty in it; that the voice comes from thee, not from man, and that they have to deal immediately with thee in it. Others tranſlate the ſentence thus; Thy Name ſhall ſee that which is: that is, Thy renowned Majeſty, O God, ſees every thing that is in the City, as the truth is: Thou thy ſelf, as thou haſt manifeſted thy ſelf to thy Church by thy proper Name, doeſt judge rightly of the ſins of the people, and of the puniſhments which they deſerve therefore.

bear the rod] Wherewith ye are to be ſcourged for your ſins, and the cauſers of it: The rod of revenge for your contempt of the Lords voice, and your other ſinnes which follow.

and who hath appointed it] Your ſelves by your ſins are the cauſers of it. The Prophets are but mortall men, earthen veſſels the bearers and reporters of it; but God is he who is the appointer of it, and ordains it for the revenge of the quarrell of his Covenant.

v. 10. Are there yet] Or, is there yet unto every man an houſe of the wicked, &c. Here are the cauſes of the rod: I ſhall try it out, and finde it to be ſo; and then a wonder it is it ſhould be ſo, after ſo many means and monitions againſt it.

the treaſures of wickedneſſe] Gotten, poſſeſſed, and uſed unjuſtly and wickedly.

ſcant meaſure] Hebr. meaſure of leanneſſe: To ſell by, Amos 8. 5.

abominable!] Prov 11. 2. & 20. 10, 23. Levit. 19. 36.

v. 11. Shall I count them pure] Or, ſhall I be pure with, &c. A proſecution of that in the end of the former verſe: Let earthly Judges doe ſo; but it is far from me, ſee Gen. 18. 25. Prov. 17. 15. & 24. 24. Iſa. 5. 23. Gods nature and office requires him to proceed and puniſh in all equity, without any partiality.

v. 12. The rich men thereof] Of the City chiefly, which ſhould have been a good example to the reſt; and ſo of the other Cities, though haply not in ſo high a degree.

are full of violence] have their houſes full of prey and ſpoil, violently gotten by them. Covetouſneſſe and riches thus ſet men on to work miſchief.

inhabitants] Of all ſorts.

lyes] Frauds, deceits, guiles, without all ſincerity, verity, plain and true dealings towards one another, ſee Prov. 24. 2. 1 Cor. 6. 8. Iſa. 32. 7. Jer. 9. 4.

v. 13. Therefore alſo] Gods words, declaring the rod, v. 9.

ſick] See Iſa. 1. 5. Levit. 26. 16. He is of power, nothing can hinder him, nor his rod, from inflicting the ſtripes of his vengeance.

v. 14. Thou ſhalt eat] One ſtroke of the rod, famine and hunger; and this either by taking away the bread it ſelf, Iſa. 9. 20. Ezek. 4. 16. or by breaking the ſtaffe of bread, ſee Hoſ. 4. 10. Levit. 26. 26. Hag. 1. 6.

Thy caſting down] That is, Thou ſhalt periſh like a building that ſinketh, and is ruined by its own weight, having an evill foundation, or being built with bad materials, though no enemies come neer thee, no outward evils moleſt thee, nor any ſigns of my wrath appear; yet thy caſting down ſhall be in the midſt of thee, ſhall ſtick in thy intrails, thou ſhalt periſh with the inteſtine and ſecret ſtroke of my curſe.

thou ſhalt take hold] Try all means, and wayes, to ſave thy ſelf, and thine; to preſerve ſome part of thy goods, and more precious things from the enemy; but in vain.

v. 15. Thou ſhalt ſow] Deut. 28. 38. Amos. 5. 11. Zeph. 1. 13. Hag. 1. 6. Jer. 12. verſe 13. Hoſ. 8. 7. Another ſtroke of this rod.

v. 16. the ſtatutes of Omri are kept] Or, he doth much keep the, &c. Namely the idolatry brought in by thoſe wicked kings, 1 Kings 16. 25. 30. 31, 32. And to excuſe your doings, you alledge the Kings authority by his ſtatutes; and ſo pretend both power, and prudence, and counſel, in the making of them. Thus he returns to the cauſes of the ſtrokes of this rod; leſt his blows might ſeem too heavy. And he doth inſtance and inſiſt upon their grand ſin of idolatry that groſſe idolatry brought in by Omri, and Ahab, as was ſaid. And Judah at laſt fell to Iſraels idolatry.

make thee] He ſeems to ſpeak to the land, city, or, kingdom.

deſolation] Or, aſtoniſhment.

and hiſſing] A matter of ſcorn and deriſion, 1 Kings 9. 8. 2 Chron. 29. 8. Jer. 18. 16. and 19. 8. and 25. 18. and 29. 18.

reproach of my people] The ignominious puniſhment for having profaned the name and title of being my people, and my Church, by your ſins. Ezek. 36. 20. 23. Rom. 2. 24. And therefore ye ſhall bear the greater puniſhment and reproach; Amos 3. 2. Luke 12. 47.

CHAP. VII.

Verſe 1. WO is me] In this chapter the Prophet bemoans the univerſall corruption and wickedneſſe of the people. And yet concludes all with the conſolation of the Church by promiſes of a great and glorious reſtauration and ſalvation, after the time of her afflictions. In theſe words is the Prophets lamentation, not for the puniſhments, but for the ſinnes of the people; becauſe godly men were decayed in the countrey: and none to be found: as if a thirſty and weary traveller could not finde any fruit or grapes in the fields or vineyards. See Pſalm 12. 1. and 14. 2, 3. 1 Kings 19, 14. and Mar.

11. verſe 12. 13. and Job 6. 19. 20. And thus godly men are affected at the inundation of ſin; and ſinners; and at the extirpation and periſhing of goodneſs, and good men.

when they have gathered] Heb. The gatherings of ſummer after harveſt; when the fruits are gathered, and the fields are bare.

grape gleanings] See Eſay 17.5.6. & 24. 13.

no cluſter] See Jer. 6. 9. As with Edom, Jere. 49. 9. 10. and Obad. 5. yet God retained ever his ſmall remnant, and ſecret ſeed. See Eſay 65.8. 1 Kings 19.18. Rom. 11. 4.

the firſt ripe fruit] Rare fruits, and therefore moſt to be deſired, Iſai. 28. 4. Hoſea 9. 10. The meaning is, that he ſought for a good man among the people, as for a very rare thing. Jer. 5. 1. Eſay 64. 6. 7.

v. 2. The good man] Or godly, or mercifull. This clears the ſenſe of the former verſe, and ſee the Annotations there.

for blood] Sanguinary, bloody minded, cruell men; implying that the Prince, the judge, and the rich man are linked together, all to do evil, and to cloak the doings of one another. See Prov. 1. 11. and 12. 6. Jere. 5. 26.

they hunt] By frauds and perfidiouſneſs. See Hoſea 5. 1.

every man] So that in vain ſhould one look and ſeek for a good, honeſt, and upright man, amongſt them all; yet this is ſpoken of the generall body of the people.

v. 3. with both hands earneſtly] Their greedineſs, and activity in ſinning is ſuch, ſee Eph. 4. 19. Others thus; That to help themſelves in doing evil, to get off clear, and be abſolved from judgment for it, they take the way in the next words following.

the Prince asketh] Prince, and Judge, are Mercenary; inquire not into the cauſe; but gape after bribes; to be corrupted by them in judgment; then will they abſolve the guilty & condemn the innocent, make of vice vertue, and of vertue vice; confound good, and evil, light and darkneſſe. See chap. 3. 11. Eſay 1. 23. Ezech. 22. 12. Hoſea 4. 18.

the great man] That is the rich man that is able to give money, abſtaineth from no wickedneſſe nor injury.

he uttereth] Boldly & openly, without fear, or ſhame; knowing he can corrupt the throns, and tribunal ſeats of judgements.

his miſchievous deſire] Heb. the miſchief of his ſoul. Thoſe mentioned. Chap. 2. 1. 2. And the like.

wrap it up] Theſe men agree among themſelves, and conſpire with one conſent, to do evil: as by the twiſting together of divers threads and ſtrings, men do make a ſtrong rope. Thus wrong, oppreſſion, and tyranny reigns, the great and rich men, bribing, and buying out a liberty and impunity; and the poor being left without remedy.

v. 4. The beſt] Thoſe of the beſt name and fame, thoſe that gained the beſt repute.

is a bryer] Hurtfull and ſcratching. And therefore nought enough, as Pſal. 58. 9. Ezek. 2. 6. See the Annotations there. And what are the worſt then? Eſay 59. 15.

the day of thy watchmen] The time of thy puniſhment foretold by the Prophets, who are called the watchmen, Ezek. 3. 17. & 33. 7. Hoſ. 9. 8. Or the time of the puniſhment of thy watchmen is come; of thy falſe Prophets, that deceived thee with ſoothings and ſmoothings; and alſo of thy other governours. They the firſt in puniſhment, as the firſt in ſin.

and thy viſitation] Thine with them; the Peoples with their Governours. The watchmen are blinde, are ſleepy, and ſecure, and ſo betray and ſeduce the people, and the people are willing to have it ſo, Jer. 5. 31. ſee 2 Theſ. 2. 10. 11. and ſo both juſtly puniſhed and viſited.

perplexity] That is, Confuſion and extream anguiſh, inſtead of the windings and practiſes of their deceits: ſee Nahum 1. 10. Prov. 1. 24, &c. Iſa. 22. 5.

v. 5. Truſt ye not] His intent is not ſo much to ſhew that we muſt not put our truſt and confidence in man, as in Iſa. 2. 22. Pſal. 146. 3. but rather to ſet out the tranſcendent wickedneſſe of this people, that there is no faith and fidelity in them, no humanity left among them, no relations, though never ſo neat and dear, will keep them within any bounds of duty or reſpect one towards another; but they pervert the whole order of nature, and caſt off thoſe affections which might ſeem impoſſible to be blotted out and extinguiſhed: there is no more any faith or loyalty, no not even amongſt the neereſt friends.

in a guide] So are they called in Scripture, who by reaſon of their degree, duty, or authority, are, as it were, the heads and directors of others; as the Husband is of the Wife, the Schoolmaſter of his Schollars, and the Counſellour of the Prince, Pſal. 55. 14. Prov. 16. 28. & 17. 9.

keep the doors] Diſcover not thy ſecret to thine own Wife, Deut. 13. 6. for fear leaſt ſhe betray thee.

v. 6. The ſon diſhonoureth] Mat. 10. 21, 36. Luke 21. 16.

v. 7. Therefore I will look] Namely, I Micah, with all true beleevers, ſeeing all manner of hope of remedy of theſe evils, and of reliefs by men is paſt, I will turn to God by faith, expectation and prayer; that I be not drawn aſide by theſe evil examples, or provoked to any impatience, or deſire of revenge for ſuch like wrongs and injuries; I will fix mine eyes upon God, and him onely, and wait for his ſalvation, Pſal. 119. 166. & 40. 1. & 52. 9. Iſa. 25. 9. & 30. 18.

my ſalvation: my God] The holy faith and confidence of the Prophet, and this without any touch of an hereticall preſumption, Rom. 5. 2, 3, 11. the Scripture is full of it, and the nature of grown faith requires it.

will hear me] He would be frequent and fervent in prayer, and in aſſurance that his God would hear his prayer.

v. 8. Rejoyce not] Here the Prophet takes upon him the perſon of the Church, and enters upon the conſolation, which concludes all, and continues to the end of the Book. And here firſt, the Church encourageth her ſelf by the aſſurance of Gods grace, againſt all the taunts of the whole multitude of her adverſaries, the malignant Church: She being fallen into the deep and dark dungeon of diſtreſſe, her enemy inſults over her; a thing too frequent with the wicked, Pſal. 80. 6. Jer. 20. 7. Ezek. 36. 4. and a thing which ſorely wounds an ingenuous minde: ſee v. 10. Pſal. 42. 3, 10. & 79. 10. She directs her ſpeech unto them, and arms her ſelf againſt their ſcoffs and taunts. We finde the like ſpeech uttered by way of irony and ſcorn, Lam. 4. 21, 22.

when I fall yet] Or, Though I be fallen, yet I ſhall ariſe: ſhe repels the reproach of her enemy, not onely with a kind of diſdain, but with this argument of comfort, That her fall ſhall not be finall, deadly, deſperate and irrecoverable, but ſhe ſhall recover again: ſee that, Prov. 24. 16, 17. Thus her faith and hope overcomes the world, and the cruell mockings of it, John 5. 4. Heb. 11. 36. and all tentations, inſultations and ſubſannations whatſoever, Nahum 1. 12.

a light unto me] Even ſome glimmering and ſparkle of light in the darkneſſe it ſelf: and a full light to lead and deliver me out of it, Eſay 60. 19. 20.

v. 9. I will bear] With humility and patience.

becauſe I have ſinned] Thus ſhe acknowledgeth her own demerit, and Gods juſtice. The wicked ſometimes are convicted of their ſins, and deſpair, as Judas; or murmur at Gods judgement, and juſtice for them, as Cain; But the godly are ſo affected, and afflicted with the ſight and ſenſe of them, as they are diſpleaſed with themſelves in them, and for them; and placing themſelves before Gods Tribunal, in all humility, and with all patience, they ſubmit to what chaſtiſement he pleaſeth to lay upon them. A true ſight of ſin, and this humble ſubmiſſion ever go together. The wicked that want the one do likewiſe want the other.

until he plead] Againſt mine enemies; who taking no care in their doings againſt me, to execute Gods judgements for my ſins, have wreeked all their own cruelty upon me, and withall blaſphemed God. She doth not caſt away her confidence of deliverance; but comforts her ſelf in her hope, and faith in God; and ſtrengthens her patience by it; knowing God doth chaſtiſe her for her good. See Hab. 3. 2. And though ſhe confeſſe her ſin againſt God; yet ſhe ſtands to her cauſe, and the goodneſſe of it, againſt her enemie; ſhe was innocent in her carriage towards them; ſhe gave them no juſt cauſe of their taunting of her, and vile dealing towards her. And thus David often ſtands upon his own juſtification; not before God, but in the particular cauſe and quarrel between him and his enemies. Pſal. 7. 3, 4, 8. and 18. 20. and 35. 1. And he and Job often plead their own integritie and ſinceritie, againſt the imputation of hypocriſie, ſuggeſted againſt them, either by temptations within, or enemies abroad.

he will bring me forth] As it were out of the low pit of miſerie, in which I am. Thus ſhe foreſees with the eye of faith and hope an iſſue prepared for her out of her miſeries; ſhe ſees this light though afar off.

his righteouſneſſe] His deliverance, the effect of loyalty, and love towards me; and of his ſevere juſtice towards his and mine enemies. Not that ſhe pleads the merit of her own works; but the righteouſneſſe, truth, fidelity, and juſtice of God, in performing his own frank and free, gracious and merciful promiſe unto her.

v. 10. Then ſhe &c.] Or, and thou wilt ſee her that is mine enemy, and cover her with ſhame: ſo turning her ſpeech to God. This addes to her joy, even the ſalving of that ſore verſ. 8.

and ſhame ſhall cover her] And ſhe cover and hide her ſelf for ſhame; as much as ſhe rejoyced, and triumphed, and inſulted before. See Obad. 10. Pſal. 71. 13. and 140. 9. They may juſtly take up that Jer. 3. 25.

where is] See on verſe 8. See Pſalm 115. 2. Joel 2. 17. She now not ſo much reſpects her ſelf herein, as God; and takes up his cauſe, whom the enemy had ſo blaſphemed; implying that now indeed God did appear, where, and in what cauſe and on whoſe ſide he was. See Pſalm 50. 21. And if he ſo puniſhed his own, as now appears by his owning and delivering them, what then might the wicked juſtly think will become of them? ſee Luke 23. 31.

mine] This ſhall not be a fleſhly pleaſure to delight themſelves in the ſight and ſatisfaction of their own revenge; but a ſpiritual joy to ſee the glory of Gods juſtice magnified upon his enemies, Pſal. 58. 10, 11.

ſhall ſhe be troden down] Hebr. She ſhall be for a treading down.

myre] See Zech. 10. 5. Eſay 10. 6.

v. 11. In the day] As the Church informed the enemies of their ruine; ſo now the Prophet informs the Church of Gods manifold glorious promiſes to her.

that thy walls are to be built] Amos 9. 11. &c. Before her walls were caſt down; and ſhe as a field, or vineyard, whoſe hedge was pluckt up; ſhe was laid waſt, and ſcattered among the nations. But now the day ſhould come wherein her walls ſhould be rebuilt, her ſelf reſtored, repaired, protected againſt all aſſaults of her enemies. An Evangelicall promiſe: The meaning is, when in the Meſſiah his time I ſhall re-eſtabliſh my Church, which hath been as an excluded and an abandoned poſſeſſion, I will ſet her in perfect liberty, freeing her from the commands of all others, but mine own, Acts 15. 16.

in that day] Even then ſhall theſe bleſſings be vouchſafed to her.

ſhall the decree be far removed] That cruel tyranny which the Babylonians exerciſed over them, Eſay 9. 4. that decree whereby they forbade the building of the Temple & city: and the Perſians likewiſe after them, Ezra 4. v. 5, 6, 21, 22, 23, 24. See Pſalm 102. 13, 14. Others render the words and the meaning thus, That the decree ſhall go far abroad: even that decree, verſe 14. of publiſhing the Goſpel among the Gentiles, ſhall go forth from out of the bounds of Jury, even to the ends of the earth. As Pſalm 2. 7, 8. and 110. 2, 3.

v. 12. In that day alſo] He inſiſts ſtill upon that happy and glorious time.

he ſhall come even to thee] Jeruſalem after her reſtauration ſhall become ſo glorious, her ſtate ſo flouriſhing, that the Jews and Iſraelites withall freedom ſhall have ready acceſſe unto her from all parts; yea, the Gentiles, and all nations ſhall flow in unto her. Acts 15. 16. 17. Eſay 19. 23, 24, 25.

and from] Or, even to: and this particle is redoubled yet again in this verſe, for amplification ſake.

the fortified cities] Of Egypt. A countrey which is moſt ſtrong by nature, being bounded by the ſea, and by wilderneſſes, and moted with great chanels of water. The Prophet nameth it ſo, by an alluſion to the Hebrew name of Egypt. See Dan. 11. 15. 24.

the river] Euphrates; yea and from all rivers, from ſea to ſea; from mountain to mountain: from the utmoſt ends of the earth. This bleſſing is ſo ſtrongly aſſerted, becauſe after the utter ruine of Jeruſalem, and the Temple, it ſeems ſo ſtrange and incredible in the eyes of fleſh and blood, v. 13. Notwithſtanding the land] Or, after that it hath been deſolate. The land of Judea before the coming of Chriſt in the fleſh, verſe 8. Thus before thoſe glorious promiſes ſhall come to be accompliſhed, he ſhews that Gods judgement ſhall be upon the wicked Jews, and their land in the mean time; thundering as it were, againſt the body of the people for their deſperate and forlorn eſtate in their ſins; leſt they ſhould as is the manner of hypocrites, vainly preſume, and aſſume unto themſelves thoſe promiſes which belong not to them. And mixing promiſes of mercie to his holy remnant; that they may have wherewithal to ſuſtain and ſupport themſelves in the midſt of theſe ſad calamities: And extending thoſe promiſes, as the manner of the Prophets is, even to the glorious time of Chriſts coming, wherein the full accompliſhment of them ſhall be made good.

ſhall be deſolate] The land it ſelf, that ſenſleſſe and harmleſſe element, ſhall ſuffer in its kinde, as being defiled and polluted by the ſins of her inhabitants. How odious then were their ſins?

for the fruit of their doings] For the juſt recompence and puniſhment of their ſins.

v. 14. Feed thy people] Or, rule thy people. The words of the Prophet, wiſhing and praying to God. Or rather, the words of God, preſcribing their duty to the Miniſters and Paſtors of Chriſt, and his Church. Implying the calamity laſt mentioned to be ſo great, that if God took not this way and means, for his peoples ſafety, they would ſurely periſh. Some make theſe to be the Prophets words to our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, that he would feed, and guide his Church, which is deſtitute of all humane help, and is expoſed to many dangers, like ſheep upon the mountains, and in woods.

thy people] Thine by covenant; Gen. 12. 3. See Rom. 9. 8. 27. and Chap. 11. 5. 7. This covenant was the ſure ground wherupon Gods grace was ever reſerved to the Remnant.

with thy rod] See Pſalm 23. 4. Zech. 11. 7. 10, 14. It ſignifieth both a ſhepherds ſtaff, and alſo a ſceptre. See Pſal. 45. 6. and 110. 2.

the flock of thine heritage] Thus he fixes his eyes upon Gods free choice and adoption of them to be his own heritage; and not upon what they deſerved: Deut. 7. 6, 7, 8, 9. And this is the ground work of faith to Gods people, and holds up their hope againſt all tentations.

which dwell ſolitarily] As torn aſunder, and ſcattered here and there in ſeveral places of their diſperſions and baniſhments.

in the midſt of Carmel] As there: or, as in the midſt of open fields; ſo ſome tranſlate the word. See on Amos 1. v. 2.

Let them feed in Baſhan and Gilead] See Jer. 50. 19. Though now ſolitary and diſperſed; yet let them be gathered and fed in theſe fruitful places. He continues in the Allegory of ſheep. Of Baſhan we read, That taken largely, it was the kingdom of Og, on the Eaſt ſide of Jordan; a land of gyants, Deut. 3. 13. Conquered, and given to the half Tribe of Manaſſeh: wherein Machir and Jair, the ſons of Manaſſeh had large portions, and very many cities, Joſh. 13. 10. and 17. 1. And out of it was Golan given to the Gerſhonites, for a citie of Refuge; Joſh. 21. 27. And Aſhtaroth likewiſe was given to them, which had been the royal citie of Og, 1 Chron. 6. 71. Joſh. 13. 12. Deut. 1. 4. A very fruitful kingdom it was; and ſpecially for cattel, and paſture. We read of the bulls of Baſhan, of rams of the breed of Baſhan, Deut. 32. 14. There was in it a chief mountain of that name, rancked together with Carmel, and Sharon, and Gilead. The oaks of Baſhan are mentioned in Scripture; whereof alſo they made oares for the uſe of Tyre, Ezek. 27. 6. Of Gilead, ſee on Obadiah, verſe 19.

as in the dayes of old] As his benefits had been ſo bountiful to his people, in dayes of old, even from the beginning; that ſo he would continue to be like himſelf, ſo bountiful even to the end.

v. 15. According to the dayes] Here the Prophet brings in God ſpeaking and promiſing as much as was in the prophetical wiſh and prayer of the laſt words. He promiſeth to be as wonderfull in his works of mercie and favour and deliverance to them, as he was of old, when he brought their fathers out of Egypt. That memorable deliverance is often mentioned in Scripture, as a monument ſufficient of Gods miraculous power and goodneſſe, for the ſaving of his: and to that end never to be forgotten by them.

will I ſhew unto him marvellous things] As then, ſo now. See Exod. 3. 20. and 15. 11. Judg. 6. 13. Pſal. 72. 18. and 78. 11, 12.

v. 16. The nations ſhall ſee] My marvels that I will do for you, and againſt them.

and be confounded at all their might] Seeing their conceited might and power againſt you to vaniſh all into ſmoak. See Pſalm 44. 7. and 53. 5. and 71. 13.

hand upon their mouth] And proudly boaſt and brag no more, inſulting over you, and blaſpheming my name: they ſhall be ſpeechleſſe, and hold their peace for fear. See Job 40. 4.

their ears ſhall be deaf] with the ſudden burſting forth of Gods wonderful and terrible works. They ſhall not willingly for fear hear of them.

v. 17. They ſhall lick] They ſhall be caſt down with all their pride, at Gods feet, who ſhall reign in his Church, Pſalm 72. 9. Iſaiah 49. 23. and 60. 6. 7. 16. They ſhall be abaſed and dejected in the loweſt degree.

worms] Or, Creeping things. Thus poor ſhall all the powers of the world be, thus ſilly, thus frightful, when God ſhall come and appear to maintain and magnifie his Church; they ſhall be like theſe ſilly creatures, and their behaviours.

afraid of the Lord] See Pſalm 68. 1. Numb. 10. 35.

fear becauſe of thee] O God; or, of thee, O Church; when thou ſhalt be reſtored to thy glory and ſplendor by Chriſt, dwelling and working in thee, Hoſea 3. 5. Acts 2. 43. and Chap. 5. 11. 13.

v. 18. who is a god like unto thee] Micah comes to a concluſion of the conſolation with an exclamation and admiration of that pardoning mercy and compaſſion, which is onely to be found in the true God toward his own people; whereby he overcomes their evil with his goodneſſe, and continues firme in his free covenant of grace and mercie made with them. There is no other God but he. And this his dealing with his people is a ſufficient character to diſtinguiſh him from all falſe gods. No like thing is to be found in all the idols of the Gentiles.

that pardoneth iniquity] Exod. 34. 6, 7. Pſalm 130. 4.

paſſeth by] As though he would not ſee it, but winck at it.

of the remnant of his heritage] Not of the body of his people which for the greater part were hypocrites and ungodly men; Here is no comfort for them: But of the Remnant of his heritage; in them ſhould the luſtre of his mercy ſhine forth.

He retaineth not his anger] Towards this remnant; though for a time he chaſtiſe them. See Pſalm 78. 38, 39. and 103. 9—16. Eſay 57. 16. and 42. 3. Jer. 3. 5. Gen. 6. 3.

becauſe he delighteth in mercy] Jonah 4. 3. Pſal. 86. 5. and 51. 1. and 145. 8. 9. Nehe. 9. 17. Eſay 54. 7. 8. and 63. 15. and 30. 18. This is our ſure ground of comfort; when we ſeek and lay the foundation of it, not in our ſelves, or any thing in us; but in God, and his nature onely. God is the cauſe to himſelf of his mercy; by his nature he is delighted in mercy.

v. 19. He will turn again,] Thus the remnant of his heritage glory in his mercy, and triumph in the aſſurance of it; thus applying it to themſelves. Papiſts deny this Faith; aſſert perpetuall doubting and heſitation.

he will ſubdue our iniquities] Which formerly tyrannized over us, and we were as ſold ſlaves under the power and dominion of them. Eſay 50. 1. Rom. 6. 12. 14. 18. 21. and chap. 7. 14. 2 Peter 2. 19.

thou wilt caſt—] Meaning, of his elect. Pſal. 103. 12. Eſay 38. 17. Jere. 50. 20. & c. 31. v. 34. He will aboliſh and drown deep enough both the guilt and the puniſhment of them.

v. 20. Thou wilt perform] The faithfull confirm and comfort themſelves in the former bleſſed truth; becauſe God hath depoſited his covenant of grace and mercy with them, which he will perform, and at no hand ſuffer it to be vacated. Rom. 11. 29. As if they ſhould ſay; we faign, or preſume nothing of our ſelves; we onely truſt to thine own gracious will revealed in thy word; and ſo reſting on thy free favour, we perſwade our ſelves of thy mercifull pardon of all our ſins; though many wayes multiplied againſt thee. This is the ſound argumentation of the faithfull.

the truth to Jacob] The Church is aſſured, that God will declare in effect the truth of his mercifull promiſe which hee had made of old to Abraham, and Iacob, and to all that ſhould apprehend the promiſe by faith.

haſt ſworn] To them, and their ſeed, by a perpetuall Covenant. And therefore the faithfull lay hold on it, and apply it to themſelves; and with an holy boldneſs make uſe of God, as in mercy binding himſelf unto them by it. See Luke 1. 72. 73. 74. Heb. 6. 16. 17. 18. 19.

ANNOTATIONS
NAHUM.

THE ARGUMENT.

NIneveh that famous city, Head of that great Aſſyrian Empire, when Jonah the Prophet was ſent thither to preach, That within fourty dayes it ſhould be deſtroyed, was moved to Repentance; and ſo the tranquillity of that Empire was lengthened: But after a certain time, they grew ſecure, regarding worldly means to augment their dominion, more then the fear of God; and ſo, caſting off the further care of Religion, and Righteouſneſſe, returned to their former ſins; yea increaſed them, through their oppreſſion of other Nations, and of Gods people. The Aſſyrians overthrew the Syrian Kingdom, took Damaſcus, and carried the people captive to Kir, and ſlew Rezin the Syrian King, 2 Kings 16. 9. And they brought Iſrael to be Loruchamah, that is, Unpitied; and Loammi, No people; And now the irrevocable decree of God (the ſetter up and puller down of Kingdoms) for the finall overthrow of that Empire, is foretold them by his Prophet Nahum. He propheſied of a ruin to Nineveh, and Habbakkuk of the Chaldeans to ariſe. For a time before Pul King of Aſſyria; (of whom ſee 2 King. 15. 19. 1 Chron. 5. 26. And of whoſe Kingdom Nineveh was the chief City; as Damaſcus was of Syria, Iſai. 7. 8.) Aram (or after the Greek, Syria) ſeems to have had as great, a fame, as Aſſur. Since Pul, Aſſur pillaging many Countries, grew to be a tree; Ezek. 31. 3. But falling foul upon Iſrael (which was ſcattered by Nineveh*) began to fall, by* Medes, and Chaldeans; and Babel ſoon grew to be as great a tree, Dan. 4. As ever Aſur had been. The wheels of providence are full of eyes, ſeeing what people ſhall be on the earth, and the bounds of their habitation. Kingdoms and Empires, by the appointment of the Eternal, have their periods: and then their time draweth nigh to an end, when they practiſe cruelty againſt Gods Church and people. The Aſſyrian flouriſhing Empire, for wrongs done to Iſrael, muſt fall by the Babylonians, among others; as Babel did after, for indignities to Judah, fall by the Medes and Perſians, &c. Nahum the Prophet doth lively repreſent it by all circumſtances, both to aſſure Gods people it ſhall be ſo; and to comfort them, in his juſt revenge of all their wrongs on the heads of their Enemies. He alſo telleth, that after their coming from Babel; joyfull preaching ſhall be over all Nations; and comforteth the true Jew, in the fair feet of them that publiſh peace; and biddeth them feſtivie a feſtivity. In brief, Nahum firſt propoundeth Gods dreadfull power and Ninevehs deſtruction; for Judahs conſolation; Chap. 1. Secondly, He expoundeth, the manner, and means of her Ruin, and the woful mourning for it, Chap. 2. [The Medes, and Scythians; and laſtly, and chiefly the Chaldeans fierce and furious enemies, were the means; yet therein but Gods Inſtruments.] Thirdly, He inſiſts upon her ſins, the cauſers of Gods wrath, in her ſhamefull ruin: aſcertained, by the example of Populous No, to be verified upon her: that notwithſtanding all her ſtrong holds; and numerous Aſſyrian Captains and Crowned Commanders: yet there ſhall be no healing of her bruiſe, and mortall wound. Chap. 3. He ſeems to have Propheſied in the dayes of Joſiah: after Pul, Tiglath Pileſer, Shalmaneſer, Sennacherib, and Eſarhadon Kings of Aſſyria had waſted the ten Tribes. Or, as ſome think, but upon weaker grounds, ſooner then ſo: in the dayes of Ahaz, or ſhortly after.

CHAP. I.

THe burden] That is, a propheſie of threatnings and evils, Iſa. 13. 1. & 15. 1. & 17. 1. Ier. 23. 33-36. 2 Kin. 9. 25. This word grew to be ſo common as to be abuſed by falſe Prophets; and prophane men, ſcoffing at it, which made the Lord threaten puniſhment to the abuſers of it, and to change the uſe of it for that time, in Iere. 23. 33--40.

of Nineveh] Zeph. 2. 13. The head of the Aſſyrian Empire, which was conquered by Merodach Baladan King of Babylon, or by Nebuchadnezzar the great King of Chaldea, who alſo deſtroyed Nineveh, as ſome ſay. Iſa. 10. 5. Ezek. 31. 3. 11. See more in the Annot. upon v. 8. as alſo on Ionah 1. v. 2. & chap. 3. 3.

the book of the viſion of Nahum] The viſion or revelation which God commanded Nahum to write, of a ruin to Nineveh. He is an herald ſent from heaven to denounce war and deſtruction againſt Nineveh. He comes not on his own errant, by his own authority: with a dream of his own brain; but with a viſion from God; as Num. 12. 6. Gen. 15. 1.

the Elkoſhite] Of a City, or caſtle, called, Elkoſh; which ſome ancient hiſtories have affirmed to have been within the Tribe of Simeon: but the Scripture makes no mention thereof.

v. 2. God] He prefaceth from the Nature of God in general; But after applies it to his ſpecial uſe againſt the Ninevites; & ſo it carrieth with it more weight, the more to affect the hearers.

is jealous, and the Lord revengeth] Or, The Lord is a jealous God, and a revenger, &c. Who cannot endure ſuch injuries done to his glory, and to his children, as the Aſſyrians have done to them, Exod. 20. 5. and 34. 7. 14. Eſay 65. 6, 7. Deut. 4. 24. and 6. 15. Joſh. 24. 19. Jer. 32. 18. and Deut. 29. 20.

revengeth] See Deut. 32. 43. 2 Kings 9. 7. Jer. 5. 9. and Jer. 51. 35, 36. Ezek. 24. 8.

is furious] Heb. That hath fury. With his he is but angry for a time; but his anger never aſſwageth to the reprobate, though for a time he deferre it. See of Gods fury, Exod. 22. 24. Levit. 26. 28. Deut. 7. 4. and 32. 22. 2 Kings 23. 26. 2 Chro. 34. 25. Eſay 30. 27, 28, 30. and 66. 15. Jer. 30. 23. Ezek. 5. 13.

reſerveth wrath for his enemies] The Aſſyrian. Sure it was to come; though the Jews thought it too long in coming, Eccl. 8. 11. But God hath his time; we muſt not prejudge him therein: He knoweth beſt when, and how long to delay, to ſpare, and forbear, Hoſ. 11. 9. Mal. 3. 6.

melt] As ſnow, or wax before the fire. He ſtill goes on in this formidable deſcription of God; as beſt ſuiting with the burden of his propheſie againſt great Nineve, and the Aſſyrian Empire.

v. 6. Who can ſtand] No ſinner; not Nineve, nor the Aſſyrian Monarchie.

who can abide] Heb. Who can ſtand up. If all creatures be at Gods command, and none is able to reſiſt his wrath, ſhall man flatter himſelf, and think by any means to eſcape, when he provoketh his God to anger. See on verſe 2.

like fire] Such is his fury; and the pouring out of it far and neer; even like the thunder and lightning.

the rocks] 1 Kings 19. 11. what madneſſe is it then in man, or all mankinde to truſt in their ſtrength againſt the Lord?

v. 7. The Lord is good] For all his dreadful ſeverity againſt forlorn ſinners; yet is he good, and goodneſſe it ſelf; is good, and doth good, Pſal. 119. 68. and 73. 1. Mark 10. 18. Good, as the next words expreſſe.

a ſtrong hold] Or, ſtrength, Pſalm 9. 9. and 37. 39. and 46. 1. and 91. 2.

and he knoweth them] Pſalm 1. 6. Leſt the faithful ſhould be diſcouraged by hearing the power of God, he ſheweth them that his mercies appertain unto them; and that he approveth of, favoureth, and taketh an eſpecial care of them.

that truſt in him] Lam. 3. 25, 26. 2 Sam. 22. 31, 32. 2 Chro. 13. 18. See Job 13. 15. Pſalm 9. verſe 10. and 17. 7. and 18. 30. whom God doth not thus own and help, they do not truly truſt in him, ſay what they will.

v. 8. But with an overrunning flood] Here he begins to apply all the former doctrine, to the conſolation of Gods choſen people: ſhewing that Gods foreſaid fearful wrath ſhall be executed upon their enemies, the Aſſyrians, to their utter deſtruction; ſignifying that God will ſuddenly, and at once deſtroy Nineveh, and the Aſſyrians; with war, as with a flood, or deluge, which ſhall break down all defences and banks; and ſhall not be kept back, nor turned another way, as Eſay 28. 19. How the Aſſyrians were overrun, and Nineveh beſieged, and taken, by Phraortes king of the Medes, and by his ſon Cyaxares; and by the Scythians; and deſtroyed by Aſtyages, Heathen hiſtories do record. See Herodotus, Xenophon, and Diodorus Siculus. After theſe ſucceeded Nebuchadnezzar.

his enemies] Gods enemies, Pſalm 35. 6. a dark and black deſolation, an incurable and irrecoverable deſtruction ſhall overtake and ſeize upon them.

v. 9. What do ye imagine] He turns his ſpeech to the Ninevites and Aſſyrians; and ſheweth that the enterpriſes of the Aſſyrians againſt Judah and the Church, were againſt God; as Acts 9. 4. Zech. 2. 8. Deut. 32. 9. The Aſſyrians thought otherwiſe; That they had to deal but againſt Judah and Iſrael; a broken people amongſt themſelves, and by the wars of Syria. But God takes it as againſt himſelf: having taken the patronage and protection of them upon himſelf. And therefore that their enterpriſes were but vain and to no purpoſe; and therfore that he would ſo deſtroy them at once, that he ſhould not need to return the ſecond time.

the ſecond time] As 1 Sam. 26. 8. They which underſtand this verſe of the Church, that God will afflict her, but yet in meaſure; he will not deſtroy her utterly, as he doth his and her enemies, but be content with one affliction and not double his hand upon her, They miſſe of the prophets meaning, and marre the current tenor of the context.

v. 10. For while they be] Troubled and perplexed in their counſels and means of their defence; and alſo made drunken with wine and pleaſures, and with pride of their greatneſſe and power. Or, though they be folden together as thorns, and ſo dangerous to be toucht for pricking; yet the fire of Gods wrath ſhall eaſily devour and conſume them.

and while they are drunken] As drunken men bold without fear, and bragging, and unruly and troubleſome, and yet then a man with his finger may overthrow them.

ſtubble fully dry] Which eaſily takes fire. See Exod. 15. 7. Job 13. 25. Eſay 5. 24. and 47. 14. Mal. 4. 1.

v. 11. There is one come out of thee] He ſeems chiefly to point at Sennacherib, who had plotted the total ruine of Jeruſalem, under Hezekiah; yet with ſome relation to the former kings of Aſſyria likewiſe, to Pul, Tiglath Pilezer, and Shalmaneſer. Here then is the cauſe of Gods burning wrath againſt the Aſſyrian. They may thank themſelves for their own ruine: the cauſe of it comes from themſelves; they eat but the batch of their own baking; they reap the reward of their own merit, their evil imaginations, counſels, and plots ſhall return upon their own pates.

that imagineth evil againſt the Lord] And againſt his people. This is the cauſe, their evil machinations againſt the Jews, Gods Church; which he had taken into his patronage and protection. Thus God makes his Churches cauſe to be his own cauſe. And this is the comfort of Gods Church alwayes againſt all her enemies.

a wicked counſeller] Heb. A counſeller of Belial, verſe 15. See Deut. 13. 13. Judg. 19. 22. 1 Sam. 2. 12. 2 Sam. 16. 7. 2 Chron. 13. 7.

v. 12. Though, &c.] Or, if they would have been at peace, ſo ſhould they have been many, and ſo ſhould they have been ſhorn, and he ſhould have paſſed away. Though they think themſelves quiet in peace, and in moſt ſafety, to be never ſo many for number, and of greateſt ſtrength, by reaſon of the height which this empire had attained unto; yet all this confidence ſhall not hinder Gods judgements: but they ſhall be like to ripe corne, or graſſe of the field, which ſeemeth to call upon the ſickle and ſithe, to cut and mow it down. Others expound the verſe thus, If the Iſraelites would have been quiet, and at peace with me, and among themſelves, ſo ſhould they have been many and mighty: and ſo ſhould the Aſſyrian have but ſhorn them onely, and ſoon have paſſed away from them: That done by Pul king of Aſhur, 2 Kings 15. 19. ſhould have been ſufficient. See Eſay 48. 18.

when he ſhall paſſe through] God in his judgement. Some refer this to the angel and his ſlaughter, made 2 Kings 19. 35.

though I have afflicted thee] God turneth his ſpeech to the Church, and comforts her in the depth of her diſtreſſe, and ſupports her againſt deſpair.

no more] No more by the Aſſyrians. Their empire ſhould ſoon fall, for their foul dealing with his Church. The Babylonians did after that afflict them juſtly for their ſins: yet however their afflictions were but temporary: not as their enemies afflictions were. Ever was that true, Eſay 54. 8. and 26. 20. and 60. 10. Pſalm 30. 5. and 103. 9. 17. and 125. 3. Here was their comfort.

v. 13. For now I will break his yoke] The Aſſyrian Empire, which was as a yoke upon the neck of the Jews: the Lord will quickly break it, and deliver his people, that they ſhall enſlave them, or tyrannize over them no more. They were but as the ſtaff in the Lords hand, which he would break after he had beaten his people with it. See Eſay 10. 5, 6, 12. 15. 24, 25, 26, 27.

v. 14. And the Lord hath given a commandment] Hath decreed in heaven, as Dan. 4. 24. The Iews were no wayes to doubt of it. Eſay 14. 34.

no more of thy name be ſown] Thou ſhalt no more come to thy former eſtate, contrary to thoſe fields, which after the corn is cut down, are ſowen again. Or, he intimateth the total extinguiſhing of the royall race of Aſſyria; the name and memory of it.

cut off the graven Image] This is added according to the cuſtom of Prophets, who in the deſcription, of the ruin of ſtates, do adde thereunto the overthrow of the Idols. And the rather ſo, becauſe they uſually put ſo much truſt and confidence in their idols, and their protection.

I will make thy grave] He ſeemeth to have relation to Sennacherib; being murthered in his own Temple, 2 Kings 19. 36. 37. After he had been ſhamefully forced to go out of Judea. See Ezech. 31. 15. and chap. 32. 22. 23. &c. And that the place thereby ſhould be polluted and prophaned; and the idols removed out of the Temple.

for thou art vile] Some Hebrew Editions vary in this word. See Eſay 14. 10. 11. 12. 15. &c. Vile by thy finall fall, and utter ruin. Targum, for it is vile; that is, the Sepulchre. LXX. for they are ſwift; and they joyn it to the word of the next verſe.

v. 15. Behold] A deſcription of the churches joy at the news of the Aſſyrians ruin; by means whereof ſhe might in peace, ſecurity, and mirth attend upon Gods ſervice, and give him thanks. This ſhews the end that God had in the fall of Nineveh, and the Aſſyrian Monarchy; to teſtifie therein the care he had over his people; that it came not by any revolution of fate, or deſtiny; but his hand did it, for his peoples ſake, for their good; as the verſe ſheweth.

CHAP. II.

Verſe 1. HE that daſheth in pieces] Or the diſperſer, or, hammer, here are Gods judgements againſt Nineve. This daſher is the Mede, Scythian, and Babylonian. Nebuchadnezzar is in a readineſs to deſtroy the Aſſyrians. And the Prophet derideth the enterpriſes of the Aſſyrians, wch prepared to reſiſt them, and ſave Nineve; yet ſome would underſtand of Sennacherib the Aſſyrian, that he ſhould come up againſt Judah; and Judah ſhould ſtrengthen himſelf againſt him; and God for his peoples ſakes ſhould deſtroy him. Others, that Sennacherib ſhould come up; and though the Jews did fortifie themſelves againſt him, yet all that ſhould nothing avail them. But the ſenſe that was firſt ſet down doth beſt agree with the words and context.

is come up] Certainly ſhall; and that ſpeedily, and openly.

keep the munition] Man thy holds, fortifie thy fortreſſes, keep watch and ward, ſtop the paſſages, ſtir up thy ſtrength and courage, yet all ſhall be in vain to the Ninevite and Aſſyrian. Theſe are ironicall kindes of allocutions to the Aſſyrians, uſe what care thou canſt to defend thy ſelf; but all ſhall be to no purpoſe. See Jere. 51. 11. 12. Eſay 8. 9. 10.

v. 2. For the Lord hath turned away, &c.] Some underſtand this. That the Lord will cauſe to return again the excellency of Jacob, and ſettle his people in their priſtine ſtate of excellent glory. And others ſome what differing, render the words and meaning thus; For the Lord hath turned again, with the excellency of Jacob, (meaning Chriſt. See a like phraſe Amos 8. 7. and 2 Sam. 1. 19.) as being the excellency of Iſrael, to ſtand for his people emptied, and marred, and waſted by their enemies; not to afflict them any more by the enemies; but to deſtroy the enemies for their ſakes. But the words and context ſeem better to carry this ſenſe; That the Lord hath turned away the excellency of Jacob, and ſufficiently humbled the pride of Iſrael; And therefore it is now a fit time, and high time to deſtroy Nineve. And this accords with that place, Eſay 10. 12. Seeing God hath puniſhed his own people, Judah, and Iſrael, he will now puniſh the enemies by whom he ſcourged them. See Eſay 30. verſe 31. 32. 33.

the excellencie of Jacob, as the excellency of Iſrael,] Or the pride of Jacob, as the pride of Iſrael.

for the emptiers] The Aſſyrians have thus uſed the Iſraelites. See Pſal. 80. 13.

and marred] Signifying, that the Iſraelites were utterly deſtroyed.

v. 3. The ſhield] A deſcription of the Medes, Scythians, and Chaldeans preparation to aſſault Nineve, though ſome underſtanding it of the laſt enemy onely, the Chaldean.

of his mighty men] Of that daſher in pieces, verſe 1.

is made red] A colour which was much uſed by the Babylonians, and others; eſpecially in wars. See Ezekiel 23. 14.

in ſcarlet] Or, dyed ſcarlet. Either for terrour; or that their own blood ſhed might the leſſe be ſeen and terrifie.

with flaming torches] Or, fiery torches. By reaſon of the glittering of the armour: ſome take this in its proper meaning for wild fires, which ſhould be thrown. Others thus; The charets ſhall run with that ſpeed that the wheeles ſhall be as if they took fire, and were on flames, as torches, with the ſwiftneſs of the motion. See the next verſe.

in the day of his preparation] To give the onſet chiefly.

the fir trees ſhall be terribly ſhaken] He doth ſeem by Hyperbole thus to call the great Launces, Spears, and other piked arms, made of fir trees. They ſhall be forcibly and couragiouſly ſhaken in the hands and managements of the Souldiers; as trees in a forreſt are ſhaken with the windes.

v. 4. The charets] Of the enemies againſt Nineve, and Aſſyria. All here ſerves to expreſs the terribleneſs of the enemies preparations, and approches againſt Nineve; that they ſhall be ſuch as ſhall exceede the common cuſtome of men; and be ſtrange and wonderfull. And this is to awaken Nineve out of her deep ſecurity; and to aſſure her of that which ſhe thought was utterly impoſſible. See the like Eſay 5. 26. 27. 28. 29. 30.

v. 5. He ſhall recount his worthies] The enemies of Nineve ſhall encourage their Captains to the battell, calling them every one by his own proper name, according to the cuſtoms of Generalls. Others underſtand it of Nineve, that ſhe ſhall recount her worthies, her gallant Heroes, and men of war; and gather together all her ſtrengths and means of defence to oppoſe her enemies; as is uſuall in Caſes of greateſt danger and extremity.

they ſhall ſtumble in their walk] There ſhall be ſuch a throng, and they ſhall go on ſo fiercely, that they ſhall hardly be able to keep their ranks contrary to that Joel 2. 7. 8. See that Eſay 5. 27. Some thus; That the Medes ſhould ſtumble and be ſtopt at the ſiege of Nineve by the Scythians, who in their expedition, which was like a walk or perambulation, did raiſe the ſiege of the Medes, like Nineve themſelves, and over-run Media, Aſſyria, and Aſia, winning, and looſing all again within the ſpace of twenty eight years. Others that the worthies of Nineve ſhall ſtumble: Fear ſhall ſo aſtoniſh them, that they ſhall reel, and ſtagger, and ſtumble like blind men, and fall, and not be able to defend Nineve.

to the wall thereof] Some thus; As if the Scythians ſhall haſten to the wall of Nineve, as ready and prepared for the defence thereof againſt the Mede. Others apply this to the Babylonian aſſaulting: and others to the Ninevites defending themſelves, though in vain.

defence] Heb. Covering, or coverer, This by moſt is taken to be ſome engine, or moveable defence, made after the ancient faſhion, under wch the aſſailants drew neer to the wal, either to dig through it with mattocks and pick-axes; or for to fight with them that ſtood in defence above upon certain wooden towers.

v. 6. The gates of the rivers] He ſeemeth to mean ſome violent means uſed by the other enemies, or the Chaldeans, to turn the river Tigris into the beſieged City whereby many great buildings were overthrown; Others rather, that the ports and Forts of Nineve builded upon the river Tigris, and the ſtreams of it, ſhould be overthrown: Neither the ſwift and deep current of the river Tigris, nor any pallace and ſtrong hold, ſhall be of force to keep out the enemy.

diſſolved] Or, molten, ſome underſtand this pallace of the Temple of Jupiter Belus, that was in Nineve.

v. 7. And Huzzab] Or, that which was eſtabliſhed. Or, there was a ſtand made. That is, the kings wife and concubines, which ſhall be ſhut up in the pallace; ſhe that lay hid there, and came not abroad out of her chamber, as delicate dames uſe to do, even ſhe ſhall be brought forth, and led captive, ſome have taken the Hebrew word for the Queen of Ninevehs proper name. Others apply it to the ſtate of the kingdom that formerly was eſtabliſhed, and ſate down at eaſe in pleaſures, yet ſhould now be forced forth into captivity. And others thus; That the Scythians making there a ſtand, ſhould the firſt time lead away Nineveh captive. And laſtly ſome underſtand all this of the Babylonians dealings againſt Nineveh. Thus various are the mindes of Interpreters, in ſuch dark and dubious places.

led away captive] Or, diſcovered.

brought up] Or, brought to nought; vaniſh to nothing.

and her maids] That uſed to cheer her up with mirth and muſick.

ſhall lead her] Now accompany her with mournfull notes.

as with the voice of doves] Weeping, groaning, and lamenting. All this to aſcertain Gods people for their comfort, of the ſpeedy overthrow of Nineveh: which ſeemed to them a thing incredible.

tabring upon their breaſts] An eloquent and excellent expreſſion.

v. 8. But Nineveh is of old] Or from the dayes that ſhe hath been. Is of ſuch antiquity as if it had bin Eternall. And Antiquity gains ſtrength, credit, and authority to kingdoms: yet this ſhall not hinder her overthrow.

like a pool of water] It hath alwayes been a place of eaſe and reſt, of plenty and pleaſure, to her inhabitants: who after the taking of it, ſhall run away, ſome here, ſome there, and ſhall no more come, nor be gathered together, like fiſh taken out of the pond which is emptied and drawn out.

ſtand] Thus expreſſing their fear and flight: that nothing could ſtop their flight, and fear: and cauſe them once to look back: thinking there was no way, any hope of ſafety left but onely in flight.

look back] Or cauſe them to turn.

v. 9. Take ye the ſpoil] This is not the ſpeech of the Generall to his ſouldiers: but of God, or the Prophet from God, commanding the enemies to ſpoil Nineveh: and he promiſeth them infinite riches and treaſures. The enemies thought not that they obeyed any command of God herein: yet were they led thereto by his ſecret inſtinct: As the caſe of the Aſſyrians was, Iſaiah 10. 7. and of Cyrus: Iſaiah 45. 3, 4, 5. God by the enemies puniſheth Nineveh for their wrongs to his people. Neither yet are the enemies thereby any whit excuſable or faultleſſe in ſo doing, they minded their own ends. But Gods people were inſtructed hereby, that Gods hand was in it: and that he vouchſafed to take upon him the cauſe of his afflicted people, to their comfort.

for there is none end of the ſtore] Or, and their infinite ſtore &c. It is a bottomleſſe gulph of ſtore.

glory out of all the pleaſant furniture] Hebr. veſſels of deſire, take all the glory of that wherein they ſo gloried. They had made a prey of all others; themſelves were now to be made a prey. See Iſaiah 33. 1.

v. 10. ſhe is empty] That is Nineveh. And it is repeated for certainty-ſake. Gods power and truth is joyned with his word: It ever hath its effect. Iſaiah 55. 11. and 45. 23. Ezek. 12. 25.

the heart melteth] See Iſaiah 13. 7, 8. and 19. 1. Pſalm 22. 24.

the knees] With terrour, as Iſa. 13.7,8. Dan. 5.6.

the faces of them] See Joel 2. 6. before they were full ſtout, ſtrong, haughty; but now the caſe ſhould be clean altered: an eaſie work of the hand of the Almighty.

v. 11. Where is the dwelling of the Lyons] What is become of Nineveh, the ſeat of ſuch a powerfull, terrible and violent Empire? The words of ſuch as bemoan Nineveh, or mock her, and inſult over her: They thought themſelves all Lyons, or Lyoneſſes, old or young Lyons, of that power and authority, as to over-power and over-rule all others; and as Lyons they behaved themſelves, to ravin and prey, to make and take ſpoil, and that without all fear of any: But now where are they? or their dwelling place, their walking or feeding place? Pſal. 37. 10, 35, 36. & 103. 16. All their fierceneſſe ſhould be gone; their ceaſing to be men, and turning to be ſavage beaſts, brought the rather this judgement upon them.

v. 12. Filled his holes with prey] Laid up ſtore of prey for after times; ſo greedy was he, and ravenous, and covetous.

v. 13. Behold] The Prophet brings in God himſelf ſpeaking, that they may attend the more, and his Word the better take.

I am againſt thee] God will awake, ariſe, and act his part: He takes upon himſelf the execution of all this vengeance upon Nineveh.

I will burn her chariots] Chariots were much uſed in war, Exod. 14. 7. Joſh. 11. 4. & 17. 16. Judg. 4. 3. 1 Sam. 13. 5. 1 Chron. 18. 4. & 19. 7. 1 King. 10. 26. The meaning is, I will conſume her Forces and war-like Power. Thus, as was ſaid, God makes himſelf the author of all thoſe judgements executed by the enemies againſt Nineveh.

in the ſmoak] Suddenly, ſo ſoon as my wrath begins onely to kindle. Or, Into ſmoak: that is, Utterly, even into nothing.

and the ſword] There is an often change of perſon in this ſhort ſpeech, the better to expreſſe Gods wrath and rage thereby, as a man in paſſion uſeth to do the like.

thy prey] Thy courſe and cuſtome of preying and ſpoiling: or, The prey which thou haſt already gotten, all thy wealth and riches, and treaſures, gathered up together by thy oppreſſions and violence.

and the voice of thy Meſſengers] Signifying the Heraulds which were accuſtomed to proclaim war: or, Ambaſſadours imployed to forreign Nations. Some read, Of thy cheek-teeth, wherewith Nineveh was wont to bruiſe the bones of the poor. Others ſay, He ſeemeth to have an eſpeciall relation to Rabſhakeh his blaſpheming ambaſſage, 2 Kings 18, 17, 19.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. WOe to the bloody City] Hebr. City of bloods, Nineveh, Ezek. 24. 9. Hab. 2. 12. In this chapter are Ninevehs ſins and judgements chiefly, and others.

the prey departeth not] She never ceaſeth to ſpoil and rob; theſe are cauſes of her ruine.

v. 2. The noiſe of a whip] A ſcourge driving and laſhing the Charet-horſes of War; this expounds the woe, v. 1. He ſheweth how the Chaldeans ſhall haſte, and how couragious their Horſes ſhall be in beating the ground when they come againſt the Aſſyrians.

ratling of the wheels] Of the Charets of war, being ſwiftly driven, like to Jehu's march, 2 Kings 9. 20.

v. 3. The horſe-man] Thus is the Tragedy repreſented of Ninevehs ruine, by the enemies dealings againſt her.

the bright ſword, and the glittering ſpear] Hebr.. The flame of the Sword, and the lightning of the ſpear.

they ſtumble upon their corpſes] All wayes are ſo filled with them, that none can goe, but he muſt ſtumble or tread on them, ſee Iſa. 34. 3. Jer. 33. 5.

v. 4. Whoredoms] That is, cunning devices, and fraudulent plots to draw in people, and to become Lords over them, as it were, by intereſt of ſtate; as Whores uſe all enticing wayes, all cunning crafts, and witchcrafts too, to inveigle and entangle lewd men. This word is often uſed in this ſenſe among the Prophets, Iſa. 23. 15, 17. Rev. 17. 2. & 18. 3. And this may have relation to their idolatries, which are ſo uſually ſet forth by this metaphor of whoredoms in all the Prophets, which ſin they practiſed, Ezek. 23. 7. and propagated abroad, 2 Kings 16. 10.

of witchcrafts] This term may alſo be referred to the ſame ſenſe; it being the cuſtom of harlots to uſe ſorceries and witchcrafts. It may alſo be underſtood in its proper ſence; as Iſaiah 47. 9. 12.

that ſelleth nations] Under the colour of protection, favour, courteſie, and the like, ſhe ſeiſeth on kingdoms, and ſtates, and doth ſubject nations unto her. By her cunning artifices every way ſhe ſo won and over-powred the nations, that ſhe ordered and diſpoſed them, bought and ſold them, at her pleaſure. And theſe practices of Princes, and ſtates, which they call pollicies, and juſtifie as neceſſary for the governing and maintaining of ſtates, are here called whores-crafts, and witch-crafts. And yet they applaud themſelves in them; which themſelves will condemn and deteſt in the practiſes of private, honeſt, morall men; as if that were a vertue, and an high point of wiſedom in a States-man, which is wicked and abominable in a private man; as to lie, flatter, and deceive, to ſwear and forſwear, and the like.

v. 5. Behold] See on chap. 2. 13

I will diſcover thy skirts] Iſaiah 47. 3. Ezek. 16. 37. Jer. 13. 22. I will expoſe thee to ſhame and ſlavery. A terme taken from the injuries done by the ſouldiers to poor women which were taken priſoners in the war. Iſaiah 47. 2, 3. Jer. 13. 22. Ezek. 16. 37. I will pluck off that luſter and grandieur, and garbe, wherein now thou doeſt ſo much glory, and whereby thou makeſt thy ſelf ſo eſteemed and admired of others; I will ſtrip thee of it, and leave thee ſtark naked.

v. 6. abominable filth] All manner of filth, as they uſed to throw upon people that were publikely diſgraced.

a gazing-ſtock] A wonderment, for my Juſtice upon thee; and an example, for others to take heed by thee. See Numb. 5. 21. Deut. 29. 24. 1 Kings 9. 8. Jer 22. 8. and 48. 39. Ezek. 5. 15. and 14. 8.

v. 7. Shall flee from thee] Through deteſtation and horrour.

Who will bemoan her?] Or, Who can ſufficiently bemoan her? Her ruine ſhall be ſo great, that no lamentation can equall it, no comforters can be ſufficient for her, ſee Gen. 37. 35. Pſal. 77. 2. Iſa. 22. 4. Jer. 31. 15. Some conceive that Nineveh neveh had made her ſelf ſo odious to all by her tyranny, that all fled from her in her need, none would come to aid her, or comfort her, Lam. 1. 16. Pſal. 69. 20.

v. 8. Art thou better then populous No?] Or, Nouriſhing. Hebr. No Amon. A famous City of Ægypt, called in following Ages Alexandria; which it is likely had been greatly ruined before the Prophets time, not mentioned in Scripture, yet ſee Jer. 46. 25.

among the rivers, &c.] In Ægypt, where there were divers branches of Nilus cut out into channels; for otherwiſe Alexandria was not ſcituated by the River it ſelf, but upon the Mediterrane ſea, neer the Iſland Pharos, where was that famous Tower with lights to direct the ſhipping to the Port, and the Lake Mareotis was on the ſouth ſide of it.

v. 9. Æthiopia] It may ſeem ſhe had been a free City, having all for confederates that are mentioned in this verſe: of Æthiopia, ſee on Habak. 3. 7.

Put and Lubim] People of Affrica.

thy helpers] Hebr. In thy help; he turns his ſpeech to No.

v. 10. Yet was ſhe] For all her ſtrength in numbers of men and munitions, and confederates, and auxiliaries.

carried away] Her Inhabitants expelled, captivated, the City waſted. This muſt have been before the time of Nahums propheſie, and ſerve as an example for Nineveh to look upon: this ſome think to have been done by one Sabacus King of Æthiopia, mentioned in Herodotus: Sure it is that it was afterward repaired, and again over-run by the Aſſyrians, and Chaldeans after, as appears in Jeremy and Ezekiel; and long after that rebuilt or repaired by Alexander the great.

daſhed in pieces] A cruelty which was uſed in Cities taken by force of arms, ſee Pſal. 137. 4. Iſa. 13. 6. Hoſ. 13. 16.

caſt lots] For to part them as a prey, ſee Joel 3. 3. Obad. v. 11.

great men] Uſed as the baſe vulgar.

v. 11. Thou alſo] Here he begins to apply the former example of Gods judgement upon No, or Alexandria, to Nineveh: Nothing can hinder God from dealing with Nineveh, as he did with No; he is the Judge of all the world, and he is ever like himſelf, one and the ſame.

ſhalt be drunken] with the cups of Gods wrath, Jer. 25. 15, 17, 27. Iſa. 51. 17. Pſal. 75. 8. Job 21. 20. Pſal. 11. 6. Apoc. 14. 10.

thou ſhalt be hid] For fear and ſhame, and brought to nothing.

ſeek] Forced ſo to do, but all in vain.

v. 12. Fig-trees] Shall be eaſily taken by the enemies. An apt ſimilitude.

v. 13. In the midſt of thee] in the ſight of all, in the midſt of thy Cities and ſtrong holds.

Women] Effeminate and weak, not able to endure the ſight of the enemy: In their walled Towns they ſhould have weak and trembling hearts; God would ſtrike them with terrour, ſee Deut. 7. 20. Levit. 26. 16, 17, 36, 37.

thy gates] All ſhall be opened to the enemies.

thy bars] Thine incloſures and defences, nothing can withſtand Gods hand.

v. 14. Draw thee waters] Make all needfull preparations and proviſions for to hold out the ſiege, repairing the breaches of thy wals with bricks. An ironicall kind of ſpeech, as Nahum 2. 1. Iſa. 8. 9, 10.

tread the morter] To make bricks, to make and ſtrengthen thy fortifications and defences, ſtones were not there in plenty: Bricks were the more uſed. See Exod. 1. 14. & 5. 7.

v. 15. There ſhall the fire] Namely, in thoſe thy ſtrong holds, ſo well repaired and fortified. No means of defence can any wayes be uſed by thee, which ſhall be able any thing at all to avail thee againſt Gods judgement upon thee.

like the canker-worm] Even as thoſe deſtroying creatures gnaw and ſpoil the plants ſuddenly; or, as they themſelves are quickly deſtroyed in any place by fire, or rain, or tempeſt, and change, of weather, or otherwiſe.

make thy ſelf many] Another Ironicall or ſcoffing ſpeech; like the former. All ſhall not help them.

v. 16. Thou haſt multiplied thy Merchants] Merchandiſe, and Merchants were ever in great uſe, and requeſt. Great men and Princes were Merchants. As the Venetians at this day. See Apoc. 18. 23. Ezech. 27. 3. 12. &c. 21. Eſay 23. 8. Nineve had wonderfully multiplied them, as the ſtars in number; as the Canker-worms, and locuſts, which are very numerous, and they gloried greatly therein. But all this ſhould not avail her.

the canker-worm ſpoileth, and flyeth away] This is well known in the Canker-worms, Locuſts, and Graſhoppers; they ſoon come and ſpoil fruits, and fields; and after ſoon fly away. See Joel 2. 25. And ſuch ſhall your Merchants be, and their doings: both in their ſpoiling, and in their flying away; they ſhall ſtand thee in no ſtead, to help or defend thee.

ſpoileth] Or, ſpreadeth himſelf.

v. 17. Thy crowned] Namely, thy Princes, and great Lords, wearing Diadems and wreaths, in token of dignity: or vaſſal and confederat Kings. Thy keepers (and guardians) ſaith the Vulgar Latin.

in the cold day] In cold weather and in the night ſeaſon.

but when the ſun ariſeth] When their opportunity ſerveth.

they flee away] So ſhould their Merchants, Princes, and Captains ſerve them, when they moſt needed them.

and their place] See on chap. 2. 11.

v. 18. Thy ſhepherds ſlumber] Thus he derideth the King of Aſhur, & his confidence in his counſellors & Peers, ſee Jer. 23. 1. and 10. 21. and 22. 22. and 50. 6. Ezek. 34. 2. They are not watchful enough to provide for the ſafety of Nineveh. Thy Heads, Governours, and Officers are dead, or aſtoniſhed, and out of heart, Exod. 15. 16. Pſalm 76. 6. Thus he ſpeaketh to the king of Aſſyria.

Nobles] Or valiant ones.

ſhall dwell in the duſt] As Jer. 51. 30. lye down and not be able to riſe up againſt the enemies to help thee.

thy people is ſcattered] There ſhall be ſo great a diſſipation of Niniveh, and the whole Empire, that there ſhall remain no hope of its recollection and reſtauration.

v. 19. There is no healing] Heb. Wrinckling or contracting: no piece of help or healing, in the leaſt degree. See Jer. 8. 22. and 46. 11.

thy wound is grievous] Dolorous.

ſhall clap their hands] For joy to ſee thy tyranny overthrown, as Pſalm 47. 1. Lam. 2. 15. and applauding Gods juſtice in it.

for upon whom hath not?] Meaning that there was no people to whom the Aſſyrians had not done hurt; none free from their tyranny and oppreſſion.

continually] God then in patience forbore them long. And the Aſſyrians were the more inexcuſable. And Gods people muſt not take offence at his patience; or at their own ſufferings: But leave all to God; who beſt knoweth when and what is beſt to do.

HABAKKUK.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Holy Prophet being in extream grief that Gods own people ſhould ſo abuſe his patience, and run to the extremity of wickedneſſe; he addreſſeth his ſerious and ſad complaint to God, againſt ſuch cruel and curſed practiſes; and then upon Gods anſwer turneth his ſpeech to tell the Jews in Gods Name; That in the preſent Age wherein they lived, they ſhould, (for the ſuperlative ſins of that ſtubborn and rebellious Nation againſt the Lord and his Law) ſee their Common-Weal deſtroyed by the Chaldeans. Afterward, he falleth to wonder and admire that God would advance to height of dignity and Empire, a Nation ſo bitter, haſty, proud, violent, vicious, cruell, and inſatiably covetous, as the Babylonians were; ſuffering them to be Executioners of his judgements, and ſcourgers of his own people. And leſt the Godly, ſeeing the viſion of theſe horrible and laſting Troubles, ſhould deſpair; this muſt be their comfort, that the juſt ſhould live by faith. And therefore the Lord putteth the Prophet, and every Beleever, upon the exerciſe of Faith and patience, the chiefeſt cordials in every calamity; ſtrengthning the heart to ſtay for the effect of Gods juſtice, both to free his people, and to puniſh the enemie; which puniſhment upon the Chaldean enemy, for their manifold grievous ſinnes, the Prophet from God doth largely foretell. Laſtly, the Prophet maketh a wonderfull prayer, celebrating Gods mighty power in ancient deliverances, and terrible executions on Enemies in former times; deſiring that in the midſt of the yeers, God would revive his work, and in wrath remember mercy; and by Faith, he triumpheth even in the midſt of deſperate dangers and miſeries, rejoycing in God, and expecting deliverance from them; and that the glorious God, who had ſhaken Cananeans, would alſo ſhake Chaldeans, and bring his people to walk on their high-places again. After he had done his prayer, he ſaith, To the chief ſinger on Neginoth; that is ſing this ſong with an infinite Luſtineſſe and courage; for you ſhall ſee the power of God marvellous in Babylon; and then you ſhall return to Jeruſalem: In this Book, the Prophet expoſtulateth with God, Chap. 1. Complains of the Chaldeans, and their ſins, Chap. 2. directeth his prayer to God, Chap. 3.

CHAP. I.

T*He burden*] A propheſie, with expreſſe commiſſion of God, denouncing threatnings and curſes, Iſa. 13. 1. Nahum 1. 1.

which Habakkuk] Of the notations of this name, and why it ſhould be given him, as alſo, of his parentage and Tribe, of his life and death, there are uncertain gueſſes, and groundleſſe traditions, but no certain verity; but the argument and matter of his propheſie ſhews that moſt likely he lived in the dayes of Joſiah, or his ſons, chap. 1. 5. 6. & chap. 2. 8. and therefore that he is not that Habakkuk mentioned in the Apocryphal additions to Daniel.

did ſee] That is, received from God in a prophetick viſion, concerning whom is not here expreſſed, as uſually it is in other Prophets; but it ſeems to be, firſt, againſt the Jewes and wicked men, and oppreſſors, whom God will puniſh by the Chaldeans: and after, more at large againſt the Chaldeans, whom God threatens to deſtroy for their manifold ſins.

v. 2. How long] It ſeems the Prophet before this had preached long, and had proof of the refractorineſſe of the people, of their contumacy and obduration in their ſins; and ſeeing now no hope of better, but that things rather grew worſe and worſe, he burning with the zeal of Gods glory, and hatred of their ſins, withdrawes himſelf from the people, and privately deals with God, and ſeeks remedy of him, complaining of their ſins, and ſome way of Gods ſo long patience in tolerating of them, without redreſſing it: He doth not in cruelty ſo much provoke God to puniſh them, as he cryes to God to amend them; and in his function he muſt be true and faithfull, as to the people and their ſalvation, ſo to God and his glory.

ſhal I cry] Lamenting, complaining, ſeeking to thee for ſome way of remedy and redreſſe?

and thou wilt not hear] By chaſtiſements, or ſome way elſe, to amend their manners, and abate the deluge of ſin, which ſtill encreaſeth through impunity, to thy diſhonour.

cry out] He was much with God upon this point, ſomewhat like to the importunate widow; his righteous ſoul was vexed, as Lots, 2 Pet. 2. 8. Pſal. 119. 136. and no doubt but this was the common complaint of all the godly at this time.

of violence] Either generall againſt good men, or particular againſt the Prophet, Gen. 6. 11.

and thou wilt not ſave] And help, but holdeſt ſtill thy peace, Pſal. 50. 21.

v. 3. Why doeſt thou ſhew me] Suffer them ſo to ſin, and that in my ſight, before my face: Jeremy was more paſſionate, too paſſionate, chap. 15. 10. & chap. 20. 14, &c. ſee 1 Kings 19. 4, 10, 14.

grievance] among them, whereby they violently grieve, vex, and ſpoild one another; and ſpecially the wicked ſo grieve the godly.

raiſe up ſtrife] As amongſt themſelves, one againſt another; ſo chiefly againſt thoſe Prophets which reproved them: ſee Jer. 11. 18, &c. & 12. 6. & 15. 10. Hoſ. 4. 4. they could not, they would not endure their holy admonitions; ſee Prov. 29. 1.

v. 4. The law is ſlacked] Neglected, trodden under foot, hath no authority or reverence among them, but is ſleighted, contemned, caſt behinde their backs: This ſhewes that the Prophet is not thus paſſionate in any carnall reſpect, for any private and perſonall grievance, ſpoil or violence done to himſelf, but for the violation of Gods holy Law, and his honour thereby; the cuſtome of wicked men is clean contrary.

judgement doth never goe forth] All judgement and juſtice is oppreſſed and ſuppreſſed, Iſa. 59. 4, 6, 7, 9, 14. none dare call for it, the wicked do ſo ſway and domineer: and thy great patience, O Lord, cauſeth thy law to be, as it were, diſarmed of her terrour, and to be of no ſtrength or authority with theſe wicked men, and alſo to be no more publickly uſed.

doth compaſſe about] If any good man be left with any ſpark of righteouſneſſe in him, he dare not come abroad, or be ſeen; or if he doe, the wicked preſently beſet him round about, and, as it were, beſiege him, that he dare not oppoſe himſelf againſt them, and their doings, Pſal. 12. 1, 8. & 22. 13. Iſa. 59. 15. they ſo prevail by reaſon of their multitude, of their credit and power, that juſtice ſuffereth violence, and is not exerciſed with liberty and righteouſneſſe.

wrong judgement proceedeth] Or, wreſted judgement. All the courſe of publick juſtice is broken off; where remedy ſhould be had, there the malady it ſelf reigneth: the Tribunals and Judgement-ſeats are dens of thieves, inſtruments of oppreſſion; ſee Pſal. 94. 20. Amos 6. 3, 12. & 5. 7.

v. 5. Behold ye] Gods anſwer to the former expoſtulation; or, His anſwer in the mouth of his Prophet, foretelling their ſpeedy deſtruction; that God by the wonderfull adminiſtration of his providence will beat back their violence, and repay it with another violence, the violent invaſion of the Babylonians.

among the heathen] Seeing ye will not learn in Gods ſchool, out of his ſacred mouth.

and regard] Thus he would awaken their ſleepy ſouls, by this repetition for their attention.

and wonder] Thus he would raiſe them up to admiration and marvailous aſtoniſhment, and that at the horribleneſſe of the judgement following, ſeeing they would not be gently tutored in Gods School, but had now rendred themſelves intolerable, unſufferable any longer to God or good men; and therefore it was high time now that ſuch a judgement ſhould fall upon them.

a work in your dayes] They had been often warned of Gods vengeance, but they put off the evil day, and Gods patience ſo lulled them in ſecurity, that they began to deride the Prophets, Iſa. 28. 15. Jer. 5. 12, 13. and contemn Gods judgements: they are told therfore that even in their dayes the judgement ſhould come, it ſhould be no longer delayed, ſee Joel 1. 15. Ezek. 7. 5, &c.

ye will not beleeve] Ye would not beleeve my words, and my Prophets; neither ſhall ye beleeve this judgement; incredible to you was the one, and ſo incredible ſhall be the other; it ſhall exceed all belief: yet both ſhall prove true; and ye ſhall finde and feel this latter to be ſo, to your amazement and aſtoniſhment. This whole verſe Saint Paul cites Acts 13. 41. yet with ſome variation, and ſomewhat following as may ſeem the Tranſlation of the LXX. even where it varies from the Hebrew Text; as in the ſecond word. And the Apoſtle makes uſe of it to his preſent purpoſe, and applies it to thoſe judgements that ſhould befall the Jewes for their contempt of the preaching of the Goſpel in his time.

v. 6. Loe, I raiſe up the Chaldeans] He begins to declare that incredible judgement, and nominates the very thing in particular; he dwels no more upon generals. the Chaldeans are the men that ſhould fight under his banner, by his ſecret inſtinct, and be his executioners of this judgement.

that bitter and haſty nation] See Iſa. 5. 26, &c. God that can bring light out of darkneſs, and good out of evil, can make good uſe of the ſins of men; uſe them to a good end, to the accompliſhment of his juſt judgements.

which ſhall march through the breadth] Heb. breadths, ſo terrible ſhall they be, and without fear ſpread over all the land; nothing ſhall withſtand them. Jere. 25. 38.

v. 7. Their judgement, &c.] Or, from them ſhall proceed the judgement of theſe, and the captivity of theſe. They ſhall receive no Law, nor aſſiſtance from any; their reaſon and luſt is their will; and execution is in their power. Or, from the Chaldeans ſhall the judgement and captivity of thoſe ſinfull Jews proceede; and ſo they ſhall be payed in their kinde, with violence for their violence.

dignity] Or exultation, or deportation and captivity; or burden, as ſome tranſlate the word.

v. 8. ſwifter] Though the Chaldeans be far off, yet ſpeedily and ſwiftly ſhall they come.

Leopards] See Hoſea 13. 7. Jer. 5. 6.

evening wolves] That want their prey all the day, and are ſo at that time the more fierce and ravenous. See Zeph. 3. 3. Jer. 5. 6. Pſal. 104. 20. Jer. 39. 5. Ezech. 22. 27.

ſpread themſelves] Being many and numerous.

as the eagle] Jer. 4. 13. & 48. 40. Lam. 4. 19. Dan. 7. 4. 2 Sam. 1. 23. Job 9. 26.

v. 9. for violence] Or the prey, ſee that chap. 1. 2.

their faces] Or, the ſupping up of their faces, &c. Or, their faces ſhall look toward the eaſt. Heb. The oppoſition of their faces towards the eaſt they ſhall overthrow, and diſſipate all whatſoever ſhall come againſt them; as this tempeſtuous wind doth. See Jonah 4. 8.

as the ſand] See Gene. 22. 17. Joſh. 11. 4. This ſimilitude is often uſed in Scripture.

v. 10. And they] Heb. he; the King Nebuchadnezzar.

at the Kings] To wit, at the kings of the Jewiſh people, as King Zedekiah, 2 Kings 25. 19. And at their confederate Kings and Princes. 2 Kings 25. 6. 7.

heap duſt] Make mounts and rampiers. Peradventure he meaneth to ſhew the eaſineſs of the conqueſt; as if the Chaldeans ſhould do it as it were in a paſtime, as little children do make trenches and forts in their dirt. Thus the prophet leaves them no hope of eſcaping, that they might thereby be humbled, and repent; or elſe left the more inexcuſable.

v. 11. Then] When Nebuchadnezzars greatneſs is come to the height.

ſhall his minde] Heb. Winde; that is his felicity.

change] He ſhall be drunk with his victories, felicity, and proſperity: that ſhall ſo alter and change him, as to deprive him of that ſeeming modeſty, and reaſonable carriage, which he uſed before, and puf him up above Mortality, Or, He ſhal leave off forraign expeditions, and further conqueſts; think rather to enjoy the felicity he had already atchieved. But his felicity ſhall then alſo change. Dan. 4. 30. Thus the Prophet begins to comfort the elect and faithfull ones among his people, with foretelling the iſſue and downfall of this their mighty and mortall enemie; that ſo they may hope for an end of their miſeries procured by him.

offend] Thus his proſperity ſhould lift him up to make way for his down-fall. Thus Gods ſecret providence, and judgements do work.

imputing, &c.] Thus ſacrilegiouſly robbing God of his honour, and aſcribing his victories, even over the Jewes, and their God, unto his idols, which provokes God to take his own, and his peoples cauſe, into his own hands, to his ruine, Jer. 25. 14. And thus inconſtant will that potency be which is ſet upon the vanity of idols; whereby the Prophet comforteth the faithfull, that God will alſo deſtroy the Babylonians abuſing this victory, and becoming proud and inſolent, attributing the praiſe hereof to their idols. See the five firſt Chapters of Daniel.

v. 12. Art not thou from everlaſting] The Prophets words to God; in his own name, and in the name of the godly; triumphing in God, and gloriouſly boaſting, as it were in, and by their faith in him; and in the aſſurance that he is their God, by Covenant; and therefore they ſhall be ſafe and be happy; notwithſtanding all theſe ſharp chaſtiſements. The interrogation is ſtronger then a ſingle aſſeveration. And he converts his ſpeech to God, not to wicked men: It were in vain to contend with them. But then beſt may we oppoſe their blaſphemies, and couragiouſly contend with them, when we firſt make good this Covenant between God and us, and firme our faith in it. Then may we out-brave their carnal boaſtings, with our ſpiritual boaſtings and rejoycings.

from everlaſting the Lord our God?] Eternal in thy ſelf: and for many ages of old by Covenant our God. Thus they remember themſelves of the gracious Covenant; not newly made with them, but four hundred years before their anceſtours came out of Egypt. And they have found in all ages and generations how faithfully God hath ſtill kept his Covenant: And by this they ſtrengthen their faith in their preſent extremities.

mine holy one?] The onely ſacred Deity which I adore; him whom I onely acknowledge to be holy amongſt all other gods, which are but impure idols that pollute the ſoul. And I one of thy holy ones, by thy gracious adoption; and ſo under thy ſafe and bleſſed protection.

we ſhall not dye] Thus he and they raiſe up themſelves as conquerers over theſe calamities. They are under Gods tuition, therefore they cannot periſh. Gods defence, and their ſafety, are things that cannot be ſeparated. All the defence that all the world can give, cannot give this aſſurance. But they know that death it ſelf ſhall not deſtroy them, 1 Cor. 15. 54, &c. but be their out-gate to perfect felicity. And Gods Church ſhall ever be preſerved in this world by his power: the gates of hell ſhall not prevail againſt it. Thy Church cannot periſh ſeeing it is joyned to thee, who art everlaſting, by a covenant, which importeth communication of grace, life and glory. See Pſalm 102. 28. and 118. 17. Lam. 5. 19, 20. Matth. 22. 32. Thus faith gloriouſly triumphs in the midſt of afflictions, reſting upon Gods Covenant of life: and quietly ſubmitting to his chaſtiſements in the mean time. Here the Chaldee Paraphraſe ſubſtituteth theſe words inſtead of the former, holy in the works of faith; referring them to God.

thou haſt ordained them for judgement] It is true that thou haſt eſtabliſhed that great Empire to puniſh thy Church, 2 Kings 19. 25. Eſay 10. 5, 6, 7. but not to deſtroy it, as it endeavoureth to do by an extream tyranny, contrary to thy nature and will: what the Chaldean doth in his time, it is by thy permiſſion, and wiſe and holy ſecret providence and guidance we are not wholly left to his luſt and pleaſure. This holds up our hope againſt deſpair, and gives us light in this dark night of afflictions, and is our buckler againſt all tentations; that thou wilt order all for our good; for our chaſtiſement; though in truth for his judgement.

mighty God] Hebr. rock. Deut. 32. 4. He and his counſell change not in all the changes of the world; but remain firme and ſtable, as a rock. In him is ſtrength; Iſa. 26. 4. and 28. 16.

eſtabliſhed] Hebr. founded, grounded him, for perſeverance, and continuance, in this, to the end.

for correction] This is the end why God uſed ſo ſharp a whip as the Chaldeans; yet did moderate it by his ſecret providence. All is not to deſtroy his people; but to correct them for their ſins, and to amend them.

v. 13. Thou art of purer eyes] The Prophet layes this down for a principle: as according with the nature of God. And this he makes his ſtay and prop in this conflict and tentation following: takes this for granted. So Jer. 12. 1. And this muſt curb his turbulent affection, ſo ready to expoſtulate the matter with God.

wherefore lookeſt thou?] Patiently, without puniſhing it? He doth not impiouſly deny Gods providence: as the man, Job 22. 12, 13, 14. Pſal. 10. verſe 11. and 73. 11. and 94. 7. He doth not aſcribe all to Fate, or Fortune. He ſpeaks as fleſh and blood would prompt to him: he ſpeaketh doubtingly, and conflictingly: he conteſts rather with himſelf, then with God: he complains rather of himſelf, then of God: ſtil ſticking to this principle of piety, That God governs the world: and that God, and his juſtice cannot be divided aſunder: he righteouſly governs it, though our blinde eyes cannot ſee it to be ſo: nor he could ſatisfie himſelf, and his doubts therein.

wicked] The Chaldeans, who are unjuſt in oppreſſing thy people, who never offended them: and are inordinate in the execution of thy judgements, which they do not regard: and are more wicked then thoſe whom thou puniſheſt by them. This ſtumbled the Prophet: He would fain be reſolved in it. See Job 21. 7. Pſal. 37. 1. and 73. 3. Jer. 12. 1.

v. 14. And makeſt men as the fiſhes] Haſt thou forſaken nations, and ſtates, like fiſhes, and ſuch like beaſts, which are his that can firſt take them? and ſo as a prey devour one another? Thus he proceeds in his complaint, conflict, and expoſtulation: ſecretly wiſhing that God would ſtop theſe flood-gates of ſin, and curb the rage of theſe outragious men.

v. 15. They take up] The Chaldeans, thus deal withall promiſcuouſly: with good and bad alike: inhumanely with Gods people, as well as with others; violating all Laws, by their unjuſt tyranny: yet in all this haeſitation, and tentation, wherein he wreſtles ſo ſtrongly, he ſtill makes his addreſſe to God for redreſſe and remedy: he acknowledgeth Gods hand in all this: and applyes himſelf to God, to unlooſe theſe knots, to help him out of the briars of theſe perplexities, and his own fooliſh and abſurd imaginations: that he might be able to ſee Gods ſtraight ſteps in theſe crooked paths: his order in theſe confuſions. Atheiſts and blaſphemers do otherwiſe.

therefore they rejoyce] Glory in their miſchiefs, triumph in their tyrannical exorbitances: and thou ſuffereſt them. This was his wonderment and amazement.

v. 16. Therefore they ſacrifice] Inſtead of acknowledging all their greatneſs to come from God, and giving him thanks, and ſerving him; they attributed it to themſelves, and to their induſtry, underſtanding, and valour. See Eſay 10. 7. 13. and 4ſ. 4, 5. and Chap. 37. 24, &c. They ſacrilegiouſly rob God of his honour; and would Deifie themſelves; they ſuffocate, ſtifle, and extinguiſh the right knowledge of God; and put themſelves in his place; arrogating that to themſelves which is onely due to him. They pretend much to their idols, verſe 11. yet in iſſue they reduce all to themſelves. And moſt do ſo now in theſe dayes: Generals in wars magnifie themſelves and their own parts; though for ſhew ſake they appoint and ſolemnize thankſgiving dayes to God. And private men in their own affairs are not free of this fault.

their portion is fat] Thus their proſperous ſucceſſes do blow them up, and infatuate them, Prov. 1. 32.

v. 17. Shall they therefore] Shall the Chaldean alwayes do ſo? how long wilt thou ſuffer it? wilt thou, O Lord, ſuffer them, after ſo many faults and impieties, both againſt men, and againſt thee, to enjoy their oppreſſions, and endleſly continue in them?

emptie their net] And ſpread it anew, to take more preyes; that their ſucceſſes paſt ſhall egge them on; and make them more eager for new exploits.

to ſlay the nations?] See Jer. 25. 9. Ezek. chap. 25, &c. And thou not ſtop them; but ſuffer them ſtill to go unpuniſhed? Hitherto his complaint, and expoſtulation.

CHAP. II.

I Will ſtand] Heb. I did ſtand. The Prophet was deep in doubts, ſwallowed up in a gulf of tentations, as if the world were ruled by chance, by fate, or by fortune; and no wiſe guided by Gods providence; and he could finde out no iſſue, to rid himſelf out of this perplexitie. But here he begins to recollect himſelf: And he ſpeaks not in his own perſon onely, but in the perſon of all the godly: he repreſents their like affections, and conditions. And he ſaith, I will ſtand; and after again, ſet me; importing his ſetled reſolution, and conſtant purpoſe ſo to do. And the caſe did ſo require it, a caſe of ſo difficult inquiſition, and ſo great conſequence. The phraſe is taken from watchers, which were in ſtrong and guarded places, as Eſay 21. 6, 7, 8. The meaning is by prayers, meditations, and lifting up of my minde, I did deſire of God ſome prophetick revelation, whereby I might be taught how to anſwer to that which profane and weak perſons might oppoſe againſt Gods providence which doth ſo far favour thoſe wickd Chaldeans.

my watch] And after, tower or fenced place. He relates not to his prophetical office: nor yet to the word of God immediately: but to the receſſe of his own carefull and anxious minde; to bethink himſelf and caſt about every way: and he ſettles upon that which followes.

and will watch] This is his Reſolve. He will be attent, he will be as a watchman or ſcout; and that is a vigilant and carefull office: He muſt be quiet, and ſilent, and watch when others ſleep, and not diſturbing any without great cauſe: And he muſt be perſeverant, without wearying. See Iſaiah 21. 6, 7, 8.

what he will ſay] Not what the adverſaries will object in this caſe, and calumniate; They will be open mouthed enough: nor what the world will ſay, what will be the dictate of carnal reaſon, the ſenſe and cenſure of fleſh and blood, the ſpeculations and imaginations of mans brain, the judgement of his heart. Nor what Satan will ſuggeſt. All theſe will multiply diſtractions, and heap up confuſions in the ſoul. And they that yield up themſelves to them, undoubtedly and worthily periſh in them. But I will ſee what he will ſay, Pſal. 8. 5. 8. I will riſe up above the world; I will renounce the judgement of man; I will break through theſe ſnares of Satan; And in my minde reſolve to ſee what God will ſay unto me, in this point. He and his word ſhall be all in all unto me. And indeed this is the onely way; there is no other remedie to theſe tentations; this is the way we muſt fight againſt them. Gods word will be as a ladder, as wings to raiſe us up aloft above the world; that from ſuch an height we may the better diſcern and judge of the paſſages here below. Let that obtain its authority with us, and we wholly depend upon it; and this will ſuffice us abundantly: nothing better for us then ſo to do.

unto me] Or, in me. Or, God would ſpeak unto me; namely, by inward revelation. See Hoſ. 1. 2. that I might anſwer to the people in Gods words.

and what I ſhall anſwer] Then I can; and not till then. When I have heard the voice of God in his word, I ſhall be then and thereby ſufficiently inſtructed what to anſwer in this intricate perplexitie.

when I am reproved] Or, when I am argued with. Heb. Upon my reproof or arguing. And alſo upon that denunciation, Chap. 1. 5. &c. Theſe reproofs are the aſſaults of Satan, the blaſphemous ſpeeches of wicked men, and our turbulent paſſions, that riſe up in us, and are our own Tempters. The ſumme of all is. That no judgement can be made of Gods providence in the government of the world, but by the light and verdict of God in his word. Unleſſe we ſubject our ſelves wholly to him, raſhneſſe and arrogancy will blinde us, and lead us into the ditch. See pſalm 73. 17.

v. 2. And the Lord anſwered me] Gods anſwer to the laſt expoſtulation and complaint. God in time will not fail to anſwer and ſuccour his thus waiting on him.

write] This relates to his prophetical office; and is for the uſe of the Church, and the edification of it.

the viſion] Even that admonition which hereafter follows; and that ſentence againſt the Chaldean, which from thence is denounced againſt him for his ſinnes, to the end of the Chapter; which ſentence is ſatisfactory to the Prophets grievance and complaint in the latter part of the former Chapter. Yet ſome upon weaker grounds extend and expound the meaning thus; I have not yet taken away the guift of propheſie from my people: by which I will cauſe you to know not onely ſuch accidents as do trouble them; but alſo what ſhall happen untill Chriſts coming; which is called the end of the time of the Law. See Dan. 10. 14. Or thus, The matter of this viſion is not to take effect preſently, but in Gods due time.

plain upon tables] See Eſay 8. 1. &c. and 30. 8. as Deut. 27. 8. in great Characters; that at the firſt view with one blench of the eye a runner may read it. So plainly muſt this be written, that there might remain no doubt or difficulty in the meaning and truth of the viſion: and the matter of it be the more memorable, remarkable, and regardable.

v. 3. yet for an appointed time] We muſt wait and hope: God will try and exerciſe our faith and patience. We are too haſty and hot upon the execution and accompliſhment. But God muſt have liberty left him, to delay and defer it to his own time; and we muſt depend upon his power and pleaſure.

but at the end it ſhall ſpeak] It ſhall be ſure though ſlow; experience ſhall prove it: mean while we muſt not miſtruſt the truth of it.

though you tarry] And yet in the end of the verſe it will not tarry. The meaning is, though it ſeem to tarry in our haſty expectations; and God ſeem ſlow, yet it doth not tarry, at Gods time, nor is he ſlack; Heb. 10. 37. 2 Pet. 3. 9. we muſt not tie God to our rules, nor regulate him by our moody paſſions; but give that honour to his word and promiſes as abſolutely to reſt in them; knowing Truth it ſelf will be ſure to compleat the truth of them. And this indeed is the true nature of faith. We have need of patience, Heb. 10. 36. we muſt not caſt away our hope.

ſurely come] Heb. 10. 37.

v. 4. Behold his ſoul] He is not right and upright, who lifts up himſelf, and ſeeks to ſhift ſome other way; to ſtrengthen himſelf and gain ſafety and ſecurity by ſome other means. He ſhall miſſe his end, and be broken in his enterpriſe; he ſhall never be ſafe and quiet; He doth but torment himſelf in vain. The LXX. and Heb. 10. 38. thus; my ſoul ſhall have no pleaſure in him: wherein the Apoſtle is rather an expoſitor, then a tranſlator; not tying himſelf to the termes of a tranſlation.

But the juſt ſhall live by his faith] This faith in God, his word, and promiſe, is the onely true port and haven wherein he may ſafely and ſecurely anchor himſelf, againſt all the ſtorms and tempeſts formerly mentioned. See Eſay 30. 7. 15. and 7. 4. and 28. 12. It is not the inherent fidelity and integrity of his own heart and conſcience that doth it; but his faith in God, emptying himſelf of all mundane means, helps, and ſtrengths; and truſting onely by his faith to the faith of God in his word and promiſes; This man ſhall live by it; and live too eternally; for otherwiſe all the bleſſings of this life were but poor things in themſelves, if they related but to this ſhort life onely: but theſe bleſſings are pledges and pawns of eternal life to the faithful. This text is famouſly alleadged in the New Teſtament, Rom. 1. 17. Gal. 3. 11. Heb. 10. 38. S. Paul extends the meaning from this life to eternal life; and argues from eternal life, to juſtification; becauſe they two are things ever conjoyned, never ſeparated; and that both are freely by faith, without the works of the law. He proves there is no juſtification by the Law, or our works of the Law. And therefore it muſt be revealed in the Goſpell; and be by Gods ſole mercy; and ſo by faith believing it:

as he proves out of this teſtimony of Habakkuk. And in the epiſtle to the Hebrews we are exhorted not to caſt away our confidence of heaven, and of our reward there; but patiently expect the receiving of it; for as much as the juſt in this world do live by faith; which ſhall ceaſe when fruition comes in ſtead of it. And thus in this verſe the Prophet oppoſeth the fact of the proud hypocrite, to the act and office of the juſt in thoſe troublous times. Some make the former part of the verſe to relate to Nebuchadnezzars perſon, and his lifting up himſelf, Dan. 4. 30. And others render the ſenſe of the whole verſe thus; The remedies againſt theſe calamities of the Church, is not to ſeek out places to ſecure themſelves from Gods hand: as the Jews did, when they went into Ægypt, and other places, and there periſhed, nor much leſſe to ſeparate themſelves from the Communion of the Church by apoſtacy: theſe are onely damnable errours of carnall ſenſe, which God reproveth. But good ſouls having no other help, ſhall by a lively faith in God be maintained in the true ſpirituall life, which is the conjunction with God, and the feeling of his grace: and ſhall be defended from any thing which may hurt their ſalvation.

his faith] The particle his is omitted in the Apoſtles citations, Rom. 1. 17. Gal. 3. 11. Heb. 10. 38.

he] The Babylonian; of whom he complained, Chap. 1. 12. &c. He ſhall be puniſhed; and ſo the Prophets grievance ſatisfied; and God be ſeen juſtly to govern the world.

tranſgreſſeth by wine] The Babylonians ſins for which he is ſentenced; drunkenneſſe, pride, and inſatiableneſſe: Or, he is drunk with pride, and inſatiableneſſe. Other thus; If I blame my People, that think to ſave themſelves by their cunning; how much more ſhall I condemn the Babylonians, who drowned in pleaſures, and made drunk with proſperity, do boldly contemn my threatnings? he ſeemeth to have relation to Belſhazzars drinking feaſts, Dan. 5. Or to the taking of Babylon in a night of great diſſoluteneſs. Iſai. 21. 5. Jer. 51. 39.

who enlargeth his deſire as hell] Prov. 27. 20. and 30. 16. The Babylonian hath been inflamed with an unſatiable deſire and ambition. See Eſay 5. 14.

but gathereth to him all Nations] Bringeth them into his ſubjection, and maketh a prey of their goods, Iſaiah. 10. 13.

v. 6. ſhall not all theſe] People whom he gathered and heaped to himſelf. Here his puniſhment begins; and not in the former verſe.

take up a parable] They ſhall taunt him with tart and bitter jeſts and ſcoffs; mock him, deride him. See Eſay 14. 4. Jere. 24. 9. 2 Chr. 7. 20. Such Taunts are lawfull where the caſe and cauſe deſerves it.

and ſay] It is in the ſingular number, he ſhall ſay, rather the Taunter, or happily the juſt man that lives by his faith, verſe 4. And thus Faith triumphs aforehand; the nature of it being ſuch as is deſcribed, Heb. 11. 1.

wo to him] Or, Ho he, which beſt agreeth with a ſcoff. The many ſins of the Babylonians, are reckoned up again, their unſatiable ambition, covetouſneſſe, bloodineſs, tyranny, inhumanity, riot, Luxury, idolatry; as the cauſes of Gods judgements againſt them.

that increaſeth] Conquering unjuſtly; and ſpoyling other nations, that he had no right to.

How long] Signifying that all the world ſhall wiſh the deſtruction of Tyrants; And that mean while they are endured with much grief and irkſomneſſe; as the troublers of the world, the perverters of all order and juſtice, by their ambition, covetouſneſs, and oppreſſion. And nature it ſelf dictates ſo much unto them; that they cannot ſtil continue ſo to do, it muſt have an end. And all this though we ſee it, and ſay it of others, yet we cannot ſee it, and ſay it, in, and of our ſelves, in caſes that are alike, ſo blinde are we at home, though quick-ſighted in other mens ſins.

thick clay] Namely with earthly riches, the deſire of which is the ſouls enſnaring, or a burden which overcommeth and ſmothereth him alive, See 1 Tim. 6. 9. 10. They burden him, and make him a burden to himſelf.

v. 7. ſhall they not riſe up?] That is, the Medes and Perſians, that ſhould deſtroy the Babylonians? Jer. 50. and 51. Eſay 13. 14. 21. Chapters. The interrogation addes to the undoubted certainty of it.

ſuddenly] Though they thought themſelves ſo ſafe and ſure, that no ſudden miſchief could poſſibly befall them, but that they might timely withſtand it.

bite thee] A phraſe taken from hunting dogs.

v. 8. Becauſe thou haſt ſpoiled] Another cauſe of Gods juſt judgement upon the Babylonians: and that by way of Retaliation: ſee Eſay 33. 1. Jer. 25. 12. 14. Mat. 7. 2. Apoc. 13. 10.

all the remnant] Among the nations which thou haſt ſpoiled; or the remnant of the nations which thou haſt not touched.

blood] Heb: bloods. implying multitudes of bloody actions.

and for the violence of the land] Or, oppreſſing the land v. 17. the violent oppreſſion thou didſt bring upon all the world.

of the city] Babylon, that uſed the violence, or Jeruſalem ſpecially; and other cities that ſuffered and indured the violence. God the juſt Judge of the world, will in his time take due vengeance on all ſuch men, on all ſuch Kingdoms. Pſ. 94. 1.

v. 9. woe to him that coveteth] Or, gaineth an evil gain Jer. 22. 13. Another cauſe of the judgement.

to his houſe] To encreaſe and eſtabliſh his eſtate, ſo that he might be out of all danger: ſo to enrich and ſettle himſelf, and his poſterity. But this evil covetouſneſſe, and wealth ſo evil gotten, ſhall prove evil and pernicious to him, and his houſe; as the next verſe doth further avow.

his neſt on high] Thus wealth puffs up with pride, and ſecurity; They make their riches their ſtrong Caſtle. ſee Pſal. 49. 5. 6. and 52. 7. Prov. 13. 8. delivered from the power of evill] Heb: palm of the hand; alluding to that, Gen. 11. 4. Thus riches do intoxicate him.

v. 10. conſulted ſhame to thy houſe] In ſtead of advancing and ſetting it up, ſee Prov. 11. 28. and 22. 16. Eccl. 5. 12. 13. 14. He ſpeaks here to the Babylonian; ſignifying that he, and ſo the covetous man in general ſhould thus ſpeed; The glory they hoped for, God ſhall turn to their ſhame: Their conſultations, and agitations, and machinations, wherein they were ſo active and induſtrious, day and night, ſhall have no better end.

by cutting off ſo many people] Though the Babylonian by this means thought to gather wealth, to raiſe his name, to become glorious, being ſo victorious; and that it was impoſſible it ſhould prove otherwiſe; yet for all this his hopes ſhould be fruſtrated and he ſhould reap ſhame in the end.

ſinned againſt thy ſoul] God ſhall return the evil upon thine own head. Thus wicked men hurt themſelves moſt in hurting others.

v. 11. for the ſtone ſhall] as it were to witneſſe that thou haſt built thy houſe with violence and rapine.

and the beame] Or, piece, or faſtning. Heb. The fragments or faſtening in brick wherewith they ordinarily built their houſes in Babylon, with timber among it; Gen. 11. 3. Others, the morter; which comes almoſt to the ſame ſenſe.

anſwer it] or, witneſſe againſt it: He may ſeem to allude to Reſponſories; as in Quires, and muſick; ſo the ſtone and timber ſhall anſwer one another; every part of the building accord, and bear concord in this, that it was built in blood; and that woe and ſhame ſhall be to him therefore.

v. 12. woe to him] This may be the cry and anſwer of theſe ſenſleſſe creatures: when the prophets of God, and God himſelf by their cries, admonitions and threatnings could not be heard. See. Luk. 19. 40.

v. 13. is it not Who can make any queſtion but that the ruine of Babylon, to the foundation, and increaſe of which, ſo many nations, for ſo many ages, had contributed their labour, is a ſingular work of Gods vengeance. And that it is a righteous judgement of God, that ſuch a people ſhould ſo toyle tire, weare and weary themſelves, for their vain and worldly greatneſſe, and ſhould ſo periſh in it, and with it. God will have his turne; his hand ſhall be in it; that ſuch men as will ſo labour to be rich, with an evil conſcience, ſhall loſe the fruit of their labour, though they had all the world on their ſide.

v. 14. for the earth ſhall be full with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord] Or, by knowing the glory of the Lord, by the juſt and powerful puniſhment of his enemies. Gods glory was clouded and darkened before, when his people, holy city, and Temple, were deſtroyed by the Babylonians: The knowledge of him, and his glory was then obſcured and lay hid. But when he ſhall deſtroy Babylon, and take vengeance on it, for his peoples ſake; then ſhall the knowledge of him, and of his glory be openly known, and fully manifeſted. Pſal. 9. 16. Then it ſhall be clearly ſeen that he governs the world; and is the juſt judge of it Pſal. 58. 11. and 9, 8. That place Iſaiah: 11. 9. mentioneth the knowledge of God in general, omitting this particular of his glory: And that hath reference to the abounding knowledge of God in the dayes of the Goſpel, more then in the time of the Law, whereof, See Jere. 31. 34. Joel 2. 28. 1 John 2. 27. Heb. 8. 11.

as the waters] Moſt abundantly. See Eſay 48. 18. and 8. 7. 8.

v. 15. Wo] Another cauſe of Gods judgement upon Babylon.

to him] To the King, or Kings of Babylon, ſpeaking of the Empire.

that giveth his neighbour] His fellow Kings, or neighbor Princes and confederates.

drink] In ſuch manner as follows. The whole ſpeech is metaphoricall, or allegoricall.

that putteſt thy bottle to him] This may be underſtood in the proper ſenſe, of the diſſoluteneſs of the Babylonian court; in the which they did filthy and diſhoneſt acts. Or, rather figuratively of the diſhoneſt practices, by which the Babylonian drew in other Princes and Nations for to joyn with him in his wars, upon hopes of ſharing in the victories, ſpoiles, and prey, or upon other fair pretences bringing them to the ſame deſires with him. Some tranſlate it, not bottle; but thy heat, or thy wrath, or anger.

that thou mayeſt look on their nakedneſſe] Fail them in the end, and ſpoil them, and bring them into ignominious ſlavery.

v. 16. Thou art filled with ſhame for glory] Or, more with ſhame, then with glory; abuſing thy glory to thy ſhame. Or, expoſing others to ſhame, to augment thy glory; not much heeding their ſhame, that they have ſuſtained, for thy ſake, ſo it may ſerve to the furtherance of thy glory.

drink thou alſo] Of the cup of Gods wrath, Jere. 25. 26. 27. Beare thou the ſame judgements.

uncovered] Be a ſhameful ſpectacle, uncircumciſion was counted opprobrious among the Jews.

ſprung] A term taken from drunkards feaſts; which do ſpoil the moſt adorned, and beautifull places. The meaning is, Gods judgements ſhall carry thee into moſt unworthy and infamous acts, Jere. 51. 57.

v. 17. For the violence of Lebanon] As he that felleth trees in a wood, is often-times cruſhed by them: ſo thy oppreſſion and violence will cauſe thy ruin. See Eſay 14. 8. Ezek. 31. 16. Or, rather thine enemies ſhall hunt, purſue, and take thee, as the hunters in Lebanon with all eagerneſs and violence hunt the wild beaſts. So that the violence which the Babylonians uſed againſt the Jews, and Jury, ſhould be requited with like violence uſed by their enemies againſt them. The meaning of the words is obſcure. Of Lebanon. See on Zechary 11. 1.

and the ſpoil of beaſts which made them afraid] This likewiſe is obſcure, and ſubject to various ſenſes. The moſt likely is this, That as oft times wolves and other ravening beaſts, are ſurprized in the greateſt heat of their ſlaughter; which blindeth them; and they terrified thereupon; ſo the like ſhall happen to thee.

violence of the land, &c.] See on verſe 8.

v. 18. What] Here is another cauſe of Gods judgements upon Babylon: and withall a cloſe intimation that all theſe judgments denounced againſt Babylon ſhall come, not from vain images, and imaginary deities of the Heathens; as their Nemeſis, or Aſtræa; But from the true Jehovah, the Lord God of the Jews, dwelling in his holy Temple.

profiteth] A ſcoff at the Chaldeans vain confidence in their idol. It profiteth neither it ſelf, nor its worſhippers; But fills them, and deludes them, with a falſe expectation of help by it.

that the maker thereof] What deity can the maker and graver bring to ſuch materials? what deity can ariſe from the handy-craft of man? He can grave the mettle, wood, or ſtone; but cannot change the nature of them. It is ſtill but a graven image, and no more.

teacher of lies] Idols are ſo called, Jere. 10. 8. 14. Zach. 10. 2. becauſe that according to the opinion of idolaters, they are remembrances, and viſible documents of an inviſible deity: and in the mean time, they cauſe mans minde to go aſtray from the true and ſaving knowledge of God revealed in his word: imprinting falſe opinions of God in him; bringing him down to ſenſible things; and not raiſing him up to ſpirituall ones. See Iſaiah 44. 10. 20. Men herein ſo bewitch and blinde themſelves with falſe and fooliſh imaginations; as if purpoſely they meant to deny their own reaſon and underſtanding; their prejudicate opinion, falſe fancy; and meere illuſion, muſt prevaile againſt it. See Iſaiah 40. 18, 19, 20, 21. and 44. 18, 19, 20. yet Papiſts call them Lay-mens books.

truſteth therein] A prodigious errour, a ſtupendious ſtupidity, to give divine worſhip, to put truſt, and affiance for help, and ſuccour, in the workmanſhip of his own hands. Pſal. 115. 8. and 135. 18. Jer. 10. 14.

dumb idols] It is but mettal, ſtock, or ſtone ſtill; it cannot ſpeak; the workman with all his ſkill cannot change the nature of the ſtuffe and matter, whereon he works. Pſal. 115. 5. and 135. 15, 16, 17. Jer. 10. 6.

v. 19. wo] He ſharply inveighs againſt this blockiſhneſſe in man to have ſuch conceipts of blocks; as if any divine vertue lay hidden in them. It is but wood, but ſtone ſtill, for all that.

Ariſe] To help me. See 1 Kings 18. 27. Thus prayer proper to God, they exhibit to idols.

It ſhall teach] That is, counſell and direct thee. Though otherwiſe it be a teacher of lies, yet it ſelf ſhall ſuffice to teach thee this, that it is dumb and ſenſeleſſe. There needs no other; there can be no better teacher. But they are bad ſchollars, their ſuperſtition ſets them a madding.

Behold] Calls them to conſider; to ſhew themſelves men; and to ſee the groſſe cozenage of Satan.

laid over] Fooliſh idolaters think the better of their idols, if they be finely garniſhed. Papiſts have finer cloathes for their images on their greateſt feſtivals.

no breath] See what they are within. Pſal. 135. 17. Look to that.

v. 20. But the Lord] Oppoſing the true God, and the worſhip due to him, to thoſe falſe Idols, and the truſt put in them. Having overthrown the errour, he then eſtabliſheth the truth.

is in his holy Temple] Not included in images: neither was there any image made of him in his Temple. But ſuch manner of worſhip in types and ceremonies, as his holy word and Law warranted and preſcribed; expreſly forbidding images. Pſal. 11. 4. Deut. 4. 12. The meaning is, He liveth and reigneth in heaven, in glory; and is preſent in grace and Spirit in his Temple: and it is fitting that all the world ſhould ſubmit to him, in all humility. Thus he ſheweth the Churches happines; and duty in theſe troublous times; by meditation, of Gods preſence, and glory; thereby comfortably to expect deliverance in his time; and mean while to poſſeſs their ſouls in patience.

let all the earth] Heb. Be ſilent all the earth before him, Zep. 1. 7. Zach. 2. 13. Though all men rage againſt him, yet he can ſoon ſilence them. Pſal. 2. 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. The Jews therefore ſhould fear nothing; for all the fury of their enemies; but know they are ſafe under his protection; and in ſilence ſubmit to his power, and judgements; and ſubject themſelves to him in patience, and obedience.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. A Prayer] He prayes himſelf; and inſtructs his people to pray unto God: and ſo herein preſcribes them a form of Prayer: ſet forms not unlawfull. Herein he ſets forth Gods glorious greatneſſe and wonderfull acts; againſt his enemies, and for his Church. Whereupon he concludes with the triumph of his Faith in the midſt and height of all afflictions.

of Habakkuk] For himſelf, and the people; for them it was penned; that thereby they might preſerve and exerciſe their faith and piety, in the times of their captivity and miſery; and not fall away to Heatheniſh ſuperſtitions.

upon Sigionoth] Or, according to variable ſongs, or tunes, or Muſicall inſtruments, called in Hebrew, Sigionoth. The meaning of this term is not certainly known. See Pſal. 7. 1. Heb. wandering or ignorances.

v. 2. O Lord I have heard thy ſpeech] Heb. Thy report, or, thy hearing. Namely, thy voyce in the precedent propheſie concerning the ruin of thy people, and the ruin of Babylon.

and was afraid] At the threatnings of ſuch grievous judgements. See Eſay 19. 16. Amos 3. 8. This is a ſigne of humiliation and penitency: as not to fear Gods threatnings in his word, is a ſign of Atheiſme and Infidelity.

revive thy work] Or, preſerve alive. Continue thy Church, and thy work of grace in thy Church. See Eſay 45. 11. Though they ſeem deſtinated to death and deſtruction, yet revive the ſtate and being of thy Church and people. And this he calls Gods work in a ſingular and eminent way. Eſay 60. 21. and 61. 3. The works of his wiſdom, mercy, goodneſſe, is more ſeen in his Church; then in the creation of all the world beſides.

in the midſt of years] During the ſeventy yeers of captivity; which is the midſt of years between two equal compaſſes of 490. ſo many being before the 70. from Samuel to Saul the firſt king, and ſo many after the 70. till Chriſts death and reſurrection who is the Prophet, Prieſt, and King eternal of his Church. Thus ſome. Though others much rather forbear that partition of the midſt of years, between two four hundred and ninetie, as leſſe warrantable; computing ing themſelves with this, that when the years draw neer, as Aquila hath it; in a fit time of his appointment, even in the midſt of thoſe troubles, and years of troubles (in the captivity ſpecially) God would preſerve alive his Church, & revive his work of grace in, and not take it away, as it were in the flower of her age, coming on towards maturity at the coming of Chriſt. LXX. very corruptly thus, in the midſt of two beaſts; whence the erroneous opinion ſprang, That our Saviour was born between an ox and an aſſe.

make known] To thy Church, and others; by thy word, and works; Let it be actually ſeen, that it is thy work; and leave not off thy work in the midſt, before thou haſt brought it to perfection.

in wrath] Thou art juſtly angry for our ſins. Thus he maketh confeſſion: And yet this wrath relates rather to the ſins, then to the perſons of his faithful people; and ſhews rather their ſenſe and apprehenſion; then his affection, who corrects them as a father for their good.

remember mercie] Thus he falls to prayer. And pleads only mercie and free grace; according to his own merciful promiſes in his gracious covenant. And thus he reconciles together theſe two contraries, wrath and mercie. A famous ſentence, and uſeful is this againſt tentations to deſpair.

v. 3. God came] Deut. 33. 2. Judg. 5. 4. Pſalm 68. 8. He deſcribes the glorious bringing in of Gods people into the land of Canaan under Joſhua: inferring thereby, that as God had miraculouſly brought his people into that countrey; ſo he might bring them in again, notwithſtanding all lets and hinderances.

from Teman] This word ſignifieth the ſouth; and a place in Edom, which was upon the ſouth part of Jury, Amos 1. 12. within whoſe territories lay a great part of that wilderneſſe through which the people paſſed, Judg. 5. 4.

Paran] Mention is made in Scripture of the plain, mount, and wilderneſſe of Paran. It likewiſe is on the ſouth coaſt of Judea. Here Iſhmael dwelt, Gen. 21. 21. And Hadad took it in his way when he fled from Solomon into Egypt, 1 Kings 11. 18. It is neer mount Seir, Gen. 14. 6. And the third ſtation from mount Sinai, Numb. 12. 16. and 33. 16, 17. Whence is that Deut. 33. 2. The Lord came from Sinai, and roſe up from Seir unto them, he ſhined forth from mount Paran, and he came with ten thouſands of Saints; from his right hand went a fiery Law for them. To which text the Prophet here alludes. Kadeſh was in the edge of it; whence Moſes ſent the ſpies, Num. 13. 36. And David ſent to Nabal, 1 Sam. 25. 1. 4. 5. The prophet here mentions the famous hiſtory of Gods glorious manifeſtation of himſelf, and giving his law to the Jews, and taking them into his covenant and care at mount Sinai; to confirm thereby the faith of his people, that they ſhould ſtill be ſafe under his protection. And that he who did ſuch famous things for their anceſtours, would ſtill be mindefull of his Covenant then ſo glorioully made, and not ſuffer them to periſh in the midſt of their calamities amongſt their enemies. See Judg. 5. 4, 5.

Selah] See on Pſalm 3. 2. and 9. 16. Some make it a note of perpetuity, ſome of verity, ſome of muſick and melodie, for the elevation of the voice.

His glory covered the Heavens] He inſiſteth upon this famous hiſtory at large; that they ſhould call it to their mindes in their extremeſt miſeries; and thereby aſſure themſelves that God would not forget, what then he had ſo graciouſly and glorioully done of old for them; and not once imagine that he would now utterly forſake them.

full of his praiſe] Of his noble acts, worthy to be praiſed in all ages, and at all times. Others, of his brightneſſe.

v. 4. as the light] Of the ſun or moon. See Job 31. 26. Eſay 30. 26.

horns out of his hand] Or, bright beams out of his ſide. Whereby is meant a power omnipotent, that was joyned with his brightneſſe; which was hid to the reſt of the world, but was revealed, and yet but in part, in mount Sinai to his people.

hiding of his power] Or laying up of it. There his ſecret power lay hid. As Pſalm 31. 19. yet in ſome kinde hid from the world. Aquila and Symmachus, thus; and he put an hiding.

v. 5. Before him] Theſe ſcourges went before him, and behinde him; as his officers and executioners of his vengeance, where and how he pleaſed, whitherſoever he went. And this he applies to his preſent purpoſe; Gods arming himſelf for vengeance on his enemies; and for the defence and ſalvation of his people, verſ. 12, 13. See Pſalm 18. 7, &c.

burning coals] Or, burning diſeaſes. The Devil ſaith the Trent tranſlation.

at his feet] At his progreſſe, when he went forth.

v. 6. He ſtood] He openly ſhewed himſelf, as a man doth ſtanding up on his feet.

and meaſured the earth] Some thus, He ſtood as it were in the frontier, to mete out the countrey of Canaan, for his people, Exod. 15. 17. Others extend it to all the world; as being the ſupreme king of all the earth, to mete out, and diſtribute it to whom and what nations he will, Acts 17. 26. He ſhewed then his right and power ſo to do, as being the Creator of all.

and drove aſunder the nations] The Canaanites, ſay ſome. See Exod. 15. 15. Joſh. 2. 9. and 5. 1. Others thus; ſuch a power of God then appeared, as was able to ſhake all the world.

and the everlaſting mountains] All worldly heights, which ſeemed immutable melted before him.

perpetual hills] Which have never changed either place or form, ſince their creation. See upon Gen. 49. 26. Deut. 33. 15. ſome underſtand here the Canaanites that were the inhabitants of mountainous and hilly Paleſtine; ſo reſtraining the words to the preſent point in hand. By all this the prophet would lift up the hearts of the faithful to this affiance; that the ſame hand and power of God would be ſeen for their deliverance, which their forefathers had experience of in dayes of old.

his wayes are everlaſting] To him onely belongeth to move everlaſtingly in the actual exerciſe of his power, to do whatſoever he pleaſeth; either in an ordinary way, or in an extraordinary, ſtrange, and wonderful manner, for the preſervation of his Church and people.

v. 7 I ſaw the tents] That is, all the neighbouring nations; as the Arabians dwelling in tents, were terrified at the peoples paſſage through the wilderneſſe. See Exod. 15. 14, 15. Num. 22. 3, 4. Joſh. 2. 9, 10. 11. Others think he hath relation to the diſcomfiture of Cuſhan Riſhathaim by Othniel, Judges 3. 10. And of the Midianites by Gideon, Judg. 7. 21, 22. And thus alſo, by recording theſe other hiſtories of Gods deliverances of his people; the prophet would perſwade them that God is ſtill the ſame and will be ever like himſelf, in keeping his covenant, and ſaving his people; and therefore that in their greateſt extremities, yet they never ſhould deſpair; but lift up their heads, by cheriſhing their faith and hope in ſo great and good a God.

Cuſhan] Or, Ethiopia: ſo named of Cuſh the eldeſt ſon of Cham, or Ham. This lay moſt what between Arabia, and Egypt? Rich with Topaz, and other merchandiſe, Job 28. 19. Zera their king came againſt Aſa, with an army of a thouſand thouſand, and three hundred (thouſand) Charets, 2 Chron. 14. 9. Tirhakah their king comes up againſt Sennacherib, 2 Kings 14. 9. The Aſſyrian firſt, and the Babylonian after ſubdue them, Eſay 20. 3. Ezek. 30. 5. Ebedmelech the Ethiopian helped Jeremie Chap. 38. and 39. And the Eunuch which was treaſurer to Candace, the Queen of Ethiopia, was baptized by Philip, Acts 8. ſome underſtand ſome of the former texts of Ethiopia beyond Egypt, ſouth of Egypt, called now Preſter Johns countrey: and that Zera Tirhakah, and Candace reigned there.

in affliction] Or, under affliction, Or vanity.

the curtains of the Land of Midian] This land was thus named from Midian, the ſon of Abraham, by Keturah; Gene. 25. 1. 2. 4. and 1 Chr. 1. 32. 33. It lay between Judea, and Egypt: and had for its borderers the Iſhmaelites, (the poſterity of Abraham by Hagar); the Edomites, and Amalekites; both which came of Eſau; And the Moabites, which came of Lot. It abounded with Dromedaries, and exerciſed Merchandiſe. Hadad king of Edom ſmote them, Gen. 36. 35. In the time of Moſes, He fled thither; ſerved there, and married Tzipporah the daughter of Jethro, or Hobab, a prince and prieſt of Midian, ſon of Revel. Here was mount Sinai; and the burning buſh. Yet the Elders of Midian joyned to the Moabites againſt the Iſraelites, in the wilderneſſe, Numb. 22. And for beguiling them in the matter of Peor, and in the matter of Cozbi, the daughter of a prince of Midian, upon the counſel of Balaam, Joſhua by Moſes command ſlew five kings of Midian, and wofully deſtroyed the nation; Numb. 31. And the land was given to the Tribe of Reuben, Joſh. 13. 21. In the time of the Judges, Gideon delivered the Iſraelites out of their hands, and ſlew the two princes Oreb, and Zeeb, and Zebah and Zalmunna, the two kings of Midian; Judg. 6, 7, and 8. Chapters, whence is that Pſalm 83. 9. and Eſay 9. 4.

v. 8. Was the Lord diſpleaſed againſt the rivers?] The Red ſea, and Jordan, when he divided them? The interrogation addes weight; that is, was nothing leſſe then ſo; that ſuch a diſpleaſure and anger had been againſt all ſence.

thou didſt ride] As a General, marching in the head of his army: and ſo didſt uſe all the elements as inſtruments for the deſtruction of thine enemies. The meaning is, that God was not angry with the waters of the Red ſea, nor Jordan; but that by this means he would deſtroy his enemies, and deliver his Church, Pſalm 114. 5. In iſſue, thus; Every time that thou haſt ſhewed thy ſelf, as it were in battle array, it hath alwayes been for the deliverance of thy people. Theſe were teſtimonies of thy grace and favour towards thy Church and people, to deliver them out of extreme dangers, and to provide for their ſafety. And therefore, from thoſe examples, his people now being their poſterity, and within the ſame covenant, may have ſtrong hope and expectation of ſufficient help and deliverance in like times of need.

thy chariots of Salvation] Or, thy chariots were Salvation.

v. 9. Thy bow] A figurative terme: taken from that that in thoſe countreys the archers did uſe to carry their bows in certain caſes; and it ſignified that Gods power was manifeſted, himſelf armed for war againſt his Churches enemies, & for their defence, which ſhould ſtill hearten his people to expect his aid in the greateſt dangers. Some tranſlate thus; By thy bowe the channel (of the waters) was made naked, or bare; that is open to be ſeen oaths of the tribes] For the promiſes which by oaths thou haſt confirmed to the Tribes. For he had not onely made a covenant with Abraham, but renewed it with his poſterities; that the poſterity might as well truſt to it, as the Patriarchs themſelves; they being alike intereſſed in it. Others by oaths underſtand, terrible curſes and threatnings againſt the enemies.

thy word] Firm and irrevocable; Thy word given and paſſed for it, as we ſay; ſaid, and done; no place left for any doubting.

Selah] See on verſe 3. and Pſal. 3. 3.

Thou didſt cleave the earth with rivers] Or, thou didſt cleave the rivers of the earth. A poeticall hyperbole. That is, thou didſt cleave the earth; and cauſedſt waters and ſtreams to come forth every where. Relating chiefly to that Exod. 17. 6. 1 Cor. 10. 4.

v. 10. The mountains] Pſal 114. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. In all the elements God ſet marks of his fatherly love and care for his people; that nothing ſhould hinder; but all further the paſſage of his people.

The overflowing of the waters] Thou pouredſt down from heaven a ſtrange and fierce rain, Pſal. 77. 17. This hath chief relation to the waters of the red ſea, and Jordan: they paſſed by, and hindred not the Iſraelites to paſſe through them.

The deep uttered his voice] A poeticall repreſentation, as if the ſea had required mercy and pardon of God, feeling it ſelf ſtrucken by his hand; Or rather, the ſea made a noiſe, when it lift up his waves on high, and divided it ſelf to make walls and banks, that the people might go through between them on foot; and teſtified, as it were, by voice and ſigne the readineſſe of its obedience to God, for his people to paſſe through it.

v. 11. The ſun and moon] This referres to that which was done by Joſhuah, Joſhua: 10. 12, 13. Or it may be a continuation of the fore-going repreſentation.

ſtood ſtill] Otherwiſe more then wonderfull is the ſwift motion of that great body of the ſun.

at the light of the &c.] Or thine arrows walked in the light. Some thus; At the light of the ſun ſo ſtanding and ſhining; thy arrows, thoſe hailſtones, Joſhua 10. verſe 11. and thoſe ſpears, and weapons of thy people, went apace, among, and againſt thine and their enemies. Others referre this to the pillar of fire, that went among the Iſraelites; though not ſo likely, or ſutable to the words; Nay, rather the ſun and moon ſtood ſtill, as amazed to ſee, and give way, to Gods warning for his people againſt the enemies.

arrows they went] Joſhua 10. 11. Namely, of thy delightings.

v. 12. Thou didſt march through the Land] Of Canaan. Here now follows what God did for them in the Land.

in indignation, &c.] In indignation and anger againſt the Canaanites and Amorites, and all the enemies; God did march againſt them, tread them down under their feet, as the mire in the ſtreets, and thraſh them, as with flails. Thus God did it. They got thoſe wonderfull victories againſt thoſe warlike Nations; not with their ſword, or their bow; but by the arm of the Lord. Joſh. 24. 12. Pſal. 44. 3. As the promiſe was, Exod 23. 23. 27. 28. Deut. 7. 20. See the like Iſaiah 41. 2.

v. 13. Thou wenteſt forth for the ſalvation of thy people] Here he ſhews the direct end of thoſe his former great and glorious doings; even the ſalvation of his people. And ſo this is appliable to his people now; his people, by the ſame free grace of choiſe and adoption.

for ſalvation] Repeated the ſecond time; as the thing, principally, or onely intended, by all thoſe miracles, and wonderfull dealings. And therefore the faithfull now have no cauſe to deſpend or deſpair; having ſo many monuments and documents of his faithfull covenant and Love.

with thine Anointed] Or, of thine Anointed. Expounding thus, that thou mighteſt redeem Chriſt from death, by his reſurrection. Or, for thine Anointed, Jeſus Chriſt. So the ſixth Greek edition. However, Chriſt the ground of the Covenant, and of Gods Love to his people, and care of their ſalvation. God in and through the perſon of the Mediator did all thoſe former great things for them. In a ſubordinate way this may be underſtood of Moſes and Aaron; or Joſhua; perſons conſecrated by God, to be inſtruments of his peoples deliverances and victories. See Pſal. 77. 20. Iſaiah 63. 11. Signifying yet that there is no ſalvation but by Chriſt, typified by thoſe anointed ones. Some ſtretch this to David, and his time: as that alſo which followeth.

Thou woundedſt the head] Thou deſtroyedſt Pharaoh, King of that wicked countrey, Egypt, with all his army; even as a man wounded in the head; or an houſe which was overthrown to the very ground, or from the top to the bottom: ſo thou haſt deſtroyed the enemies. There was no power, no Potentates that were not overthrown, in favour of his people.

v. 14. Thou didſt ſtrike through with his ſtaves] Cauſing his enterpriſe, and the preparation which he made to follow thy people, to be the occaſion of his own ruine ſtriking him through with his own weapons. As Pharaohs purſuite was the occaſion of his own fall; Exod. 14. Or, as the Midianites ſet their ſwords one againſt another, Jud. 7. 22.

the head of his villages] Namely, of all the Land of Egypt, (and Canaan alſo, as ſome think) inhabited, as the moſt part of Africk is in caſtles, and villages; See Iſaiah 18. 2. ſtriking through the ſeverall provinces, even to the hamlets, and villages; ſo as no place or corner was left ſafe and free. Some tranſlate thus. Thou haſt curſed his ſcepters, and the head of his villages; meaning of the enemies.

they came out as a whirlwinde] Heb. were tempeſtuous; when the enemies ſet on thus furiouſly, ragingly.

to ſcatter me] Thus the Prophet takes upon himſelf the perſon of the people of God.

their rejoycing was] As coming not to fight, or battell; but to take the ſpoil and prey.

as to devour the poor ſecretly?] To ſwallow up them that were ſo poor in ſtrength, not able to reſiſt them, but ſeeking rather to hide themſelves from them; Being far from any relief, or aſſiſtance. A term taken from high-way robbers. Pſal. 10. 8. when all humane help failed them, God from heaven defended them: And ſo his power was the more evidenced thereby.

v. 15. Thou didſt walk through the ſea] Or, Thou didſt tread upon the ſea.

with thine horſes] Whereby are meant the windes, or the clouds; as Pſal. 104. 3 Or, the hoaſt of Angels, who are Gods horſemen; Pſal. 68. 17. Or rather this refers and relates to that miraculous paſſage through the red ſea; a miracle ſo memorable, and oft to be recorded; ſufficient to fix their faith on Gods power, for their future deliverance.

v. 16. I heard] The denunciation of thy horrible judgements upon thy people, ſo different from thoſe thy ancient deliverances, hath quite diſmayed me. This takes up again that verſe 2.

quivered at the voice] Not of thy glorious judgements upon the enemies of thy people formerly recounted; but of thy fearfull threatnings againſt thy own people. See chap. 1.

rottenneſſe] My ſpirit is gnawn and conſumed therewith; various expreſſions how deeply he was affected, and afflicted, at Gods threatned judgements and vengeance againſt his people, for their invincible obſtinacy in their ſins. How ſhould the ſinners themſelves have trembled?

that I might reſt in the day of trouble] The faithfull can never have true reſt, except they feel before the weight of Gods judgements: they fear before trouble, that they may be quiet when it comes. Others thus, hearing that I muſt reſt ſatisfied in the day of trouble; that it will not be prevented, but will certainly come, and I muſt be contented therewith.

invade them with troops] Or cut them in pieces; cut them off. 2 Kings 24. 2, 3. &c. and 25. 1.

v. 17. Although the fig-tree] The concluſion of this Prayer; wherein in his own example, and for a pattern to the faithfull, he elegantly ſets forth the triumph of his Faith, in and over all theſe moſt ſad and fearfull calamities.

ſhall not bloſſome] He ſet forth at large the grievouſneſſe of the judgements impendent. All fruits ſhall fail; all cattle ſhall be cut off; famine, and ſword ſhall devour all; the Land ſhall be waſte. See the Lamentations of Jeremiah throughout.

v. 18. yet I will rejoyce in the Lord] For all that, yet there is matter enough of joy in the Lord. The faithfull both may be, and will be, not onely patient; as Aaron, Levit. 10. 3. and Eli, 1 Sam. 3. 28. and Job, chap. 1. 21. and David 1 Sam. 30. 6. 2 Sam. 16. 10. Pſal. 39. 9. But will rejoyce alſo in theſe tribulations; Rom. 5. 3. Acts 5. 41. Heb. 10. 34. James 1. verſe 2. Rom. 8. 35. &c. Knowing they come from a loving Father; and work together for their good. Heb. 12. 6, 7, 8. Apoc. 3. 19. 2 Cor. 4. 17. The Prophet declareth wherein ſtandeth the comfort and joy of the faithfull, though they ſee never ſo great afflictions prepared; namely, in Gods moſt cer tain promiſes of deliverance, chap. 2. 4. This is the triumph of Faith. See Pſal. 46.

in the God of my ſalvation] Here is the firm faith and anchor-hold of the godly; and a cauſe more then ſufficient of their joy, againſt all the miſeries of the world, and malice of Satan. Pſal. 3. 5, 6. and 27. 1.

v. 19. The Lord] He ſeeks not his comfort and encouragement elſe-where; He needs not. Gen. 15. 1. Pſal. 16. 5, 6. Lam. 3. 24.—34.

like hindes feet] He will at laſt do his people that favour, as to let them ſcape, and ſave themſelves in the Church under Gods protection: as the hinde, hunted, and followed by huntſmen, retireth into her covert. See 2 Sam. 22. 34. Pſal. 18. 33.

mine high places] See Iſaiah 33. 16. and 58. 14. Deuteronomie 32. 13.

To the chief ſinger on my ſtringed inſtruments] See Pſal. 4. 1. The chief ſinger upon the inſtruments of muſick ſhall have occaſion to praiſe God publikely in the Church, for this great deliverance of his Church. Yea and I will ſing this alſo on my ſtringed inſtruments: even in the midſt of theſe calamities ſtringed inſtruments] Hebr. Neginoth.

ANNOTATIONS

ZEPHANIAH.

The ARGUMENT.

ZEphaniah threatneth Jeruſalem and Judah with utter deſolation; and that for their notorious ſins, which therewithall he chargeth upon them. Then he exhorts them to Repentance to prevent the judgements, before the decree bring forth, and the firce anger of God come upon them. And he warnes them of it by denouncing Gods judgements upon many of their neighbouring Nations and enemies, whom he names; to ſerve for examples to them: And to ſerve alſo for their comfort, in that many of them are thus plagued of God, for their wrongs done againſt his people. And after taking up again a ſharp Reproof of the ſins of Ieruſalem, of her Princes, Prophets, and Prieſts, and their impudent obſtinacy in them, notwithſtanding the examples of judgements upon others; He yet concludes with a Promiſe of deliverance and reſtauration at the laſt; Bidding them to wait for it and his great and gracious dealings in it, againſt their enemies and for his remnant; and to ſing and rejoyce at it; as ſerving but for a Type of the glorious Promiſes of Evangelicall Bleſſings in Chriſt. Generally thus; He Threatneth, in Chap. 1. Exhorteth, Chap. 2. And after a Reproof, he comforteth Chap. 3.

CHAP. I.

Z*Ephaniah*] Of the Notation of his Name; of his Tribe, Life, and death there is no certainty.

in the dayes of Joſiah] This ſhews his Time; that he was co-ætaneous to the Prophet Jeremiah; and a little before the Babyloniſh captivity: and ſo hath the laſt place among the ſmall Prophets that preached before the captivity. It is not expreſſed that he preached after the dayes of Joſiah; as Jeremiah did, chap. 1. 3. But it ſeems he began after the Reformation by Joſiah, verſ. 4. and 7. concerning whom, and what he preached, appears in the argument formerly ſet down.

the ſon of Amon] The pious ſon of an impious father. And haply to intimate, why the Prophet and the good King, could ſo little prevail with this people for Reformation: they being ſo long hardned in the cuſtom of ſin under the raigns of Amon, and Manſſeh.

v. 2. I will utterly conſume] Hebr. By taking away I will make an end. A threatning of the countryes deſolation by the Chaldeans. Either he began with doctrine and exhortation before; or ſeeing and well knowing the forelorne eſtate of the people in ſin, notwithſtanding all that good Joſiah could do for their reformation; He joyns with Jeremiah, even to be in thus roughly, to threaten and thunder againſt them for their ſins: And notwithſtanding their invincible wickedneſſe, yet neither the good King, nor he deſert their ſtation, or ſlack their pains: but faithfully diſcharge their duties and functions, in their ſeverall places.

all things] He ſpecifies the ſeverall ſorts and kindes in the next verſe.

v. 3. man] The wicked man: for him only he mentions in all the judgements following throughout the Chapter. See c. 2. verſe 3.

and beaſt] And he addes the fowls, and fiſhes. A kinde of amplification, very frequent amongſt the Prophets. See Jere. 4. 25. & 12. 4. Hoſ. 4. 3. This to ſome ſeemes unreaſonable: ſee Ezec. 18. 20. But we are not raſhly to judge of Gods judgments. And theſe creatures were made for the uſe of man: Pſa. 8. Why may not God juſtly puniſh man in taking them away? the Apoſtle tells us, They do ſuffer in a kinde for the ſin of man: Rom. 8. 19. 20. 21. 22. But then if theſe plague-tokens of Gods anger be thus ſet, and appear upon theſe creatures for the ſin of man, what burning wrath abides the ſinners themſelves?

and the ſtumbling blocks with the wicked] Or, idols, the idols and all the objects and inſtruments of idolatry; by which men were induced to ſin; even to their own ruine. See Deut. 7. 25. Ezek. 14. 3. 7. Hab. 2. 18. ſome thus; that the rubbiſh and remainders it ſelf ſhall not eſcape this vengeance. Others, That the conſuming of theſe creatures in this manner ſhall be a ſtumbling block to the wicked; they ſhall take ſcandal and offence at it: they reading the words thus, And they ſhall be ſtumbling blocks to the wicked.

cut off man] This repeated here, and proſecuted in the verſes following, as being the main intent of the prophet, and the cauſe and occaſion of Gods anger upon the other creatures.

v. 4. I will alſo ſtretch out my hand] This phraſe expreſſeth Gods more then ordinary manner of dealing in wondrous judgements. See Exod. 3. 20. and 7. 5. and 15. 12. Deut. 4. 34. Eſay 5. 25. and 14. 27. and 25. 11. This ſhould have ſtartled theſe ſinners ſo much the more.

upon Judah] The kingdom of Iſrael and Samaria were now deſtroyed, and captivated. And Judah eſcaping them, thought it ſelf now ſafe and ſecure; yet that ſhould not ſerve their turn.

Jeruſalem] That holy city, that thought her ſelf ſo ſafe; as being the ſeat of the kingdom of David, and of Gods worſhip; having in her the Temple, Ark, Altar: yet all this was but vain confidence. Her inhabitants were thoſe wicked men, verſe 2.

the remnant of Baal] That which remained ſince Joſiahs reformation, 2 Kings 23. 3. 4. 5. which they had kept ſo cloſe that he could not ſpy out. This propheſie then was after Joſiahs reformation. Thus they doted on, and acted idolatry cloſely, when they durſt not do it publikely, for fear of the good king; he having deſtroyed the means and monuments of idolatry out of the Temple, and all open known places. Of Baal, ſee on Huſea 13. 1.

Chemarims] Which were an order of ſuperſtitious Prieſts, appointed to miniſter in the ſervice of Baal; and were as his peculiar Chaplins; read 2 Kings 23. 5. Hoſ. 10.5. They were ſomewhat like to Monks or Anchorites in former times. Though Joſiah put them down, 2 Kings 23. 5. 20. yet ſome would remain. So hard it is to make a through reformation: which ſhould make Magiſtrates and Miniſters ſo much the more diligent therein.

with the Prieſts] Idolatrous Prieſts, Jer. 8. 1, 2. 1 Kings 12. 32. and 13. 2. 33. and 2 Kings 17. 32. Or Leviticall Prieſts, but corrupted by idolatry. 2 Kings 23. 8, 9. or by a wicked life, Zeph. 3. 4.

v. 5. And them that worſhip] Here he chargeth the whole people; who were ſo farre from gratefully and joyfully embracing the reformation by Joſiah; that they would not be brought from their idolatrous worſhippings.

the hoaſt of heaven] Sun, Moon, and ſtars. They ſinned not onely in Baal; but multiplied other idolatries. In theſe heavenly bodies for their excellencies, Heathens thought ſome deity to be in them. The ſun was accounted God. The Perſians worſhipped him. The ſun or moon called the Queen of heaven. God forewarns the Jews of this idolatry, Deut. 4. 19. See Job 31. 26, 27. yet ſee how they fell into it, 2 Kings 23. 11. Jer. 19. 13. and 7. 18. and 8. 2. and 44. 17. 19. 25.

upon the houſe tops] See 2 Kings 23 12. Jer. 19. 13. And ſo upon hills, and generally the places of their Idol-worſhip were called high places, as 2 Kings 12. 3. Belike groſly imagining that thoſe places were nigher heaven, and that their gods might the ſooner ſee their care in ſerving of them.

that worſhip, and that ſwear by the Lord] This ſingly conſidered in it ſelf is commanded; Matth. 4. 10. 2 Kings 17. 36. And ſwearing is a kinde of his worſhip, Deut. 6. 13. and 10. 20. Iſaiah 45. 23. and 65. 16. Thereby we acknowledge an omniſcience and omnipotency; which are proper to God; calling him in an oath, to witneſſe, and to revenge.

by the Lord] Or, to the Lord. This comprehendeth the whole profeſſion of true religion, Pſal. 63. 11. Iſa. 19. 8. and 45. 23. Some think that ſwearing to the Lord may have relation to the renewing the covenant by Joſiah. 2 Kings 23. 3. and that ſwear by Malcham] Milcom, or Molech. This was the idol and abomination of the Ammonites; 1 King. 11. 7. 2 Kings 23. 10. 13. and Jer. 49. 3. So called likely becauſe they reputed him as their king; Melech ſignifying a King. See Amos 5. 26. and the Annotations there. and 1. 15. Jer. 49. 3. Now to ſwear by idols was expreſly forbidden; Joſh. 23. 7. Jer. 5. 7. and 12. 16. Amos 8. 14. This were to impart divine worſhip to them. But here is their further ſin; They would joyn theſe two together. They would joyn light, and darkneſſe together; God, and Belial; the Temple of God, and idols. This was death in the pot. They would not ſeem clean to renounce the true God, and his worſhip, but would adde thereunto, and mix therewith this idol-worſhip; yea, they would worſhip God in this idolatrous way, as the Iſraelites did, and as Papiſts doe: they pretend, and haply intend, this way to worſhip the true God; but he counts it abomination, when any part of his worſhip is imparted to idols or images, they would divide the worſhip, ſome to God, ſome to idols; as the pretending Mother would have the Child divided: but God will have all, or none at all. They deviſe will-worſhips out of their own brains, without and againſt his Word and Law; but obedience to his Will and Word is the thing which he abſolutely requires, without any warping to the left hand, or to the right: ſee Hoſ. 4. 15. 2 Kings 17. 33, 34, 41.

v. 6. And them that are turned back] Trecherous Apoſtates.

not ſought the Lord] Proud contemners of him: He and his worſhip was eaſie to be found, if they would have ſought and enquired thereafter, as being cleerly ſet forth in his Law: but they willingly and maliciouſly blinded themſelves, ſought to extinguiſh all true Piety, and to bury his ſpirituall worſhip in and under their own outward ſuperſtitions; active in the one, and dead in the other: And ſuch men chiefly are thoſe foreſaid idolaters, and their like.

v. 7. Hold thy peace] Zechariah 2. 13. Let every one in humility adore Gods judgements, without any murmuring or contradiction, Pſalm. 39. 9. Or thus, Thou idolater think not to plead thy cauſe, or help thy ſelf, by any thing thou canſt ſay or doe; the matter is at an end: Doe thou now prepare thy ſelf to undergoe the doom and judgement: ſee on Hab. 2. 20. The Prophet then tels them, That he doth not ſeek to terrifie them in vain, they were not to deſpiſe the judgement threatned, experience would ſoon ſchool them in the contrary.

at the preſence of the Lord] In whoſe preſence all things are naked, and lye open, Heb. 4. 11, 12.

is at hand] The execution is in hand; and at hand: It is but a fooliſh fancy to hope for delayes, or to think to put it off: No way left but ſpeedily to prevent it with ſerious repentance; or quietly and patiently to ſubmit and undergoe it. This day began at the death of Joſiah.

hath prepared a ſacrifice] Differing from their ſacrifices, wherein they ſo much truſted. This is more juſt in it ſelf, and more pleaſing to God, Iſa. 1. 24. Jer. 46. 10. A great ſlaughter, as it were, to prepare a Banquet which he intends to make for the Chaldeans, who are, as it were, Gueſts: Or, for the Fowls of the ayre, and for the ravening Beaſts, as Iſa. 34. 6. Jer. 46. 10. Ezek. 39. 17. Revel. 19. 17.

he hath bid his gueſts] Hebr. ſanctified, or prepared; the Ægyptians firſt, the Babylonians moſt, 2 Kings 23, 24, 25 chapters. Theſe prophane enemies then muſt the Jews acknowledge to be, as it were, the Lords Prieſts and ſacrificers, to ſlay and devour them for their ſinnes, that were by Gods Covenant and calling, an holy and royall Prieſthood to him: ſee Iſa. 61. 6. 1 Pet. 2. 5, 9.

v. 8. In the day] ver. 9, 10, 14, 15, 16, 18.

puniſh] Heb. Viſit upon; ſee Exod. 32. 34. Levit. 18. 25. Iſa. 13. 11.

the Princes] Not the vulgar ſort onely, but the great ones, Princes and Peers, which think themſelves exempt and out of reach, and abuſe their place and power, and inſtead of governing their inferiours, are ill examples unto them, and ſo doe moſt hurt; for Magnates are Magnetes: theſe ſhall not goe unpuniſhed.

and the Kings children] See this executed, Jer. 39. 6.

cloathed with ſtrange apparell] Courtiers, Matth. 11. 8. Gallants, and other, which did imitate the ſtrange apparell of other Nations, to win their favour thereby, and to appear glorious in the eyes of all others: read Ezek. 23. 12, 14, 15. ſumptuous men, ſuch as Dives, Luke 16. 19. and thoſe proud Dames, whoſe Wardrobe is inventoried, Iſa. 3. 16, &c.

v. 9. That leap on the threſhold] This was indeed a very frequent ſuperſtition amongſt the heathen idolaters, upon many occaſions: as 1 Sam. 5. 5. 1 Kings 18. 26 But becauſe that agreeth not with this place, it ſeemeth to be a proverbiall kind of ſpeech, to ſignifie great mens Officers, who by an abſolute power went into other mens houſes, againſt whom no doors were ſhut, and there inſolently and inſultingly preyed upon the poor, ſpoiled and abuſed them at their pleaſure: See Hoſ. 5. 10.

violence and deceit] The two wayes of undoing and oppreſſing the poor, for their Lords advantage, Jer. 5. 27. Micah 6. 10.

v. 10. There ſhall be the noiſe] Hebr. Voice: ſignifying, that all the parts and out-ſides of the City of Jeruſalem ſhould be full of out-cryes and clamours, by reaſon of the Chaldeans, who ſhould aſſault it on all ſides: See Jer. 39. 3.

from the fiſh-gate] The City Jeruſalem is thought to conſiſt of three Towns, whereof one belonged to the Tribe of Judah, viz. the ſouth Town, and was won by David, and called his City, 2 Sam. 5. 6, &c. The other common to Judah and Benjamin, and the third to Benjamin onely, wherein were the Caſtle or Tower, and the Temple. Or elſe of two Towns, whence the word is of the duall number, beſides the Caſtle or Tower aforeſaid: See on Judges 1. 8. This Fiſh-gate ſeems to belong to the City of David: of this Gate ſee 2 Chron. 33. 14. Neh. 3. 3. This may ſeem to be called the firſt Gate, Zach. 14. 10. to make a difference between it and this ſecond Gate.

the ſecond] This ſeems to denotate the other Town of Jeruſalem, 2 Kings 22. 14.

from the hils] As the hils of Gareb and Goath on the North and Weſt ſide of Jeruſalem, where the Fort and Temple was, and the Dung Gate on that ſide of the City where it did ſeem the Chaldeans did alſo endeavour to force the City: ſee Jer. 31. 39. & Neh. 3. 13. & 12. 31.

v. 11. Makteſh] Or rather the low place: This is meant of the ſtreet of the merchants, which was lower then the reſt of the place about it, in the hollow of the three towns: and was between the ſheep-gate, and the gate of Ephraim: and where alſo were the Goldſmiths and Apothecaries, Nehemiah 3. 8. 32. Thoſe might think themſelves the ſafeſt there, being within the boſome of the whole citiy: yet that ſhould nothing avail them: On all parts, in all places, Jeruſalem ſhould be full of out-cries, and howlings: being taken by the Chaldeans: no place ſhould be left for any refuge or eſcaping.

merchant people] The word alſo bears an alluſion to the Canaanite; and may intimate that they, or their merchants were no better then the Canaanites, nor more to be regarded.

bear ſilver] Hereby is ſignified the rich trading, which was in that place; to which money was carried in great burdens. But their riches and coin, gotten likely, as merchants much do, not the faireſt way, ſhould not now avail them, verſe 18. See Iſaiah 2. 20. and 13. 17. Ezek. 7. 19. Prov. 11. 4.

v. 12. ſearch Jeruſalem with candles] I will ſearch out their ſins moſt narrowly, that their cloſeſt ſins ſhall not eſcape me; and I will puniſh them as throughly. God ſeeth all things; But this is ſpoken after the manner of men, the better to expreſſe what is needfull for us to know. Or, I will cauſe the Chaldeans to ſeek out the moſt hidden things that be in Jeruſalem, and that moſt exactly. As Luke 15. 8.

ſetled on their lees] Hebr. curded, or thickned. A phraſe taken from ſuch liquors, as grow thick when being poured out of one veſſel into another, they ſtand long; Jer. 48. 11. To ſignifie, either the gathering together of riches in Jeruſalem; which for many yeers before had not been taken, nor pillaged; And their drunken delight in them, and careleſſe ſupine negligence, which they had contracted by them: Or the ſtupidity and carnall ſecurity of the inhabitants; ſtifly ſticking in their ſinnes; boldly ſcorning God and men. To which ſeems to be referred the following words of the profane men; who denied Gods providence, or took no notice of it. See Pſal. 119. 70.

that ſay in their heart] This expounds the former words. Though they are aſhamed to ſay it openly; yet ſuch are the thoughts, reaſonings, and reſolutions of their hearts. See Pſal. 10. verſe 11. 13. and 14. 1. and 53. 1. and 35. 25. Eccleſ. 2. 1. 3. 15.

The Lord will not] This is in iſſue plain Atheiſme, to deny him to be the governour and judge of the world, or to heed mens affairs; This makes him a meere idol. And this opens the ſluce and flood-gate to let in a ſea of ſinne; drownes all conſcience, and ſenſe of right or wrong, good or evil. This is a devilliſh ſinne; and that in Gods own people: no marvail then if God be ſo fierce and furious againſt them.

v. 13. Therefore their goods] All ſhall eaſily fall into the enemies hands.

not inhabit them] Deut. 28. 30. 39. Amos 5. 11. See the Annotations there.

v. 14. The great day of the Lord] The grievouſneſſe of the judgement is here more largely ſet forth; and God aſſerted to be the Author of it. And good is it to ſee and conſider Gods hand in all judgements and puniſhments; and well to weigh the terribleneſſe of them.

is neer] This is much and often preſſed againſt the fooliſhneſſe of thoſe that would ſtill put off the evil day. Though they could ſee no ſignes of it yet appearing or approaching; yet it could and would come, as lightning; as Matth. 24. 27.

the voyce] The Chaldeans ſhall come ſo ſuddenly, that the firſt news that ſhall be heard of it, ſhall be the terrible cryes of the tumult of the Captains and Souldiers, being already at the gate. Or the noiſe, of that fearfull day of the Lord is very neer.

the mighty man] Who now boaſts of his might and ſtrength. Now the Prophets cry to them, and they will not hear: But then the ſcene ſhall be changed. As Proverbs 1. 20—29. Micah. 3. verſe 4. Even the mighty ſhall cry mightily, Jer. 6. 26.

v. 15. That day is a day of wrath,] Strong expreſſions of Gods vengeance. Not good for man to ſlight or extenuate the weight of his wrath. See Jeremiah 30. 6. 7. Joel 1 15. and 2. 11. Amos 5. 18. and the Annotations there. All this makes againſt the vain confidence of the profane contemners of God: Againſt thoſe who have ſo long abuſed his patience. He will now make bare his arm, and make known the power of his wrath. See Eſay 33. 14. Deut. 4. 24. Malachi 3. 2. As alſo againſt thoſe whoſe Hypocriſie is their Religion and ſanctity; and yet willingly delude themſelves to think God in a ſort tyed to them; and ſo ſooth up themſelves in a pleaſing hope of pardon: They ſhall now finde and feel the wofull experience of the contrary.

v. 16. againſt the fenced cities] They hoped by theſe to make good a defenſive war. But theſe ſhould not be able to ſhelter or ſuccour them.

high towers] Or, Angles which are the places of the city moſt fortified; and built uſually upon corners of the walls. See chap. 3. 6. No way left but by ſpeedy and hearty Repentance to prevent all this.

v. 17. And I will bring diſtreſſe] To aſſure them ſtill that God was the Generall in the armies of their enemies.

like blinde men] They ſhall be amazed and unprovided of counſell and advice; no more knowing what they do, or how to eſcape, then blinde men. As Geneſis 19. 11.

againſt the Lord] The quarrell is the Lords; the quarrell of his Covenant. The enemies are but his inſtruments.

as duſt] In moſt abundant and baſe manner.

as dung] See Pſalm 83. 10. Eſay 5. 25. Jeremiah 9. 22.

v. 18. Neither their ſilver] See on verſe 11. Mountains of gold and ſilver ſhall not ſtop the current of his juſtice.

devoured by the fire of his jealouſie] Chap. 3. 8. Fire devours all before it; the more matter, the greater flame. All their hopes ſhould fail them, and be as the ſpiders web; as the brooks of Teman; as the reed of Egypt. See Ezech. 36. 5. Prov. 6. 34.

CHAP. II.

Verſe 1. G*Ather your ſelves together*] All your aſſemblies whereby you ſhall endeavour to defend your ſelves, ſhall bee but like great bundles of ſtalks and flax, to bee conſumed altogether by the fire of Gods wrath, Chap. 1. 18. for preventing whereof hee exhorteth them to other manner of Aſſemblies; for humiliation and repentance, Joel 1. 14. and 2. 15. Or thus, Gather your ſelves together in aſſemblies to examine your ſelves, and your ſins, to mourn and repent; as 1 Sam. 7. 6. ſearch your ſelves, recollect your ſelves, your thoughts, wayes, and works; your ſtate, and preſent danger; ſift and fan your ſelves, Matth. 3. 2. 10. 12. A ſeaſonable exhortation to repentance, to prevent the execution of the judgements. So that God thunders in threatnings; but it is that he might ſpare his hand in the execution. In his threatnings he ſhewes the more care of us, and the more mercie towards us. And he doubles the exhortation to drive it home.

not deſired] Or, not deſirous, not deſirable; not as Daniel was, Chap. 9. 23. and 10. verſe 11. not worthy to be deſired. This the more ſets out the freeneſſe, and greatneſſe of his unwearied mercie, that deals thus with ſuch a nation. See Deut. Chap. 9. and Jer. 3. 1. A great comfort to the ſinfull ſons of men.

v. 2. Before the decree bring forth] This verſe may be joyned with the next, thus; Before Gods decree againſt his people be put in execution, you believers ſhall flie to his grace, by prayer and converſion. Or rather relating to the former verſe, the nation not deſired, thus; Gods threatnings by his Prophets are not words of courſe, words of winde; but things decreed; yet ſo as they are but in breeding, (a pregnant ſimilitude is this) as the fruit in the womb; yet there is hope and remedie, yet he holds his hand; yet the birth and bringing forth may be prevented. And this Before is thrice taken up in this verſe, to make them look to it in time; to lay hold on the acceptable time; before the door of mercy be ſhut. See 2 Cor. 6. 2. Matth. 25. 10.

the day paſſe as the chaff] The day come that ſhall fan and winnow you as the chaff; do ye therefore firſt fanne your ſelves: the day wherein the chaff ſhall be ſcattered; and ye as chaff, by the blaſt of the Lords anger, ſhall ſoon and ſuddenly be diſperſed; as Thiſtle-downe upon the mountains. See Eſay 17. 13. and 40. 24. Pſalm 83. 13.

come upon you] And again repeated. For come it will; though for a time delayed; a time to wait for your repentance, Rom. 2. 4. Eſay 30. 18.

v. 3. ſeek ye] Thrice repeated in this verſe. To ſhew the earneſtneſſe of the prophet; and the neceſſity of the duty incumbent on them.

the Lord] His will, pleaſure, favour.

all ye meek of the earth] He knew, and ſaw the moſt did not ſo: as Iſaiah 1. 9. The moſt ſtill the worſt; yet the prophet not diſcouraged thereby in his calling: He knew there was ſtill an holy ſeed. He turns himſelf to this ſmall remnant. As in a caſe ſomewhat like, Jeremie 5. 4. 5. Theſe muſt not look after the multitude: That were to harden, and hearten them in their ſinnes: They muſt doe otherwiſe. The meeke is a Title which is ordinarily given to good men, Pſalm 25. 9. and 37. 11. Matthew 5. 5. He counſels and exhorts them for their good. See 1 Pet. 5. 6. They are men flexible; ſpecially upon chaſtiſements; Jeremie 31. 18,19. The wicked are otherwiſe, even hardened by them; Jeremie 6. 29. 30.

which have wrought his judgement] Which have framed your lives according to the righteous judgements and ſtatutes of his Law; which have lived uprightly and godly according as he preſcribeth by his word.

ſeek righteouſneſſe] Even theſe meek godly ones, muſt perſiſt and perſevere, muſt increaſe in ſo well doing. We are imperfect all, and lyable to the Lords corrections; the beſt muſt increaſe in goodneſſe; and ſpecially when Gods judgenents are impendent. And thus they muſt ſeek the Lord in righteouſneſſe, not in ceremonious ſuperſtitions; as the manner of Papiſts and hypocrites is. They muſt go on as they began, in the reall points of righteouſneſſe and meekneſſe.

it may be] This notes rather a difficulty, then a doubt; and that rather in the thing it ſelf, then in the love of God. And this the more commends Gods grace and mercie towards his; whiles in the ſame word he thunders ſtill againſt the wicked. See Exodus 32. 30. Joſhuah 14. 12. 1 Samuel 14. 6. Joel 2. 14. Jonah 3. 9. Amos 5. 15.

hid] Saved and defended under the wing of his protection; or more gently dealt withall. See Ezekiel 9. 6. Eſay 27. 7, 8. Hab. 3. 2. Jer. 10. 24. and 30. 11. Job 23. 6. Ezra 9. 13.

v. 4. For Gaza] Gaza with her towns and villages, was a citie, and Lordſhip of the Philiſtines, 1 Sam. 6. 17. Allotted to the tribe of Judah, Joſhuah 15. 47. yet Anakims left in it, Joſhuah 11. 22. Judah took it, after Joſhuahs dayes, Judges 1. 18. yet it ſeems ſoon after loſt it. Samſon went thither when the Philiſtines had regained it; and upon his ſhoulders carried away the doors, poſts, bar of the gate of the citie, Judges 16. 1. 3. He was after bound and impriſoned there, and did grinde in the mill; and it ſeemes there pulled down the houſe upon the Philiſtines and died, verſes 25. 30. It was nigh Hebron, Judges 16. 3. And it ſeemes there was an houſe of Dagon there. Pharaoh ſmote it, Jeremie 47. 1. And Hezekiah in his time, 2 Kings 18. 8. And Nebuchadnezzar after; Jeremie 25. 20. and 47. 4, 5. Zecharie 9. 5. And in the New Teſtament, neer unto it Philip baptized the Eunuch, Acts 8. 26. By the examples of the judgements of God upon Gaza and the neighbouring Nations that hereafter follow, which were to be inflicted upon them before Jeruſalems overthrow, The Jews are moved to repentance. Or, as ſome take it, this is a conſolation to the Church, that God will revenge their wrongs upon theſe nations, and utterly deſtroy the Philiſtines, and all other enemies of the Church, without hope of being reſtored; But he will preſerve ſome ſeed and remainder of his people to re-eſtabliſh them in the appointed time. And therefore every one ſhould endeavour to be of that bleſſed number.

ſhall be forſaken] The word alludes to the name of Gaza. And the like alluſion is uſed to the names of the places following. It was laid waſte in manner formerly ſhewed.

Aſhkelon] Another of the five cities and Lordſhips of the Philiſtines. See 1 Sam. 6. 17. Allotted to Judah. And though gained after Joſhuahs death; yet ſoon loſt again. Samſon went thither, and ſlew thirty Philiſtines to compaſſe ſo many changes of raiment, Judges 14. 19. It was made a deſolation, moſt what as Gaza was. See Jer. 25. 20. and 47. 5. 7. Amos 1. 8. Zech. 9. 5.

Aſhdod] Another of the five cities and Lordſhips. There Dagons head and hands were cut off before the Arke of the Lord, 1 Samuel 5. 14. Uzziah took it, 2 Chronicles 26. 6. and Tartan under the king of Aſſyria. In other things the caſe of it was, as that of Gaza, and Aſhkelon. See Joſhuah 11. 22. and 15. 46, 47, Jeremiah 25. 20. Amos 1. 8. and 3. 9. Zach. 9. 6. This likely is that Azotus Acts 8. 40.

at the noon day] Openly. The citie forced and taken by aſſault and ſtorming: and the inhabitants led into captivity.

Ekron] Another of the five Citties and Lordſhips: Gath is omitted. From Ekron the Ark was ſent to Beth-ſhemeſh, 1 Samuel 5. 10. and 6. 16. Beelzebub was their God, 2 Kings, 1. Samuel, and Saul afflicted them. They were in the ſame ſtate, and did undergoe the ſame changes and conditions, as the former cities did. See Joſhuah 13. 3. and 15. 45, 46. Judges 1. 18. All theſe were neighbour cities; and lay between the Tribe of Judah moſt, and the midland Weſt ſea.

of the ſea coaſt] Verſe 6. Where the Philiſtines land was, 1 Sam. 30. 14. 16. Ezek. 25. 16.

Cherethites] They lay between the Amalekites, and the ſouth part of Judah, and of the Philiſtines, 1 Samuel 30. 14. Ezek. 25. 16. Theſe are uſually coupled with the Pelethites; Both ſorts being valiant men, like the Prætorian ſouldiers; and ſeem to be choſen by David for his guard, and Benaiah was captain over them. See 2 Sam. 8. 18. and 15. 18. and 20. 17. 1 Kings 1. 38.

the word] As formerly againſt his own people. Ye ſhall not go free for your wrongs done to my people. The Prophet, and the people were to aſſwage their ſorrowes with this conſideration of Gods plaguing their enemies.

Canaan the land of the Philiſtines] Of which the Philiſtines were apart. But unjuſtly poſſeſſed by them, Joſhuah 13. 3. See Geneſis 10. 14. 19. Of the Philiſtines, ſee on Zecharie 9. 6.

v. 6. ſea coaſt] Verſe 5. Waſte and void of culture; and fit only for ſheep and ſhepherds.

v. 7. Remnant of the houſe of Judah] Remnant that ſhould flee into neighbour countreyes, and ſo eſcape from being carried into exile and captivitity; and ſo might more eaſily and ſpeedily return again. Of theſe God will have a care, for all their paucity. A ſeed and remnant he will ſtill preſerve, to be his flock; and he will provide for their ſecure feeding; even in the countreyes, and by the ruines of their enemies. Sone thus; He ſheweth why God would deſtroy their enemies, becauſe their countrey might be a reſting place for his Church, at their returne from Babylon. Some apply this, and the laſt words of the ninth verſe, to the Jewes poſſeſſing of thoſe places; in this ſence, that they ſhould belong to the Church, and bee joyned unto it in the ſpirituall kingdome of CHRIST.

for the Lord their God, &c.] Or, when, &c. Thus he mitigates their wofull ſorrows with this ſalve of their returne, as Nahum 1. 12. His grace and mercy ſhould overpower all obſtacles and impediments that might ſtand in the way of their returne. Let them but patiently wait Gods own time for it.

v. 8. I have heard] Now he comes from the Philiſtines to the ſecond example, viz. of the Moabites, and Ammonites. Theſe were borderers on the ſouth, and ſouth eaſt part of Judea.

the reproach of Moab] See on Amos 2. 1. God took notice of it, though they thought not ſo.

the revilings of the children of Ammon] See on Amos 1. 13. Though theſe two nations came of Lot Abrahams Nephew, yet were they ever bitter enemies againſt their kinſmen the Jews, Jeremie 48. 27. Ezek. 25. 3. Whence is that, Deuteronomie 23. 3, 4. and magnified themſelves againſt their border] Theſe nations preſumed to take from the Jewes that countrey which the Lord had given them. Jeremie 48. and 49. 1. See Deuteronomie 38. 8. and 27. 17. God peculiarly aſſigned to Abraham, and his poſteritie the land of Canaan. They would repeal Gods decree.

v. 9. Therefore, as I live ſaith the Lord of hoſts, the God of Iſrael] He not onely hears and ſees, but he revengeth alſo: and he ſwears he will; to aſſure his people of it; and to ſhew that he is provoked to wrath, by their reproaches and revilings of his people; whoſe God he avows himſelf to be; and a God of power to defend them, and avenge himſelf and them, of his and their enemies.

againſt the people] Thus tender is God of his people; their reproaches thus take with him. They need not fear that in their calamities he doth or will forſake them, Iſaiah 43. 2.

v. 11. The Lord will be terrible unto them] To the Moabites, and Ammonites; however now they ſleight him, and his people too.

all the Iſles of the heathen] Far Countries, eſpecially beyond the Sea. So greatly ſhall Gods glory appear in the reduction and reſtauration of his people; and avenging them of their enemies, that the fame of it ſhall ſpread abroad to the outmoſt Nations, and cauſe them to give glory to him; to the ſlighting of their own idols. And This makes way to that which follows.

v. 12. Ye Ethiopians] Likely the Ethiopians neer Moab; and Ammon. Some take it for the Ethiopians beyond Egypt; and make here an argument thus; if the Ethiopians ſo far off, much more Moab, and Ammon, that were nigh at hand.

North] Aſſyria, and Nineve, were North of Judea.

v. 14. And flocks] The building of Cteſiphont is thought to have occaſioned this utter ruin, as Authours report it. Here are various and vehement expreſſions of the dreadfull face of her deſolations; Thus God ſtaines all worldly glorie.

v. 15. This is the rejoycing city] So Populous, and pleaſant before, now left to this deſolation, to theſe inhabitants. Pride did ſwell her up, and made her as the ſwelling in a wall, which portends the downfall of it. See on verſe 10. Kingdoms muſt not glory too much in their own potency; but be ſenſible how ſubject they are to mutability and change; and make their main dependency upon God, and his favourable protection.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. WO] The Prophet returns to Jeruſalem; And threatens and thunders wo againſt it; againſt the ſinfull forlorn Body of the People. And addes Promiſes full of conſolation to the holy Remnant.

to her that is filthy and polluted] Or, gluttonous. Heb. craw. Or crop. The ſame word is uſed, Levit. 1. 16. Jeruſalem is thus here ſtiled. For all that ſhe is ſo oft called the holy city, Pſalm 15. 1. Jere. 48. 2. and 52. 1. Yet ſhe is thus changed; as Eſay 1. 21. Jere. 2. 21. 23. Polluted, for all her ceremonious waſhings, cleanſings, purifyings; polluting Gods pure and Spirituall worſhip.

oppreſſing City] That is, Jeruſalem. Oppreſſing by force and fraude; breaking the ſecond Table of the Law; aſwell as the firſt. The Trent Tranſlation is uſually ſo erronious, as neither here, nor elſwhere, do we uſe to mention it. See Levit. 19. 13. Deut. 28. verſe 29. Jer. 21. 12. Ezech. 22. 29.

v. 2. She obeyed not the voyce] Namely, Gods voyce, calling her to repentance, by his ſervants. Here begins the enumeration of her ſins, the cauſers of Gods wrath. She yeelded not docility, and ſubmiſſion thereunto. Gods voyce and word had not it's due power and authority with her. And this was the root of her rebellion. See Nehe. 9. 26. Jere. 2. 27.

received not correction] Or, inſtruction. verſe 7. Neither by Reprehenſions, nor Puniſhments: They were incorrigible. And thus evilly it was with a people proteſting themſelves to be the people of God. See Pſalm 50. 17. Prov. 5. 12. Jere. 2. 30. & 5. 3. & 7. 28. & 32. 33. and 35. 13.

ſhe truſted not] Diffidence and Incredulity. Another riſe and inlet of ſin. She truſted in man, in the reed of Egypt, in her own wayes, wiſdom, riches, and ſtrength; in vanity, lies, falſhood; rather then in the Lord. See Jere. 17. 5, 6, 7, 8. 2 Chron. 20, 17. 20.

drew not neer] He tyed himſelf by Covenant to her. And in that notion gave her his Law and ordinances; onely deſiring her to cleave to him; Deut. 10. 20. and 13. 4. Yet ſhe fell from him, and apoſtatiſed, eſtranged her ſelf from him more and more, ſhunned him; like a wilde beaſt ſhe would not be tamed and mannaged by him.

to her God] As he offered and tyed himſelf to her; and ſhe made a profeſſion of him in words, though in works ſhe denyed him ſo to be. A more honourable title for her then ſhe now deſerved.

v. 3. Her Princes] He comes now from the body of the people, to the Heads of them; to the King, and Courtiers; to the Princes, and Peers.

her judges are evening wolves] Jere. 5. verſe 6. Ezech. 22. 27. Hab. 1. 8. Pſal. 104. 20. Inraged then with hunger for want of prey all day. And if the Governours and heads were thus, what then were the body of the common people?

the bones till, &c.] Or leave not, which are even raging with hunger; being ſo greedy that they eat up bones and all; and that ſpeedily, preſently; ſuch is their voracity.

the morrow] Or, in the morning.

v. 4. Her Prophets] As the Princes, ſo the Prophets, and Prieſts were. See Jere. 23. 11. &c. Ezech. 22. 25. 26. & 34. 2. &c. Hoſ. 9. 7, 8.

light and treacherous perſons] Or bold, in feigning prophecies of their own inventions; uttering them, and boldly maintaining of them. Unmeet things were theſe for men in their places.

her Prieſts] Gives them the Titles they were known by; though they deſerved them not. The more was their ſhame appearing by theſe titles. The like titles give we to undeſerving perſons.

the ſanctuary] Gods Temple, and the ſervice of it; and ſo all ſanctity; whatſoever was holy.

violence to the Law] Ezech. 22. 26. The Tribe of Levi was by Gods gracious providence diſperſed to teach it; Gene. 49. 7. Compared with Deut. 33. 10. See Levit. 10. verſe 11. 2 Chron. 30. 22. and chap. 17. 7. &c. Yet ſee how they degenerated here. And ſo Malachi 2. 4—10. And Chap. 1. 6. &c. And thus deeply and freely the Prophet chargeth the Prophets and Prieſts ordained by God in their offices, that they overthrew and deſtroyed the Law; by their evil examples, and corrupt doctrines, wreſting the Law: we ſee then Church-men may erre; and are to be reproved. And alike boldly he dealt againſt the Princes; neither are they exempted from the Prophets rebukes and condemnation. And he ſpeaks againſt them all, he oppoſeth his ſingle ſelf againſt all their multitudes. But where then was Gods Church upon earth, when the common people, the heads in the Common-wealth, the Prophets, and Prieſt in the Church, were thus corrupted among the Jews? yet God preſerved his Remnant, his holy ſeed, Eſay 65. 8. The faithfull ſtill do and muſt continue faithfull for all that; as Elias, 1 King. 19. 14. and Joſhua reſolved, Joſh. 24. 15.

v. 5. The juſt Lord is in the midſt thereof] The Hypocrites brag'd much of this; of his being and dwelling amongſt them, in his Temple, and Ordinances: and of his word and promiſe to that end: Jere. 7. 4. Pſal. 132. 13. 14. The Prophet grants it; but to a far other end, then they made an account and uſe of it. He is in the midſt of them, a juſt Lord, nigh at hand, and ready to revenge their ſins.

he will not do iniquity] He will not deny his juſtice, his nature, for their ſakes: he will not ſubſcribe to their iniquities: though he wink at them a while, yet he will not be like them: he will not do iniquity. God who hath choſen Jeruſalem, for the place of his reſidence, and manifeſtation in the world, cannot in juſtice ſuffer theſe ſins to eſcape puniſhment. This indeed ſhould make the people not to do iniquity, becauſe the Lord among them is juſt. But if they do, he is juſt, and hath juſt cauſes to puniſh them.

Every morning] Heb. morning by morning. As Exod. 16. 21. That is, every day, even in the morning, (which ſeems to have been the ordinary time for the Prophets preaching) he doth denounce to them his judgements to come; and repreſents unto them thoſe which he had already executed upon other Nations; to call his people to repentance. See 2 Chron. 36. 15. 16. Jer. 7. 13. and 11. 7. and 25. 3. 4. &c. 29. 19. and 32. 33. 35. 15. he will ſpeedily get upon the bench, and proceed in judgement againſt them.

he faileth not] For his part, both to admoniſh and reprove them; and alſo to correct and chaſtiſe them. Eſay 5. 4. He ſtill uſeth both the word, and the rod.

but] Matt. 23. 37. Jere. 5. 3. Eſay 9. 13. For all that, they are ſtill forlorn and deſperate. See Jere. 6. 15. and 8. 12.

v. 6. I have cut off the Nations] By the deſtruction of other nations he ſheweth, that the Jews ſhould have learned to fear God, And that God intended ſo much in making theſe Nations to be Examples to them. This ſhould have been a ſchooling to them.

Nations] Not one, but many. He gave them many Examples, one after another.

their towers] Heb. Corners. See Chap. 1. 16. Becauſe towers were ſet in Corners of City walls. The Hebrew word may alſo be taken for Princes and Lords, Judges 20. 2. 1 Sam. 14. 38. He ſets forth the grievouſneſs of theſe judgements upon theſe nations; the rather to move his people thereby to repent. Theſe were not Common judgments, nor Common examples; but extraordinary.

that none paſſeth by] See Eſay 33 8. & 34. 10. & 60. 15. Jere. 51. 43.

v. 7. I ſaid] I looked, I expected; as, Eſay 5. 4. Wherefore when I looked? Luk. 13. 6. Not, but that God is omniſcient: all things are preſent with him; he knoweth mans heart, and his thoughts long before: He is never fruſtrate, or diſappointed in his expectation. But he ſpeaks here improperly; takes upon him the perſon of a man, ſpeaks after the manner of men; as men would do in this caſe, the better to expres the juſtnes of his expectation; and the inexcuſableneſs of theſe ſinful Jews, what man would not expect as much in the like caſe? This then relates not to Gods ſecret knowledge and counſell; but to the nature of the thing it ſelf.

ſurely thou wilt fear me] Learn by their examples; and by the prophets often preſſing and applying of them. And great reaſon for this aſſurance, when our neighbours houſe is on fire, we fear. By other mens harms, we learn to beware. And yet more; judgement doth uſe to begin at the houſe of God, 1 Pet. 4. 17. Yet here it is otherwiſe. And theſe Heathen Nations had leſs light, and were leſs guilty. And if it were thus done to the green tree, what will be done to the dry? And if a Father beat his ſervant before his childe for a fault grievouſly; and to warn the Childe; if he will take no warning, what may he expect?

thou wilt receive inſtruction] Elſe we kick againſt the pricks. And elſe it were ſtupendious ſtupidity, prodigious obſtinacie. like that Eſay 1. 5. Jere. 6. 28. 29. 30. They are paſt all hope.

ſo their dwelling ſhould not] So, upon her repentance, ſo long, and ſo many wayes expected, ſhe ſhould have been ſpared: God was ready ſo to do, however they deſerved otherwiſe; Or if chaſtiſed; yet but ſparingly at moſt; Eſay 27. 7. 8. God changeth or retracts here nothing of his unchangeable will; but ſhews the conſtancie of it, that he was reconcilable upon their change and repentance, thus; Though I brought Jeruſalem into great miſeries, by reaſon of their ſins: yet will I ſave Jeruſalem from finall ruin, if ſo be ſhe will be converted.

but they roſe early] He was ſlow to puniſhment; but they ſpeedy to provoke him, and haſten on the puniſhment; they inſtantly and inceſſantly corrupted themſelves, and all their wayes more and more; They were moſt earneſt and ready to do wickedly, notwithſtanding Gods judgements, Iſai. 1. 5.

v. 8. Therefore wait ye upon me] Some take this as ſpoken to the wicked Jews; thus; I have hitherto wooed you, born patiently, and dealt mildly with you. But now, ſeeing all is in vain, I will ſend Prophets no more, I will not word it with you any more: Expect me to come armed againſt you, to be amongſt you as a ſalvage bore, or beare, your laſt end is come upon you. Others, as ſpoken to the Godly remnant, the faithfull among them; thus; do ye at leaſtwiſe patiently beare the calamities coming; and fix your affiance, and waiting upon me, who will deſtroy all theſe nations your enemies, verſe 8. And after gather in all people and convert them to me; that together with you, they may call upon my name, and ſerve me, verſe 9. 10.

riſe up to the prey] As the lyon rouzeth up himſelf to the Prey.

for my determination is] My right; my decree.

to powre] See Jere. 6. 11. Lam. 2. 4. and 4. 11. Eſay 42. 25.

for all the earth] And then ſurely the Jews among them. Others thus; when firſt this whole land of the Jews hath been devoured.

with the fire of my jelouſie] Chap. 1. 18. Deut. 29. 20. Pſal. 79. 5. Ezech. 16. 38.

v. 9. For then] Then, after thoſe judgements executed; and ſin puniſhed.

will I turn] This ſeems ſpoken to the holy remnant, for their conſolation in the midſt of all theſe calamities. As his threatnings are directed to the body of the wicked.

to the people] Gentiles, as well as Jews; as after appears. So that no fear for all thoſe judgements, but God will ſtill have his Church.

a pure language] Heb. lip, This ſeems to reach to the time of the Meſſias; when the face of the earth ſhalbe changed, by the converſion of the Gentiles, and by their ſanctification in heart, and tongue. See Eſay 18. 19. Chapters. By communicating my Spirit unto them, I will change them in the ſpirit of their minde: that being purified by faith, in word, and work, they ſhall purely ſerve me.

call upon the Name of the Lord] Prayer is a peculiar gift and grace of God, a ſpeciall part of his worſhip and ſervice. The Prayer of all Heathens, and all wicked men, is not true Prayer.

with one conſent] Heb. with one ſhoulder. A phraſe taken from oxen, which are yoaked together. See Zach. 7. 11. Jere. 32. 39. 1 Tim. 2. 8. Seeking and ſtudying to help and aſſiſt one another in Gods ſervice. See Eſay 2. verſe 3. Pſal. 122. 1. Zech. 8. 20. 21. 22. 23. Jere. 31. 6. Matth. 11. verſe 12.

v. 10. From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia] This ſeems to be underſtood of Ethiopia beyond Egypt. Of Ethiopia. See on Habakkuk 3. 7. This Ethiopia hath two very great rivers; And hence Nilus comes. Meroe is it, or part of it, or adjoyning to it: thus Geographers differ. See Strabo, book 17. and Pliny in his naturall hiſtory book 5. chap. 9. Zera in the time of Aſa: and Tirhakah, in the time of Sennacherib: and Candace mentioned, Acts 8. Are thought to have reigned here. See Eſay 18. 1. 2.

my ſuppliants] Some underſtand by this the Gentiles to be called, and converted: thus, even by the farthermoſt countreys, which have leaſt knowledge of me, and of my grace, will I be ſerved and worſhipped. See Iſaiah 18. 7. Act. 8. 27. Others, of the diſperſed Jews: that they ſhall return to their land, and there worſhip the Lord: and make one body with the converted Gentiles.

the daughter of my diſperſed] This moſt properly agrees to the Jewes: though ſome ſtretch it to the Elect, aſwell Gentiles, as Jews, diſperſed throughout the world.

ſhall bring mine offering] deſcribes Gods Spirituall worſhip by thoſe legall Ceremonies then in uſe: as other Prophets alſo uſe to do.

v. 11. In that day] The happy ſtate of the Church in that day is here ſet forth: in that the wicked ſhall be taken away out of the midſt of them: and themſelves ſhall be holy and happy.

ſhalt thou not be aſhamed for all thy doings] O my Church, I will take away that ignominie from thee, under which thou haſt ſuffered for the ſhamefull evils done in thee, whereby the very name of Jews is become odious and reproachfull. The ſhameleſſe evil doers I will purge out of thee, and take them away. This ſtands well with that Rom. 6. 21. Jer. 31. 19.

wherein thou haſt tranſgreſſed againſt me] When there are but a few godly left, and mixed among multitudes of grievous ſinners, they lye under the imputation of the common infamy and reproach with the reſt, as if alike faulty with them. We call a City and Nation ſinfull, as Iſa. 1. 4. where the moſt ſo over-cloud the few that are godly therein, that they lye hid, as it were, and buried among them, that they appear not.

for then I will take away] Then, by my foreſaid heavy judgements, I will take them away, that thou ſhalt not be aſhamed for their ill doings; cleanſe thee of them, as chaffe with a fan, and leave thee as pure Wheat, Mat. 3. 12. &c. 13. 30. Mal. 3. 18. & 4. 1, 2.

that rejoyce in thy pride] Pride themſelves to be the onely people of God; had commonly in their mouths that, Jer. 7. 4. Exod. 19. 6. no other Temple of Gods worſhip in the world; they the onely people; God had no Church without them; ſmoothing up themſelves; and ſheltering their ſins under this pretext, as if thereupon they might live and do as they liſt.

haughty becauſe of my holy mountain] Haughty in their pride, puft up with it, ſwollen big, becauſe of my Temple, and their many prerogatives by it. Pſalm 48. 2, 3. and 46. 4, 5. and 68. 16. Eſay 8. 18. and 27. 13.

v. 12. I will alſo leave] God will ſtill leave a remnant, preſerve his Church.

an afflicted and poor people] This is many times the ſtate of Gods Church; God tames his Church by the croſſe.

and they ſhall truſt] This ſhould comfort them againſt their paucity, and the deſtruction of the reſt; They ſhall be holy, as gold purified in the fire; They ſhall truſt in God, reſt and rely only upon him, and his grace, and not truſt to that proud and vain boaſting of the haughty hypocrites: They ſhall faithfully ſerve him, and be freed of that ſhame which by reaſon of thoſe tranſgreſſors formerly lay upon them. Some more largely expound the verſe thus; Out of the carnall and rejected Iſrael, and out of loſt mankinde, will I deliver mine elect, and believers, which are poor and wretched in the worlds eſteem. See Eſay 14. 32. Zach. 11. 11. and 13. 9.

v. 13. The remnant] Though few, yet not to be the leſſe eſteemed, Luke 12. 32. And the purging of the Church, whereby they were brought to this paucity, is a matter of great worth and moment, to have the tranſgreſſors taken away that abuſed and prophaned Gods holy Name.

ſhall not do iniquitie] Perfection not intended: but integritie and ſinceritie.

nor ſpeak lies] Inſtanceth in one kinde for all the reſt, verſe 9. See James 1. 26. and 3. 2. 1 Pet. 3. 10. Apoc. 14. 5. and 21. 27. and 22. 15.

None ſhall make them afraid] Safety and ſecurity is promiſed; temporal bleſſings. See Levit. 26. 6. Jer. 46. 27. Job. 11. 19. yet this is promiſed not ſo much ſimply and abſolutely, as comparatively and conditionally, as all temporal bleſſings are. Some more largely extend the meaning of the verſe thus; The true believers choſen out of all the world, being regenerated by the holy Ghoſt, ſhall live in puritie, ſinceritie, and innocencie, like Chriſts true ſheep, fed by the word of truth, and kept ſafe under his protection; without any other devices or cunning.

v. 14. Sing] The Prophet exhorts this holy and happy Church to rejoyce and praiſe God, for theſe his ſpiritual bleſſings. He after doubles and trebles the exhortation, becauſe it is hard in the black night of calamities, to ſpy out the light of comfort; and this appearing but afar off. And yet it is neceſſary for our preſent ſupport: and meet that we ſhould be thus affected at Gods mercies, and be anſwerable in joy and thanks and praiſe thereunto.

O daughter of Zion] Eſay 12. 5. 6. and 54. 1 and 25. 9. and 66. 10. Jer. 31. 7. Habak. 3. 18.

v. 15. hath taken away thy judgements] That is, the puniſhments and viſitations for thy ſins: and conſequently thy ſins, the cauſers of them.

thine enemies] As the Aſſyrians, Chaldeans, Egyptians, and other nations. They were but as rods in Gods hand: Iſa. 10. 5. 7.

the King of Iſrael] The Lord God: and Jeſus Chriſt the King of his Church. Pſalm 149. 2. Iſaiah 44. 6. Zech. 9. 9.

in the midſt of thee] Sometimes he ſtands afar off; Pſal. 10. 1. and 22. 1. Ezek. 8. 6. But here in the midſt of thee; preſent and ready to bleſſe protect, and defend thee under the ſhadow of his wings, and in the power and grace of his Spirit, to comfort and ſtrengthen thee, Ezek. 39. 29.

evil any more] Jer. 23. 4. Amos 9. 15.

v. 16. It ſhalbe ſaid] By way of common congratulation of all.

Fear thou not] Afore they were in fears and troubles. But now the caſe was changed; See Eſay 10. 24. and 35. 3, 4. and 40. 9. and 41. 10. 14. Jer. 46. 27.

Let not thine hand be ſlack] Or, faint, be not diſcouraged ſtrengthen thy ſelf in faith, and in perſeverance, in all the duties of thy calling: not fearing any harm which may happen to thee: not ſlack, without vigor and agility: as fear makes them but active rather in well doing.

v. 17. The Lord thy God] The reaſon of that in the former verſe. He will not be ſlack, or idle, but able, and active to ſave thee.

he will rejoyce over thee with joy] Theſe expreſſions concerning God are taken from men, to make known his minde unto us. Words full of comfort to the Church, ſhewing the infiniteneſſe of Gods tender love and condeſcenſion to us. Pſal. 103. 11. 13. Eſay 49. 15. And all little enough to raiſe up our faith, hope, and love in him. The bleſſings here, and in the former verſes took their riſe at their return from Babylon; but are carried on to CHRISTS firſt and ſecond coming.

he will reſt in his love] Hebr. Will be ſilent.

He will joy] His delight ſhall be in thee, in loving thee, and in doing thee good, Jer. 32. 41. Ezek. 20. 40.

v. 18. that are ſorrowful for the ſolemn aſſemblie] For the loſſe and want of theſe ſolemn aſſemblies, upon the Sabbaths, and other feaſts, and times of Gods worſhip. Theſe they moſt highly prized, and joyed in: and the want of them was their ſorrow and lamentation. See Pſalm 42. and 84. and 137. Lam. 1. 4. and 2. 6, 7. and 4. 1. and 5. 18. And the more, becauſe the adverſaries in their exile mockt at their Sabbaths: Lam. 1. 7.

who are of thee] Thy true and genuine children: as John 1. 47. This ſorrow for the lack of Gods holy ordinances, and want of his worſhip, is a ſure ſigne of a true childe and member of the Church.

the reproach] Hebr. The burden upon it was reproach.

a burden] As Pſalm 42. 3. 10.

v. 19. at that time] My appointed time. Not ſo ſoon haply as your haſty deſires would have it, to whom ſpeed it ſelf ſeems a delay: But I know mine own time beſt: ye muſt ſtand upon your tower and watch, and patiently wait for it.

I will undo] Think not this impoſſible to be effected: all obſtacles I will remove: all thy perſecuters I will perſecute. See Eſay 10. 25, 26.

ſave her] I will deliver the Church, who now is afflicted, as Micah 4. 6, 7.

that halteth] Ezek. 34. 16. Micah 4. 7. Even the weakeſt, and unableſt to help her ſelf. Ezek. 37. This reſtauration ſhall be like a reſurrection from the dead.

get them praiſe and fame] Heb. I will ſet them for a praiſe, I will make them celebrious and famous; and that even in the lands, and in the mouthes of their enemies that had reproached them: yea a praiſe to himſelf; Jer. 13. 11. and 33. 9. Eſay 62. 7.

in every land] As among the Aſſyrians, Chaldeans, and Græcians, which did mock them, and put them to ſhame.

where they have been put to ſhame] Heb. Of their ſhame.

v. 20. will I bring you again] See Nehem. 1. 9. Zach. 10. 8, 9, 10. Micah 4. 6. into your countrey which is the type of the Church. But he will gather your enemies as ſheaves into the floor, Micah 4. 12, 13.

a name and praiſe] See on verſe 19. Repeats it for their aſſurance; becauſe in the eye of fleſh and blood it was a thing ſo incredible, Eſay 60. 15. 18. & 61. 7. and 62. 7.

captivities] Plurally. They were ſo greatly diſperſed and ſcattered; as if there had been many and many captivities. See Eſther 8. verſe 9. and 9. 2.

before your eyes] They ſhould be eye-witneſſes of ſo great a reſtauration and glorious ſalvation.

HAGGAI.

THE ARGUMENT.

A*Fter the ſeventy yeers Captivity, foretold by* Jeremiah, were expired; and the Jews were returned from Babylon; and yet the Temple for many yeers unbuilt; God raiſed up ſome Prophets, among the reſt, Haggai, and Zechariah; to exhort them to reedifie the Temple, and to reeſtabliſh his pure worſhip. Haggai ſharply reprooveth them for regarding their private commodities, more then the publick good; building their own Houſes, with neglecting the Lords Houſe; and ſheweth, that the plague of famine ſent amongſt them, was a juſt recompence of their groſſe ingratitude in omitting that work, to effect which, God mightily wrought their deliverance from Babel. Yet if they will up and build, God would be with them, with his word, and ſpirit. And albeit that Houſe they builded were far leſſe ſtately then the former built by Solomon, and nothing in compariſon in their eyes, who had ſeen both; and for which many were grieved; the Prophet comforteth them, and all the Elect, in aſſurance that the glory of this latter Houſe ſhould be greater then the glory of the former: For Zerubbabel the ſignet, that is, Chriſt (who was to come of Zerubbabel*) ſhould be born and* come into their reedified Temple, and by his preſence advance it to greater glory then ever the former had; who by the Father is appointed king of his Church, yea, King of kings, and Lord of lords; and who alſo ſhould ſhake the Heaven and the earth: the Heaven of Jewiſh ceremonies, and earth of profane Empire, by ſetting up his Kingdom in ſpirituall worſhip: bringing all Nations under his Power: and ſubverting all power contrary to his. Haggai expoundeth Daniels ſevens, that the Jews ſhould build a Temple, Chap. 1. that Chriſt the deſire of all Nations, ſhould come into it: and ſo, by his preſence there, make that Temple more glorious then Solomons, Chap. 2. His whole Propheſie is within the compaſſe of ſomewhat leſſe then four moneths. And was upon four ſeverall dayes within that time: Namely in the ſecond yeer of Darius, moneth ſix, day firſt, Chap. 1. 1. and day. 24. Chap. 1. 13. 15. And moneth 7. day 21. Chap. 2. 1. And moneth 9. day 24. Chap. 2. 10 18. 20.

CHAP. I.

IN the ſecond yeer of Darius] Ezra 4. 24. and 5. 1. Zech. 1. 1. who was the ſon of Hyſtaſpis, and the third king of the Perſians; as the moſt, and beſt think. Others take him to be Darius Nothus, the ſixt king of the Perſians, that ſucceeded Artaxerxes Longimanus, being his baſe ſon, and was father of Artaxerxes Mnemon. See Annotations on Dan. 9. 25. This man, whether the ſixt king, or rather the third, knew that Gods wrath was upon his predeceſſors for hindring the building of the Temple. In his ſecond, the Temple is taken in hand again, and finiſhed in his ſixt; Ezra 4. 24. & 6. 15.

ſixt moneth] See the end of the Argument of the Book.

the word of the Lord] Whoſe Ambaſſadour and Meſſenger Haggai is, v. 13.

by Haggai] Hebr. By the hand of Haggai, Ezra 5. 1. to Zerubbabel] Whoſe Chaldee name is thought to be Shaſhbazzar, Ezra 1. 8, 11. & 5. 14, 16. Of Zerubbabel ſee Neh. 12. 47. Hag. 2. 4, 23. Zech. 4. 6, 7, 9, 10.

the ſon of Shealtiel] So v. 12, 14. & 2. 2, 23. Ezra 3. 2, 8. & 5. 1. & 12. 1. Mat. 1. 12. Luk. 3. 27. yet he ſeems to be the ſon of Pedaiah, 1 Chron. 3. 17, 18, 19. and grandchild of Shealtiel or Selathiel: Grandchildren are ſometimes called by the names of ſons in Scriptures, and one man ſometimes by two names.

governour of Judah] So v. 14. & 2. 2, 21. Or, Captain of the people of the Jews, by the Kings of Perſia, after their return out of captivity, likely called the Tirſhatha, Ezra 2. 63. as Nehemiah is called, Neh. 8. v. 9. & c. 10. 1. Thus though the Kingdome was gone, Ezek. 21. 26, 27. yet the government remained in that Tribe, according to the propheticall promiſe, Gen. 49. 10.

ſon of Joſedech] Or, Iehozadak, which Iehozadak went into captivity, 1 Chron. 6. 15. His Father Seraiah the high Prieſt being ſlain by Nebuchadnezzar at Riblah, 2 Kings 25. 18. 21.

the high prieſt] So v. 12, & 14. & 2. 2. Zech. 3. 1. 8. he was the twenty fourth in number from Aaron, 1 Chron. 6. 3,—16. Theſe two, both Governour and high Prieſt, were good men, yet needed incitation and encouragement; and the Prophet is directed to them, as being by their places and perſons the beſt Directors to the people. Some make them to be very long liv'd.

this people ſay] They were but a parcell that came, in reſpect of the reſt that ſtayed behinde; yet theſe that were forward to come, were backward in the building of the Temple. the fault is laid upon the people.

the time is not come] Some think the ſeventy yeers of captivity not ended till now. But that is a groſſe errour, Ezra 1. 1. Dan. 9. 1, 2. Iſa. 44. 28. This indeed is the excuſe of the Jews, ariſing out of diffidence and difficulties; pretending, no doubt, the many inhibitions of the former Kings of Perſia againſt the building of the Temple, Ezra 4. v. 5, 6, 7. 8. 21,—25. Neither yet that they had heard any thing from the new King Darius to warrant them to build, ſo that they feared they might be charged by their enemies with rebellion againſt the King, if they ſhould ſet upon the work without his leave and authority; and that they had formerly begun to build too ſoon, and were inhibited for their haſte, Ezra 3. 8. with chap. 4. 1, 5. And having already the Altar for Sacrifices, they might now well enough build their own houſes, and expect a fitter time to build the Lords Temple more ſumptuouſly: and as if by thoſe lets, which had been an hinderance to them, God had ſhewed that he would have the work put off till another time. Yet all this frees them not of their carnall affection to their own eaſe, and of the neglect and contempt of Gods worſhip; in that they ſat down ſo quietly and contentedly ſo long a time under theſe interdicts, without due labouring to have them removed.

v. 4. Is it time for you] The Prophets reproof of that Pretence, verſe 2. A ſharp pointed reproof by the interrogation.

O ye] Silly worms; ye ungratefull wretches; ye ſo lately and gratiouſly delivered from exile; and brought back into your own countrey; and that for this very end, as appears in Cyrus his own edict, Ezra 1. verſe 2.

to dwell &c.] To dwell and delight your ſelves in your ſeeled houſes; to adorne them; to be thus addicted to your own private commodities, and pleaſures; and to be ſo ungratefull to God, as not to let him have his Houſe; but to let it lie waſte: ſhewing thus, that they ſought not onely their neceſſities, but their very pleaſures before Gods honour. David did otherwiſe, Pſal. 132. 2.——6. 2 Sam. 7. 2. Let not us be ſo ungratefull for our deliverance from our ſpirituall captivity under the Romiſh Babylon, as not to build up an houſe and ſpirituall Temple to God in our ſouls.

v. 5 Conſider your wayes] Hebr. Set your heart on your wayes. Deceive not your ſelves, but weigh the matter better, ponder and ſeriouſly conſider, verſe 7. and 2. 15. 18. See Ezek. 40. 4. and 44. 5. Dan. 6. 14. and 10. 12. weigh your wayes, your works: your thoughts, ingratitude, and profaneneſſe: your careleſneſſe, whereby you have provoked my judgements: weigh Gods works and dealings with you hereupon, 1 Cor. 11. 31.

v. 6. ye have ſowen much] Deut. 28. 38. Mich. 6. 14, 15. Conſider the plagues of God upon you, for preferring your policies, and carnall deſires, to his religion: and becauſe ye ſeek not him firſt of all. If God and his word, and authority prevail not: nor the Prophets ſent by him, yet let experience the Miſtris of fools ſchool you.

ye eat, &c.] Theſe things come not by chance, but Gods hand and curſe is upon you, and all your affairs: God promiſed to multiply theſe earthly bleſſings upon them at their return, Hoſ. 2. 21, 22. and by the generall promiſes in his Law, Deut. 28. 3, 4, 5, 8. But now he denies them the fruit of the earth, or elſe denies his bleſſings on them, takes away the naturall vigour & ſtrength from his ordinary bleſſings, chap. 2. 16.

he that earneth wages] You have not reaped any profit or benefit by all your labours; ſee Zech. 8. 10.

with holes] Hebr. Pierced through. A proverbiall kind of ſpeech: thus Gods malediction and curſe was upon all their wayes, and the works of their hands, Deut. 28. 16, 17, 18, 20. & chap. 11. 17. ſee Amos 4. 6, &c. All this ſhould have been a warning to them; a ſufficient warning of Gods anger againſt them for this very cauſe.

v. 7. Conſider] See on v. 5. ſee Phil. 3. 1.

v. 8. Goe up to the mountain] God comes, as it were, with ſword in his hand, to puniſh your cunctation and contempt: the end of his puniſhing is, to turn your careleſſe ſlackneſſe into an induſtrious diligence; meaning that they ſhould leave off their own Commodities, and goe up to the mountain, and goe forward in the building of Gods Temple, in the ſetting forth of his Religion.

and build the houſe] God is ſo earneſt for the Temple, becauſe beſides the exerciſes of piety in it, and many promiſes made to it, it had in many things relation to Chriſt, and to the Temple of God in heaven.

and I will take pleaſure in it] That is, I will hear your prayers according to my promiſe, and be propitious to you and your ſervices therein: ſee Zeph. 3. 17. Tit. 2. 14. 1 Kings 8. 29. and 9. 3. The cover of the Arke had the name of the Propitiatory.

and I will be glorified] In my ſervices there, and I will ſhew my glorious power and goodneſſe in bleſſing you and your affairs, and in defending you, and will give you cauſe to honour and ſerve me, and my enemies to fear me, 1 Sam. 2. 30.

v. 9. Ye looked for much] You hoped for a great harveſt, by reaſon of the great likelihood that was of it; but your hopes were vain: ye were eager after much, but had little; God curſed their bleſſings and expectations, as Mal. 2. 2. & 3. 10, 11. They were pinched and pined away in their wants, becauſe they defrauded God of his due worſhip.

blow upon it] Or, Blow it away: As the winde ſcatters the chaffe and thiſtle down; as ye doe ſnuffe and puffe at my ſervices, Mal. 1. 13. ſo I blaſt your own endeavours and acquiſitions.

why] Not that he doubts, but that they might not doubt of the cauſe wherefore they ſhould be monitors ſufficient to themſelves: But this implies and argues a ſtupidity and blockiſhneſſe in them.

becauſe of mine houſe] Here is the cauſe.

And ye run] Eagerly purſue your own private ends, and affairs. Every one is moſt carefull of building his own houſe, and looking to his own particular buſineſſes: run after them: and are ſo ſlow for my houſe, and worſhip. This ſhewes their little care of ſerving God.

v. 10. Therefore the heaven] Levit. 26. 19. Deut. 28. 23. Heaven, and earth, by their deaw, and fruits, heed not mans ſuſtenance: But God uſeth them as his ordinary inſtruments, whereby to provide for the ſuſtenance and relief, or for the puniſhment of man.

v. 11. And I called for a drought] See Jer. 14. 3. 4. He brings droughts, and rain: he reſtrains, and poures out his bottles of the cloudes at his pleaſure. As he dealt with Gideons fleece, Judges 6. 37. 40. See 1 Kings 17. 1. 2. Kings 8. 1.

v. 12. Then Zerubbabel, &c.] His Ambaſſage had its effect. Theſe two heads were good men; and good leaders to the reſt; who were the more willing to follow ſo good guides.

obeyed] And went freely about the reedifying of the Temple, Ezra. 5. 2.

the voyce] He inſiſts the longer upon this, the more to aſſert the authority of his calling. And ſomwhat the rather becauſe they had wanted Prophets awhile before.

and the words of Haggai] He diſtinguiſheth not between Gods word, and his, as if he brought any thing more or leſſe then Gods word: But between the Author, and miniſter of the ſame word. As in that, The ſword of the Lord, and of Gideon, Judge 7. 20. And the people believed God, and his ſervant Moſes, Exod. 14. 31. And ſo Act. 15. 18. And not as ſome Papiſts would thence collect, That God thereby leaves ſome part and power to his Church, to adde of their own, beſide and beyond the warrant of his word: Againſt that wherewith he ſhuts up all, Apoc. 22. 18. 19. See Deut. 5. 32. So often repeated, and 1 Cor. 11. 23.

God had ſent him] God is heard in the voyce of his meſſengers, when he ſpeaketh ſo by the mouth of man.

and the people did fear before the Lord] At the word of the Prophet, as if God had appeared to them face to face, and ſpoken to them, mouth to mouth.

v. 13. Then ſpake] This ſeems to be on the 24. day of the ſixth moneth, verſe 15. Till when they continued building, for the ſpace of about three weeks. But then likely at the diſcouragement given by Tatnai and others, Ezra. 5. 3. They began to faint: whereupon this encouragement and promiſe is renewed. Or elſe, theſe 23. dayes paſſed ſince that verſe 1. before they could unanimouſly fit and prepare themſelves to the building; and now began firſt to ſet upon it. And yet the foundation of the Temple is ſaid to be laid on the twenty fourth day of the ninth moneth, Chap. 2. 18. It may be, then finiſhed, not then began to be laid. And he animates them the ſecond time, that their alacrity might increaſe in the work, by this promiſe thus renewed.

the Lords meſſenger] Or Angel. Not that he was ſo by nature, but by office, Mal. 2. 7. He aſſerts the right and authority of his calling; requires reverence and obedience to be yielded to him, not as a private man, but as Jehovahs meſſenger and Ambaſſador.

I am with you] God offers and promiſes his help. Without his aſſiſtance, all is vain; Pſalm 127. 1, 2. But his help is allſufficient: as if he ſhould ſay, ye ſhall go through with it, notwithſtanding any obſtructions and oppoſition whatſoever. See Exod. 3. 12. and 4. 11, 12. 15. Matth. 28. 20. 2 Cor. 12. 9.

v. 14. And the Lord ſtirred up] Afreſh, to go on in the work: which declareth that men are unapt and dull to ſerve the Lord; neither can they obey his word, or his meſſengers, before God reform their hearts, and give them new ſpirits, John 6. 44. The word and all outward ordinances are in vain, unleſſe God clothe them with his power, and fill them with his Spirit, 1 Cor. 3. 7. He ſubdues us unto him, and makes us docible and pliant, by the ſecret inſtinct of his Spirit. He gives to us, and freely works in us by his grace, both to will and to do; to endeavour and perſevere, Phil. 1. 29. and 2. 13. yet he pleaſeth to work ordinarily, by his word, and ordinances: And therefore on them we are to attend; or rather on him in them. The firſt riſe of new life, and ſaving grace is not in our natural powers and ſtrength, in our dead eſtate in ſin: but meerly in his purpoſe and pleaſure, Rom. 9. 16.

of Zerubbabel] See on verſe 1. The higheſt powers are not exempt; but the Prince and the high prieſt himſelf, ſubmits and ſubjects to the Prophet.

and did work] Jam. 1. 25. John 13. 17. and finiſhed it with ſpeed; Ezra 4. 24. and 6. 15.

v. 15. In the twenty fourth day, &c.] Twenty three dayes being now paſt ſince that, verſ. 1. See Annotations on verſ. 13. yet ſome conceive this to be the day, that they firſt began to ſet upon the work. See alſo Chap. 2. 18.

CHAP. II.

IN the ſeventh moneth in the twenty firſt day] That is 27. dayes ſince the ſecond meſſage, Ch. 1. 15. and 51. dayes ſince the firſt meſſage, Chap. 1. 1. in the ſecond yeer of Darius his reign, Chap. 1. 1. ſee the end of the Argument of this Book.

by the Prophet Haggai] Hebr. By the hand of the Prophet Haggai.

v. 2. ſpeak now] See on Chap. 1. 1.

reſidue of the people] But a remnant or ſmall number of them did then return. Another number after with Ezra, Ezra 7, 8. Chapters. And yet multitudes behinde as appears in the Book of Eſther. So ſlow they were to return; ſo little zeal, and piety was in them.

v. 3. who is left] Here he meets with a new tentation that hindered them in the building. Satan will caſt in the way of well-doing more rubs then one. The former was their neglect and contempt of Gods worſhip, preferring their own covetous deſires, and carnall pleaſures before it. Here is pretended a Religious zeal of Gods glory; thus, Solomons Temple was glorious: And the promiſes of, the Prophets Iſaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, are, That the ſecond Temple to be built after the return ſhould be rather more glorious. But that which they began now to build was far inferiour. And therefore ſure they were not in the right way, but ſhould deſiſt from going on in this building. Thus cunning a craſ-maſter is Satan.

that ſaw] Haggai by the judgement of all commenters ſpake of men that had ſeen the former Temple, in age of diſcretion. See Ezra 3. 12.

as nothing?] In compariſon of Solomons Temple. Ezra 3. 12. ſo then; and ſo here now; Their preſent proceedings were like thoſe poor beginnings. A much like tentation is now adayes, when ſome forſake the Church becauſe of that high perfection, which they require, but do not ſee in it. They inſiſt upon that Epheſ. 5. 27. They fancy a new world here wherein the Church muſt be thus glorious; and otherwiſe they will ſeparate, and break the unity of the Church, forſake the Aſſemblies. See Zach. 4. 10.

v. 4. Yet now be ſtrong] We ſee how needfull it is often to renew exhortations and encouragements. Joſh. 1. 6. 7. 9. and 23. 6. Deut. 31. 6, 7. Ezra 10. 4. Iſa. 35. 3, 4. Zech. 8. 9. 13. we muſt ſimply and manfully obey God, and his word; and ſo exerciſe and inure our hope as patiently to expect Gods own time to fulfill what he hath promiſed; though the effect of them do not yet anſwer our preſent deſires,

I am with you] He gratiouſly repeats it again. See on chap. 1. 13 This ſhews that this ſtrength is to be ſought of God. The promiſe of his preſence is to be joyned to the Precept. The Precept of it ſelf ſhews not what we are able to do, but what we are bound to do; and the Promiſe directs us to whom, and where we are to ſeek for ſtrength to do it.

v. 5 According to the word] Some would underſtand this of that eternall word; John 1. 1, 2, 3, 4. 1 John 1. 1, 2. Prov. 8. 22. And ſo that 2 Sam. 7. 21. And theſe would deduce from this verſe a teſtimony for the Trinity of Perſons. But this ſeems more acute then ſound. The plain meaning appears in the words following.

that I covenanted with you] According to my promiſe made at that time with your fathers, and you in them. So that here in effect he promiſeth no new thing; but will perform what he promiſed of old. He calls them back to the ancient covenant, as to the fountain, whence all particular promiſes, as rivolets, do flow: as the manner of the Prophets is to do. God redeemed not their Fathers, to caſt off the children, but to continue his grace in them to the end: which end is made up in Chriſt. Seeing then they were to hope for and expect the accompliſhment of that felicity, which God by his Covenant had promiſed them; either God and the Covenant ſhould fail and diſappoint them, or elſe they muſt cheerfully go on in the work to build the Temple.

my Spirit remaineth] My power to ſtrengthen you, and carry you on againſt all tentations, and obſtructions; my Spirit of grace, light, vertue, and holineſſe. See Iſaiah 63. 11. Neh. 9. 20.

v. 6. For thus ſaith] This ſentence depends upon the foreſaid Covenant: And thereupon it begins with a particle cauſal.

yet once] This one, and once onely, repetition of the Covenant ſhall be needfull, and the Renovation, and confirmation of it by the Goſpel.

it is a little while] Some refer it thus to the time, that God will ſoon change the face of things to the better; they muſt give place to patience for a while. Some to the preſent ſtate of things, and caſe of the Temple; that though this Temple be not ſo glorious; yet that is but a little matter; let them not judge of it by the preſent view and ſhew, but caſt the eye of their minde to that hidden glory not yet appearing, but in time ſhall. Thoſe magnificent promiſes and propheſies touching the Temple of God, and the kingdom of David; though neither appeared now in any luſter, yet in their time ſhould have their due and full accompliſhment. Others refer it to the Covenant of God, and his dealing then with his people when he brought them out of Egypt; That though that was great and wonderfull; yet but little to this, to his bringing of Chriſt; to his coming, and the adminiſtration of his Goſpel. Compare Rom. 8. 3. and 2 Cor. 3. 6, 7. and Hebr. 7. 19. with 2 Cor. 3. 6.–18. Hebr. 8. verſ. 9. &c. Jer. 31. 30. &c. Ezek. 36. 26. &c. This one onely renewing of my Covenant by the Goſpel of Chriſt ſhall be needfull. That Covenant with you, when ye came out of Egypt, was not available. And to this meaning it ſeems the Apoſtle bends, in alledging this place, Heb. 12. 26.

and I will ſhake the heavens] He ſhook the earth, when he brought them out of Egypt, and Babylon. But now he will do ſomething greater then that. As if he ſhould ſay, Reſt not upon theſe poor and weak beginnings, the day of ſmall things; But conſider rather how great the Lords power is. He hath done much formerly for the deliverance and reſtauration of his people: He will do greater things; He will ſhake heaven and earth, and all, rather then your enemies, or any thing elſe ſhould hinder him in his time from that full and glorious reſtauration of his Church, whereof the Prophets ſo much propheſied. In the coming of Chriſt and the preaching and adminiſtration of the Goſpel, the power of God doth much more illuſtriouſly appear, then formerly it did; He now ſpeaks from heaven unto us; and that by his own ſon, Hebr. 1. 1, 2. and 2. 2. 3, 4. and 12. 25. Some expreſſe the ſenſe thus, not much differing; As formerly when I gave my Law, I appeared in terrible Majeſty; ſo in the Meſſias his time, I will manifeſt the mighty power of my Spirit, by the preaching of the Goſpel: from whence ſhall follow great commotions, to the ruining of the devils kingdom, and confirming of Chriſts, by removing of the leaven of ceremonies under the Law, by calling and gathering together all mine elect. See Joel 3. 16. Hebr. 12. 26, 27.

v. 7. And I will ſhake all Nations] By the power of my ſpirit, and the preaching of my Goſpel. I have the mindes of all mortals in my hand, to turn as pleaſeth me. And this ſhaking, if not perhaps taken literally, like that Matth. 24. 6, 7. and verſe 22. of this chapter, ſeems to import a ſupernaturall concuſſion of their mindes, whereby he drawes and drives his elect into the ſheep-fold of Chriſt. Great is our naturall averſneſſe, obſtinacy, and hatred againſt the ſpirituall Kingdom of Chriſt. God ſhakes the will, and ſubdues, and changeth it, and then we willingly follow Chriſt, and receive his yoak.

And the deſire of all Nations ſhall come] Namely, Chriſt, deſired of the faithfull in all Nations. Though ſome, not ſo well, underſtand this of the elect of all Nations, the deſireable ones among them. Or, their deſires all ſhall be to come; they of all Nations with all their deſires ſhall come.

And I will fill this Houſe with glory] By Chriſts bodily preſence. Or by the glory that the acceſſion of the Gentiles ſhall bring unto it; verſe 9. See Iſaiah 66. 11. 12. 22. Or thus, to the like effect. This reedified Temple ſhall be honoured with Chriſts bodily preſence; and the ſpirituall Temple, which is the Church, ſhal be honoured by my preſence in Spirit, and by the abundance of my graces, by the light of my word, and vertue of my Spirit.

v. 8. The ſilver is mine] If I pleaſed, it were an eaſie matter for me, to beautifie this Temple, with precious ornaments, like unto the firſt; for all ſilver and gold is in my power, and at my diſpoſall; but I do prepare endleſſe glory, far greater then that, for it, when the full time is come.

v. 9. The glory of this Latter] He fixeth upon this concluſion; & relates principally to the excellency of the gifts and ſaving graces of the Spirit that ſhould then abound in the dayes of the Goſpel. See on Joel 2. 28. The Lord by his Prophet here hath no reference to Herods new Temple, more large, ſumptuous, and magnificent, then that of Solomon, if the ſtory of it be true. Such outward ſpendor dazles the eyes of the minde, and by the cunning of Satan withdraws men by ſuch carnal and groſſe imaginations, from the due regard and eſteem of thoſe heavenly ſpirituall ornaments of the Temple, which God here aims at. The Diſciples and Apoſtles themſelves were too much led aſide that way; Mark 13. 1. Acts 1. 6. and reſted too much in an earthly Temple, and Kingdom.

I will give peace] Peace and proſperity; But chiefly the preaching and enjoying of ſpirituall peace, Phil. 4. 7. founded upon the reconciliation of men with God, through Chriſt who is our peace; and did ſhew himſelf in this houſe. All ſhall be after a while, when Chriſt ſhall bring with him the fulneſſe of glory; when God the Father in the perſon of his Son, ſhall appear therein.

v. 10. In the twenty fourth day of the ninth moneth] Sixty three dayes ſince the laſt meſſage, in the 1. verſe of this chap. And all that follows relate to this; verſe 18. and 20. ſo the beginning and ending of Haggai's propheſie, or of Gods word, and ſpeaking to him, is contained within the compaſſe of little more then one quarter of an yeer; viz. of three moneths, and three weeks, and three dayes; or one hundred fourteen dayes. See the end of the argument of the Book.

v. 11. Ask now the Prieſts] Whoſe office was to teach the Law; Levit. 10. 10, 11. Deut. 33. 10. Mal. 2. 7. Matth. 8. 4. And to whom it belonged to anſwer in doubtful caſes: and concerning queſtions of the Law. Aſk them this queſtion, concerning this ceremony.

Concerning the Law] It was not in their power and pleaſure to anſwer what and how they liſt; They were tyed to the Law. Iſa. 8. 20. Deut. 17. 11. and 21. 5. and 24. 8. Ezek. 44. 24. All authority in the Church muſt be ſubjected to, and regulated by this rule.

v. 12. If one bear &c.] The firſt queſtion: whether ſhall it be holy that is ſo touched? or the perſon that bears that holy fleſh, or piece of a ſacrifice, be holy thereby?

ſhall] Not thus; ſhall the holy fleſh ſo touching become prophaned thereby?

No] A right anſwer. For that holy fleſh or ſacrifice was not ordained by God to that end; by the touch of it to hallow that which before was common and prophane. Sacrifices and their fleſh were ordained to another end and uſe.

v. 13. If one that is unclean,&c.] If a perſon legally unclean ſhall touch any thing that is not unclean, ſhall it by that his touching of it become unclean legally?

it ſhall be unclean] A knowing and true anſwer; according to the ceremonial Law. See Levit. 15. and chap. 22. 5, 6. Numb. 19. 22. Hence is that ſaying of thoſe proud hypocrites, Eſay 65. 5.

v. 14. So is this people] The Prophet applies the former doctrine to his preſent purpoſe,even in the ſame manner;becauſe this people is of an unclean conſcience, all that they do in my outward worſhip is alſo unclean, Titus 1. 15. Or thus; As by carrying or touching an hallowed thing according to the Levitical ceremonies, a man or the thing touched is not made holy thereby: but if a man that is Levitically unclean do touch them, they are made unholy thereby. So this people were not made holy by uſe of theſe holy ceremonies; but rather the holy ceremonies polluted by them, by reaſon of their perſonal uncleanneſſe. The iſſue and end of all is this; That they might ſee and be convinced hereby that all their ceremonious ſervices of God, and all their actions are unholy, and defiled, unleſſe they procede from a pure and ſincere affection of the heart, from perſons purified by faith, and ſanctification. From an impure fountain nothing can flow but what is impure; James 3. 11. 12. 1 Tim.1.5. The fountain whence, and the end wherefore, determine the nature of our actions, and ſervices. The very Heathen, both Poets, and Philoſophers, ſaw and acknowledged, That the wickedneſſe of the worſhippers defiled the ſacrifices, and ſervices of their idols; and made them unacceptable. Non benè cœleſtes impia dextra colit.

offer there] Even upon that altar which they have built, Ezra 3. 2, 3. And ſo when they have built the Temple; they muſt chiefly look to this neceſſary admonition and doctrine; That they ſtick not in outward ceremonies, and Levitical ſervices, and reſt onely in them; themſelves mean while being unholy: but that by them they riſe up higher, principally to have a care of Gods ſpiritual ſervice;and that he being a Spirit be ſerved by them in ſpirit and truth.

v. 15. and now I pray you] Verſe 18. and Chap. 1. 5. He inſiſts ſo much upon this point, becauſe they were ſo much addicted to theſe earthly commodities; and therefore this argument likely would beſt work with them: and yet they were for all that ſo dull of apprehenſion, and ſo blinde, that they could or would not ſee theſe manifeſt things; Gods plain judgements upon them, upon the fruits of the earth,and the labours of their hands, for their neglect of building Gods houſe. He calls therefore upon them for conſideration. And to conſider, not any deep myſteries of religion; He ſpeaks wiſdom among them that are perfect, 1 Cor. 2.6. but here he deals with carnal worldly men in a way ſutable to their ſtate & capacity,1 Cor.3.1

from before a ſtone] Namely, before there was any hand ſet to the work of rebuilding the Temple, interrupted for many years after their return from Babylon. See Ezra 3. 8. and 5. 2. the foundations laid, but then the building left off.

v. 16 ſince thoſe dayes] Or, that ſince, ſince you have diſcontinued building, and taken no care of My Temple; and have profaned my ſervice, all your hopes of abundance and proſperity have failed you; and ye received a curſe in ſtead of a bleſſing.

when one came] Uſually they could gueſs neer upon the point. But now they were ſo far deceived, that they might eaſily diſcern thereby that Gods extraordinary hand was in it, and his malediction and curſe lay upon their baſket and ſtore. chap. 1. 9. Zech. 8. 10.

v. 17. I ſmote you] Or, That I ſmote you that is your fruits.

with blaſting] Deut. 28. 22. 1 Kings 8. 37. Amos 4. 6. Gene. 41. 6.

and with hail] God uſed divers judgements, that they might have leſs cauſe to attribute them to fate, or fortune; to the ſtars, or any ſecundary cauſes.

yet ye turned not] God ſtill hath his finger upon this ſore. Complains of this; as here; ſo Eſay 9. 13. Jer. 3. 10. and 5. 3. and 8. 5. Hoſ. 7. 10. Amos 4. 6. And he often requires the amendment of this fault; makes many promiſes to them, if they will, Jer. 3. 1. 7. 14. 22. And threatens if they will not, Jer. 15.7.

v. 18. from the four and twentieth day] He is at it again, becauſe of their dulneſs and blockiſhneſs. See on verſe 10. and on verſe 15. It ſeems then on this day they began firſt to build upon thoſe old foundations laid, Ezra.3. See on chap.1.13.15. It is our bounden duty diligently to mark and obſerve Gods judgements in, and upon the world; ſpecially among his own people, the Church.

v. 19. Is the ſeed yet in the barn?] Either in the blade; or rather not yet ſown, being the ninth moneth about our November, in winter time, which agrees well with all that follows in the verſe; when nothing yet appeared,and when between that and harveſt time there might come and intervene blaſtings, and droughts, and wets, and vermine; as verſe 17.

from this day will I bleſs you] Yet for all theſe Caſualties he foretels, now five months afore harveſt; that from the time they began to build the Temple,God will bleſs them; albeit as yet the fruit was not come forth, yet in the gathering they ſhould have plenty: thus ſuddenly,and beyond their hope and expectation, God would turn their dearth to plenty, and abundantly bleſs them. This ſhould be a ſigne and aſſurance to them; as that Judg.6.21.37. 1 Sam.10.2-8. And thus God by his temporall bleſſings gives incouragements to us for well doing. We have need of all helps: And Godlineſs hath the promiſes both of this life, and that to come, 1 Tim.4.8.

v.20. And again] The ſecond time,on the ſame day. See on verſe. 10.

of the moneth] Namely,of the foreſaid ninth moneth.

v. 21. I will ſhake the heavens] God by his prophet now proceeds further to a gratious and ſpirituall promiſe and propheſie,which properly belongs to the kingdom of Chriſt. The ſum is: That God will overcome all enemies, and remove all difficulties, and obſtructions, which Satan and all the world can poſſibly lay in his way when he comes to reſtore his Church, and conſtitute Chriſt the Head of it. Vnder the term of ſhaking here, God ſpeaks not of his ordinary power and might; not ſimply challengeth to himſelf the rule and command of heaven and earth: but he ſignifieth that he is in hand with ſome memorable work which ſhall aſtoniſh with wonder the minds of men, and be enough to ſhake heaven and earth. The beginning and preambles of it did but then appear when he brought his people back from Babylon: They were then in effect but in a weak, poor, and almoſt miſerable eſtate: but the full end and perfection of this here ſpoken of, could not then be ſeen; It was afterwards to be effected. The Jews then at this time were to conceive more in their minds,then what they ſaw with their eyes; the time of their compleat Redemption was not yet Come.

v. 22. And I will overthrow] Nothing ſhall ſtand in his way.

the throne of kingdoms] All power and height, contrary to Chriſts kingdom, which I have eſtabliſhed for ever,over all the world. Others thus, there ſhall be no lett or hinderance when God will make this wonderfull reſtitution of his Church, but he will rather overthrow,deſtroy,and bring down all Crownes, kingdoms,nations, ſtrengths, then that his Church ſhall remain in that low and baſe eſtate.

by the ſword of his brother]Hereby is ſignified the confflicts of the kingdoms of the world, ſtirred up one againſt another by Gods providence and judgement. Matth. 24. 7.

v. 23. In that day] Of that glorious reſtauration of my Church. Here is the reaſon of that former wondrous action of God.

wil I take thee O Zerubbabel] Plain it is that this was not performed in the perſon of Zerubbabel; or but very poorly, as in the Type. In his perſon is Chriſt deſigned, as under many like figures in the old Teſtament.

as a ſignet] Account thee precious. The meaning is, I will appoint Chriſt, who ſhall come forth of thee according to the fleſh, Luke 3. 27. and whoſe figure thou art, Zech. 4. 12. to be my ſacred King, whom I will inviolably keep by me, and love: which is the ſignification of this proverbiall terme, of making and keeping as a ſignet. Cant. 8. 6. Jer. 22. 24. See Iſaiah 42. 1. And by and under him I will make up this glorious reſtauration of my Church. By the power. of the Goſpel, and the breath of Chriſts mouth, 2 Cor. 10. 5. 2 Theſ. 2. 8. I will make a change, and renew all things in Chriſt; of whom Zerubbabel here is a figure: for in the Meſſias his times not onely the earth and earthly Emperours were ſhaken, but alſo the Heavens or the old Ceremonies, that figured & typified out the doctrine of the Kingdom; that ſuch as ſhould not be ſhaken might be ſetled, Heb. 12. 26. I will ſhake other Kingdoms, to eſtabliſh this eternal Kingdom: Heaven and earth ſhall yeild reverence to this Kingdom of Chriſt. And ſurely his coming brought, and wrought, a wonderfull change; made, as it were a new creation: He reconciles all things, in heaven and earth, Coloſ. 1. 20. He overcame the devil, brought life and immortality to light, and gave out ſuch documents and demonſtrations of the Grace and power of God, as might fill heaven and earth with wonder and aſtoniſhment; who could have imagined ſuch a change?

for I have choſen thee] The free election and ſole godneſſe of God,in his free Covenant with mankinde, and Abraham, and David,eſtabliſhing in him as the Type,this eternall and Spirituall Kingdom; and as the ground and means of all, The chooſing of Chriſt,is the reaſon of all this.Of this chooſing of Chriſt, See 1 Chr.23.6. ANNOTATIONS

ZECHARIAH.

The ARGUMENT.

ZEchariah was ſent of the Lord to be Co-partner with Haggai, to confirm the ſame doctrine, and to help on the work of building the Temple, and ſetling Gods ſervice. The Holy Ghoſt ſpake by Haggai in a plain way of preaching; but altereth his ſtyle in Zechariah who hath many viſions of high and myſterious meaning, whereby to ſet out the doctrines and propheſies he was to declare: How marvellouſly the Son of God, Head of the Church interceded with his Father; And had formerly ſaved his Church, in all Tryals and Troubles; and puniſhed her enemies. And being conſulted about their preſent Faſting, He anſwers, that God requires good works and holineſſe. And he ſhews that their Faſting ſhould be turned to Feaſting and joy in the Lord, upon the Promiſes of ſuch mercies as they might hope for, beeing truly penitent, and conſtantly pious; as well in Temporals, until the Meſſiah; as in Spiritual ones, after his coming. But the carnal and unbelieving Jews, unthankful to God, and enemies to his Chriſt, would cauſe the deſolation of their citie and Nation by the Romans; and for killing the Lord of Life they ſhould be caſt off from the Covenant of Grace, until the time appointed for their converſion.

CHAP. I.

I*N the eighth moneth*] Haggai began in the ſixth moneth; Hag. 1. 1. See Ezra 5. 1. When as the Jews were in ill ſtate, through famine; and the work of the Temple but newly taken in hand.

in the ſecond year of Darius] See on Hag. 1. 1. For the other dayes, and years of the Propheſie of Zechariah, when they fell out, ſee on verſe 7. and chap. 7. verſe 1.

came the word] To him as a Prophet, to preach it to the people. And this phraſe and expreſſion is common among the Prophets.

unto Zechariah] This is moſt likely to be that Zecharias mentioned, Mat. 23. 35. Luk. 11. 51. Though his death, and the manner of it, be not recorded in the Old Teſtament; he being contemporary with the laſt Prophet, & his fathers name the ſame here and there; and the temple built in his dayes, Ezra. 6. 14. Whereas That Zacharias, 2 Chron. 24. 20. 21. Was the Son of Jehoiada the Prieſt, and was ſlain by the command of Joaſh king of Judah, many ages before this Prophets time.

the ſon of Iddo] Ezra. 5. 1. and 6. 14. Not that Iddo the Seer and Prophet, 2 Chr. 9. 29. & 12. 15. & 13. 22. For this lived many ages after that time.

the Prophet] This relates not to Iddo, but to Zechariah.

v. 2. The Lord hath been ſore diſpleaſed] Heb. with diſpleaſure diſpleaſed.

with your fathers] He ſpeaks not of foraign Nations; but cals them home to domeſtical examples; and ſeeks to affright them with Gods judgements; that they ſhould not provoke him as their Fathers had done, whom he ſo grievouſly puniſhed. Heb. 10. 30. Of this ſore diſpleaſure the Babyloniſh captivity was an hiſtory ſufficient. The intendment of this narrative follows in the next verſe.

v. 3. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts] This name is thrice taken up in this verſe; to adde the more force to his doctrine and exhortation; to gain it the more entrance into their hearts: as giving them thereby well to know with whom they had to deal.

turn ye unto me] Turn from your ſins. They did not build the Temple; they had ſtrange wives; they were growen ſecure and careleſs; notwithſtanding all their plagues in the Babyloniſh captivity, they had little Religion or piety left among them. Now God exhorts them to repent, to turn from their ſins to him, as Mal. 3. 7. Thus God ſeeks & ſues firſt, and would prevent them by his grace; and he would have his former ſore diſpleaſure to ſchool them to it. They, and their fathers had ſufficiently taſted therof; Their ſenſe and experience ſhould learn them better obedience, and to make better uſe of Gods rods and puniſhments. Heb. 10. 30. And thus ſhould Gods judgements upon our fathers, or us, work with us, elſe God complains the more, as Amos 4. 6. &c. And we are left inexcuſable the more. But the queſtion is, can we our ſelves, of our ſelves, turn unto God? Anſwer; God requires nothing of us, but what natural reaſon it ſelf doth tell us that he juſtly demands, and we in duty ought to perform. But if all this were now in our own power, then the Grace and aſſiſtance of the holy Ghoſt were in vain and ſuperfluous. The uſe of the Law in ſuch like precepts, and exhortations, is not to ſhew us our own ſtrength, power, and ability; but our diſability; to ſhew us our duty; to reveal ſin; and increaſe it, to work wrath, to be our ſchool-maſter to whip us to Chriſt; to make us look out abroad for a Phyſitian; to ſeek ſtrength and help elſwhere. But then ſaith the Papiſt, God in his goſpel promiſeth help, if men by their naturall endeavours prepare themſelves to it, and ſo in a kinde of congruity do merit it. Anſ. So the riſe and original ſhould be in mans free-will, not in Gods free-grace; and the main work of converſion likewiſe ſhould be the act of man, not the work of God, or gift of his Grace: God according to them never giving or working more by his grace in us, then the ability only, and the act it ſelf after that ever left to the power and pleaſure of man himſelf. A thing contrary to the doctrine of Gods free Election, Grace, and Glory; to the Nature of him, and his decrees; and the whole current of the Scriptures: Rom. 9. 15. &c. Phil. 2. 13. Joh. 6. 44. 65. Act. 13. 48. Eph. 2. 8. 9. 2 Tim. 2. 25. Briefly the meaning of theſe words is this, let your fruits declare that you are Gods people; and that he hath wrought in you by his Spirit, and mortified you, for elſe man hath no power to return to God, but God muſt convert him: as Jer. 31. 18. Lam. 5. 21.

and I will turn unto you] I will again make you feel the effects of my grace and favour, Micah. 7. 19. I will be reconciled unto you, and bleſs you. After their return from Babylon, for their renewed ſins he renewed his wrath, and puniſhed them with famine and otherwiſe, Hag. 1. 6. 9. 10. 11. & c. 16. 17. Now upon their turning to God, he would turn away thoſe puniſhments, and turn unto them in much favour, and manifold bleſſings upon them.

v. 4. Be ye not as your fathers] They boaſted much of their fathers: And they would do as their forefathers had done, Jer. 44. 17. Indeed Cuſtom of ſin by continuance derived from our forefathers, and their example; makes it become almoſt a law unto us. But this is no good ſhield or ſhelter for us. Pſa. 95. 8. 9. 2 Chron. 30. 7. 8. Nay rather it kindles Gods anger the more. They are much reproved for it here.

unto whom the former Prophets have cried] Here was Gods love and care in ſending them: and the Prophets faithfulneſs in diſcharging their duties. 2 Chr. 36. 15. Jer. 7. 25. & 25. 3. & c. 32. verſe 33. & 35. 15.

turn ye now from your evil wayes] Iſai. 31. 6. Jer. 3. 12. and 18. 11. Ezek. 18. 30. Hoſ. 14. 1.

but they did not hear] So greatly were the Prophets, and Gods word in their mouth, contemned. Such was their ingratitude in not anſwering Gods love, and care of them. Though they could not deny, but were convinced of the evilneſſe of their wayes, yet they ſhut the gate of Gods grace, and turned their back from him. Jer. 2. 27. & 32. verſe 33.

v. 5. Your fathers where are they] Some underſtand theſe words, as a reproach againſt their fathers, & againſt the falſe prophets in the next words. Others, as Gods inſultation over the Jews, in theſe words; and their anſwer in the next words, that the true prophets were dead, aſwel as their fathers; And Gods reply in the ſixth verſe. But the playneſt meaning, is to take all in this verſe by way of conceſſion, both your fathers, and alſo the true prophets, are dead and gone; but mark what follows.

v. 6. But my words] Though they are dead, yet they took not away with them the memory of my words, and doings. The remembrance of them ſhould not fall out of your minds.

did they not take hold of your fathers?] Were my words dead? was I vain in my threatnings? did I not put in execution what I ſpake by my prophets? felt not your fathers the effect of my words? why then do not ye take warning by them? we muſt not obliterate the memory of Gods judgments: but make our uſe of them, as 2 peter 1 15. & 2. 6. as Heb. 11. 4. Such monuments of Gods exemplary judgements ſpeak out for our amendment.

take hold] Or overtake. That is, overtake and catch them: as hunts-men the prey; or one enemy another in flight, though they ſought means to make their eſcape. The accompliſhment then of their propheſies after their death hath ſhewen ſufficiently that their words dyed not with them: and your fathers in their calamities acknowledged as much, and began to turn to God: and it is fitting for you to follow them therein, and to accompliſh it.

They returned] It may be, repented, or were better adviſed, and came to the right knowledge of their eſtate, as Mal. 3. 18, at leaſt wiſe were brought to that confeſſion following.

like as &c.] Lam. 1, 18. and 2. 17. Or, at the worſt, this confeſſion God extorted and wreſted from them, forced them to acknowledge thus much; God, not fate or fortune to be the Author of their puniſhments; and ſecondary means to be but his inſtruments, God by them doing the thouhts of his own counſel and will; and that they did deſervedly endure them, and were broken by them. And might not all this be ſufficient inſtruction to their poſterity, good leſſons for their children?

v. 7. the twenty fourth day of the eleventh moneth] In the third moneth after the former date, verſe 1. And this moneth containeth part of January and part of February. And this date here continues and contains all that follows to the ſeventh Chapter; all being but ſeveral parts, one after another, of a various viſion continued. And was that day two moneths after Haggai ended, Haggai 2. 20.

v. 8. I ſaw] A viſion here goes with the propheſie; as an explication of it, and a ſeal of the certainty and truth of it. The particulars follow after.

by night] The uſual time for viſions. Yet ſome apply this to imply the obſcuritie of the viſion: as alſo the myrtle trees, a black or dark wood, and a ſhady tree; and likewiſe the bottom, or profound and deep place. But we muſt not too particularly allegoriſe or deſcant upon each ſyllable in this viſion: and then the general meaning will be plain enough. The place of this viſion where it was, is not ſet down: yet it appears that Zechariah was now in Ieruſalem; Chap. 6. 10, 11. Ezra 5. 1. and 6. 14. though likely this viſion might ſeem to him to be in Babylon.

a man riding] The Son of God appearing in humane ſhape, as Chap. 3. 2. Captain of the Lords hoſt, Ioſh. 5. 14. in likeneſſe of an horſeman, ready appointed to make out for his; who as Archangel, Iude 9. and captain of their hoſt or chief, ſendeth his angels, and they give him an account, verſe 11. He is called an Angel, verſ. 9. 11. 13. 14. 19. and the Lord, verſe 20. And he ſtands hard by the prophet, verſe 10.

upon a red horſe] Why red? in the ſame ſence that this colour is given to his garments, Iſaiah 63. 1, 2, 3. &c. and to the Angels horſe, Revel. 6. 4. Some interpret it to be of a fiery colour to ſignifie Gods fiery anger againſt the enemies of his people; the execution of which he came to tell the Prophet of.

among the Myrtle trees] Which repreſents the Church, compoſed of low and weak and plants, but holy and precious ones, as the Myrtle tree is, Rev. 1. 13. See Neh. 8. 15. Iſaiah 41. 19. and 55. 13.

in the bottom] By this property of the Myrtle tree that delighteth in valleyes, and ſea-ſhores, and rivers ſides, is ſignified the lowly and abject condition of the Church in this world; and particularly the ſubjection it was then in, under the Perſian Empire.

behinde him] That is, behinde the man riding on the red horſe, as attendants, captains, and ſcouts.

red horſes] With horſemen upon them which were created Angels, Miniſters, and warriers under their head. See Pſalm 68. 17. and 34. 7. Iob 1. 6. and 2. 1. Now by theſe colours, it ſeems, may be underſtood the Angels ſeveral ſervices; the red ones for puniſhment, the white ones for grace, and the ſpeckled ones for chaſtiſement in viſitation.

ſpeckled] Or bay. Some by theſe underſtand the various eſtate of the people of the Iews, mixed of gladneſſe and ſadneſſe, as it then ſtood.

v. 9. The Angel] The ſame as was among the Myrtle trees; namely, the Son of God, who appeared in this viſion in both theſe qualities, of head of the Church on horſeback, and of her Prophet in ſhape of an Angel, verſe 13. 14. 19.

v. 10. Theſe are they] Angels whom God pleaſeth to uſe as his Miniſters.

whom the Lord hath ſent] God the Father hath ſent them by me, the word of God, and revealer of his will to all his creatures, and the Mediator of his Church. The Lord ſits not idle in the heavens; but ſends, and ſees, and orders the affairs of mankinde; uſeth theſe as his meſſengers, poſts, curſitors, ſcouts.

to walk to and fro] Diligent in their employment, Heb. 1. 14. and ſo is Satan in his ſinful way; Iob 1. 7. and 2. 2. 1 Pet. 5. 8.

through the earth] The whole earth, to ſearch and ſee the ſtate of all Heathen nations, as well as of the Church; and to make relation to God of it. Not yet that God omniſcient is ignorant of any thing, Heb. 4. 13. or needeth the miniſtery of Angels, as kings on earth do need the ſervice of their officers, and attendants; But that he pleaſeth to uſe them as witneſſes and Miniſters of his will; And here taking upon him the perſon of man, the more familiarly thereby to impart his minde unto us; and to aſſure us of his care of humane affairs; and to ſhadow out thereby in ſome ſort the greatneſſe of his Majeſtie, by the example of earthly kings, whoſe glory is in the multitude and magnificence of their attendants.

v. 11. And they anſwered] So ready are the Angels unaſkt to anſwer the minde of Chriſt, and to give account of their ſervice and employment.

we have walked] An example of obedience, Math. 6. 10.

all the earth ſitteth ſtill] All other nations, the Eaſtern people, and all other countreyes about Iudea, are in peace and proſperitie: onely thy people cannot recover themſelves of their late calamities.

is at reſt] Or is inhabited.

v. 12. The Angel of the Lord] Namely, the Son of God, who is Interceſſor to the Father for the ſafety of the Church. This ſhews the tendency of the viſion, whence is eaſie to gather the whole ſum of it.

How long] A complaint in prayer. As is uſual in prayers. So Pſalm 6. 3. and 13. 1. 2. and 74. 10. and 79. 5. and 90. 13. The Saints on earth out of the infirmity of the fleſh oft complain of Gods cunctation and delay in ſending ſuccour; their preproperous zeal ſometimes pours out their cares, and exonerates their griefs and ſorrows into the boſom of God; yet with ſubmiſſion to the will of God. The wicked do it with murmuring and repining. The Angel of the Covenant here doth it in moſt holy manner. As likewiſe Math. 26. 39. 42. 44. Heb. 5. 7. He doubts not here, but urgeth the accompliſhment of the promiſe.

Mercy] This is the true plea of prayer: And the thing that muſt overſway the Churches ſins.

theſe ſeventy years] Ier. 25. 12. and 29. 10. Dan. 9. 2. of the captivity, as Zach. 7. 5. according to the foreſaid Prophecie of Jeremie: the ruines of which laſted yet, though the people were ſet at liberty long before. They which make the ſeventy years to be but now ended, at this very time, do thereby make the complaint and grievance to be unjuſt. Some indeed obſerve two ſeventies; reckoning one from the firſt of Nebuchadnezzar, or fourth of Jehoiakim, to the firſt of Cyrus, or Darius the Mede, upon the taking of Babylon. The other from the deſtruction of the citie and Temple of Jeruſalem in the eleventh of Zedekiah, to this ſecond year of Darius Hyſtaſpis. But the former in all probability and reaſon is here related unto, as being the principal. Here we ſee the Angel alledgeth Gods promiſe, as the ground of his prayer. And ſo the godly uſe in prayer to alledge unto God the Promiſes he hath made them. They preſcribe not any thing to God, or limit the Holy one of Iſrael; but produce his word as their warrant, and truſt to his truth in his promiſes. And indeed this is the baſis of our faith and hope in prayer. But childiſhly hence do the Papiſts gather, that we may, and muſt pray to Angels. There is indeed an holy kinde of Aſſociation between Angels and us, in our head Chriſt, Iohn 1. 51. They are miniſtring ſpirits for us, and our Patrons in a kinde, if we will ſo call them; and by their miniſtery to God, ſeek to comfort us the more, in aſſurance of his care over us. The ſervant of Elizæus was much animated when he ſaw the mountain full of horſes and charets of fire round about his Maſter, 2 Kings 6. 17. But this is no warrant for us to pray to them. And yet more childiſhly do they make a leap from Angels, to Saints departed for our praying to them. God alone muſt be prayed unto; it is his proper ſervice. And ſo here the Angel of the Covenant, our Mediator prayes to him.

v. 13. The Angel that talked with me] This is the man that riding upon the red horſe ſtood among the Myrtle trees, verſ. 8, 9. The Angels, curſitors, or ſcouts, make their report to him, verſ. 11. He prayes and complains to the Lord, verſ. 12. And the Lord here verſe 13. anſwers him: whereupon he gives a charge and command to the Prophet to proclaim God mercifull promiſes to Jeruſalem, and Zion, and the cities of Judah, verſ. 14, 15, 16, 17. including his ſore diſpleaſure againſt their enemies.

with good words] With ſuch promiſes as tended to the relief of the preſent miſeries they were in. This ſeems to allude to that, Eſay 40. 1, 2. Theſe words of comfortable promiſes, of his propenſity and kindneſſe towards them, muſt ſuffice to ſupport their patience and hope; and animate them to go on in the Building. It ſeems the Prophets former objurgation, verſ. 2. 7. took ſome good effect: and thereupon this conſolation followes. After their long time of ſadneſſe for their deſperate evils, now the fit time of gladneſſe and comfort was come, Pſalm 102. 13.

v. 14. Cry thou] With courage, alacrity, and boldneſſe; with a loud voice. See Eſay 30. 7. and 58. 1: Math. 3. 3. Luke 8. 8.

I am jealous] The ſum of thoſe good and comfortable words, verſe 13. which were given to the Angel for the uſe and behalf of the people. God ſpeaks of himſelf, as uſually in Scripture, in the perſon of a man, of a dear loving huſband, Chap. 8. 2. Ioel 2. 18. See Exod. 34. 14. Eſay 9. 7. Though for a time God defer his help and comfort from his Church, yet this declareth that he loveth them ſtill moſt dearly, as a moſt mercifull father his children, or an huſband his wife; and when it is expedient for them, his help is ever ready. And this ſhould ſtop our over haſty wiſhes; and be our ſtay and ſupport in the mean time.

v. 15. Very ſore diſpleaſed] He meets with an objection, and anſwers that doubt and complaint, why the Nations of the earth were ſo quiet and at reſt, and Gods people only in affliction: He ſhews their reſt, and eaſe, and proſperity, was but a curſed one; as all ſuch is which flows not from the love and favour of God: we muſt wait a while, and look to the end of it. Pſal. 37. 1. &c. And we ſhall ſee enough of Gods ſore diſpleaſure in it. *S*ee Mal. 1. 4. Nahum 1. verſe 2. They ſhall in the end pay deerly for their eaſe, and jollity. Ezech. 25.

but a little diſpleaſed] I was willing to puniſh my people by their means, and abſolutely reſolved ſo to do; Jer. 14. 11. and 15. 1. Ezech. 14. 14. But yet with a moderation; a little time; befitting the end, which was to correct them; and according to my mercy toward them; remembring my Covenant toward the remnant, though the body of the forlorn and deſperate ſinners were deſtroyed.

and they helped] The inſtruments which I have made uſe of therein, have added their rage, and the exceſſes of their cruelty thereunto; not containing themſelves within the limits of my revealed will, though they could not go beyond my ſecret permiſſion. See Iſa. 47. 6. Pſal. 69. 2*6*. God had his bridle in their jaws. And he ſpeaks not ſo much of what they did, as with what cruell minde, and to what deſtructive end they did it.

v. 16. I am returned] I went away and hid me, from it; in my anger. Hoſ. 5. 15. But now I make an end of my chaſtiſements, and am come again with many comforts, and tender mercies to relieve it.

with mercies] Gods mercies are the fountain and foundation of all our hopes; the remedy of our miſeries, moſt neceſſary to be tendered to, and pondered by, the faithfull, to cheer up their ſouls, and ſupport them in the midſt of their infirmities and calamities.

My houſe ſhall be built in it] Now the acts of comfort do come in, and flow from his mercies. For indeed his mercies, and reconciliation are the onely cauſe of building his houſe, and preſerving his Church in the world; for their ſins deſerve it ſhould be rooted out yet out of Gods mercies it ſhall be built; notwithſtanding all the oppoſition of all the enemies. See Ezra. 4. 5. and 6. Chapters.

a line ſhall be] That is, her buildings ſhall be re-edified, and made up again. Hag. 1. 13. Neh. 3. 4. and 6. Chapters.

v. 17. Cry yet ſaying,] verſe 14. now the ſecond time.

my Cities] He extends the promiſe to other cities of Judea beſides Jeruſalem, not this only of Jeruſalem; but others alſo round about, of inferiour note. Neh. 3. through proſperity] Heb. good. that is plentiful increaſe of men, cattell, and all manner of fruits of the earth, as Chapter 2. 4.

ſhall yet be ſpread abroad] Enlarged, multiplied; yea, and loaden, preſſed, burdened with plenty and proſperity. Notwithwithſtanding the mean and poor eſtate which the whole countrey is now in, it ſhall be repleniſhed with ſuch abundance, that your places and preſſes ſhall be full and run over, as veſſels and fountains that have more then they can hold, as Prov. 5. 1*6*. *S*ee Eſay 49. 18. &c. and chap. 54. 1. 2. 3.

Yet] This particle is uſed four times in this verſe. To note the ſtability of the promiſe, and aſſurance of performance. Notwithſtanding all, and all Manner of lets and hinderances, interruptions, and diſcouragements, paſt, and preſent; yet God. will carry on, and now accompliſh his work.

comfort Zion] Shall confirm and renew the right and priviledge which he had granted her, of being the place of his reſidence. See Iſaiah 14. 1. Zachariah 2. 12. Eſay 49. 13. & 40. 1.

chooſe Jeruſalem] Speaks not here of eternal Election. Rom. 11. 29. But of their temporall eſtate, and being in the world; chiefly of their condition in outward reſpects, differing ſo much from what formerly it was: not yet excluding his inward and Spirituall bleſſings. Thus God rejects; and chooſeth again; Jere. 3. 8. & 3. 1. 37. Lam. 3. 31. When we turn our ſelves from God; and he turns his face from us, we can think no other but that we are caſt off; Jer. 33. 24. Hoſ. 9. 17. Upon their converſion, God is ſaid to chooſe them again, and return with his Bleſſings to them.

v. 18. Then I lift mine eyes] Another viſion; or part of the former; cleer of it ſelf.

four horns] Signifying the Churches enemies; which ſhe hath, and ſhall ever have in the world. We muſt not think it a ſtrange thing to ſee it ſo now. They as horns ſhall puſh at her, and bruiſe her. See Pſal. 22. 21. Jere. 48. 25. 1 King. 22. 11. Theſe four reſpect not the four Monarchies; But their preſent enemies, & neighbouring nations compaſſing them about on the four corners of the world, viz. The Syrians, Aſſyrians, Babylonians & Perſians, from the North; the Ammonites, and Moabites from the eaſt; the Edomites, & Egyptians from the ſouth; and the Philiſtines from the weſt. All which appears in Jeremy and Ezechiel. Some conceive theſe horns to be Iron horns; ſuch ſay they, as warriers did wear upon their helmets, ſee 2 Chro. 18. 10. However, fit workmen are brought in to break them.

v. 19. What be theſe] What do theſe ſignifie? what is meant by them? the Prophet is deſireous to learn: And reapes the fruit of his deſire, a ready information.

v. 20. And the Lord ſhewed me] The Angel that talked ſtill with the Prophet is here called the Lord Jehovah. Chriſt our Mediatour is God, the Son of God. He here executes his office of Mediation: neither ever was, or can be the Church without him. Through him the Head, are the Godly all joyned to God, and reconciled to him; neither can they be any other wayes.

four Carpenters] Theſe Carpenters or Smithes, as 1 Sam. 13. 19. Are a figure of the inſtruments, which ruined thoſe enemies, that perſecuted the Church; and declare that no enemies horn is ſo ſtrong, but God hath an hammer to break it in pieces. Gods remedy is ready at hand: and as many Remedies as there are maladies. He can make her enemies ruine one another, to work her deliverance. Let this conſolation adde patience to the Church; as knowing that the gates of hell ſhall never prevail againſt her. But though ſhe be a little flock, yet ſhe ſhall be preſerved amidſt many heards of roaring Lyons, and ravening wolves.

v. 21. So that no man] So that they have eaſily brought it to paſs to ſcatter Judah, ſeeing none had power to reſiſt them.

to fray them] See that in Judges 7. 19—22. And that 2 Kin. 7. 6. 7. A Panick fear. See likewiſe that, 2 Sam. 5. 24. And that 2 Kings 19. 7. 9.

to caſt out] So to fray them, as to caſt them out, and eject them; not only out of the land of Judah, and their tyrannical poſſeſſion, and oppreſſion of it; but alſo out of their own lands, and dominions.

CHAP. II.

Verſe 1. I Lift up mine eyes again] In a viſion. And this much makes to the ſame purpoſe as the former did, and ſerves to confirm it. Looking upon the preſent ſtate and face of things, as they now ſtood, the reſtauration of Jeruſalem, according to the many glorious promiſes made thereof, was a thing very hard to be believed. This other viſion is therefore afforded, to ſtrengthen it. And we are admoniſhed to lift up our eyes in viſion Spiritually to view, and conſider of it.

a man] A created Angel, in the ſhape, not ſubſtance of a man. Thus God deals, the more familiarly to converſe and communicate his minde to man. *S*ome underſtand this of the Son of God in humane ſhape.

with a meaſuring line] See Ezech. 40. 3. and 47. 3.

v. 2. Whither goeſt thou?] Attention, and diligent inquiſition is to be learned by the example of the Prophet. So Act. 8 34. and 1*6*. 30.

to meaſure Jeruſalem] Whoſe building was promiſed, chap. 1. 1*6*. And this is the main end of this viſion; now that the four horns by the four carpenters were ſcattered; and the hinderances of building it, removed.

to ſee] That the builders, whom God the maſter builder will uſe in it, may ſee the due meaſures of it.

v. 3. The angel that talked with me went forth] Chap. 1. 9. 14. 1*9*. It ſeems towards Zechariah who ſtood ſomewhat a far off: verſe 4. Chriſt drew neerer, the better to ſpeak unto me; happily if the other Angel had not profered his ſervice to Chriſt.

and another Angel] A created *A*ngel. Their prompt and profered obedience. See on chap. 1. 11.

v. 4. Run,] So Chriſt ſaith to the created *A*ngel: He that was the Son of God, commanded the other, who was but a creature, to expound the viſion of the line to the Prophet.

young man] Zechariah. He ſeems then to be born in Babylon; and not to live there till his old age, as ſome have imagined: but that he came thence a young man, being ſuch now in Ieruſalem or Iudah, in the ſecond year of Darius, c. 1. 7. Or, this may happily relate to his mean condition in compariſon of the Angels among whom now he did converſe.

ſaying] Here is Gods care of his Church in uſing and imploying his Angels thus in the Miniſtery and ſervice of it. *A*nd Gods readineſs to grant the requeſts of his people, and to inſtruct them when they deſire to learn.

Ieruſalem ſhall be inhabited as towns without walls] Ieruſalem had been a famous City, made up of three townes, famouzed by heathen writers among the Chiefeſt Cities, of the Eaſt. See Lam. 1. 1. and 2. 15. & 4. 12. Now it lay yet in ruins. *A*nd after this upon the rebuilding of the wals by Nehemiah, much adoe there was to get it inhabited. Neh. 7. 4. & 11. 1,2. but a few returned from the Babyloniſh Captivity; they ſaw themſelves far from what the glorious promiſes of the Prophets foretold: Hereupon they might ſit down in ſadneſſe, if not ſink in deſpair. God here by his Angel and Prophet meets with this ſore tentation, renewes the glorious promiſe fully, tels them no wals ſhall be able to contain ſo great multitudes; the Angel may leave off his meaſuring, and meaſuring-line. Iſa 49. 19, 20, 21, 22. And they ſhould not meaſure things by what they ſaw, but what they were yet to hpe for; not tye up thoſe promiſes to ſo ſhort time, but yet wait a while: The number of thoſe that ſhall come thither ſhall be ſo great, that it will be impoſſible to compaſſe the City with wals large enough. Figurative terms, to ſignifie chiefly the infinite number of Beleevers which ſhall be called into the Church, by the preaching of the Goſpel, chap. 1. 17. And thus this viſion ſetteth forth the great and mervailous enlargement of the Church under the Meſſias. ſee Iſa. 54. 2, 3. & 60. 4, 11. & 49. 20, 21. There is then one meaſure of Jeruſalem before God, though another now in the eyes of men.

v. 5. A wall of fire]Shee ſhall be ſafe and ſecure, though without ſtone wals and bulwarks, Towers and fortifications, ditches and trenches: God will be a wall of fire; that is, an impregnable wall and defence, which none can paſſe through, Iſa. 26. 1. & 60. 18. to ſecure her, and confound her enemies.

The glory in the midſt of her] My preſence in Spirit, grace and power, ſhall make it glorious; as the reſidence of a King is glory to the royall City, or as formerly in the deſert, the glory of God ſhewed it ſelf in the ſigns of the pillar, and of the cloud, Iſa 60. 19. Though now never ſo few, never ſo poor and inglorious, yet then in me alone ſhall her glory be.

ho, ho] Moſt of the Jewes returned not out of the Babyloniſh captivity, but ſtayed behinde, preferring their eaſe, their planting and commodities there, before the returning into a waſte, deſolate Country, attended with many troubles and dangers; forgetting thus the land of promiſe, and making themſelves little better then the Heathens: ſuch was their contempt of God and his worſhip, and their ingratitude for their freedome and deliverance. Here therefore they are reproached for ſo doing, and earneſtly called upon to return from thence: and by this figure all the Elect are exhorted to leave the world, and the corruptions thereof, to come into Chriſts Church.

and flee from the land] Iſa. 48. 20. & 52. 11. Jer. 50. 8. & 51. 6, 45. Revel. 18. 4. and from the evils preſent and to come, that ſhall betide them that abide there.

for I have ſpread you] Babylon cannot be your Country, nor a bleſſed and holy abode for you; ſeeing I ſent you thither to exile and puniſhment, where you were cooped up, as Birds in a cage, or perſons in a priſon; wherefore when I ſet you at liberty, freely to fly away, as a bird in the open ayre, make uſe of my benefits; and doubt not, but as my juſtice puniſhed you, ſo my mercy can repair you; he that gave the wound, can heal it, and can bring you again; you may truſt his power and goodneſſe, if you let not ſlip this acceptable time, and ſhut the gate of Grace againſt you.

v. 7. Deliver thy ſelf, O Zion] Come forth ſpeedily, ſee Jer. 51. 6, 45. Acts 2. 40. elſe the fault ſhall be wholly in thee, having thoſe means afforded thee: Remember Zion, Pſal. 137. 1, 3, 4, 5, 6. It is Gods reſt and dwelling place, Pſal. 132. 14. 1 Kings 6. 13. and why ſhould the living ſtones of Gods ſpirituall Zion remain ſtill in Babylon, as in another Ægyt? Gods grace when he reacheth out his hand to help us, is not to be rejected.

v. 8. For thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts] Theſe and the like words are very often repeated in this viſion, for the more aſſurance and confirmation of the ſeverall things contained in it.

after the glory] Conciſe words and generall, wrapt up in ſome obſcurity. Some thus; After the Jewes glory, or glorying over the Gentiles ſhall ceaſe, then, &c. Some rather thus; After the glory of God now already begun to be ſhewed, in the bringing back the people from the captivity, God will not give over, nor make an end, till he perfect his work, build the Temple, and take ſuch order with the heathen Nations, their enemies, that they ſhall not onely not hinder and obſtruct the building, but become a ſpoil and prey to their ſervants the Jewes: and thus he argues from the beginning, to the proceedings and perfection; as if he ſhould ſay, You ſee now the beginning of the glory of Gods gracious dealing with you, he will goe on, Pſal. 138. 8. he will reſtrain the Nations from hindering of you, yea, they ſhall become a prey unto you; yet this Glory which doth but glimmer now, ſhall not receive its full luſtre till the coming of Chriſt; then ſhall that mentioned in the fift verſe, moſt gloriouſly ſhine and appear.

hath he ſent me] Theſe are the words of Chriſt delivered to Zechary, by that created Angel that went out to meet Chriſt, the Angel of the Covenant, with this charge and meſſage from Chriſt, put in his mouth, verſe 3. 4. They are the words of the Son of God ſpeaking of his Father. God the Father ſends his Son againſt theſe Nations.

Toucheth the apple of his eye] Of his own eye, hurts himſelf, puts out his own eyes, doth thruſt his own ſword through his own heart; or rather toucheth the apple of Gods eye, as the meaning is, Deut. 32. 10. Pſal. 17. 8. The eye is the tendereſt part; we cannot endure to have it touched. So ye are ſo dear to God, that he can no more ſuffer your enemies to hurt you, then a man can abide to have his eye-ball touched.

v. 9. I will ſhake mine hand] Wherein there is a rod of Iron to rule, and cruſh the heathen, your enemies. Pſal. 2. 9. And this notes the facility of the work in Gods hand, he hath long hands; as the phraſe is of Kings; And the ſhaking of his hand ſhall ſerve the turn. As Iſaiah 8. 17. His hiſſe is ſufficient.

a ſpoil to their ſervants] They ſhall be your ſervants, as you have been theirs: a figure of the Churches victory over the world, which before had oppreſſed her, and kept her in bondage; for this cannot ſo well be applyed to all that time between their return out of Babylon, and the coming of Chriſt, as to the time of the Goſpel and Chriſt, wherein the heathen Nations ſubmitted their necks to the yoak of Chriſt, and his ſpirituall Kingdom.

and ye ſhall know] Experimentally; and this experimentall, practicall knowledge is a thing diſtinguiſhed in Scripture from a bare, literall, noeticall, ſpeculative knowledge, ſwimming in the brain onely, and not ſinking into the heart; ſee Pſal. 9. 10. Heb. 10. 34. Joſh. 23. 14.

hath ſent me] To declare, and perform theſe promiſes, as Mediatour, and protector of the Church. The Son of God is ſent by the Father to the good of the Church. See verſ. 11.

v. 10. Sing] He brings them here, as it were, into preſent poſſeſſion and fruition of the promiſe; ſets and placeth it before their eyes; ſo to faſten the truth of it in their hearts: And bids them therefore ſing and rejoyce, as if it were already done; for he will not begin that which he doth not reſolve to carry on to perfection. Let them then for the preſent return from Babylon, and go on with the building of the Temple; and ſing in the aſſurance of theſe promiſes. See Iſaiah 12. 6. and 54. 1. and 66. 10.

I come] Here Chriſt ſpeaks; not God the Father, nor Angels, nor the Prophet. Here he is called Jehovah, the true and onely God; yet is ſent by God, as Mediatour; and ſo inferiour to God, in the Perſon of the Mediatour. He was now come already. But here is noted a Progreſſe, and further procedure in his grace, far beyond the preſent.

And I will dwell] Typically in the temple, and on the mercy-ſeat. But really and ſubſtantially when Chriſt came in the fleſh who is Immanuel, God with us; in whom, as in a Temple, the fulneſſe of the God-head did dwell bodily; Col. 2. .9 And he by his ſpirit with his Church, to the end of the world, Matth. 28. 20. See Levit. 26. 12. Ezek. 37. 27. 2 Cor. 6. 16. 18.

v. 11. And many Nations] The voluntary ſubmiſſion of the Gentiles, joyning themſelves to the Church of God. Thus Ratifying what many other Prophets had formerly foretold in their times.

In that day] Namely in the Churches reeſtabliſhment by the Meſſias, figured by the deliverance out of Babylon.

my people] As well as the naturall Jew, according to the Law, Exod. 12. 49. ſhall make up one body of my Church and People.

dwell] See on verſe 10.

Know] See on verſe 9.

That the Lord of Hoaſts] Whoſe power, and work no creature can obſtruct or hinder.

unto thee] As formerly to the Nations and againſt them; verſe 8. 9. ſo now to thee. His Embaſſie is directed to, and for his Church; to be Head, and Patron, of his own peculiar People.

v. 12. Inherit Judah his Portion] Poſſeſſe and enjoy them: The Jews were his ancient inheritance, by his free and gracious Covenant with them; Deut. 9. 29. 1 Kings 8. 51. 53. Pſal. 74. 2. Jer. 10. 16. Herein bleſſed were they, Pſal. 33. 12. And God will not forget them, Pſal. 74. 2. and 94. 14. They ſeemed now to be caſt off, lately expelled their inheritance, and land of promiſe, and yet now without Kingdom, Temple, and the worſhip of God, or ſcarce having a ſhadow of theſe. The Lord now takes off theſe diſcouragements, removes theſe obſtacles, by his gracious promiſes here; He ſhall inherit Judah now; and which makes this promiſe full, he ſhall inherit all his elect which are the true ſpirituall Judah, and hold them for his proper and peculiar people; and as ſuch which he ſhall love, govern, and preſerve. See Exod. 34. 9.

In the holy Land] In Canaan now again; though for a time they were exiled out of it. And compleatly, in the Church of Chriſt, under the Goſpel.

and ſhall chooſe Jeruſalem again] This choiſe made of old. 1 Kings 8. 44. 48. and 11. 13. 2. Kings 23. 27. after their rejection for a while, ſhall now be in a ſort renewed before the eyes of the world. The current of his grace towards her, which was formerly ſtopt by her ſinfull courſes, and interrupted, ſhall now flow freely again. See chap. 1. 17. Iſa. 14. 1.

v. 13. Be ſilent] Thus he ſeals up the promiſes of this viſion, ſtately extolling Gods Power, that his people ſhould not once doubt or fear their accompliſhments. As thus, Brag not, threaten not, thou adverſary; diſpute not, doubt not, O weak men, who may not compare their wiſedom, or oppoſe their ſtrength to Gods, who is able, and well ſkilled, to bring to paſſe all his promiſes, againſt all oppoſitions and obſtructions whatſoever. See Hab. 2. 20. Zeph. 1. 7. He inſults in ſome ſort over all the Churches enemies; Let them rage as they liſt, God will ſtop their mouths, and ſilence them.

For he is raiſed up] Awaked, as a man out of ſleep, Pſal. 78. 65. according to that exhortation, Iſaiah 51. 9. Raiſed up, to ſuccour his Church, make good his promiſes, and over-power any oppoſition whatſoever.

Holy habitation] Hebr. the habitation of his holineſſe; that is Heaven, as it is interpreted, Deut. 26. 15. from whence God would now ſend help for his people. Or rather, the Temple, which was likewiſe Gods habitation. 1 Sam. 2. 29. and though now it were contemptible, Pſal. 102. 14. not half built; yet was it holy. And thence God would ariſe, as out of a dream, and ſhew himſelf, for the defence of his Church: and more fully then, when he ſhall come, as it were, out of his cloſet, publikely to govern his Church by his Goſpel.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. Shewed me] In a viſion. The end whereof is to ſhew That in the reſtauration of the Temple, & of the ſervice of God, it was firſt of all neceſſary to have thoſe perſons which were to be imployed therein, reconciled to God, and clenſed from the pollution which they had gotten in Babylon. And that likewiſe the Church repreſented here by Joſhua a chief Officer of it, ſhould be readmitted into Gods favour to the end that the ſervice which ſhe ſhould yeeld to him, might be accepted, which is figured by a form of Joſhua, his being by the Lord abſolved, and afterwards ſanctified.

Joſhua the high Prieſt] Or Joſhuah; or Jeſhua. See Hag. 1. 1. 12. 14. and 2. 2. Ezra 2, 2. and 3. 2. 8. and 5. 2. This chapter deals with the high Prieſt; The nezt, with Zerubbabel, the Prince.

ſtanding] Like unto a man accuſed before a Judge; or, as ſome, miniſtring in his Office.

before the angel of the Lord] Before Jeſus Chriſt, whoſe Type Joſhua was, who is both Judge and Advocate, and defender of thoſe that beleeve in him, in this judgement, 1 John 2. 1.

and ſatan ſtanding at his right hand] That is, an adverſary: the adverſary, the malicious accuſer of the faithfull to God, againſt whom he complains, pretending to be zealous of having juſtice done, though he be onely moved through an envious and malignant rage, Revel. 12. 10. Pſal. 109. 6. Job 1. 6. & 2. 1, 4. which act agreeth with his name in Hebrew in this place.

to reſiſt him] Hebr. To be his adverſary; to fruſtrate his prayers and interceſſion, by interpoſing his moſt bitter accuſation againſt him and the Jewes: What this accuſation was, appears plainly by the third and fourth verſes; Satan ſtill is the chief adverſary of good and great men, of the Church, and all Gods people; ſo againſt Job, chap. 1. 9. & 2. ver. 3, 4. ſo againſt David, 2 Chron. 21. 1. he deals againſt chief men, as 1 Kings 22. 31. Luke 22. 31. ſee Epheſ. 6. 12. We muſt know Satan is the chief adverſary againſt whom Gods Church and children have to deal; it is he that uſeth the rage of the world, the madneſſe of the people, to ruinate the Church: and this he doeth in all ages.

v. 2. And the Lord ſaid unto Satan] Namely, the Son of God, who was before called Angel, before whom Joſhua ſtood, he is ready at hand for the defence of his people.

the Lord rebuke thee] Not altogether unlike is that phraſe Gen. 19. 24. the meaning is, My everlaſting Father rebuke and confound thee in this malicious oppoſition which thou makeſt againſt his ſervant, juſtifying and cleering him againſt thy accuſation; ſee Jude 9. the ſame words ſpoke upon another occaſion: This increpation is doubled, to ſhew the earneſtneſſe of affection to have it done, and to intimate the facility of the remedy which is in the Lord to doe it; his increpation is ſufficient to curb Satan, he unlooſeth him and bindes him at his pleaſure, Apoc. 20.

that hath choſen Jeruſalem] Hereby is intimated and ſhewn the chief foundation and ground of the Churches abſolution, here repreſented in Joſhuahs perſon; which is, that God from all eternity hath out of his meer grace, without their merit, choſen his Elect to ſalvation, Rom. 8. 33. All affiance of ſalvation flowes from Election. And the ſalvation of the Church was the thing intended by the former rebuke.

is not this a brand] A ſpeciall and choice piece; purpoſely ſaved and reſerved by God for his ſpeciall uſe and ſervice.

plucks out of the fire] Out of Ur of the Chaldees, out of the Babylonian fiery furnace; now God will not forſake his own work, but make the end as good as the beginning, and preſerve the high Prieſt, and the high Prieſthood, againſt all thy machinations, malicious oppoſitions and accuſations. Or more largely thus; This man, and this ſmall company which Joſhua repreſents, is a reſervation of my grace, which I have reſerved out of my people, whom I have cauſed to paſſe through the fire of my judgements, Amos 4. 11. ſee Rom. 11. 5. and therefore towards him and them my decree of Grace ſhall ſtand firm and invariable; why then goeſt thou about to reſiſt him, and Gods known Will concerning him and them?

v. 3. with filthy garments] Or, vile garments: an ordinary ſigne of ſin, as a white and cleer garment is a ſigne of Chriſts righteouſneſſe, put on by faith; and of the regeneration of the Spirit to newneſſe of life. See Ezek. 16. 8. 10. Revel. 3. 4 18. and 7. 14. yet this ſeems to have a further relation to the preſent ſtate and condition of the high Prieſt, his garments belonging to him as High Prieſt, and the high Prieſthood it ſelf, were but baſe and contemptible now, to what they were before the Babyloniſh captivity: And ſo all things elſe nothing anſwerable to their expectation raiſed up by the glorious promiſes of the Prophets formerly made. This Prophet is mainly ſent to lift up their dejected mindes, and to draw their eyes from the preſent face of things to expectation of better; from the day of ſmall things, to the dayes of great and glorious things; which were not yet ſo ſoon, but to come hereafter.

and ſtood before the angel] Chriſt did not abhor his preſence, nor reject his ſervice; ſo gracious is he to reſpect his Saints, notwithſtanding their many infirmities; and to accept their obedience, though mingled and ſtained with much corruption.

v. 4. unto thoſe that ſtood before him] Namely to the created Angels, his Miniſters, Heb. 1. 14. To ſhew that Chriſt who onely hath power to forgive ſins, and juſtifie the ungodly, he doth therein imploy the holy miniſtery for an inſtrument. See 2 Cor. 5. 18. Heb. 1. 14.

take away the filthy garments] In reſpect of the glorious garments and precious ſtones that the high prieſt did wear before the captivity. And by this contemptible ſtate the Prophet ſignifieth, that theſe ſmall beginnings ſhould be made excellent, when Chriſt ſhall make the full reſtitution of his Church.

Behold] See by this ſigne, as Jer. 1. 9.

I have cauſed thine iniquity] This hath relation to two ſpiritual effects: The one is, that by Chriſts ſatisfaction, ſin is taken away from before the eyes of God, that it is not imputed to condemnation; though the corruption be not altogether blotted out in man, during this life. See Pſal. 32. 1, 2. The other is, that Chriſt his merit and righteouſneſſe is applyed to the believer to life; and that by his Spirit he putteth on the new man in righteouſneſſe and holineſſe, Gal. 3. 27. Col. 3 10. In a larger ſenſe, This may have relation likewiſe to the iniquities of the Jews, the cauſe of their preſent low and dejected eſtate in ſhame and miſery; and yet that God in mercy will in his time relieve and redreſſe it.

v. 5. And I ſaid] Some underſtand this to be the ſpeech of the Prophet Zecharie: But it ſeems rather to continue the ſpeech of the Angel of the Lord, Ieſus Chriſt himſelf.

Let them ſet a fair Miter] An ornament for the head of the High Prieſt, Exod. 28. 4. Levit. 8. 9. and 16. 4. To ſhew that God beſides his grace which was common to all the members of his Church, did alſo adorn him with the gifts of his Spirit, befitting his Prieſtly charge, that the dignity of the High Prieſthood might be perfect; This was fulfilled in Chriſt, who was both Prieſt and King. In the general; God will have nothing wanting to the furniſhing and adorning of his Prieſts with gifts, and graces fitting both their perſons as private men, and their functions as publick officers.

Stood by] As it were to have this his ſentence put in execution preſently. It was aſſoon done, as ſaid. And hereby is ſignified Chriſts aſſiſtance to the work of the Miniſtery: As to that alſo ſeemeth to be referred his ſpeaking alone in this place; to ſhew that he alone doth all the work, and doth all things in all men: and that he can alone pronounce the ſentence, and comfort the ſoul by his Spirit.

v. 6. Proteſted] A court terme as in a conteſtation and plea of Law. To ſhew the matter here to be of more then ordinary weight and concernment. As Gen. 43. 3.

v. 7. If thou wilt] His duty hereupon required: with a Promiſe thereunto adjoyned. God tyes this duty to the Prieſts dignity. They are not advanced to live, and rule as they liſt: to aſſume to themſelves above what is right and Law: But they are tyed in obedience to God, and to his Laws, to live and rule under him, and according to it: Deut. 17. 11. to walk in the wayes of his Commandments according to the Morall Law.

Keep my charge] Or Ordinance. All things belonging to the Charge of Gods houſe, and office of the high Prieſt. In a word, The Prieſts dignity, and duty, is not to be ſeparated from Gods word, and worſhip. God doth not reſigne his Soveraignty to any mortall man: departs not with any thing of his right: but onely makes men his Miniſters, that he alone may rule and govern his Church, by their means and Miniſtry.

Then thou ſhalt alſo judge my houſe] And rule in my Temple, and regulate the inferiour prieſts, in their ſeverall charges and functions: and over-ſee them that they do their duties: Then I will keep thee in thy Prieſtly degree, and honour, Heb. 5. 4. Of which office the two chief parts were, the government in eccleſiaſticall buſineſſes concerning the worſhip of God, according as it is ſet down in the Law, Deut. 17. 12. 2. Chron, 19. 11. And the chief, and continuall miniſtry of holy things. Of his office in civill affairs. See Deut. 17.

Keep my courts] The courts of the prieſts, and people, being accounted part of the Temple; over all which the high Prieſt was the chief overſeer.

and I will give thee] Here is Joſhuahs gracious reward after his faithfull ſervice, 1 Sam. 2. 30.

places to walk] Heb. Walks: Happily alluding to the walks and galleries about the Temple.

Among theſe] Not onely among the faithfull ones in the holy aſſemblies on earth, where alſo the Angels are. 1 Cor. 11. 10. But alſo and chiefly among theſe verſe 4. 5. as it were pointing to them; that is, after all this I will gather thee up into my heavenly Glory with mine Angels, to be among the Seraphims, and glorious Angels; the likneſs of which thou beholdeſt here in this viſion. Matth. 22. 30. Luke 20. 36. Hebr. 12. 22 Implying, all things contrary to befall to the Prieſts that ſhould be falſe to their functions and offices.

v. 8. Hear now] Calls for attention, as to a thing very memorable. Now the Lord of hoaſts comes to ſhew, That all this done hitherto to Joſhua, was but Typicall, and a ſhadow of that main ſubſtantiall thing, which ſhould hereafter follow. And therefore ſtil theſe poor beginnings, ſhould not make them deſpair in the expectation of thoſe many glorious promiſes made by the Prophets, of the ſtate of the Church after the return; for they ſhould in their due time obtain their full accompliſhment. And therefore here he comes now from the ſhadow, to the ſubſtance; from the Type, to the Antitype; even to him, for whoſe ſake, and by whoſe means, Prieſthood, Temple, People, and all ſhould be reſtored and preſerved. Entring here into a Propheticall enarration touching the Meſſias.

Thou and thy fellows] Thy friends, the reſt of the prieſts, the whole Colledge of them; who though inferiour in office, and under his inſpection, yet were fellows in moſt ſervices, and in their degree Types of Chriſt too.

that ſit before thee] In aſſemblies and meetings, as Aſſeſſors before the Preſident. The high Prieſt, and the reſt of the prieſts were ſpecially concerned in this inſuing propheſie. Others were not ſo capable to hear it, or make uſe of it; they were ſo drowned in a carnall apprehenſion of the Promiſes.

for they are men wondred at] And here is a reaſon why they alone are ſpoken to. They are men, not ſeeking ſignes and wonders, as Matth. 12. 38. or foretelling ſignes and wonders, as Deut. 13 1. or as true Prophets did, indued with the gift; nor themſelves appointed by God for ſignes and wonders, as Eſay and his two ſons, Shearjaſhub, and Maherſhalal-haſh-baz were, Iſaiah 8. 3. But they are men wondred at, not in an honourable way, but in an opprobrious way; as Pſ. 71. 7. as the Papiſts wonder at us; & the wicked at the godly, 1 Pet. 4. 4. Iſ. 59. 15.

Behold] Another note of attention, proceeding from the wondrous propheſie.

I] I, the Lord of Hoaſts, God the Father.

will bring forth,] Now the prieſthood is mean, and deſpicable; and will be worſe afterwards, as appears in the dayes of the Maccabees, of Herod, and in Chriſts time. But I will mend all, fulfill my promiſes, and bring forth; ſuddenly and inexpectedly, for the manner of it.

My ſervant] Though a Son by nature, yet a ſervant, by office of Mediation for our ſake. So Iſaiah 42. 1. and 49. 3. and 53. 11. Matth. 12. 18. Phil. 2. 7. I will ſend my Son into the world, who ſhall take upon him the form of a ſervant, to accompliſh the work of Redemption.

The Branch] So called likewiſe. chap. 6. 12. Iſa. 4. 2. and 11. 1. Jer. 23. 5. All which places are underſtood of Chriſt. And ſo called; Becauſe out of the dead and withered ſtock of Davids houſe he ſprang forth on a ſudden, like a branch, or ciens out of a dry Tree; Though that family then was obſcure and all the glorious branches cut off, even to the ſtumps, as Dan. 4. 15. yet a remainder there was, and ſap enough therein, which in due time ſhould ſprout forth into this Glorious Branch, the laſt and greateſt Ornament of that Princely family. God in moſt unlikely times, and by moſt unlikely means, can bring his purpoſes to paſſe.

v. 9. For behold] Yet another note of attention in this ſo weighty a matter, for he inſiſts upon the ſame point, under another Metaphor.

The ſtone] The foundation and corner ſtone of the Church, and its building: that precious ſtone. See Iſa. 28. 16. Pſal. 118. 22. Dan. 2. 34, 35. Mat. 21. 42. Acts 4. 11 Rom. 9. 33. 1 Pet. 2. 4. 8. This may note the firmneſſe of Chriſt, and of the Church built on him. Matth. 16. 18.

that I have laid] Not to be laid by the induſtry of artificers: but by Gods handy-work. So Iſaiah 28. 16. Pſal. 118. 23. Daniel 2. 34. men at moſt are but his inſtruments.

before Joſhua] In the Church: whereof he now hath the charge. And this alludes to the Temple now in building, whoſe foundation was now laid before Joſhua and Zerubbabel.

Upon one ſtone ſhall be ſeven eyes] Some take it paſſively: that all mens eyes ſhall look towards Chriſt. Others rather that God ſhall caſt his moſt perfect care, and uſe his moſt abſolute providence on him, and over him, as chap. 4. 10. and put upon him the fulneſſe of all grace, the Spirit without meaſure, Iſa. 11. 2. and furniſh him with all abſolute ſufficiency of wiſedom and counſell, not onely to lay a foundation, but alſo to build up his Church, and to rule it in the beſt order. He ſhall be all eye himſelf; and an eye to enlighten and illuminate his Church, and people. The eyes of my Providence, 2 Chron. 16. 9. which is infinite and univerſall, here ſignified by the number of ſeven, chap. 4. 10. ſhall be alwayes fixed upon Chriſt, to maintain, favour, and cauſe him to proſper in his Kingdom, that by his moſt perfect knowledge and providence he may tranſlate and accompliſh his office and adminiſtration according to my will. See Iſaiah 42. 6. & 49. 8. and 51. 16.

behold] Yet for more attention to this myſtery.

I will engrave] Words of God the Father, who hath appointed his Son to be Mediatour, and hath conferred upon his humane nature, all the gifts of his Spirit, for to perform it. See Dan. 2. 34. 44. Hebr. 9. 11. John 1. 16. and 3. 34. Col. 1. 19. and 2. 9. Though it ſhall be a ſtone rejected by the builders. Acts 4. 11. yet God will work upon it all perfection of excellencies; as Pſal. 45. 7. An alluſion this is to the graved carved ſtones of the Temple; whoſe coſtly workmanſhip did in ſome ſort ſhadow out the excellencies of Chriſts endowments. But yet theſe do ſo far exceed the other, as God is a more cunning worker, then man. The very engraving of Chriſts wounds upon his body was an excellent workmanſhip of God. And all this, that he might communicate and impart all to the uſe and benefit of his Church.

remove the iniquity] Guilt, ſtain, and puniſhment. This is the fountain and foundation of all enſuing bleſſings. Till then no true bleſſing can come. And the removing of this, is the removing of all lets and obſtacles out of the way. Some thus; As in Joſhua, newly made fit to undertake the Prieſthood again, I have ſanctified all my Church. So by one onely oblation of my Son, who was eternally conſecrated High Prieſt, I will purge all the ſins of my Church. See Hebr. 9. 12. and 10. 12. 14.

of that Land] Of the Church typified by the Land of Canaan. To the inhabitants whereof pardon is now promiſed.

in one day] Suddenly; and by one all-ſufficient ſacrifice, once offered in oppoſition to the Legall ſacrifices every day repeated. See Heb. 7. 27. and 9. 26. 28. and 10. 10.

v. 10. In that day] In that ſeaſon of time, when that day ſhall come, and from that day.

ſhall ye call] This may intimate love and charity; in calling and converting others.

Under the vine] Theſe trees have broad leaves, and yeeld a cool ſhade, pleaſant in thoſe hot countryes, And therefore under them they had their arbours, wherein they made their banquetings, and invitations of their neighbours, in the times of publike peace, and ſecurity of the ſtate. 1 King. 4. 24, 25. The meaning here is; They ſhall be ſecure; there ſhall be no need of fenced places for refuge in danger; There ſhall be no enemy; none ſhall make them afraid. And this promiſe belonging to the whole kingdom of Chriſt; it may be extended to the Spirituall peace of Gods Church and children, which they enjoy with God, through the reconciliation made by Chriſt. See Hag. 2. 9. Micah. 4. 4. Iſa. 2. 4. Hoſ. 2. 18.

CHAP. IIII.

Verſe 1 AND the Angel] See on Chap. 1. 9.

came again] It ſeems from Joſhua chap. 3. to the Prophet. And here he multiplies viſion upon viſion, without intermiſſion. And this without the Prophets ſeeking: neither was he in caſe now to ſeek it, as the next words ſhew; but freely prevents him with his grace: and ſhews his care of his Church, though man no wiſe appear in it; and omits nothing available for the ſtrengthening of the faith of his people, againſt all their preſent doubts and difficulties; and to aſſure them of the preſent building of the Temple, and of the future glorious reſtauration of his Church.

and waked me] It may be that there was ſome little ſpace of time between theſe viſions; during which time the Prophet in his extaſie was as it were aſleep. Or he was drowzy, and dull through the infirmities of his fleſh; if not aſtoniſhed with admiration at the continuation and greatneſſe of the former viſions: He was without any action or motion of the ſpirit in him. And if the Prophet needed this rouzing up, how much more do we?

v. 2. What ſeeſt thou?] This preſent viſion then was ſhewed him before this queſtion was aſked him. But he had not ſo duely heeded it, if his weary and diſtracted thoughts had not been thus raiſed up to freſh and further attention. And thus the Angel leads him on by degrees, to learn of him that which he might afterwards faithfully deliver to the Prince and People.

a candleſtick] Now begins the viſion it ſelf. The Church in Scripture is compared to a candleſtick; as Apoc. 1. 20. By alluſion to the candleſtick in the Tabernacle, Exod. 25. And the ten in the Temple, 1 Kings 7. 49. 2 Chron. 4. 7. The Church is the light of the world.

all of gold] Such was that in the Tabernacle; and the ten in the Temple; all beaten work of pure and perfect gold. And ſuch alſo were all the utenſils, and inſtruments belonging to them. The ſilver candleſticks mentioned 1 Chron. 28. 15. were ſuch as were uſed by the Prieſts and Levites in the court, and carried up and down in their hands. This notes the preciousneſſe of the Church, and the purity of it in doctrine, worſhip and manners; as pure gold without mixture of baſer mettals: not that God regards gold; but that men thereby might be raiſed to an higher eſteem of ſpiritual myſteries therein repreſented.

with a bowl] Heb. With her bowl. This is the oil-veſſel, or cruet; but not a little one: a Chriſmaterie, which through the two golden pipes received into it ſelf the golden liquor, or oyl, from the two olive branches, verſe 12. Some ſoully miſtake this for an eighth lamp.

upon the top of it] Upon, or above the top, or ſhaft, or body of the candleſtick.

and his ſeven lamps thereon] Above the bowl, highmoſt of all: and this is repeated in the laſt words of the verſe.

and ſeven pipes to the ſeven lamps] Heb. ſeven and ſeven, or ſeven ſeveral pipes to the lamps, &c. Or each lamp had ſeven pipes ſay ſome; which you muſt imagine to be in the bottom of the bowl, to diſtribute the oyl to each lamp, to convey it to the match or wicks of the ſeveral lamps.

v. 3. And two olive-trees by it] Likely the trees by the candleſtick; and the two branches above the bowl. The berries whereof dropped down oyl into the bowl continually, to feed the lamps, and keep them burning, verſe 2. Vainly then are they imagined by ſome to be emboſſed, and wrought upon the bowl; and to be of gold it ſelf, onely faſhioned like to olive trees.

one upon the right &c.] The candleſtick and bowl in the midſt betwixt them.

v. 4. What are theſe?] The Prophet having related the viſion, in anſwer to the Angels demand; now aſks of the Angel the meaning of it: not onely what the two olive trees, but all the whole viſion meaneth. Though he looked, beheld, related it punctually, yet he could not tell the meaning of it. The difficulty ſhould not make us caſt it off, or deſpair; but whet our diligence to make us the more ſeriouſly and ſeduloully ſearch after it, and inquire.

v. 5. Knoweſt thou not what theſe be?] This is ſpoken, not ſo much to reprove, or reproach his ignorance; as to enflame the Prophets deſire to know the truth of it.

No,] A free and ingenuous confeſſion. Our pride commonly makes us aſhamed, not of our ignorance, but of confeſſing it: But ſurely if the Prophet were ignorant of the tendency of this viſion, how much more we? It is good for us to know and acknowledge our own ignorance.

My Lord] Thus he calls this Angel the Lord. See on Chap. 1. 9. And thus humbles himſelf to honour him.

v. 6. Then he anſwered] Such confeſſions of our own inſufficiencies, ſuch inquiſitions after knowledge, and the means of it; ſuch humble docibleneſſe and deſires, want not their fruit, and Gods bleſſings upon them. Here now he is taught; and thus brought to it by degrees; to heighten his eſteem of the viſion, and to make him the more attentive to it. And the ſame uſe muſt we make of it. If it had been over facil, it might have been the ſooner ſleighted.

This is the word of the Lord] The particulars of the viſion are not ſo much inſiſted upon, as the main ſcope of it. Neither are we to inſiſt too much upon each particular of the candleſtick, his bowl, his lamps, his pipes, &c. It ſufficeth in general to underſtand thereby the Church, and the various gifts and graces of Gods Spirit abundantly ſupplied unto it; that it ſhall ſhine as the light of the world; and the light of it ſhall never be extinguiſhed. But reſt we in the Angels own interpretation, which is made touching the main ſcope.

unto Zerubbabel] See on Hag. 1. 1. This viſion is eſpecially directed to Zerubbabel, the Captain of Gods people; and ſo a Type of Chriſt, their eternal king; to ſtrengthen him in his charge of politick head of the people; as the other viſion was for Joſhua, the Eccleſiaſtical head.

not by might] Or army; I have cauſed thee to ſee in this figure, that the ſubſiſtence of my Church, is not in the ſame kinde, as that of worldly Empires, in force of arms, and power; but in a lively internal action of my Spirit. Wherefore be not diſmayed in thy minde, O Zerubbabel; if worldly ſtrength do fail thee, my Spirit and power ſhall ſupply all; as well for the re-eſtabliſhing of the material Temple; as for the ſpiritual conduct and preſervation of the Church. See Hoſea 1. 7.

nor by power] By no humane force or policie, one or other.

but by my Spirit] My power, providence, and gracious favour.

ſaith the Lord of Hoſts] Who is therefore able of himſelf, without other helps, to do all things: which oppoſition between mans help and Gods, is not generally to be taken, as if mans were never ſubordinate; but with reference to the Jews opinion, who imagined in this preſent caſe, that when outward means lack, all muſt go to wrack: or that man can do ſomewhat without God; or at leaſt muſt do as much as he. Thus then have we ſhortly the ſumme and ſubſtance of this viſion. That as the making and maintaining of this candleſtick, and his lamps, was without the art and cunning of man, by means ſupernatural; ſo Gods Spirit without if need were, and above all humane helps, ſhould ſuffice for the re-edification and preſervation of the material Temple, and true Church. And therefore they, (and ſo we) without all anxiety, were ſo to fix their faith upon God alone, as to reſt and relye wholly upon the ſufficiency of his grace and help, though no outward hope appeared.

v. 7. Who art thou O great mountain] The Empires which oppreſſe the Church though they be great, as mountains, yet ſhall they be beaten down by the ſtone, Dan. 2. 34, 35, 44, 45, which is Chriſt figured by Zerubbabel. See on Chap. 14. 10. Or rather, to apply it to the preſent time, and ſtate of affairs; the preſent enemies ſhall not be able to hinder, as they have done, Ezra 4. the ſmall and little ſtrength of Zerubbabel, and the Jewes from building my Temple: But by the power of my Spirit they ſhall be levelled before Zerubbabel. The weak beginnings of the Jews, and the ſtrong oppoſitions of many and mighty enemies, made them fear their return had been in vain; and they deceived or deluded thereby; the event nothing anſwering their expectations and hopes. Thus Satan endeavoured to break off the building. But the Lord tells them, there ſhall be no obſtacle, how great ſoever, which he will not remove. And this is expreſſed by an interrogative Apoſtrophe to the enemie, and that full of ſcorn and inſultation againſt the enemie, and contempt of his mightineſſe; who in his own eyes and the Jews was a great mountain inacceſſible, unpaſſable, eaſily overlooking and overtopping the low and poor eſtate of the Jews. See it in the caſe of the walls of the citie, Nehem. 4. 1, 2, 3. But yet what are they, when they oppoſe God, and his ſervants, armed with his power?

a plain] As ſmooth without reſiſtance, and as eaſie to paſſe over, as a levelled plain, and even Champain. If the interrogation be put after Zerubbabel, as ſome do, yet the ſenſe is the ſame. And this is a great comfort to the Church in all ages.

and he ſhall bring forth] It ſhall be ſhown to the world at the appointed time, and exalted above all worldly greatneſſe, Dan. 2. 35. Or, more punctually; now, will they, nil they, maugre all their might and malice, Zerubbabel ſhall finiſh and perfect this preſent building of my Temple. Ezra 5. 5.

the head ſtone] The foundation ſtone had been layed long before, Ezra 3. 10, 11, 12. Some count upon 104. years ſince; ſome upon 46. But the moſt likely is about 14. from the firſt of Cyrus, or Darius Medus, to this ſecond of Darius Hyſtaſpis, The interruptions that interpoſed we finde, Ezra 4. 4. 24. yet now he ſhall lay, or cauſe to be laid in open view, the corner ſtone, or front ſtone, or top ſtone, which finiſheth the building. See Pſalm 118. 22. Epheſ. 2. 20. Haply here is an alluſion to that cuſtom; when at the foundation, and finiſhing of great publick buildings, the chief Magiſtrate is preſent at the laying of the firſt, and laſt ſtone: and it may be, doth it himſelf.

with ſhoutings] Acclamations, and joyfull outcries. Some extend the words to a more general meaning, thus; The Angels, the faithful and all creatures ſhall rejoyce at Chriſts kingdom, eſtabliſhed in the world; and ſhall deſire God the Father to heap all manner of bleſſings and happineſſe upon it. See Pſalm 116. 26. Or, they ſhall acknowledge and preach, that the Father hath laid up in him all the treaſures of his grace, and gifts of his Spirit. John 1. 16. yet this hath rather a more immediate reference to the joyful acclamations of the people at the finiſhing of the building of the material Temple by Zerubbabel.

Grace, grace unto it] Applauding it, as men do at Theaters, in harveſt, and other like publike occaſions; as they did Ezra 3.11 wiſhing and praying all happineſſe and proſperity, to abide with it; that this Temple and building may long ſtand and flouriſh; and that as his favour and grace, not their proper ſtrength, built and finiſhed it, ſo the ſame his grace may maintain and preſerve it. And thus the faithful ſhould pray with one voice, and heart, earneſtly and conſtantly, for the proſperity of Gods Church. Pſalm 122. 6. &c. and 51. 18. and 87. 7.

v. 8. the word of the Lord] Jehovah, the Angel that ſtill ſpake with him, the Angel of the Covenant. See on Chap. 1. 9.

v. 9. The hands of Zerubbabel] God uſed his hands in laying the foundation; This was a well known truth to all, Ezra 3. 8. 10. and 5. 16.

His hands ſhall alſo finiſh it] This ſhall be as certain alſo, as the other is certain. God will carry this building on, and will not forſake the work of his own hands. Pſal. 138. 8. Though ſome ſeemed to deſpair of it, yet Zerubbabel ſhould have and enjoy his hearts deſire, and finiſh it. Chap. 8. 6. Ezra 6. 14. 15.

and thou] The Prophet; or Zerubbabel.

ſhalt know] See on Chap. 2. 9. 11. Experience ſhould prove it, and make it good. And ſeeing that the Lord verſe 8. is he that ſaith, that the Lord had ſent him. Some hence would conclude that there are here two Perſons, the one the Son, who is ſent; and the other the Father that ſendeth him; both one, onely and everlaſting God, Iſaiah 48. 16. Zech. 2. 8. ſee the like ſpeech, Gen. 14. 24.

v. 10. For who hath deſpiſed the day of ſmall things] Who? not one, nor a few, nor unknown; but the body of the people, Hag. 2. verſe 3. They had a miſbelieving, miſgiving heart; fearing, if not deſpairing, that theſe poor and ſmall beginnings would have no good endings, would come to naught. and be their ſcorn. As thoſe ancient men wept therefore, Ezra 3. 12. The Angel doth rebuke and reproach them for this their puſillanimity; and dejected, ungrateful, unbelieving, malignant ſpirits; as if God were not able to make good his word, and carry on theſe weak beginnings to the deſired greatneſſe & luſtre. Theſe ſmal beginnings ſerve for the tryal of their faith, and the more magnifying of his power. He makes the little ſtone grow to a great mountain, filling the whole earth, Dan. 2. 35. And thus Chriſt himſelf ſhould ſpring out of the withered ſtock of Jeſſe, and come forth of little Bethlehem, and out of the low eſtate of the lowly virgin; and be deſpiſed, without form or beauty deſirable. See that Neh. 4. 2. 3. and that Job 26. 14.

For they ſhall rejoyce] Or, but; or ſith the ſeven eyes of the Lord ſhall rejoyce, notwithſtanding all their diſdain and diffidence, all their unworthinſſe; yet they ſhall ſee what they looked not for; they ſhall one day have occaſion to rejoyce, ſeeing the work perfected. For God out of meaneſt principles raiſeth matters of greateſt moment. See Ezra 6. 6—13. The ſingular, comfort of the Church in all ages; and at this very day.

and ſhall ſee the plummet] Heb. Stone of Tinne. He ſeems to mean the little line with a plummet to it, of tinne, as we uſally do now of lead; which wall-builders do uſe to level their work with, their perpendicular. And laſt, they ſhould ſee the other ſtone, verſe 9.

in the hand of Zerubbabel] He commanding, overſeeing, and directing their work, buſily at times imploying himſelf in ordering of ſtones to be laid level, ſquare, and perpendicular; Thus carrying on the building to perfection.

with thoſe ſeven] Theſe relate not to the ſeven lamps of the candleſtick, or to any number of Angels, whom God uſeth as Miniſters in his provident government of the world: But to thoſe ſeven eyes of that ſtone, Chap. 3. 9. the eyes of the Lord, as the next words ſhew.

which run to and fro, &c.] 2 Chron. 16. 9. He perfectly knows all things, in all quarters and corners of the world. All men and Angels too, are ignorant, and come ſhort of this knowledge; many myſteries are hid from the Angels, and revealed to them, onely as their employment requires. But God is omniſcient; nothing can fall out at any hand to hinder the perfecting of his work, which he foreſees not, and therefore they may reſt ſecure without any fear, upon his watchful providence, that he will ſee the building of his Temple now in hand, to be perfected. His providence ſhall as a ſoveraign Architect overſee this work, whoſe director Zerubbabel is, to bleſs it and accompliſh it.

v. 11. Then anſwered I and ſaid unto him, what are] The Prophet deſires ſtill, by degrees, to profit more in the knowledge of this ſacred viſion; of that laſt part mentioned, verſe 3.

v. 12. Theſe two olive branches] Theſe not mentioned before, are more taken notice of now; bigger belike, and more remarkable then the other branches; from which two the oil dropped. The word ſeems by its ſignification to liken them to ears of corn, becauſe they ſeem to be full of olive berries, as theſe are of grains.

which through] Heb. By the hand.

The two golden pipes] Neither were theſe mentioned before. Theſe conveighed the oil from the branches or berries into the bowl. The former ſeven pipes conveyed the oil out of the bowl into the lamps.

empty] Or, empty out of themſelves oil into the gold.

the golden oyl] Heb. the gold: namely, the pure yellow oil that did ſhine like gold.

v. 13. Knoweſt thou not, &c.] See on verſe 5. This is our wiſdom to be ever learning all our dayes.

v. 14. Theſe are the two anointed ones] Or ſons of the oil. Thus interpreting both parts of his queſtion, in one anſwer: yet there is much doubt, who theſe two are. Not ſurely Enoch and Elias, Apoc. 11. but if perſons, then either Chriſt, and the Comforter; or Chriſt in his two Natures, or two offices of King and Prieſt; or more litterally, Joſhua and Zerubbabel, as Types of him. Or we may ſafely underſtand them of the influxes, and anointings, and graces of Gods Spirit; which from God are continually poured on the Church, and the chief officers of it, through Chriſt by pipes, that is, ſuch means as he beſt pleaſeth, 1 John 2. 20.

that ſtand by the Lord of the whole earth] Or before, chap. 6. 5. Theſe graces are and abide in Chriſt in all fulneſſe; and out of him flow forth upon the Church in ſuch a meaſure as befits every part: ſo as the lamps never want ſufficiency of oil to maintain them burning. Some underſtand the anſwer to be concerning the olive trees and not concerning the olive branches. However the one is eaſily underſtood by the other, by compariſon and proportion.

CHAP. V.

Verſe 1. T*Hen* I turned] Thus diſtinguiſhing this viſion from the former, and intimating ſome ſmall diſtance of time to have paſſed betwixt them.

and lifted up mine eyes and looked] God inwardly had moved him hereunto, and ſo prepared and fitted him to receive this heavenly oracle.

a flying Roll] Or Book, of paper, parchment, or other ſtuff: not written as ours are in ſeveral leaves; but according to the cuſtoms of thoſe times, in one large ſcroll, which was wrapped up together, like the web upon the Pin. See Pſalm 40. 7. Jer. 36. 2. Luke 4. 17. Ezek. 2. 9, 10. This ſeems to have appeared in the air unfolded and ſpread abroad, flying and fleeting along ſwiftly, as a bird ready to ſeize on its prey.

v. 2. what ſeeſt thou] See on Chap. 4. 2.

the length thereof] The length and breadth of huge bulk and bigneſſe, equal to the meaſures of the porch of the Temple, 1 Kings 6. 3. as if coming forth from thence: able to contain all the peoples ſins, and Gods judgements written in this Roll; implying the greatneſſe, the weight, and long laſtingneſſe of them: as the flying doth the ſwift execution of them.

v. 3. This is the curſe] Written in this Rol. Though in the former viſions were revelations of Gods favor and mercies to this people, and he for his election ſake did purpoſe to eſtabliſh his Church among them, and reſtore their ſtate again. Yet he gives them to underſtand that he favoured not their groſſe and grievous ſins; but would ſeverely puniſh them for the preſent: and if they grew more ranck and ripe in rebellion, he would preſerve his Church; but utterly ſubvert them, when they had filled up the meaſure of their iniquitie. Or rather, as ſome others; Though they juſtly ſuffered for their ſins, yet he comforts them with this, that God would at length put an end to their evils and beat away their ſins, the cauſers of them; and caſt their wickedneſſe out of his Church, and confine it as it were into exile and baniſhment.

that goes forth over the whole earth] Ready to be executed, and to ſeize upon all the lands of Judah and Iſrael; upon the groſſe and grievous ſiners therin, in every part and corner of it, no place being free.

for every one that ſtealeth] He inſtanceth in ſome groſs ſins, againſt which this curſe is threatned. They had other ſins. This here of theft is againſt the ſecond Table of the Law: yet ſacriledge alſo may be here included.

ſhall be cut off] Targum thus: Every one that ſtealeth, and lyeth, is puniſhed by it. The Vulgar Latine; ſhall be judged. And ſo the LXX. ἐκδικηθήσεται.

on this ſide, according to it] Or, every one of this people that ſtealeth, holdeth himſelf guiltleſſe; as it doth. That is, as the reſt of the earth doth; are as impudent in maintaining their ſins, as the reſt of the earth is; as the Heathen man doth, as any in the world doth. Others thus; every one that ſtealeth being written on this ſide of the book or roll, ſhall be cut off, according to it, to the contents of it; The plainer and eaſier ſenſe and meaning is; on this ſide of the land, or whole earth; as the former expreſſion is; no place, or perſon ſhall be exempted or ſpared from the puniſhment.

according to it] That is, according to that curſe, in the Roll.

ſhall be cut off] Puniſhed, or deſtroyed.

and every one that ſweareth] Swearing, and forſwearing, a groſſe ſin againſt the firſt Table. Not theſe two ſins, or ſinners, are here in themſelves, or in their puniſhments equaliſed or compared: but rather that all ſins againſt both Tables are comprehended here under theſe two kindes: and that one ſhall be puniſhed aſwell as the other.

ſhall be] See the Annotations on all the ſame words next aforegoing. The ſum is, every one ſhall receive his reward and puniſhmeut, according to his ſins, according to the curſe in the roll, be he who he will be, and in what place of the Land ſoever he ſhall be, it ſhall finde him out, and cut him off; none ſhall eſcape Gods Tribunall. And therefore the Jews now ſhould not think it ſtrange, if for their groſs ſins they were ſo roughly handled.

v. 4 I will bring it forth] God will ſee his own law executed. He will be owned as the authour of theſe curſes and puniſhments.

it ſhall enter into the houſe] In vain ſhall they ſeek to hide themſelves from it, or ſtrengthen themſelves againſt it. It ſhall fly in, and break in upon them; even there where they think themſelves moſt ſecure.

falſly by my name] Swearing in truth, and by Gods name, when upon a Lawfull cauſe, we are lawfully called thereunto, is a ſervice of God, and an honoring of his name. See on Zeph. 1. 5. But perjury is a damnable ſin. See Levit. 19. 20. Mal. 3. 5. 1 Tim. 1. 10.

and it ſhall remain] It ſhall continue, reſide, and dwell there, with him, and his family; in the midſt of his houſe, not in any out corner of it. He ſhall neither keep it out, nor drive it out, ſo long as your ſin remaineth unrepented, or unreformed, but the judgement that hath ſeized on his perſon or family, ſhall remain on himſelf, or them.

with the Timber] Leave no rubbiſh it ſelf behinde; but utterly conſume them, and their whole eſtates, which they have got together by ſtealth and rapine, ſacriledge and perjury, no relick or peice of it ſhall remain, ſo terrible is God in his judgements. Heb. 10. 31.

v. 5. Then the Angel] See on chap. 2 verſe 3. This is another viſion; or another part of the viſion continued.

lift up now thine eyes] Happily he was ſomewhat dejected with fear at the viſion of the curſe flying abroad; and durſt not ſo freely and boldly look and lift up his eyes. And then this is to embolden and animate him. However; it calls upon him for further attention and advertency.

that goeth forth] That appeareth again to thee in viſion.

v. 6. what is it?] He ſees ſomewhat moving, but knows not well what it is. See on chap. 1. 9. 19. 21.

this is an Ephah] See on Ezech. 45. 10. 11. and on Exod. 16. 16. It may here be taken for any great meaſure that meaſureth dry things, not liquid. See Deut. 25. 14. This may be a figure of the juſt meaſure of Gods judgements. Or for a meaſure and compaſs limiting and bounding in the Jews afflictions by their enemies; or their ſins and wickedneſs rather, as appears in the eighth verſe.

this is their reſemblance through all the earth] It ſeems that the Angel turned to that apparition of the Lord, which did repreſent his providence and ſhewed it to the Prophet. Or this is their eye. Some underſtand it of the eye of the three perſons of the moſt holy Trinity: as Gen. 1. 26. 3. 22. & 11. 7. Eſay 6. 1. By this reſemblance, or eye, is meant Gods univerſall providence, chap. 3. 9. and 4. 10. and 9. 1. 2. 1 Chr. 16. 9. which is preſident over his judgements; and ſees in the Church the whole bulk & body of wicked men. Others thus, This reſembles them, and their wickedneſſe bounded in and circumſcribed by Gods all-knowing, and all diſpoſing providence, who ſees how every ones ſins fill up the Common meaſure. To conceive, that the Ephah ſhould import a reſemblance of them in their unrighteous dealing, in buying and ſelling ſuites not ſo well with the ſcope of the Text.

v. 7. lift up] Or, brought.

a talent of lead] Or, weighty piece. The woman ſitting in the Ephah, is ſin, or the whole bundle of ſinners, which by little and little filleth up the meaſure: and the ſame woman thrown into the midſt of it, is ſin beaten down, the talent of lead is the immoveableneſſe, firmneſſe, and weight of Gods decree, keeping ſin in, and under. A talent properly taken weighs 120. or 125. pounds, Reckoning 12. Ounces to the pound. Others make this to be the Sacred Talent; and the Common Talent to be but half ſo much. See on Exod. 25. 39. Here it may be taken for a great piece, or maſs of lead, made broad and flat, to cover the Ephah, or Buſhell. This weight of lead was lift up, or brought, and hung over the Ephah.

a woman] Caſt into, and confined within the Ephah.

v. 8. This is wickedneſſe] A type of the wickedneſſe and ſins of the people of the Jews, ſhe ſate up before; here ſhe is taken and thrown down in it; all power, to reſiſt, and defend her ſelf, being taken away.

and he caſt the weight of lead] He covered the Ephah cloſe and ſure, with a broad weight of lead; which ſhe ſhould not be able to remove; being ſhut up there faſt and ſure, as in a ſtronge priſon: to wait what ſhall be done with her. As Joſh. 10. 18. Dan. 6. 17. Matt. 27. 66.

v. 9. Two women] A figure, ſay ſome, of Gods two properties, Namely, mercy toward his, and juſtice towards his enemies: wherewith he transferreth upon theſe laſt, to wit his enemies, the judgements by which he had puniſhed his own people, which is done with admirable celerity. Others think the two women to have reference to the Church of the Jews, in their two Acts of reformation, at two ſeveral times: ſpecially in ejecting the outlandiſh wives, and their children, Ezra 9. & 10. chapters & Nehe. 13. Both which acts were done with ſpeed, and publikely by open ſentence, and execution. But rather by theſe two may be underſtood the inſtruments and means onely in generall, for the lifting up, and bearing away of this Ephah with the wicked woman in it, and weighty cover upon it. And this is ſufficient for the plain and literall meaning of the words.

and the winde was in their wings, &c.] All this makes for the ſpeedy execution of this tranſportation. Wings large and great, like the wings of a ſtorke. And they were helped forward with the winde: which bare them up, and drove them on apace, like a bird that flyes before the winde.

lift up] Mount up with it aloft into the ayre, to carry it away.

whither do theſe bear the Ephah] A needfull queſtion, that carries with it the main tendency and importment of this viſion. As the anſwer hereunto will declare.

v. 11. To build it an houſe in the Land of Shinar] This is the key opening the iſſue and intendment of this viſion, which is to bear away wickedneſſe, and afflictions, and judgements for ſin onely by conſquence, from Judah: to baniſh it out of the Church for ever, according to thoſe promiſes, Eſay 52. 1. & 35. 8. Joel 3. 17. See Zech. 14. 21. Apoc. 21. 27. & 22. 15. Ezech. 43. 7. and 37. 23. &c. And 14. 11. And to build it an houſe, that is, to appoint a place of continuall abode, as in a ſettled dwelling. Thus is the phraſe uſed. Jere. 29. 5. 28. A manſion place for wickedneſſe, out of the Church, from amongſt Gods holy People.

in the land of Shinar] To wit Babylon, Gen. 10. 10. & 11. 2. Whereby are meant all Gods and the Churches wicked and cruell enemies. As 1 Sam. 24. 13. Apoc. 22. 11. Let wickedneſſe remain amongſt the wicked: as in its proper element: And Plagues and puniſhments for ſin likewiſe.

and it ſhall be eſtabliſhed] Hereby is ſhewn the irrevocable eternity of the puniſhments of the wicked: oppoſite to the termined and ſhort laſting Chaſtiſments of the Church, figured before by the flying roll. Or rather hereby is ſhewed the fixed reſidence and ſettlement both of wickedneſſe, and its puniſhment, where it ſhall remain: namely out of the Church, amongſt Gods and the Churches enemies: ſettled there, as an houſe upon its foundation, or a pillar ſtrongly fixed upon a firm Baſe. The iſſue then and main purport of this viſion is this: not a fearfull foreſhewing of the utter rejection of the Jews, and finall extirpation of them out of their Land, by the Romans, after the death of our Saviour; as ſome would: But rather a conſolation to them, That God in favour would put an end to their evils: and carry away wickedneſſe, the cauſe of all their evils far out of the land of his elect and holy people, that they ſhould be freed from it, the guilt, power, and dominion of it; and the miſeries procured by it, and that wickedneſſe and the evil fruits of it, ſhould be removed, and be placed, fixed, and abide out of the Church in its own place, even among the enemies of the Church, the cruel, and bloody Babylonians.

CHAP. VI.

Verſe 1. A*Nd I turned*] Here we have Gods fore-care, power, and ſpeed, by his Angels, in divers ſorts, for Judah at home, and in Babel yet remaining: And this in another viſion, after ſome ſmall diſtance of time intervening; and the Prophets diligent advertencie preceding: He delivering herein nothing of his own, but what he received from Heaven.

four charets] Not without their drivers, or Coachmen. Some hereby underſtand the four Goſpels; ſome the four Monarchies, the Aſſyrian or Babylonian, the Perſian, the Græcian, the Roman. But what followes in the Text concerning theſe four charets can hardly comply with the former opinions. Hereby rather are ſignified as it were, four ſquadrons of Angels, going forth at Gods command through the earth; and executing his will, for the good of his people, and againſt their enemies. And this ſeems beſt to agree with the Angels own interpretation, verſe 5. &c. See chap. 1. 8. And thus hereby are ſet forth the various changes of things which fell out, not onely in Judea, but alſo in Chaldea and other places, and nations, as they had reference to the ſtate and affairs of Gods people the Jews.

from between two mountains] Some make this an alluſion to the cuſtome of thoſe times, of running races with charets, where the horſes and charets ſtood ready for the courſe, incloſed within barred liſts; from whence upon the ſigne given they looſed. But further, by the two mountains others underſtand Heaven, the high and firm habitation of Angels, opened, and as it were cleft in two, to give way for the coming out of theſe ſpirits. And yet more, by the mountains he ſeemeth to mean the eternal counſel, and unſearchable providence of God, whereby he hath from before all eternitie decreed what ſhall come to paſſe.

of braſſe] Or, ſteel, His providence, counſels, and decrees, are hidden and ſecret, till they come forth. And they are moſt firm, ſtable, impregnable, immutable in themſelves, like unto unremovable mountains of braſſe, or ſteel: neither Satan, nor all the world can alter, or hinder them. So far off is it, that God ſhould foreſee and decree the event of things to come onely conditionally, and dependently upon the contingent iſſue and pleaſure of mans free will, Matth. 10. 29, 30.

v. 2. Red horſes] Or, of a bloody, or fiery colour. The horſes may ſignifie the ſwiftneſſe and ſpeedineſſe of the executions of Gods decrees. The diverſity of the colours may haply ſerve for diſtinction ſake onely, to know one charet from another, without further ſignifications: or if we make them ſignificant, we muſt make them relate to the Church, and the ſeveral ſtates of it. Yet we muſt not be too preciſe and peremptory therin. Red horſes then may be a ſigne of the execution of wrath. Chap. 1. 8. Apoc. 6. 4.

black horſes] A ſigne of execution of death, Revel. 6. 5.

v. 3. White horſes] See upon Chap. 1. 8.

grizled] Spotted with white ſpots, like hailſtones, upon bay colour, as Jacobs ſpotted ſheep, Gen. 30. 39. and 31. 10.

Bay] Or ſtrong, Heb. ſtrong, or ſtrengthened. To wit by God for the execution of his will; and ſo may be as a common Epithet to all theſe horſes; as is perceived by the eighth verſe.

v. 4. what are theſe my Lord?] See on Chap. 4. 4. ſtill we muſt ſhake off ſluggiſhneſſe, and ſhow our ſelves attentive, and deſirous to learn. And ſo we ſhall not want our wiſh, or fail of obtaining it.

v. 5. Theſe are the four ſpirits of the heavens] Or windes. Four principal Angels, as it were commanders of Squadrons, if not four Squadrons; who are ſent from God by his ſecret inſtinct and impulſe, into all the quarters of the world: and from thence repair again into his preſence. God ſo abounds in means and miniſters to execute his will.

from ſtanding before] Who ſtand in the preſence of God, waiting his commands; ready to go forth in the ſpeedy execution of his eternal counſels and decrees; as it is moſt plain, Job 1. 6. and 2. 1. 1 Kings 22. 19. Dan. 7. 10. and above, Zech. 1. 10. Matth. 18. 10. Heb. 1. 14. ſo that chance and fortune have no place in humane affairs: And men, and Angels, and all ſecondary cauſes ſtand, and go forth, move and work, in their ſeveral ſpheres, and according to their kindes, from, and under the Lord, and ruler of all the earth, of all the world.

v. 6. The black horſes which are therein] A verſe obſcure and difficult. Some render the words and meaning thus; They that are in that charet, meaning the red horſes in the firſt charet: and ſo they make the red, black, and white horſes to go into the North countrey. Others conceive the red horſes, and firſt charet to be here omitted; as allready too well known of the Jews in Judea, by their ſad and woſull experience, there. Or if meant of Babylon, then omitted, becauſe the Chaldean Empire was overthrown, and ſo their race was runne. Theſe black horſes were the ſecond charet: as ſhadows of blackneſſe, darkneſſe, and diſmal effects.

North countrey] Signifying the grievous executions of Gods judgements done upon the Babylonians, northward to Judea, verſe 8. and that out of his care of, and over his people, the Jews yet remaining in Babylon; leſt they there might grow into deſpair of Gods minding them any more for good, but that he altogether neglected and rejected them.

and the white go forth after them] The white horſes in the third charet, go forth at Gods direction, and upon his imployment, after the former horſes and charet, into the North-countrey likewiſe, for the comfort and conſolation of the Jews yet remaining there. So that theſe are Angels of ſafety and of peace, which did accompany the deſtroyers of Babylon to deliver Gods Church which was there, and to provide for, and to procure their good.

and the grizled] In the fourth charet, called alſo bay, or ſtrong, verſ. 3. 7.

toward the South Countrey] Some underſtand this of Judea, ſouth from Babylon: That they went to it for the ſervice and behoof of the Jews now in their own land. Others, of Egypt, ſouth from Judea; that their puniſhment ſhould be tempered with ſome mercie, which ſhould not be done to the Babylonians.

v. 7. and the bay] Not differing from the grizled. Some would have it; imagining both to draw together in the fourth charet and now to be ſevered; the grizled to the ſouth; and the bay throughout all the earth, what then ſhal become of the charet? but they are, as was ſaid, the ſame: their courſe might vary.

and ſought to go] Thus are they at Gods appointment. Yea, even wicked men, and Satan himſelf. See on verſe 5. Gods ſecret, and infinite wiſdom, and providence, rules, and overrules all.

through the earth] Some underſtand this of all the earth, as Job 1. 7. and 2. 2. as if they deſired to make, as it were, a general viſitation of the world; and to puniſh other people, which have not any communion with the Church. Others, of the earth, and land of Judea onely; as if they deſired their imployment might be in, and for, that land, and over, and among that people onely, for their good.

and he ſaid] This Angel that talked with me, verſ. 4. 5. the head of the angels, Chap. 1. 8. the Angel of the Covenant, Mal. 3. 1. the mighty God, Eſay 9. 6. His commiſſion, and their obedience follows, Matth. 18. 10. and 6. 10.

v. 8. Then cried he upon me] Called on me with a loud voice; to breed more attention to this, as the main ſcope and intendment of the viſion; and the onely point and part of interpretation which the Angel pleaſeth to give. And no marvel then, if the other parts and parcels of the viſion remain obſcure, and ſubject to various apprehenſions, and conſtructions.

have quieted my ſpirit in the North countrey] Have perfectly executed their charge and given me ſatisfaction; either ſatisfying me in my revenge upon the Chaldeans, for the wrongs done to my people; as Eſay 1. 24. or ſo working upon my people yet remaining there, ſo reducing them to penitency and piety, as thereby rendering me pacified and appeaſed towards them; not minded utterly to caſt them off, but really to be reconciled with them, and entreated by them: an effect and fruit whereof ſeems to be that Return of the people made with Ezra, chap. 7. and 8. and thus God honours the angels in this their miniſtery and ſervice under him.

v. 9. And the word of the Lord] This which follows ſeems to have a dependence upon the laſt words immediately going before. For it ſeems to be a narrative of the publick profeſſion of the Religion, which the Godly Jews remaining yet behinde in Babylon did make, by their meſſengers ſent to them in Jeruſalem: and again of that teſtimony and approbation which God did publickly give to them for it, by aſſigning them crowns of gold and ſilver for a memorial and monument for them in the Temple of the Lord: with promiſes annexed of the kingdom of Chriſt.

v. 10. Take] The aim of all this action is to ſhew, that as Joſhua & Zerubbabel, reſtorers of the Church wth was at that time, were each one, for their ſeveral part, in their ſeveral office, figures of the Meſſias; ſo Chriſt ſhould for ever enjoy the two offices of King and Prieſt, which he ſhall enter into poſſeſſion of by his death and paſſion.

of them of the captivity] Which are now returned thence; now in the ſecond yeer of Darius, and the 11th moneth, C. 1. 7.

even of Heldai] Called Helem verſe 14. It is not certainly known who theſe three were. But it is very likely they were ſome heads of the people, who were induced by Zachariah, or much rather came from Babylon purpoſely to make this offering of gold, and ſilver, which was now thus beſtowed in making theſe crowns which were to remain in the Temple for a remembrance of this ſolemn promiſe which God had made of the Meſſiah, and of their intereſt in him, and right to his Temple.

which are come from Babylon] Either as private men, Religiouſly bringing their own free will-offering to the houſe of God, and the building of it; or as publike Ambaſſadors in the name of the other Godly Jews in Babylon, to make known their profeſſion, and zeal, and to bring their gifts.

and come thou the ſame day] That theſe men came from Babylon to Jeruſalem. No delay was here to be uſed, no time foreſlowed in ſo ſacred and ſolemn an action.

and go into the houſe of Joſiah] Who ſeems to be called Hen, verſe 14. Some make him to be a Treaſurer for the Temple, who received the oblations that were made for the building, or repairing of it; ſee Ezra 2. 69. And ſo the prophet muſt go thither, with thoſe three afore-ſaid, to receive gold and ſilver of them, in the Treaſurers houſe, whither they would bring it. Others conceive him to be ſome gold-ſmith, or founder dwelling in Jeruſalem, who ſhould make the Crowns after mentioned. But the former words of this verſe, and thoſe verſe 14. make him rather to be a fourth perſon, that came with the three former. And from him alſo the prophet was to receive a part of this offering.

v. 11. Then take ſilver and gold] Of Heldai, and the reſt, of their offerings, which they brought from Babylon.

and make crowns] Likely two, one of gold, another of ſilver, and not one very great one, of gold and ſilver mixt.

and ſet them] Therefore more then one.

upon the head of Joſhua] Not both together; but one after another, in all likelyhood. And both upon the head of Joſhua the high Prieſt. Not one upon his head, and another upon the head of Zerubbabel the Prince, we read of the mitre of the high prieſt. And alſo we finde theſe words, Exod. 39. 30. And they made the plate of the holy Crown (of the High Prieſt) of pure gold, and wrote upon it Holineſſe to the Lord. However, here are the two crowns ſet upon the head of Joſhua only. And this by an act of extraordinary uſe and diſpenſation; to repreſent at this time the union and conjunction of both Offices, and dignities, of Prieſthood and kingdom in one perſon. And though the execution of both offices was not to be performed by Joſhua, who was a prieſt after the order of Aaron; and the kingly office was inveſted in the houſe and linage of David: yet this ſolemn kinde of inauguration and coronation of Joſhua ſerved for an extraordinary Repreſentation, to ſhadow, as in a ſpeciall Type, what ſhould really come to paſſe in the perſon of the Meſſias, who was that true Melchiſedech both King, and prieſt, an high prieſt after the order of Melchizedech, ſee Gen. 14. 18. pſal. 110. 4. Heb. 5. verſe 6. 10. and 6. 20. and 7. 1. 2. 3. 4. 10. 11. 15. 21. That incroachment, which the high prieſts made upon the kingly office, after this time: eſpecially in the dayes of the Maccabees, however they might pretend a neceſſity for it, in thoſe times, or fetch a ſeeming colour for it from hence, yet it was in it ſelf no leſs then an unwarrantable uſurpation. The Kingly dignity was now more overturned then the Prieſthood. Ezek. 21. 26. 27. And therefore alſo the crowns are here ſet upon the head of Joſhua rather then of Zerubbabel.

v. 12. And ſpeak unto him ſaying] Now follows the expoſition of the Type, the ſignification of theſe ceremonies which the prophet declares in a ſpeech he makes unto Joſhua, after that he had ſet the crowns upon his head; ſhewing him whereat this ſolemnity aimed; and that this honour was in him but typicall; which ſhould be really accompliſhed in the Meſſias, of whom he was herein but a figure.

behold the man] See in Joſhua thus adorned with Prieſtly, and Princely Enſignes, a plain ſimilitude and repreſentation of the Meſſias hoped, and looked for by all that expect ſalvation in Iſrael. A Type of Chriſt who ſhall appear in the fleſh, at the appointed time; in whom ſhall be verified that which is ſhewen and confirmed unto the Church by this action.

whoſe name is the Branch] See on chap. 3. 8.

he ſhall grow up out of his place] Or, branch up from under him, like a plant that ſprouts up, and grows by vertue of its living root; even ſo ſhall Chriſt, by vertue of himſelf, without any humane means, advance his kingdom. Or, he ſhall grow up from under himſelf; that is to ſay, by ſecret wayes, without any humane ſhew, as Iſa. 11. 1. Or this may allude and relate to the place and city of Nazareth, where he was brought up. See Matt. 2. 23.

and he ſhall build the Temple of the Lord] And this repeated again in the next words; to ſhew the weight of the Matter; and to meet with their diffidence, and difficulty in believing it. He ſhall build both the materiall Temple; which not Joſhuas, nor Zerubbabels ſkill and ſtrength could finiſh, without the aide, and protection of Chriſt, chap. 4. 6. And the Spiritual Temple, the Church far more excellent then the materiall, that ſhould Chriſt rear up upon himſelf by the power of his Spirit, in his prophets, and miniſters of the Goſpel; Heb. 3. 3. Mat. 16. 18. 1 Cor. 3. 9. 1 Pet. 2. 5. And this Temple and houſe ſeem to be meant. Hag. 2. 9. & by that large deſcription, Ezech. 40. 41. 42. Chapters.

v. 13. And he ſhall bear the glory] Not thou Joſhua; albeit now thou art crowned with theſe crowns. The dignity, and honour of the Church is onely in the head Jeſus Chriſt; and from him communicated to the members. Again, the Jews were now to look for no ſuch outward pompe and ſplendor, either in the Prince or Prieſt, as they had before the Captivity. And they muſt not be diſmayed, or diſcouraged at it: All things were abaſed, that they might the more eagerly look after the Meſſias; the brightneſſe of the glory, and the excellency of Honour: In whom, though not in outward appearance ſhould meet all perfection of both dignities, which either the Prieſts or Kings had. Both which were now almoſt laid in the duſt: But Chriſt ſhould lift them up again; and ſhall ſit and rule upon his Throne.

and he ſhalbe a Prieſt upon his Throne] Here is the ſubſtance of Joſhuas ceremonious inauguration, and the manner how Chriſt ſhould bear the Glory; that is, by the glorious conjunction of two ſupream dignities in his moſt excellent perſon; the kingdom, and the Prieſthood; that expreſſed in the former clauſe, this in the latter. Here is no mention of the propheticall office of Chriſt, which it may be, is but an Appendix of his Prieſthood. See Pſal. 110. 4. Heb. 3. 1. and 9. 24.

and the counſel of peace ſhalbe between them both] Not between Joſhua and Zerubbabel; nor between Joſhua and Jeſus Chriſt, the type, and antitype; Though both theſe true; yet not truly here meant. But between both Prieſthood, and kingdom in Chriſt. They both ſhould joyntly effect and produce this peace in, and towards, the Church; even peace and Reconciliation with God; together with ſafety and deliverance from all our ſpirituall enemies: which is the benefit we obtain by Chriſts Sacrifice, and Soveraign authority. Eph. 2. 13. &c. He ſhall work, and bring, and preach peace, both to thoſe in Judea, and thoſe afar off, reconciling both to God in one body, by his croſs. Others expreſſe it thus; that theſe two offices and properties ſhall for ever be united together in Chriſt, and ſhall perfectly agree one with the other; though they ſeem to be very different; the one being to execute juſtice in commanding, and puniſhing, the other of mercy, to expiate, and pardon; that he may be obeyed when he commands, Pſal. 130. 4. Having put men into Gods favour, to make them receive the ſpirit of peace, in and through Chriſt, who is our peace, the prince of peace, purchaſing it by his prieſthood, and maintaining it by his kingdom. And all the propheticall and glorious promiſe, is to comfort Joſhua, Zerubbabel, and the people, againſt all the preſent diſcouragements that were before their eyes. They ſaw how mean and miſerable they were, what poor beginnings they had; what enemies on all ſides roſe up; how unlikely their ſtate was and unanſwerable to thoſe glorious Promiſes, which the prophets formerly had made: Here therefore God calls them by his Prophet, from what they ſaw now, to what they were yet to hope for hereafter; even a full and glorious accompliſhment: but not in that manner: nor yet ſo ſoon, as they raſhly, and over haſtily expected: looking to have, all thoſe promiſes fulfilled in one day.

v. 14. And the crowns ſhall be to Helem] It is likely that Helem and Hen were the ſame as were called Heldai and Joſiah, verſe 10. As hath been ſaid.

for a memoriall] After thou haſt thus propheſied of Chriſt, ſetting theſe two materiall crowns upon the head of Joſhua, lay them up again in the Temple, in the names of theſe four men, peradventure with ſome inſcription of their names: for a publike monument and remembrance, either of their liberality, and piety, in offering gold and ſilver unto Chriſt, and for the Temple, or of their incredulity, and hardnes of heart, who would not believe the promiſes with out ſuch a viſible aſſurance: or of the Typical coronation of Joſhua, that the crowns, as they were ſet upon his head, for to ſignifie the Meſſiah: ſo ſhould they be hung up in the Temple, to put all ſpectators in mind of what was promiſed: and to be expected ſhortly: or to be a teſtimony and confirmation of Gods favourable acceptance of all ſuch as ſhould come from a far to worſhip in the Temple: and joyn themſelves to the people of God, whether from Babylon, as theſe Jews here named, or elſwhere from among the Gentiles, as is inferred in the next verſe. A memoriall, ſomewhat like that Joſh. 22. 27. 28.

in the temple of the Lord] Kept in ſome treaſury, and cabinet, or rather hung up in open view among other coſtly donaries, and Anathemataes of the Temple, which might be after the finiſhing of the Temple.

v. 15. And they that are far off ſhall come] The Jews in Babylon and diſperſed in the Perſian Empire; and which is more the Gentiles in all parts; Theſe ſhall come, and be an acceſſion to Gods people. Iſaiah 57. 19. and chap 60. and chap. 66. 18, 19. Acts 2. 39. and chap. 22. 21.

And build in the temple of the Lord] Help forward the preſent building of the materiall Temple; by their pains, or by their purſe. This help ſhould the Jews at home receive from thoſe afar off; both from their brethren the Jews in Babylon, and elſwhere, among whom many out of zeal to religion, and Gods Houſe did after the example of Heldia, and the reſt, either bring, or ſend their Gifts: and alſo from the Gentiles, who though not then converted to the Jewiſh religion, did neverthelеſſe, moved by Gods Spirit, greatly further the reedification of the Temple. Thus had Cyrus done formerly, Ezra 1. 4. 6, 7. Darius at this time. Ezra 6. 8. And Artaxerxes, and his Counſellours, when Ezra came up afterwards; Ezra 7. 15, 16. 20, 21, 22. and chap. 8. 25. This was more then was done in building of Solomons Temple. And this makes for their preſent encouragement to goe on in the Building, notwithſtanding all difficulties and diſheartnings to the contrary: what humane Hiſtories record that Herod did to this Temple, was many Ages after this time, but yet the full meaning of this Text, ſtretcheth further to the building of Gods ſpirituall Temple, the Church of Chriſt under the Goſpel; when both Jewes and Gentiles, both neer and far off, diſtant, as in place, ſo in Religion and affection, did come and convert, and as living ſtones build up the true Temple, whereof Chriſt was the foundation, 1 Pet. 2. 4. Epheſ. 2. 13, 17.

and ye ſhall know] See on chap. 2. 9, 11. & on chap. 4. 9. this ſhould be a juſtification of Zechariahs calling, that he was a true Prophet ſent by God to them, with Gods Word in his mouth; ſpecially when Jewes then living to whom he was ſent, ſhould ſpeedily ſee and know by experience, and find the preſent help in building the Temple, which they ſhould have from ſuch as they little looked for it at their hands: and the Almighty power of the Lord of Hoaſts ſhould confirm them in this belief, whoſe power nothing can withſtand.

and this ſhall come to paſſe, if, &c.] Their diſtruſt and diſobedience might hinder a while, and delay further the building of the Temple, as it had done all the while hitherto; but it ſhould no wiſe hinder the coming of Chriſt, and building of his ſpirituall Temple: For the Counſels and Decrees of God depend not upon the contingent and arbitrary pleaſures of men, Rom. 3. 3. yet the good and benefit of this propheticall promiſe ſhould not reach the people of the Jewes to their comfort, if they did not comply with the condition here propounded, and yeeld the obedience of faith and life to the voice of the Lord in the mouth of his Prophets. Some ſo render the words, as to make the condition it ſelf here mentioned to be the thing firſt promiſed, and the building thereafter, and thereupon to be performed and accompliſhed.

CHAP. VII.

Verſe 1. And it came to to paſſe] This and the next Chapter is no viſion, as hitherto hath been; but the Anſwer which the Prophet from God gives to a queſtion propounded by Ambaſſadours, purpoſely ſent for a reſolution in a ſcruple, and caſe of conſcience, touching Faſting: The prophet intermixing with all ſundry excellent inſtructions, conſolations and promiſes unto the people.

in the fourth yeer] Chap. 1. 1, 7. were both in the ſecond yeer, this in the fourth yeer.

that the Word of the Lord] See on chap. 1. 1.

in the fourth day of the ninth moneth, even in Chiſleu] Chiſleu begins with the new Moon in our November: they begin their Moneths ſtill with their new Moons, and this date of time is about two yeers and one moneth ſince the firſt time that the Word of the Lord came to Zechariah, and one yeer nine moneths and ten dayes ſince the later time mentioned, chap. 1. 7. and two yeers two moneths and twenty nine dayes before the Temple was finiſhed, Ezra 6. 15.

v. 2. When they had ſent] Either theſe two here named had ſent Meſſengers, or rather theſe two were ſent as Ambaſſadours by the Jews that were returned and reſident in Judea; or rather by the Jewes yet remaining in Babylon, though the caſe and queſtion did much alike concern them both; their journey was long, troubleſome and chargeable.

unto the houſe of God] The Houſe or Temple was now about half builded.

Sherezar] Two choice men that were the chief and principall perſonages in this honourable Imployment and Embaſſie. We need not here trouble our ſelves with the erroneous tranſlation of the ſeventy, or of that copy of it which now we have.

and their men] Their train of Attendants and Aſſiſtants, as is uſed in ſuch an Embaſſage, for the more grace and honour of it.

to pray before the Lord] Hebr. To entreat the face of the Lord: They prayed no doubt in Babylon, and that with their faces no doubt towards Jeruſalem, and the Temple, as Daniel did, Dan. 6. 10. when both City and Temple lay in ruines. But this was a ſolemn prayer before the Lord, in that place of prayer, whereunto God had vouchſafed ſpeciall promiſes, 1 Kings 8. 28, 29, 30, 48. And to theſe prayers no doubt were Sacrifices annexed; Sacrifices being as the appurtenances to prayer in that place, and prayer ever the chief, 1 Sam. 13. 12. And though the Temple was not yet finiſhed, the Altar for Sacrifices was long before, Ezra 3. 2, 3. And moſt likely it is, that Gifts and Oblations likewiſe they brought with them, as thoſe chap. 6. ver. 10, 11, 14.

v. 3. And to ſpeak] In a ſcruple of minde, and caſe of conſcience, to ask a reſolution, deſirous thus to know, that they might accordingly practice and obey.

unto the Prieſts] To whom it belonged to teach the Law, Deut. 17. 8,---14. Mal. 2. 7. Jer. 18. 18. This due reverence they yeeld to them.

which were in the houſe of the Lord of hoſts] Attended on the Service there, and alſo did dwell within the circuits and courts of the Temple: hence is that Eſay 2. 3. Micah 4. 2.

and to the Prophets] Extraordinary, as Haggai, Zechariah and Malachy, if he then lived, and to the ordinary Prophets alſo: the reſidence of Haggai and Zechariah there, ſhould have been a ſtrong motive to the Jewes in Babylon for their return.

Should I weep] Meaning Faſt, as ver. 5. Weeping is ſo annexed to Faſting, that our Saviour uſeth the words of mourning and faſting indifferently to ſignifie the ſame thing, Mat. 9. 15. And where Saint Matthew ſets down the word mourn, in that place the other Evangeliſts put for it faſt, Mark 2. 9. Luke 5. 34. Of this weeping at faſtings, See Joel 2. 12, 13. Judges 20. 26. 1 Sam. 7. 6. Pſal. 69. 10. Ezra 10. 1. How contrary is this to our practice in faſting? and much more to the Doctrine of popiſh faſting?

In the fifth moneth] They had likewiſe other dayes of faſting, ſee ver. 5. & ch. 8. 19. but this was the chief, becauſe then both City and Temple were burnt, Jer. 52. 12, 13. They doubted not the lawfulneſſe of its firſt inſtitution, and the keeping and celebration of it hitherto, being ordained by the publick and common conſent of the Church of the Jewes; as likewiſe the feaſts of Purim were in the days of Eſther; though the like authority for Faſts and Feaſts upon the like grounds, is by ſome denyed now to the power & authority of the Church: but their queſtion and ſcruple now was touching the continuation of it thus; Are we in conſcience bound to keep the ſolemn Faſt appointed to be in the fift Moneth, by reaſon of the deſtruction of the Temple which happened at that time, 2 Kin. 25. 8, 9. now that it is in re-edifying, and Gods ſervice to be reſtored, Ezr. 6. 15. ſeeing the keeping of it is not commanded in the Law of God? See Mal. 3. 14. They would not take upon them to end it now of themſelves, and forbear it hereafter, without the conſent and authority of the Church at Jeruſalem, to prevent any ſchiſm, and to preſerve unity therein between them both. The day of that fift moneth is ſet down to be the tenth day, Jer. 52. 12. three dayes after that Nebuzaradan came unto the City, 2 Kin. 25. 8. ſeparating my ſelf] From feaſts, company of women, gay apparell, muſick, and all other carnall delights, ſee ch. 12. 12, 13, 14. 1 Cor. 7. 5. Joel 2. 16. Jonah 3. 6. 2 Sam. 12 20. Eſt. 5. 1. Dan. 6. 10. & 10. 3. And addicting my ſelf to more ſtrict holineſſe on that ſolemn day; for ſeparation from all pollution of ſin in thoſe extraordinary dayes of faſting, was a thing more then ordinarily looked unto.

Theſe ſo many yeers] In the captivity and ſince the 70. yeers of captivity began eleven yeers before the burning of the Temple, See Ezek. 40. 1. & ch. 33. 21. And the number of yeers ſince the end of the captivity till this time of building the Temple. are by divers diverſly reckoned: ſee Annot. on Dan. 9. 25. by all aforegoing it appears, that the Jews remaining in Babylon were not groſſe contemners of God and his Religion, but though it was their great fault to abide there, & their great ingratitude too, when God in mercy had made open the way for their return, yet there remained in them many ſparks of piety, and they could not but be diſpleaſed with themſelves for that their ſin, though they did not preſently amend it; and therefore they ſtood in need, as of reproof and rebuke for their ſin, ſo of exhortation and inſtigation to repent and return.

v. 4. Then came the word of the Lord] ver. 1. & 6. 9. & 4. 8. & ch. 1. 1, 7. Hag. 1. 1, 3, Zeph. 1. 1, Micah 1. 1. Jonah 1. 1. and ſo uſually.

v. 5. Speak unto all the people] Comprehending both thoſe that ſent, and thoſe that were ſent unto; As the cauſe was common; ſo the anſwer was publike, and to all. And indeed the whole ſubject and ſubſtance of the Sermon following, is more directed to all the people, then to the Ambaſſadours; and contains matter of more concernment then that point of faſting came unto.

and to the Prieſts] For likely they were both of the people and of the Prieſts, which doubted, as touching this controverſie, beſides them which yet remained in Chaldea,and reaſoned of it, as of one of the points of their religion.

faſted and mourned] Both joyned together, Eſay 58. 5. See on verſe 3.

and ſeventh moneth] This other faſt was appointed for the death of Gedaliah, which happened in this moneth, 2 Kings 25. 25. Jer. 41. 1,&c. whereupon followed the total diſperſion of the remainder of the people, and deſolation of the land.

thoſe ſeventy years] See on verſe 3. and on Chap. 1. 12.

unto me, even to me ?] A vehement interrogation for a vehement denial ; ſeconded with an emphatical repetition and appealing to their own conſciences. They did it not in ſuch a manner, with ſuch affections, ends, and exerciſes, as God requires ; with repentance and amendment which God expects. But they went no further then the outward ceremonie ; fondly conceiving, as if God would be pacified and pleaſed with ſuch outward rites, and bodily exerciſes ; and therefore they glory in themſelves for ſo doing ; and expoſtulate the matter with God, as we ſee Eſay 58. 3. Thus pleaſing and ſatisfying themſelves in their carnal humours ; and not heeding him who is a Spirit, and muſt be ſerved in ſpirit and truth. Should I then, ſhould I approve of ſuch a faſting as done to me ? was it not onely out of a carnal feeling of your evils, and miſeries ? Hoſ. 7. 14.

v. 6. did not ye eat for your ſelves?] As ye feaſted, ſo ye faſted ; and neither for me or my glory, as you ſhould ; according to that rule, 1 Cor. 10. 31. but to content your own fancies. And ſuch abſtaining or not abſtaining makes nothing to the ſervice of God, 1 Cor. 8. 8. yea, in your mirth and rejoycing you have not regarded me, to yield me honour and thanks for my benefits ; Hoſ. 8. 13. and 9. 4. now the anſwer to the foreſaid queſtion is referred to this point ; your faſt might be ſanctified by piety and devotion ; but you had better to omit it, then prophane it, as you do ; and inſtead of your ceremonies, endeavour your ſelves to ſerve God internally ; by means of which I will change theſe your doleful dayes, into dayes of feaſting and giving thanks for my benefits, Chap. 8. 19.

v. 7. Should ye not hear] Ye buſie your ſelves about trifles ; you curiouſly inquire of this faſting, as if it were the prime part, and principal point of religion, and mean while live in groſſe ſins, and neglect main duties. This is the corrupt nature and condition of hypocrites eſpecially ; They will ſtrain a gnat, and ſwallow a camel. The Prophet therefore having to deal with ſuch, for their better conviction calls them back to the main point ; touching them to the quick, appealing to, and charging their own conſciences, for the reality and truth of what he now tells them.

the words] Or, are not theſe the words. Hath not God ſufficiently declared his will concerning theſe external actions, and ſpecially concerning a faſt, prophaned through wickedneſſe ? Eſay 58. 3, 4. and concerning the main duties of repentance, holineſſe, and righteouſneſſe required in your lives?

by the former prophets] Hebr. by the hand of &c. This aſſerts his authority : he accords with the former Prophets,and inſiſts, as they did upon the ſame main duties ; he brings no new thing. And this doubles their crime ; that they would not be warned and ſchooled by the example of their fathers, and what befell them ; but ſtill ſhut their eyes, and ſtop their ears, againſt thoſe leſſons by the former Prophets, ſo plainly, and powerfully preached to them. They ſtill exhorted to repentance, and obedience ; and threatned deſtruction for rebellion : you ſhould have obeyed Gods command by them. But where is this ? And neglecting it, all your faſting is to no purpoſe : you do but dally ſo with God, and delude your ſelves.

when Jeruſalem was inhabited] Or, on foot : or in its former ſtate. Inhabited, not thinly, and poorly, as now ; but populouſly.

and the cities therof] Through out all the land likewiſe, were in proſperity, and flouriſhing.

the ſouth of the plain] Or the South, and the plain. See Joſh. 15. Chapter. & Jer. 17. 26. & 32. 44. Places, it ſeems, much inhabited formerly ; and after, for their ſins, much waſted. The Prophets cryed out againſt their ſinfull courſes then, but there was no amendment ; and therefore ruine came upon them. And ſhould not ye now hear and heed the words of thoſe Prophets, and not runne the ſame race of ſin as formerly was done ?

v. 8. And the word] See on verſe 4.

v. 9. execute] Having reproached them for their diſobedience in general, in not hearkning to the words of the former Prophets ; which was the thing that God looked for, more then their faſtings : and for want of which God rejected their ceremonious faſts ; He comes now to preſſe them with particulars ; He ſets before them the ſpecial words and commandments of God, by the former Prophets, whereunto God required obedience, verſe 9, 10. And their fathers refuſing to obey, verſ. 11, 12. And Gods puniſhing of them for it, verſ. 13, 14. And thus in their Fathers example, he lets them ſee what themſelves are, and what they ſhould likewiſe expect if they amended not.

true judgement] Hebr. Judge judgement of truth. He ſheweth that they did not faſt with a ſincere heart, but for hypocriſie ; and that it was not done of a pure religion, becauſe that they lacked theſe offices of charity, which ſhould have declared that they were godly, Matth. 23. 23. Micah. 6. 8. Judgement of truth is when, and where equity and right is only regarded, without any reſpect had, to favour, fear, hatred,bribes,acceptings of perſons, or the like. And the charge is for the Judges: And thus he begins with the duties of the ſecond Table ; as is uſuall in the Prophets, having to deal with an hypocriticall people : not but that our duties to God in the firſt Table are of far more eſteem : but therein Hypocrites can beſt diſſemble what is in their inward man : whereas the duties of the ſecond Table put them upon a viſible and palpable triall in the eyes of the world. So that examination and conviction will here ſooneſt appear.

and ſhew mercy] This is, the duty of every man to his brother ; not onely to abſtain from doing him any wrong ; but to uſe kinde and favourable dealing towards him.

and compaſſions] So to do,out of the bowells of a tender affectionate love to our brethren.

v. 10. And oppreſs not the widdow,] Break not over where the hedge is loweſt ; do no wrong there eſpecially,where we have moſt eaſe and advantage to do it, by reaſon of their weakneſs, and inability to ſave themſelves harmleſſe, or to reſiſt, and offend us. And therefore God in his Law gives charge ſo often ; and takes ſo great care of theſe perſons, Exod. 22. 21. 22. Eſay. 1. 17. 23. Jer. 5. 28. Deut. 10. 18. & 14. 29. & 24. 17. 19. and 27. 19.

imagine evil] The inward thought of the heart is the root and beginning of outward violence, and wrong ; And therefore is to be looked to in the firſt place, that this be kept pure and undefiled, as in the ſight of God, as Eph. 6. 5. 6. See Mich. 2. 1. Prov. 21. 2. and 6. 14. 18. and 4. 23. and 23. 26.

v. 11. But they refuſed to hearken] A wilfull diſobedience,obſtinate ſtubborneſs, and intractableneſſe. chap. 1. 4. See 2 Chr. 33. 10. Ezech. 3. 7. Deut. 28. 15. & 30. 17. Great is the evill and danger of this.

and pulled away the ſhoulder] Heb. They gave a back-ſliding ſhoulder. And would not carry the Lords burden, which was ſweet and eaſie ; but would bear their own, which was heavie, and grievous to the fleſh ; thinking to merit thereby : which ſimilitude is taken from yoaked oxen, which ſhrink at the yoke and are unwilling to draw, Nehe. 9. 29. Hoſea 4. 16. Or as he that ſhould carry a burden, but pulls away his ſhoulder, and lets it fall. The caſe is otherwiſe, Zeph. 3. 9.

and ſtopped their ears] Heb. made heavy. An argument of extream contempt, and hatred of the ſpeaker, for the hearer to ſtop his ears at him. See Eſay 6. 10.

v. 12. As an adamant ſtone] See Ezech. 11. 19. & 36. 26. Job 41. 24. Ezech. 3. 9. Harder then the nether milſtone. They heightned their heart to a malitious ſtubborneſs by continual oppoſition to all means of amendment ; that they could no more be wrought upon to receive any impreſſion of remorſe, or reformation, then the diamond, flint, hardeſt rock, or ſtone could be ingraven by the tool of the artificer. See 1 Sam. 6. 6. & Jer. 17. 1. & 6. 28. 29.

leſt they ſhould hear the law] As Pſal. 58. 4. 5. The Law of Moſes was the ſacred rule of obedience ; and obedience ever required to it ; ſeconded with all promiſes and threatnings, Deut. 27. 26. & c. 28. Lev. 26.

in his ſpirit] Which declareth that they rebelled not onely againſt the Prophets, but againſt the Spirit of God that ſpake in them, as Acts 7. 51.

by the former Prophets] Heb. By the hand of, &c. The power and majeſtie of the high Spirit of God ſhined forth in them, and their doctrine ; which rendered the people the more inexcuſable.

therefore there came a great wrath] A great puniſhment, the effect of great anger and diſpleaſure. And the greatneſſe of Gods wrath doth evince the greatneſſe of their ſins ; for God is juſt. And both theſe ſhould have been warning ſufficient to the people to whom Zechary now preacheth ; that they ſhould not now dally with God, and ſerve him with ſhadows and ceremonies, but ſeriouſly repent and amend.

v. 13. Therefore it is come to paſſe] By a juſt and equal retaliation ; when there was now no other remedy ; 2 Chron. 36. 16.

that as he cryed] An admirable mercy of God, that he ſhould deigne to invite man, to call and cry upon him, for his good and ſalvation; ſending his Prophets early and late. See Eze. 18. 31. 32. Jer. 13. 27. Eſay 65. 2.

and they would not hear] An height of impiety in man: And much charged upon ſinners in Scripture. They would not hear, to obey his voyce, and reform their manners.

So they cryed] Jer. 2. 27. Judg. 10 10. 15. Iſaiah 26. 16. Hoſ. 5. 15. in their calamities, for help and ſuccour.

And I would not hear] A moſt juſt retaliation: As they were deaf to God, ſo he to them. Job 27. 9. Prov. 1. 28. Iſa. 1. 15. and 59. 2. and 65. 12. Jer. 1. 11. and 14 12. Micah 23. 4. He would not relieve and comfort them; but left them helpleſs in the hand of their enemies. And this is the great wrath of God indeed. See Jer. 15. 1.

v. 14. But I ſcattered them] Not onely drove them into exile; but therein ſcattered and diſperſed them.

with a whirl-winde] Violently and ſuddenly; as with a ſtrong ſtorm and Tempeſt. See Job. 21. 18. Iſa. 17. 13.

among all the Nations] Of the four quarters of the heavens: See Ezek. 5. 2. among the Aſſyrians, Egyptians, Edomites, Moabites, &c.

whom they knew not] So remote and far off, that they knew not them; or their language; had not heard of them; ſtrangers to the Jews in affection and religion.

Thus the land was deſolate] The mark of Gods vengeance laid upon the land it ſelf, Gods own Land, Becauſe they had defiled it. And to fulfill the threatnings, Levit. 26. 32, 33, 34, 35. 2 Chron. 36. 21.

after them] After they have been carried away out of it: after the murder of Gedaliah; when all the remainder of the people, men, women, and children, fled into Egypt; Jer. 43. 6.

That no man paſſed through] We read not that any Colonies were ſent by the king of Babylon to plant in the Iews room; as was done by the Aſſyrian, in Samaria and Iſrael; 2 Kings 17. Neither that any neighbouring Nation came in to poſſeſſe and inhabit it; nor yet that at the return of the Jews, any were diſplaced to make them room, either by force, or fair means. But God in his judgement and providence, kept it waſte and empty, ready for them at their return; See Iſaiah 60. 15. Ezek. 33. 28. See the like of Babylon, Jer. 50. 13. and 51. 43. and that Zeph. 3. 6.

for they laid] God in his Juſtice; and the Jews by their ſins. Pſal. 107. 34. Dan. 9. 16. the ſins of the Jews waſted their own land more then the armies of the Babylonians.

the pleaſant land] Hebr. land of deſire, meaning Judea. See Pſal. 106. 24. Jer. 3. 19. Iſaiah 62. 3.4. God had made it as his Paradiſe, inriched it with all plenty, and pleaſure; and above all with his preſence and reſidence in his City, & Temple: But they by their ſins laid all deſolate. Lam. 1. 1. and 2. 15. and 4. 12. and 2. 1. 6. 7. and 4. 1. 6. and 5. 18.

CHAP. VIII.

Verſe 1 A*Gain the word*] It appeareth by verſe 19. that this is a continuation of Gods anſwer to the queſtion concerning the ſaid Faſts; And it mainly contains a conſolation by many comfortable Promiſes againſt all ſuch diſcouragements as cauſed them to diſtruſt the good ſucceſſe of things.

v. 2. I was jealous for Zion] Chap. 1. 14. Some take this to be Gods zeal for Zion, his great and ardent height of love to her; and thence ariſing his great fury and wrath againſt her enemies; that he will be her defender, and avenger of them. Others rather underſtand it of his Jealouſie for her. Now Jealouſie is a mixt paſſion in an huſband conſiſting as of a moſt tender love to his wife, and care of her, and his own honour, ſo of a moſt furious rage, and revenge, upon juſt, or evil ſuſpition, of falſe dealings, where this is ſuſpected or known to be violated. And both theſe are compriſed in this verſe.

with great Jealouſie] I loved my city with a ſingular love, ſo that I could not abide that any ſhould do her any injury. Or, as ſome apply it to the particular and preſent occaſion, leſt ſhe ſhould ſin by keeping theſe faſts, in an evil manner.

with great fury] Puniſhing her for her breach of faith, and playing the harlot, with rejection, and baniſhment out of her countrey. This ſeems beſt to ſute with that which follows: though that alſo be a truth, of Gods fury againſt the enemies of his Church, whom he puniſheth for the love he beareth to his Church.

v. 3. Thus ſaith the Lord] This is repeated ſeven times in the nine firſt verſes of this chapter; and ſeven times more in the reſt of this chapter. And all this to ſtrengthen their faith againſt diſtruſt; becauſe the things here promiſed and ſpoken are ſo ſtrange and difficult; yea ſeem to be impoſſible, incredible in their eyes, verſe 6. want of faith to Gods word is a deſtructive ſin, diſhonourable to God, pernitious to man. 1 John 5. 10. John 3. 18.

I am returned unto Zion] Here the decree is put for the thing it ſelf, or the beginning for the perfecting of it: before God was gone away from Zion, Ezek. 10, & 11. chap. he left it waſte as a prophane place, there was no Temple, Altar, Sacrifice, Prieſt, People, Service, City there, God was abſent; now he returns to Zion, to his Church and People there, returns in mercy, grace and favour, he is reconciled to them.

and will dwell, &c.] Not ſtay a while, as Jer. 14. 8. but abide ſtill, reſide and inhabit there, chap. 2. 10. ſee Exod. 25. 8. 1 Kings 6. 13. 2 Chron. 6. 18. Pſal. 68. 16. & 132. 13, 14. ſo that ſhe ſhall not need to fear the threats of their enemies, and ſcoffes at their weak beginnings, like thoſe Neh. 4. 3. Gods preſence ſhall be her ſure help, Pſal. 46. 5. and he will make it the ſetled place of his Glory and worſhip.

ſhall be called a city of truth] She had been falſe and faithleſſe, Iſa. 1. 21. Jer. 2. 20. 21. and therefore caſt off: but now ſhe ſhould be called a City of truth, not only paſſively, becauſe God ſhould truly perform al his promiſes towards her, & verifie them in her; but alſo, and rather actively, becauſe of her verity and fidelity with men, and chiefly for her ſincerity in Gods worſhip, profeſſing, preaching and maintaining it, Iſa. 1. 26. A faithfull City, obſerving faith and loyalty towards God, in cleaving conſtantly to his ſincere Worſhip; whereas all other Cities in the world abroad were full of errours, ſuperſtitions, and abominable idolatries; ſee that Iſa. 26, 1. & 60. 14, 18. Ezek. 48. 35.

the holy mountain] They prophaned and polluted it before, Mal. 1. 7, 12, 13. but now it ſhould be called holy, becauſe of the holy Temple thereon re-edified, and the holy Worſhip of God therein re-eſtabliſhed; ſee Jer. 31. 23. Iſa. 4. 3. Oba. 16. 17. Joel 3. 17. Dan. 9. 16, 20. Iſa. 27. 13 & 56. 7. & 62. 12. & 65. 25. & 66. 20. Gods dwelling in the midſt of his people is to make them holy.

v. 4. There ſhall yet old men] I will bleſſe the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem with peace, and health, and long life: A figure of the ſpirituall bleſſings of the Church, as Iſa. 65. 20, 22. though now they were few in number, and by reaſon of wars, and other troubles, not likely to live long, and to encreaſe to any great multitudes, or to live in peace; yet God promiſeth they ſhall doe both: the ſtreets now deſolate and unfrequented, ſhould be re-peopled; they that were now young ſhould live till decreped old age, they ſhould dye, not by ſtrength of War, but by length of yeers, being kept ſafe under Gods protection, and bleſſed by his dwelling in the midſt of them.

his ſtaffe in his hand] A ſign of a peaceable and proſperous eſtate, wherein men are not cut off untimely by wars, and ſuch like calamities; ſee 1 Sam. 2. 31. Lam. 2. 20, 21, 22. & 5. 11, 12, 13, 14

for very age] Heb. For multitude of days. This was evidently ſeen in Zerubbabel, Joſhua, Ezra, Nehemiah, & others, as ſome conceive.

v. 5. Full of boyes and girles] A ſign of fruitfulneſſe and encreaſe, as Exod. 1. 7. Jer. 31. 27. Eſay 60. 22. & 65. 20, 22.

playing] A ſigne of peace and ſecurity, after the faſhion of children in Towns peaceably inhabited: In time of war and common calamity, it is otherwiſe.

v. 6. If it be mervailous] Or hard, difficult, incredible. This promiſe aforeſaid ſeemed ſtrange to the Jewes, the preſent ſtate of things being conſidered; God therefore by way of prevention, confirms his promiſe, by an argument from his power oppoſed to their incredulity; what is impoſſible with man, is poſſible with God: and he ſheweth ſo, wherein our faith ſtandeth, and whereupon we muſt fix it; not upon our ſenſe or reaſon: he checks this conceit; is it meet to meaſure God by our ſelves? to include his power within the compaſſe of our brains? No, we muſt truſt to his truth and power, who can and will perform that which he hath promiſed, though it ſeem never ſo impoſſible to man, Gen. 18. 14. Luk. 1. 37. & 18. 27. Ro. 4. 17, 22 of the remnant of this people] They ſeeing themſelves ſo ſmall a remnant, were diſcouraged, and grew diſtruſtfull hereupon: And yet this might have ſtrengthned their faith, That ſeeing this ſmall remnant had returned beyond all hope, by Gods power and pleaſure, therefore this might ſerve to help their hope for the time to come.

v. 7. I will ſave my people] God ſets forth his own power, to help forward their faith: ſee Eſay 43. 11, 12. 13. & 48. 15. & 65. 9. Exod. 6. ver. 7.

from the Eaſt Country] Gods promiſe of recollecting the diſperſed Jewes, and reſtoring them to their own home: though they were never ſo much diſperſed and ſcattered, yet that ſhould not hinder the accompliſhment of his promiſe.

and from the weſt country] Heb. The Country of the going down of the Sun. They were moſt carried into Babylon, and thoſe Eaſtern Countries; yet into other parts alſo: And by Eaſt & Weſt here, are meant all quarters of the world: ſee ch. 2. 6. Pſ. 113. 3. Mal. 1. 11. Pſ. 50. 1. This may be applied myſtically to the Church.

v. 8. And they ſhall dwell] The Iewes with whom Zechary had now to deal, miſtruſted all things; they feared they had returned to Ieruſalem but too ſoon, out of too much zeal, the preſent face of things promiſed ſo little good to come; But God by his Prophet tels them here, That they ſhould ſee by the event, that things ſhould fall out otherwiſe; The remnant of the diſperſion ſhould return, come to them, and dwell there. chap. 2. 4. That decree Hoſ. 9. 3. ſhould now be reverſed Ezek. 36. 10, 11. 28. and 37. 25. Ier. 23. 8. Iſaiah 44. 26.

My people] Gods free and gracious Covenant, the fountain of all his favours, which ſeemed for their ſins to be broke off for a time, and the memory of it buried; yet God would not forget; but renew and revive again; conſiſting in a mutuall ſtipulation, for ſubjection in them, and protection in him. See Ier. 13. 11. and 24. 7. and 30. 22. and 31. 33. and 32. 37. 38. beſides many other places.

in Truth, and in righteouſneſſe] Faithfully performing my Promiſe which I have made to them in my Covenant; and inlarging my bounty towards them; which is often ſignified by the word righteouſneſſe. See Hoſ. 2. 19. Or, in truth, on my ſide; Iſaiah 65. 16. and in righteouſneſſe on theirs; Iſaiah 60 21. and 61. 11. and 65. 25. and 46. 13.

v. 9. Let your hands be ſtrong] Hag 2. 4. let neither reſpect of your private commodities, neither counſell of others, nor fear of enemies, diſcourage you in the going forward with the building of the Temple; but let both hearts and hands joyn in ſetting forwards all things belonging to the ſervice of God, and good of the ſtate. This exhortation he preſſeth with much variety, and force of argument, to the ſixteenth verſe. See Ioſh. 1. 6. 7. 9. 18. and 23. 6. Exra 10. 4. Iſaiah 35. 3, 4.

ye that hear in theſe dayes theſe words] There is a force in theſe demonſtrative words to be obſerved: ye preſent, now living, in theſe hopeleſſe dayes; and yet hear and have theſe gratious words of promiſes, to be ſtrong in heart and hand.

by the mouth of the Prophets] Haggai, and Zechariah, who at this time propheſied to the Jews. Ezra. 5. 2.

which were in the day that the foundation] It was but about two years ſince they now had begun to build, Ezra. 5. 2. And yet in that ſhort time, God often called upon them, and encouraged them by his Prophets; and therefore the more blame and ſhame for them if they did not go on in the building, being ſo dayly ſtirred up to it. If we make the words of laying the foundation to relate to that Ezra. 3. 8: Yet thence to this fourth year of Darius Hyſtaſpis, are not many years, but about twelve. But they who underſtand this fourth year to be of Darius Nothus, the ſeventh Perſian Monarch after Cyrus, do finde the years intervening to be 108. And thereupon are much puzled about the long age of Zerubbabel, Joſhua Ezra, and Nehemiah, Haggai, and Zechariah, who yet is called a young man, chap. 2. 4. all of them living then, and now; Ezra, and Nehemiah, we are ſure long after.

that the Temple might be built] This is the main thing urged by the Prophets then, and now. And therefore they muſt ſtrenuouſly, and couragiouſly go on with the work, and hold to it; notwithſtanding all obſtructions; and overcome all difficulties, and tentations to the contrary. Gods word in the mouth of his Prophets is a ſufficient ground, and warrant for them, ſo to do.

there was no hire] Or, the hire of man became nothing, &c. Mens, and beaſts labour, was in vain, by reaſon of the curſe which I laid upon your careleſſneſs in reſtoring my ſervice. Hag. 1. 6. 10. and 2. 15. 16. 17. Mal. 3. 10. 11. He mindes them of this Judgement of famine (as we have need to be often minded in the like caſe) That they ſhould not dare to go on to provoke the Lord any further in ſo ſinfull doing.

any peace] At home, or abroad, in City, or Countery; But wars, and dangers from enemies round about them; who by incurſions, and invaſions did vex, diſquiet, prey, and ſpoil them; ſo that there was no ſafety for travellers, or any body. A ſecond judgement.

becauſe of the affliction] Brought on them by the enemies, who wrought them much miſchief. And theſe were their neighbours, the Samaritans, Ammonites, and other old enemies.

for I ſet all men] Seditions, and civil contentions, grudgings, partakings, factions, whereby they were imbittered one againſt another; as Eſay 9. 20. 21. A third judgement. And here is Gods hand in theſe puniſhments. See on Amos 4. 6. Here is more then a bare Permiſſion; and yet God holy therein, and free, making uſe of their rage to execute his judgements, which they intended not. His hidden counſell, and purpoſe, his ſecret motion herein, appertains not to them; nor excuſeth their ſin.

v. 11. But now] Seeing you have cheerfully gone on to the re-edifying of my Temple; though I am without ſhadow or chang, James 1. 17: Yet my actions ſhall change their nature towards you.

I will not] Be angry, as formerly; nor puniſh you. When our ſins ceaſe, Gods anger ceaſeth.

v. 12. For the ſeed ſhall be proſperous] Heb. of peace. I will ſet down the true occaſions, and means, of a true and perfect peace, and will cauſe it to increaſe and multiply. See Pſa. 72. 3. ye ſhall be free from enemies; all in peace. Or rather, Their ſeed ſhall proſper; They ſhall peaceably ſow; and no floods, or ſtorms, or any hurtfull thing, ſhall annoy their fruits, and harveſt. And this beſt agrees with that which followeth.

the vine] Joel 2. 22. Hag. 2. 19. Hoſ. 2. 21. 22. Huſbandmen ſhall enjoy the benefit of Gods favour, and reap the fruit of their labours; abundance of increaſe, a plentiful crop; through the kindly and ſeaſonable ſhowers that God will ſend: upon whoſe bleſſing in theſe things we muſt wholly depend, Mat. 6. 11 and I will cauſe the remnant] God himſelf will put them in poſſeſſion; and though they were a a poor remnant, yet they ſhould enjoy it quietly in ſpite of all their enemies.

v. 13. as ye were a curſe] A form of execration and curſing; As thus; God do to me, or thee, as he hath done to the Iews; Or, God make thee like a Iew; or the like. Making their calamitie a pattern for any fearful imprecation. See Deut. 28. 37. Ier. 24. 9. & 29. 18. 22. & 42. 18. Pſal. 83. 11. and 102. 8. Thus it was with them, They were odious, and deteſtable to all. when they bewrayed their impiety and ingratitude in not building the Temple; they were fearful examples of Gods horrible wrath.

O houſe of Judah, and houſe of Iſrael] Some make the later only an explicaon of the former, as in Pſal. 14. 7. and 76. 1. See Eſay 48. 1. & 46. 13. But rather we may diſtinctly underſtand them of both kingdoms: for ſome of the ten Tribes alſo did return. Hoſ. 1. 11. Ier. 3. 18. Ezek. 37. As a remnant did eſcape and return of them that fled into Egypt. Compare Ier. 42. 16. 17. with Chap. 44. 28. Divers of the ten Tribes remained in the land, after their general captivity. See 2 Chron. 30. 5, 6. 11. 18. & Chap. 34. 33. And theſe being captived with them of Iudah afterwards, might with them return. That general diſperſion through 127 Provinces in the Perſian Empire, Eſth. 1. 1. with Chap. 3. 8. & Chap. 8. v. 9. argues a kinde of union of Iudah and Iſrael; which might produce a joynt Return of ſome of both. See Ier. 33. 7.

ſhall be a bleſſing] A form to be uſed in bleſſing of others. As the like, Ruth. 4. 11. 12. See Zeph. 3. 20.

fear not] Caſt no doubt, miſtruſt not your own weakneſſe, nor your enemies ſtrength; But go on in the work, and be confident of Gods aid; And he by his power will overcome all impediments, and cleer all obſtructions.

v. 14. As I thought to puniſh you] This, and the next verſe makes a clearer explication of what was formerly ſaid. And here is firſt Gods thought and purpoſe to puniſh their ſins. Sin ever provokes God to wrath and puniſhment.

when your fathers] At that time when your fathers ſo ſinned: not puniſhing the children, for the fathers provocations.

and I repented not] I changed not my minde, becauſe they changed not their maners; but this they got by their obſtinacie in ſin, that I became inflexible, inexorable in rigor to puniſh them; when they made war againſt me, I armed my ſelf for vengeance againſt them; I did as I fore-thought and fore-threatned. Pſal. 18. 26. And the Iews had found by experience that thus far God was as good as his word.

fear ye not] That I will fail of my promiſe. I will ſurely bring to paſſe what I intended for your good. And therefore go on in your building, and expect that which yet appears not; even a full reſtitution, a plenary inſtauration.

v. 16. Theſe are the things] As God will be merciful, ſo they muſt be dutiful. Gods promiſes are conditional; and in his own, he mercifully works the condition it ſelf. And he here tells them what the duties are. They muſt not only build the Temple, and look to Gods ceremonious worſhip, and the obſervation of it; but they muſt chiefly look to Gods moral Law, to perform the main duties of it; Matth. 9. 13.

Speak ye] He inſtanceth in ſome particulars: under them comprehending the reſt.

Every man the truth] Ephſ. 4. 15. Pſal. 25 2. Prov. 12. 19. See Iſaiah 59. 14, 15. Hoſ. 4. 1.

Execute the Judgement of truth and peace] Heb. Judge truth, and the judgement of peace. chap. 7. 9. 10: And herein deal candidly and ſincerely: not fraudulently and deceitfully: as corrupt judges will ſeek to put on fair gloſſes and pretences to cover, and colour, and cunningly to hide their falſe judgements: judge truly according to the rule of the Law, and according to true and right informations, in matters of Fact.

and peace] To compoſe the quarrels and differences between private men; and ſo preſerve the publik peace. Wheras wrong judgements breed more quarrels, to the diſturbance of peace.

in your gates] In the places of juſtice, which were in thoſe times in the entrance of the gates of the cities, Amos 5. 15. 12. See Annot. on Amos 5. 10. Theſe places ſhould be as ſanctuaries of juſtice, and cities of refuge to the oppreſſed.

v. 17. imagine evil] The thoughts and heart are to be holy and charitable. They are the fountain: and God heeds moſt, and examines them. And his Law is ſpiritual; contrary to the corrupt gloſſes of the Phariſees, juſtly taxed by our Saviour, Matth. 5. See Zech. 7. 10. If the Jews do adde the moral duties, to the building of the Temple, then God will be gracious and bountiful unto them.

v. 18. And the word] See on verſe 1.

v. 19. The faſt] After all thoſe more material things formerly premiſed, he now comes to the final deciſion of the main queſtion concerning the faſting propoſed, Chap. 7. 3. The anſwer now is ſoon made: If you will build my houſe, and not imagine evil, to oppreſſe one another; but execute mercy and truth; then I will perform my gracious promiſes made to you, and abundantly bleſſe you: And then this queſtion falls of it ſelf; your Faſts ſhall be turned into Feaſts; ſuch ſhall the change of your ſtate and condition be.

of the fourth moneth] Appointed for a remembrance of the taking of Jeruſalem by the Chaldeans; which was in this moneth, the ninth day, Jer. 39. 2. and 52. 6,7. 2 Kings 25. 3.

and the Faſt of the fifth] For the burning of the Temple, the tenth day of that moneth, that is, three dayes after Nebuzaradan came into the citie; 2 Kings 25. 8. Jer. 52. 12, 13. See on Zech. 12. 5.

Faſt of the ſeventh] For the death of Gedaliah, Jer. 41.1, &c. Zech. 7. 5.

Faſt of the tenth] For the ſiege laid before Jeruſalem, Jer. 52.4. 2 King. 25.1. in the tenth day. Theſe faſts are not blamed here as unwarrantably undertaken.

joy and gladneſſe] And therefore no more fit to be times of faſts. Joy and ſorrow, as light and darkneſs, expel one another.

and chearful Feaſts] Heb. ſolemn or ſet times of feaſts. Your ſolemn feaſts appointed by God in his Law; and interrupted, and left off all the time of your captivity, ſhall now be revived, and celebrated by you: as ye began Ezra 3. v. 4.

therefore] An injunction, to be ſure to obſerve that which God moſt required, and they moſt neglected: if they would hope and have thoſe good things come to paſſe.

Love the truth] The ſubſtance of religion; in obedience to God, and charity to our Neighbour: and heed not ſo much thoſe outward ceremonies, and bodily exerciſes. And love is required to truth; Rom. 12 9. Amos 5. 15. Pſalm 119. 20. 40. 47. 97. 131.

and peace] Peaceable dealings; the judgement of peace; v. 16. Not quarreling for old cuſtoms. And this will bring you peace with God, and proſperitie in the world. Look to theſe.

v. 20. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts] To bring credit and authority to the enſuing propheſie; The matter of it being ſo incredible to them, who for the preſent ſaw all things in ſo poor and deſpicable a condition, that they half repented that they were returned; as the Jews in the wilderneſſe, after their coming out of Egypt; and thinking themſelves deluded, were rather minded to return into Babylon again. Scarce poſſible was it for them in this caſe to believe theſe, and the like glorious promiſes, as that Hag. 2. 9. This preface therefore was moſt neceſſary for them.

it ſhall yet come to paſſe] Yet hereafter; though there be ſo unlikely an appearance for the preſent. He amplifies the former joy, by adding Evangelical promiſes, concerning the ſpiritual kingdom of Chriſt; and the great and eager confluence and acceſſe of the Gentiles to it, and the glory of the Jews by it.

Come people] See on Micah 4. 1, 2. come and be converted; and joyn themſelves to the Church.

many cities] Many, & great cities of the Gentiles for all their greatneſſe, yet ſhall they ſubmit and ſubject themſelves.

v. 21. Let us go] In going let us go. See on Eſay 2. verſe 3. and on Micah 4.2. The zeal of converts to convert others. See Pſal. 122. 1. and 95. 1, 2. Jer. 31. 6.

ſpeedily] Or, continually: Heb. going.

to pray] Heb. To entreat the face of the Lord. See on C. 7. 2. & on Zeph. 2. v. 3. Am. 5. v. 4,6. Hoſ. 5.15. Prayer is the chief part, and duty of Gods worſhip; taken for the whole. And they ſeek him, as moſt deſirous to finde him and his favour; to know him and his will; that they may obey him and it, as their onely guide and aim, Pſal. 119. 105.

I will go alſo] Every one was as forward to ſerve God himſelf, as he was deſirous for another to do it. That is true zealous charity, which neither leaveth others behinde, nor thruſteth others before it. Not like that of the Phariſees, Matth. 23. 4.

v. 22. Yea, many people, and ſtrong nations] Not a few poor ones; but many and mighty, potent and populous. Eſay 66.8. 12. 20. 23. & 49. 19. 20, 21. 22. & 54. 1,2,3. & 60. 3,4,5,11,12.

in Jeruſalem] Typically; becauſe at this time Gods worſhip being onely there, all converts were to reſort thither. So that this Temple now in building ſhould become in a kinde common to the Gentiles; a Temple alſo for them and their uſe. Not yet that they ſhould keep and obſerve the Levitical ſacrifices, and ſervices there; But becauſe the word of the Lord ſhould go forth from Jeruſalem, wch being now the only Church of God; and therefore ſo often taken for a Type of Chriſts Church under the Goſpel; ſhould be the mother Church, whence the Goſpel ſhould proceed, Eſay 2. v. 3. Pſal. 110. 2. See the like Eſay 66. 23. and Zech. 14. 16.

v. 23. ten men ſhall take hold] Ten men taken for many; as Gen. 31. 41. Lev. 26. 26. Job 19.3. In the dayes of publication of the Goſpel, they who are now ſo averſe, ſuch enemies, ſhall become thus eager and earneſt, to embrace the Goſpel. There ſhall be no need of arms, and coaction to enforce them; they ſhall be ſuch a willing people, Pſal 110.3. They ſhal come on thus, and come in with this unity, unanimity, conſent, humility, and fervency.

out of all languages of the nations] We ſee no language or nation excepted. So largely ſhall the kingdom of Chriſt, and the Goſpel ſpread. See C. 2. 11. Eſay 66. 18. Dan. 7. 14. Apoc. 5.9. & 7.2. Pſal. 9.8. Acts 10.35. Though they ſhall not underſtand one anothers language, yet they ſhall agree in this one underſtanding, by Gods ſacred and ſecret inſtinct and motion of his Spirit, and ſhall ſpeak this language of Canaan, Eſay 19.18.

of the skirt of him that is a Jew] Ten men, of one Jew; whom they ſo hated and ſcorned before; yet now they ſhould take no ſcorn to cleave unto them, to humble and ſubmit unto them, to learn of them, and become their diſciples, hang upon them, and run after them, as little children do when they catch hold on their mothers garments, Eſay 55. 5. Thus they flocked to Paul, and the other Apoſtles, Gal. 4.15. And indeed to the Jews was the Goſpel firſt preached; and next by the Jews to the Gentiles, Acts 13 46. And the believing Jews thought not now themſelves diſparaged, nor their glory eclipſed by the acceſs of the Gentiles; but rather gloried in it, as juſtly they might. And thus was the old propheſie fulfilled, Gen. 9.27.

we will go with you] In the worſhip and ſervice of the true God. And the reaſon follows.

for we have heard] By your preaching, Rom. 10. 17.

that God is with you] Rightly known and worſhipped, onely among you Jews, or in the Church; but not among us, who are ignorant idolatrous Gentiles. Therfore they thus catch hold of them, uſe the help and miniſtery of men, to ſeek and finde God among them, verſ. 22. See 1 Cor. 14.25. Great and glorious was this prerogative of the Jews, which afterwards they loſt by their infidelity.

CHAP. IX.

Verſe 1. T*He burden*] Here begins the third main ſermon of Zecharie, & continues to the end of the eleventh Chapter. And contains a propheſie, 1. againſt the enemies of the Jews to the 9. verſe. Secondly of the coming of Chriſt, and of his kingdom, and the bleſſings of it; to the 11. Chap. And thirdly of the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and the rejection of the Jews for their rejecting of Chriſt. Chap. 11.

The burden of the word of the Lord] His burdenſome word. A propheſie of heavy and ſad, great and grievous threatnings and curſes; A propheſie of threatnings and curſes againſt the bordering enemies of Gods people. See Eſay 13. 1. Jer. 23. 33. which burden they ſhould not be able to ſhake off from their ſhoulders. in the land] Or, upon, againſt the land.

of Hadrach] Not elſewhere in Scripture mentioned. Some ſay without any proof, that it was an idol of the Syrians, which repreſented the Sun. And that the Prophet calleth that countrey or ſome part of it by the name of the idol: as Eſay 8. 8. is Immanuels land, and the like Jer. 48. 46. and Hoſ. 10. 5. Others underſtand only by this, the countreys bordering round about Judea; taking the word to be a Syriack word of that ſignification: which language was in uſe with the nations here threatned. The like, they ſay, is Iſai. 14.1. Jer. 25. 36. &c. 51. 41. But rather it ſeems to be the name, not of a man, but of ſome city, neer to Damaſcus and Hamath; or of ſome particular region in Syria.

ſhall be the reſt thereof] Theſe threatnings ſhall fall, and be executed upon Damaſcus; this burden ſhall ſit and reſt there, as in its place of reſidence; ſettle there till it conſumes them. It ſhall not be like a ſudden ſtorm, ſoon gone; but as in Eſay 9.8. and Pſ. 125.3. it ſhall fix and maintain its ſtation in that royal city of the Syrians; they ſhall not be able to ſhake the burden of it from off their ſhoulders, or any way to eſcape it.

when the eyes of man] Heb. for the Lords eye is upon man, as on all the Trybes of Iſrael. He giveth a reaſon why the burden and words of the Prophet were directed to the Heathen nations: namely becauſe Gods providence doth not govern his people alone, but the whole world; for God hath an eye upon all men. See Ch. 3.9. & 4.10. & 5.6. Gen. 18. 25. But with leſſe ſtraining we may underſtand it of the eyes of man, and that not of all mankinde, or the Gentiles: but of the Jews, of all the tribes of Iſrael; when the eyes of that people, as of one man ſhall unanimouſly look up towards the Lord,for aid and help againſt their enemies ; and they convert,as their eyes ; ſo their heart to him by true repentance, Then ſhall the burdenſome word of the Lord light, and lye upon their enemies.

toward the Lord] And not toward idols, or images.

v. 2. And Hamath] See on Amos 6. 2. 3. Some take this to be Antiochia.

ſhall border thereby] Heb. And he alſo ſhal border Hamath thereby. Meaning, that eye of Providence ſhall limit, that is, ſhall ſtay the courſe of the power,, conqueſts and enterpriſes of Hamath, chief city of Syria. See Eſay 7. 8. 9. Jere. 49.23. Or rather thus ; Hamath ſhall ſhare in the burden, bear a part in the puniſhment. At Riblah in Hamath, much cruelty had been exerciſed upon the Jews ; and the Syrians generally had been their cruell enemies, God now will be the avenger of his people againſt them. To interpret this of the Hamathites converſion, is far from the Prophets meaning,& tenour of the context.

and Zidon] Called great Sidon, or Zidon, Joſh. 11. 8. An ancient and famous City, named likely of Sidon the eldeſt Son of Canaan, Gene. 10. 15. Of great traffick and Marchandize, lying on the Weſtern Ocean, North, North Eaſt from Tyre, nigh to Zebulon, Gene. 49. 13. Allotted to Aſher, but they got not the poſſeſſion of it Judg. 1. 31. & 3. 3. But the Sidonians oppreſſed the Iſraelites, Judg. 10. 12. though it be very wiſe] In worldly wiſdom, which is attributed to the Tyrians, Ezek. 28. 3. 4. 5. 12. 17. The ſingular number here may be diſtributively applied to each of them : Merchants are wiſe, and cunning : upon which thoſe Cities founded their greatneſs. They were enemies to the Jews, proud, inſolent, and cruel to them, in the time of the deſolation of their ſtate. And therefore God here threatens revenge, which they ſhould not eſcape, for all their wiſdom. Job 5. 11. 13 Theſe words have the touch of an Ironicall mock, as that Eze. 28. 3.

and heaped up ſilver] Money, the other ſinew of war, and this heaped up in all abundance. See 1 Kin. 10. 27. Which abundance of treaſure it was not hard for the Tyrians to gather together ; conſidering the long, and great trade, which all nations of the world uſed there ; as is largely deſcribed, Ezek. 27. So that Tyre thought her ſelf impregnable.

v. 4. Behold the Lord] Neither her wit, wealth, or ſtrength ſhould avail her againſt the Lord ; or ſave her from ruin. The Lord will ſcatter her wealth, and impoveriſh her. And though ſhe be ſeated in an Iſland in the ſea, and be never ſo powerfull by ſea, and ſhipping ; yet the Lord will ſmite her power in the ſea. Prov. 21. 30. Eſay 29. 16.

devoured with fire] That is conſumed, a Metaphor from ravenous beaſts. Though Tyrus was ſeated in the midſt of the waters, yet ſhall ſhe be devoured with fire : if God kindle the flame, nothing ſhall quench it.

v. 5. Aſhkelon] See on Zeph. 2. 4.

ſhall ſee it, and fear] This, and the following Cities of the Philiſtines, who dwelt a long the ſeacoaſt, ſouthward of Tyre and Sidon, from whence this ſtorm was next to come upon them ; who alſo evermore had been the Jews bitter enemies, and ſtill were after their return from Babylon, They ſhall ſee the deſtruction of Hadrach, Damaſcus, Hamath, Tyre, and Zidon ; and fear, the like to fall upon them. As it did moſt of all by Alexander the great.

for her expectation ſhall be aſhamed] She aſhamed of it ; being deceived and deſtitute of ſuch ſuccour and help as ſhe looked for, from her potent, but then impoveriſhed friends, which could not ſave themſelves, much leſs others. Specially they were aſtoniſhed when they ſaw Tyre fall.

and Aſhkelon ſhall not be inhabited] The inhabitants being waſted by war, or carried captive, it ſhalbe diſpeopled & deſolate.

v. 6. And a Baſtard] Not their legitimate king, or Governor : But a mingled multitude of ſtrange nations gathered together; as baſtards in a family ; which intrude upon others rights, or if any of Aſhdod remain, they ſhall be but as ſtrangers there without a certain ſeat of abode ; as pilgrims are in a forraign ſoil.

and I will cut off the pride of the Philiſtines] Their wealth, ſtrength, and all other things that made them ſwell with pride, and inſolency againſt their poor neighbours the Jews. In the time between the Jews return out of the Babylonian captivity, and the coming of our Saviour, the Philiſtines were throughly plagued ; partly by Alexander the Great and his ſucceſſors, the Seleucidæ and Lagidæ, and partly by the Jews in the times of the Maccabees, and before, as hiſtories do record, ſee c. 2. 9. Obed. 20. Zeph. 2. 4. For further knowledge of the Philiſtines, ſo much mentioned in Scripture, we finde this: that they came of Cham. Gen. 10. 6. 13. 14. They inhabited the weſt border of Canaan, adjoyning to the Mediterran ſea,& maintained ſtil their poſſeſſion there, though it were given moſt to the tribe of Judah, Joſh. 15. In Abrahams, and Iſaacs time, Abimelech was king of Gerar, one of their Cities. In the times of the Judges, they were divided into five Lordſhips, Judg. 3. 3. And ſo in the beginning of Samuels time, 1 Sam. 6. 16. 17. They oppreſſed Iſrael in the dayes of Sampſon, Eli, Saul, Jehoram, Ahaz. They took the Ark of God in battell, and placed it in the Temple of Dagon their Idol. They ſlew Saul, and Jonathan. They were ſlain in great numbers by Sampſon. Samuel overcomes them ; and Saul got two great victories over them; one occaſioned by Jonathan, 1 Sam. 13. 14. chapters, another by Davids ſlaying of Goliath, 1 Sam. 17. After Sauls death ; though David had formerly fled to Achiſh, King of Gath, for ſhelter againſt Saul, firſt in danger there, 1 Sam. 21. And a ſecond time, upon better ſecurity, 1 Sam. 27. Yet being now king, he overcomes them in four battels, wherein four gyants the brethren of Goliath of Gath were ſlain, 2 Sam. 21. 15—22. Afterwards Uzziah, and Hezekiah prevail over them. And after, they were overcome by the Egyptians ; and by the Babylonians.

even he ſhall be for our God] Even that poor, ignoble, and contemptible remnant of the Jews, ſhall be for our God, ſhall be in his care, protection, favour, and in his account.

and he ſhall be as a Governour in Judah] Not only of higheſt rank, and chiefeſt eſteem with God, as Governours are in a Common-wealth ; but alſo he ſhall be free, and have command and rule over others; albeit he had been now a long time a ſervant himſelf. Others thus, Though not ſuitable to the words and context, I will take away, and pardon his ſins : And the Remainder of them, according to the election of grace, ſhalbe as it were, endenized among my people, and ſhall be honourable among them. becauſe of the army] Of the enemy ; to oppoſe it ; and ſhield his Church, Pſal. 3. 1. 3. 6. & 27. 1. 2. 3.

becauſe of him that paſſeth by] The enemy ranging up and down, paſſing to and fro, with his armies. This may have referance to the invaſions and incurſions of the Seleucidæ, and Lagidæ, among others.

becauſe of him that returneth] Again, and again, with freſh onſets, againſt my Houſe, and people. Though the enemies be numerous in armies, obſtinate in malicious cruelties, and often recruit their forces, yet God will be a ſure ſhield, and ſafegard unto them, Pſal. 17. 9. 11. 12. 13. & 18 1. 2.

That no man paſſed through] We read not that any Colonies were ſent by the king of Babylon to plant in the Iews room; as was done by the Aſſyrian, in Samaria and Iſrael; 2 Kings 17. Neither that any neighbouring Nation came in to poſſeſſe and inhabit it; nor yet that at the return of the Jews, any were diſplaced to make them room, either by force, or fair means. But God in his judgement and providence, kept it waſte and empty, ready for them at their return; See Iſaiah 60. 15. Ezek. 33. 28. CHAP. VIII.

Verſe 1 A*Gain the word*] It appeareth by verſe 19. that this is a continuation of Gods anſwer to the queſtion concerning the ſaid Faſts; And it mainly contains a conſolation by many comfortable Promiſes againſt all ſuch diſcouragements as cauſed them to diſtruſt the good ſucceſſe of things.

v. 2. I was jealous for Zion] Chap. 1. 14 Some take this to be Gods zeal for Zion, his great and ardent height of love to her; and thence ariſing his great fury and wrath againſt her enemies; that he will be her defender, and avenger of them. Others rather underſtand it of his Jealouſie for her. Now Jealouſie is a mixt paſſion in an huſband conſiſting as of a moſt tender love to his wife, and care of her, and his own honour, ſo of a moſt furious rage, and revenge, upon juſt, or evil ſuſpition, of falſe dealings, where this is ſuſpected or known to be violated. And both theſe are compriſed in this verſe.

with great Jealouſie] I loved my city with a ſingular love, ſo that I could not abide that any ſhould do her any injury. Or, as ſome apply it to the particular and preſent occaſion, leſt ſhe ſhould ſin by keeping theſe faſts, in an evil manner.

with great fury] Puniſhing her for her breach of faith, and playing the harlot, with rejection, and baniſhment out of her countrey. This ſeems beſt to ſute with that which follows: though that alſo be a truth, of Gods fury againſt the enemies of his Church, whom he puniſheth for the love he beareth to his Church.

v. 3. Thus ſaith the Lord] This is repeated ſeven times in the nine firſt verſes of this chapter; and ſeven times more in the reſt of this chapter. And all this to ſtrengthen their faith againſt diſtruſt; becauſe the things here promiſed and ſpoken are ſo ſtrange and difficult; yea ſeem to be impoſſible, incredible in their eyes, verſe 6. want of faith to Gods word is a deſtructive ſin, diſhonourable to God, pernitious to man. 1 John 5. 10. John 3. 18.

I am returned unto Zion]Here the decree is put for the thing it ſelf, or the beginning for the perfecting of it: before God was gone away from Zion, Ezek. 10, & 11. chap. he left it waſte as a prophane place, there was no Temple, Altar, Sacrifice, Prieſt, People, Service, City there, God was abſent; now he returns to Zion, to his Church and People there, returns in mercy, grace and favour, he is reconciled to them.

and will dwell, &c.] Not ſtay a while, as Jer. 14. 8. but abide ſtill, reſide and inhabit there, chap. 2. 10. ſee Exod. 25. 8. 1 Kings 6. 13. 2 Chron. 6. 18. Pſal. 68. 16. & 132. 13, 14. ſo that ſhe ſhall not need to fear the threats of their enemies, and ſcoffes at their weak beginnings, like thoſe Neh. 4. 3. Gods preſence ſhall be her ſure help, Pſal. 46. 5. and he will make it the ſetled place of his Glory and worſhip.

ſhall be called a city of truth] She had been falſe and faithleſſe, Iſa. 1. 21. Jer. 2. 20. 21. and therefore caſt off: but now ſhe ſhould be called a City of truth, not only paſſively, becauſe God ſhould truly perform al his promiſes towards her, & verifie them in her; but alſo, and rather actively, becauſe of her verity and fidelity with men, and chiefly for her ſincerity in Gods worſhip, profeſſing, preaching and maintaining it, Iſa. 1. 26. A faithfull City, obſerving faith and loyalty towards God, in cleaving conſtantly to his ſincere Worſhip; whereas all other Cities in the world abroad were full of errours, ſuperſtitions, and abominable idolatries; ſee that Iſa. 26, 1. & 60. 14, 18. the holy mountain] They prophaned and polluted it before, Mal. 1. 7, 12, 13. but now it ſhould be called holy, becauſe of the holy Temple thereon re-edified, and the holy Worſhip of God therein re-eſtabliſhed; ſee Jer. 31. 23. Iſa. 4. 3. Oba. 16. 17. Joel 3. 17. Dan. 9. 16, 20. Iſa. 27. 13 & 56. 7. & 62. 12. & 65. 25. & 66. 20. Gods dwelling in the midſt of his people is to make them holy.

v. 4. There ſhall yet old men] I will bleſſe the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem with peace, and health, and long life: A figure of the ſpirituall bleſſings of the Church, as Iſa. 65. 20, 22. though now they were few in number, and by reaſon of wars, and other troubles, not likely to live long, and to encreaſe to any great multitudes, or to live in peace; yet God promiſeth they ſhall doe both: the ſtreets now deſolate and unfrequented, ſhould be re-peopled; they that were now young ſhould live till decreped old age, they ſhould dye, not by ſtrength of War, but by length of yeers, being kept ſafe under Gods protection, and bleſſed by his dwelling in the midſt of them.

his ſtaffe in his hand] A ſign of a peaceable and proſperous eſtate, wherein men are not cut off untimely by wars, and ſuch like calamities; ſee 1 Sam. 2. 31. Lam. 2. 20, 21, 22. & 5. 11, 12, 13, 14

for very age]Heb. For multitude of days. This was evidently ſeen in Zerubbabel, Joſhua, Ezra, Nehemiah, & others, as ſome conceive.

v. 5. Full of boyes and girles] A ſign of fruitfulneſſe and encreaſe, as Exod. 1. 7. Jer. 31. 27. Eſay 60. 22. & 65. 20, 22.

playing] A ſigne of peace and ſecurity, after the faſhion of children in Towns peaceably inhabited: In time of war and common calamity, it is otherwiſe.

v. 6. If it be mervailous] Or hard, difficult, incredible. This promiſe aforeſaid ſeemed ſtrange to the Jewes, the preſent ſtate of things being conſidered; God therefore by way of prevention, confirms his promiſe, by an argument from his power oppoſed to their incredulity; what is impoſſible with man, is poſſible with God: and he ſheweth ſo, wherein our faith ſtandeth, and whereupon we muſt fix it; not upon our ſenſe or reaſon: he checks this conceit; is it meet to meaſure God by our ſelves? to include his power within the compaſſe of our brains? No, we muſt truſt to his truth and power, who can and will perform that which he hath promiſed, though it ſeem never ſo impoſſible to man, Gen. 18. 14. Luk. 1. 37. & 18. 27. Ro. 4. 17, 22 of the remnant of this people] They ſeeing themſelves ſo ſmall a remnant, were diſcouraged, and grew diſtruſtfull hereupon: And yet this might have ſtrengthned their faith, That ſeeing this ſmall remnant had returned beyond all hope, by Gods power and pleaſure, therefore this might ſerve to help their hope for the time to come.

v. 7. I will ſave my people] God ſets forth his own power, to help forward their faith: ſee Eſay 43. 11, 12. 13. & 48. 15. & 65. 9. Exod. 6. ver. 7.

from the Eaſt Country] Gods promiſe of recollecting the diſperſed Jewes, and reſtoring them to their own home: though they were never ſo much diſperſed and ſcattered, yet that ſhould not hinder the accompliſhment of his promiſe.

and from the weſt country]Heb. The Country of the going down of the Sun. They were moſt carried into Babylon, and thoſe Eaſtern Countries; yet into other parts alſo: And by Eaſt & Weſt here, are meant all quarters of the world: ſee ch. 2. 6. Pſ. 113. 3. Mal. 1. 11. Pſ. 50. 1. This may be applied myſtically to the Church.

v. 8. And they ſhall dwell] The Iewes with whom Zechary had now to deal, miſtruſted all things; they feared they had returned to Ieruſalem but too ſoon, out of too much zeal, the preſent face of things promiſed ſo little good to come; But God by his Prophet tels them here, That they ſhould ſee by the event, that things ſhould fall out otherwiſe; The remnant of the diſperſion ſhould return, come to them, and dwell there. chap. 2. 4. My people] Gods free and gracious Covenant, the fountain of all his favours, which ſeemed for their ſins to be broke off for a time, and the memory of it buried; yet God would not forget; but renew and revive again; conſiſting in a mutuall ſtipulation, for ſubjection in them, and protection in him. See Ier. 13. 11. and 24. 7. and 30. 22. and 31. 33. and 32. 37. 38. beſides many other places.

v. 9. Let your hands be ſtrong] Hag 2. 4. let neither reſpect of your private commodities, neither counſell of others, nor fear of enemies, diſcourage you in the going forward with the building of the Temple; but let both hearts and hands joyn in ſetting forwards all things belonging to the ſervice of God, and good of the ſtate. This exhortation he preſſeth with much variety, and force of argument, to the ſixteenth verſe. See Ioſh. 1. 6. 7. 9. 18. and 23. 6. Exra 10. 4. Iſaiah 35. 3, 4.

ye that hear in theſe dayes theſe words] There is a force in theſe demonſtrative words to be obſerved: ye preſent, now living, in theſe hopeleſſe dayes; and yet hear and have theſe gratious words of promiſes, to be ſtrong in heart and hand.

by the mouth of the Prophets] Haggai, and Zechariah, who at this time propheſied to the Jews. Ezra. 5. 2.

which were in the day that the foundation] It was but about two years ſince they now had begun to build, Ezra. 5. 2. And yet in that ſhort time, God often called upon them, and encouraged them by his Prophets; and therefore the more blame and ſhame for them if they did not go on in the building, being ſo dayly ſtirred up to it. If we make the words of laying the foundation to relate to that Ezra. 3. 8: Yet thence to this fourth year of Darius Hyſtaſpis, are not many years, but about twelve. But they who underſtand this fourth year to be of Darius Nothus, the ſeventh Perſian Monarch after Cyrus, do finde the years intervening to be 108. And thereupon are much puzled about the long age of Zerubbabel, Joſhua Ezra, and Nehemiah, Haggai, and Zechariah, who yet is called a young man, chap. 2. 4. all of them living then, and now; Ezra, and Nehemiah, we are ſure long after.

that the Temple might be built] This is the main thing urged by the Prophets then, and now. And therefore they muſt ſtrenuouſly, and couragiouſly go on with the work, and hold to it; notwithſtanding all obſtructions; and overcome all difficulties, and tentations to the contrary. Gods word in the mouth of his Prophets is a ſufficient ground, and warrant for them, ſo to do.

there was no hire] Or, the hire of man became nothing, &c. Mens, and beaſts labour, was in vain, by reaſon of the curſe which I laid upon your careleſſneſs in reſtoring my ſervice. any peace] At home, or abroad, in City, or Countery; But wars, and dangers from enemies round about them; who by incurſions, and invaſions did vex, diſquiet, prey, and ſpoil them; ſo that there was no ſafety for travellers, or any body. A ſecond judgement.

becauſe of the affliction] Brought on them by the enemies, who wrought them much miſchief. And theſe were their neighbours, the Samaritans, Ammonites, and other old enemies.

for I ſet all men] Seditions, and civil contentions, grudgings, partakings, factions, whereby they were imbittered one againſt another; as Eſay 9. 20. 21. A third judgement. And here is Gods hand in theſe puniſhments. See on Amos 4. 6. Here is more then a bare Permiſſion; and yet God holy therein, and free, making uſe of their rage to execute his judgements, which they intended not. His hidden counſell, and purpoſe, his ſecret motion herein, appertains not to them; nor excuſeth their ſin.

v. 11. But now] Seeing you have cheerfully gone on to the re-edifying of my Temple; though I am without ſhadow or chang, James 1. 17: Yet my actions ſhall change their nature towards you.

I will not] Be angry, as formerly; nor puniſh you. When our ſins ceaſe, Gods anger ceaſeth.

and I will cauſe the remnant] God himſelf will put them in poſſeſſion; and though they were a a poor remnant, yet they ſhould enjoy it quietly in ſpite of all their enemies.

v. 13. as ye were a curſe] A form of execration and curſing; As thus; God do to me, or thee, as he hath done to the Iews; Or, God make thee like a Iew; or the like. Making their calamitie a pattern for any fearful imprecation. See Deut. 28. 37. Ier. 24. 9. & 29. 18. 22. & 42. 18. Pſal. 83. 11. and 102. 8. Thus it was with them, They were odious, and deteſtable to all. when they bewrayed their impiety and ingratitude in not building the Temple; they were fearful examples of Gods horrible wrath.

O houſe of Judah, and houſe of Iſrael] Some make the later only an explicaon of the former, as in Pſal. 14. 7. and 76. 1. See Eſay 48. 1. & 46. 13. But rather we may diſtinctly underſtand them of both kingdoms: for ſome of the ten Tribes alſo did return. Hoſ. 1. 11. Ier. 3. 18. Ezek. 37. As a remnant did eſcape and return of them that fled into Egypt. Compare Ier. 42. 16. 17. with Chap. 44. 28. Divers of the ten Tribes remained in the land, after their general captivity. See 2 Chron. 30. 5, 6. 11. 18. & Chap. 34. 33. And theſe being captived with them of Iudah afterwards, might with them return. That general diſperſion through 127 Provinces in the Perſian Empire, Eſth. 1. 1. with Chap. 3. 8. & Chap. 8. v. 9. argues a kinde of union of Iudah and Iſrael; which might produce a joynt Return of ſome of both. See Ier. 33. 7.

fear not] Caſt no doubt, miſtruſt not your own weakneſſe, nor your ene mies ſtrength; But go on in the work, and be confident of Gods aid; And he by his power will overcome all impediments, and cleer all obſtructions.

v. 14. As I thought to puniſh you] This, and the next verſe makes a clearer explication of what was formerly ſaid. And here is firſt Gods thought and purpoſe to puniſh their ſins. Sin ever provokes God to wrath and puniſhment.

when your fathers] At that time when your fathers ſo ſinned: not puniſhing the children, for the fathers provocations.

and I repented not] I changed not my minde, becauſe they changed not their maners; but this they got by their obſtinacie in ſin, that I became inflexible, inexorable in rigor to puniſh them; when they made war againſt me, I armed my ſelf for vengeance againſt them; I did as I fore-thought and fore-threatned. Pſal. 18. 26. And the Iews had found by experience that thus far God was as good as his word.

v. 15. So again have I thought] Here is Gods purpoſe to ſhew mercy unto them. He changeth not in himſelf; but in his actions towards the ſeveral conditions of the ſons of men; and he changeth their hearts, when he will do well unto them.

fear ye not] That I will fail of my promiſe. I will ſurely bring to paſſe what I intended for your good. And therefore go on in your building, and expect that which yet appears not; even a full reſtitution, a plenary iuſtauration.

v. 16. Theſe are the things] As God will be merciful, ſo they muſt be dutiful. Gods promiſes are conditional; and in his own, he mercifully works the condition it ſelf. And he here tells them what the duties are. They muſt not only build the Temple, and look to Gods ceremonious worſhip, and the obſervation of it; but they muſt chiefly look to Gods moral Law, to perform the main duties of it; Matth. 9. 13.

Speak ye] He inſtanceth in ſome particulars: under them comprehending the reſt.

Every man the truth] Ephſ. 4. 15. Pſal. 25 2. Prov. 12. 19. See Iſaiah 59. 14, 15. Hoſ. 4. 1.

Execute the Judgement of truth and peace] Heb. Judge truth, and the judgement of peace. chap. 7. 9. 10: And herein deal candidly and ſincerely: not fraudulently and deceitfully: as corrupt judges will ſeek to put on fair gloſſes and pretences to cover, and colour, and cunningly to hide their falſe judgements: judge truly according to the rule of the Law, and according to true and right informations, in matters of Fact.

and peace] To compoſe the quarrels and differences between private men; and ſo preſerve the publik peace. Wheras wrong judgements breed more quarrels, to the diſturbance of peace.

in your gates] In the places of juſtice, which were in thoſe times in the entrance of the gates of the cities, Amos 5. 15. 12. See Annot. on Amos 5. 10. Theſe places ſhould be as ſanctuaries of juſtice, and cities of refuge to the oppreſſed.

v. 17. imagine evil] The thoughts and heart are to be holy and charitable. They are the fountain: and God heeds moſt, and examines them. And his Law is ſpiritual; contrary to the corrupt gloſſes of the Phariſees, juſtly taxed by our Saviour, Matth. 5. See Zech. 7. 10. If the Jews do adde the moral duties, to the building of the Temple, then God will be gracious and bountiful unto them.

and love no falſe oath] Chap. 5.8. Pſal. 15.4. and 24.4. Ezek. 17. verſ. 18,19. Jer 5.2. Joſh.9.19.

v. 18. And the word] See on verſe 1.

v.19. The faſt] After all thoſe more material things formerly premiſed, he now comes to the final deciſion of the main queſtion concerning the faſting propoſed, Chap. 7. 3. The anſwer now is ſoon made: If you will build my houſe, and not imagine evil, to oppreſſe one another; but execute mercy and truth; then I will perform my gracious promiſes made to you, and abundantly bleſſe you: And then this queſtion falls of it ſelf; your Faſts ſhall be turned into Feaſts; ſuch ſhall the change of your ſtate and condition be.

of the fourth moneth] Appointed for a remembrance of the taking of Jeruſalem by the Chaldeans; which was in this moneth, the ninth day, Jer. 39. 2. and 52. 6,7. 2 Kings 25. 3.

and the Faſt of the fifth] For the burning of the Temple, the tenth day of that moneth, that is, three dayes after Nebuzaradan came into the citie; 2 Kings 25. 8. Jer. 52. 12, 13. See on Zech. 12. 5.

Faſt of the ſeventh] For the death of Gedaliah, Jer. 41.1,&c. Zech. 7. 5.

Faſt of the tenth] For the ſiege laid before Jeruſalem, Jer. 52.4. 2 King. 25.1. in the tenth day. Theſe faſts are not blamed here as unwarrantably undertaken.

joy and gladneſſe] And therefore no more fit to be times of faſts. Joy and ſorrow, as light and darkneſs, expel one another.

and chearful Feaſts] Heb. ſolemn or ſet times of feaſts. Your ſolemn feaſts appointed by God in his Law; and interrupted, and left off all the time of your captivity, ſhall now be revived, and celebrated by you: as ye began Ezra 3. v. 4.

Love the truth] The ſubſtance of religion; in obedience to God, and charity to our Neighbour: and heed not ſo much thoſe outward ceremonies, and bodily exerciſes. And love is required to truth; Rom. 12 9. Amos 5. 15. Pſalm 119. 20. 40. 47. 97. 131.

and peace] Peaceable dealings; the judgement of peace; v. 16. Not quarreling for old cuſtoms. And this will bring you peace with God, and proſperitie in the world. Look to theſe.

v. 20. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts] To bring credit and authority to the enſuing propheſie; The matter of it being ſo incredible to them, who for the preſent ſaw all things in ſo poor and deſpicable a condition, that they half repented that they were returned; as the Jews in the wilderneſſe, after their coming out of Egypt; and thinking themſelves deluded, were rather minded to return into Babylon again. Scarce poſſible was it for them in this caſe to believe theſe, and the like glorious promiſes, as that Hag. 2. 9. This preface therefore was moſt neceſſary for them.

it ſhall yet come to paſſe] Yet hereafter; though there be ſo unlikely an appearance for the preſent. He amplifies the former joy, by adding Evangelical promiſes, concerning the ſpiritual kingdom of Chriſt; and the great and eager confluence and acceſſe of the Gentiles to it, and the glory of the Jews by it.

Come people] See on Micah 4. 1, 2. come and be converted; and joyn themſelves to the Church.

many cities] Many, & great cities of the Gentiles for all their greatneſſe, yet ſhall they ſubmit and ſubject themſelves.

v. 21. Let us go] In going let us go. See on Eſay 2. verſe 3. and on Micah 4.2. The zeal of converts to convert others. See *P*ſal. 122. 1. and 95. 1, 2. Jer. 31. 6.

ſpeedily] Or, continually: Heb. going.

to pray] Heb. To entreat the face of the Lord. See on C. 7. 2. & on Zeph. 2. v. 3. Am. 5. v. 4,6. Hoſ. 5. 15. Prayer is the chief part, and duty of Gods worſhip; taken for the whole. And they ſeek him, as moſt deſirous to finde him and his favour; to know him and his will; that they may obey him and it, as their onely guide and aim, Pſal. 119. 105.

I will go alſo] Every one was as forward to ſerve God himſelf, as he was deſirous for another to do it. That is true zealous charity, which neither leaveth others behinde, nor thruſteth others before it. Not like that of the Phariſees, Matth. 23. 4.

v.22. Yea, many people, and ſtrong nations] Not a few poor ones; but many and mighty, potent and populous. Eſay 66.8. 12.20. 23. & 49. 19.20,21.22. & 54.1,2,3. & 60. 3,4,5,11,12.

in Jeruſalem] Typically; becauſe at this time Gods worſhip being onely there, all converts were to reſort thither. So that this Temple now in building ſhould become in a kinde common to the Gentiles; a Temple alſo for them and their uſe. Not yet that they ſhould keep and obſerve the Levitical ſacrifices, and ſervices there; But becauſe the word of the Lord ſhould go forth from Jeruſalem, wᶜʰ being now the only Church of God; and therefore ſo often taken for a Type of Chriſts Church under the Goſpel; ſhould be the mother Church, whence the Goſpel ſhould proceed, Eſay 2. v. 3. Pſal. 110. 2. See the like Eſay 66. 23. and Zech. 14. 16.

v. 23. ten men ſhall take hold] Ten men taken for many; as Gen. 31. 41. Lev. 26. 26. Job 19. 3. In the dayes of publication of the Goſpel, they who are now ſo averſe, ſuch enemies, ſhall become thus eager and earneſt, to embrace the Goſpel. There ſhall be no need of arms, and coaction to enforce them; they ſhall be ſuch a willing people, Pſal 110. 3. They ſhal come on thus, and come in with this unity, unanimity, conſent, humility, and fervency.

out of all languages of the nations] We ſee no language or nation excepted. So largely ſhall the kingdom of Chriſt, and the Goſpel ſpread. See C. 2. 11. Eſay 66. 18. Dan. 7. 14. Apoc. 5. 9. & 7. 2. Pſal. 9. 8. Acts 10. 35. Though they ſhall not underſtand one anothers language, yet they ſhall agree in this one underſtanding, by Gods ſacred and ſecret inſtinct and motion of his Spirit, and ſhall ſpeak this language of Canaan, Eſay 19. 18.

of the skirt of him that is a Jew] Ten men, of one Jew; whom they ſo hated and ſcorned before; yet now they ſhould take no ſcorn to cleave unto them, to humble and ſubmit unto them, to learn of them, and become their diſciples, hang upon them, and run after them, as little children do when they catch hold on their mothers garments, Eſay 55. 5. Thus they flocked to Paul, and the other Apoſtles, Gal. 4. 15. And indeed to the Jews was the Goſpel firſt preached; and next by the Jews to the Gentiles, Acts 13 46. And the believing Jews thought not now themſelves diſparaged, nor their glory eclipſed by the acceſs of the Gentiles; but rather gloried in it, as juſtly they might. And thus was the old propheſie fulfilled, Gen. 9. 27.

we will go with you] In the worſhip and ſervice of the true God. And the reaſon follows.

for we have heard] By your preaching, Rom. 10. 17.

that God is with you] Rightly known and worſhipped, onely among you Jews, or in the Church; but not among us, who are ignorant idolatrous Gentiles. Therfore they thus catch hold of them, uſe the help and miniſtery of men, to ſeek and finde God among them, verſ. 22. See 1 Cor. 14. 25. Great and glorious was this prerogative of the Jews, which afterwards they loſt by their infidelity.

CHAP. IX.

Verſe 1. THe burden] Here begins the third main ſermon of Zecharie, & continues to the end of the eleventh Chapter. And contains a propheſie, 1. againſt the enemies of the Jews to the 9. verſe. Secondly of the coming of Chriſt, and of his kingdom, and the bleſſings of it; to the 11. Chap. And thirdly of the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and the rejection of the Jews for their rejecting of Chriſt. Chap. 11.

The burden of the word of the Lord] His burdenſome word. A propheſie of heavy and ſad, great and grievous threatnings and curſes; A propheſie of threatnings and curſes againſt the bordering enemies of Gods people. See Eſay 13. 1. Jer. 23. 33. which burden they ſhould not be able to ſhake off from their ſhoulders. in the land] Or, upon, againſt the land.

of Hadrach] Not elſewhere in Scripture mentioned. Some ſay without any proof, that it was an idol of the Syrians, which repreſented the Sun. And that the Prophet calleth that countrey or ſome part of it by the name of the idol: as Eſay 8. 8. is Immanuels land, and the like Jer. 48. 46. and Hoſ. 10. 5. Others underſtand only by this, the countreys bordering round about Judea; taking the word to be a Syriack word of that ſignification: which language was in uſe with the nations here threatned. The like, they ſay, is Iſai. 14. 1. Jer. 25. 36. &c. 51. 41. But rather it ſeems to be the name, not of a man, but of ſome city, neer to Damaſcus and Hamath; or of ſome particular region in Syria.

ſhall be the reſt thereof] Theſe threatnings ſhall fall, and be executed upon Damaſcus; this burden ſhall ſit and reſt there, as in its place of reſidence; ſettle there till it conſumes them. It ſhall not be like a ſudden ſtorm, ſoon gone; but as in Eſay 9. 8. and Pſ. 125. 3. it ſhall fix and maintain its ſtation in that royal city of the Syrians; they ſhall not be able to ſhake the burden of it from off their ſhoulders, or any way to eſcape it.

when the eyes of man] Heb. for the Lords eye is upon man, as on all the Trybes of Iſrael. He giveth a reaſon why the burden and words of the Prophet were directed to the Heathen nations: namely becauſe Gods providence doth not govern his people alone, but the whole world; for God hath an eye upon all men. See Ch. 3. 9. & 4. 10. & 5. 6. Gen. 18. 25. But with leſſe ſtraining we may underſtand it of the eyes of man, and that not of all mankinde, or the Gentiles: but of the Jews, of all the tribes of Iſrael; when the eyes of that people, as of one man ſhall unanimouſly mouſly look up towards the Lord,for aid and help againſt their enemies ; and they convert,as their eyes ; ſo their heart to him by true repentance, Then ſhall the burdenſome word of the Lord light, and lye upon their enemies.

all the tribes of Iſrael] An explication of the laſt word aforegoing.

toward the Lord] And not toward idols, or images.

v. 2. And Hamath] See on Amos 6. 2. 3. Some take this to be Antiochia.

ſhall border thereby] Heb. And he alſo ſhal border Hamath thereby. Meaning, that eye of Providence ſhall limit, that is, ſhall ſtay the courſe of the power,, conqueſts and enterpriſes of Hamath, chief city of Syria. See Eſay 7. 8. 9. Jere. 49.23. Or rather thus ; Hamath ſhall ſhare in the burden, bear a part in the puniſhment. At Riblah in Hamath, much cruelty had been exerciſed upon the Jews ; and the Syrians generally had been their cruell enemies, God now will be the avenger of his people againſt them. To interpret this of the Hamathites converſion, is far from the Prophets meaning, & tenour of the context.

and Zidon] Called great Sidon, or Zidon, Joſh. 11. 8. An ancient and famous City, named likely of Sidon the eldeſt Son of Canaan, Gene. 10. 15. Of great traffick and Marchandize, lying on the Weſtern Ocean, North, North Eaſt from Tyre, nigh to Zebulon, Gene. 49. 13. Allotted to Aſher, but they got not the poſſeſſion of it Judg. 1. 31. & 3. 3. But the Sidonians oppreſſed the Iſraelites, Judg. 10. 12. And had been lately a pricking bryar to the houſe of Iſrael ; Ezech. 28. 24. we read of kings of Zidon, Jere. 25. 22. & 27. 3. ſubdued by Nebuchadnezzar. Ahab married Jezebell the daughter of Ethbaal, King of the Zidonians ; 1 King. 16. 31. Aſtoreth or Aſtaroth was their Goddeſſe, 1 King. 11. 5. Sareptah was neer it, Luke 4. 26. Our Saviour went aſide into thoſe parts, Matt. 15. 21. And from thoſe parts they came to our Saviour, Mark 3. 8. Luke 6. 17. Paul in his voyage to Rome touched there, Act 27. 3. And they make peace with Herod, Acts 12. 20.

though it be very wiſe] In worldly wiſdom, which is attributed to the Tyrians, Ezek. 28. 3. 4. 5. 12. 17. The ſingular number here may be diſtributively applied to each of them : Merchants are wiſe, and cunning : upon which thoſe Cities founded their greatneſs. They were enemies to the Jews, proud, inſolent, and cruel to them, in the time of the deſolation of their ſtate. And therefore God here threatens revenge, which they ſhould not eſcape, for all their wiſdom. Job 5. 11. 13 Theſe words have the touch of an Ironicall mock, as that Eze. 28. 3.

v. 3. And Tyrus did build her ſelf] Made warlike fortifications, It was called the ſtrong City Tyre, Joſh. 19. 29. The ſtronge hold of Tyre. 2 Sam. 24. 7.

and heaped up ſilver] Money, the other ſinew of war, and this heaped up in all abundance. See 1 Kin. 10. 27. Which abundance of treaſure it was not hard for the Tyrians to gather together ; conſidering the long, and great trade, which all nations of the world uſed there ; as is largely deſcribed, Ezek. 27. So that Tyre thought her ſelf impregnable.

v. 4. Behold the Lord] Neither her wit, wealth, or ſtrength ſhould avail her againſt the Lord ; or ſave her from ruin. The Lord will ſcatter her wealth, and impoveriſh her. And though ſhe be ſeated in an Iſland in the ſea, and be never ſo powerfull by ſea, and ſhipping ; yet the Lord will ſmite her power in the ſea. Prov. 21. 30. Eſay 29. 16.

devoured with fire] That is conſumed, a Metaphor from ravenous beaſts. Though Tyrus was ſeated in the midſt of the waters, yet ſhall ſhe be devoured with fire : if God kindle the flame, nothing ſhall quench it.

v. 5. Aſhkelon] See on Zeph. 2. 4.

ſhall ſee it, and fear] This, and the following Cities of the Philiſtines, who dwelt a long the ſeacoaſt, ſouthward of Tyre and Sidon, from whence this ſtorm was next to come upon them ; who alſo evermore had been the Jews bitter enemies, and ſtill were after their return from Babylon, They ſhall ſee the deſtruction of Hadrach, Damaſcus, Hamath, Tyre, and Zidon ; and fear, the like to fall upon them. As it did moſt of all by Alexander the great.

for her expectation ſhall be aſhamed] She aſhamed of it ; being deceived and deſtitute of ſuch ſuccour and help as ſhe looked for, from her potent, but then impoveriſhed friends, which could not ſave themſelves, much leſs others. Specially they were aſtoniſhed when they ſaw Tyre fall.

and Aſhkelon ſhall not be inhabited] The inhabitants being waſted by war, or carried captive, it ſhalbe diſpeopled & deſolate.

v. 6. And a Baſtard] Not their legitimate king, or Governor : But a mingled multitude of ſtrange nations gathered together ; as baſtards in a family ; which intrude upon others rights, or if any of Aſhdod remain, they ſhall be but as ſtrangers there without a certain ſeat of abode ; as pilgrims are in a forraign ſoil.

Aſhdod] See on Zeph. 2. 4.

and I will cut off the pride of the Philiſtines] Their wealth, ſtrength, and all other things that made them ſwell with pride, and inſolency againſt their poor neighbours the Jews. In the time between the Jews return out of the Babylonian captivity, and the coming of our Saviour, the Philiſtines were throughly plagued ; partly by Alexander the Great and his ſucceſſors, the Seleucidæ and Lagidæ, and partly by the Jews in the times of the Maccabees, and before, as hiſtories do record, ſee c. 2. 9. Obed. 20. Zeph. 2. 4. For further knowledge of the Philiſtines, ſo much mentioned in Scripture, we finde this: that they came of Cham. Gen. 10. 6. 13. 14. They inhabited the weſt border of Canaan, adjoyning to the Mediterran ſea, & maintained ſtil their poſſeſſion there, though it were given moſt to the tribe of Judah, Joſh. 15. In Abrahams, and Iſaacs time, Abimelech was king of Gerar, one of their Cities. In the times of the Judges, they were divided into five Lordſhips, Judg. 3. 3. And ſo in the beginning of Samuels time, 1 Sam. 6. 16. 17. They oppreſſed Iſrael in the dayes of Sampſon, Eli, Saul, Jehoram, Ahaz. They took the Ark of God in battell, and placed it in the Temple of Dagon their Idol. They ſlew Saul, and Jonathan. They were ſlain in great numbers by Sampſon. Samuel overcomes them ; and Saul got two great victories over them; one occaſioned by Jonathan, 1 Sam. 13. 14. chapters, another by Davids ſlaying of Goliath, 1 Sam. 17. After Sauls death ; though David had formerly fled to Achiſh, King of Gath, for ſhelter againſt Saul, firſt in danger there, 1 Sam. 21. And a ſecond time, upon better ſecurity, 1 Sam. 27. Yet being now king, he overcomes them in four battels, wherein four gyants the brethren of Goliath of Gath were ſlain, 2 Sam. 21. 15 — 22. Afterwards Uzziah, and Hezekiah prevail over them. And after, they were overcome by the Egyptians ; and by the Babylonians.

from between his teeth] Yet God will give his people deliverance from their bloody enemies, and reſcue them from being a bloody prey unto them, when in their imagination they had ſwallowed them up.

but he that remaineth] That little remainder of my people which eſcaped from the enemies violence.

even he ſhall be for our God] Even that poor, ignoble, and contemptible remnant of the Jews, ſhall be for our God, ſhall be in his care, protection, favour, and in his account.

and he ſhall be as a Governour in Judah] Not only of higheſt rank, and chiefeſt eſteem with God, as Governours are in a Common-wealth ; but alſo he ſhall be free, and have command and rule over others; albeit he had been now a long time a ſervant himſelf. Others thus, Though not ſuitable to the words and context, I will take away, and pardon his ſins : And the Remainder of them, according to the election of grace, ſhalbe as it were, endenized among my people, and ſhall be honourable among them. So making this to be an Evangelical Promiſe, of the Calling of the Gentiles : as many ſuch like there are. And theſe alſo underſtand the Ekronites here to be promiſed to become as the Iebuſite Araunah, 2 Sam. 24. 16. Who was of honourable account among the people of God.

v. 8. And I will encamp] Gods protection of his people. c. 2. 5. They are unable for their own defence : Gods power is alſufficient for them ; He will encamp round about them. Not as Eſay 29. 3. But as thoſe, Gen. 32. 1. 2. 2 Kin. 6. 17. Pſal. 34. 7.

about my Houſe] The Temple, and Church ; for the ſake wherof the ſtate is preſerved. It is uſually called Gods Houſe, and the Houſe of the Lord ; the holy, and beautiful houſe ; Eſay 64. 11. The Houſe of his glory, Eſay 60. 7.

becauſe of the army] Of the enemy ; to oppoſe it ; and ſhield his Church, Pſal. 3. 1. 3. 6. & 27. 1. 2. 3.

becauſe of him that paſſeth by] The enemy ranging up and down, paſſing to and fro, with his armies. This may have referance to the invaſions and incurſions of the Seleucidæ, and Lagidæ, among others.

becauſe of him that returneth] Again, and again, with freſh onſets, againſt my Houſe, and people. Though the enemies be numerous in armies, obſtinate in malicious cruelties, and often recruit their forces, yet God will be a ſure ſhield, and ſafegard unto them, Pſal. 17. 9. 11. 12. 13. & 18 1. 2.

and no oppreſſour] They ſhall no more be tyrannized over, nor exacted upon ; as they have been heretofore. Formerly even children had bin their oppreſſors, Eſay 3. 12. And their enemies had been as Pharaohs taſkmaſters over them, Eſay 64. 10. 11. 12

But hereafter it ſhould be far otherwiſe, Eſay 54. 14. and 49. 26. and 60.17. 18. This hath its full verification in the ſpiritual ſtate of the Church under the Goſpel.

for now have I ſeen with mine eyes] God ſeeth all from all eternity. But in Scripture phraſe, when he doth not ſhew forth that he taketh ſuch notice of things as we apprehend, he is ſaid, not to ſee, to ſhut his eyes, to ſleep, to forget. And ſo on the contrary. Here he ſaith, he hath taken good notice how unworthily, and vilely, and intolerably his Church hath been dealt withall by her enemies, as Exod. 2.25. But now I have ſeen, and will avenge her; I have turned my favourable countenance toward her, and have taken her into my protection, and this out of my good-pleaſure, becauſe it ſeemed ſo good in mine eyes, I will reveal my power to do her good.

v. 9. Rejoyce] A propheſie of Chriſts coming, of his kingdom, and of the benefits of it. And thus the prophet ſhews by what means, and from whom, all comfort, and the full accompliſhment of the former glorious promiſes was to be expected. This propheſie hath in it much difficulty.

O daughter of Zion] And again, of Jeruſalem: meaning the true and univerſall Church of Chriſt, and all the children of God.

Behold] As ever and anon in Scripture, chiefly now, in this chiefeſt cauſe, Matt. 13.16.17. Luk. 2.30. Joh. 8. 56.

thy king] Thy promiſed, expected king, Pſal. 2. 6. Eſay 32.1. Jer. 23.5. and 30.9. Ezech. 37.22.24. Hoſ. 3.5. Matth. 2. 2. Luk. 23. 2. Joh. 12.13. and 18. 37. and 19.19. A king, of the family of David, that ſhall raiſe up all, make good all. Neither could they expect the promiſed bleſſings otherwiſe, but according to the tenor of them, in and by the perſon of the Meſſias. And this ſhould animate them to conſtancy, and hope, in the midſt of their miſerys.

cometh] In the fleſh. He tells this, not as a matter of news unto them, he was ſo often promiſed, unleſſe it be in the ſpeed, and manner of his coming; He is now upon the way. Eſay 62. 11.

unto thee He, and his coming, is wholely for thee; for thy good, not for his own ſake, his own glory, as is the coming of earthly kings.

he is juſt, and having ſalvation] Or, ſaving himſelf, Eſay 11. 2, 3,4,5. and 9.6,7. Exod. 23. 21. having juſtice, and ſalvation for his Church; and bringing juſtification and ſalvation to his Church. Matth. 1. 21. Joh. 17. 19. Indeed he ſaved himſelf from death, by his own power, Acts 2.24. Rom. 1.4. but this was for the uſe of his Church.

lowly] in outward eſtate poor, mean, afflicted. Eſay 52 14. In minde and heart, meek, humble. Matt 12.19.20. A king quite of another condition then the magnificent and proud monarchs of the world are. Joh. 18.36. And who ſhall ſave his Church and children, not by arms and warlike force, but by ſpirituall and divine power.

and riding upon an aſſe] Not carried in a triumphant chariot, or on ſome ſtately courſer, or on a mule; as the faſhion was of Kings before, and then. 1 King. 1. 33. ſpecially in greater ſolemnities, entring into their royall cities: But on an aſſe, a poor, and ſilly beaſt. It is true, Princes and great men did ride on aſſes. Judg. 5.10. and 10.4. and 12.14. 2 Sam. 17.23. and 19.26. But theſe no doubt were bred up and fitted for the ſaddle, and ſet out with ſtately furniture. This was altogether otherwiſe, uſed to toyl and drudgery. Matth. 21.5. ὑποζύγιον.

and upon a colt] This expounds the former words, that Chriſt rode upon the colt; a young wilde colt, whereon never man ſate. Thus Mark 11. 2,4,5,7 Luk. 19. 30,33,35. John 12. 14, 15. And herein, as there was a neglect of all curioſity, and ornament, ſo was there ſome demonſtration alſo of Chriſts power over the untamed creature: that our Saviour did ride, firſt on the Dam, and after on the colt; having a reference to Jew, and Gentile; is but a needleſs conjecture. Indeed the ſenſe here in the Prophet may be, or ſeem to be metaphoricall and figurative; yet it hinders not but Chriſt might exhibite this viſible ſigne, and ſamplar, of the Prophets meaning in this place. A like may that be. Pſal. 22. 18 The ſum is, a Propheſie of Chriſts coming in the fleſh, who is the everlaſting king of his Church, from whom all former benefits proceeded, and were ſpiritually in him fully heaped up, and from him heaped upon his Church; and all not by worldly ſtrength and power; but by vertue of his everlaſting righteouſneſſe: by which he hath acquired ſalvation to his Church; whereof his royall, and withall moſt humble entrance into Jeruſalem was a figure.

v. 10. And I will cut off the charet] He declares more plainly, what he had ſhadowed out before in Chriſts perſon, touching the Nature of his kingdom: that it ſhould not be maunaged by earthly means, and human helps, but by ſpirituall. The Meſſiah ſhall bring to the Church a true and eternall ſpirituall peace: whence there ſhall not be any more preparing for war, Pſal. 46. 10. Eſay 2. 4. Hoſ. 2. 18. Or, by his onely power, without any humane means, he ſhall ſave, and defend his people, Hoſ. 1. 7. Micah. 5. 10. 2 Cor. 10. 4. 5. 6. The Jews then were not to think, as vainly they did, that the Meſſias ſhould be a wordly Emperour, and that all nations ſhould become ſubjects to the Jewiſh crown. Earthly warlike weapons ſhould be of no force, or uſe, to erect and enlarge Chriſts kingdom, Being indeed a Spirituall Empire over mens hearts and conſciences.

peace unto the heathen] To the Gentiles he ſhall ſpeak peaceably; as Pſal. 85. 8. & 28. 3. By publiſhing the Goſpel of reconciliation. See Act. 10. 34. 35. Epheſ. 2. 17. And Peaceably he ſhall be heard, and obeyed: His word and Goſpel of peace ſhall ſuffice and avail. no force ſhall be needfull to be uſed to errect and enlarge his dominion.

and his dominion ſhall be] Under the figure of the countrey of Iſrael, confined by theſe ancient bounds, he noteth the large extent of the univerſall Church.

from ſea to ſea] Pſal. 72. 8. From the red or Arabian ſea, to the Syrian North ſea; from South to north.

from the river to, &c.] From Euphrates, to the utmoſt bounds of Judea the midland ſea: from eaſt to weſt. See Deut. 1. 7. Joſh. 1. 4. Pſal. 2. 8. Exod. 23. 31. Deut. 11. 24. The utmoſt borders of the holy land are ſomtimes put for the utmoſt quarters of the world; as Pſal. 89. 12. and 107. 3.

v. 11. As] The benefits which the Jews had, and ſhould have, by the Meſſias. The ſame Meſſiah, by vertue of the ſame blood. wherewith he hath reconciled mankinde to God, and obtained everlaſting ſalvation for them, hath alſo been the author of thy deliverance from Babylon, and of all the other enſuing benefits. And thus he confirms, and amplifies, that Spirituall deliverance which was to come by the Goſpel of Chriſt, by that recent and late deliverance which he vouchſafed his people out of Babylon.

for thee alſo] Thee Zion, and Jeruſalem; in the feminine gender. Chriſt here ſpeaks to her; not the Prophet to Chriſt, As Papiſts would tear the text, and foiſt in other words beſides, to fetch in, and frame hence their Limbus Patrum: chooſing to mangle the text to their minde, and to cry out upon it, as many wayes corrupt, rather then their fancied Limbus ſhould not finde ſome favour and footing here.

by the blood] Or, whoſe covenant is by blood. Namely, the blood of Chriſt, figured by the blood which was ſprinkled upon the people. Exod. 24. 8. Pſal. 74 20. Heb. 9. 19. & 13.20. ſhadowed out in the blood of the ſacrifices.

of thy Covenant] Gods Covenant, flowing freely from him, the author of it, and the Churches covenant, as made for her, on her behalf, to her behoof.

I have ſent forth] Though the Jews had often broken this Covenant on their part, and had been ſorely puniſhed for it; yet God for his part was alwayes mindfull of it, and by vertue of this Covenant, delivered them in their diſtreſſes, that he might perform to them the promiſe of the Meſſias, upon whom this Covenant was founded. See Levit. 26. 42. 43. 44 45. By vertue of it he vouchſafed to them that preſent manumiſſion out of Babylon.

thy priſoners] Thy captives held in bondage and thraldom, as men in priſon. See Eſay 61. 1.

out of the pit wherein is no water] Here is Limbus Patrum, ſay the Papiſts. But then ſurely their Limbus is not Abrahams boſom, which is a place of comfort, Lu. 17.25. Theirs a place of horrour. Here plainly is meant the pit and priſon of Babylon, the diſconſolate and hard eſtate of the Jews there, like to Jeremies in the dungeon, Jer. 38.6. Out of which for his Covenant ſake he gave them a manumiſſion.

v. 12. Turn ye] Ye diſtreſſed Jews, that are priſoners in Babylon: or, ye that are already returned; or rather both. God ſpeakes to the whole ſtate of the Jews: And not the Prophet to the Patriarchs, ſticking faſt in mire of Limbo, as papiſts would ſaiu have it.

to the ſtrong hold] To Jeruſalem, ſay ſome: though yet weak, both City, and Temple: yet a ſtrong hold, under the ſtrong protection of God Almighty. O ye diſtreſſed Jews in Babylon, return ſpeedily to the ſtrong hold of Jeruſalem, the place of your habitation, ſecure under my ſafegard and protection, ſee Dan. 11. 31. 38. Others rather refer it to the Meſſias himſelf, and the turnings of their hearts and hopes to him. Indeed all other ſtronge Holds without him, ſhall be like fig-trees, with the firſt ripe figs, that fall into the mouth of the eater; Nah. 3. 12. and as Lam. 2. 2. 5. But he is the ſtrength of our ſalvation, our ſtrong tower. 1 Sam. 2. 10. 2. Sam. 22. 2, 3. Luke 1. 69. Eſay 26. 1.

Ye priſoners of hope] Expecting further freedom from ſuch afflictions and dangers, as encompaſs you round about; under the ſtrictneſſe and burden whereof ye ſigh, waiting for the redemption promiſed by the Meſſias. Luk.2. 25. 38. Mar. 15. 43. Others had caſt off all hope, and were clean fallen away from God, and his religion. Here again the Papiſts would fain be at the Patriarchs in Limbo.

even to day] When your ſtate ſeemeth miſerable, and deplorable. Some refer it to that day, verſe 9.

do I declare] Make an open promiſe to you; and fear not ſo to do, though now there be ſmall appearance of it; but time ſhall try it, and your experience finde the truth of it.

that I will render double unto thee] Far greater felicity, then the evils which thou haſt ſuffered, or the goods which thou haſt loſt. Iſa. 61. 7. defenſe againſt the enemy; and ſuch ſingular favours moreover as ſhould be double to all that ever their forefathers enjoyed in their moſt happy eſtate. See that, Hag. 2. 9. And therefore they ſhould take courage, and go on in building, and expect ſtill with joyfull hope; notwithſtanding the preſent ſad face of all things.

v.13. When I have bent Judah for me] Here the Lord begins to declare, when, and how, he will render double felicity, two for one, unto her, when I have uſed Judah as my bow, and bent, and drawn it my ſelf, as a weapon of war for me; ſo that God ſhalbe the Agent and authour; Judah but the inſtrument, in his hand. As in an other caſe God uſed the Aſſyrian, Eſay 10. 5. 15. The Jews were a people odious in the world, and weak in themſelves: yet God would thus make uſe of them, for victories, and revenge, over his, and their enemies: Their power was from heaven; They had no cauſe to boaſt of their own proweſs, and puiſſance. The Bow was an inſtrument much uſed in war, See verſe 10. Gen. 48. 22. Joſh. 24. 12. 2 Sam. 22. 35. 1 Kings 22. 34. 2 Kings 6. 22. and 9. 24. Pſal. 44. 6. and 46. 9. Eſay 41. 2. Jer. 49. 35. Ezek. 39. 3. Hoſea 1. 5. 7. 2 Chron. 17. 17. Neh. 4. 13.

filled the bow with Ephraim] Pſal.78.9. Ephraim here may be taken for the ten tribes; becauſe in all likelyhood many of them returned with the two. Or, for the ſame with Judah, by an elegancy of variety; as v. 10. and in many other places; and ſo are no more but the Sons of Zion. Theſe here are likened to the arrows; ſee 1 Chron.10.3. & 11.1. 2 Chron.26.15. Pſal.127.4. Eſay.5, 28. 1 Sam. 31. 3. The meaning is; the arms, and armies of the Jews, ſhould be Gods powerful inſtruments for deſtruction of the enemies.

and raiſed up thy ſons O Zion] Awakened and put courage into the Jews, to provide and ſtand for their defence, and the overthrow of their enemies. Here is an Emphatical Apoſtrophe to both nations; ſhewing ſoveraigne rule and power over both.

againſt thy ſons O Greece] Of the Grætians we read, that they came of Javan the ſon of Japhet, Gen.10.2. of Javan ſome derive the word Jonia ſignifying Greece. But clear it is in Scripture, that by Javan Greece is ſignified. They bought the Jews ſlaves from them of Tyre and Sidon, Joel 3. 6. And they uſed much merchandiſe with Tyre; as appears Ezech. 27.13.19 Xerxes carried out an huge army againſt them; but returned with his greater ſhame; Dan.11 2. Here God will raiſe up the Jews againſt them; againſt he two Kingdoms of the Seleucidæ, and Lagidæ which were poſſeſſed by great Alexanders ſucceſſors, who were Græcians. And herein no doubt a great eye is had to the Maccabees, and their Heroick acts in their time; as appears in the Hiſtory of the Maccabees, and in Joſephus. Of Greece, and Grecians in the new Teſtamant we read Act.20.2. and 9. 29. and 11. 20. and 18. 4. Rom. 1. 14.16. and 10 12. 1 Cor. 1.22. Gal.3. 18.

as the ſword] as a ſharpe ſword in a ſtrong mans hand; in a Giants hand, that can uſe it to purpoſe.

v. 14. And the Lord] Here the point of Gods power and proceeding of his warlike acting in his inſtruments, the Sons of Zion, againſt the enemies, is more clearly proſecuted.

ſhall be ſeen over them] Gods powerful protection of his people ſhall be apparent; like as when he ſhewed himſelf over the Iſraelites in the cloud, Exod. 14. 19, 24. Others apply it to Gods powerful overthrow of the enemies of the Church; The Lord ſhall beyond the courſe and compaſſe of ordinary means, ſo marvelouſly aſſiſt his people by his power, that the overthrow of the enemies ſhall plainly appear to be his work, and the victory to be aſcribed to him onely. And ſee this in the Hiſtory of the Maccabees; And this may have a ſpiritual relation to Chriſts ſpiritual Kingdom; to the defence of his own, and overthrow of his enemies therein.

and his arrow ſhall go forth as the lightening] 2 Sam,22. 15. Pſal.18. 14. Luke 27.24. Pſal. 97. 4. Nahum 2.4. Swiftly, ſuddenly, and irreſiſtibly. See alſo Jer,50.14.

and the Lord God ſhall blow the trumpet] God himſelf ſhall be the captain, and his thunder ſhall be as the ſound of a trumpet to gather his forces together; and give a dreadful alarum to the enemies. See Jeremiah 10. 13. 1 Theſ. 4. 16. Jud.7. 20.

and ſhall go] With his people againſt his enemies, as their General, and in the fore-front of the battels.

with whirl-winds of the South] This may not unfitly be interpreted of thoſe tempeſts, wherewith God overthrew the Egyptians at the red ſea, South-wards of Judea: which how dreadful they were, not onely in thunderings, lightenings, and horrible rain; but alſo in outragious windes, See Pſal.77.16.17.18. Exod.15.10. And this being joyned to the ſound of the trumpet it may ſeem to allude to thoſe wonderous and terrible ſignes ſhewed on mount Sinai, ſouth likewiſe of Judea; and be like to that place, Hab. 3.3. Teman and Paran being neer mount Sinai. Wherl-windes hurrie and ſcatter here and there with irreſiſtible violence. And ſuch furious violence God would uſe againſt the enemies. This ſeems to relate to Gods judgements upon the Greeks, Gog and Magog, and the Iſraelites victories over them. Read Ezek.Ch. 38. and 39. 2 Mac. 2 .21.22. and 5.2.3. and 10.28 29. 30. and 11. 8. 10 which ſhew that God did manifeſt his powerſul preſence to theſe deſtreſſed in very extraordinary manner.

v. 15. the Lord of hoſts ſhall defend them] The deliverance of his people, and their victories over their enemies, figuratively ſet forth before, are here more plainly expreſſed. And God ſhall fight for, and defend, and protect his people, the ſons of Zion, v. 13. as c. 12. 8. 2 Kin.19. 34. Pſal. 17.8. Eſay. 31.5. Read great Alexanders ſubmiſſion when he ſaw Jaddus the H. P. in his attire.

and they ſhall devour] Their enemies; ſlay, and deſtroy them; eating as it were, their fleſh, and drinking their blood; not as Cannibals; but as the next words expreſſe. Others thus; They ſhall eat, that is, quietly enjoy a peaceable, and joyful poſſeſſion, and uſe of their own wealth, and the enemies ſpoyl, after their victories obtained.

and ſubdue with ſling-ſtones] or ſubdue the ſtones of the ſling; ſubdue their enemies, and their Regiments, and Armies of Slingers, with force of Artillery, and weapons of war: A ſling was a weapon then much uſed in wars; ſee Judges 20. 16. 1 Sam. 17. 40, 49, 50. 1 Chron. 12. 2. 2 Chron. 26. 14. Job 41. 28.

and they ſhall drink and make a noyſe, as through wine] Hereby is deſcribed the Jews freeneſs and courage in ſetting upon their enemies; ſee Pſal. 78. 65. Or, Their joyfull acclamations and feſtivities for the overthrow of their enemies, that they ſhall make a noiſe of gladneſſe and praiſe therefore, as men uſe to doe that are filled with wine, which maketh them merry and frolike. ſee Pſal. 69. 12. Eſay 5. 12. & 24. 9. And herein is a plentifull uſe of the bleſſings of God allowed, but no invitation to exceſſe, Deut. 12. 18.

and they ſhall be filled like bowls] Or, Shall fill both the bowls, &c. Fill both the bowls and baſins, and the horns of the Altar with the blood of the Sacrifices of Peace and Thankſgiving, which they ſhall offer to God in great abundance for their victories obtained, and benefits received: ſee chap. 14. 20. 1 Kings 7. 50. 2 Chron. 4. 11. and ſee Exod. 27. 2. & 29. 12. Levit. 4. 30. & 7. 14. Some underſtand this of their being ſo filled with the blood of their enemies, as formerly expounded.

and as the corners of the altar] Whereon the horns of the brazen Altar of burnt Offerings ſtood, which were all beſprinkled with the blood of the Sacrifices, Levit. 1. 5, 11. & 3. 8.

v. 16. And the Lord, &c.] As ver. 15. Out of his ſingular love, and tender regard towards them, with ſpeciall reference to the Covenant which God entred into with the Jewes; in regard whereof God promiſeth that they, as his peculiar people, ſhall be in his protection and chiefeſt care.

as the flock] Sheep whereof he will be the Shepherd, and ſave them; as a ſhepherd ſaves and defends his ſheep, with all his might. See Amos 3. 12. John 10. verſe 11. The reſt of the world are but as herds of goats; or worſe, as ravening wolves preying upon the Jews.

for they ſhall be as the ſtones of a crown] Not as ſling-ſtones, verſe 15. but as of a regal Diadem, which is beſet with ſtones of great price. The Jews ſhould be as dear to God, as ſuch a crown is to a King. See Eſay 62.3. Prov.9.9. and 12. 4. Exod. 10. 6. Or as the ſtones of the Ephod, Exod.28.9. Or, as ſtones erected for Trophies, by reaſon of their great victories obtained over their enemies, as monuments thereof.

lifted up as an enſigne] As a beacon Jer. 6. 1. Or, as a Trophee or ſigne, and monument of victory, and as a ſtandard of praiſe, See Eſay 11. verſe 12.

upon his land] See Deut. 11. verſe 12.

v. 17. For how great is his goodneſſe] A pathetical exclamation, whereinto the Prophet breaks, admiring the ſingular goodneſſe of God towards his Church. The meaning is, The grace and the glory of God ſhall marvellouſly ſhew it ſelf in the ſalvation of his; Pſalm 84. 12. and 31. 19.

his beauty] In himſelf, and in his dealings towards his people. See Cant. 1. 16. and 5. 10, &c. Pſalm 110. 3.

corn ſhall make, &c.] As God will preſerve them, ſo he will provide for them, and ſupply them with abundant maintainance: They had been pinched with famine, Lam. 2. 24, 21. and ſince their return, chap. 8. 10, 12. Hag. 1. 6, 9, 10, 11. & 2. 17. now God will afford ſuch plentifull proviſion, as ſhould make them who fainted before through ſcarcity and want, to be full of life, cheerfulneſſe and mirth, and fill them with joy and thankſgiving; the bleſſings of God corporall and ſpirituall ſhall make his people fruitfull or eloquent in praiſe, as Iſa. 57. 19. ſee chap. 8. 11, 12. Hag. 2. 19.

the young men cheerfull] or, grow, or ſpeak, Pſal. 104. 15.

and new wine the maids] Such plenty, as not onely to ſuffice the old, that moſt need it; but alſo the younger ſort, for their further pleaſure.

CHAP. X.

Verſe 1. A*sk ye of the Lord*] Notwithſtanding the laſt words of promiſe for plenty, yet they for the preſent were pinched with ſcarcity, and ſo in a ſort thought themſelves deluded with the promiſe: The Prophet cloſely tels them that the fault is theirs; the bleſſing is ready prepared, but they keep it back by their infidelity; let them truly in prayer ask it of God, and he is ready to grant it. O ye Jewes which have now again ſetled your ſelves in the right way of ſerving God, ſince the re-edifying of the Temple; doe but make your prayers to him, and he will hear you.

rain] A principall cauſe of fruitfulneſſe, and encreaſe of the field, 2 Sam. 23. 4. Job 38. 27. Pſal. 72. 6. this is a thing much expected and deſired, Job 29. 23.

in the time of the later rain] See on Joel 2. 23. The firſt rain is to ſoften the ground for tilling and ſowing, or rather after ſowing, to bring the ſeed out of the ground; the later afterwards to make the grain full in the ear, Jer. 3. 3. In Jury ſeldome was there rain in Summer, and in Harveſt it was counted an uncouth thing, 1 Sam. 12. 17. Prov. 26. 1.

ſo the Lord ſhall make, &c.] Deut. 28. 12. Job 5. 10. & 28. 25, 26. He is the father of the rain, he begets the drops of dew, Job 38. 28. he cauſeth the vapours to aſcend from the ends of the earth; he makes the ſpreadings and ballancings of the clouds, he covereth the heaven with them, and prepareth rain for the earth; he makes a decree or law for the rain, he ſhakes out the bottles of Heaven, he makes ſmall the drops of water which diſtill. He ſaith to the ſmall rain, be thou on the Earth; and to the great rain of his ſtrength. Theſe are the Scripture-expreſſions in this point; and this he promiſeth, and performeth, as his bleſſing to his people upon their obedience, Levit. 26. 4. Iſa. 30. 23. Hoſ. 2. 21. And he threatens the with-holding of it, and executes it as his curſe upon their diſobedience, Jer. 3. 3. Amos 4. 7. Yea, he ſhuts the Heaven, makes it to be braſſe over their heads, he makes the rain of the land to be powder and duſt, Deut. 28 23, 24. ſee 1 Kings 17. 1. Jer. 14. 1, 7. Amos 4. 7. Jer. 5. 24, 25.

bright clouds] Or, lightnings, ſigns and fore-runners of thunder and rain, Pſal. 135. 7. Jer 10. 13.

ſhowers of rain] Plenty of it, to fill the earth with joyce and moyſture; ſee chap. 8. 12. Hag. 1. 6, 9, 10, 11. & 2. 16, 19. to bring forth Graſſe for Cattle, and Corn for the food of Man.

v. 2. For the idols] Hebr. Teraphim. Of whom formerly they had aſked help, and rain, inſtead of aſking it of the Lord; ſee Iſa. 19. 3. Judges 10. 14. 1 Kings 18. 27. Heb. 2. 10. The meaning is, Direct your prayers to God, who will really bleſſe you; not to the Idols, who have alwayes deceived you.

have ſpoken vanity] Have fruſtrated their hopes and expectations, done them hurt, and no help: And thus he derides the idolatrous courſe that they took, and labours to prevent them, leaſt they ſhould doe the like again. Idols are teachers of lyes and vanities, Jer. 10. 8, 15. Heb. 2. 18. Iſa. 41. 29. They cannot give rain, Jer. 14. 22. Their oracles and anſwers are falſe, the prayers made to them are vain.

and the diviners have ſeen a lye] Thus they left God, and relinquiſhed their truſt in the faithfull promiſes of his ayde and ſupply, and betook themſelves to all ſhifts and unlawfull means, how vain and ungodly ſoever, Ier. 2. 13. & 17. 13. & 18. 14, 15. & 27. 9, 15, 16. & 29. 8, 9. Pſal. 73. 5. Iſa 44. 25. Diviners were ſeverely forbidden in the Law, Deut. 18. 10, 11, 12. Levit. 20. 27. and the ſeeking to them, Iſa. 8. 19. It was the common ſin of the Heathens, Ier. 27. 9, 10. and Gods people were guilty of it, Ier. 29. 8, 9. Ezek. 13. 6, 7, 8, 9, 23. & 22. 28. and reſorted to them in time of diſtreſſe.

falſe dreams] Pretending divine viſions and revelations; Jer. 23. 25. 33. and 29. 8. and Deut. 13 3. God promiſed, and performed a reall mercy to his People, in this way, Numb. 12. 6. Joel 2. 28. Acts 2. 17. But theſe were falſe pretenders by delivering that which did ariſe out of their own idle heads, or was inſpired by Satan, without all truth.

They comfort in vain] Job 13. 4. All that is gotten by it in the end, is but to finde themſelves abuſed by Satans deluſions.

they went their way as a flock] The Jews went into the Babyloniſh Captivity, as a flock of ſheep, bleating without a ſheepherd. And this ſhould be a ſufficient warning to their poſterity, not to walk now in their wayes; but by their harm to learn to avoid their ſins, and to reſt, and relie upon God onely for ſuccour and ſupply; and not to ſhut the Gate of his grace and mercy againſt them by their infidelity. The examples of Gods judgements are not to be forgotten; but we ſhould advantage our ſelves by the memory and meditation of them.

no ſheepherd] Your Temporall and Eccleſiaſticall governours have not performed their duties, but have been perverted, Jer. 23. 2. 11. Ezek. 34. 2. And this alſo cauſed their captivity.

v. 3. Mine anger was kindled] Hoſ. 8. 5. Nahum 1. 6. Ezek. 7. verſe 8. This his anger againſt theſe perſons, ſhews his love to his people, and his care of their ſafety.

againſt the ſheepherds] Though the ſheep were not blameleſſe, but all guilty, none free; yet againſt the ſheepherds moſt, becauſe they ſhould have kept the ſheep from ſtraying, but did not; ſeducing them rather, and as blinde guides leading them into the ditch.

ſheepherds] So he calls them, becauſe of their office, and duties were ſuch; though indeed they proved wolves rather.

puniſhed] Hebr. viſited upon.

the goats] The cruell governours which did oppreſſe the poor ſheep, Ezek. 34. 16, 17. Others, the heads and great ones, upon whom God poured out his greateſt vengeance, by means of the Chaldeans, Jer. 39. 6.

hath viſited] With another manner of viſiting; the goats in anger; his flock in favour.

his flock] Becauſe his flock; reſpecting therein, not their preſent merit; but his meere grace, that his true choiſe of them ſhould not prove to be in vain.

his goodly horſe] See Job 30. 19. 26. Cant. 1. 9. Now that the Lord hath turned his favourable countenance towards his people, he hath endowed them with valour and ſtrength; ſo that of ſheep they are now become a great war-horſe, with which the Lord will overcome and trample down his enemies. Which may in part be underſtood of the Maccabees victory: but moſt perfectly of the whole Churches victories over the world, and the devil. Others ſay, of all this ſtrength and aſſiſtance in arms, and victories, in the end of this verſe, and in the two verſes following, that God gave it to the enemies, out of his anger againſt the evil ſheepherds of his people.

v. 4. Out of him] Or, from. The meaning is, They ſhall be ſufficiently ſafeguarded, though weak in themſelves; all their munitions and fortifications, all their defence, ſhall come of him. He ſhall be inſtead of all unto them.

Corner] Of chief regard in building, or ſcaling tower; as Zeph. 1. 16.

Nail] That faſtneth the tents of war.

Battle-bowe] See 1 Kings 22. 34. 2 Kings 9. 24. 1 Chron. 5. 18. and 8. 40. and 12. 2. Iſaiah 5. 28. Amos 2. 15. Of the battle-axe, See Jer. 51. 20. The ſumme is; on God dependeth all their ſtrength; whether it be to bear up themſelves, as corner-ſtones do bear up the building; or as nails do hold faſt tents, or bear up things that are hung upon them. Iſaiah 22. verſe 23, 24. Or be it to defend themſelves by open ſtrength, which is meant by the bowe.

Every oppreſſour together] All manner of oppreſſion, done by other men, is alſo part of Gods providence. See chap. 9. 8. Or rather thus; They ſhall prevail againſt their enemies, and oppreſſe their oppreſſours, and exact tribute of them, as victours do of them whom they have ſubdued. This beſt ſuits with the context. And this we ſee partly verified in the hiſtory of the Maccabees: and more fully in and under the Kingdom of Chriſt in the dayes of the Goſpel; the Prophet here comprehending in theſe Promiſes the whole and entire redemption and deliverance of Gods Church and People, by and under the Meſſias. See Iſaiah 51. 13.

v. 5. And they ſhall be The Lord goes on largely to ſet forth, in all the reſt of this chapter, the Promiſes of his manifold mercies to his People.

as mighty men &c.] To paſſe by the victorious conqueſts of Chriſtians; This is moſt true in the Church Militant under the Croſſe; thus Tryumphing over her enemies: God makes them rejoycing in hope, glorious in patience, and all heavenly graces, muliplying in numbers and power, even before the eyes of their furious enemies raging againſt them.

becauſe the Lord is with them] Here is the ſole and whole cauſe. So that they muſt arrogate nothing to themſelves, nor truſt to any power of their own; but depend altogether on him.

the riders on horſes] Or, they ſhall make the riders on horſes aſhamed; that is, the powerful enemies, who are well appointed and provided for war. Yet ſome there are that underſtand all in this verſe and the former, and the laſt words of the third verſe, as ſpoken of the Caldeans, formerly acted by God, and ſo inabled to ſubdue the Jews, and lead them away captives as a flock without a ſhepheard, becauſe of his anger kindled againſt them for their ſins.

v. 6. And I will ſtrengthen] Nahum 1.7. Eſay. 41.10. and 42. 13. Pſal. 89.21. 22. Gods promiſes to his Church, the full accompliſhment whereof pertains to the kingdom of Chriſt; ſo that the Jews were not to reſt, or reflect ſo much upon thoſe poor beginnings which were preſent before their eyes; they came far ſhort of the exceeding largeneſſe of Gods promiſes; but they were to advance their hopes and expectations to far more then what yet appeared, and to extend them to the coming of Chriſt when all theſe glorious promiſes ſhould receive their full accompliſhment.

v. 7. And they of Ephraim] See on Hoſ. 4. 17. They of the Ten tribes, the Iſraelites diſtinct from Judah, who had in a ſort cut off themſelves from the people of God, and were now caſt off by God; yet they are here named, not Judah; and to them is this gracious promiſe made. Judahs return and reſtauration was more eaſily believed: But this of Ephraim almoſt incredible.

v. 8. I will hiſſe] Doe it thus eaſily, as it were with a whiſtle of my mouth, though all the world ſhould ſeek to hinder it: And thus doth he hiſſe for the enemies, and they come at his call, and obey his beck, Iſa. 5. 26. & 7. 18. among the people] Their diſperſion it ſelf ſhould turn to be a bleſſing. They ſhould be among the people of all Nations, as Gods ſeed, to bring forth every where plentifull fruit unto him. And this ſhould give contentment to their minde, and aſſwage the diſpleaſure of their diſperſion; in that God would bring thus light out of darkneſſe, good out of evil; as in that diſperſiion of Levi, Gen. 49. 7.

and they ſhall remember me in far Countryes] I will ſcatter them abroad where I will preſerve them, and their poſterity, that they may ſpread my Name there, and my memoriall. Indeed the Jews were ſo ſowen among the people in far countryes; that where the Goſpel was preached, there were found Synagogues of the Jews, which were the firſt inlets, and receptacles of the Goſpel; and opened the door to let in the Gentiles, to come in after.

And though they returned not into their countrey, nor ſtirred a foot out of the places of their diſperſions, yet their turning to the Goſpel is accounted for it; and ſo called in the common language of the Prophets.

CHAP. XI.

verſe 1. O*Pen*] A Propheſie of the horrible deſtruction of the Jews becauſe they rejected Chriſt, and his Goſpel. This was chiefly executed by the Romans. And this would ſerve to leave the obſtinate ſinners the more inexcuſable; and to bear up the faithfull in that day of tentation, when this direfull judgement ſhould come to be executed. Indeed this may ſeem not ſo conſonant to all the former propheſies; but rather to croſs the gratious mercies contained in them. Yet this ſhews how things at laſt ſhould fall out. As in Deut. 31. 16—22. & chap. 32. So here; This ſhould be their obſtinate courſe, and malitious trade of ſinning in the end, that God for all his propitious favours formerly vouchſafed to his people, ſhould at laſt be driven to this extremity, to do this his ſtrange work, and execute this dreadfull doom upon them. See Lam. 3. 33. Eſay 28. 21.

thy doors] Lebanon ſeems to have had ſtronge fortifications in it; beſides the ſtronge ſituation of the place, called the defenced forreſt, verſe 2. The doors of them ſhould in a manner open themſelves to the enemies. See Eſay 45. 1. 2. Another kinde of opening is that, Eſay 60. 11. Or thus; Becauſe Labanon was the confine of the Countrey on that ſide where the Romans made their chief in-rode or invaſion, it is here brought in as opening the gates of Judea.

O Lebanon] Libanus or Lebanon was a great, and famous mountain, and fruitfull forreſt, on the north boundarie of Judea: looking weſtward toward the great ſea, toward Sidon, and Joppa; and eaſtward, toward Damaſcus of Syria: Inhabited of old by the Hivites. There it ſeems Solomon built a glorious houſe: all the veſſels whereof were of pure gold; and he placed there 300, Targets of beaten gold. It abounded chiefly with Cedar-trees; whereof Solomon built the Temple, and other Houſes; and the Tyrians made the Maſts of ſhips. It was ſtored alſo with Fir-trees and Almuggin-trees. Much is ſpoken of the glory of it; many compariſons are taken from the beauty, flowers, ſmell, wine of it, in the Book of Canticles. The Aſſyrian Empire is likned to a Cedar in it. A moſt pleaſant place; as Gilead was on the eaſt-ſide of Jordan. This Moſes mentions, and deſired to ſee before he died. When the enemies invaded Judea, they gloryed in the gaining of this mountain; wherein likely ſtrong fortifications were; Iſa. 37. 24. 2 King. 19. 23. Conquering the land, they had a ſpeciall care of this mountain. Aſaph was the keeper of it under the Perſian Monarch, Neh. 2. 8. And here Lebanon is ſpoken to, for to open her doors of ſtrengths and munitions, to let in the enemies, to burn up, and ſpoil Judea. The Prophets ſpeaking thus to Lebanon, and theſe other places, hath a kind of emphaſis and vehemency in it. Joſephus records in his hiſtory that the Temple doors opened themſelves before it was deſtroyed by Titus. But that makes nothing to this text.

that the fire] Of Gods wrath, and the fury of his inſtruments of vengeance.

may devour thy Cedars.] This may be underſtood, either literally, becauſe the Romans did almoſt deſtroy the whole forreſt of Lebanon, to imploy the trees to the beſieging of places; as Iſa. 14. 8. Or figuratively, for the moſt powerfull and flouriſhing city; or for the Peers and Potentates of Judea: as Iſaiah 2. 13. Ezek. 17. 3.

v. 2. Howl fir-trees] If the nobleſt plants ſpoiled, the inferiour ones muſt not look to be ſpared. Which may alſo be underſtood of the leſſer cities and holds, which were about Jeruſalem; Or of the meaner ſort of people.

mighty] Or gallants. They ſhould not be able to ſave themſelves from ſpoil.

Baſhan] See on Micah 7. 14.

for the forreſt] Or defenced forreſt. Seeing that Lebanon was deſtroyed, which was the ſtrongeſt munition, the weaker places could not think to hold out. No ſtrength, fence, or defence, can withſtand the power of Gods vengeance. Others underſtand by the forreſt of the vintage, the promiſcuous multitude of the meaner ſort of people.

v. 3. A voice] He ſpeaks of the dreadful judgment to come, as preſent; for the certainty of it, & to affect them the more with it.

of the howling] Not in way of repentance, but of lamentation, vexation, and ſorrow. As Ezek. 30. 2. Hoſ. 7. 14. Iſa. 52. 5.

of the ſheepherds] Namely of the Governours of Jeruſalem, in Church, and Common-wealth: who inſtead of being ſheepherds, to feed the people, were ravenous Lyoneſſes, Ezek. 19. 2, 3. See Jer. 4. 8, 9. & 25. 34, 35, 36.

for their glory is ſpoiled] Their glory & greatneſſe, wherein they prided themſelves, could not free them from that ſpoil & ruine which their ſins merited at the revenging hand of Gods juſtice.

Young Lyons] Many were in Iudea: & moſt about the bancks, woods, and wilderneſſes of Iordan. And theſe reſemble thoſe cruel oppreſſors that exerciſed bloody tyranny, under pretence of their authority, againſt the poor people.

for the pride of Jordan is ſpoiled] The ſhelter and ſuccour of the Lyons. And likely intimating hereby the proud and numerous company of the people, over whom they had tyrannized; likened here to the yeerly overflowing of Iordan: whereof ſee Ioſh. 3. 15. Ier. 12. 5. and 49. 19.

v. 4. Thus ſaith] Thus follows the reaſon of this ſo ſevere dealing of God againſt them: becauſe their wickedneſſe was incurable, themſelves incorrigible. He would act the part of a carefull faithfull ſheepherd to them, ſo as no default ſhould lye on his ſide: and yet their ingratitude, ungratiouſneſſe, incorrigibleneſſe would thereby ſo much the more appear: ſo as no more place would be left for pity, pardon, or mitigation.

My God] That is, God the Father to God the Son, the Eternall ſheepherd of his Church, Heb. 13. 20. 1 Pet. 5. 4. To whom it is given of the Father, to govern, and to guard his people, oppreſſed by powerfull and profane ones, unto the time prefixed of their total diſſipation, for their ingratitude.

Feed] Chriſt by himſelf, and by his Miniſters, and under-ſheepherds. We muſt not reſtrain all this to the Perſon of Chriſt alone. Micah 7. 14.

the flock of the ſlaughter] The poor flock, v. 7. expoſed and appointed, as it were, to ſlaughter, to be bruiſed, as is ſet forth in the next words, v. 5. This was true of the Iews, in the time, & age of this Prophet: but much more in the dayes of our Saviour.

v. 5. Whoſe poſſeſſours ſlay] Namely, any one that hath any right over my people, either by conqueſt of war, or otherwiſe, as in the time of Ariſtobulus firſt, and ſecond, of Alexander Hyrcanus, Antipater, Herod, and the Romans.

and hold themſelves not guilty] Of cruelty, or murder. They do it, and think they may lawfully do it as if it were a lawful prey: and are not puniſhed for it. See Ier. 2. 3. and 50. 7.

and they that ſell them] Namely they that make merchandize of them, as of poor ſlaves. See Joſephus his Antiq. 6. 13. c. 19. 12.

Bleſſed be the Lord] They do profanely boaſt of the power that God hath given them over his people; and of their ſelling of them, to enrich themſelves with the price of their ſlavery, as of an expreſſe bleſſing. See Deut. 29. 19. Hoſ. 12. 8. And this is an uſuall form of ſpeech, common even among Hypocrites, that will not be guilty and conſcious to themſelves of their unjuſt and unlawfull gain.

and their own ſheeherds pity them not] Not onely wolves, and Lyons, and theeves, did worry, and tear, and ſlay them: but their own ſheepherds did not ſo much as pity them. Pitifull then was the ſtate and condition of this poor flock. And yet in this ſo pitileſſe, and mercileſſe a condition, Chriſt took the care and charge of a ſheepherd over them: Iſa. 40. 11. which mercy rejected by them, occaſions the utter loathing and rejection of them: as followeth.

v. 6. For I will no more pity] O my Son do thou exerciſe this charge of ſheepherd over this people, during the prefixed time of my patience. But ſeeing thou ſhalt ſpend thy ſtrength in vain, Iſa. 49. 4. and they will not be under thy paſtorall care and government; but reject, and renounce thee, and it: what now ſhould withhold my judgement any longer? I will utterly deſtroy them for their rebellion and ingratitude.

the inhabitants of the land] The bulk and body of this people, excepting the poor flock of the ſlaughter. Or, as ſome take it, this may relate to thoſe that ſlay, ſell, and pity them not, in the former verſe.

I will deliver the men every one &c.] Heb. make to be found every one at the hand of his neighbour. He ſeemeth to ſignifie the frequent ſeditions, and civil inteſtine troubles of the Iews: wherein they ſhould ſlaughter and conſume one another: and ſpecially about the time of their laſt deſolation.

His king] Namely Antipater, Herod the great, and chiefly the Roman Emperour, whom they then ſhould have accepted for their king: rejecting my Son, Iohn 19. 15.

and they ſhall ſmite the land] Inteſtine, and forraign enemies ſhall utterly ruine it. Mich. 6. 13. See Ezek. 9. 5. Iſa. 2. 19.

I will not deliver] Not care for their ruine, but let them periſh without remedy. Thus they ſhut upon themſelves the door of mercy.

v. 7. And I] This is ſpoken not of Zechariah, but of Chriſt: of whom verſe 4.

will feed] Here he returns to his charge of feeding the flock: whereupon will follow, and the more appear, their ingratitude and rebellion: which will render them the more odious, and vile, and leave no place for pardon.

I will feed] Or, I fed.

the flock of ſlaughter] See on verſe 4.

even you O poor] Or, verily the poor. Namely, my poor Church, and Iewiſh Nation, no way comparable in greatneſſe and power to other Nations and Empires of the world: and brought very low by her calamities. See Iſa. 14. 32. Zeph. 3. 12. Zech. 13. 7. Or the poor and humble ſort of them, verſ. 11.

of the flock] Theſe may ſeem to be diſtinct from the reſt of the flock, as peculiarly fed, and ſingularly guided, folded, and cared for, by Chriſt.

Two ſtaves] Or ſheephooks, or ſheepherds ſtaves. Other ſheepherds are content with one Staffe. But Chriſt ſurpaſſing all others in feeding and governing his flock, hath two. Some make the two ſtaves a figure of thē two wayes that Chriſt uſeth at all times in feeding of his Church: the one by guiding them lovingly by his word, and Spirit: the other by ſeverely puniſhing them, by the cruel hand of their enemies. See Pſal. 110. 2. and 2. 9. and 89. 32. See Michah 7. 14. Pſal. 23. 1. 2, 3, 4.

Bands] Or, binders. Some, ſticking cloſe to the pricks or Hebrew vowells, which now we have, tranſlate it, deſtroyers: and underſtand it according to the former expoſition. Others tranſlating it bands or binders, refer it to the binding and uniting together, both Iudah and Iſrael, in our Saviours Paſtoral charge, and the execution of it. See Mat. 10. 5, 6. And indeed our Saviour, much preached, wrought miracles, converſed, and dwelt in Galilee, and among the ten Tribes, before the calling of the Gentiles: which ſenſe beſt agrees with that v. 14.

and I fed the flock] There was no lack, no defect, or default on my ſide. Hoſ. 13. 9. The greater ſin, and blame, and ſhame, was theirs: not to ſuffer themſelves to be fed, and guided, and Governed by ſuch a ſheepherd.

v. 8. Three ſheepherds] Hereby he ſheweth his care & diligence: he ſpared no pains & labour. As that Gen 31. 40, He withſtood all oppoſitions, & moleſtations: removed all obſtructions that lay in his way: would not endure bad ſheepherds: becauſe they ſhould conſider his great love. By 3. ſheepherds underſtanding, not the 3. chief Empires w^{h} had tyrannized over Gods people, Ier. 6. 3. & 12. 10. namely of the Chaldeans, Perſians, & Greeks whole, and parted: which were deſtroyed by the Son of God.

Dan. 2. 45. Others much rather conceive our Saviour by three ſheepherds to underſtand many; Or as ſome will, aiming at thoſe three Principall Sects, or ſorts among the Jews, in his time, the Phariſees, Sadduces, and Eſſenes. See Mat. 3. 17. and 16.6.11.12. and 22. v. 23.34. and 23.13.&c. Acts4.1.& 5.17. & 23.6.7,8. The Scribes alſo are much mentioned, and oppoſed by our Saviour. And of the Herodians we read likewiſe.

I cut off] Reiecting, confuting, and confounding them. And in ſtead of them, ſending forth better ſheepherds, his twelve Apoſtles; and ſeventy Diſciples.

in one moneth] In a ſhort time; as Hoſ. 5. 7. His own publike Miniſtery being but three yeers, and one half. And all this his care and pains ſerves to aggravate the crime of the Jewiſh people, in leaving and loathing him; and to juſtifie the merit of their direfull deſtruction.

And my ſoul loathed them] Heb. was ſtraitned for them, eſtranged from them, imbittered againſt them; vexed at my peoples diſloyalty, and ingratitude; as well as at thoſe ſheeperds treachery.

and their ſoul. alſo abhorred me] This the hiſtory of the Goſpel ſheweth. They reſted not till they brought him to his death. Thus they rewarded his love, and recompenced his pains. See 2 Cor. 6. 11, 12.

v. 9. Then ſaid I] He did not over haſtily proceed againſt them; but after all the precedure. As it is, Iſaiah 5. 4. 5. Matth. 23. 37, 38.

I will not feed you] A repreſentation of the rejection of the Jews, for rejecting ſalvation offered them by the Meſſiah; as if he ſhould ſay; I will not feed you, O ungratefull Jews; meaning the Goſpel ſhould be taken from them Matth. 21. 43. So that for their ſaid ſin, here follows the judgement. A grievous judgement, but not too ſevere for the merit of their ſin. He would make proof of the utmoſt of his love, and care, before he would fall upon theſe extreamities. But when for all that they came to ſcoffe at, and to loath God their Saviour, what remained, and what more juſtly, then this finall reſolution, and direfull doom here ſet down? He reſignes his Paſtorall office and care, and leaves them to themſelves.

That that dyeth] The ſheeherds part and duty is, to defend the fock from dogs, wolves, theeves, &c. But he that is freed of that charge, is not intereſſed or concerned therein; no blame is imputed to him, though the ſheep miſcarry, and periſh an hundred times, and wayes. The flock rejecting the ſheepherd, may thank themſelves for it. See Apoc. 22. 11. 1 Cor. 14. 38. Pſal. 81. 11, 12. Ezek. 3. 27.

and let the reſt] That were not cut off by forraign foes, and forces; or otherwiſe.

eat every one &c.] Heb. a woman the fleſh of her friend, or fellow, or neighbour. This judgement openly appeared, when the neerer they were to deſtruction, by the Roman Army, without the wals of Jeruſalem, the more fierce and furious they were with in, in ſlaughtering one another by their deadly feudes, and inteſtine ſeditions.

v. 10. And I took] A Type of the breaking off of his Paſtorall office. As there is a uſe amongſt men, to break in ſunder the ſtaff of their office, when their office ceaſeth and endeth.

Even Beauty] This firſt was broken; the beautifull order in Church, and Politie; by which formerly he governed them. Schiſmes, and Sects, and Hereſies corrupted the purity of doctrine, marred the beautifull face of the Church; and the Common-wealth was in as broken an eſtate, and deformed.

that I might break my covenant] The people eſtſoons broke it on their part. See Lev. 26. 44. Deut.31.16. 20. Jud.2.20. Jer. 11. 10. and 31. v. 32. But for all that, God never did, nor would break it on his part totaly. See Jud.2.1. Pſal. 89 34. Jer. 33. 20. 21. Ezech.16.60.62.63. And this covenant here may ſeem to relate more immediatly to that peace which he had granted to his Church, that ſhe ſhould be no more aſſaulted, nor moleſted by any ſtrange nation: which was verified from the Maccabees time, untill a little before the comming of Chriſt.

with all the people] With the body of the 12. Tribes: yet he reſerved an holy Remnant; as appears in the next words. See Rom.11.1.

v. 11. And it was broken in that day] dictum, factum. This came not to paſſe by fate, or fortune; but by the revenging, and ſecret hand of Gods providence; who after his ſo long patience, did in this manner execute his judgements upon them.

and ſo the poor of the flock] Thoſe verſe 7. the holy Remnant.

that waited upon me] Diligently, and duly obſerved me, and my wayes, and works; waiting upon my words, and promiſes, and waighing my judgements: ſuch as thoſe Micah 7.7. ſee Lam. 3.25.26. Jer.14.22. Eſay.64.4.

knew that it was &c.] Though the reſt, and moſt of the people knew not ſo much; who uſually ſhut their eyes againſt Gods judgements, and the paſſages of his providence, and think not that ſuch affaires are governed by the hand of God; yet ſome poor and mean people, the holy ſeed, know, and take to heart theſe things; and profit, and better themſelves, in humiliation and repentance; by thoſe judgements of God upon his Church.

word of the Lord] According to it, his word, and work. My elect which remained, of my people, who humbly beleeved my promiſes, and gave obedience to my commandments; my Diſciples, and Apoſtles did acknowledge the time of my viſitations; and that the wars moved by the Romans were effects of my providence, according to the ancient prophecies.

v. 12. and I ſaid unto them] Here, to their horrible ingratitude, is added a flagitious crime of a moſt baſe and vile valuation of the uneſtimable riches of Gods mercy in the Meſſiah, and his miniſtery. This is brought in under the figure of a ſhepherd demanding his wages; and the returne and price which they pay him.

if ye think good] Heb. if it be good in your eyes. Chriſt ſeems here to ſpeak as a man full of ſtomack, indignation, and diſdain. And ſo ſhould our ſtomack riſe againſt ſin.

give me my price] That ye value me, and my paines at. See 1 Tim.5.17. 18. Lev. 19.13. Deut 24.14.15. Mal. 3.5. Jam.5.4 Not that Chriſt is an hireling, Joh. 10. v. 11 12. 13. But hereby to make way to convict them of their own unworthy, baſe, and villanous mindes in this caſe.

and if not, forbear] As if he ſhould ſay, I do not heed or regard it; whether yea, or no: I know your bad and baſe mindes ſufficiently already; you wil ſhew your ſelves moſt ungrateful wretches, and hereby it will appear ſo to all the world. See Ezech. 12.15. and 3. 11. 27.

ſo they weighed &c.] He expected and deſerved that as he gave himſelf to them, and for them; ſo they again ſhould give up themſelves to him, in all thankfulneſſe, and holy obedience, as his peculiar people, and redeemed ones. 1 Cor. 6.19.20. and 7. 23. Mich. 6. 6. &c. But they requited him as followeth. Deut. 32.6.

waighed] After they gave over exchanging one commodity for another, and traded in ſilver, then they delivered it, not by tayl, but by weight. ſo Gen. 23.16. and 43. 21. Eſay. 55.2. Jer.32.9. And ſhekel the common price of ſilver, ſeems to come from Schakal to weigh.

30 pieces of ſilver] Thirty ſilverings; uſually taken in ſcripture for ſhekels: and the common ſhekel containing, ten gerahs; (the ſacred double,) and each gerah weighing. 16. grains of barly, is ſo commonly taken to be the fourth part of an ounce of ſilver; with us one ſhilling three pence. And ſo thirty of them come to 37. ſhillings ſixpence, ſet down for the price of the life of a ſervant, or ſlave. Exod 21.32 And this price they payed to Judas for the life of our Saviour, Mat. 26.15. the price of him that was valued, whom they of the children of Iſrael did value, as the words are of Saint Matthew, c.27.9.

v. 13. And the Lord ſaid unto me] God my Father did ſo deteſt their flagitious, and haynous ingratitude, that he gave me in charge that which followeth.

caſt it unto the potter] God did abominate ſuch their dealing: as he did abhor the price of a whore, Deut 23. 18. Micah.1.7 He lothed it, as he did the ceremonious ſervices of ſuch vile ſinners, Eſay. 1. 13. and 66. 3. And therefore he commands it to be caſt away, to be caſt to a potter, as fitter for a potter, and his uſe, then for ſuch a Paſtor, and his price. And thus by prophecy he forſhewes what in time ſhould come to paſſe; what figuratively is repreſented here, was viſibly acted and accompliſhed upon the perſon of our Saviour, the great ſhepherd of his flock. 1 P. 5.4. How this price came into the potters hand, for his field, upon the occaſion of Judas his deſpaire and deſpite, we read Mat 27.3.11.

a goodly price] Spoken thus in ſcorn, and diſdain a ſordid price, moſt unbeſeeming the Majeſty of God.

that I was priſed at &c.] Becauſe that the injury done to my Son, redoundeth to me, who had before governed them by him. ſee Joh.5.23.

of them] The children of Iſrael Mat.27.9. not of Heathen, barbarous nations; but his own people.

and I took] Thus God would have a viſible monument to remain, and to be upon record, that the Jews in their time might ſee what ſcene they acted; and how punctually they performed, what was ſo long afore propheſied; though then their own malice, and the God of this world blinded their eyes. How this propheſy is alledged out of Ieremy, ſee on Mat. 27.9.

v. 14. Then I cut aſunder &c.] Of this other ſtaff ſee before on v. 7. whether this ſtaffe was broken before the demanding his price and upon the relinquiſhing his paſtoral charge, verſe 9. together with the breaking off his ſtaff Beauty; or not till now; is not ſo certain; neither is it much materiall.

that I might break the brotherhood,&c.] This ſhews that the meaning is not, that Chriſt would not only not govern his people any more in mildneſſe and clemencie; nor exerciſe his ſhepherdly ſeverity in ſaving corrections and viſitations; as he had done in former times; but that he would altogether reject them; taking away from the Jews according to the fleſh, the title of being his Church, and his people: whereas before, Iſrael the people of God, and Judah, had been the ſame thing, in name and in effect; and taking to himſelf the Iſrael, which is according to the Spirit, namely all true believers; and rejecting the carnal Judah. But hereby more particularly is meant, that Judah, the two Tribes, and Iſrael the ten, ſhould no more keep brotherhood together, and be united as one among themſelves in ſtate and Government; but be broken aſunder, and broken in pieces, diſperſed, and ſcattered, without recovery. We read of their union promiſed, and lively repreſented by the joyning of two ſticks, Ezek. 37. 16—27. But that is underſtood either to precede this breach; or rather of the ſpiritual union of them both in the Church and kingdom of Chriſt, under the Goſpel: And more ſpecially of their general calling, when the fulneſſe of the Gentiles is come in; intimated, Luke 21. 24. 2 Cor. 3. 16. and more fully expreſſed, Rom. 11. 11. 12. 15. 23. 24. 25—32. And that hinders not the more literall ſenſe of this text, and the preceding breach of brotherhood betwixt them, here mentioned.

v. 15. unto me] Namely to Zechariah. Some underſtand it of Chriſt, as ſpoken to him.

of a fooliſh ſhepherd] Not unlike to that command to Hoſea, Chap. 1. verſe 2. After Chriſts two paſtoral ſtaves broken, there yet ſhould remain ſome ſhew and ſhadow of a Paſtoral charge and government among the Jews, wherewith they would pleaſe and ſooth up themſelves: As Papiſts do at this day in the like caſe: But it ſhould be ſuch as would appear to be not for edification but for deſtruction. They ſhould be fooliſh ſhepherds; as thoſe Hoſ. 9. 7. 8. Lam. 2. 14. ſhepherds fit for a fooliſh flock; ſuch as thoſe Deut. 32. 6. Jer. 5. 21. Not wiſe for the good of the flock; but pernicious and deſtructive to them. Theſe Shepherds thought themſelves wiſe; but Chriſt calls them fools; Matthew 23. 17. Luke 11. 40.

v. 16. For lo I will raiſe up] God doth it for the ſins of his people, to revenge the quarrel of his Covenant. Having relinquiſhed his Paſtoral office he will now raiſe up, not ſuch ſhepherds as thoſe, Jer. 23. 4. and 3. 15. But dogs, wolves, and beaſts of prey; thieves and robbers to be their ſhepherds; Thoſe John 10. 1. 10. As he did raiſe up evil againſt David, out of his own houſe: and many adverſaries againſt Solomon; and the Aſſyrians and Babylonians againſt the Jews; and gave them kings in his anger: ſo here he will raiſe up wolviſh ſhepherds to them. A repreſentation of the peoples evil government by their own heads, Prieſts, Doctors and others into whoſe power the Lord delivered them for a puniſhment, becauſe they had rejected Chriſt.

a ſhepherd in the land] A goverment which ſhall be uniforme in wickedneſſe and depravation, though it be adminiſtred by ſeveral perſons which God had ſuffered to raiſe themſelves to that dignity, and authority. This is the explication of the former Type or Hieroglyphick.

cut off] Or, hidden. Will not ſee, nor ſeek what is wanting.

the young one] That is more apt to be loſt, and goe aſtray.

and tear their clawes in pieces] Exceeds in ravenous crueltie the very wilde beaſts. Amos 3. 12. By theſe faults of the fooliſh ſhepherd, we may gather what are the parts and duties of the wiſe and faithful ſhepherds.

v. 17. wo to the idol ſhepherd] He ſpeaks to the whole company of them, as unto one man. He ſhews, that though God doth thus deſervedly puniſh the Iews by this fooliſh ſhepherd; yet he ſhall not ſcape unpuniſhed himſelf. The word here for idol ſignifieth a thing of nothing, of no worth, an empty, vain, vacant thing. The woe denounced here is often taken up in Scripture. See Jer. 10. 21. & 22. 22. & 23. 1. & 25. 34. & 50. 6. Ezek. 34. 2. John 10. 12.

that leaveth the flock] John 10. 12, 13.

upon his arm] His ſtrength and ſtate which he ſeemeth to have, and wherein he flouriſheth in the eyes of the world; it ſhall be clean dried up; it ſhall wither, decay, and dye: and the ſhamefulneſſe of it appear to the world.

right eye] His underſtanding, knowledge, prudence, which he pretends to, and ſeems to have in the opinion of the world.

ſhall be utterly darkned] Ezek. 13. 23. Micah 3. 6. 7. See Annotations there. The ſtrength and knowledge of man, are thus in the hands of God, to give and take away as he pleaſeth. Under theſe two ſimilitudes and expreſſions here, all kind of puniſhments upon body and minde are comprehended And they are here juſtly puniſhed: for though God uſed them as inſtruments of his wrath, and revenge upon his ſinful people; yet they intended nothing leſſe then to obey and do his will therein; Their own ambition, covetouſneſſe, and cruelty ſet them on work, to ſerve their own ends: And the all wiſe God can cauſe ſinful men, and Satan himſelf to bring to paſs his holy will, and do his juſt work, though unwittingly, unwillingly, and wickedly on their part. Acts 4. 27, 28. And yet God thus puniſhing the idol ſhepherd, doth ſhew thereby, that he retains ſtill ſome care of this people, for his elects ſake, that ſmall remnant, and holy ſeed, that was amongſt them. The accompliſhment of theſe threatnings, verſ. 16. 17. we may read in Joſephus his wars of the Iews, Hegeſippus, and others.

CHAP. XII.

Verſe 1. THe burden of the word of the Lord] This more generally is taken for a propheſie, or word of Gods inſpiration: See on Chap. 9. 1. Ier. 23. 33—39. Heb. 1. 1. More ſtrictly & frequently for a burdenſome propheſie, againſt either forraign nations, enemies to the Church; as againſt Babylon, Moab, Damaſcus, Egypt, and others, as we read in the beginnings of the 13, 15, 17, 19, 21, 23. Chapters of Eſay; or againſt the Iews themſelves, as Eſay 22. 1. Mal. 1. 1.

for Iſrael] Both for, and againſt. For Iſrael concerning the victories which God giveth unto his Church, collected of Iews and Gentiles, which by the Apoſtle is called the Iſrael of God, Gal. 6. 16. And ſo this is on the behalf of Iſrael. And a burden againſt the enemies of the Church of Chriſt under the Goſpel. And it is all full of allegories, taken from the Church of the Iews, as being the type of the other; mainly ſetting forth Gods threatnings, and judgements againſt the enemies of his Church, and his manifold promiſes of bleſſings and benefits, to be vouchſafed to her: and yet not altogether taking off the preſent intendment, and application of many things herein mentioned, to the preſent ſtate and condition of the Church, and people of the Iews, in the Prophets time.

ſaith the Lord which ſtretcheth] This glorious deſcription of God is often uſed by the Prophets. See Eſay 42. 5. and 40. 22. and 44. 24. and 48. 13. Ier. 10. 12. and 51. 15. Pſalm 104. 2. Iob 9. 8. and 26. 7. And this is of ſpecial uſe to confirm our faith in the belief of a thing promiſed by God, though it ſeem in it ſelf, and to all our ſenſe and reaſon, to be impoſſible. And ſuch was the caſe here in hand. The Prophet therefore calls on them to conſider the infinite power of God, in creating the heaven above, the earth beneath, and the Spirit of man that is inviſible within him; to convict them thereby that they are not to meaſure his infinite power, by the poor ſcantling of their ſhallow ſenſe & reaſon: but firmly to believe, that what he ſhall promiſe he is able to perform, Rom. 4. 17-22.

v. 2. Behold] To make them to attend to the promiſe that would ſeem ſo incredible.

I will make Jeruſalem] Though it be ſo poor a citie now, without walls, and with few inhabitants, as appears in the book of N*ehemiah*: and much more I will make my Church, whereof Ieruſalem is a type.

a cup of trembling unto all] Or, ſlumber, or poiſon. Ieruſalem ſhall be as a ſoporiferous or poiſonous potion, to her enemies. Some tranſlate a poſt of bruiſing, whereon they ſhall bruiſe and break themſelves. My Church being ſet upon by her enemies, ſhall be an occaſion that I will ſtrike them with amazement, ſo that they ſhall not be able to bring their deſignes to any happy end: but ſhall be the cauſes of their own ruine. Eſay 51. 17. 22. Ier. 51. 7.

when they ſhall be,&c.] Or, and alſo againſt Judah ſhall he be, which ſhall be in ſiege againſt Ieruſalem.

in the ſiege] In the very inſtant that the enemies were ready to do their beſt and laſt endeavours.

both againſt Iudah] Not that Iudah ſhould be againſt Ieruſalem, as ſome would make it: but that God will be a protection, both to countrey, and to citie, againſt the enemies beſieging them.

v. 3. And in that day] Repeated verſ. 4. 6. 8. 9. 11. and again Chap. 13. 1. 2. 4. and Chap. 14. 1. 4. 6. 8. 9. 13. 20. 21. This muſt needs be a famous day, and comprehends in it ſundry great things of Gods manifold mercies to his Church, under the names of Iudah and Ieruſalem: of Chriſts death, and the cities deſtruction following thereupon: of Gods battel, and fighting againſt the enemies of his people: of the converſion of the nations: puniſhment of the reſt: reſtauration of the Iews: and glorious ſtate of the Church of God.

will I make Ieruſalem] God is the Agent for his Church, againſt her enemies.

a burdenſome ſtone] Some Ancients obſerve, that this is taken from an exerciſe or game,which was frequent in dayes of old; namely to take up a great round ſtone, to try ones ſtrength,lifting it up from the ground,ſomtimes to their knees, ſomtimes to their navels, ſomtimes to their ſhoulders, and ſomtimes as high as their heads. At which ſports ſomtimes they did grievouſly hurt themſelves. The meaning is, the enemies of the Church ſhall ſtrive and endeavour who ſhalbe able to do her the moſt hurt: but the ſtrongeſt and valianteſt of them all ſhall be overcome. See Matth. 21. 44. She ſhall be too heavy for them; and their ſtrengths too little for it.

ſhall be cut in pieces] They ſhall think to cut her off: but themſelves ſhall be cut in peeces: they ſhall gain by ſuch lifting at her, ruptures in their bodies, diſlocations in their joynts; they ſhall be bruiſed to powder,broken,cruſht,and cut in peeces. 1 Peter 2. 8.

though all the people of the earth] No humane force can prevail againſt her; for God is her founder, and defender. Chap. 10. 12. Pſalm. 46. 5. & 87. 1. 2. See Pſalm. 27. 3. and 3. 6.

v. 4. every horſe, &c.] By horſe and rider are meant all warlike ſtrengths. Job 39. 19—26. By aſtoniſhment, madneſſe, and blindneſs, are meant the many wayes that God hath, open, and ſecret, to confound their force and ſtrength, to take from them ſkill and Counſell; that they ſhall be amazed and mad. See Exod. 15. 1. 2 King. 6. 18. Jer. 51. 21. vain are theſe helps againſt the Lord. Pſal. 33. 17. & 76. 3. 5. 6. 7. Pro. 21. 30. 31. Eſay 31. 1. 3. 4. Jer. 50. 37.

open mine eyes upon the houſe of Judah] I had formerly ſhut mine eyes againſt them for their ſins: Pſal. 31. 22. Eſay 1. 15. But now I will look to them, and care for them; mine eyes ſhall be upon them for good; as Eſay 49. 16. Jer. 24. 6. To aſſiſt and defend them againſt all their enemies.

v. 5. And the governours of Judah] Which before had many populous Cities, and mighty armies.

ſhall ſay in their heart] Shall heartily be thus couragious and confident; as to ſay thus; the inhabitants of Jeruſalem] Though now without wals; and almoſt without inhabitants; yet even they.

ſhall be my ſtrength] They alone, though never ſo few now: They, though the other cities of Judah want inhabitants to aſſiſt. Others put in a copulative; and underſtand both the governours of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, to be thus heartily confident of their ſtrength in their God; Tranſlating thus, There is ſtrength to me, and to the inhabitants,&c. But thoſe which expound thus, viz. al the Governors of the Church ſhall hearten on the faithfull to fight this good fight of faith, ſeem to recede too far from the literall meaning of the text.

my ſtrength] Every one of them for his part ſhall ſay ſo.

the Lord of hoſts] Therefore able enough for ſtrength, againſt all oppoſition.

their God] And therefore willing enough upon their true intereſt in him.

v. 6. the governours of Judah] Some thus, The Apoſtles, and evangeliſts, by the preaching of the Goſpel, ſhall inflame the whole world with perſecutions and diſſentions, Luke 12. 49. By the which in the end, the enemies ſhall come to ruine, and the Church ſhall be eſtabliſhed. Others more likely, underſtand hereby onely in generall the victories of the Churches Governours over all her enemies.

hearth of fire] Or furnace of fire. Obad. verſe 18. They, how weak ſoever now, ſhall then conſume all their enemies before them; as fire doth.

among the wood] The enemies elſwhere are likened to fewel for the fire; to wax before the fire; to chaff or Stubble, or thiſtle down before the winde. Job 21. 18. Eſay 31. 9. See Zech. 2. 5.

they ſhall devour] Which aimes not at an unſatiable cruelty, and deſire of revenge, in the governours of Judah: but at the utter deſtruction of the enemies, which they ſhould bring upon themſelves, by Gods juſt judgement, in the hands of his inſtruments.

all the people] Though never ſo many, and mighty. Marveilous ſtill, if not miraculous, ſhall the deliverance of the Church be, we muſt not too anxiouſly be inquiring after the means, how, and how it may be, this way, or that way; ſo diſtruſtfully, diſtracting our ſelves. Though we have no ſtrength nor ſee any, yet God is able.

in her own place] Chap. 14. 10. The enemies thought to root it up; that the place of it ſhould know it no more. But God had choſen it, for the place of his worſhip; till the coming of his Son, when, and not before, for the renouncing and crucifying of him, one ſtone ſhould not be left upon a ſtone. Matth. 24. 2. Luk. 13. 34. 35.

v. 7. The Lord alſo ſhall ſave] He is ſufficient, though all humane help fail. We may, and muſt reſt and relie upon him onely.

the tents of Judah] Though they be but tents; not ſtrong, and fenced cities; yet Gods ſole protection ſhall be their ſufficient ſafeguard.

firſt] Some thus; as at the firſt, as at the beginning; as when they dwelt in tents in the wilderneſſe, at their coming out of Egypt; or were but newly come into the land of Canaan: ſo by his ſole power will he wondrouſly ſave and preſerve them now. Others rather thus, That God ſhall ſave the exterior and weaker places firſt, before the approach and acceſſe of the enemies be made to Jeruſalem, and that for the reaſon in the next words following. viz.

that the glory of the houſe of David] That the glory of the Regal family, and the Regal city, may have no cauſe or color left to glory, and boaſt, and magnifie themſelves: againſt Judah, that is over, and above the other weaker, and remoter parts of Judah; as if they had by their power, and proweſſe overcome the enemies, and ſaved Judah; as they were ever prone and prompt thus to aſcribe the glory of victories, and the preſervation and deliverance of Judah to themſelves: But that by this courſe of Gods ſaving Judah firſt, and without them, they might ſee and throughly learn to aſcribe all the glory of ſafety and preſervation from enemies, not to themſelves, but wholly to God alone: and ſo one member ſhould not boaſt over another, or arrogate any thing to it ſelf above another; but give all the praiſe to God onely; who without means, without the wealth, and ſtrength of the royal race, and royal city, would thus ſave Iudah firſt. The ſpiritual meaning, as ſome conceive, may ſeem to be this; That Chriſts ſalvation ſhall firſt be profered to the poore and weak, like to the tents of thoſe poore Iews, which lived in the fields, and were not comparable to Jeruſalem, which was a royal and ſtrong city, belonging to the houſe of David, and was the glory of the land. That is to ſay, the kings, and great ones, ſhall be laſt converted, as the event did verifie it under the Goſpel: To ſhew the prerogative of mean ones with God. See Jam. 2. 5. 1. Cor. 1. 26. The phraſes here have reference to the Type of the Iewiſh Kingdom and city.

v. 8. defend the inhabitants of Jeruſalem] Them alſo: after Iudah. Defend them, be as a ſhield, and buckler to them, protect and ſafeguard them, even them who leaving the Babyloniſh captivity, would come among all hazards, and difficulties, to inhabit the holy place of his worſhip. Theſe are not ſecluded out of this text: But they though they be never ſo weak now, and unprovided of themſelves: though all borderers be againſt them, and no help appears for them, yet they ſhall be defended, Gods arme ſhall make it ſelf bare for them.

and he that is feeble among them] Or abject. Heb. fallen. The meaning is, the weak and feeble ſhall by Gods ſpirit be ſtrengthned, and confirmed in heroical and divine vertues, ſee Ioel 3. 10.

ſhall be as David] 1 Sam. 17. 8. yea as David was in his Kingdom, excelling in all royal parts and endowments above all other kings.

and the houſe of David] Not debaſed thereby, but advanced. That houſe muſt ſtand; as it is, Pſal. 89. 35. 36. 37: Thence muſt come the Son of David, the fountain, and foundation of all their ſafety and ſalvation.

ſhall be as Gods] As Angels. See Pſalm. 8. 5. and 82. 6. The ſame word is there uſed. Namely the Princes of the blood royall, who were alſo chief officers of the crown, ſhall be ſuch, ſo graced, ſo qualified, ſo eſteemed. And this may have a reference to the Apoſtles, to whom ſhould be given ſo much grace, Majeſty, authority, ſtrength, and truth, that they ſhould be reſpected as Gods, and Angels in the world, rather then men. See Galatians 4. 14. Acts 14. 11. 12. 13.

as the Angel of the Lord before them] The Angel of the Covenant. However the Houſe of David was now, and ſhould after be, in their eyes, and in the eyes of all men, in never ſo mean an account, and eſtimation, and contemptible condition; Eſay 11. 1. & 53. 1. 2. Yet Chriſt the Son of David, and Son of God ſpringing thence, he and his Sceptre ſhould rule over all the world, and be glorious; and Jeruſalem ſhould be the Mother-Church of all nations. See Pſal. 2. 8. and 110. 1. 2. Eſay 2. verſe 3. This ſhould be the glorious ſtate of things then, how ever the Jews through their ingratitude and infidelity ſhould be leaſt ſharers in it.

v. 9. I will ſeek] I will ſeriouſly ſet my ſelf about it; carefully intend, and attend it.

to deſtroy all nations] Though never ſo many; and his people be never ſo weak.

that come] That ſhall enterprize, combine conſpire, to aſſail, aſſault, and prevail.

againſt Jeruſalem] The type of the Church of Chriſt.

For theſe glorious promiſes had not their due accompliſhment in all that time, which did run out from Zechariah his dayes before the coming of Chriſt. Here then is the eſtate of the Church and kingdom of Chriſt, aſſailed by enemies; defended by him.

v. 10. And I will powre] See Joel 2. 28. and the Annotations there. This propheſie had its accompliſhment, partly upon our Saviours coming, Acts 2. 17, 18. Eſay 44. 3. John 7. 38. And yet ſhall more fully upon the laſt converſion of the Jews, Rom. 11. 11—32.

the houſe, &c.] Typically repreſenting the Church of Chriſt, and children of God.

the Spirit of grace, and of ſupplications] The preſence, the operation, and the gifts of Chriſts Spirit; which is given through grace; and is the ſeal, and earneſt of Gods grace in them; and doth alone produce in believers, holy and acceptable prayers, Rom. 8. 25, 26. Some underſtand this of Gods gratious commiſeration towards them; that he will pour out the bowels of his mercy and compaſſion upon them. And ſome underſtand, for ſupplications, lamentations. See Jer. 31. 9. which ſuits well with that which followeth. The ſumme is, Gods Spirit ſhall affect them with the ſenſe of his mercies, and inwardly move them to bemoan themſelves in penitent prayer before him, upon the ſight of their ſins, whereof formerly they had not been ſenſible.

and they ſhall look upon me] That is, they ſhall turn to me by faith. See Numb. 21. 8, 9. They ſhall at laſt bethink themſelves aright of their ſin, and Gods wrath; and lament, repent, convert and be ſaved.

whom they have pierced] See Pſal. 22. 16. Matth. 27. 35. John 19. 34. 37. Apoc. 1. 7. The LXX. thus; They ſhall look unto me [as ſuppliants and adorers] inſtead of that they (formerly) inſulted over me. S. John Chap. 19. 37. Apoc. 1. 7. leaves the LXX, and ſticks to the Hebrew text. A viſible monument hereof is upon record, in Chriſts Perſon. The Jews did it, though by the hand of the Roman ſouldier; who was but the inſtrument of their malice: And ſo they are ſaid to crucifie Chriſt, Acts 2. 36. though they did it by the means of Pilate; whom in a manner they compelled thereunto, ſore againſt his will.

and they ſhall mourn for him] They ſhall be exceedingly grieved for the miſdoing of their forefathers. See Jer. 3. 21. Acts 2. 37. And that they themſelves had crucified him by their ſins. Their repentance is here promiſed, and largely ſet forth; and ſorrow and mourning is the beginning of it; 2 Cor. 7. 9, 10, 11, which muſt needs ariſe upon a true ſight of ſin, and through ſenſe of Gods fierce wrath for it.

for his onely Son] Jer. 6. 26. Amos 8. 10. Jer. 31. 15. This expreſſeth the degree only, the manner and meaſure of their mourning; not the cauſe of it: The cauſe was, not the loſſe of him by death, as the parent here mourns, but their own monſtrous ſin in putting him to death; that their own malice ſo monſtrouſly blinded them and their progenitors, as to murther the Son of God, who came to give them life. That Chriſt ſhould be here called Gods only Son, in relation to his Deity; and his firſt-born in relation to his humanity, we being his brethren, the ſons of God by adoption, is not the meaning of this text; however that be a witty comment, and a truth in it ſelf.

v. 11. a great mourning] This mourning being a thing ſo memorable, is much inſiſted upon, and proſecuted to the end of the Chapter. Hereunto we may apply that, Ezek. 19. 14.

in Jeruſalem] Acts 2. 37. yet under the name of this citie, the whole nations of Iews every where ſeem to be comprehended.

as the mourning of Hadadrimmon] Not the name of a man, as ſome would; but of a Town adjacent, or ſtrong hold, or of a region, or tract, wherein the valley of Megiddon was.

Megiddon] In the Tribe of Manaſſeh, weſt of Iordan, Ioſh. 17. 11. Iudg. 1. 27. There Ahaziah king of Iudah dyed of his wound given him upon Jehu his command, 2 Kings 9. 27. And there Joſiah was ſlain, by Pharaoh Necho, 2 Kings 23. 29. of whom the text ſaith, that all Iudah and Ieruſalem mourned for Joſiah. And Jeremiah lamented for Joſiah and all the ſinging men, and ſinging women ſpake of Joſiah in their lamentations to this day, and made them an ordinance in Iſrael, and behold they are written in the lamentations, 2 Chro. 35. 24. 25. in ſome publik lamentations remaining then upon record; not thoſe in Scripture written by Jeremiah: for though ſome relation may haply be made to him therein; yet they were written upon the deſtruction of Ieruſalem by Nebuchadnezzar, as Chap. 4. 20. and the whole context of the Lamentations makes it apparent. This mourning here is likened to that for Joſiah: we read that women mourned at the death of our Saviour: but that falls far ſhort of this. And this belongs to them that pierced and crucified him. That Acts 2. 37. may be a taſte of this, which moſt likely ſhall have its full verification upon the generall converſion of the Iewes, when the fulneſſe of the Gentiles ſhall be come in.

v. 12. And the land ſhall mourn] That is, in all places where the Iews ſhall remain. And of every nation under heaven, ſome of the Iews were gathered to Ieruſalem; and three thouſand of them converted at one Sermon of S. Peter, Acts 2. 5. 37. 41. and were prickt in their heart; as a forerunner of this mourning.

every family apart] Heb. Families, families. Not a counterfeit ceremonious mourning; not one family for companie ſake with another, to condole with them. But each apart, out of the ſerious ſenſe of their own compunction, and their own cauſe of ſorrow. We ſhould indeed by our own example labour to ſtir up others to repent. But this is not the thing minded in this place. Here they are ſevered and ſet apart, to expreſſe each ones true ſorrow.

the family of the houſe of David apart] The remainders of the royal family. Circumſtances taken from the manner of publike mournings; in which they uſed to ſhut themſelves up in their houſes, with their families, and refrained the company of women, and all maner of delightful converſation. See Num. 20. 29.

and their wives apart] This is more then the former: this parts each family. The wives ſhall not ſtay for the examples of their huſbands to provoke them to it; but of themſelves ſhall ſet themſelves apart to it. This mourning is not directly for the death of Chriſt, whoſe death was the life of the world; but for their ſin in it; and upon their repentance at the ſight, and ſenſe of it; that their anceſtours had done it, and ſaid, His blood be upon us, and on our children: and themſelves had continued ſo long malitious, blinde, and obſtinate, in the approbation and juſtification of it.

of Nathan] Not the Prophet, in Davids time; but Davids ſon of that name; to whom the crown deſcended, after Solomons race; and of whom Chriſt came, Luke 3. 27. 31. 2 Sam. 5. 14.

v. 13. Levi apart] The Regal and Prieſtly families are named: likely as chief mourners, as they that had been chief offenders, perſecuting Chriſt moſt; who ſhould have embraced and honoured him moſt.

Shimei apart] It ſeeemeth that it was ſome familie of the Levites, 1 Chron. 6. 17. and 23, 10. And the Prophet doth in this manner ſpecifie theſe families, whereof ſome had held Temporal, ſome Eccleſiaſticall offices; to ſhew, that as the Church and State were united, and joyned in perſecuting of Chriſt, and in putting him to death; ſo they ſhould joyntly repent for it.

v. 14. All the families that remain] Some apply this to the remnant according to the election of grace, Rom. 11. 5. as Eſay 6. 13. But the plain meaning of the letter affords no other ſenſe, then what was ſaid of the other Tribes. In concluſion, ſo much is ſpoken of this mourning, in that it is a thing wonderful, That God ſhould vouchſafe ſuch repentance and mercy to any of that reprobate nation; who in their blindneſs had put out the light of Iſrael; and in their malice put him to death, who came to give life to the world.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſe 1. In that day] Namely when the Meſſiah ſhall come into the world.

there ſhall be a fountain] Namely the grace of God in the remiſſion of ſins, and regeneration of the Spirit, ſhall be profered to all believers in Chriſt, through his blood. A figure taken from the waters of the Temple, and the waſhings according to the Law. And an alluſion unto that, Iohn 19. 34. Thoſe waters and waſhings were but ceremonious ſhadows, ſhewing things afar off, and ſhadowing them darkly; neither could they waſh away ſin; neither could the blood of thoſe legal ſacrifices take away ſins. They did ſerve onely as to the purifying of the fleſh, not conſcience: as the patterns of heavenly things, and no more; Heb. 10. 1. 4. 11. and Chap. 9. 9. 10. 13 Their true vertue ſtood in relation to this fountain. And thoſe waters of the Temple, were in Lavers, poured in, and emptied out: This here is no Laver, but a fountain, ever ſpringing, ever flowing.

opened] Eaſy, free, expoſed, open to all: not ſo ſtopt, and darkned, as was under the Law.

to the houſe of David, &c.] Shadowing the Church of Chriſt, Eſay 2. 2, 3. Micah 4. 1, 2. Pſalm 110. 2. Luke 24. 47. Acts 1. 8.

for ſin] To expiate and cleanſe it. Heb. 9. 12. 14. 26. and 10. 10. 14.

and for uncleanneſſe] Heb. Separation for uncleanneſſe. See Lev. 12. and 15. And here is the fruit of their aforeſaid mourning, and repentance; It ſhould not be in vain; God would thus gratiouſly bleſſe it: yea, here is the fruit of Chriſts death, and blood ſhedding, to all the world, to all believers.

v. 2. In that day] When God will repair & reſtore his Church.

I will cut off] Exod. 23. 13. Pſal. 16. 4. Ezek. 30. 13. Hoſ. 2. 17.

the names of the idols] He promiſeth that God will alſo purge them from all ſuperſtition; and that their Religion ſhall be pure. This is another fruit of their mourning and repentance. Thus God would bleſs his Church, and people. See on 1 Sam. 31. 9.

no more be remembred] But if ſo: yet with deteſtation, and horrour, at the naming of them. As Ezech. 16. 61. See Pſal. 16.4. Exod.23.16. Deut.12. 3. Hoſ. 2. 17.

the Prophets] So called though falſe Prophets. By which are meant the Prophets of the idols; and all ſeducers, and teachers of falſe doctrines, and lies. Of whom in the 4. verſes following.

and the unclean Spirit] That is, the devils wicked and unclean inſpirations. The devil is called an unclean Spirit, Matth. 12. 43. Mar. 1. 26. For he is the author of all errour and lying, Joh. 8. 44. And alſo of that corruption which is brought into the true and heavenly doctrine; the which is ſignified, Revel. 16. 13. Or, this may be an explication of the word Prophets; to be ſuch as by the ſuggeſtions of the unclean ſpirit, ſpread unclean Propheſies and Doctrines, to the defiling of others. Such Prophets will pretend to the holy Spirit, and the inſpirations thereof, to the great blaſphemie of Gods Spirit.

to paſs out of the land] As Zeph. 3. 11. Micah. 5. 12. Ezech. 23. 48.

v. 3. Yet propheſie] Thus falſe Prophets will ſtill aſſume the name; and not eaſily forgo the trade; or be beaten off their way of ſeducing, which they get their living by. See Ezech. 13. 19. Micah. 3. 5.

then] A repreſentation of the Spirit of knowledge, diſcretion, and zeal, in Chriſts true Church, to diſcern falſe doctrines, and to oppoſe them. Figurative terms, taken from that which was commanded againſt falſe Prophets, Deut. 13. 5. 6. 9. 71. and 2. &c.

his father] Even his parents themſelves ſhall not ſpare him; Preferring therein their zeal & piety towards God, before the affection and love which naturally they bear towards their own children. See Deut. 13. 6. 9. Yea Gods glory is to be preferred before our life it ſelf; before our ſalvation it ſelf. Exod. 32. 32. Rom. 9. 3. No leſs zeal is required under the Goſpel, then was under the Law.

thou ſhalt not live] The equity of that Law Deu. 13. Remains under the Goſpel. And better, and with leſs danger is a thief, an adulterer, a Murderer, a witch, and ſorcerer, tolerated, then ſuch an heretick and ſeducer. The preſent pleading for liberty of conſcience, in preaching, and practiſe, is a thing extremely ſhamefull, dangerous, and deſtructive.

lyes in the name of the Lord] This makes to the heynouſneſs of the crime; to draw in God, and his truth, to ſerve a lye; to make him, who is truth it ſelf, in a ſort to deny himſelf, and ceaſe to be God, and to play the divels part, who is the father of lyes; John. 8. 44. Againſt theſe lying Prophets, ſee Eſay 9. 14. 15. Jer. 23. 25. 26. 32. & 27. 10. & 28. 15. & 29.31. Eze. 13.4—20. & 22. 28. Micah. 2. 11.

ſhall thruſt him thorow] Out of their extraordinary zeal. As Phineas did, Num.25.8. 11. This takes not the ſword out of the hand of the Magiſtrate; but relates rather to that Deu.13.8. 9.10. compared with chap. 17. 5. 7. They ſhall be the cauſers of his death in a legall way.

v. 4. ſhall be aſhamed] All falſe doctrine, and worſhip of former times, ſhall be removed by the clear light of the Goſpel, the falſe Prophets ſhall be aſhamed, and repent of their doings. See Micah. 3. 5. 6. 7.

a rough garment] Heb. A garment of hair. They ſhall not dare to counterfeit the true Prophets; who uſed to wear ſuch kinde of garments, 2 King. 1. 8. Iſai. 20. 2. Matth. 3. 4. They ſhall not any longer ſeek to lye as wolves under lambs ſkins; as thoſe, Matt. 7. 15.

to deceive] Heb. To lye. By their falſe Propheſies; or by ſeeking to gain an opinion of holineſs to themſelves, from their rough garments; or to deceive the people with an opinion of holineſs in the garment it ſelf. Both which Popiſh Monks and Fryers did by their cowls and Friarly weeds.

v. 5. I am no Prophet] They ſhall diſclaim any more that profeſſion: and confeſs they were never brought up to it, or fitted for it; however the blockiſh ſtupidity of the vulgar had been a ſhelter for their ignorance, and ſhame. They were impoſtors.

I am an husbandman] A free and full confeſſion. And willing, and ready to return to my former calling, and labour. Now they will not only ceaſe to do evil, but alſo learn to do well. An half Reformation ſufficeth not. Eph. 4. 28.

for man taught me] This was his lawfull calling, to which he was educated; and to this only. Amos indeed had been an heardman: but God called him from that, to be a Prophet; Amos 7. 14. 15. Such falſe Prophets as theſe are now feared to ariſe in theſe dayes

v. 6. what are theſe wounds] It appears he had paſſed ſome cenſure, and puniſhment, becauſe he had been a ſeducer, and deceiver; yet not that of death, mentioned, v. 3. Either the Magiſtrate did not his office; or this mans caſe afforded him ſome favour. An inferior puniſhment he had undergone. But yet ſome underſtand theſe wounds to be like thoſe, 1 Kin. 18. 28. And that they did argue him to be a falſe Prophet ſtill. But his anſwer takes off that conceit.

in the houſe of my friends] He denies it not, nor murmurs at it: but acknowledgeth himſelf worthy of it, meekly and patiently bears it; and calls them his friends who inflicted that puniſhment upon him. Pſal. 141. 5. Prov. 27. 5. 6. Unjuſtly, and very ignorantly are the words of this verſe applyed by ſome to the perſon of our Saviour; unleſs taken off from their own ſenſe, and uſed in another ſenſe, when applied to him. But in them there is a repreſentation of the wonderful power of the Spirit, and light of God, in convincing and correcting the Miniſters of errour. See Act. 8. 13. & 19. 18. 19.

v. 7. Awake O ſword] Theſe words ſeem to come in abruptly; And therefore the coherence, and ſenſe is diverſly made, ſome thus, True it is that for a time my Church ſhall be an enemy to all manner of falſe doctrine, and falſe teachers: but there ſhall likewiſe come a time, in which by my ſecret providence, Chriſts true Miniſters, according as he himſelf was ſlain by the Jews for a falſe prophet, ſhall alſo be perſecuted and ſlain; whence ſhall follow a great diſperſion of believers, and of Churches in the world. Others rather thus, Though the former promiſes of good things, and againſt falſe Prophets, may happily ſeem vain, when they ſhall ſee Chriſt my ſheepherd, and my fellow ſmitten ſo grievouſly, as if he were a falſe Prophet, and his ſheep thereupon ſcattered; yet the ſcandall thereof ſhould not ſo much offend the godly: they being thus long before foretold it by me: and I not the leſs can make good my promiſes, in my ſmall remnant, and refine them in the fire and furnace of afflictions: Though the reſt, and greater part ſhall periſh in my judgements. And thus he ſhews, that upon all the former promiſes of good things, they ſhould not fancie and form to themſelves a conſtant courſe and perpetuall current of felicity, without any interruptions of croſſes, judgements, and afflictions intervening: but that God will ſo temper his bleſſings, as withal mix afflictions, to exerciſe his church with them, and that the faithful ſhould prepare themſelves againſt them. By the ſword is meant afflictions, & chaſtiſments: as by the rod, Micah. 6. 9. The apoſtrophe to the ſword carries an emphaſis with it. It is called upon to awake, as if it had been aſleep, or ruſted long in the ſheath.

againſt my ſhepherd] Many reſtrain this to Chriſt alone; and the rather becauſe Chriſt himſelf applyes it to himſelf. Mat. 26. 31. And no doubt but it chiefly belongs to him, as the chief Shepherd; 1 P. 5. 4. the prince of Paſtors, and head of the Prophets; He ſpake by them; Heb. 1. 1. yet we may extend it to the whole order of Paſtors and ſhepherds. As alſo that place, Deut. 18. 15. Principally, and in a peculiar manner is meant of Chriſt, the great Prophet of his Church; yet may in a greater latitude comprehend alſo other prophets. Chriſt then in his own perſon, and in the perſon too of his faithful Miniſters, in their degree, is here underſtood.

my fellow] To ſhew the unity of eſſence, and the union of the will of the Father and of the Son the Mediator, ſee upon Eſa. 5. 1. Jer. 11. 15. Joh. 10. 3. & 17. 22. Phil. 2. 6. Thus God doth honour Chriſt in this appellation; who is indeed his other ſelf; the brightneſſe of his glory, the expreſſe image of his perſon. Heb. 1. 3. in the boſome of the Father, and ſitting at his right hand. And again in a larger ſenſe, this is true of all Chriſts faithful ſhepherds, they are fellow workers with God in this office. 1 Cor 3. 9.

Smite the ſhepherd] Math. 26. 31. Mar. 14. 27. Joh. 16, 32.

and the ſheep ſhall be ſcattered] In Chriſts caſe, as in a glaſſe, this appeared true. They were ſcattered, and offended thereupon, John 16. 32. Mar 14. 50. And yet this was long foretold, and often renewed by our Saviour himſelf: that they might have been the leſs offended at it: Mat. 26. 31. and chap. 11. 6. Joh. 14. 16. and 18. chapters. And generally upon the ſmiting of the ſhepheard, the ſcattering of the ſheep wil follow. Act. 8. 1. and chap. 11. 19.

and I will turn mine hand, &c.] In the generall diſpertion I will gather together and preſerve mine elect, who are poor, and weak according to the world. See chap. 11. 7. 11. Matth. 18. 10. 14. Jam. 2. 5. Not then, as ſome would, that they ſhould be under the hand, and rod of his correction: but under the hand of his mercifull protection, and favour. Thoſe little, poor, humble, afflicted ones: Matt. 18. 6. Mar. 9. 42. Luk. 17. 2. He will recover them, preſerve them, and eternally ſave them. The LXX. In ſtead of the little ones, hath the ſhepheards.

v. 8. in all the land] Of Iury: and may in a larger ſenſe be extended to all the Chriſtian world.

two parts therein ſhalbe cut off] The greateſt part of the world which bear the name of Chriſtians ſhall follow errours and ſhall periſh, Revel. 13. 14. and 17. 18. Or of the Iews remaining after Chriſts paſſion, two parts ſhall be deſtroyed, the third part eſcaping. Gods promiſes of grace belong not to hypocrites, to the greateſt part or body of the people; the greater part is ſtill the worſe, Mat. 7. 13. 14. Luke 12. 32. But to the faithful, the little remnant, and holy ſeed, the promiſes ſhall ever be made good.

and dye] Two words to the ſame purpoſe; to aſſure the truth of the thing; how ſtrange ſoever.

but the third] To whom indeed the promiſes do belong; the elect, which are the leſſer number. And this doth explicate that in the latter end of the former verſe.

v. 9. the third part through the fire] Of the croſſe, and afflictions, 1 Cor. 3. 15. I will do it by the faith, and conſtancy, of thoſe few, that eſcape by many afflictions. See chap. 14. 2.

and will refine them] The two parts conſumed; This third refined. The different work of afflictions upon the wicked, and upon the Godly. The wicked are many times fatted by proſperity to the ſlaughter. Pſal. 37. 1. &c. At other times, burnt up, and clean conſumed with the fire of Gods vengeance. Ezek. 24. 9, 10. and 22. 18. The Godly need refining; much corruption, and droſſe is in them: The beſt want it not: God will be their refiner; as Mal. 3. 2, 3. Dan 11. 35.

as ſilver &c.] Not as droſſe, or chaffe, which are burnt up in the fire: But as ſilver, and gold; Both which when taken out of the mines, need much refining; which is done by fire. Prov. 27. 21. and 17. 3. That Iſaiah 48. 10. imports that God will refine them, rather not for ſilver, but freely, or not ſo much as ſilver, their infirmity not enduring ſo exact and exquiſite refining. See Dan. 12. 10. 1 Pet. 1. 6, 7.

they ſhall call] Here is a principall particular of their refining; a fruit of their afflictions They ſhall drive them to prayer, and fit them for it. Pſal. 78. 34.

and I will hear them] This ſweetens their afflictions. And this promiſe invites to prayer. Without this promiſe, and faith in it, we can never be brought to pray truely, and acceptably. But this promiſe addes wings to prayer. See Pſal. 65. 2. and 32. 5. Dan. 10. 12. Iſaiah 58. 9. and 65. 24.

I will ſay] Gods infinite mercy herein: and that firſt, and free.

It is my people] See on chap. 8. 8. See alſo Hoſ. 2. 23. Ezek. 36. 28. and 37. 23. 27. and 11. 20. Jer. 13. 11. and 24. 7. and 30. 22. and 31. 1. 33. Their infinite comfort; Iſaiah 64. 9.

and they ſhall ſay &c.] When God hath ſaid that before; and never till then; and then ever.

The Lord is my God] Which is their infinite happineſſe, Pſal. 144. 15. & 33. 12. & 65. 4. & 100. 3. & 106. 4, 5. & 149. 4.

CHAP. XIV.

Verſe 1. BEhold] This chapter is obſcure and intricate in the phraſe and manner of ſpeech, and alſo for the times and matters whereof it ſpeaks. Some underſtand this chapter of the time of Antichriſt, ſome of the laſt day of judgement; but it ſeems rather to have a relation to the two laſt verſes of the former chapter, and to continue and enlarge the expoſition of them. The calamities here ſpoken of are rather all thoſe that ſhould befall the Jewes, from this time, till the coming of Chriſt; comprehending therein, as that of Antiochus Epiphanes, ſo alſo the deſtruction of the City Jeruſalem by Titus and Veſpaſian: All which ſhould come to paſſe before the full accompliſhment & fruition of thoſe glorious promiſes formerly made, chap. 12. & 13. and which after follow in the later part of this chapter; and therefore the faithfull were to arme themſelves againſt thoſe calamities that were to come, in a joyfull expectation of the promiſes, and their accompliſhment which ſhould afterwards follow. The particle Behold, ſerves to make them attend to it, and not doubt of the truth of it, though humane ſenſe and reaſon could not reach and riſe up unto it.

the day of the Lord] Not fate or fortune, not the power or wit of man ſhould bring on theſe calamities, but God in the day of his juſt judgement ſhall doe it. They have then herein to deal with God, and are not to complain of his ſeverity; but to acknowledge therein their own juſt deſervings.

cometh] Soon after that time of Chriſts death, chap. 13. 7.

thy ſpoil] Speaking to the City Ieruſalem, the prey and pilledge of thee, See Eſay 10. 6.

ſhall be divided in the midſt of thee] Taken there, and divided, parted, ſhared there by thine enemies, ſecurely at their leaſure and pleaſure, without any daring to moleſt them: He inſiſts upon that laſt before mentioned, chap. 13. 8, 9. and armes as was ſaid, the godly againſt the great tentations that ſhould come, before they enjoyed this proſperous eſtate, promiſed under Chriſt; that when theſe dangers ſhould come, they might know that they were warned of them before.

v. 2. For I will gather] Nations ſhall be the inſtruments, but God himſelf will be the Author and the Generall of the Army; they ſhall be his Hoaſt, and fight under his Banner; they therefore ſhould humble themſelves under this mighty hand of God, 1 Pet. 5. 6.

all nations] A mighty Army, many enemies, an univerſall combination; the Armies ſpecially under Antiochus Epiphanes, and chiefly the Romanes, Lords of all Nations, the Armies under Veſpaſian and Titus; ſee Ioſephus of this war, Book 3. cap. 1. and Cornelius Tacitus his Annals, Bo. 21. in the beginning.

againſt Ieruſalem] Long after it ſhall be repaired by Nehemiah, and inhabited.

and the city ſhall be taken] Stormed, ſacked, plundered: ſee Mat. 24. 2. Here the laſt deſtruction of Jeruſalem ſeems more plainly deſcribed then before, when God would execute againſt her his laſt judgements for the ſins of the Jewes; but eſpecially for ſlaying the chief Shepheard and Author of life, Chriſt his Son, Acts 2. 22, 23 & 13. 15.

women raviſhed] Extream beaſtly outrage, ſo in Babylon, Iſa. 13. 16. ſee Amos 1. 13.

and half of the city] As formerly two thirds of the Land, chap. 13. 8. ſo here one half of the City, many, if not moſt.

captivity] Be ſubdued, captived, diſperſed, ſcattered.

and the reſidue] That third part, chap. 13. 7, 8, 9. This ſome apply to thoſe which before the ſiege went out of the City, and betook themſelves to Pella. Or thus, The reſidue ſhall not be cut off from being the City of God, from being his Church, and joyned to the beleeving Gentiles; ſo that ſtill a Church ſhall remain, ſome remnant of the holy ſeed, even in the midſt of all calamities.

v. 3. Then] Some thus, God who before this time had been the keeper of the Jewiſh Nation, and their City, ſhall now leave his holy places, Temple and City, and hold it as given over and forſaken; and alſo get him to another place, namely, unto the enemies beſieging the City: ſee Joſephus ſeventh book of the wars of the Jewes, cap. 12. Titus himſelf confeſſed that God fought for them, againſt the Jewes; and therefore refuſed to be crowned for that Victory, becauſe he aſcribed it not to himſelf, but to God, Philoſtratus book 6. c. 14. Others rather apply this to his going forth to fight againſt thoſe Nations, as v. 2. againſt Ieruſalem; ſo after he hath afflicted and chaſtiſed her, he will now revenge the wrongs done her by thoſe Nations; he will burn the rod in the fire, he himſelf will make open war againſt them, as the words expreſſe: ſee Eſay 31. 4, 5. he will hide his power no longer, he will ſuffer them no more to inſult, triumph in their wickedneſſe, and againſt his people, but he will openly ſhew himſelf in arms, and take upon him his Churches Cauſe, and become enemy to her enemies, Exod. 23. 22.

as when he fought in the day of battle] Not ſleightly, but earneſtly and ſtoutly, as he did for Gideon and divers others, Judg. 7. 22. Iſa. 9. 4. & 10. 26. 2 Kings 19. 25. For we muſt extend this to all times, when his Church ſtood in need of help from Heaven; Gods appearing for them then, thoſe former experiences, and our remembrances of them, muſt animate our faith and hope, to expect the like hereafter; for he is ſtill the ſame, and his hand is not ſhortned: this muſt ſupport us in all temptations, that we faint not in them, and be overcome by them.

v. 4. And his feet] In ſuch caſe of extremities and dangers, we are hard of belief, John 3. 12. To help our weakneſſe and ſtrengthen our faith, the Prophet uſeth here lofty ſimilitudes, ſtrong expreſſions; brings in God, and placeth him, as it were, before their eyes, makes a viſible repreſentation of his preſence coming to their aide. An expreſſion of like kinde is that touching the valley of Jehoſhaphat, Joel 3. 2, 12.

mount of Olives] Jeſus went oft thither, was apprehended there, aſcended thence: but to make this Text look that way, may argue more ſubtlety then ſoundneſſe. The more ſafe and plain meaning may be this; That Gods coming to defend his Church againſt her enemies, ſhall be conſpicuous and glorious; even ſuch as the Prophet could not better expreſſe it, nor we better conceive of it, then under theſe ſimilitudes, as if there he ſtood centinel for the ſafety of his Church, and thence gave directions for things, what and how to be done in this fight and battle.

on the eaſt] So is Mount Olivet ſituated from Jeruſalem. Bethphage and Bethany were there; and in Bethany the houſe of Lazarus and his Siſters, and of Simon the Leper, Luke 19. 29. John 11. 1. Bethany was in the further part of the Mount about fifteen furlongs from Ieruſalem; it was the neerer part of the Mount where our Saviour was apprehended, Mat. 26. 30. if not a little ſhort of it, in Gethſemane: upon this Mountain the glory of the Lord laſt ſtood, when it left the City, in Ezekiels Viſion, chap. 11.23. and here now comes he to defend it. Titus placed ſome of his Legions there.

ſhall cleave] Some ſay by an Earth-quake, though that be not mentioned by Ioſephus, or any Hiſtorian, no more then that Earth-quake in the dayes of Uzziah, ſave onely ſo long after, Amos 1. 1. Zech. 14. 5. Others by the Induſtry of the Roman Armies, taking away the middle part of it to fill up the wondrous deep valley of Cedron, that lay between it and the City, for the commodiouſneſſe of the Beſiegers. Others with leaſt probability would underſtand by the Mount, the Roman Army placed there; and by the cleaving of it, the dividing of the Army to beſiege other parts of the City. The ſafeſt way is, not to fancy a miracle here, no more then out of thoſe words Pſal. 114. 4, 6. But to conceive hereby the Majeſty of his appearance, that he will wondrouſly make way, aud plain and even paſſages through all mountains of oppoſitions, for the ſafety and deliverance of his People; ſee chap. 4. 7. toward the eaſt, &c.] That is, from Eaſt to Weſt, ſo as the two halves ſhall be on the North and South ſides.

a very great valley] Between the North, and South parts of it: Haply, that ſo out of all the parts of the world they might ſee Jeruſalem. which was before hid, and ſhadowed with this mountain. And this he meaneth of the Spirituall Jeruſalem, the Church, according to the propheſie, Iſaiah 66. 23. Which text of Eſay ſheweth an utter aboliſhing of Moſes ceremonies, ſeeing all Nations cannot come every week to Jeruſalem. The meaning may tend to the ſame point, as that Iſaiah 2. 2. Micah 4. 1.

v. 5. And ye] The very Jews themſelves ſhall be afraid at the preſence of Gods appearance; affrighted at the Majeſty of it. And ſo ſtill were the viſions and apparitions of God to all the Saints of old; that they feared death to follow upon it. Much more cauſe here had the enemies to fear.

ſhall flee] For fear: and likely for ſuccour too.

to the vally of the mountains] Or, my mountains; between the North, and South mountains, verſe 4. to that valley, unto it, into it, by the plain way of it; to a place of refuge far enough, and ſafe enough.

for the valley of the mountains ſhall reach unto Azal] Or, when he ſhall touch the valley of the mountains, to the place he ſeperated. The valley ſhall be wide, long, and large. Azal, is rather the name of a place, then of a man. No mention is of it elſe-where in Scripture. Some take it appellatively, for a place neigh, or ſeperated. The Spiritual meaning may be this; All you Beleevers ſhall run unto the Church, to be ſafe from the deſtruction of the world. Which Church ſhall be extended to places ſeperated formerly before the partition wall was broken down: which ſeemeth to be meant by the word Azal. which ſignifieth ſeperation. Or, the free entrance into the Church ſhall be open every where, ſave onely where Gods Election hath not wrought, but hath left men, as it were ſequeſtred. See Iſaiah 4. 3. Or, according to the letter, the beſieged Jews, upon the nearer approaching of the beſiegers to the walls, ſhould flee to the valley of the mountains, Sion, and Moriah which was within the walls, for their better ſafety.

like as ye fled] So fearfully, and haſtily; as it were for life, and death.

from before the earthquake, in the dayes of Uzziah] Like to that fearfull flight wherewith the Jews were ſtricken of old, by reaſon of the earthquake, the which fell out in the dayes of Uzziah the king; as it is Amos 1. 1. In what year of his reign it is uncertain. That it ſhould be when King Vzziah was ſtricken with leproſie, is but a conjecture. However, it was a terrible earthquake, and an horrible ſigne, and preſage of Gods wrath: and falling out ſo many ages, before this time, thereby is ſignified, that the like terrour to this happened not of many ages before: yet this is not properly a threatning to Jews; unleſs it be to the wicked hypocrites among them; But makes all for the greater dread and terrour of the enemies.

and the Lord my God ſhall come] Some think, that here is a Tranſition made from the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, to the day of the laſt judgement, as from the ſemblance, to the ſubſtance. As our Saviour likewiſe did, Matt. 24. Mar. 13. And the rather there, for that the Apoſtles then thought both ſhould fall out together. 1 Theſſ. 3. 13. *S*eems to allude to this text. Others thus; Becauſe they did not credit the Prophets words, he turneth himſelf from them to God himſelf, calling him to witneſs, and comforteth himſelf in that he knew theſe things ſhould come, and ſaith, Thou O God, with thine Angels, wilt come to perform this great thing, Jude 14. Others, make all this to be a magnificent deſcription of the glorious coming of God, with his Saints, to the Church, to dwell in it for ever: that then the very mountains ſhall cleave aſunder, as we reade a like phraſe of Speach, Pſal. 114. 4. 6. And the very members of the Church it ſelf ſhall fear and flee, being aſtoniſhed, and amazed at ſo great a Majeſty of Gods approaching: as in Majeſty and terrour he appeared at the delivering of the Law, Exod. 19.

my God] Here the Prophet claims God to be his God; and that he is ſent by him; ſo to gain the more credit to his Propheſie: and he doth hereby as it were, in an holy animoſity rouze up himſelf againſt all wicked ones, that mockt at his propheſies, and ſlighted the truth of them: thus aſſuring himſelf, and the faithfull, that his God would come to perform them.

ſhall come] Not in a viſible deſcent from heaven: as at the laſt day, Mat. 24. 30. But in a ſemblable manner, in reſpect of the Majeſty of his powre. See Hab. 3.

and all the Saints] Angels, often called holy, and elect. 1 Tim. 5.21. See Dan. 8. 13.

with thee] Thus turning his Speech to God: as witneſſe of what he now ſaith: though the wicked neither heed, nor believe it.

v. 6. And it ſhall come to paſſe in that day] Some underſtand this of all the time from this day, to the day of Chriſts Coming. Others, of all the time after Chriſts coming, the day of the Goſpel. And according to this divers acception and apprehenſion of the day and time, they diverſly underſtand the meaning of this, and the next verſe.

that the light ſhall not be clear] Heb. pretious, bright, ſhining.

nor dark] Heb. Thickneſſe. Meaning cloudy, thick, and foggy. But ſay ſome, it ſhall be betwixt both: mixt of both: partly clear, and partly dark, various, changing, unſtable: a lowring day, that they ſhall hardly diſcern whether it be day or night. And in this ſenſe they refer it to all the time before Chriſts coming; that the Prophet foretels them what dayes they were to expect: not to be free from the tryals of the croſſe; not to hope for conſtant and ſtable dayes of felicity; but to have doubtful dayes, to meet with many dangerous dayes, keeping them in fears and uncertainties. And that therfore they ſhould arm themſelves with patience to bear them; and comfortably expect Gods help and ſuccour in them; and his hand for deliverance out of them. Others thus; It ſhal not be a mixt, and various day, a day of light and darkneſs, of day and night; but all day, and no night, as Eſay 60. 19, 20. That day ſhall not be as dayes are now; ſometimes clear, and bright, ſometimes dark and cloudy: yea more, there ſhall not be the viciſſitude of day and night: But it ſhall be one perpetual day, bright and ſhining; by the ſhining glory of the Goſpel in the Spirit. And this they refer to the dayes of the glorious Goſpel: 2 Cor. 4. 3. 4. or that bleſſed day of glory, Apoc. 21. 23. 25. The LXX. and the Vulgar Latine thus: there ſhall not be light, but cold and froſt: following, as it ſeems to ſome, ſome other copie.

v. 7. But it ſhall be one day] Or, the day ſhall be one, not one numerically, but of one and the ſame tenor. Mixt ſay ſome, and cloudy. Others, not mixt, but all bright, all day without any night, as was ſaid before. Yet ſome make this relate to one ſingular day; to wit, of Chriſts death, when the Sun was darkned at noon, and ſo remained three hours, Matth. 27. 45. And others underſtand one perpetuall day: Meaning, there ſhall be alwayes light in the Church under the Meſſiah, though ſometimes more dimme and dark then at other times; yet always ſome light.

which ſhall be known to the Lord] Ordered by him, managed by him; and the faithfull not over anxiouſly to trouble themſelves with diſtractions, and diſquiſitions about it, but to leave it to his hand and care, to give way to his providence, and to depend upon his will and pleaſure therein, as Gen. 22. 8. The others thus; God will take the care of it, and know how to make it one day, all day, and no night, as in Eſay *6*0. and Apoc. 21. Others thus. The Lord will take ſpecial notice of this day, and light, to keep and preſerve it. The Lord, who from all eternity knows what ſhall be in time, will have regard that ſtill light be preſerved in his Church, in the evening of time, or laſt age of the world: for ſo the time of the Meſſiah is counted. See Heb. 1. 1. 1 Pet. 1. 20. 1 John 2. 18. Or, that ſingular day of Chriſts death, undergoing ſuch changes, might ſignifie the ſtate of the Church after, from his going to heaven, to his coming to judgement. Some make thoſe words, Matt. 24. 3*6*. to relate to theſe.

not day nor night] See on verſe 6.

at evening time it ſhall be light] The end of the day when darkneſſe is expected, yet then it ſhall be light: the end and iſſue of the black troubles and afflictions of God's People ſhall be lightſome and happy, ſee Eſay 54. 7, 8. & 58. 8. Pſal. 97. 11. & 112. 4. & 37. 5, 6, 7. & 12*6*. 5, 6. & 30. 5. He bids them look to the end, Pſal. 37. 37. The others ſay, The evening time, and night alſo, ſhall become all one day, without any even or night.

v. 8. Living waters] Springing Waters, as Gen. 2*6*. 19. not Pools or Ponds, or River waters, that will be dried up, as the Brooks, Job 6. 15,—21. and Cherith, 1 Kings 17. 7.

ſhall go out from Ieruſalem] Agreeable to that of Eſay 2. 3. for from thence the Goſpel came into the World, deſcribed under the name of two Seas, well known to the Jews; ſee Ezek. 47. 1,—— 6. Joel 3. 18. Apoc. 22. 1. Ieruſalem had the Fountains of Siloe and Rogel, and the Brooks Cedron or Kidron, and Gihon; they had Fountains without the City, 2 Chron. 32. 3, 4. but theſe Waters are none of thoſe.

half of them] Two Rivers ſhall riſe out of this Fountain of living Waters, and running two contrary wayes, Eaſt and Weſt.

the former ſea] Eaſtward toward the dead Sea, or Perſian Sea, Ezek. 47. 8. 18.

the hinder ſea] Weſtward, the mid-land Sea, Deut. 11. 24. & 34. 2.

in ſummer] As into all places, ſo at all times ſhall theſe Waters be flowing, never be dry. Theſe Waters muſt be referred to the Kingdome of Chriſt, and therefore muſt be of the nature of that Kingdome; ſpirituall Waters of a ſpirituall Kingdome; ſee Eſay 44. 3. & 35. 7. & chap. 12. 3. Joel 2. 28. Acts 2. 17. Gods ſpirituall graces ſhall then cleanſe and water his Church and People, dry and barren of themſelves, Ezek. 36. 25. purifie them, and make them fructifie: And they ſhall water the whole Church, from Eaſt to Weſt, and they ſhall never fail, John 4. 14. & 7. 38. The Goſpel ſhall be propagated, the gifts and graces of Gods Spirit in this World, and his glory in the Heavenly life, ſhall be poured out upon his Elect for ever, chap. 13. 1. And this ſhall follow after that gloomy day, as ſome expound it. Their miſeries ſhall be thus happily amended, thus joyſully recompenced with theſe ſpirituall mercies.

v. 9. And] Here the Prophet doth more clearly expreſſe himſelf, and the bleſſing; magnifying it in regard of what had been in former times.

the Lord] The Son of God, not excluding the Father and Spirit.

ſhall be king] Be, and be acknowledged ſo to be, and what greater felicity to man, then to be under this King in his Kingdome, under his rule and protection?

over all the earth] Not ſo before, Pſal. 76. 1. & 147. 19, 20. Now the Son of God ſhall alone be acknowledged and worſhipped for everlaſting King of the world.

one Lord] Not many Lords, as Heatheniſh Idolaters, and ſuperſtitious people owned many, and worſhipped many; every Nation their own gods, proprios penates; ſee 1 Cor. 8. 5, 6. Exod. 20. 3. 23. He is a jealous God. Iſa. 42. 8.

and his name one] He onely, and alone ſhall be acknowledged in his Church over all the earth; his Name preached, invocated, worſhipped, and the worſhip of his Name ſhall be one, and the ſame which himſelf preſcribes. His religion and ſervice ſhall not be adulterated; as formerly, John 3. 22. nor his worſhip violated, and polluted; but be and abide pure and entire. See Epheſ. 4. 4, 5.

v. 10. All the Land] Figurative termes, taken from the hilly ſituation of Judea: to ſignifie, that all worldly height ſhall be beaten down, and the Church alone ſhall be glorified. As Iſaiah 2. 2. and 40. 4. Zech. 4. 7. Alſo the amplitude and inlargement of the Church of Chriſt may hereby be typified.

turned as a plain] Before mountainous. See Exod. 15. 17. Deut. 3. 25. Iſaiah 14. 25. Ezek. 6. 2. But now as Iſa 40. 4.

from Geba to Rimmon] Geba and Rimmon were two confines of Judah; the one towards the North, and the other towards the South, Joſh. 15. 32. 57. and 19. 7. 1 Kings 15. 27. Jud. 20. 45.

and it ſhall be lifted up] Before of the Land; now, of the City. Jeruſalem before was encompaſſed with mountains, and ſo ſeated in a valley. Pſal. 87. 1. & 125. 2. Now it ſhall be no more in a bottom, but lifted up, and made conſpicuous to be ſeen afar off. See Eſay 2. 2.

and inhabited] Or, ſhall abide. Namely the City ſhall abide, chap. 12. 6.

in her place] Though now in Zerubbabels time, in a narrower compaſſe; yet at laſt in its own and old place, as large as ever. It ſhall recover its antient luſtre and ſplendor. chap. 12. 6. Jer. 30. 18.

from Benjamins gate] By a ſimilitude taken from the precinct of the earthly Jeruſalem, as Jer. 31. 38, 39, 40. he doth imply a perfect reeſtabliſhment of the Church in all parts of it. Benjamins gate was on the North-ſide, going into the fields of Benjamin, to which tribe belonged that part of the City. Jer. 37. 12, 13.

unto the place of the firſt gate] It ſeemeth he meaneth the old gate, or the fiſh-gate, which was next it, Neh. 3. 3, 6. which was over againſt the ſecond gate, Ier. 39. 3. Zeph. 1. 10. And ſo he mentioneth the whole circuit of Jeruſalem. Benjamins gate was on the North-eaſt ſide; from thence going to the corner gate, which was on the North-weſt ſide, they went along by the fiſh-gate, and from Hananiels tower, they went the other compaſſe, from the South, to the Kings wine-preſſes, which were on the Weſt-ſide, where theſe two half-circles did meet to make up a whole circle or compaſſe. Of the gates of Jeruſalem. See Neh. 3. 1. &c. And the Annotations there. Of the gates of Jeruſalem in Ezekiels viſion. See Ezek. 48. 31.— 35.

unto the corner-gate] See 2 Chro. 26. 9. & 25. 23. Perhaps there was ſome tower there to make the corners.

tower of Hananeel] On the ſouth, ſay ſome. Neh. 3. 1. and chap. 12. 38. Jer. 31. 38.

unto the kings wine preſſes] On the North ſay ſome. And ſo from South to North.

v. 11. dwell in it] Chap. 12. 6. and 8. 4. 8 and 2. 4. Eſay 62. Though now they were few dwellers in it; and in Nehemiahs time they were feign to caſt lots to get dwellers in it; Neh. 11. 1, 2. yet it ſhould be a populous citie.

utter deſtruction] As by the Romans.

ſafely inhabited] Securely, without fear of enemies. See Ezek. 28. 26. 2 Chron. 20. 20.

v. 12. And this ſhall be] Gods judgements upon the enemies of the Church. She ſhall not want enemies; but ſhe ſhall be ſafe from them under Gods protection.

the plague] God will avenge her of her enemies. This may analogically be referred to the eternal puniſhment of the wicked.

all the people that have fought] Verſe 3. Their multitudes need not to be a terrour to Jeruſalem; though they match them not in numbers, yet Gods hand ſhall prevail, Eſay 60. 12.

their fleſh] The fleſh of every one of them; as of one man.

ſhall conſume away] See Ezek. 21. 7. and 24. 10. pine away, and waſt.

while they ſtand] Preſently, in a moment of time; and God will do it without humane help, that the vengeance of heaven may ſo the more appear. Deut. 28. 21. 22. Or thus, with relation to Hell torment; Though he ſubſiſt, and live, and ſhall not die, yet he ſhall be tormented everlaſtingly; ſtill outliving his pain; having no end, that his pain may alſo be endleſſe.

their eyes, &c.] Some thus; Though they be alive, and can ſee, yet ſhall they be deprived of light, in infernal darkneſſe; having neither eyes nor underſtanding; but onely to ſee, and judge of their extream miſerie. Yet others much rather, forgo not the former ſenſe of Gods judgements upon the enemies of the Church in this world. The grievouſneſſe whereof is ſet forth under theſe ſimilies, and expreſſions. And many examples there are in hiſtories of Gods like dreadful judgements upon the perſons of notorious perſecutors and enemies of the Church.

their tongues] See Luke 16. 24. Eſay 13. 8.

v. 13. in that day] Of Gods victorie over his enemies.

a great tumult] Or vexation. Hoſ. 10. 14. And Gods ſecret hand is in it.

they ſhall lay hold] God ſhall cauſe them to fight one againſt another; as in the battel of Midian, Judg. 7. 22. and as among the Philiſtines, ſending a ſudden fear among them, 1 Sam. 14. 15. 20. And Chriſt foretold the like, Matth. 24. 7.

ſhall riſe up] To deſtroy one another, as 2 Chron. 20. 22. 23.

v. 14. And Judah alſo ſhall] Or, thou alſo, O Judah, ſhalt. The carnal and unbelieving Jews ſhall alſo be enemies to Chriſts true Church. Or, as others, Judah alſo, that is, Gods Church ſhall help, in the third place (beſides God himſelf, verſe 12. and the enemies themſelves, verſe 13.) to fight againſt her enemies.

at Jeruſalem] rather then againſt it. Though ſome would underſtand it, that Judah ſhall fight againſt Jeruſalem; and apply it to the times of Antiochus Magnus, and Antiochus Epiphanes, wherein many Iews ſided with them againſt their brethren, and againſt Ieruſalem, as the hiſtory of the Maccabees ſheweth.

and the wealth of all the heathen] The Church ſhall plentifully and abundantly be inriched with the ſpoils of her enemies, as God made his people wealthy with the ſpoils of the Egyptians. Some make of this, ſpirituall meanings, and applications.

v. 15. the plague of the horſe, &c.] God ſhall not onely deſtroy his enemies, ver. 12. but even all the means and inſtruments they uſed for to afflict the Church.

as this plague] Which the men endure, v. 12, 13, 14.

v. 16. And it ſhall come to paſſe] Gods mercy and grace to the reſt of the enemies, in their converſion to God, and to his true worſhip and ſervice.

that every one] God ſhall ſave ſome among the enemies, whom he ſhall cauſe to turn to his true ſpiritual ſervice, deſcribed here as in a ſhadow, by the ceremonial ſervice of the Law; as Eſay 66. 23.

ſhall even go up] Applying himſelf to the capacity of the Jewiſh people he alludes to their manner of worſhip; under it ſhadowing the true and ſpiritual ſervice of God, in the dayes of the Goſpel.

to keep the feaſt of Tabernacles] Names one particular for all, comprehending the reſt by a ſynecdoche. See Lev. 23. 34. Nehem. 8. 14. 18. A figure ſay ſome of the elects gathering together into particular Churches in this world, to which every one muſt reduce himſelf, to partake of the communion of Saints, and of Gods grace. This Feaſt is called John 7. 2. σκηνοπηγία, a pitching of tents, or ſetting up of booths, Deut. 16. 16. which the Jews kept in remembrance of Gods favour to them in the wilderneſſe where they dwelt in booths, Levit. 23. 43. And to ſhew their thankfulneſſe for the fruits of the earth, reaped in this moneth, Deut. 16. 13. 14. And further, as ſome ſay to figure out the coming of Chriſt into the world at this time of the year, to dwell in the Tabernacle of our fleſh, John 1. 14. This feaſt may haply be named above that of the Paſſeover, or that of weeks; not ſo much to ſignifie that we ſhould be as wandring pilgrims in this world; as to import the admirable & wonderful power of God to be ſeen in this ſecond redemption and reſtauration of his Church; as memorable as that firſt deliverance out of Egypt; and ſpecially that preſervation of them in the wilderneſſe, where they dwelt fourty years in Tents and Tabernacles; and therefore as their Fathers kept that Feaſt in memory thereof; ſo the Prophet takes occaſion to allude thereunto, to intimate a like cauſe of their thankfulneſſe and feſtival rejoycing, for this ſpiritual, Evangelical deliverance. See Apoc. 21. 3. Pſal. 84. 1. Amos. 9. 11. Eſay 33. 20. and 54. 2. Ier. 30. 18. Ezek. 37. 27.

v. 17. that who ſo will not] But continue obſtinate, and obdurate, notwithſtanding all means of converſion and grace afforded.

of all the families of the earth] When the partition wall between Jew and Gentile is broken down.

unto Jeruſalem] Not to tye Gods worſhip to Legal, Moſaical ſhadows, rights and ceremonies: Jeruſalem is here ſo named, as was the feaſt of Tabernacles: it is put for a type of Chriſts Church. See on verſe 10. and that John 4. 21.

no rain] Gods revenge and malediction upon ſuch refractory contemners of him, and his religion. The uſe of rain is mainly neceſſary for the maintenance of this life, Hoſ. 2. 21, 22. The want of it is a moſt dreadful plague. See 1 Kings 17. 12. and 18. 5, 6. Amos 4. 7, 8. Deut. 28. 23, 24. And ſurely if the heavens be braſſe, the earth muſt needs be iron. This then cuts off all ſuſtenance, and comforts of this life. A direful plague is intimated under this allegory. God ſhall impart none of his bleſſings to them: but they ſhall be curſed and plagued. Our LXX. hath it thus; They ſhall be joyned to them.

v. 18. family of Egypt go not up] Which was the ancienteſt enemie of the Church: which alſo ſeemed not to have much reaſon to fear the foreſaid want of rain, becauſe of the yearly overflowing of Nilus. See Deut. 11. 10. But therefore, inſtead of that it is threatned with like plagues equivalent to the former. See Gen. 41. 30.

that have no] Heb. upon whom there is not: ſeldom any rain or need of any. See Pſal. 105. 32. An hot countrey; and yet without rain. But wonderfully provided for by God, by the overflowing of the river Nilus; as is famous in all hiſtories.

the plague] That verſe 12. Or, as was ſaid, it ſhall be curſed of God, and undergo the like extremities, as other nations ſhall ſuffer that have no rain.

The Heathen that &c.] See on verſ. 16. 17.

v. 19. This] He repeats it often; becauſe it was a thing ſcarce credible, and yet a thing very uſeful and needful to be believed, for the corroboration and comfort of the Church of God; and a terrour to the enemies thereof.

puniſhment] Or, ſin. The Hebrew word is uſed for both. See 2 Cor. 5. 21. Gal. 3. 13. God will ſhew himſelf a revenger and maintainer of his own glory. Let no ſuch prophane deſpiſers think to eſcape unpuniſhed. Heb. 2. 2, 3.

the feaſt of Tabernacles] At this feaſt Solomons Temple (a figure of Chriſts body John 2. 19. 21.) was dedicated with great ſolemnity, and the Ark brought into it, 2 Chron. 5. 2, 3, 7. & 7. 10. And this feaſt we ſpiritually keep by belief in Chriſt, that his grace is ſufficient for us; and that in all our infirmities the power of Chriſt reſteth upon us to protect us, as a Tabernacle, 2 Cor. 12. 9. The firſt place where Iſrael encamped after they came out of Egypt, was called Succoth, That is, booths Exod. 12. 37. See alſo on verſe 16.

v. 20. bells of the horſes] Or, bridles, or collars, or trappings; or ſtables, as ſome tranſlate it. Such uſual in the Eaſtern countreyes; Iudg. 8. 21. 26. both in war and in peace. The words are ſomewhat obſcure, being taken from the manner of the Jewiſh worſhip. Having ſpoken of the horſes overthrow, and other cattle of the enemies, verſe 15. he addeth to make up the meaſure, that all their ſpoils, even the very deckings of the furniture, if they were of mettal, ſhould be conſecrated to God, to make utenſils for his ſervice: wherein he ſeems to have relation to that which Gideon did, Judg. 8. 26. The meaning is, God ſhall convert to his ſervice in his Church, all ſuch things, as before were employed againſt him. And yet further, we know that great riches, and ornaments were beſtowed upon the Church by Chriſtian Emperours; and Kings, and people. That ſtory of Helena her cauſing to be put into the bridle of her ſon Conſtantine one of the ſuppoſed nails wherewith our Saviour was crucified, if true in it ſelf, is nothing to the true meaning of this Text. Here God ſhall ſo be king over all the world, that all things ſhall be applied to his worſhip, ſanctified to that uſe.

holineſſe unto the Lord] This was engraven on the high Prieſts miter, as he was a type of that holy High Prieſt, our Saviour, Dan. 9. 24. Luke 1. 35. and 4. 3. 4. Acts 4. 27. 30. And all the things, and utenſils, & appurtenances of the Temple, were counted, & ſo called, Holy, in their kinde. The meaning here ſeems to be, That the meaneſt things of common and prophane uſe only heretofore, whether in war or peace, ſhould now become holy, and be holily uſed, if not in the ſervice of God, yet in the whole carriage and converſation of a mans life, in all his actions men ſhould conſecrate themſelves, and all they had to Gods ſervice, and an holy uſe: in all their actions offering up a pure ſacrifice to God, Rom. 12. 1. 1 Cor. 10. 31.

pots in the Lords houſe] Made of theſe boſſes or Bels, ſay ſome. Or, the other pots formerly in uſe in the Temple. The meaning may be, that there ſhall be frequent ſacrifices of thankſgiving; of which ſome parts were dreſſed in the Temple, in the kitchins belonging to it, Ezek. 46. 22, 23, 24. for the ſacred Feaſts, 1 Sam. 2. 15. And all this muſt be underſtood of the ſpiritual ſervice, which ſhould be in the Chriſtian Church, figured by the ancient ceremonial ſervice; as Eſay 60. 7. and 66. 23. Mal. 1. 11. And the meaneſt thing in this, ſhall be as precious as the moſt glorious things in the other. The meaner ſort of things in ſacred uſe, ſhall be advanced to an higher degree of eſteem and holy employment, then before. The pots of the kitchen of the Temple ſhall become as the bowls of the Altar. As Eſay 66. 20. 21. and 61. 6.

bowls before the altar] which were in very great number, for to receive the blood of the ſacrifices; and to make the ſprinklings. See 2 Chron. 4. 8. Ezra 1. 9. 10. Some underſtand this of the grates upon the Altar, Exod. 27. 4. 5. and 35. 16. and 38. 4.

v. 21. Yea every pot] He ſeemeth to mean, that the ſpiritual ſervice ſhall be every where yielded to God, even in the moſt ordinary actions of a Chriſtians life. The meaneſt thing ſhall be converted to ſacred uſe. There ſhould be that reverence and fear of God in all the world, that whatſoever men went about to do, ſhould be as an acceptable ſacrifice to him, 1 Pet. 2. 5. Apoc. 1. 6.

and all they that ſacrifice] Numerous multitudes of people, nations and languages.

and take of them] As well as formerly they did take the pots in the Lords houſe, and uſe them to ſeeth therein the ſacrifices. But thoſe now ſhould not be able to ſuffice ſuch multitudes. All along there are ſtill alluſions to the Leviticall manner of Gods ſervice. And all this ſhould ſerve for encouragement to the Jews in their preſent undertaking for the building of the Temple; (the preſent intendment of Zechariah his propheſie) ſeeing that notwithſtanding their paucity, and all poor appearances, their many difficulties and diſcouragements, ſmall helpes and mighty enemies; yet all thoſe glorious promiſes in their day and time ſhould be effected and fulfilled.

there ſhall be no more the Canaanite] Though now in this ſad eſtate and calamitous condition of all things, the Samaritane, Canaanite, and other Heathens were mixed among them; who ſcorned them and their religion, and oppoſed them; Ezra 4. and 5. Chapters; and ſo after, Neh. 4. & 6. Chapters. yet God would in that day cleanſe, & purge, and rid his Church of them. See on 9. 8. Eſay 35. 8. and 52. 1. and 65. 25. Joel 3. 17. Nahum 1. 15. Apoc. 21. 27. & 22. 15. True it is, that the floor of Chriſts Church contains both chaff, & wheat; his field tares among the good corn; the net of the Goſpel doth catch fiſh, both good and bad; yet this alſo is a truth, a truth in compariſon, and in relation to that corrupt ſtate of things before this purgation & renovation; ch. 13. 9. And true it is that God ſhall thus cleanſe his myſtical Church, compoſed of true Believers and elect, from the mixture of all prophane perſons. And upon Chriſts ſecond coming, this promiſe ſhall receive its full verification in all perfection. Some for Canaanite here tranſlate merchant. And indeed the word ſignifieth alſo ſo much. And ſay they, He ſeemeth to have a ſpecial relation to the abuſe of merchandizing, and ſelling which was uſed in the Temple, Matth. 21. 12. John 2. 15. And they run upon other allegories hereupon, after their own fancies. But theſe are the ſtrains only of mens wits, varying from the plain meaning and intent of the text.

ANNOTATIONS

MALACHI.

The ARGUMENT.

MAlachi, (his name in Hebrew ſignifieth Angel or Meſſenger) endeth the Prophets: and ſeems to fall in, and to correſpond with Nehemiahs thirteenth Chapter, comparing Mal. 2. 11. & chap. 3. 8, with Nehem. 13. 3. 4. & verſe 10. &c. & verſe 23. &c. He propheſied to Iſrael, viz. to all the people of the ſeveral Tribes which were returned from Babylon; after the reedifying of the Temple; and alſo, after Haggai and Zechariah; confirming their doctrine, and carrying on the reformation of what was yet corrupt and defective, either in Gods ſervice, or in the Iſraelites life and converſation. And firſt, he putteth them in minde of their free election, the onely ground of Gods continued favour in their preſervation. Then doth he reprove and threaten them for falſe dealing in the Covenant; for their prophaning Gods ſervice; and other vices of all ſorts, as idolatry, adultery, falſe oaths, ſacriledge, blaſphemies, mixing themſelves in unlawfull marriages, injuſtice, and violence; vices which had ſpread far, and invaded not onely the common people, but Prieſts and Levites alſo. Moreover he calleth them to repentance, promiſing grace and bleſſing to all Believers in the coming of the Meſſiah Chriſt, the Sun of Righteouſneſſe, with healing in his wings: Before whom the Meſſenger or forerunner, John the Baptiſt (who is called alſo by this Prophet, Elias the Prophet, chap. 4. 5. muſt come, before the coming of the great & dreadful day, viz. that ſtately apparition of the Son of God in the fleſh, accompanied alſo with conſuming power, ſet down, ch. 3. 2. & 4. 1. After John the Meſſenger to prepare the way, Chriſt the Meſſenger of the Covenant, or Mediatour and foundation of the Covenant of grace with Gods elect, ſhould ſuddenly come into that reedified Temple, work the ſalvation of his people, call in the Nations, make his Church Catholike and one, by joyning Jews and Gentiles. And becauſe the Iſraelites muſt look for no more Prophets till the great Prophet was born, he referreth them to Moſes, who ſpake of this Prophet to come, whom all muſt hear, or be cut off: bidding them to remember his Law in the mean while, till Chriſt come to accompliſh the Covenant: whoſe coming would be terrible to the wicked, but joyful to the godly. Zechariah and Malachi are the laſt Prophets, and end the Old Teſtament. The ſame names, not perſons, the New Teſtament beginneth withall. One Zecharias was John Baptiſts father: and John Baptiſt himſelf was that Malachi, or Meſſenger, that Elijah foretold here, chap. 3. 1. & ch. 4. verſ. 5, 6. As we ſee Luke 1. 76. & chap. 7. 27. Matth. 11. 10. The Evangeliſt Luke beginneth the Goſpel with Zecharias, and Mark beginneth it with Malachi, that is, Meſſenger, namely, John the Baptiſt. So ſweetly in ſpeeches hath God joyned the Old and New Teſtament, to face one another, as the Cherubims over the Ark, that the hid Apocrypha might not be in the Canon of the Bible. In Hebrew theſe Apocryphal Books are not: the New Teſtament citeth them not: yet moſt of them are of much worth, containing many worthy documents in them. And ſpecially the Hiſtory of the Maccabees is of ſingular uſe for the interpretation of the two laſt Chapters of Daniel: and part of the 2. 7. and 8. Chapters. Generally thus, Malachi threatneth the Prieſts chap. 1. and 2. and the people, chap. 2. from the coming of John Baptiſt, chap. 3. and of Chriſt. chap. 4. And all this, much in a dialogue-wiſe and manner.

CHAP. I.

The burden of the word] A commiſſion for propheſie of reproofs and threatnings, Eſay 13. 1. Zech. 9. 1. of the Lord] Not mans word. And firſt in word before in deed; denounced, ere executed.

to Iſrael] That is to all the people of ſeverall Tribes which were returned from Babylon. And they were chiefly of Judah, Benjamin and Levi: they here are called Iſrael. They which remained ſtill behinde in Babylon, and the Perſian empire, ſcarce deſerved the name of Iſrael. The greateſt part of this Book contains judgements againſt Iſrael for their ſins. God ſpares not his own people, 1 Pet. 4. 17. Jer. 25. 29. Amos 3. 2.

by Malachi] Heb. By the hand of Malachi. Malachi ſignifieth Angel or meſſenger, Mar. 1. 2. In this Prophet John Baptiſt is once called Malachi, chap. 3. 1. and again Elias, chap. 4. 5. S. Mark beginneth his Goſpel with Malachi, or Angel: Gabriel in the firſt ſpeech of the New Teſtament beginneth with Elias; Luke 1. 17. ſo ſweetly in words hath God joyned the Old and New Teſtament, that the hid Apocrypha appeareth never to be breathed by Gods Spirit, nor to be any part of the Canon or rule of faith. Some writers have imagined this Malachi to be Ezra; but without any grounds for it. He propheſied laſt of all; after the Temple was rebuilt, and finiſhed. He brings here nothing of his own; but faithfully reports what he receives from the Lord. 1 Cor. 11. 23. 2 Tim. 3. 16. 2 Pet. 1. 21.

ver. 2. I have loved you] With a free love in your election, and the benefits flowing thence. Thus God begins with an expoſtulation, and exprobation, recounting his benefits, to render thereby their ingratitude and ſinfulneſſe the more odious, in that they requite ſo loving a God with ſo great unkindneſſe, ſo good a God with ſo great evil. This love was not that generall love wherewith he loved all mankind, but his ſpecial love wherewith he loved Iſrael; whom he choſe to be his peculiar people above all other people; and entered into a gracious Covenant with them, Deut. 32.8,9. And this not out of any worth or merit in them, Deut. 7. 7. But out of his own meer good-will, free favour and pleaſure, Deuter. 10. 14,15. 1 Sam. 12. 22. He might have ſaid, I have created you, and preſſed them to their duty thereupon, and argued their ingratitude in requiting him ſo evilly. But this love is much more, and aggravates their ill requitall of this love much the more.

yet ye ſay] They would willingly and wickedly ſhift off, extenuate, obliterate this gracious love of God. This is mans curſed corrupt nature.

wherein haſt thou loved us] This ſhews the ſenſeleſsneſſe, and ſtupidity of their ingratefull minde; not acknowledging any love, or fruit of love received. They likely minding onely their afflictions; wherein they were as deep as any other nation.

was not Eſau Jacobs brother] And elder brother too. But this he omits, as ſufficiently known. Conſider this the principall effect of my love; in that of meer grace I have choſen you to be my people, in your father Jacob; rejecting Eſau, his brother, equall in all other things to him: whereupon all my bleſſings have dropped down upon you, as your preſervation, deliverance from captivity, and reeſtabliſhment; whereof the Edomites, from Eſau, have not been partakers. And thus he fetcheth it afar off, derives it from the well-head, and recounts it from the beginning. Somewhat a like is that, Jer. 2. 5,6,7. and Micah 6. 3,4,5. This free Covenant is the ſure argument and pledge of his love. And whereas he might have drawn his argument from Abraham, and his chooſing of him, and rejecting the reſt of the world, he rather takes it from two of his grandchildren, brethren in the ſame family, twins by birth; and his chooſing of the one (their progenitor) and his caſting off the other.

yet I loved Jacob] Paul extends it to the love of election, Rom. 9. And no ſuch love as that of election to ſalvation. It is the fountain of all graces; and of all bleſſings, ſo farre as bleſſings; ſuch onely are exempt from condemnation, and are heirs of glory. See 2 Theſſ. 2.13. This love was not for Jacobs good works foreſeen, by the free uſe of his own free-will. Auguſtine accounts this ſubtilty a great abſurdity. This was before he was born, Gen. 25. 23. Rom. 9. 11,12,13. works there, though foreſeen, are directly excluded, v. 11, 16. good works flow from it, as the effect, not the cauſe of it, Epheſ. 1. 4. As alſo vocation, faith, regeneration, ſalvation, Act. 13. 48. yea Chriſt himſelf as Mediatour is under the decree of election. As the end is firſt thought on, before the means, Epheſ. 1.4,5. All mankinde were created alike in Adam, and fell alike in Adam: And it is God now that makes them differ one from another, 1 Cor. 4.7. He doth it according to the good pleaſure of his will, [which he had purpoſed in himſelf, to the praiſe of the glory of his grace, Epheſ. 1. 5, 6,9. Neither needed the Apoſtle to collect theſe circumſtances, Rom. 9. had he not purpoſed to prove it, to be onely in the good-pleaſure of his will, Matt. 11.26. He is bound to no man; but his mercy is the cauſe of his mercy, Rom. 9. 15,18. As alſo his good-pleaſure was the meer cauſe he made us men, and not beaſts; and choſe the ſeed of Abraham before all other nations. If we ſhould ſeek for the cauſes of theſe things out of God in the creature, we ſhould run into a maze, and finde our ſelves in an endleſſe labyrinth. And for man herein to finde out quarrels againſt Gods doings; to ſeek to meaſure his infinite wiſdom by the ſcantling of his own reaſon; and to ſubject him, and his ſoveraign power to his creatures will, is inſolency, and impudency, altogether intolerable, Eſay 45.9. Rom. 9.19.—24. He calleth upon all by the generall Promiſes of the Goſpel; But the efficacy thereof depends upon the ſecret pleaſure of his will, Rom. 9.16. 1 Cor. 3. 6,7. Chriſt died for all; ſo that whoſoever beleeveth in him ſhould be ſaved by him: and belief is the free gift of Gods grace to his elect, and the great work of his power in them: Neither herein is the uſe of free-will taken away, or any Stoical Fate brought in place thereof; But God that works the will, knows how ſweetly to frame and incline it.

v. 3. and I hated Eſau] Jer. 49.17,18. Ezek. 35.7,9. Obad. v. 16,17,18. I have given him no part in my grace; but have left him, as a ſinner and corrupt, under my wrath and judgement; which I have alſo declared in his irreparable deſtruction, which hath not befaln you, nor can befall my Church, which hath alway a remainder, and an iſſue out of her evils, Jer. 31. 36. Others thus; That this love and hatred is ſpoken of comparatively, as Gen. 25.28. and 29. 31. and Luk. 14.16. expounded Matth. 10. 37. And is extended here chiefly to the poſterities of Jacob and Eſau. And that this love and hatred here is taken for, and intends the benefits proceeding from the one, and the diſpleaſures and diſcommodities proceeding from the other. And that in all this no ſpirituall good or evil is much intended or meant: But temporall things; as birth-right to Jacob, and a fairer inheritance, and a dominion in his poſterity over Eſaus poſterity, according to that, Gen. 25. 23. & 27.29. Nor doth Malachy inſtance here in any ſpirituall thing. And that S. Paul, Rom. 9. 11. teaching the doctrine of Gods free election and præterition, according to the meer purpoſe and pleaſure of his own will, doth alledge this Text in Malachy, in this wiſe, and to this purpoſe; That, as it was free to God, to deal thus diverſly with Jacob and Eſau, in temporall things, without any reſpect to any merits of theirs, ſo it is free to God to deal with men in ſpirituall things, even in the point of election and præterition, according to his purpoſe and pleaſure from all eternity, before the one party, or the other were born. And that the repentance ſpoken of, Heb. 12 17. was not any ſpirituall repentance which Eſau then did ſo ſeek to finde in himſelf, but the repentance or change of minde in Iſaac, to recall and alter the bleſſing, which Eſau did ſo eagerly then ſue for, and could not finde or procure that alteration to be in Iſaac, that he would repent him of what he had done.

and laid his mountains] Seir was a mountainous countrey, of rough and craggy mountains. And thither Eſau betook himſelf, forſaking Canaan, and his fathers houſe; quitting ſo the Promiſed land, deſtinated by God to his own people; as he had before prophanely ſold away his birth-right. And here is a further argument of God his foreſaid love to the Jews, more then to the poſterity of Eſau, taken from the preſent ſtate of both nations: He brought back the Jews at this time into their own Countrey; not ſo the Edomits, but laid and left their Countrey waſt.

v. 5. And your eyes ſhall ſee] See it ſo ſtill, as you do ſee it now; never better with them.

from the border of Iſrael] Or, upon Heb. from upon, Even from his holy Temple, the place of his abode, from whence he ſheweth the glory of his power, to the deſtruction of his enemies. Or, they ſhall ſee it from their own habitations. So conſpicuous ſhall Gods judgements be upon the Edomites.

v. 6. A ſon] A grievous charge, and conteſtation. againſt many ſins of the Iſraelites. And firſt againſt their contempt and profanation of Gods worſhip; charged upon the Prieſts, and proſecuted to the 10th ver. of the next chap. The duty of a ſon to his father, and of a ſervant to his maſter is famouſly known, by the law of nature, and nations; of God, and man. And the right and ſoveraignty that fathers and maſters have in this caſe is likewiſe acknowledged, Eph. 6.1,2,3. Deu. 27.16. Pro. 30.17. And again, Mat. 8.9. 1 Tim. 6.1. 1 Pet. 2.18.

If then] God was the Father of the Jews, not onely by the common right of creation, as he is the Father of the rain, Job 38.28. and of all mankind, chap. 2.10. But by his ſpeciall right of adoption of them, and gracious Covenant with them, above all others, Deut. 32.6. Eſay 63.16. Ier. 31.9:

And if] God was their Lord; not onely as he is the Lord of hoſts, of all his creatures, the Lord of Lords; but in right of ſpeciall title, acquiſition, redemption, and dominion over them, 1 Chro. 17.21,22. Joh. 13.13.

where is mine honour? where is my fear ?] Where? no where ; as 1 Cor. 1. 20. & 12, 17. Job 20. 7. Thus in both rights God complains ; of the want of his Honour ; 1 Tim. 1. 17. and 6.16. Apoc.4.11. & 5. 12.13. See Act.12.23. And of his fear : without which there can be no Piety ; The fear of God being the fountain of it ; ſuch a fear as is here intimated, a filiall fear, mixed with love, 1 Peter 1. 17. But theſe wanted both love, and fear, to draw them to obedience. Luk. 6. 46.

O Prieſts] The former argumentation and conteſtation ſtands good againſt all the Jews, of all ſorts and callings. But he now applies it to the Prieſts ſpecially, that ſhould have been guides to the reſt ; by doctrine and example, to bring them on to honour, and fear God, and ſhould have reproved their neglect; but themſelves prov'd ringleaders to the contrary, and hardned others by their example.

that deſpiſe my name] A grand crime verſe 11. 14. and 2. 2. Holy and Reverend is his name, Pſal. 111. 9. great, and glorious, and fearfull, Deut.28.58. And he whoſe name is Jealous, is jealous of the glory of it ; Exod. 34. 14. See the commandment Exo.20.7.Lev. 18.21. The prayer, Mat.6.9. And that of Joſhuah ; chap. 7. 9. 1 Sam. 12. 22. Pſal. 8. 1.& 29. 2.& 66.2.

and ye ſay, wherein, &c.] He noteth their groſſe hypocriſie, which would not ſee their faults, but impudently cloaked them, and ſo were blinde guides. They were blinde at home, could not ſee the beams in their own eyes ; and therefore grew haughty, inſolent, preſumptuous; their neck was an iron ſinew, and their brow braſs ; as Eſay 48. 4. Bold to out-face and deny open crimes, and to ſcorn all checks, and reproofs for them. They harden their forehead, and impudently demand wherein, &c. And ſuch ſinners are never wanting in the world.

v. 7. ye offer] Or bring unto, &c. Ye take it, and accept it of the people, and offer it.

polluted bread] Either that for the ſhew-bread, Exod. 25.30. freſh ſet every Sabbath, Levit. 24. 5. 8. See 1 Sam. 21. 4.6. Or for the meat offerings, Levit. 2. Or bread taken more generally for ſacrifices, Levit. 22. 24. Polluted, not lawfull, nor acceptable, being defective, Levit. 22. 20. Deut. 15. 21. When of other kinde, or otherwiſe uſed, then the Law preſcribed. See Hag. 1. 14. Ezech. 4. 13. & 22 26. A grievous ſin it is to pollute Gods holy ordinances, and worſhip. Levit.19.8. Num.18. 32. Ezech. 23. 38.

upon my Altar] Golden Table of ſhew-bread, in the Temple; or brazen Altar of burnt offerings, in the Court.

wherein, &c.] He noteth their groſs hypocriſie, which would not ſee their faults, but impudently cloaked them: and ſo were blinde guides. Thus again Hypocrites and wicked men are ready to juſtifie themſelves : Luk.16.15. 1 Sam.15.20. They plead and pretend innocency, and that they are unjuſtly taxed. See Levit.3.11. & 2.4.6 & 6.16. & 21.6.8.17.

In that ye ſay] Thus againſt ſuch men muſt their ſin be partilariſed. Elſe they will ſhift off, and winde themſelves out of Generall accuſations. They ſaid it, though not in words, yet in deeds. 2 Tim. 3. 5.

the Table of the Lord is contemptible] Before Altar; here Table. See Ezech. 41.22. & 44. 16. Their ſenſe is, the Temple and the Altar ſince the return from Captivity are ſo poor and different from the ancient ſplendour they were in, that they do not deſerve to have ſuch exact care taken of the beaſts which are offered there, as formerly in the firſt Temple, ſee zech. 4. 10. Or thus, they ſlighted the ſervice and worſhip of God, as a thing not much to be regarded. And this is an heavy ſin, ſlightly to heed, and to perform the worſhip of God, without regard to the Majeſty of God, v.14. Or the Holines of his worſhip, ſee Eſa. 1.12

v. 8. And if ye offer the blinde] Forbidden, Levit.22.22.23.24. Deut.15.21. & 17.1. It was the peoples ſin, to bring ſuch to be offered. And the Prieſts ſin to take, and offer them, and not to reject them, and reprove them for it, and ſtand to vindicate and maintain Gods Law therein, and the right of his ſervice. Eze.22.26. Some imagine the Prieſts to receive good and lawfull ſacrifices from the People ; and to change them for theſe ; or if ſuch evil ones from the people, yet to ſay, rather ſuch then none. Wicked Hypocrites think any thing good enough for God ; and pious men think nothing good enough for him. Blinde and ignorant ſervices : lame and halting ſervices are, when there is action without affection ; the lips without the heart ; double mindedneſs and hypocriſie. *S*ick, or faint, and languiſhing ſervices are, that come coldly from us, without any life or vigour of the inner man ; And theſe are all vile and odious. God is a ſpirit, and will be ſerved in ſpirit and truth. Some read the words without an interrogation, as if they were the words of the Prieſts, maintaining that there was no evil in doing ſo, in ſacrificing ſuch. Indeed God ſeems to neglect ; ſlight, or reject, all ſacrifices, Hoſ. 6. 6. Micah. 6. 6. Pſal. 50. 8. 9—14. Eſay 1.11. & 66.3. Jer.7.22.23. But all this is ſpoken comparatively ; and when they were performed by Hypocrites and wicked men ; without any heed to the true end and uſe of the ſacrifice, and the ſpirituall ſervice therein ; without any life or motion of the inner man. And yet theſe Prieſts by this neglecting and polluting theſe externall ceremonies and ſacrifices, ſhew thereby that they had clean caſt off all manner of Piety.

offer it now] He reproacheth them ; ſhewing that a mortall man would not be content to be ſo ſerved.

unto thy Governour] As were Zerubbabel, Nehemiah, and others ; under the Empire of Perſia : who had their proviſion aſſigned them upon the people, Nehe 5.14.15.

will he be pleaſed] Nothing leſs. And yet what they dare not do to men, that they preſume to do to God. And the world is too full of ſuch ſinners.

v. 9. beſeech] An ironicall Permiſſion or Injunction. Go to, do ſo, try the iſſue. This indeed belonged to their office and duty ; The Prieſts were to pray and intercede for the people, Numb. 6. 23. Joel 3. 17. And ſo likely they did, when they offered the peoples ſacrifices. They ſuſtained in ſome ſort the office of Chriſt our mediator. 1 Sam. 12.19.23. He deſideth the prieſts, who bare the people in hand that they prayed for them ; and ſheweth Gods diſregard thereof ; and that they were the occaſion that theſe evils came upon the people.

this hath been by your means] Heb. from your hand. While by your means things go thus ; and you thus carry your ſelves towards God, polluting thus and prophaning his worſhip. will he regard?] This interrogation implies a ſtronge and vehement negation. Will God conſider your office and ſtate, ſeeing you are ſo Covetous, and profane contemners of his ſervice? An heavy judgement of God it is, to have our prayers rejected. Eſay 1. 15. Prov. 1. 28. Jer. 11. 11. & 14.12. Micah. 3. verſe 4. Zech.7.13. Cauſes hereof are noted, Jam. 4. 3. John 9.31. Pſal.66.18. v. 10. who is there, &c.] He inſiſts ſtill upon the Prieſts ſins in Gods ſervice ; which indeed ruined all Religion in the people. The Levites, Porters to the doors of the Court, and the Prieſts that were to open and ſhut the doors of the Temple, were all faulty ; Becauſe the Levites which kept the doors did not try whether the ſacrifices that came in, were according to the Law ; God wiſheth them that they would rather ſhut the doors, then to receive ſuch as were not perfect. Or rather, He chargeth them with ſelf ſeeking in their miniſteriall ſervices in the Temple ; That they did it for their own gain and profit ſake ; and elſe would not do it for any care of Gods worſhip, which if they yet minded, he would ſurely bleſs them, as it is chap. 3. 10. But ſeeing they did otherwiſe ; it was but in vain for them thus to ſacrifice, both illegall ſacrifices, and with a covetous ſelf ſeeking minde. God appoints means and maintainance for his Miniſters; 1 Cor.9.7 — 15. Hates Covetouſneſs in them, 1 Tim. 3. 3. Eſay 56. 11. And will be worſhipped according to the preſcript rule of his word and Law.

v. 11. For from the riſing of the Sun] Another judgement of God, that he would take away his worſhip from them; and vouchſafe it to the Gentiles. The Jewes thought God was tyed to them, he could not be God, unleſſe they were his Church, he ſhould not be worſhipped at all, unleſſe worſhipped by them In deed great were their priviledges, Deut. 4.7. 8. 33. 34. Pſal. 147. 20. But they forgot that Deut. 32. 21. God needed them not, They were but a ſmal nation. He could and would have all the world, the Gentiles to worſhip him. He rejecting them. v. 10. would finde out others, even ſubſtitute the numerous nations of the Gentiles in their ſtead Rom.10.16. Thus here as a puniſhment to the Jews, he foretels the calling of the Gentiles. ſo Mat.21.43. Act.13 46.47. & 18. 6. & 22. 21. Sometimes it is promiſed, as a bleſſing to them, at leaſt to the Godly amongſt them, a bleſſing, by the propagation of the Goſpel, and the worſhip of God thereby. So Zech.8.23. incenſe] Here the Prophet that was under the Law framed his words to the capacity of the people; and by the altar and ſacrifices he meaneth the ſpiritual ſervice of God which ſhould be under the Goſpel, when an end ſhall be put to all theſe legal ceremonies by Chriſts only ſacrifice: as Eſay 66.23. and a pure offering] The offerings and ſacrifices of the New Teſtament, are prayer, praiſe, thanks, charity, obedience, and the like. Heb. 13. 15, 16. Rom. 12. 1. 1 Pet. 2. 5. Apoc. 1. 6. And theſe are pure, that is pure from hypocriſie, and in compariſon of the offerings of the hypocritical and wicked Jews; pure in ſincerity and integrity; and in acceptation for Chriſts offering. The Papiſts drawing this Text to the defence of their Maſs, is a childiſh trick, an argument of the forlorne hope, and ſigne of a deſparate cauſe, when impurely and impiouſly they wreſt this, and apply it to their maſſe-cake. Not unlike to this place is that Jonah 2. 28.

my name ſhall be great] Redoubled; becauſe it was to them, at this time, ſcarce credible.

v.12. But] Here is a reaſon rendered why God will tranſlate his worſhip and religion to the Gentiles.

ye] Prieſts principally: though in its degree it may belong to all, as too true in all.

have prophaned it] Polluted my Name, ſleighted, vilipended it, eſteemed it as a prophane and common thing, as a frivolous matter. Or thus, ye have diſhonoured the Name of God, bearing no reſpect, nor obedience to what he hath commanded; which is the occaſion of rejecting the Jews and their ſervice. See that Heb. 10. 29. Zeph. 3. verſ. 4. Ezek. 44. 7, 8. and 43. 8. and 36. 17——24. and 20. 39.

in that ye ſay] See on verſ. 7. Though they uttered not theſe blaſphemies with their mouth, yet their deeds proclaimed them: Their actions ſpake ſo much.

the Table of the Lord] Some thus; The altar hath been ſpoiled by the Chaldeans: and the ſacrifices are not offered with that ancient ſacred ſolemnity. See verſe 7. and the Annotations there. It is an high point of diſhonouring the Name of God, either baſely to judge of, or perfunctorily to perform the worſhip of God. 1 Cor.11.29. Ezek.33.31. Eccl..5.1. Heb.12.28.

and the fruit thereof, &c.] Whereby is meant whatſoever is offered upon the Altar. Some underſtand it that the Prieſts ſhould account the means and maintenance they received by ſerving the Table and Altar of the Lord to be but baſe and contemptible. Others rather, That they ſo diſeſteemed the ſervice of the Lords Table and Altar, that they counted any kinde of bread and ſacrifices good enough for them; and therefore heeded not ſo much to obſerve ſtrictly the letter of the Law, in having and offering the beſt. And thus by their open contempt of the outward rights, ordained by God for the neceſſary help of humane infirmity, they bewraied the prophane impiety and atheiſm of their hearts, as clean void of all religion.

v. 13. ye ſaid alſo] Here the ſin is yet more particularly charged upon them. See on verſe 7.

what a wearineſſe] Though you do me but little ſervice, and that after an ill manner, yet you complain of it, as if it were a burden to you. Hypocrites pretend, and proclaim much: yea and that when they perform leaſt. See 2 Kings 10. 16. Matth. 23. 5. John 12. 43. Emptieſt veſſels ſound lowdeſt. whereas a ſound heart performs moſt, and pretends leaſt. And yet they are ſoon weary and tyre, and grow impatient, and murmuring, even in that outward hypocritical ſervice it ſelf, as Amos 8. 5. And this for want of love to God, and delight in his ſervice. 1 John 5. 3. 1 Pet.2.3. See Pſal.1. verſe 2. & 42. 2. & 110. 3. Eſay 58. 13. Gen. 29. 20.

and ye have ſnuffed at it] In ſcorn and diſdain and diſlike; Or, ye have puffed and blown, as weary and overlaboured, with the burden and weight of the ſacrifices; whereas ye might have blown them away (and ſo the word may be tranſlated) they were ſo lean and thin.

torne] By wilde beaſts, and ſo maimed, or half dead. See Ezek. 4. 14. Lev. 22. 8.

and the lame] See on verſe 8. In all the ſacrifices Gods aim was this, to exerciſe his people thereby in Faith and Repentance; to ſee therein the deſert of their ſins, and the perfect expiation of them by the ſacrifice and death of Chriſt that immaculate Lamb of God, who was to come.

v. 14. But curſed] The iſſue of that ſin formerly ſpoken of. The curſe of God is the reward of all ſin. Deut. 27. 26. Gal. 3. 10. And is oft applyed to ſundry particulars, as here.

the deceiver] That would deal fraudulently, and falſe-heartedly with God. This reacheth the people as well as the Prieſts. With men many deal deceipfully; as Gen. 34. 13. 2 Sam. 3. 27. Pſal. 35. 20. and 52. 4. Acts 13. 10. And ſuch the Lord abhors; Pſal. 5. verſe 6. and 55. 23. But to ſeek to deal deceitfully with God, to dally with him is fooliſh in it ſelf, and much more abominable to him. Yet ſuch there are, Jer. 9. 6. Hoſ. 11. verſe 12. ſuch as do not proceed plainly nor directly in Gods ſervice: but having abilitie to ſerve the Lord according to his word, yet will do it according to their baſe covetous minde. Or ſuch as will waſh the outſide of the platter, and be as painted ſepulchres: but all foul within. Theſe may deceive men with their fair ſhewes; Luke 16. 15. and their own ſelves too, James 1. 22. But not God. They cannot ſo mock him, that ſeeth the heart; nor eſcape his judgements by ſuch ſilly ſhifts.

among the Heathen] And much more ſhould it be among you. And ſhall be there, when Chriſt ſhall come and take the poſſeſſion of his kingdom; and not place his Name in Jeruſalem onely, and in the Temple of Sion; as he hath hitherto done, and you think he muſt ſtill do.

CHAP. II.

Verſe 1. ANd now O ye prieſts] He inſiſts upon the ſame point; returns preſently to the Prieſts, and falls upon them. And thus Miniſters may and muſt reprove ſtates, and perſons, Hoſ. 5. 1. 1 Tim. 5. 20. As Chriſt did the Scribes, Phariſees, Lawyers, &c. John Baptiſt the Publicans, Sadduces, ſouldiers, Herod; Nathan, David; Paul the inceſtuous perſon.

this commandment is for you] Here the Prophet deals with the Prieſts principally; becauſe they themſelves ſhould firſt give glory to Gods Name; and by their office procure others to do it likewiſe. Therefore the charge is laid upon them; and the curſe in caſe of failer. It was their duty & function to ſee to the preſervation, and intire obſervance of religion, and Gods ſervice and worſhip, in its purity; and to avoid the pollution of it. They in their place, as it is the Magiſtrates duty in his place. The Prieſts doing their parts, would have kept the people to it; they durſt not then ſo tranſgreſſe: But the Prieſts neglect or connivance was enough to animate the people to their miſdoings. And therefore he accuſeth the Prieſts as the Authors of all, and guilty of all.

v. 2. If] This implies then the averſion of the judgement in caſe of Repentance, and obedience. And to this end God threatens, that we might prevent the execution. So true is that which he profeſſeth of himſelf, Ezek. 33. 11 & 18. 31. Jer. 18. 7, &c.

ye] This reacheth alſo to the people, next after the Prieſts; as appears in the curſe.

will not hear] Here is the cauſe of the curſe; that they will not give God audience; and that when he ſpeaks for their good and amendment, to prevent the malediction; but ſtop their ears againſt him. A cauſe ſo juſt as leaves them no cauſe to complain of his too ſevere proceeding againſt them. See Zech. 7.11.12.

lay it to heart] This expounds the former: without this the former is counted no hearing. As good not heard, as not laid to heart. It muſt be attended, pondered, finde place, and its due authority in us; and ſo obeyed. As Prov. 24. 32. Ezek. 44. 5. Hag. 1. 5. and 2. 15.

to give glory to my Name] By your amendment and obedience. As the contrary brings diſhonour and blaſphemie to my name. See Matth. 5. 16. John 15. 8. And again, 2 Sam. 12. 4. Ezek. 20. 27. and 36. 20, 21, 22.

Or thoſe bleſſings wherewith the Prieſts bleſſe the people in their prayers for them; as Numb. 6. 23—27. Or both.

this Commandment] This v.1.

that my covenant might be with Levi] You think,this Commandment, and check, and curſe threatened cannot ſtand with my covenant made with Levi; but breaks it, you ſay, as your predeceſſors did to Jeremy, Jer.18.18. And the like alledge and ſay the popiſh prieſts for themſelves, and their Church; Lo I am with you to the end of the world: would Chriſt receive his Church? and the Church erre? we are the Church the Holy Ghoſt: reſides among us, els his promiſe and his covenant failes. But God ſhewes theſe two can ſtand together, and they ſhall know it His covenant with Levi abrogates not his own right, and power, and ſovereignty;nor abates the rule and authority of his Law. Nor their deviations, corruptions;& manifold vices; and the ſevere reprehenſions of them; and his curſe upon ſuch prieſts, do not annihilate or vacate that covenant: nay it doth eſtabliſh it; it is the means to reſtore, rectifie, confirm and ſettle it, that thus the prieſthood might remain in Levi his race, for Levi was dead before the prieſthood was ſetled in Aaron and his poſterity; And remain in them, and the other Levites, with Gods favour and bleſſing, as was formerly promiſed, as it were by an eſpecial covenant.

v. 5. My covenant was with him] God ſhewes what his ſaid covenant was, and that he did not violate it, v. 5. 6.7. But they on their part,v 8.9. Gods covenant is general with all his creatures; as Gen.9.9. 18. Jer. 33. 20. more particular, with man, yet more with his Church; moſt ſpecial with his elect. of life and peace] The Tribe of Levi, ſpecially Aaron, and ſome of thoſe who were preſently after him, enjoyed the honour of this office, with all manner of bleſſings, length of life, and proſperity. See Nehem 13 29. This is my part of the covenant. But where is your part? covenants are mutual obligations, binde reciprocally, on both ſides. would you have me ſtand bound, and your ſelvesleft free, to do as you liſt?

for the fear] See Exod. 32 26--30. Num.25. 7--14.Deut. 33.8.9This fear is inſiſted on in the reſt of the verſe,as a prime grace, being a Filial fear, ariſing from the love of God, fearing him for his goodneſſe, Hoſ. 3. 5, and fearing by ſin to offend ſo great and glorious a Majeſty,and ſo holy a God. Others thus; I gave to him fear, to ſhew further Gods gratious dealing with Levi, that he gave him the grace of fear, Jer. 32. 40, and the rule of fear, how he ſhould regulate himſelf in his function and prieſtly office.

and was afraid] In the latter ſenſe thus; And he did ſo, he was a fraid to tranſgreſſe, proudly and preſumptuouſly to miſbehave himſelf, but humbly, modeſtly, and faithfully to carry himſelf in his calling. And this ſutes with that which followeth.

Others rather take the words as the Prophets arguing againſt that ſin, thus; That whereas God ſo honoured them all, by his gratious choiſe of them in their one father Abraham, above all the reſt of the world; and ſo created them all in a ſort to be his holy and peculiar people, and a royall Prieſthood; why therefore ſhould they diſeſteem and undervalue this dignity, and betray this priviledge and prerogative, in mingling themſelves in marriages with Heathen Idolaters? and ſo ingratefully and treacherouſly caſt away that ſacred honour; and prophane, pollute, and violate, and break off that pretious covenant of their fathers, which God made with them; by proſtituting themſelves in this ſort; to mix the holy ſeed with the uncircumciſed Nations?

every man againſt his brother] Some underſtand this of private or perſonall wrongs and treacheries, done among the Jews, one againſt another.

v. 11. Judah] Thoſe of Judah returned out of Babylon. This circumſtance of the perſons aggravates the crime; that they ſhould do it; and be guilty therein.

treacherouſly, and an abomination, &c.] The Prophet doth thus, as it were, brand and ſtigmatize this ſin.

in Jeruſalem] Which of all other places of the world ſhould leaſt have done ſo: And Jeruſalem being as yet but newly raiſed out of its aſhes for its ſins, and but meanly repaired.

prophaned] Polluted, defiled, diſeſteemed, counted and uſed as a common, and not a ſacred thing.

the holineſs of the Lord] The holy Lord, his holy Name, and ſanctuary; but more directly here may be meant themſelves, an holy People, which the Lord had ſeparated to himſelf, from the reſt of the world; to be an holy Nation to himſelf; Exod. 19. 6. And put ſeverall marks of holineſs upon them, to diſtinguiſh them from other Nations; as in the difference of meats clean and unclean, and in many other particulars. Yet themſelves diſhonored the holy name of Gods people, which they did bear, and all other ſignes of his Covenant, by which God ſanctified them to himſelf, ſeparating them from prophane Nations.

which he loved] Or, ought to love; referring it to Judahs duty, to prefer the love of that holineſs before their luſt after ſtrange women. Others underſtand it of Gods Love to his people, the people of his holineſs: which being ſo gratious, free, and altogether without any their worth or deſert, ſo much the more enhanſeth this their crime.

and hath married the daughter of a ſtrange God] This is that particular crime and prophanation, wherewith he doth here firſt charge the People. Not yet that the Prieſts were altogether free of it. This ſin was in the poſterity of Enoſh, and Seth, Gene. 6. 2. Was expreſſly forbidden the Jews, Exod. 34. 16. Deut. 7. 3. 4. See Abrahams charge to his ſervant, Gene. 24. 3. 8. 37. And Iſaac his charge to Jacob, Gen. 28. 1. And Iſaac and Rebekah their grief at the contrary in Eſau, Gen. 27. 46. & 28. 8. & 25. 35. See this ſin branded in the Jews, Judg. 3. 6. 7. In Samſon, Judg. 14. 2. 3. In Solomon 1 King. 11. 1. 2. 8. After the return from the Babyloniſh captivity, ſee Ezra. chap. 9. & 10. and again Neh. 13. 23—31. In the N. T. See 2 Cor. 6. 14.

daughter of a ſtrange God] To ſet out the vileneſſe of the ſin, and danger of it. See Neh. 13. 26. 1 King. 21. 25. 2 King. 8. 27. This is not to marry in the Lord, 1 Cor. 7. 39. Nor the way to bring up their children in the information of the Lord. That Deut. 21. 10—15. Is no Law; but a conceſſion, for the hardneſs of their heart, unpleaſing to God; as appears by that context.

v. 12. The Lord will cut off] Either by an accurſed death; or by excommunication out of the Church. They ſhall not eſcape unpuniſhed.

the Maſter and the Scholler] Or, him that waketh, and him that anſwereth. Or, him that watcheth, and him that ſingeth; the Maſter, and the ſervant: him that calls and commands, and him that doth anſwer and obey; the practiſer, and the Patrone of ſuch prophane marriages. Some make this relate to the porters, and ſingers of the Temple. See 1 Chr. 25. 8.

and him that offereth] The Prieſts alſo offending in this kinde: Or, as ſome, even the man that would ſeem devout, and by offering ſacrifices ſhall think to pacifie and pleaſe God. As thoſe Eſay 58. 3. In a word, all without excepting any, high or low; people, or Prieſt. The Prieſts, and Levites had alſo ſinned in theſe forrain marriages, Ezra. 9. 1. & chap. 10. 18. Neh. 13. 28. And this threatning ſeemeth to be directed to them, who ſhould not willingly ſubmit themſelves to the reformation of this fault, appointed by Ezra: or to thoſe who ſhould after fall into the like.

v. 13. And this have ye done again] You have not onely married ſtrange women; but have alſo afflicted your own lawfull wives, bringing in ſtrangers to vex them. See Levit. 18. 18. 1 Sam. 1. 6. The ſecond fault the Prophet accuſeth them of. Some underſtand this of the wives of the Prieſts, hardly uſed by them. It is ſore to add ſin unto ſin. And much more to reiterate the ſame ſin.

covering the Altar of the Lord with tears] Joyfull praiſes, and thankſgiving ſhould be heard there; Pſal. 65. 1. But here the Caſe was otherwiſe. You have cauſed your poor wives to powr out dolefull lamentations before mine altar; which are like a thick cloud, that will not ſuffer your offerings to be looked upon, nor accepted by me.

in ſo much that he regardeth not] The bringers, and offerers being ſo wicked: and the Prieſts themſelves no better then they. And the Perſon not being accepted, neither is the offering: we ſee this in the firſt offerers, Cain, and Abel, Gen. 4. 4. 5. during the ſtate of impenitency no ſacrifice, or ſervice is accepted with God. Some make this verſe to be an exaggeration of the crime of the Prieſts; Thus, That they were ſuch polluted perſons, and ſo defiled and prophaned Gods Altar with their filthy ſins, that themſelves, perſons, prayers, and ſacrifices were rejected by God, being offered with ſuch impure hearts and hands; and therefore the people wept, and bemoaned themſelves and their eſtates, that thereupon through the prieſts defaults, they had no wayes or means left them to expiate their ſins, pacifie God, and ſerve him in an acceptable manner, as they ought to do. Chap. 1. 10.

v. 14. Yet ye ſay] Moſt likely both Prieſts, and People.

wherefore] Are we ſo deeply charged in the former verſe? Thus chap. 1. 6. 7. Hypocrites and obdurate ſinners are thus ready to quarrel, expoſtulate, beat back, all admonitions; and to ſtand upon their own juſtification. So willing is wickedneſs to defend it ſelf. A dangerous ſin, Prov. 29. 1. It is otherwiſe with the godly; Pſal. 141. 5. He is the accuſer of himſelf. Job. 31. 33. Pſal. 32. 5.

becauſe the Lord hath been witneſs] He convicts them in one groſs particular for all. The Lord hath been witneſs of the Matrimonial promiſes, made as it were in his preſence, with invocation of his name. Impudently inſolent then was their expoſtulation. Matrimony is called Gods Covenant, Pro. 2. 17. He becomes as it were ſuretie on both ſides, undertaker for both; hath witneſſed the contract, and will be a witneſs againſt the violation of it, the Covenant-breakers. See chap. 3. 5. The Lord ſees; and puts upon record; and will give in evidence againſt all ſinners; 1 Joh. 3. 20. Pſal. 50. 21. Mal. 3. 16. Jere. 44. 21. Apoc. 20. 12. Particularly againſt theſe wedlock-breakers.

and the wife of thy youth] Whom thou didſt marry in the budding ſpring and flowre of thy youth; and both of you have enjoyed the mutuall comforts of it; youth winning tenderneſs of love, and continuance in years confirming it. This then aggravates the fault, when in elder years ſuch wrong is done her.

treacherouſly] Breaking the Covenant, in divorcing her, and taking another: or in taking another to her, and ſo multiplying wives by unlawfull polygamy.

thy companion] Yoke-fellow, yea one fleſh with thee. Gen. 2. 24. Eph. 5. 28. 29. 31. And yet with ſome ſubjection, 1 Cor. 11. 7. &c. 1 Pet. 3. 7. 1 Tim. 2. 13. 14. Eph. 5. 22. 23. 24.

wife of thy covenant] Thy firſt lawful wife, thy confederate, between whom that ſacred covenant was made, with whom having ſpent thy youthful dayes, thou now beginneſt to contemn, and hate her in her old age. Which covenant breaking is a kinde of diſſolution of all humane ſociety.

v. 15. And did not he make one?] Did not God in the beginning create Adam alone, out of whom he framed Eve to be his wife, without creating any more women for one man, or more men for one woman? ſhewing thereby that as he ordained matrimony, by one onely Law of Lawfull Conjunction: ſo it likewiſe ought to be, of one with one; and ſo two in the ſame fleſh, Gene. 2. 23. 24. Matt. 19. 5. The Jews tranſlate and corrupt this Text thus: did not one do it? meaning Abraham, that one ſingular rare man; And ſo making theſe offenders to defend themſelves, by the example of Abraham, taking more wives. Others of them, thus; did not Abraham do it when he was one alone, without any ſeed? and do it then, not of Luſt, but to this end, to ſeek and get that promiſed ſeed that ſeed of God. Thus excuſing Abrahams fact, as no lawfull defence for them. But theſe both are ſufficently Jewiſh, and blinde wreſtings of the words.

Yet had he] He could, had he pleaſed, have created more living perſons at once, more women for one man: there was no want of power in him to do it.

reſidue of the Spirit] Or excellency.

and wherefore one?] One pair, and no more? to what end? with what intent? for what cauſe? upon what ground and reaſon?

that he might ſeek a godly ſeed] Heb. A ſeed of God. Gods chief end in this proceeding was, that the poſterity might be ſanctified, being born in chaſt wedlock, according to his appointment: whereas it is defiled by all manner of unlawfull conjunctions. All other ſeed is ſpurious, not a lawfull and legitimate ſeed; nor ſuch fathers, are lawfull fathers, whoſo pervert the order and ordinance of Matrimonie. God puts his mark of infamy upon the ſeed it ſelf; Deut. 23. 2.

take heed to your ſpirit] So verſe 16. Having ſufficiently convinced the crime, and taught the truth; he comes now next to exhortation; and layes it on to the life; As your life and ſalvation is dear unto you, ſo look to it. As Deut. 4. 9. 15. Jere. 17. 21. The ſpirit and heart are the fountain and ſpring of our affections and actions; and ſo primarily to be heeded and ordered. Prov. 4. 23.

let none deal treacherouſly] Or, unfaithfully. Defrauding, or otherwiſe abuſing his lawfull wife, for concubines.

v. 16. that he hateth putting away] Or, if he hate her, put her away. According to this later tranſlation ſome expound the words, That God wills and allows this putting away of the lawfull wife; not in it ſelf, but in caſe of the huſbands hatred; and then not ſimply; but comparatively; as eſteeming this putting away, or Bill of Divorce, a leſſer greivance to the true wife; ſhe being ſo freed from that yoak of bondage, under her hating huſband, and left to her liberty; & alſo a leſſer offence in it ſelf, then Polygamy is, or the keeping her ſtill, and taking more wives to her: & counting this later to be but as the covering of violence with a cloak; as indeed it was, in ſo dealing with their lawfull wives. And thus divorce was, if not permitted, yet not puniſhed under the Law: As the Magiſtrate ſomtimes ſuffers what he allows and approves not. See Deut. 24. 1. Matt. 5. 31. & 19, 3—13. Mar. 10. 5. 6. Others rather, according to the former rendition of the words, underſtand here a third fault, in putting away their lawfull wives upon pretence of the Law, Deut. 24. 1. As it is alledged, Matt. 5. 31. but the Prophet telleth them, God hateth putting away. And as our Saviour pleadeth againſt it, Matt. 19. 3—13. So the words of the law it ſelf imply no leſs, Deut. 4. 4.

for one covereth violence] Heb. and he covereth, &c. Meaning he that puts her away excuſeth this violence by the Law of God given by Moſes concerning divorce: but therein ſuch did injury both to their lawfull wives, and to the Law of God, Deu. 24. 4. See Mat. 5. 32. & 19. 9. Thus upon pretences, and cloakes wicked men commit the moſt heynous ſins.

therefore take heed, &c.] See on verſe 15. The end of conviction is our admonition, and amendment. Elſe the ſin that follows after, is a double ſin. John 9. 41. We muſt keep a vigilant eye, and carefull watch over our ſpirits. And the fountain muſt firſt be purged, before the ſtream can run clear and pure.

v. 17. Ye] Here he chardgeth them with another crime, the moſt greivous of all, even open Blaſphemy againſt God.

have wearied me] God is a pure act or agent, without any paſſion. But here he ſpeaks to man, as in the perſon of a man, after the manner of men: for our better underſtanding. So Eſay 43. 24. Amos 2. 13. The meaning is, God hath born Patiently very long with their wickedneſſe. And thus he did with the old world; with the Amorites; with all; with moſt deſperate, wretched, wicked men. Exod. 34. 6. Rom. 2. 4. & 9. 22. The world makes ill uſe of it, Eccl. 8. 11. 12. 13. Rom. 2. 4. And now he is ready to put an end to his patience, that his juſtice may take place; Pſal. 50. 21. 22. Eſay 1. 24. Ye have greivouſly and intollerably offended me. See chap. 1. 13. Eſay 7. 13 & 63. 10. Ezech. 6. 9.

with your words] And murmuring complaints. Words are more then winde; they have their weight, and are provoking. chap. 3. 13. Job. 21. 24. & 22. 17. See Matt. 12. 36. 37.

yet ye ſay wherein, &c.] They queſtion, not as of a matter in doubt, deſirous to be informed, and to amend; but they come ready armed with impudence and inſolency, to maintain their cauſe and quarrell. See on chap. 1. 6. 7. & 2 14. & chap. 3. 7. 8. 13. Job doth juſtly juſtifie himſelf in point of his ſincerity againſt the charge of hypocriſie put upon him by his friends. But is far off from juſtifying himſelf in his ſins againſt God, Job 9. 2. 3. 20. But here is prodigious blockiſh ſtupidity; or ſhameleſſe impudency, and a brow of braſs.

when ye ſay] Thus the Prophet doth inſtance againſt them. ſpares not particulars. Eſay 58. 1.

every one that doth evil] They ſay not, ſome, or moſt; but every one, not the vileſt ſinner excepted. Thus they heighten their blaſphemy, and bewray the bitterneſs of their godleſs ſpirits. And mean while would exempt themſelves out of this number of evil doers.

is good in the ſight of the Lord] Acceptable to him. They complain not thus, out of any hatred they have to the evil of ſin: but becauſe in their judgement, others worſe then they; are ſpared; and themſelves, far better then the others, are puniſhed. God, ſay they, favoreth the wicked: Or if it be not ſo, why doth he leave them unpuniſhed, & in the mean while afflict good men? c. 3. 14 15. Thus they minde their own caſe and cauſe. And in the ſenſe of that, ſtick not at this blaſphemy againſt God; becauſe he doth not anſwerably to their ſilly apprehenſions preſently puniſh the wicked; and ſuccour and relieve themſelves, holy Saints, in their diſtreſſes. For ſuch ſinful hypocrites wil not ſee their own ſins and demerits, but do think that God is bound & beholden to them; and ought to bleſs and proſper them. Indeed the generall conſideration of the adminiſtration of Gods providence in this kinde, in proſpering the wicked, and affiicting the Godly, much troubled Job, c. 21. 7. & David, Pſa. 37. & 73. & Jeremy, c. 12. 1. 2. But they keep far off from the ſin of theſe here; they ſoon recollect and recover themſelves, and poſſeſs their ſouls in patience, ſee Jer. 8. 14. Eccl. 9. 1. Rom. 9. 21. Mat. 20 15.

and he delighteth in them] An helliſh blaſphemy. Thus they proceede on, in the bitterneſs of their ſpirit. See Prov. 12. 22. & 21. 3. Jer. 9. 24. Eſay 56. 6. 7.

or where is the God of judgement?] Thus yet again they belch out their blaſphemy; condemning God in his power & juſtice, becauſe he judged not according to their fantaſies. And yet manifold and manifeſt are the reaſons even appearing to man in the word of God; why God doth let the wicked proſper and flouriſh in this world many times; and exerciſe the godly with ſore afflictions: And he nevertheleſs be ſtil the God of judgement, and juſtice, the juſt judge of the world, the avenger of ſin, and plentiful rewarder of weldoing. Which he can no ſooner ceaſe to do, then ceaſe to be God, and become an idol.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. B*Ehold*] And again repeated towards the end of this verſe; to raiſe attention.

I will ſend] I Chriſt will ſend. Alledged, as ſpoken in the perſon of God, Matt. 11. 10. Mar. 1. verſe 2. Luk. 7. 27.

my meſſenger] My Angel, my Malachi, my Ambaſſador, ſee c. 2. 7. Apo. 2. 1. Here it is meant of John Baptiſt, another Malachi, as Chriſt expoundeth it, Matt. 11. 10. 14. Luk. 7. 27. And Zachary, his father, Lu. 1. 76. And thus God anſwers to thoſe blaſphemies laſt afore mentioned, aſſerting his juſtice and judgment, by the ſending of J. Baptiſt and of Chriſt, & by the effects of their coming, of Chriſt eſpecially, upon the Godly, and upon the wicked.

and he ſhall prepare the way] The Jews by their enormous ſins had laid blocks, as it were, in the way to hinder Chriſts coming, as if purpoſely theyment to keep off this great grace now ready and prepared for them. And indeed all men naturally are unprepared to receive Chriſt: they are as an uneven way, of mountains, and dales: rough and crooked: they muſt be levelled, and ſmoothed, Luk. 3. 5. How John the Baptiſt did this, we reade, Eſay 40. 3. &c. Mat. 3. 1. 13. Mar. 1. v. 2--9. Luk. 1. 76--80. & 3. v. 2--19. and 7. 19--36. John 1. 6. 7. 8. 15—37. and 3. 27—36. By his preaching, & baptizing he did prepare mens hearts for to receive Chriſt; taking away all lets of hypocriſie, carnall pride, impiety.

before me] Our Saviour, and the Evangeliſts alledge it thus, before thy face, which ſhall prepare thy way before thee. So changing the Perſon; but retaining the ſenſe: God ſends John Baptiſt to prepare the way before our Saviour; God the Father, and God the Son do ſend him.

and the Lord] Here God the Father ſpeaks; or the Prophet in his Name; and that of and concerning the Lord Chriſt, that Lord, Pſal. 110. 1. and 2. 2, 11, 12. and Dan. 9. 7.

whom ye ſeek] Meaning the Meſſiah, as Pſal. 40. 1, 7. Dan. 9. 17, 25. towards whom all the hopes and thoughts of Beleevers are bent: But ye for your parts do now odiouſly queſtion me for not ſending him, as failing therein of my promiſes, and fruſtrating your hopes and expectations: ſuch is your murmuring and incredulity.

ſhall ſuddenly] No Prophet between Malachy, and Chriſts coming; Malachy the laſt Prophet. And ſuddenly, inſtantly upon John Baptiſt his coming; then ſuddenly. Preſently after that John ſhall begin to preach, Chriſt the everlaſting God ſhall appear, and publikely exerciſe his office, Mat 3. 11.

Come] When the way is prepared. Before, Chriſt was often promiſed, and many wayes prefigured. Now in the fulneſs of time he ſhould come. The high Prieſthood; and Davids Kingdom ſhadowed his offices; But now the ſubſtance ſhould come, Heb. 10. 1, 5, 9. Col. 2. 17.

to his Temple] Of Jeruſalem, which is now but newly re-builded, which was a figure of the Church ; to preach there, and to uſe his authority as in his own houſe. See Jo.2.14,16. And ſome make this a confirmation of the literall meaning of that, Hag. 2.7,9. Now no Temple is left for the Jews yet expected Meſſias. We are Gods ſpirituall Temple, 1 Cor. 6.19. We ſhould ſeek for, and long for his coming into our hearts: And for his ſecond coming in glory, 2 Tim. 4. 8. Apoc.22. 20.

the meſſenger of the Covenant] Another manner of Meſſenger then John Baptiſt was ; Iohn 1. 8, 15, 20, 27,30. and 3. 28,29,30. Jeſus is the Angel of the Covenant: In him, and for his ſake, this Covenant touching life and ſalvation to be obtained by him was made ; in his blood it was ratified, and ſealed. In him are all the Promiſes of it Yea and Amen, 2 Cor.1.20. No other Name under heaven given unto men for ſalvation, Acts 4. 12. See Eſay 53. 11. 1 Tim. 2. 5. See further Exod. 23. 20, 21. whom ye delight in] Who is the great joy and delightfull expectation of the Jews, of Abraham, Ioh. 8. 56. of all the faithfull. Though ye ſport your ſelves at his coming ; mocking at the day and expectation of his coming : as ſeems beſt to agree with the words aforegoing, and following. The like is Eſay 5. 19. Amos 5. 18.

behold he ſhall come] See before in this verſe.

ſaith the Lord of hoſts] Here is his warrant. Other ſciences have their demonſtrations. God tyes us to no other evidence then his word; which is the only ground of al ſupernatural revelations. And this is true faith; truely to reſt in the aſſurance of it. Rom.4.18. Pſal 119.49. & 56.4. 10.

v. 2. But who may abide] Here is the manner of his coming in the fleſh. And hereby God will aſſert the faithfulneſſe of his covenant, the conſtancy and truth of his promiſes, the reality of his juſtice and judgement againſt theſe blaſphemers.

the day of his coming] He will come. But little to your comfort. His coming will be terrible to ſuch as you are. And therefore vainly do you ſooth up and ſolace your ſelves in the hope and expectation of his coming; or you do but diſſemble in deſiring it ; His delay, or not-coming would be beſt for you. True it is, that to the godly nothing is more comfortable. Joh. 8. 56. And to them, as his ſpiritual preſence in his grace, is the ſweet delight of their ſouls, ſo alſo his ſecond coming in the clouds is their ultimate wiſh and longing deſire; Rom. 8.22.23. 2 Tim.4.8. Apoc.22.17.20. But ſtill this day of his firſt coming is a dreadful day to obdurate ſinners; like that, Amos. 5. 18. He is a rock of offence, a ſtumbling ſtone, a ſtone to grinde them to pouder, ſee Luk.2.34. 1 P.2.7.8. Mat.21.44. Though this his coming in the eye of fleſh and blood was mean, baſe, and contemptible, and he then meek, riding on an aſſe, his voice not heard, in the ſtreets; not breaking a bruiſed reed Eſay.43.2.3. yet even then he comes with his fan in his hand, with his whip-cord in his hand, and that twice over, John 2. 14.15. 16. Mat. 21. 12. he layes the axe to the roots of the trees, Mat. 3. 10.12. Herod, and all Jeruſalem were troubled at this his coming ; Mat. 2. v. 3. And then to wicked ſinners how terrible ſhall his ſecond coming be ? ſee Apoc.6.16. and 1. 7.2. Cor. 5. 10. Pſal. 2. 12. Eſay. 33.14,15. 2 Theſ. 1.7. 8. 9. 10. and who ſhall ſtand] See Pſal.1. 5. and 36. 12. Nahum.1.6. His preſence and preaching ſhal be accompanied with a moſt powerful vertue of Gods ſpirit, and with ſevere judgement to deſtroy all rebels, and to cleanſe his Church, ſee Iſaiah 4. 4. Matthew 3.10.11.12. Here are the effects of Chriſts coming Luk.24.19.

for he is like a refiners fire] Here is no Popiſh purgatory fire, a fire to conſume the wicked like droſſe, ſuch as you are: and to purge and purifie the godly as gold and ſilver: and that by his word, as fire. Jer.23. 29. Heb.4.12.13. And by his ſpirit as fire. Mat.3.11. ſee Luk.12.49.51. 52. So faſt corruption cleaves and ſticks to man, that it needs this refining fire; Pſal.51.7. Jer.13.23. as in the dayes of old] Though now Temple, worſhip, offerings, all, be mean and poor ; yet then all ſhalbe purged and purified, acceptable to the Lord, and pleaſant to him, as when firſt inſtituted & beſt obſerved.

v. 5. And I will come neer to you to judgement] His coming ſhall be as formerly, for the good of his, to refine them ; ſo here for judgement againſt the wicked, to deſtroy them. They charged him, that he kept afar off, and was not the God of judgement, chap. 2. 17. that he came not neer them, to own them, and judge for them againſt their and his enemies : They would rule him, and his doings at their beck; have him at their call. He tells them he will come neer them, neer enough ; But it is to judgement, againſt them, as his wicked enemies, as Eſay, 1. 24. His Spirit ſhall effectually convince all ſinners, Iſa. 4 4. Ioh.16.8. and the execution ſhall ſpeedily follow that inward conviction, contrary to that former blaſphemy.

a ſwift witneſſe] Not ſlack and ſlow, as they did calumniate ; but ſwift enough for them ; ſo as they ſhall ſoon ſee that none of their ſins are hid, or unknown to him, no not thoſe which they labour moſt to keep ſecret. A witneſſe, not to them, as Eſay 55.4. nor for them, as for Job, c. 16.19. but againſt them, as Micah, 1. v.2. and Ier. 29. 23.

againſt] Here are ſeven deadly ſins reckoned up ; that a wonder it is, ſuch ſhould reigne amongſt Gods people ; and thoſe but lately brought back from the Babyloniſh captivity.

the ſorcerers] And all the ſorts, and kinds, of ſuch deviliſh dealers, and Satanicall ſinners. Againſt theſe ſee Exo.22.18. Deut.18.10. Such were thoſe, 2 Chr, 33.6. thoſe of Pharaoh, Ex.7.8.& 9. chapt. and many Chaldeans, Dan.2.2. Eſay 47.9, 12. See Micah 5. 12. Nah. 3. v.4. Ier.27.9

widow, and the fatherleſſe, and the ſtranger] Theſe through their weak eſtate are the more expoſed to the injuries of wicked worldly men. And God therefore the more often gives charge on their behalf ; and the more takes them into his tuition and protection ; and threatens his revenge againſt ſuch as wrongs them ; ſo that ſuch offenders ſet themſelves againſt God more immediately.

and fear not me] The fear of God is a fountain of all true wiſedom and Piety. Prov. 16. 6. Gen. 42. 18. The want of it opens the floodgate to all ſin and villany. Gen. 20. 11. Rom. 3. 18. Pſal.36. 1. And yet all theſe ſeverall ſorts of groſſe offenders would expoſtulate with God, for not being the God of judgement againſt ſinners But let us learn to judge our ſelves before we call upon God for his plagues and judgements upon others.

v.6. For I am the Lord] Jehovah Ex. 6.3 He argues thence as followeth.

I change not] So much Balaam is forced to confeſſe. Numb. 23. 19. Men change, and counſells and occurrences change. It is not ſo with Gods Nature, eſſence and wiſedom. He changes not ; but perſevereth conſtant in his juſtice, and truth, againſt their blaſphemies : He is the ſame yeſterday, to day, and for ever; James 1. 17. He will perform his counſell and purpoſe ; according to his promiſes. Rom. 11. 29. Some thus ; Under the Goſpel, I will proceed with ſpeedy operation of my Spirit and Judgement . whereas now I do uſe a great deal of clemency and patience out of my meere mercy and conſtancy in my promiſes.

therefore ye] Some thus ; Though ye ſons of Jacob are not yet conſumed ; yet I change not ; I am the ſame Lord; and ye ſhall finde ſo in the end, that I am a juſt Judge, though I forbear you long. Others much rather thus ; ye have deſerved over and over again to be conſumed ; and conſidering your demerits it might be a wonder that I have not ere this throwen thunder-bolts amongſt you to conſume you : But that I have not done it, and that ye remain alive, preſerved out of ſo many calamities, it is becauſe of me, and my Nature, that I am Jehovah, and change not, and will perform my mercies promiſed : which ye ſhould acknowledge, and be thankfull for. See Lam. 3. 22, 23. Hoſ. 11. 9.

v. 7. Even from the dayes of your fathers] Therefore but for me, it would be a wonder that ye had not been conſumed before. For ye have thus ſinned, not lately begun ſo to do . but continued ſo doing for many generations. Pſal. 95.10. Ezek. 2. v. 3. Acts 7. 51. The examples of Fathers is too prevailent with poſterity, to ſway them to evil. But neither ſuch examples, nor any preſcription, cuſtom, antiquity, or the like, are pleas available for the excuſe of ſin. Pſal. 95. 8, 9. and 78. 8. Ezek. 20. 18. Zech. 1.5. 1 Pet. 4.3. This circumſtance here aggravates the crime ; not leſſens it.

and have not kept them] But trample them under feet. Jer.2.27. Zech. 7. 11. Hoſ. 7. 13. Dan. 9. 5. 10. &c And yet God bore, and forbore ; was indulgent, conſumed them not : his ſlackneſſe was their ſafety. And notwithſtanding here they proudly and furiouſly charge him with ſlackneſſe on their behalf.

Return unto me] So Zech. 2.3 4. Hoſ.14.1. Joel 2.13. Acts 26.18. After he hath laboured with ſharp reproofs to over-maſter & ſubdue their proud rebellious ſtubbornneſſe ; Now he comes gently to exhort them, and draw them to repentance ; at leaſt ſuch of them as would become tractable, and be fairly wone. And thus ever and anon in the Prophets ; yet for all this return ye. Not yet that Repentance is in our own power, when ever we will. But this ſhews the way and waight of our duty ; though we have diſinabled our ſelves: and this urgeth us to ſeek for it out of our ſelves, even of him, who hath promiſed it, and gives it by this means. Jeremiah 31. 18, 19.

and I will return] Puts them in hope of mercy, without which hope man would ever flee from God, and never return to him. God returns by pardoning, accepting, and bleſſing of them; ſhewing them ſignes and pledges of his favour, and reconciliation. Whereas ſin unrepented made a ſeparation, and hid Gods face from them; Iſaiah 59. 2. & 54. 7. yet ſin though never ſo long continued in, ſhuts not out from mercy, if Repentance come in place; See Luk. 19. 42. Acts 17. 30. Ezek. 18.21,22. Impenitency onely doth it. Yet we muſt not abuſe this mercy; Rom. 6.1. But look to that Prov. 1. 24. 26. Iſa. 55.6. Ezek. 24.13.

wherein ſhall we return?] Thus before; See on c. 2.17. Here is ſtill a ſhrewd ſigne of rebellious contumacy and perverſneſſe. Men the deeper ingaged in the guilt of ſin, are the more hardly brought to conviction of it: cuſtom blindes, and hardens them. Iſa.5.20. Rom.1.28. We, ſay they, are not guilty to our ſelves; ſhew us what, and wherein we offend.

v.8. Will a man rob God?] He punctually tells them wherein. Will any man do this? any idolater, any Heathen? So Jer. 2.10.11. This makes to the aggravation of the ſin, and to their greater conviction. No Heathen will do this that ye do, none ſo barbarous, that will defraud their Gods of their honour and oblations or deale deceitfully with them. See Gen. 47.22. Care of maintenance for Gods worſhip is ingrafted in man by nature. We ſee it in Idolaters; & all Heathens. All bountiful that way. And therefore ſacriledge is abominable to all. ſee Rom.2.22. Act.19.37.

yet ye have robbed me] So again v 9. Thus Gods takes it as done againſt himſelf, what is done againſt the meanes and maintenance of his worſhip. See the like, Act. 9.4. He owns it as his own what is ſet apart to the maintenance of his ſervice.

in tithes and offerings] Keeping thoſe things back which are my right, & are to furniſh out my ſervice, & for the maintenance of my officers, Neh. 13. 10. &c. By Jacob vowed to Gods ſervice, Gen.28 22. under the law eſtabliſhed by Gods ſtatute- law to be paid to the prieſts and Levites: and wherein this law is either ceremonial, or judicial, may be queſtioned And the rather, becauſe by the light and inſtinct of nature, the Heathens hallowed the tenth unto God. And no queſtion there can be but under the Goſpel, God requires as liberal a maintenance to the Miniſters of the Goſpel, as he allotted to them under the law; and leaves them not to the arbitrary devotion of the people; ſee 1 Cor. 9. 7--15. 1 Tim. 3. 2. & 5. 17.18. v. 9. Ye are curſed] They complained, that God did puniſh them without end, or meaſure, they were curſed; Theſe were their continual clamors, ſaith God, be it ſo, and true it is, ye are curſed. But ſee the cauſe, thank your ſelves, the fault is yours, not my rigor.

v. 10. Bring ye] God brings all to this iſſue, as if he ſhould ſay, in vain ye go on in quarrelling and complaining; here is the beſt way and remedy, Amend your fault, and ye ſhall ſoon ſee my goodnes, ſo Eſay 1. 16--20. and c 9. 12. 13. and prove me now herewith] Ye have aſſaied other wayes; and in vain, ye think this unlikely, yet trie it, prove it. God offers himſelf to the tryall; whereby it ſhall ſoon be ſeen that cauſeleſly they complained of God, and that truely the fault will be found in themſelves, and their ſacriledge. See that Jud. 6. 37. 38. 39. There is an unlawfull tempting of God; a preſumptuous tempting; without ground of promiſe made, or means preſcribed. All contrary to his will. verſe 15. words have been ſtout againſt me] Before were mutterings & murmurings. Now riſen up to open exclamations, as of mad-men, that wil give no way to wholſome counſels and admonitions; but bend their tongues againſt heaven; as Pſal. 12.3 4. 1 Sam.2.3. Jud.15. And thus one ſin draws in another: frets like a canker; that they grow worſe and worſe, 2 Tim.3.13. God giving them over, Rom.1.28. And Satan working in them, Epheſ.2.2.3. Till they come to this height.

what have we ſpoken] Their impudent hypocriſie will never be at an end. They will rather be ready to cal the Prophet in queſtion for ſlander. Hoſ.4.4. Nay they contend with God, quarrell him.

v. 14. It is vain to ſerve God] Theſe hypocrites would needs perſwade themſelves that they ſerved God; and that truly: And being puft up with this conceit; they thought God ſhould thereupon ſerve them, as they would have him, and they expected: and if he on the other ſide puniſh them for their ſins, and exerciſe them with afflictions, they cry out. It is in vain then to ſerve God; and ſo bewray themſelves to be prohane hypocriticall Atheiſts but ſuch as ſerve him in truth, are content to deny themſelves, and to be humbled and exerciſed by him, as knowing wel they deſerve it: and that he ſees it good for them. The others think no ſuch matters, but complain of his injuſtice in puniſhing them, and therfore ſay, it is in vain and to no purpoſe to ſerve him. Whereas in truth, except this one thing only, all things elſe ſhall be in vain. Eccl.1.v.2. & 2 1.11.19. & 6.11. 2 Kin.17.15. Pſal.39.6. & 4. 2. & 94.11. Jona.2.8. 1Sam.12.21. and what profit] They are all for themſelves, for their profit, carnall, ſenſual men, they make themſelves their God, ſo Pſ.4.6. 1Tim.6.5. phil. 3.19 And they can ſee no profit, in ſerving God, ſo Job 21.14.15. Jer.44 17. 18. Nay what profit is there in all other things beſides this? Eccl. 1.3. Rom.6.21. And what profit is there not in this? 1 Tim.6.6. & 4.8. Here are ſpiritual riches, honours, pleaſures. Here is Chriſt, and his benefits, the ſpirit, and his heavenly Graces: faith, hope, love, Juſtification, ſanctification, adoption: that peace, Phil.4.7. That joy, 1 Pet.1.8. kept his ordinance] Heb. his obſervation. That keeps and contains us in his fear, and good order, and in the obſervation of his ordinances, and our duties. Thus theſe hypocriticall juſtitiaries falſly boaſt. For if they had duly weighed his Law, & their own lives, they could never have arrived at this height of ſelf conceitedneſs, & good opinion of themſelves.

mournfully] Heb. in black. As Job 30.28. Pſa.38.6. humbly, dejectedly. This God greatly requires, Mica.6.8. But theſe hypocrites did but dally with God in this caſe: their heart was haughty enough, as appears in the text. Thus Eſa.58.3.5. They here make ſhew of counterfeit hypocriſie, for true humility, and arrogate ſo much to themſelves, when they have ſo little, or no goodnes in them. They may have relation to thoſe Faſts, Zech. 7. 3.

v. 15. And now] Here comes in their ſecond degree of blaſphemy That they ſhould not only ſerve God in vain, without his regarding them, or their ſervice: but that he ſhould regard and reward the wicked with his bleſſings, and ſpare to puniſh them.

we call the proud happy] Whiles we do thus, and are in this caſe, mean while we ſee the proud & preſumptuous ſinners, that walk in the ſtubbornneſs of their hearts, and ſin boldly and maliciouſly, to flouriſh, and to be happy in the world: and we may well call and count them ſo, and not they call us bleſſed, as v.12. And we may envy them for it, not they us: God ſeeming ſo to neglect us, and affect them. At leaſtwiſe they ſee all things come alike to al: Eccl.9.2. And therefore vain is their ſerving of God, and without any profit to them at all. This tentation ſomtimes puzzles the godly: as hath been ſaid, Pſa.73.12.13. 14.15. ſee on c.2.17.

yea they that work wickedneſſe] That make it their trade, as thoſe 1 Joh.3.6.9. & c.5.18. the impious contemners of God.

Thus the gariſhneſſe of worldly felicities dazles the eyes of worldlings: whiles yet by them they are made nothing the better, but rather fatted to the day of ſlaughter. A poor happineſs and advancement it is.

yea they that tempt God] Sinfully, preſumptuouſly, daringly. Of this ſin, See Pſ.78.18.41.56 & 95.9. Deu.6.16. Ex.17.2.7. Num.14.22. Mat.4.7.

In the barreneſt times of the Church,yet God hath ſome that fear him,and that ſtand up to juſtifie his truth againſt the blaſphemies of the wicked. In the deſperate and moſt forlorn times,yet God preſerves his Church, his flock, his remnant,and holy ſeed,Gen.6.12.Eſay 1.9.& 6.13.Apoc.3.v.4.and 11.3. Matt.16.18. thought upon his Name] Well remembred, & weighed, & conſidered, and duely reverenced and eſteemed his name ; that bethought themſelves of God aright:that have his fear alwayes in their hearts,& before their eyes;that meditate upon his grace and commandments;that have a care to call upon him,and do actually remember him in all his works.

v. 17. And they ſhall be] Here is the end wherefore God ſo regarded and recorded them ; and whereby it ſhall appear full well that they did not ſerve God in vain.

Mine] Mine in a peculiar ſort ; Exod. 19. 5. my peculiar lot, inheritance, choice portion, chief treaſure, Eſay 19. 25. Deut. 19. 29. 1 Kings 8.51.53. Pſalm 33.12. Jer. 10.16. And we anſwerably ſhould be his in a peculiar kinde of holy living ; 2 Cor.7.1. Pſ.16.8. Tit.2.14.

in that day when] God firſt notes & records, for ſuch as fear him;yet defers & delays for a time,doth not preſently ſo own them in the open face of the world ; But yet afterwards in his time fails not to do it : in that day of his Churches reparation and reſtauration ; in his day, and fitteſt opportunity beſt known to him : wherein we muſt not limit him, or preſcribe to him : But mean while we muſt patiently bear and wait his good leiſure and pleaſure ; as the Saints all have ever done.

my jewels] Deut. 7. 6. and 14. 2. and 26. 18. Eſay 62. 3. my ſpecial treaſure, Pſal. 135. 4. when I ſhall reſtore my Church according to my promiſe, they ſhall be as mine own proper and choiceſt chieſeſt goods, however they may ſeem to be neglected now.

ſpare them] That is,forgive their ſins,and govern them with my ſpirit. And moreover pardon their imperfections in my ſervices. They know their beſt actions and affections in ſerving me are imperfect,defective, and defiled ; They dream not of an abſolute perfection in this world, Phil.3.12. much leſſe brag they of the merit of their works, or works of ſupererogation. But know they need this pardon and ſparing even in doing holy duties; and this ſparing I do here promiſe to them.

his own ſon] Pſal. 103. 13. His fatherly indulgence accepts of the will for the work ; Heb. 13. 18. 2 Cor. 8. 12. As a Father will accept in his Childe the deſire for the deed, and if there be a blemiſh in his childe,will pity it, and cover it.

that ſerveth him] With a ſon-like and filial affection. The Father will not uſe him,as a ſervant or hireling. Here is adoption ; and ſanctification, and acceptation included.

v. 18. Then] At that day ; though before ye will not. Then when too late for you.

ſhall ye] Shall all men ; yea and ye too. Ye blaſphemers ſhall.

return] The tyde ſhall turne, the ſcene change, the caſe and face of things ſo alter, that even ye ſhall return ſo far to your ſelves, though ſmally to your comfort, to ſee it, and ſay it.

and diſcern] That v. 14,15. and C. 2.17. He retorts the blaſphemies upon themſelves;making themſelves their own judges and condemners therein. Their own experience ſhall teach and ſchool them ; the ſenſe of their own pains & ſight of the others happineſs, ſhall turn them now from that ſtupidity and frenzy wherewithal formerly they were poſſeſſed;& make them now to diſcern between things that do ſo much differ.

between the righteous & the wicked] Between thē,& their different eſtats; and Gods different dealing with them. That God doth not now ſit idle in heaven,& let men live as they liſt,regarding neither right nor wrong; forgoing,or forgetting himſelf,and his part,and office of being juſt,and the juſt judge of the world; They ſhall know to their pain and ſorrow, that he is both the rewarder of the good, and alſo the juſt and fearful avenger of ſin, and ſinners;though in his unſearchable wiſdom, he did forbear, and let things go on, till his appointed time. See Luke 16. 25.

between him that ſerveth God] This expounds the former, and ſhews that all falls in with this,as rivers all fal into the ſea. This ſervice of God is the thing that compleats and comprehends all. The ſumme is ; you do wrongfully impute to God that he doth not reward thoſe which ſerve him:but if ye ſerved him heartily and uprightly,then you ſhould finde the effect of his promiſes ; whereas now you deprive your ſelves of them, becauſe your ſervice is defiled with hypocriſie, and impiety. the day] And again repeated afterward. The day, not of the laſt judgement, at Chriſts ſecond coming, as ſome would ; though then that thing ſhall be conſummated, and perfectly compleated, which is here ſpoken of. Neither the day from Malachi till Chriſts coming, wherein the Jews ſuffered many miſeries under the Grecian Kings of Syria, and Egypt, the Seleucidæ, and Lagidæ, the two legs of Daniels Image, Dan. 2. 33, 41, 42, 43. and c. 11.1. as ſome others would. But the day of Chriſts firſt coming in the fleſh ; wherein was accompliſhed what is ſet down in this Chapter ; both judgements upon them who would not receive Chriſt, when as God ſhould ſend him for the reſtauration of his Church, whereof he had ſpoken, chap. 3. 2, 3. and which fel out in the laſt deſtruction of Jeruſalem: And healing and ſalvation to thoſe that fear the Lords Name. cometh] Is not far off No Prophet between Malachy, and John Baptiſt. This, the more to affect them, and raiſe their expectation.

that ſhall burn as an oven] A black day to the wicked and impenitent Jews : a fearſull and fiery day to ſinners ; called the great and dreadfull day, v.5. great and terrible day, Joel 2.31. Gods wrath and revenge is often compared to fire; and to fire burning as in an oven, or fornace. See Eſay 31.9. Mat 13.42. like Nebuchadnezzars oven, Dan.3.19. ſee on c. 3. 2.

and all the proud] Even thoſe, c. 3.15. and all like them : they ſhall not be happy, and exalted, as the blaſphemers ſaid, but be as ſtubble. But who are they ? He takes up their words, c.3.15. They leaſt meant them of themſelves ; they were like thoſe Eſay 65.5. But the Prophet mindes them ; as if he ſhould ſay, In that day you ſhall ſee a difference made, and you ſhall ſee what ſhall become of the proud and wicked doers ; yea and who thoſe proud and wicked doers are, not thoſe you think of, but even your ſelves, and ſuch like proud blaſphemers; there will this pride and wicked doing be found.

ſhall be ſtubble] fully dry, Nahum 1. 10. See Exod.15.7.

and the day] God then doth not in one conſtant and equall tenour of proceeding exerciſe and execute his judgements in this world, in this life ; nor is tied to our lawes and deſires ; But hath his own appointed dayes, ſometimes of long-ſuffering and forbearance, and ſometimes of vengeance, and puniſhment ; as pleaſeth him.

burn them up] See Eſay 5.24 and 47.14. Pſal.8.5.14. So eaſily as fire burneth the ſtubble, can the Lord deſtroy the wicked.

neither root, nor branch] Neither root, nor ſtalk, of the ſtubble ſhall remain : an utter extirpation ſhall be made. Proverbiall terms, as Job 18.16. and 29.19. Eſay 5.24. Amos 2.9. This relates to the laſt deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and rejection of the Jews. A dreadfull judgement, for that ſo fearfull a ſin of rejecting Chriſt, and crucifying the Son of God. This ſo fiered and inflamed the wrath of God againſt them, that he inflicted that horrible vengeance (as was meet) for ſuch an helliſh and unheard of ſin : An unparalleld crying crime, did cry out for this exterminion here threatned. The Jews, even the vileſt ſinners and blaſphemers amongſt them, boaſted of the coming of the Meſſias. And come he ſhould, but in a vengeance to them ; the day of his coming ſhould be as that, Amos 5.18. We ſee then Chriſt came not to ſave all, but in judgement to ſome, Joh. 9. 39. Luk.2 34. He came to ſave his people, Matt. 1.21. his ſheep, his elect : all indeed without exception that beleeve in him. But now this belief depends not upon the abſolute power and pleaſure of mans will. God hangs not the merit and efficacy of Chriſts death, the fulfilling of his eternall decrees, upon the contingent mutability of mans will. But he who made the will, bends and frames it as he will, in whom he will, to the fulfilling of his decrees. And he who is bound to none, gives grace, & faith not to all, but according to the good pleaſure of his wil, which he had purpoſed in himſelf.

v. 2. But unto you] Here is the effect and benefit of Chriſts coming to the godly. He ſeparates theſe here to whom now he ſpeaks, from thoſe groſſe hypocrites and blaſphemers againſt whom he ſpake and contended before. He tells theſe here apart, that fearfull commination belongs not to them ; that day of Chriſts coming ſhall not be terrible to them, but moſt comfortable.

that fear my Name] See on C. 3. 16. that do not ſleight me, or my words & threatnings, or murmur at them, or deride them, and ſecurely go on in their ſins; but tremble at my word, Eſay 66. 5. and fear my Name, Deut. 28. 58. Pſal. 111. 9. Exod. 15. 3. Joſh. 7. 9. See Pſalm 29. 2. Theſe God reſerved to himſelf out of the great bulk and body of the ſinful multitude; theſe had need of comfort; and to them this promiſe is made. Let others periſh that think God bound to them, though they are at open war with him; but do ye lift up your heads, patiently bear your preſent preſſures, and joyfully expect this day of glorious deliverance ſhall the ſun of righteouſneſſe ariſe] Chriſt that ſun, Eſay 60. 1. 2. 19. 20. the light of the world, John 8. 12. and 1. 9. and 9. 5. the light of the Gentiles, and the glory of his people Iſrael, Luke 2. 32. See John 1. 8. This ſun was not riſen to the Patriarchs and Prophets; only it brought on the dawning of the day, and cauſed a kinde of twilight before, and under the Law: But now it ſhould ariſe in their ſight; as that ſun, Pſal. 19. 5. 6. as that light, Prov. 4. 18. Luke 1. 78. 79. And this he did, as in his own perſon; ſo by the light of the Goſpel, which then brake forth; whereby the heavens ſeemed to be opened, as the phraſe is, Apoc. 4. 1. and 19. 11. See Epheſ. 5. 14. And he is the ſun of righteouſneſſe, in whom the righteouſneſſe of God ſhould ſhine; and the Lord our righteouſneſſe, Jer. 23. 6. that we might be made the righteouſneſſe of God in him, 2 Cor. 5. 21. receiving from him both imputed, and inherent righteouſneſſe, 1 Cor. 1. 30.

with healing in his wings] He ſhall diſpel the clouds and darkneſſe of ignorance, ſin and miſerie; and ſhall bring in his rayes the quickning heat, and cheerful, comfortable light, of life, and health; healing, and all happineſſe. Eſay 53. 5. 1 Pet. 2. 24. Matth. 11. 28.

and ye ſhall go forth] Ye were, as it were, impriſoned before, in ſins and ſorrowes. But here is your freedom, and manumiſſion. A deſcription of the libertie of the Spirit in the elect, in joy, vigour, and readineſſe of ſpiritual motions See 2 Cor. 3. 17.

and grow up] Or increaſe. Here is increaſe of the graces of regeneration, and ſanctification. They ſhall be as trees planted in Gods garden, watered by the rivers iſſuing out of the ſanctuary, and bringing forth new fruit every moneth; Ezek. 47. 12. Pſal. 1. 3. The ſeed of ſanctification is permanent and immortal, 1 John 3. 9. and ſuch as ſprings and growes up to eternal life, John 4. 14.

as calves of the ſtall] Fat and flouriſhing. See Ezek. 34. 14. Eſay 25. 6. Jer. 31. 14. Pſalm 63. 5.

v. 3. And ye ſhall tread] A repreſentation of the Churches victories over her enemies, which is very frequent in the Prophets. So that they ſhall not need to envy their preſent jollitie and felicitie, when they ſee them flouriſh and flaunt it out, and Lord it over them; That day ſhall come when this part of felicity ſhall not be wanting to them; even a glorious triumph over their wicked enemies. Not that they ſhould cruelly thirſt after revenge, or want the ſpirit of meekneſs, even to pray for their enemies; But that God in juſtice ſhould thus change the face of things, and uſe his people as his inſtruments therein; who alſo ſhould greatly joy in ſeeing God vindicating his own glory, in his juſt revenge upon his implacable and irreconcileable enemies, Pſal. 58. 10. 11. Apoc 18. 20. Eſay 66 24. Some apply this to the Churches ſpirituall enemies; over whom ſhe thus triumphs in Chriſt her head, who hath overcome them for her, that they ſhall not be able to hurt her, 1 Cor. 15 55 56. 57. Joh. 16. 33. but work her good, Rom. 8. 28.

in the day that] Till that day they muſt ſtay their over-haſty deſires; and mean while with patience wait for it, and with joy expect it.

v. 4. Remember ye] He ſpeaks not of reedifying the Temple, as Haggai and Zechariah did; But coming after them, when the Temple was now built, and being the laſt of the Prophets; becauſe the time was come that the Jews ſhould be deſtitute of Prophets untill the time of Chriſt, that they might more fervently deſire his coming; the Prophet exhorteth them to exerciſe themſelves diligently in ſtudying the Law of Moſes in the mean ſeaſon, whereby they might continue in the true religion; and alſo be armed againſt all temptations.

the law] Mentions the Law only, not the Prophets; yet they not excluded, as being but the Interpreters of Moſes, Appendexes to the Law; mainly aiming at this, to contain the people in the obedience of the Law; and therefore many times conjoyned to the Law, as Mat. 7. 12. & 11. 13. & 22. 40. Ties them to the Law, as Eſay 8. 20. They muſt not ſwarve from it, to the left-hand, or right; They muſt not adde to it, or take from it; It is a perfect Law, Pſal. 19. 7. and ſufficient for them. And this Law would prepare them for Chriſt, and his coming; fit them to receive him. For the Law reveals ſin, Rom. 3. 20. & 7. 9. And works wrath, Rom. 4. 15. Gal 3. 10. And is our Schoolmaſter to Chriſt, Gal. 3. 24. And is the Rule of life, when we are in Chriſt, Rom. 7. 12. 16. 22. 25.

of Moſes] Exod. 20. Deut. 5. Called his Law, Heb. 10. 28. becauſe he was the miniſter of it, Exod. 20. 19. Joh. 1. 17. As Paul calls the Goſpel, his Goſpel, Rom 16. 25. See Joh. 9. 28.

my ſervant] Heb 3. 2. 5. Deut. 4. v. 5. Neh. 1. 7. Moſes is uſually ſo ſtiled.

which I commanded unto him] God the Lord, and Author of the Law, and the Proclaimer and Publiſher of it, in a dreadfull and miraculous manner.

in Horeb] Ex. 3. 1. & 17. 6 & 33. 6. Deut. 4. 10. 15. & 5. 2. & 18. 16. 1 Kin. 8. 9. Pſa. 106. 19. called alſo Sinai; likely from the bramble, for ſo the word ſignifieth, or the buſh, which Moſes there ſaw burning, but not conſuming, Exod. 3. 1. 2. Some make the Eaſt part of that Mount to be called Horeb, and the Weſt part Sinai.

for all Iſrael] And therefore all Iſrael, from the leaſt to the greateſt, Princes and people, learned and unlearned, young and old, men, women, and children, are to remember and remark it, no excuſe may be pretended bp any, Deut. 4. 10.

with the Statutes] Other titles alſo are given to the Law, Pſal. 119. and in other places; to ſet forth the uſe, perfection, and commendation of the Law; and Gods mercy to Iſrael in vouchſafeing them this Law. Deut. 4. 6. 8. pſal. 147. 19. 20. *A*nd their ſin and ingratitude, if they ſhould forget it, or forego it.

v. 5. Behold] To fix their attention upon this, til the coming of Elias, and Meſſias.

I will ſend you] God ſends his prophets, and Miniſters. Mat. 9. 38. And extraordinary men, extraordinarily qualified & furniſhed with gifts, as the extraordinary neceſſity of the times, and ſtate of the Church do require ſends here, after this time of ſilence and intermiſſion.

Elijah] This is John Baptiſt, as our *S*aviour himſelf tells us, Mat. 11. 13. 14. And again c. 17. 11. 12. Elias metaphorically, analogically, who came in the ſpirit & power of Elias, as the angel Gabriel tells Zacharias the father of the Baptiſt, Luk. 1. 17. And as ſucceſſour in his office, and with his zeal, to reſtore Religion being decayed then, as it was in the dayes of Ahab and Elias. John himſelf ſeems to deny this, Joh. 1. 21. But that is in ſuch ſenſe as the Prieſts, and Levites, that were Phariſees, aſked the queſtion: He was not Elias the Tiſhbite, nor yet had his ſoul by tranſmigration come into him: But yet he was that Elias foretold by Eſay, c. 40. 1. See Mat. 3. 3. Mar. 1. 3. And yet the Papiſts, to gain this that Antichriſt is not yet come, and ſo the Pope not he, would feign here underſtand this of Elias in perſon and of the time, not of Chriſts firſt coming, but of his ſecond coming, or Antichriſts coming: and to Elias they joyn Enoch, and make them thoſe two witneſſes, Apo. 11. 3 Such miſerable ſhifts a deſperate cauſe drives wiſe men unto.

the Prophet] John Baptiſt denies himſelf the title of prophet, meaning of that Prophet, Deut. 18. 15. See Joh. 1. 20. 25. Luk. 3. 16. Or of ſuch a prophet, as the former prophets were; for he was greater then they; He could point with his finger to the Meſſias, Joh. 1. 29. Whereupon are thoſe words of our Saviour Concerning him, Mat. 11. 9. 10. 11. A prophet, and more then a prophet.

before the coming] Immediately before. This ſhall be the ſign and token of his coming; John the baptiſt ſhall be his harbinger, and immediate forerunner: as the hiſtories of the Goſpels do declare. See Luk. 1. 26. 36. 76. & Joh. 1. 15. 26. 29. 36. Mat. 3. 13.

of the great and dreadfull day of the Lord] See on v. 1. & 6. & on c. 3. 2. Dreadfull, occſionally, by the perverſe, obdurate, and forlorn waywardneſs, ſtubbornneſs, contumacy, and rebellion of the Jewiſh nation, Joh. 1. 11. But to the godly remnant, & whole Church of Chriſt it was the great and glorious day of joy and conſolation, the day of ſalvation, Luk. 2. 10 11. 14 Joh 1. 12. Hereunto may be applied. pſal. 118. 24. 2 Cor. 6. 2.

v. 6. And he ſhall] The end of Johns ſending, and coming: Johns office and employment, and the fruit and effect of it. *A*fter that time of ſilence and interruption of the prophets, the doctrine of ſalvation ſhall again have its courſe, beginning at John.

turn the heart] Converſion, and that of the heart is the work of the Miniſtery, Act. 26. 18. 1 Cor. 4. 15. Col. 1. 6. Iſa. 55. 10. 11. Joh. 20. 23. 1 Tim. 4. 16. Indeed this work is properly Gods. Regeneration is a greater work then Creation. And yet man cannot make one hair of his head white or black; or adde one cubit unto his ſtature, Matth. 5. 36. & 6. 27. But God pleaſeth to uſe the Miniſters as his inſtruments in the work; whence is that 2 Cor. 6. 1. and God by the ſecret grace, and vertue, and power of his Spirit works in them, and by them: He joyns himſelf to the Miniſters; reſignes not his right, but onely communicates his power with them, and graceth his inſtuments with the honour and title of the work. Saint Paul explicates this point, 1 Cor. 3. 6, 7. and chap. 15. 10. & Gal. 2. 8. Sometimes in his juſt judgement for ſin, God by them hardens the hearts of people, as Iſa. 6. 10. Ezek 2. 2 Cor. 2. 15. 16.

of the fathers to the children] There were at this time many ſects and ſchiſmes, and hereſies, and hot diviſions amongſt them, & bitter heartburnings thereupon; There were Phariſees, Sadduces, Samaritanes, &c. See Act. 23. 6. Joh. 4. 9. Luk. 9. 53, 54. Zech 11. 8. As Micah 7. 6. and Mat. 10. 21. 35. Johns office ſhould be to accord theſe diſcords, to reconcile theſe unnatural differences, to bring them to mutual charity in the bond of peace, to turn them to unity: And not ſimply to unity, for there is an unity in wicked conſpiracy: But to bring them both to the ſacred unity of ſaving faith in Chriſt; and ſo to prepare the way before him; to ſuch an unity as formerly in the beſt times they had enjoyed, when they were knit together in the holy bond of unity in faith, and love, and the ſervice of God. See Luk. 1. 16. 17. Or thus; His preaching ſhall be to bring back the children of Iſrael that are gon aſtray, to the true faith and piety of their fore-fathers: whereby Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, who (as one may ſay) did not acknowledge them, Iſa. 29. 22, 23. ſhall re-accept them for their lawfull poſterity.

Leaſt I come] Thus God threatens; becauſe of their obduration in ſin. And thus he ſhews what an abominable ſin, and monſtrous ingratitude it is, to contemne his grace in ſending his Son for mans ſalvation; and that upon the failing of this converſion he will thus proceed.

and ſmite the earth with a curſe] He ſends John to turn and convert ſome; that ſo at leaſt he may ſave a Remnant; and not finally and totally deſtroy the whole nation. See Rom. 11. 1, 2. This curſe makes this day a dreadfull day; v. 5. and 1. chap. 3. 2. executed upon the Jewiſh nation; Matth. 23. 37. 38. and 24. 2. 21. And ſhall be upon all contemners of the Goſpel, Matth. 10. 14, 15. and 11. 24. Acts 13. 51. 2 Theſ. 1. 8, 9. Hebr. 2. 2, 3. and 10. 28, 29.

ANNOTATIONS
On the Goſpell according to S. MATTHEW.

The ARGUMENT.

THe Greek word 'Ευαγγέλιον, tranſlated Goſpel, 1. In general, even among profane Authors alſo doth uſually ſignifie Good or Glad *T*idings, and it is uſed alſo for a reward given to him, that brings ſuch tydings: as alſo, for ſacrifices offered upon ſuch occaſions. But in Scripture it is taken ſometime more largely for the Doctrine of Salvation procured, and purchaſed by Chriſt; either foretold and promiſed by God and his Prophets, before Chriſts coming; or by Him and his Apoſtles publiſhed, after his coming. So is both the Noun and the Verb deduced from it, uſed Gal. 3. 8. Heb. 4. 2. Matth. 11. 5. Luke 4. 28. Acts 13. 32. And in this ſenſe Paul calls it his Goſpel, Rom. 2. 16. and our Goſpel, 2. Cor. 4. 5. as preached by him, and his Fellow-Miniſters, and to the Epheſians, Chap. 1. 13. their Goſpel, as preached and delivered to them. But taken more ſtrictly in common ſpeech it is uſed to deſigne the Hiſtory of Chriſts birth, life, and death. The word Goſpel, whereby we expreſſe the Greek word, is an old Saxon word, importing not Gods-ſpell, or word in general, as divers miſtake it, but according to the manner of that Language a God-ſpel, that is, a good or gladſome word, and ſo doth preciſely anſwer to the Greek. The Writers of this Hiſtory are hence commonly called Evngeliſts: which terme, howſoever it may in general ſignifie any Preacher of the Goſpel, yet in the Scripture of the New teſtament it is more peculiarly applied unto ſome that were aſſiſtant unto the Apoſtles in their Miniſtery, and imployed by them to ſettle things in ſome Churches by them founded, when upon their neceſſary occaſions of departure, ſome extraordinary things were to be further carried on. Such were Philip and Timothy, Acts 21. 8. 2 Tim. 4. 5. And ſo the word ſeems to be taken, 2 Cor. 12. 28. Epheſ. 4. 11. but in common uſe it is more peculiarly applied to thoſe that writ the Hiſtory of Chriſts Life and Death, as was before ſaid. Of this kinde we have four onely, whoſe writings have been from time to time received by the Church, and approved of by the people of God, as immediately inſpired, and directed by the Spirit of God in this their imployment. Of theſe, two were Apoſtles, to wit, Matthew and John: the other two Diſciples of the Apoſtles, Mark and Luke. As for other Goſpels, as that termed of Nicodemus, that fathered on Thomas by the Manichees, and that among the Nazarens mentioned by Hierom, and others the like, they were never acknowledged, or admitted as authentical in the Orthodox Churches. The firſt Writer in order is called Matthew, for ſo he terms himſelf, Chap. 9. 9. 10. 3. As alſo Mark calleth him, Chap. 13. 18. and Luke, Chap. 6. 15. Howbeit he is alſo termed Levi by the ſame Luke, Chap. 5. 27. and ſaid to be the ſon of Alpheus. Mark 2. 14. But whether of that Alpheus who was the father of James and John, is not ſo certain. Some have affirmed that he writ his Goſpel firſt in Hebrew, and that it was afterward turned into Greek, and of the ſame there are two Hebrew Copies abroad. But neither is there any certainty, nor probability that he ſo did, and thoſe Hebrew Copies are from the ſtyle of them deemd by the learned to be of a far later date. He was before his converſion and calling, by profeſſion and employment a Publican. Matth. 9. Mark. 2. Luke 5. one that gathered the Emperours Tolls and Tributes, and was from the Cuſtome houſe called to be an Apoſtle to gather ſouls unto God, Matth. 10. 3 as ſome other of them alſo were called from being Fiſher-men to be Fiſhers of men. Matth. 4. 18, 19. He begins with Chriſts Genealogie, Birth, and flight into Egypt, proceeds to his Baptiſme, Temptations, and calling of Diſciples, relates at large his Sermons, Diſputes, and Parables, with the interpretation of them, records many of his famous works and Miracles, and concludes with a large Diſcourſe of his prodition, paſſion, death and reſurrection, ſhutting all up with a ſolemn Commiſſion given to his Apoſtles, before his departure from them. God give us grace ſo to read, that we may beleeve in the Son of God, and by truſting in him alone be eternally ſaved. Amen.

CHAP. I.

T*He book*] The word doth not alwayes ſignifie, A large book, but oftentimes a brief roll, or catalogue, or enumeration. Jer. 3. 8. ספר ſepher, a book, or bill of divorce. το βιβλίον; So the Jews did begin their genealogies. Gen. 5. 1.

of the generation] Luke 3. 23. of the anceſtours of our Saviour Chriſt ſucceſſively; yet Gen. 5. 1. it ſignifies the poſterity of the firſt Adam; this is not the title of the whole book, but only of the beginning of it; it may include not his anceſtours onely, but alſo the manner of his conception and birth, which is likewiſe ſet down in this Chapter, v. 18. and ſo it may be the title of the whole Chapter. Matthew purpoſing to write of the life of our Saviour, begins with his pedegree, becauſe he knew the Jews ſtood much upon their genealogies.

of Jeſus] The name given him by the Angel, with the reaſon thereof, v. 21. it ſignifies a Saviour, it was ſometimes given to others that were types of Chriſt, as to Joſhua, who brought the people into Canaan; to Jehoſhua the high prieſt after the captivity, and to divers others as Acts 13. 6. Col. 4. 11. but in a more peculiar manner it is given to Chriſt, who ſaveth us from our ſins.

Chriſt] It is all one with Meſſias, and ſignifies, Anointed, it ſets out unto us the King and Prieſt of the Church, for ſuch were wont to be anointed of David] He names onely David and Abraham at firſt, becauſe to theſe was the ſolemn promiſe made, that the Meſſias ſhould come of their ſeed, Gen. 12, 3. & 22. 18. 2 Sam. 7. 12. Pſal. 132. 11. Acts 12. 30. And to the one was promiſed a populous progeny, Gen. 15. 5. & 22. 17. to the other a ſtable kingdom, 2. Sam. 7. 12. 13. both which are eminently fulfilled in Chriſt. He names David firſt, becauſe he was a king; and the Jews, who expected a temporal kingdom with the Meſſias, looked upon him principally, as the Son of David, Chap. 9. 27. & 12. 23. & 15. 22. & 20. 30, 31. & 21. 9. 15. & 22. 42. Mark. 11. 10. Luke 1. 32. John 7. 42. Alſo, that ambiguity might be taken away; for if he had named Abraham firſt, and then David, men might have thought Abraham miſnamed for a ſon of David. Laſtly, that the genealogie might go on the more ſmoothly, and having once named Abraham, he might go on with him, not naming David between.

the ſon of Abraham] which David was ſon of Abraham, or which Jeſus Chriſt was the ſon of Abraham, as well as of David. Thus Matthew reckons up his genealogie, to ſhew that he was the promiſed Meſſias, and to take away the ſcandal which the Jews had, becauſe of the poverty of Mary his mother, and Joſeph his ſuppoſed father.

V. 2. Abraham begat Iſaac] Gen. 21. 3. Matthew brings our Saviour down from Abraham, for the comfort of the Jews, who drew their genealogies from him, becauſe God had taken him and his ſeed into a peculiar covenant. Luke carries him upward unto Adam for the comfort of the Gentiles, who were not lineally of the ſeed of Abraham.

Iſaac begat Jacob] Gen. 25. 26.

Jacob begat Judas] Gen. 29. 35.

and his brethren] Theſe are added, not that Chriſt came of them, but to ſhew that he eſteemed himſelf their kinred, and that all the tribes were included in the covenant, as well as the tribe of Judah; for this reaſon is Zara alſo named v. 3. yet Iſmael is not added to Iſaac, though he were the firſt-born; nor Eſau to Jacob, although at the ſame time with Jacob in the womb, becauſe theſe belonged not unto the covenant, which ſaid, Unto thy ſeed have I given this land, Gen 15. 18. Gen. 17. 8. and, all the nations of the earth ſhall be bleſſed in him, Gen. 18. 18. & Gen 17. 21. he ſaith, But my covenant will I eſtabliſh with Iſaac, who was a type of Chriſt; therefore the Apoſtle ſaith, Gal. 3. 16. He ſaith not unto ſeeds, as of many, but as of one, and to thy ſeed which is Chriſt, and Heb. 11. 18. In Iſaac ſhall thy ſeed be called.

Judas begat Pharez] Gen. 38. 27.

of Thamar] Chriſt vouchſafing to come of Thamar, Rahab, and Ruth the Moabiteſſe, ſhews that he came to ſave great ſinners, as well as they who were not ſo notorious, Gentiles aſwel as Jews, Chap. 9. 13. Epheſ. 2. 1. 1 Tim. 1. 15. it may be alſo a Part of his humiliation; as Chriſt took all our infirmities upon him, ſo for our ſake was he not aſhamed of ſuch parents. True vertue, though but humane, cannot be diſcoloured by parents ſhame.

Pharez begat Ezrom] Ruth 4. 18. 1 Chron. 2. 15.

V. 4. Aram begat Aminadab] Of theſe to Jeſſe little is ſaid in Scripture, for either they lived in ſlavery in Egypt, or in trouble in the wilderneſſe, or in obſcurity in Canaan before the kingdom was ſetled.

V. 5. Of Rahab] This is not mentioned in the old Teſtament, but ſeems to come as a true tradition from father to ſon, as that of Jannes and Jambres reſiſting Moſes, 2 Tim. 3. 8. and Enochs propheſie, Jude verſ. 14. Some think Matthew had this out of the civil tables of genealogie, which the Jews kept more exactly then other nations.

of Ruth] This ſhews that the Gentiles that were not to be deſtroyed, as the Moabites of whom Ruth came, might be ſaved by Chriſt. (See Deut. 2. 9.) as the mentioning of Rahab of the ſeed of Canaan may import, that ſuch as remained of thoſe that were to be cut off, Deut. 7. 2. might alſo be ſaved by him.

Jeſſe] It ſeemeth he was of no great accompt, becauſe David is called in contempt the ſon of Jeſſe, 1 Sam. 20. 27. 30. 31. 1 Kings 12. 16. as Chriſt was called the ſon of Joſeph. Luke 4. 22.

V. 6. Jeſſe begat David] He was the youngeſt of Jeſſes ſons, 1 Sam. 17. 13. 14. yet Chriſt cometh of him, to ſhew that this line was not guided by natural ſucceſſion all along, but ſometimes as Gods favour preferred the yonger before the elder; ſo in another line, Gen. 48. 14. 18, 19.

the king] The firſt king in the line of our Saviour Chriſt. Davids kingdom laſted long over Judah, but Chriſts ſpiritual kingdom, over the Church, is everlaſting, Dan. 2. 44. Luke 1. 32, 33.

begat Solomon] 2 Sam. 12. 24. Chriſt ſucceding great David, and wiſe Solomon, ſhews that ſome great and noble ſhall be ſaved by him, though not many in compariſon of others, 1 Cor. 1. 26. Moſt think that the legal line of our Saviour is henceforth proſecuted by Matthew, as the natural by Luke, who derives him from Nathan, Luke 3. 31. and that here he is reckoned as Heir to Solomon in the kingdom, whoſe race ſome think failed, at, before, or in the captivity, though ſome think otherwiſe. See on Jer. 22. 28, 30. others think the line to be natural in either, but the one drawn down to Joſeph, the other to Mary.

V. 7. Solomon begat Roboam] 1 Chron. 3. 10.

V. 8. Joram begat Ozias] Not immediately; for three Kings came between, Ahaziah, Joaſh, and Amaziah, 1 Chron. 3. 11, 12. but mediatly, as verſ. 1. Luke 1. 5. & 13. 16. John 8. 33, 39. it is likely thoſe three kings are omitted, becauſe Matthew intended to keep within the compaſſe of fourteen generations here, as well as afterwards: ſome think theſe three kings omitted rather then others, becauſe Gods curſe lay on Joram (for marrying of Ahabs daughter) to the fourth generation, as the bleſſing was on Jehu, for deſtroying Ahabs poſterity, 2 Kings 10. 30.

V. 10. Ezekias begat Manaſſes] 2 Kings 20. 21. 1 Chron. 3. 13.

V. 11. Joſias begat Jeconias] Some read, Joſias begat Jakim, and Jakim begat Jeconias.

and his brethren] Some conceive therefore, that by Jechonias here muſt needs be meant Jehoiakim, (becauſe Jechoniah had no brethren) and that his brethren are here mentioned, becauſe two of them were kings, Jehoahaz and Zedekiah: yet were they all noted for calamity, to ſhew, that it was no ſtrange thing to ſee the royal ſtock ſo low afterwards: yet Jechoniah is ſaid to have a brother called Zedekiah, 1 Chron. 3. 16. which cannot be Zedekiah his uncle, that was king after him, for he is reckoned there verſ. 15. as the ſon of Joſiah.

about the time] Or, who lived in the time; for Joſias was dead before, and ſo could not then beget children.

V. 12. Jechonias begat Salathiel] 1 Chron. 3. 16, 17. Salathiel is called the ſon of Neri, Luke 3. 27. but is ſaid to be the ſon of Jechonias, becauſe he ſucceeded him in authority; and it is hard to give a reaſon why he ſhould be ſaid to be a meaner mans ſon, if he were a kings: others conceive him to be the natural ſon of Jeconias. See 1 Chron. 3. 17. and notes on Jer. 22. 28, 30.

Salathiel begat Zorobabel] He is conceived to be that Zerubbabel that reedified the temple, Ezra 5. 2. he is ſaid to be the ſon of Pedaiah. 1 Chron. 3. 19. either this was another Zerubbabel, or elſe Salathiel died without children, and Pedaiah took his wife, and raiſed up ſeed to his brother according to the law, and then he was the legal ſon of Salathiel, and the natural ſon of Pedaiah.

V. 13. Zorobabel begat Abiud] Here the old Teſtament is ſilent, and neither Abiud, nor any of his poſterity is mentioned, 1 Chron. 3. 19, &c. it ſeems the Evangeliſt had the reſt enſuing, either by tradition, or out of the civil records, See on verſ. 5. or by revelation.

V. 16. Jacob begat Joſeph] It ſeems that Joſeph was the natural ſon of Jacob, and the ſon of Eli by marrying Mary, Luke 3. 23. and this line is carried to Joſeph, becauſe womens genealogies were not reckoned, but included in their husbands: yet Luke reckons Maries, that it might appear, that Chriſt came of Davids ſeed, though ſometimes they married out of their tribes.

of whom] Of which Mary; for Chriſt was not the ſon of Joſeph, verſ. 18.

Jeſus, who is called Chriſt] See on verſ. 1. he was the Meſſias expected.

V. 17. All the generations] Or deſcents marſhalled here by the Evangeliſts in three ranks, before the kingdom, under it, and after it: ſome of leſſe note are omitted to make the number in each equal, 1 Chron. 3. 11, 12.

from Abraham to David] Reckoning themſelves for one.

from David] Accounting him, and Joſias in the number.

from the carrying away] beginning with Joſias, and ending with Joſeph; or beginning with Jechonias, and ending with Chriſt.

V. 18. the birth of] See on verſ. 1.

on this wiſe] Or, came thus to paſſe.

eſpouſed to Joſeph] God would have her to be eſpouſed for the ſafety and honour of Chriſt, in his infancy, and the credit and comfort of his mother. Jerom adverſ. Helvid. giveth three reaſons, 1. That by the genealogie of Joſeph, of whoſe kinred Marie was, Maries pedegree might alſo be ſhewed. 2. Leſt according to Moſes Law, ſhe ſhould have been ſtoned by the people as an adultreſſe. 3. That fleeing into Egypt, ſhe might have the comfort Cuſtodis potius quàm mariti, of a keeper rather then an huſband: the two firſt may ſeem probable.

before they came together]Had knowledge one of another, as verſ. 25. or rather, before they came to dwell together: for he had not yet taken her home, verſe 20.

ſhe was found with childe] It was perceived by Joſeph, verſe 19. that ſhe was with childe. Gr. Having in the womb.

of the holy Ghoſt] This was not known to Joſeph, till afterward verſe 20. the angel informed him, that it was by the extraordinary power and work of the H. Ghoſt, Luke 1.35. So this particle ἐκ, of, is often uſed, John 8. 41, 44, 47. 1 John 3. 8, 9.

V. 19. Joſeph her husband] So called becauſe he was betrothed to her, Gen. 19, 8. 12. & 29. 21. Deut. 22. 24.

being a juſt man] Of holy converſation, as Luke 1. 6. and tender diſpoſition.

and not willing] He was not willing to take her to wife, for fear of diſhonour, nor yet to ſhame her, or deſtroy her, by putting her away publickly.

to put her away privately]To leave her to her ſelf, or friends diſpoſal, without publiſhing any reaſon of ſuch deſertion.

V. 20. to take unto thee Mary thy wife] To take her home to thee as thy wife, who is already betrothed to thee.

that which is conceived in her] or bred, to wit, of her ſubſtance; he ſaith, that, not he, becauſe Chriſt took on him the nature, not the perſon of man.

is of the holy Ghoſt] See on verſe 18. as man he had no father, as God he had no mother, Hebr. 7. 3.

V. 21. ſhe ſhall bring forth a Son] Luke 1. 31.

for he ſhall ſave his people] He is called Jeſus, becauſe he delivereth us from our ſins, which would elſe condemn us. See on verſe 1. thoſe are his people, who being redeemed, beleeve in him, and obey him, John 3. 16. Heb. 5. 9.

V. 22. All this was done] Chriſt was thus miraculouſly conceived.

that it might be fulfilled] It came not by accident, but the counſel of God foretold long ago by the Prophet, Iſaiah 7. 14. The holy Scriptures, though written by men, are the undoubted word of God. 2. Pet. 1. 21.

V. 23. Behold, a virgin] In Iſaiah 7. הָעַלְמָה, abalma, and in the Greek text here, ἡ παρθένος, in either is an article to point out the woman, and to ſet her out plainly, as if you ſhould ſay, that virgin, or a certain virgin.

they ſhall call his name] Or, his name ſhall be called: we read not any where that he was ſo called; but the meaning is, that he ſhould do that which the name imports, well deſerving ſo to be called, as being one by whom God would dwell with us, united to our nature by incarnation, to our perſons by reconciliation. See the like phraſe Iſaiah 9. 6. & 62. 4. Jer. 23. 6. Ezek. 48. 35. So the Scripture many times giveth the name from the event; the meaning is, thus it ſhall be, mortal men ſhall ſee Chriſt, God and man, converſant with men. See 1 Tim. 3. 16. 1 John 1. 1. So after Chryſoſtom Theophylact interpreteth, αὐτὰ τὰ πράγματα δείξουσιν αὐτὸν Θεὸν ὄντα, his works ſhall declare him to be God, converſant with us.

which being interpreted] Some think, this ſhews that Matthew writ not his goſpel in Hebrew, for then he needed not to have interpreted Emmanuel, which is an Hebrew word. The old Teſtament was written in Hebrew, becauſe it was the Jews language, who were then the onely viſible Church: but the new Teſtament in Greek, which was the language then moſt in uſe in all countreyes ſince the decay of the Grecian Monarchy.

V. 24. did as the angel ſaid] Προσέταξεν αὐτῷ, had commanded him. So the interpreter of the Syriac, ſicut mandaverat ei. This ſudden change of his reſolution to put her away, verſe 19. ſetteth off Joſephs great faith, and ready obedience to God: the Spirit of God imprinted in his minde by that dream, ſuch a confidence of the truth, as left him no more fluctuant and doubtful herein: when God ſpeaketh to our hearts, we cheerfully and ſpeedily addreſſe our ſelves to that, which before not onely ſcrupled us, but ſeemed moſt inconvenient, unpleaſing to our ſenſe, and unconſiſtent with our own principles of humane reaſon. So Moſes took up the ſerpent, Exod. 4. 4 So Abraham departed out of his native ſoil, Gen. 12. 4 and roſe up early to go to offer his onely ſon Iſaac, Gen. 22. 4. So when God had ſpoken to Laban, Gen. 31. 24. he could ſpeak no evil to Jacob.

V. 25. And he knew her not] Or, but he, &c. ſo this particle ϗ is uſed Chap. 21. 19. knew her not, See Gen. 4. 1. Luke 1. 34.

till ſhe had brought forth] She was therefore a pure virgin when Chriſt was born, as well as when he was conceived: neither doth it neceſſarily follow that he knew her after; for theſe words ἕως οὗ, till, importeth the excluſion of all former, but not the admiſſion of a later, as Chap. 5. 26. Suidas interpreteth the ravens not returning, Gen. 8. 7. עַד, had. 70 ἕως, (until the floods were dried) by εἰς τὸ παντελὲς οὐκ ἀνέστρεψε, never, or not at all returned. So on Pſalm 110. 1. ἕως ἂν &c. Sit thou on my right hand untill I make, &c. οὐ χρονικὸν δεῖ τὸ ἕως, ἀλλ' ἰδίωμα τῆς γραφῆς, &c. this (till) importeth not any definite ſpace of time, but is a certain propriety of Scripture ſpeaking. See Jerom adverſ. Helvid. and Gr. Nazianzen orat. 36. (a little after the beginning). See Gen. 28. 15. Deut. 34. 6. 1 Sam. 15. 35. 2 Sam. 6. 23. Matth. 28. 20. 1 Tim. 4. 13. Math. 5. 26.

her firſt-born ſon] Neither doth this import that ſhe had any ſon after, but that ſhe had none before: he was πρωτότοκος, and μονογενής, her firſt-born and onely Son: ſo the Scripture uſeth to call him the firſt-born, non tantum poſt quem & alii, ſed ante quem nullus. Jerom adverſ. Helvid. not onely after whom others are born, but before whom there was none.

he called his name Jeſus] Joſeph did as he was commanded by the Angel, verſe 21. and as a legal father. Mary is ſaid alſo to do it, Luke 1. 32. as a natural mother; for mothers ſometimes impoſed names, Geneſis 4. 25. and 29. 32. and 30. 11.

CHAP. II.

Verſe 1. WHen Jeſus was born] Luke 2. 6, 7. was newly born: not long after his birth: as Hebr. 11. 23. Before their leaving Bethlehem: that is, within fourty dayes after the birth of Chriſt. Compare Luke 2. 22. with Levit. 12. 2. 4. their ſhort ſtay at Bethlehem was the cauſe, that little notice was taken of Chriſts birth there in after times: See John 1. 43. 46.

in Bethlehem of Judea] To diſtinguiſh it from that other Bethlehem in the tribe of Zebulun, Joſh. 19. 15. See Mic. 5. 2 here David was born, 1 Sam. 16. 1. בֵּית לֶחֶם יְהוּדָה beth lechem Jebuda, Jud. 17. 7, 8. 70 Βηθλεὲμ Ἰούδα, that Bethlehem which was in the tribe of Judah: Jerom, de loc. Hebr. the name Judea ſignifieth either all the province of the Jews, (ſo diſtinguiſhed from other nations and provinces) of which, becauſe the tribe of Judah was the principal, they received the name of Jews; and their countrey which fell to the lot of all the tribes) Judea: amiſerunt vetus nomen Hebrai, & quoniam princeps examinis eorum Judas erat, Judæi ſunt appellati, & terra quam incoluere, Judea. Lactant. l. 4. c. 10. the Hebrews loſt their old name, and becauſe Judas was the prince of their republick, they were called Jews, and the land in which they dwelt, Judea; or Judea did particularly ſignifie that part in which Jeruſalem was, containing the two tribes Judah and Benjamin as one, (1 Kings 11. 13. & 12. 21.) who cleaved to the family of David: this was called Judea in contradiſtinction to Galilee, as Math. 19. 1. Mark 3. 7. John 4. 4. 54. and to Samaria, (Acts 8. 1.) Decapolis and other parts of the ſame province and land, which God promiſed, and gave to the Iſraelites:

Herod the king] Herod the great, called Aſcalonita, he was an Idumean, and ſon of Antipater, as Theophylact ſaith: but (in the right of a Proſelyte) a Jew. See Iſa. Cauſabon Exercit. 1. N. 5. he is here called the king; there was another Herod, who ſlew John Baptiſt, but he had onely the honour of a Tetrarch, this of a king. Chryſoſt. hom. 6. in Matth. concerning Herods riſing to the kingdom, ſee Joſeph. Antiq. l. 14. c. 26. & 15. 10.

wiſe men] Learned men; it ſeemeth they were Aſtronomers, becauſe God taught them by a ſtar.

from the Eaſt] In reſpect of Jeruſalem, as Deut. 4. 41. Zach. 14. 4. Some think the word magi to be a Perſian word, and that theſe came out of Perſia, Chryſoſt. hom. 6. Others think they came out of Arabia, anciently famous for wiſe men, 1 Kings 4. 30. and bare eaſtward from Jeruſalem, Gen. 10. 30. & 25. 6. Judg. 6. 3. Job 1. 3. Iſaiah 12. 14. Jer. 49. 28. their gifts alſo (verſe 11.) ſhew it, which were plentiful in Arabia, to wit, Myrrhe, and Frankincenſe, and Gold, 2 Chron. 19. 14. Pſalm 72. 15. See the learned Iſal Cauſabon, exercit. 2. N. 19. Their coming ſo far to finde Chriſt condemneth the obſtinacy of the Jews, who would not receive him who came to them.

to Jeruſalem] where it was moſt likely the king of the Jews ſhould be born, or at leaſt to be heard of, becauſe it was their chief city.

V. 2. he that is born] Or, the born king, &c.

king of the Jews] Chriſt a poor childe, laid in a crib, and nothing ſet by of his own people, notwithſtanding receiveth an honourable teſtimony of his divine, and kingly power from ſtrangers, to whom God reveiled him.

his ſtar] As God made known the birth of Chriſt to the Jews by an Angel, Luke 2. 9, 10. ſo to the Gentiles by a new created ſtar: they knew by it, that Chriſt was borne, either becauſe it ſtood over, or went toward Judea; or by ſome old tradition, or new revelation.

in the eaſt] In our own countrey: ſee on verſe 1.

V. 3. he was troubled] For fear of the loſſe of his kingdom; becauſe he was a ſtranger, and might think the Jews would he glad to have a king of their own, whom they would readily aſſiſt: ipſos terret poteſtas ſua, quos facit eſſe terribiles, Cyprian l. 2. ep. 2. their own power terrifieth themſelves, which maketh them terrible to others.

and all Jeruſalem] As fearing trouble from Herod, or the Romans: as John 11. 48. or by change of government.

V. 4. the chief prieſts] The heads of the four and twenty prieſtly families, or courſes, 1 Chron. 24. 5, 6, 10. Luke 1. 5. or ſuch as by corruption had moſt authority among the prieſts. See 2 Chron. 36. 14.

Scribes] Men of ſpecial ſkill in expounding the law, 2. Sam. 8. 17. Ezra 7. 6. Theſe were moſt likely to ſatisfie Herods queſtion. See on Luke 20. 1.

where Chriſt ſhould be born] He would not acknowledge that Chriſt was born, leſt by ſome means he ſhould be conveyed away from his fury, who would gladly deſtroy him.

V. 5. They ſaid unto him in Bethlehem, &c.] See on verſe 1. they read the propheſies, and thereby could direct others to Chriſt, but not themſelves, they could (like windows of the Church) let in light to others, but not ſee their ſelves.

V. 6. And thou Bethlehem] Micah 5. 2. John 7. 42. The Evangeliſt ſets down the words, in likelyhood as the Scribes ſpake them, which was ſufficient to anſwer Herods queſtion, and did not differ from the ſcope of the prophet.

not the leaſt] Though thou art a ſmall town, yet ſhalt thou be famous, and honoured, by the birth of the Meſſias in thee.

a governour that ſhall rule] Or feed, for kings are fitly called Feeders, or Shepherds of the people: and the Meſſias hath both theſe titles, Iſaiah 40. 11. Ezek. 33. 23, 24.

V. 7. when he had privately called] He would not have it noiſed abroad, leſt his purpoſe of killing Chriſt ſhould have been prevented: but there can be no wiſdom againſt God; therefore vain are all humane policies againſt his determinate counſel. See Pſal. 2. 1, &c. Acts 4. 25, 26, &c.

enquired of them diligently] And learned exactly the time, as appears verſe 16. poſſibly intending now the murder of the infants, in caſe he could not finde out Chriſt. Compare this with verſe 16.

appeared] Firſt of all.

V. 8. for the young childe] He doth not ſay for the king of the Jews, as they ſtiled him verſe 2. he would not ſo much as in word acknowledge him to be ſo.

bring me word again] He doth not ſay, Tell it publickly, leſt al the people ſhould flock to him, and ſo diſappoint his purpoſe of deſtroying him: it was a great providence of God, that Herod had no ſuſpition of the wiſe men, and that he ſent no ſpie along with them, which had he done, he might probably have found out Chriſt.

and worſhip him] See Herods hypocriſie, pretending to worſhip Chriſt, but intending to kill. Rarely is there any eminent wickedneſſe, without ſome pretence of religion.

V. 9. which they ſaw in the eaſt] It did not come before them to Jeruſalem, neither appeared to them there; for then they would poſſibly have ſhewed it to Herod, and the Jews, and not have ſaid onely, We have ſeen his ſtar in the eaſt, verſe 2.

and ſtood over where, &c.] It left them not till it brought them to Chriſt: it appeared not for a time, that they might by enquiry acquaint the Jews at Jeruſalem with the birth of Chriſt, which in likelyhood they would not have done, if the ſtar had led them firſt to Bethlehem. All this might be a means to keep them from being offended at the low condition wherein they found Chriſt.

V. 10. when they ſaw the ſtar] this was a great confirmation, that the ſtar did lead them to the place deſigned in the Scripture: revelations are not to be credited, that agree not with Scripture.

they rejoyced with exceeding, &c.] Firſt becauſe they were confirmed in the truth of the birth of the childe. Secondly, becauſe they were directed from heaven to the place, that they might not miſtake the perſon.

V. 11 into the houſe] The place where Chriſt was born, Luke 2. 7. or it may be, the gueſts being gone, ſhe was now received into the houſe it ſelf.

fell down] A kinde of humble and lowly reverence, Exodus 34. 4. opened their treaſures] Their veſſels wherein they brought their treaſures.

they preſented gifts] Or offered gifts; for with ſuch the men of the eaſtern parts, uſed to preſent themſelves before kings, Gen. 43. 11, 25, 26. theſe were the choiceſt things the countrey could afford, 1 Kings 10. 10. Pſal. 45. 12. & 72. 10, 15.

gold, frankincenſe and myrrhe] Gold was plentifull in Arabia; frankincenſe ſo peculiar to the Sabeans, a people of Arabia; myrrhe ſaid to be found in Arabia onely, Pſal. 72. 15. 2 Chron. 9. 14. God ſo provided to furniſh and ſupply Joſeph, for his flight with Mary and Jeſus into Egypt.

V. 12. being warned of God in a dream] Not by ſuch viſions as needed interpretation, as Pharaohs Officers were, Gen. 40. and Pharaoh Gen. 41. but they were plainly forbidden to return to Herod: thus God kept them from betraying Chriſt, as he did Abimelech from adultery, Gen. 20. 3.

V. 13. when they were departed] Not preſently (ſome think) but ſome time after, for (ſay they) Joſeph and Mary were at Jeruſalem after this, before they went into Egypt: but ſeeing we read not of any certainty, how many dayes after the birth of Chriſt, the wiſe men came to Bethlehem, we leave it to conjecture: it being uncertain, whether that Luke 2. 39. conclude their immediate going to Nazareth again, or whether they firſt went back to Bethlehem, and afterward home to Nazareth, it being but two dayes journey to Jeruſalem.

appeareth to Joſeph] Whether at Jeruſalem, or at Bethlehem, or at Nazareth is not certain; for they came from Nazareth (where they dwelt before) to Bethlehem to be taxed, Luke 2. 4. and when the dayes of Maries purification were accompliſhed, they preſented him at Jeruſalem to the Lord, and offered according to the Law, Luke 2. 24. and when they had performed all theſe things, they returned into Galilee, to their own city Nazareth, this was their firſt dwelling at Nazareth: the ſecond is mentioned here verſe 23. after the death of Herod, where they dwelt long, until Chriſt was grown up.

flee] Becauſe the time of his death was not yet come; and becauſe Chriſt muſt live to preach, and do many miracles. This flight was part of Chriſts humiliation.

into Egypt] Far out of Herods reach. See 1 Kings 11. 40.

till I bring thee word] This ſhews that God would provide for them there, and bring them back again.

V. 14. by night] Leſt his flight ſhould be perceived, and by ſome means prevented.

V. 15. that it might be fulfilled] That performed, which was in the former ſhadowed: the deliverance of Iſrael out of Egypt, being a type of Gods bringing Chriſt out of the ſame place.

out of Egypt have I called] Hoſea 11. 1. In the type he calleth Iſrael his firſt-born ſon, Exodus 4. 12. Jer. 31. 20. here he calleth Chriſt his ſon: his ſon by nature, and ſo his only begotten ſon, See Luke 1. 35. John 1. 14. & 3. 16.

V. 16. Then Herod] Not preſently after the departure of the wiſe men; but after Joſephs going into Egypt with the childe.

that he was mocked] As he apprehended it; for he knew not, that God had ſent them out another way, verſe 12.

ſent forth] Souldiers to kill the children: among whom, ſome ſay, he ſlew his own: whereof when Auguſtus Cæſar heard, he is reported to have ſaid, It is better to be Herods Hog, then his Son, Macrob. ſat. l. 2. c. 4.

all the children] The male children; for the article is maſculine in the Greek; and there was no need to kill the females: it being a male which he ſought for. So it was in Egypt, Exod. 1. 16.

in all the coaſts thereof] Leſt Chriſt ſhould be out of the town.

from two yeers old] Leſt Chriſt ſhould have been born before the ſtar appeared and ſo eſcape. It was juſt with God to take away their children, who ſo lightly regarded his Son, manifeſted to them ſo ſtrangely, by Angels, Shepherds, Wiſe men, and the Star.

and under, according to the time] Some think Herod committed not this murder, till near two years after the wiſemens coming to him; and that he went firſt to Rome, to clear himſelf of things objected to him by his ſons: others, that he would be ſure to take time enough before, and after, that Chriſt might not eſcape him: others, that thoſe words, according to the time, &c. muſt not be referred to, from two yeers old, but onely to the laſt words, and under: that is, Herod killed onely ſuch as were born, before the wiſe men came to Bethlehem, and not thoſe that were born after: others think, that the ſtar appeared at Chriſts conception, and God directed the wiſe men, to come after his birth, for ſuch tokens uſe to go before the things they portend. And Herod might put off the buſineſſe, till he was further provoked; for many croſſes fell on him in his laſt yeer, as Joſephus reports.

V. 17. Then was fulfilled] See on verſe 15.

by Jeremiah the prophet] Jer. 31. 15.

V. 18. In Rama] Between which and Bethlehem, was Rachels ſepulchre, Gen. 35. 16, 19, 20. in the confines of Judah and Benjamin, 1 Sam. 10. 1. it was a place in the tribe of Benjamin, neer Bethlehem. Jerom on Jer. 31. 15. (whence this place is tranſcribed) tranſlateth, vox in excelſo audita eſt: there were ſundry Rama's, in mount Ephraim, 1 Sam. 25. 1. 2 Sam. 28. 3. Ramath Lehi Judg. 15. Ramath Miſpe Joſh. 13. 26.

a voice heard] The cry was ſo loud, as if it had been heard from Rachels ſepulchre to Ramah.

Rachel weeping] The Benjamitiſh women who came of Rahel, did weep ſo bitterly for their children led into captivity, as if ſhe her ſelf had bemoned them out of her grave: and ſo did the women of Bethlehem now mourn for their ſlain infants.

becauſe they are not] Becauſe they of whom the Prophet ſpake, were carried into captivity, and theſe were killed: See the like phraſe Gen. 42. 13. 36. they were not in being, or dead.

V. 19. appeared in a dream] So God performed his promiſe, verſe 13.

V. 20. go into the land of Iſrael] Leſt Chriſt ſhould be eſteemed a ſtranger in Iſrael, if he had been bred in Egypt and that they might enjoy the publike ſervice of God, their countrey and friends.

they are dead] The plural number for the ſingular: Herod is dead. So Exod. 4. 19. others conceive that ſome of Herods inſtruments, or of the Scribes, who hated Chriſt, died alſo with Herod.

which ſought the life.] Not to preſerve it, as Prov. 29. 10. but to deſtroy it, 1 Kings 19. 10. Pſal. 40. 14.

V. 22. that Archelaus] One of the cruelleſt of Herods iſſue.

he was afraid to go] It ſeems he had ſome thoughts of going thither, peradventure becauſe Chriſt was born there, or that he might be neerer the Temple.

being warned of God in a dream] This is the fourth time that Joſeph was thus warned, Chap. 1. 20. Chap. 2. 13, 19. and here. It is a fit time for God to acquaint man with his will, when reſt takes him off from all external diſtractions, and worldly cares: hereby God alſo intimates, that he taketh care for his, when they can take none for themſelves.

V. 23. ſpoken by the prophets] He doth not ſay by the prophet, as verſe 15. becauſe it is not found in any one prophet, but in divers; and that not in the words, but in the ſenſe.

he ſhall be called] See on Chap. 1. 23.

a Nazarene] Ναζωραῖος, The word Nazareth was not known in the Old Teſtament, it muſt therefore be an alluſion to נֵצֶר, netzer, a branch, Iſaiah 11. 1. a name given to Chriſt, from thence it is likely that Nazareth had that name; for ſo it is written in the Syriac נצרת, notſroth, the application of it to the Nazarites agreeth not with the letters, (this is written נזיר nezeir, the other נצר netſer, Judg. 13. 5, &c.) though ſome expound it ſo, and apply it to Chriſt, as typified in Samſon, who was a Nazarite from his birth. CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. [IN thoſe dayes] The Evangeliſt omits the courſe of our Saviours life in private, and begins at his preparation for his publike miniſtery; intending not to ſatisfie mens curioſity, but to write thoſe things, which may further our ſalvation. The dayes here mentioned, are not meant of Chriſts firſt ſetling in Nazareth, but while he abode there; for this was above twenty years after his coming thither: about the fifteenth yeer of Tiberius Ceſar, when Chriſt began to be about thirty yeers old. See Luke 3. 1. 23.

came] Gr. cometh, He went not far, but ſhewed himſelf then, Luke 1. 80.

John the Baptiſt] Mark 1. 4. Luke 3. 2. So called, becauſe he was the firſt that was ſent of God to baptize, John 1. 33. John, who through his ſingular holineſſe, and rare auſtereneſs of life, cauſed all men to caſt their eyes upon him, now prepareth the way for Chriſt, preſently to follow him; delivering the ſum of the goſpel, which in ſhort ſpace after ſhould be more fully delivered.

preaching] Having received a ſpecial command ſo to do, Luke 3. 2.

in the wilderneſſe of Judea] A deſert place, more fit for paſture, then for corn: ſee Luke 15. 4. and full of mountains, Luke 1. 39. yet inhabited, though not ſo full of towns and houſes, as other parts of Judea, 1 Kings 2. 34. Joſh. 15. 61. 1 Sam. 25. 1, 2. it ſeemeth not to have been far from his fathers houſe, Luke 1. 39, 40. and the place where he lived, till he ſhewed himſelf to Iſrael, Luke 1. 80.

V. 2. Repent ye] So our Saviour begins his preaching, Chap. 4. 17. confirming Johns doctrine. John taught other things alſo, Luke 3. but this he began withall, and this was the main ſcope of his doctrine. The word in the original ſignifies, the change of our mindes from falſe wayes to the right, and of our hearts, from evil to good: Non ex delicti confeſſione, ſed ex animi demutatione compoſitum eſt. Tertul. adverſ. Marc. l. 2. c. 24. it is compounded not of confeſſion of ſin, but change of the minde. So Greg. ho. 24. in Evan. ſaith, to repent, is perpetrata mala plangere, & plangenda non perpetrare, to bewail evils committed, and not to commit things to be bewailed; for he, that ſo deploreth ſome ſins, as that he commits others, either counterfetteth, or is ignorant of repentance. He ſhews them here, what they ſhould do, not what they could do of themſelves: repentance is, as it were, ſecunda poſt naufragium tabula, as Jerom ſpeaketh, l. 2. ep. 20. Demetr. a ſecond plank after ſhipwrack. Primus fœlicitatis gradus eſt, non delinquere: ſecundus delicta cognoſcere, Cyprian. l. 1. ep. 3. the firſt degree of happineſſe, is not to ſin: the ſecond to know our ſins, and repent of them. There runneth entire and unſtained innocence which may ſave; here ſucceedeth the medicine to heal.

the kingdom of heaven] The kingdom of the Meſſias, whoſe government ſhall be heavenly, and lead to heaven, Dan. 2. 24.

V. 3. For this is he] The words of the Evangeliſt, giving a reaſon, why John preached thus.

the voice of one crying] Iſaiah 40. 3. Mark 1. 3. He ſpake thus loud and fervently concerning Chriſt becauſe it was his office.

prepare ye the way of the Lord] As men make the wayes plain and ſmooth taking all rubs away, when an Harbinger gives them warning of the kings coming: ſo do ye ſpiritually prepare your hearts to entertain Chriſt, who is now at hand.

V. 4. his raiment of camels hair] A courſe rough garment made of that hair, ſuch as the prophets uſed to wear, Zach. 13. 4. As he came in the ſpirit of Elias, ſo in habit he reſembled him, 2 Kings 1. 8.

a leathern girdle] Herein alſo he was like Elias, 2 Kings 1. 8. not as was uſual with them of the better ſort in thoſe parts, of finer ſtuff, which they uſed alſo as purſes to carry their money in, ſee on Chap. 10. 9.

about his loins] Which Parts uſed to be girt, Luke 12. 35. Epheſ. 6. 14. 1 Pet. 3. 13.

meat was locuſts] the living creatures called locuſts, were not unclean by the law, but allowed Iſrael for food. Levit. 11. 22. and were eaten of many people in thoſe parts: underſtand it of a fruit called locuſts; growing on the Carob tree. See on Luke 15. 16. and Joh. Druſ. præterit. l. Math. 3. 4.

wilde honey.] Either natural honey, ſuch as is found ſometimes on the leaves of ſome tree: or ſuch as bees make ordinarily in woods and clifts of rocks, of which Deut. 32. 13 Pſalm 81. 16. 1 Sam. 14. 26. Theophylact.

V. 5. Then went out unto him] The ſcarcity and want of prophets, his extraordinary manner of preaching, and auſterity of life, drew multitudes unto him.

Jeruſalem] The people of Jeruſalem.

round about Jordan] On both ſides of the river.

V. 6. were baptized] Waſhed by dipping in Jordan, as Mark 7. 4. Hebr. 9. 10. So the Jews uſed formerly to do with their proſelytes: but this was by ſpeciall commiſſion, John 1. 33.

confeſſing their ſins] In words profeſſing their deteſtation of them, and their repentance for them: or by that right acknowledging they were ſinners, and that their ſouls needed cleanſing.

V. 7. Phariſees] A ſect that divided themſelves from others, as more righteous then they, as the name imports; or it may ſignifie expounders of the Law, though they gave many falſe gloſſes. See Chap. 5. 20, 21, and 23. 16, 17. See on Luke 14. 1.

and Sadducees] Another ſect, ſo named from Sadoc their firſt founder, ſome ſay: or as others, becauſe they alſo profeſſe themſelves righteous, though indeed they were mere Libertines, and held opinion deſtructive to all piety. Acts 23. 8. See on Luke 20. 27.

come to his baptiſm] Which ſome of them, it ſeems, embraced, though their generality refuſed it, Luke 7. 30.

generation of vipers] Or, O viperous brood] Chap. 12. 34 and 23. 23. a pernicious creature, Acts 28. 3, 4. He meaneth not that they were corrupted from their holy parents, but degenerated, or as Gregor. hom. 20. in Evang. ſaith, Male ſoboles, malorum parentum actionem imitantes, wicked ofſpring imitating the action of wicked parents.

who hath warned you] It may ſeem ſtrange that you could by any man be induced to deem your ſelves in danger of wrath and deſtruction, conceiving your ſelves to be ſo holy and perfect, as ye outwardly pretend to be: and it may be well doubted, whether this your profeſſion of repentance be indeed ſound and ſincere; you Phariſees thinking you are in no danger of hell, Luke 18. 9. 11. and you Sadduces beleeving that there is no hell Acts 23. 8.

to flee from the wrath to come] By repentance, without which ye cannot prevent it, Luke 13. 5. 7. the wrath to come importeth Gods judgement, either in this life, or that which is to come, 1 Theſſ. 1. 10.

V. 8. fruits] A Metaphor from trees, verſe 10. they muſt not onely have leaves of Legal ceremonies, but alſo fruits of good life. So men are called trees of righteouſneſſe, Iſaiah 61. 3. and their works fruits of righteouſneſſe. Phil. 1. 11.

meet for repentance] Or anſwerable to amendment of life: actions teſtifying repentance and agreable thereunto, Acts 26. 10. let the ſincerity of your repentance appear by the integrity of your lives, Dan. 4. 27. Saluian ſaith well de gub. O. good works are Chriſtianæ fidei quaſi teſtes, as witneſſes of Chriſtian faith.

V. 9. think not to ſay] Think it not enough to ſay, or ſay not: as, what he thinks he hath, or ſeems to have, Luke 8. 18. for that which he hath, Matth. 25. 29.

Abraham to our father] John 8. 39. Do not think your ſelves ſafe and well, as thoſe that need no repentance, nor cauſe to fear judgement, becauſe ye are of the holy Abrahams poſterity, Rom. 11. 16. or do not think that God either will not, or cannot cut you off, becauſe he hath promiſed to continue a ſeed to Abraham for ever, Jer. 31 35, 36. He forbiddeth them not to profeſſe themſelves children of holy Abraham; but this he ſaith, leſt vainly truſting in that prerogative (ſeeing they degenerated from the faith and ſanctity of Abraham) they ſhould continue in their ſins, and neglect the onely means of ſalvation, now offered them in Chriſt of theſe ſtones] An emphaticall expreſſion, like that Luke 19. 40. 50. Numb. 14. 12. It may be an alluſion to Iſaiah 51. 1, 2. Some interpret it as relating to the Gentiles, whom God would make children of Abraham, that is, true believers, and heirs of the bleſſing; as he did Zacheus, Luke 19. 9. as if he ſaid, God is able to gather him a church of thoſe who ſeem moſt unlikely to be converted to the faith of Abraham. See Cyprian L. 2. ep. 3. Gregor. hom. 20. Theophylact, &c.

to raiſe up] As to the deceaſed, ſeed or iſſue, Gen. 38. 8. Chap. 22. 24.

children to Abraham] Spiritual ones, Rom. 9. 8. by taking away their ſtony hearts, and giving them hearts of fleſh, Ezek. 11. 19. children of promiſe, Gal. 3. 29.

V. 10. Now alſo is the axe laid] The Romans are coming quickly to take your city: or the ax of Gods judgement, as Theophylact interpreteth, to root you out of the earth, and caſt you into hell, if ye repent not ſpeedily. See Acts 17. 30, 31.

unto the root of the trees] The Babylonians lopt you before, but now you ſhall be utterly ſcattered, and as it were ſtockt up branch and root.

therefore every tree] Chap. 7. 19.

which bringeth not forth good fruit] See Iſaiah 5. 5, 6. It ſeemeth an alluſion to Deut. 20. 20.

V. 11. indeed] Mark 1. 8. Luke 3. 16. John 1. 26.

baptiſe you with water] I can only give you the outward element, and the ſeal: thus John depreſſeth himſelf, and extolleth Chriſt, becauſe the people thought too highly of John, Luke 3. 15, 16.

unto repentance] That thereby you may make profeſſion of your repentance, Mark 1. 4. which by that rite, or ſeal of Gods covenant, is on mans part obſigned or ſealed.

he that cometh after me] Chriſt, who beginneth ſhortly after to execute his miniſtery, as I have begun mine.

is mightier then I] He is therefore able to give you the thing ſignified in baptiſm, which neither men nor angels can do.

whoſe ſhoes I am not worthy to bear] As he is ſtronger then I, ſo is he ſo much more excellent then I, that am not worthy to do the office of the meaneſt of his ſervants. See 1 Sam. 25. 41.

with the holy Ghoſt and with fire] With the holy Ghoſt, purging your ſouls, as fire doth metals, Iſaiah 1. 25. and 4. 4. he ſheweth here the effect of baptiſm in the regenerate, mortification and cleanſing away ſin; wherein appeareth the difference between the law, and the new covenant of grace in Chriſt; the law indeed peccatum revelat, non relevat, revealeth, but not relieveth, or cureth ſin: but the ſeals of the new covenant, confirm unto us remiſſion of ſin by Chriſt, being made effectual by the inward working of his holy Spirit; without which, none can be ſaved by baptiſm. As in the deluge, all periſhed ſave onely thoſe who were in the ark; ſo in this water of baptiſme, they periſh, who are not in the true Church by faith in Chriſt. Auguſt. To. 7. l. 4. c. 1. de bapt. contr. Donat. excellently expreſſeth this, by comparing baptiſm to the waters of Paradiſe; the waters of Paradiſe when thay are out thereof, in Meſopotamia, &c. theres no happineſſe there: ſo ſaith he, the baptiſm of the Church may be out of the Church, munus autem beatæ vitæ non niſi intra eccleſiam reperitur, but the gift of a bleſſed life is not found any where, but within the Church.

V. 12. Whoſe fan is in his hand] Who is now ready to make a ſeparation between the good and the bad: the fan ſignifieth cleanſing at hand, that is, diviſion, ſeparating the fruitful from the barren, as Nicetas com. in Gr. Naz. orat. 11. interpreteth, and that partly by general or ſpecial judgements, Mal. 3. 18. and 4. 1, 2. & Chap. 13. 30. 49. or by the preaching of the goſpel. See on Luke 3. 17.

gather his wheat into the garner] That is, his own people into his Church here, and bring them into heaven, the place of their eternal abode hereafter, as men lay up their corn in granaries.

burn up the chaff] That is, thoſe who have onely a ſhew of religion, without fruit of good works, and reſt ſecure, only in the outward communion of the Church: thoſe (which as Theophylact ſaith) κοῦφοί εἰσι καὶ τοῖς πνεύμασι τῆς πονηρίας κινούμενοι, who are light, and driven by the ſpirit of maliciouſneſſe: according to which, Cyprian de ſimplic. prelat. tract. 3. ſaith, inanes paleæ tempeſtate jactantur, it is the light chaff which is driven away with the winde. They went out from us, they were not of us, ſaith the Apoſtle, 1 John 2. 19. All things againſt the truth, de ipſa veritate corrupta ſunt, Tertul. de præſcript. c. 47. are corrupted from, and out of the truth, the ſpirits of errour working that emulation. See on Luke 3. 17. by burning up the chaff, he meaneth deſtruction of the wicked here, and caſting them into hell fire hereafter.

fire unquenchable] Iſaiah 66. 24. Chap. 13. 30. 42. Mark 9. 45.

V. 13. Then cometh Jeſus] Mark 1. 9. Luke 3. 21. to wit, when John by preaching and baptizing had prepared the people to receive him.

from Galilee to Jordan] He might have ſent for John to come into Galilee to baptize him; but he comes to him, that he might more publikely enter into his miniſtery.

unto John] He ſhews his humility in coming to him.

to be baptized of him] He needed not baptiſm, having no ſin in him; but as he took on him the ſimilitude of ſinfull fleſh, ſo would he take alſo the Sacrament of purgation, and remiſſion of ſins. As being circumciſed, he declared that he was the Saviour of them that beleeved in the Old Teſtament; ſo by being baptized, that he is the Saviour of us in the New. Hereby alſo he confirmed Johns baptiſm, and ſanctified ours.

V. 14. John forbade him] Out of modeſty; for though they lived not together before, leſt they ſhould have been thought to conſpire together, yet now doubtleſſe he knew him by revelation. John 1. 33. See Theophylact in loc.

I have need to be baptized of thee] Inwardly and ſpiritually, for thou onely canſt do it; or it is fitter that thou ſhouldeſt baptize me, being ſo far the more worthy perſon.

V. 15. Suffer it to be ſo now] Though I am greater then thou, yet ſuffer me now to be baptized of thee. For three reaſons Chriſt came to be baptized of John. 1. That as he became man, ſo he might fulfill all the righteouſneſſe of the Law, whereof the firſt Adam (as Euthymius noteth) fulfilled no part. 2. That by his baptiſm, he might approve of Johns Baptiſm. 3. That he might ſanctifie the flood Jordan, and all other waters, to the myſticall waſhing away of ſin: therefore ſaith he, Suffer it to be ſo now, that I, who have now taken on me the form of a ſervant, expleam & humilitatem ejus, ſaith Jerom, may alſo fulfill the humility of a ſervant: thus ἐβαπτίσθη μὲν ὡς ἄνθρωπος, ἀλλ' ἁμαρτίας ἔλυσεν ὡς Θεός, Nazianzen. orat. 35. he was baptized as man, but remitted ſins, as God.

to fulfill all righteouſneſſe] As of the law, ſo of the goſpel: it becomes me to ſubmit to Gods ordinance, and thee to do thy office: it is juſt we ſhould ſo do.

he ſuffered him] Being willing to obey Chriſt, and convinced by the reaſon given him; he was content to do that, which otherwiſe he thought in his own reaſon inconvenient.

V. 16. went up ſtraightway, &c.] Or, aſſoon as he came out, &c. an uſual introduction to ſolemn viſions: See Ezek. 1. 1. John 1. 51. Acts 7. 56. this was done now that Chriſt and John might ſee the dove deſcend, and hear the voice coming from thence.

unto him] To John, John 1. 32.

the ſpirit of God deſcending] To aſſure John that this was the true Meſſias, John 1. 33. and to make Chriſt known to be ſo to others, who believe the Goſpel: this was becauſe he was preſently to enter into his publike miniſtery.

like a dove] To ſhew the innocency and meekneſſe of our Saviour.

upon him] Upon Chriſt. See Iſaiah 11. 2. leſt any ſhould have thought, vocem patris ad Johannem factam, non ad Dominum, Jerom; that the fathers voice came to John, and not to the Lord Jeſus.

V. 17. a voice from heaven] The voice of God the Father, as appears by the words following, conſecrating and authorizing Chriſt to be our Mediatour, and to go about the work of our redemption: here is alſo a demonſtration of the holy Trinity; the Father ſpeaks from heaven, the Son comes out of the water, and the Holy Ghoſt appears in the likeneſſe of a dove.

this is] He ſpeaks of Chriſt, but to the people; he on whom the dove ſits, is my beloved Son] My naturall ſon, by eternal, and incomprehenſible generation, and therefore deareſt to me.

in whom I am well pleaſed] My judgement is ſatisfied, and my love ſetled upon him, and in him upon all beleevers, who were before the children of wrath, Epheſ. 2. 3.

CHAP. IIII.

Verſe 1. THen was] Preſently after he was baptized, Mark 1. 12. and ſolemnly proclaimed the Son of God, by whom mankinde was to be reconciled to God.

Jeſus led up] Mark 1. 12. Luke 4. 1. relating to the wilderneſſe, as higher then the confines of Jordan, where he baptized: or it may ſignifie, led aſide, or withdrawn, as Luke 4. 1.

of the ſpirit] Or, by the ſpirit: either by inſpiration, as Rom. 8. 14. which was ſo prevalent, that it is called driving, Mark 1. 12. or guided by that Dove, that reſted on him, Chap. 3. 16. as the Iſraelites were led by the cloud and pillar of fire, Pſalm 78. 14. and the wiſe men by the ſtar, Chap. 2. 9. or lifted up from the earth (as the word ἀνήχθη, here uſed, may ſignifie, according to Budeus) and his body carried into the wilderneſſe by the power of Gods Spirit, as 1 Kings 18. 12. 2 Kings 2. 16. Ezek. 3. 12, 14, 15. and 11. 1.

into the wilderneſſe] Not a place little inhabited (like that wherein John Baptiſt lived, Chap. 3. 1. but a place not inhabited by men, but by wilde beaſts, Mark 1. 13 The devil had the more advantage to tempt our Saviour, in a place where no man could hinder him, nor aſſiſt Chriſt.

to be tempted of the devil] Not to be tryed by God with afflictions, as Abraham was, Gen. 22. 1, 2. but to be ſolicited by Satan to evil, as 1 Chron. 21. 1. that he might overcome him, who by temptations overcame our firſt parents.

V. 2. faſted fourty dayes] As Moſes and Elias had done before, Exod. 34. 28. 1 Kings 19. 8. the firſt before the Law. the ſecond under the Law; ſo now here in the beginning of the Goſpel.

and fourty nights] He did not eat at night, as the Jews did, or at ſome other times, when they faſted or abſtained from pleaſant bread many dayes, as Dan. 10. 3. but faſted day and night, during this mentioned time.

afterward] It ſeemeth he felt no hunger till the time expired, but was kept by the power of the Deity; as the three Jews from feeling the heat of the fire, Dan. 3. 27.

an hungred] The devil takes him at the weakeſt, and his firſt occaſion of temptation from hence verſe 3. which had been to no purpoſe before Chriſt was hungry.

V. 3. the tempter] The devil, whoſe conſtant practiſe it is, to endeavor to draw men to ſin, 1 Theſſ. 3. 5. as Minucius Fel. Octav. ſaith, The impure ſpirits, to the comfort of their own calamity, non deſinunt perditi jam perdere, being caſtawayes, they ceaſe not now to caſt away others.

if thou be the Son of God] The natural Son of God, as was affirmed from heaven Chap. 3. 17. and taught by John Baptiſt, John 1. 34. or a ſon of God, for the article is not in Greek, and the temptations, anſwers and Scriptures alledged, are ſuch as may become us in the like temptations. See on Luke 4. 3.

command] Shew thy ſelf to be God, by comanding this to be done, Luke 4. 3. Command this ſtone, that it be made bread, as Gen. 1. 3. or ſay, that is, ſpeak to God to turn theſe ſtones into bread.

theſe ſtones] Luke 4. 3. It is this ſtone, as if Satan had appeared like a man, and pointed to ſome ſtone lying there before them.

bread] Not fleſh, or ſome dainty thing, Numb. 11. 4. Pſalm 78. 18, 20. bread alone would ſatisfie hunger, though by bread the Hebrews expreſſed all food, and neceſſaries to ſuſtain this life. Chap. 6. 11. See on Luke 11. 3.

V. 4. it is written] Our Saviour doth not ſay, I am God, and ſo drive way Satan by his divine power: but anſwereth him by Scripture, that he might overcome Satan, as man, and teach us how to do it; to wit, by the ſword of the Spirit, Epheſ. 6. 17. Satan was here deceived, he came to overthrow, and was overthrown, ἠγνόει γὰρ ὅτι προσπταίσεται θεότητι προσδραμὼν ἀνθρωπότητι, he knew not, that when he encountred man, he ſhould light upon the Deity, Nazianzen Orat. 18.

man ſhall not live] Deut. 8. 3.

by bread alone] Bread doth not nouriſh by it own power, but by Gods appointment: as if he ſaid, though here be no bread to nouriſh me, God can put the ſame vertue into other things, or nouriſh me without any food, and on him will I wait.

V. 5. Then the devil taketh him up] Soon after the former tentation, he carrieth him up, as Gods Spirit did Philip, Acts 8. 39. elſe how could he ſet him on a pinacle of the Temple? No wonder if Chriſt ſuffered Satan to carry him, who ſuffered his inſtruments to crucifie him.

into the holy city] Ieruſalem, Chap. 27. 53. Dan 9. 24. So called notwithſtanding the wickedneſſe of it, becauſe of Gods ſolemn worſhip there; or in reſpect of thoſe good men left there, who were the better, though not the greater part of Ieruſalem.

on a pinacle] An out wing on the top of the Temple: the devil might have ſet him on ſome rock in the wildernes: but he thought Ieſus would be more willing to ſhew himſelf at Ieruſalem, and from the Temple (as Chriſts kinred did, Iohn 7. 3. 4.) and that if he fell thence, all the Iews would think him an Impoſtor, if he died of that fall.

V. 6. If thou be the Son of God] As Chap. 3. 17.

caſt thy ſelf down] Satan doth not offer to caſt him down, for that God would not ſuffer him, or becauſe he ſought to bring Chriſt to ſin, rather then unto death (though he deſired both) whereas if Satan had caſt him down, Chriſt had not ſinned. Though God permitted the ſacred body of Chriſt to Satan, yet was his commiſſion limited, as Job 2. 6. therefore Satan ſaid, Caſt thy ſelf down; he may tempt, and perſwade to evil, he cannot compell. The devil (ſaith Ireneus l. 5. c. 3.) being an apoſtate Angel, hoc tantum poteſt, quod egit in principio, ſeducere, &c. can do that onely which he did in the beginning, ſeduce and draw away the minde of man to tranſgreſſe the commandements of God, &c.

For it is written] Pſal. 91. 11. The Devil now ſeeks to foil Chriſt with his own weapons, and cites Scripture, as he had done before verſe 4. mendacium abſcondens per Scripturam, quod faciunt omnes hæretici, ſaith Ireneus before cited, vailing his lie by holy Scripture, as all Hereticks uſe to do. There is no charge, or temptation of Satan more pernicious and dangerous, then that which is coloured with miſſeapplied Scripture, and ſhew of ſanctity: apparent falſhood and impiety we more eaſily avoid: but beware the devil and his miniſters, when they are transformed into angels of light. Here appeareth the venom of the old dragon, when he pretendeth the ſacred authority of Gods H. word, to lead men to ſin, and diſobedience to God.

he ſhall give his angels charge] As if he ſaid, thou dependeſt on God (verſe 4) what needeſt thou fear hurt by falling, Seeing the Scripture teſtifies, that God hath appointed his Angels to keep thee from the leaſt hurt. See on Luke 4. 10.

they ſhall bear thee up] A Metaphor taken from them that carry children in their arms.

V. 7. it is written again] Deut. 6. 16. Our Saviour doth not alledge Scripture againſt Scripture, as if one Scripture did, or could croſſe another; but ſhews that Satan did miſalledge the former Scripture, by producing a text, which forbids that which Satan would have him to do.

thou ſhalt not tempt the Lord thy God] As if he ſaid, as I muſt wait upon God for food (verſe 4.) ſo likewiſe for means of coming down from the temple, elſe I tempt God by caſting my ſelf into a needleſſe danger, ſo might he juſtly fail me without breach of his promiſe.

V. 8. Again, &c.] Satan, though foiled, yet giveth not over tempting Chriſt: when one temptation is paſt, we muſt look for another.

taketh him up] See on verſe 5. and on Luke 4. 5.

ſhewed him all the kingdoms, &c.] Preſents them to his ſenſes, which way the Scripture hath not revealed. See on Luke 4. 5.

V. 9. all theſe will I give thee] He cometh not now like a friend to adviſe, as verſe 3. or like a divine to direct, as verſe 6. but like a Monarch to ſeduce our Saviour with great gifts. See on Luke 4. 6.

if thou wilt fall down] As if he ſaid, I aſk but a ſmall requital of ſo great liberality, onely one act of ſubmiſſion, in acknowledgement that thou haſt all theſe things from me: hence it appears, why Satan begins not as before; If thou be the Son of God: for he knew that Chriſt if he took himſelf to be the Son of God, would not worſhip him: and if he were not ſo, he might peradventure be willing to accept of Satans large offer. This was, ſaith Ireneus l. 5. c. 3. as if ſome Apoſtate ſurprizing a region, ſhould trouble the inhabitants, ut regis gloriam ſibi vindicet, apud ignorantes; that among the ignorant he might challenge to himſelf the glory of a king. See on Luke 4. 7.

V. 10. get thee hence] Luke 4. 8. Tempt me no more at this time: Chriſt could endure him no longer, when he ſought to uſurp that which belongeth to God alone.

thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God] Deut. 6. 13. & 10. 20. 1 Sam. 12. 3. thou art not God, and therefore I may not worſhip thee, to get all the world.

V. 11. Then the devil leaveth him] When Chriſt had exerciſed his divine power, in commanding him away, verſe 10. it is our comfort in temptations, he limiteth Satan, how long, and how far he will permit us to him; and will never ſuffer us to be tempted above that he will make us able.

angels came and miniſtred unto him] To tender their ſervice and homage unto him, Hebr. 1. 6. or to bring him food, as to Elias 1 Kings 19. 5. or to convey him back from this mountain, where Satan had ſet him. See Luke 4. 14. Homo eſt quem diabolus tentat, & idem ipſe Deus eſt, cui ab angelis miniſtratur, Gregor. hom. 16. in evang. he is man, whom the devil tempted, but the ſame is alſo God, to whom the Angels miniſter.

V. 12. Now when Jeſus had heard] Mark 1. 14. Luke 4. 14. Iohn 4. 43. It appears that divers things came between, which are ſet down, Iohn 1. 2. and 3. chapters.

caſt into priſon] Or delivered up, See Mark 1. 14. Mark 6. 18, &c.

V. 13. leaving Nazareth] Wherein he had been brought up, and had now been a while, Luke 4. he retired into a ſafer place, out of Herods juriſdiction, governed by his brother Philip, a man of a milder temper.

dwelt in Capernaum] Converſed there for the moſt part; for he had not an houſe of his own, Chap. 8. 20. this was a town more famous then Nazareth: ſo was there more hope of doing good there.

V. 14. That it might be fulfilled] It was firſt litterally fulfilled when that people had ſome freedom after their afflictions by the Aſſyrians; but now ſpecially by Chriſts preaching there.

V. 15. the land of Zebulun] Iſaiah 9. 1. The firſt calamitie began there, 1 Kings 15. 29.

by the way of the ſea] Of Tiberias, becauſe it was not far from the ſea of Tyrus.

beyond Iordan] Beſide, at, or neer Iordan; for it was part of the holy land. See Numb. 32. 19. Ioh. 1. 28.

Galilee of the Gentiles] So called, becauſe the cities which Solomon gave to the King of Tyrus (1 Kings 9. 11) were there: or Galilee of the nations: becauſe by reaſon of traffick, people of divers nations had concourſe thither: or populous Galilee: that part of it which was beſt peopled, as being a richer ſoil then other parts thereof. There were two Galilees: hereof ſee Druſ. ad Voc. N. T. com. 1. Hierom de loc. Hebr. Beza in loc. C. Adricom. Theater. ſanct. Neptalim. N. 50. The beſt Authors agree that this was the upper Galilee, the lower was near Tiberias, and the lake, or ſea of Genezareth.

V. 16. The people which ſate in darkneſſe] They whoſe predeceſſors were firſt afflicted by the Aſſyrians, and delivered, being now the captives of Satan, do firſt hear of their deliverance by Chriſt himſelf.

ſhadow of death] Deathful ignorance: for this antithetically anſwereth to the light of knowledge ſprung up: and troubles as grievous as death, Pſalm 23. 4.

light is ſprung up] Chriſt bringing the joyful tidings of ſalvation to them, Pſalm 97. 11.

V. 17. From that time] Mark 1. 14.

Ieſus began to preach] To take upon him the publike office of a Prophet, or preacher; for he had doubtleſs taught before: but now Iohn is in priſon, he undertakes the care of preaching to the people.

Repent, &c. Chap. 3. 2. He beginneth as Iohn did, and ſo confirmeth his doctrine.

V. 18. And Ieſus] Mark 1. 16.

by the ſea of Galilee] Called alſo the lake of Genezaret; the ſea of Tiberias. Luke 5. 1. John 16. 1. 23. See alſo on John 21. 1.

two brethren] They were the more likely to aſſiſt one another in the Apoſtleſhip, becauſe of their neer relation.

Simon called Peter and Andrew] They were with Chriſt before. John 1. 40. 41. but went home again to follow their own buſineſſe, as Nicodemus alſo did. John 3. 1.

caſting a net] Buſie in their calling, as the ſhepherds were, when the Angels came to them. Luke 2. 8.

they were fiſhers] Chriſt could have ſent ſome of the glorious Angels, or the learned Doctors of the law; but he takes poor fiſher-men. and fits them for Apoſtles, that he might have the glory of that great work entire to himſelf. See Acts 4. 13. 1 Cor. 1. 26. 29.

v. 19. follow me] That is, ſaith Gregor. hom. 2. in Evang. Imitare, imitate or follow my example: as, 1. Cor. 4. 16. See Epheſ. 5. 1. Hebr. 6. 12. here is more enjoyned: to wit, that they ſhould alſo give their names unto him as diſciples, and ſtay with him, that he might teach them in private and publike, to fit them to that miniſtry, to which he would ſet them apart.

fiſhers of men] The world is the ſea, unbeleevers fiſhes: the Apoſtles and ſucceeding Miniſters the fiſhermen; and the goſpel preached the net. See Chap. 13. 47. Luke 5. 10. Thus Chriſt teacheth them the Miniſters duty by their own trade. So David was taught his kingly office. Pſal. 78. 71. 72.

v. 20. ſtraightway left their nets] As ſoon as they had brought their ſhip to an anchor, or to the haven, and were come a ſhore. See Luke 5. 11. Mark their ready obedience and willingneſſe to leave all for Chriſt, yet left they not their propriety in their goods, but left them to the care of others. See Chap. 8. 14. John 19. 27. and 21. 3.

v. 21. two brethren] See on verſe 18.

mending their nets] Working in their calling. See on verſe 18.

v. 22. immediately] See on verſe 20.

and their father] Not neglecting him, but leaving him to the care of his ſervants. Mark 1. 20. Here was Chriſts ſpeciall command: who ſaith alſo, honour thy father and thy mother, &c. Where Gods ſervice and honour requireth it, we muſt forſake all, or we cannot be true diſciples of Chriſt; we muſt love and honour our dear parents, but Gods honour and ſervice muſt have the firſt place: we muſt love our parents in God, but God above all.

v. 23. went about all Galilee] περιῆγεν. He led about his new called diſciples, but ἄγειν is often to goe. So here, he went about all Galilee, where they were more ignorant then in Judea. verſe 15. 16. he did not ſend for men out of all places, but went into the towns and villages to them.

in their ſynagogues] A word uſed for meeting-places civill and ſacred: as alſo the word ἐκκλησία Acts 19. 39. 1 Cor. 11. 18. Here it is uſed for the place where people met to worſhip God in publike: here Chriſt taught, to take away all ſuſpition of his doctrine: truth loves the light, and rejoyceth to be ſeen. John 3. 20. 21. and 18. 20. Acts 26. 26. 2 Tim. 3. 6. Falſhood ſits like Tamar in the way to Timnath. Gen. 38. 14. covered with a vail; wrapt up in ſuch diſguiſes that ſhe may be embraced unknown. Chriſt preached in publike, to encourage the Jews to the publike ſervice of God, and to gain the more ſouls, where many conſtantly aſſembled.

preaching] Publiſhing by authority, as Heraulds do the will of kings: and priviledge of ſubjects.

the goſpel of the kingdom] So called, becauſe it brings us into the kingdom of grace, when it is received, and ſhews us the way into the kingdom of glory, Chap. 3. 2. 1 Cor. 15. 1, 2. Iames 1. 21.

healing] By this miraculous healing, he confirmed the truth of his doctrine, and ſhewed his divine power.

all manner] Or all, ſo Acts 10. 12. not all the perſons that were ſick (for he cured not many there, Mark 6. 5.) but as all ſorts of men, ſo all ſorts of diſeaſes preſented unto him to be cured, as verſe 24.

of ſickneſſe] Such as bring more pain, and are more hardly cured: he could have wrought ſignes from heaven, but he did ſuch miracles as did good to their bodies, to ſhew them by his doctrine and healing them, that he aſſumed an humane body, and reaſonable ſoul, to ſave them bodies and ſouls.

diſeaſe] Infirmities leſſe painful or mortal, and more eaſily cured.

v. 24. thorowout all Syria] Even to the Gentiles to prepare them to their future converſion; and to make the condemnation of thoſe Jews the greater; who followed him not.

they brought unto him. &c.] They were more carefull of the bodies of themſelves and theirs, then of their ſouls; as thoſe John 6. 26. Hence it is that men ſeek more to Phyſicians then to Divines.

torments] Moſt painful diſeaſeaſes: the word properly ſignifyin[illegible] a touchſtone, was ſpoken concerning anſwers given ὑπὸ τῶν βασανιζομένων, by thoſe who were examined by tortures; or tormented (as upon the rack) to make them confeſſe. Suidas. See ibid. βάσανος.

poſſeſſed with devils] So that Satan tyrannized over their r[illegible]on and ſenſes, that they could make no good uſe of t[illegible] but to the hurt of themſelves or others.

thoſe that had the palſie] Weak and feeble men, who have their limbs and joynts looſed, and ſo weakned, that they cannot pull them up, nor put them forth when they would.

v. 25. there followed him a great multitude] Beſides thoſe that brought their ſick to be healed: ſome come out of affection to noveltie, others to carp, others to learn.

from Decapolis] A part of Syria: ſo named from ten famous cities that were therein.

beyond Jordan] See on verſe 15.

CHAP. V.

Verſe 1. S*Eeing the multitude*] The people mentioned, Chap. 4. 25. this was the occaſion of this large ſermon following.

he went up into a mountain] See on Luke 6. 17. as the Law was given on a mount, Exod. 19. 3. 23. Exod. 20. 1. So Chriſt expounds it here on a mountain: it was alſo a fit place for ſo many to hear.

when he was ſet] As their Doctors uſed to do, to ſhew their authority, ſome think, Chap. 23. 2. See on Luke 4. 20.

his diſciples came unto him] Such as uſually repaired to him, or conſtantly attended upon him, as being more familiarly affected toward him, and deſirous to learn ſomething of him, Euthym. Luke ſaith Chap. 6. 20. he lifted up his eyes on his diſciples: not limiting his ſpeech in them, but indefinitely propoſing theſe bleſſings to all, as Chryſoſtom here noteth.

v. 2. He opened his mouth] An Hebraiſm, ſignifying his beginning to ſpeak, as Pſal. 78. 2. Job. 3. 1.

taught them] His diſciples and the multitude.

v. 3. Bleſſed are] Luke 6. 20. So David begins divers of his Pſalms, Pſal. 1. 1. & 32. & 41. & 112. & 119. & 128. bleſſedneſſe being the main end that all aim at.

poor in ſpirit] That are afflicted in minde, in the apprehenſion of their ſpiritual wants and ſins, Iſaiah 57. 15. Iſaiah 66. 2. or poor in eſtate, if their mindes be holy and lowly. See on Luke 6. 20. 1 Cor. 1. 26. James 2. 5. they are not bleſſed becauſe they are poor, but though they be poor, ſo verſe 4. The poor in ſpirit are they, who are not ſpiritually proud: but know, and are truely ſenſible of their ſpiritual wants and poverty; as knowing themſelves (by nature, and of themſelves) deſtitute of true righteouſneſſe; and in extream need of the riches of Gods free grace in Chriſt, which they can never merit, but muſt beg of him, Rom. 7. 18. 24. This was wanting in the Church of Laodicea, Revel. 3. 17. and is wanting in all that pretend to their own merits, or ſelf-excellencie.

for theirs is the kingdom of heaven] To them is the kingdom of heaven appointed, ſee Matth. 25 34. Poverty is not in it ſelf a bleſſed condition: but they are therefore bleſſed, becauſe they ſhall be rich in heaven. A kingdom is the richeſt temporall eſtate: but the kingdom of heaven, in reſpect of the unſpeakable, and eternal bleſſedneſſe thereof, ſurpaſſeth all earthly and temporal kingdoms. See Pſal. 103. 11. Dan. 7. 27.

v. 4. they that mourn] That is, for their ſins, as Chryſoſtome, Euthymius, Theophylact, Hilar. Can. 4. &c. interpret. You ſee, ſaith Gr. Nazianzen orat. 17. τῷ στεναγμῷ τὴν σωτηρίαν συνεζευγμένην, that ſalvation is joyned with ſighing, or ſorrow. Tertul. hereto citeth Pſal. 126. 5. Iſaiah 61. 3. adv. Marcion. l. 4. c. 34. underſtand here, thoſe who mourn with godly ſorrow to repentance, never to be repented of, 2 Cor. 7. 10. or that are in ſad condition, by reaſon of perſecution for the profeſſion of the goſpel, verſ. 11, 12. or any other heavy affliction, they being holy: ſuch are happy, though externally, or otherwiſe afflicted: not becauſe they mourn, but albeit they mourn. Minucius Felix giveth a good reaſon; for ſaith he, Calamitas ſæpius diſciplina virtutis fuit, calamity hath often been the diſcipline of vertue. A Chriſtian may ſeem unhappy, he cannot be found to be ſo.

they ſhall be comforted] In part here, by taking away, or mitigating their ſorrows; or inward conſolation by Gods Spirit: compleatly in heaven, 2 Cor. 1. 4. John 16. 20. James 1. 12. Rev. 7. 17. & 21. 4.

v. 5. Bleſſed are] Pſal. 37. 11.

the meek] Such as patiently and quietly endure injuries: ſuch as (nec felicitas aut inflat propria, aut urit aliena, Ambroſ. ep. 84. l. 10.) neither their own proſperity maketh proud, nor others, envious. Admirable is patience which in the ſtorms of afflictions placeth the ſoul, ὥσπερ ἐν εὐδίῳ λιμένι, as it were in a calm haven, Chryſoſtom in Job 18 hom. 83. the meek are they, who cedunt improbitatibus, & non reſiſtunt malo, Auguſtin. de ſerm. Domini in mont. l. 1. c. 3. who give way to injuries, and reſiſt not evil; thoſe who can be angry, (not thoſe who are ἀνάλγητοι, ſenſeleſſe, or inſenſible of wrongs, as Theophylact interpreteth) but who contain themſelves until they ought to be angry, as Epheſ. 4. 26. Such as meekly bear, neither provoking others, nor eaſily provoked by them.

they ſhall inherit the earth] They ſhall have a comfortable right to it, enjoy it with inward peace, and be free from many vexations, in which haſty and froward men embarque themſelves: this is here promiſed, becauſe men ſometimes take occaſion to abuſe thoſe moſt, who are of the moſt meek and quiet diſpoſition, Iſajah 59. 15.

V. 6. hunger and thirſt for righteouſneſſe] Who earneſtly long for it, as hungry men do for meat, or thirſty ones for drink; it may be underſtood of ſuch as knowing their own emptineſſe, long to be filled with Chriſts righteouſneſſe; or of ſuch as being perſecuted under the title of impious and ungodly, long to be cleared and righted. See on chap. 11. 30.

they ſhall be filled] Iſaiah 65. 13. Pſal. 17. 15. Luke 1. 53. Hunger pincheth, but food ſatisfieth.

V. 7. the mercifull] Who being inwardly affected with the miſeries of others, do outwardly relieve them according to their abilities. Luke 6. 36. &c. See the contrary, James 2. 13.

for they ſhall obtain mercy] They may be ſubject to miſery in this world, but they ſhall finde mercy ſometimes with men; but alwayes with God.

V. 8. Bleſſed are] Pſal. 24. 4.

pure in heart] The ſingle-hearted and ſincere; who are not doubly minded. 1. Tim. 1. 5. James 1. 8. 1 Pet. 1. 22.

they ſhall ſee God] They ſhall converſe with him familiarly in heaven; or ſee ſome evident and glorious ſignes of his preſence there. 1 John 3. 2. for his eſſence is inviſible and incomprehenſible. Hebr. 12. 14. he cannot be ſeen (as he is in his eſſence) viſu clarior — nec æſtimari, ſenſibus major — magnitudinem Dei qui ſe putat noſſe, minuit &c. Minuc. Fel. Octavio. being more clear then any ſight, nor can he be valued, who is greater then all ſenſe (of the creature) he that thinketh he knoweth the greatneſſe of God, therein leſſeneth it. Auguſtine (Paulina ep. 112. after Ambroſe on Luke) ſaith well, non in loco Deus videtur, &c. God is not ſeen in a place, as at the oak in Mambre, or mount Sina, but in a pure heart, when we think he is abſent, we ſee him: and when he is preſent, we ſee him not; he is inviſible, and yet is ſeen, cum vult, ſicut vult, many have ſeen him, not as he is, but as he pleaſed to appear, and manifeſt himſelf unto them.

v. 9. peace makers] Who endeavour to reconcile ſuch as are at variance: either God to man, as the Preachers of the goſpel do, or one man to another, as all ſhould do.

ſhall be called the ſons of God] They ſhall be ſo indeed, as imitators of Chriſt, Coloſ. 1. 20. and ſo accounted to their honour, verſe 19. Luke 1. 32. John 1. 12. 1 John 3. 1. they are the likeſt to God, and moſt beloved of him, verſe 45. they are the children of the God of peace, Rom. 16. 20. 1 Cor 14. 33. 2 Cor. 13. 11. Philip. 4. 9. 1 Theſ. 5. 23. 2 Theſ. 3. 16. Heb. 13. 20.

v. 10. which are perſecuted] 1 Pet. 3. 14.

for righteouſneſſe ſake] Not for ſin, or for the world, 1 Pet. 4. 15. 1 John 3 12. Satan, like Pharaoh purſueth thoſe who go out of his dominion, he poſſeſſeth his own veſſels in quietneſſe for the preſent: Pirats will not chaſe the empty ſhip (ſaith Chryſoſtom on Iſaiah 6.) nor will Satan aſſail thoſe, in whom he knows, there is no riches of grace.

theirs is the kingdom of heaven] See on verſe 3. there are two things moſt conſiderable in a kingdom, wealth and proſperity: a kingdom therefore is oppoſed to poverty there, and to adverſity here.

v. 11. Bleſſed are ye] He turns his ſpeech now to his preſent hearers, to comfort them againſt perſecutions which were coming on them.

revile you] Reproach you, and miscall you, 1 Cor. 4. 12. 2 Cor. 6. 8. So as reproach is a kinde of Perſecution, compare Geneſ. 21. 9. with Gal. 4. 29. Not onely the Martyrs, but many others, who ſuffer injury for the truth, and cauſe of Chriſt are perſecuted: humility is a ſure fortreſſe againſt calumny: he that is not ambitious of the praiſe of men, will not value their reproaches; therefore as Auguſtin ſaid, in Pſal. 57. non timebis convitiatorem; ſi non amas adulatorem; thou wilt not fear a reviler, if thou loveſt not a flatterer.

perſecute you] Scourge, impriſon, or kill you. Chap. 10. 17. Luke 21. 16. John 16. 2. Acts 5. 40. & 16. 22. 23. 2 Cor. 11. 23. &c.

all manner of evil, &c.] 1 Pet. 4. 14. for as Jerom ſaith. ep. 55. with Chriſtians, non qui patitur ſed qui facit contumeliam, miſer eſt. He is not unhappy who ſuffereth contumely, but he that doth it.

falſly] Gr. lying, they have no reward, who are puniſhed juſtly in word or deed; theeves, and murderers ſuffer, but (as the penitent thief ſaid on the croſſe) they are juſtly here. It is the cauſe, not the paſſion which maketh the Martyr.

for my ſake] For religion, not for other cauſes: if reviling be for our own faults, that is no mark of happineſſe to us.

V. 12. Rejoyce and be exceeding glad] Joy inwardly, and expreſſe it outwardly. Luke 15. 32. Pſal. 32. 11. and that in tribulation. Rom. 5. 3.

Great is your reward] Gen. 15. 1. Pſal. 19. 11. It is impoſſible that he who hath been wicked in this life, ſhould eſcape that which he hath deſerved; or that he who for truth and righteouſneſſe ſake, hath here been moſt afflicted; ſuâ mercede fraudari; ſhould be defrauded of his reward: as Lactantius ſpeaketh. l. 4. c. 19. becauſe God is juſt.

So they perſecuted the prophets] Who were eminent men; and therefore you may be content to endure what they did. Jam. 5. 4.

which were before you] Both in time and office; and therefore ye may expect the like uſage with them.

V. 13. Ye are the ſalt of the earth] I have choſen you to ſeaſon, and preſerve thoſe who are corruptible by ſin: as ſalt ſuffereth not fleſh to corrupt (Syneſ. de regno. Clem. Alexandr. Pæd. l. 1. c. 9.) So wholſome doctrine worketh with the minde: reproove them therefore that they may be ſaved; though you diſpleaſe ſome thereby, and ſuffer perſecution for the ſame: yet be you ſavoury in your ſelves, and by good exhortations help to ſeaſon others with the ſalt of grace, that they may be pleaſing to God. Coloſ. 4. 6. Epheſ. 4. 29.

But if the ſalt] Mark 9. 50. Luke 14. 34. It may be underſtood of Miniſters, or of private Chriſtians, who are ſpoken of before, and in the following verſes.

have loſt his ſavour] Μωρανθῆ become fooliſh: the unſavourineſſe of ſalt is (as Euthymius ſaith) debilitas mordacitatis ipſius. The weakneſſe of it acrimony; the meaning is, if you have not grace in you, and zeal to reprove ſinners.

wherewith ſhall it be ſalted?] As nothing elſe can recover the taſte of ſalt once loſt; ſo, bad miniſters cannot eaſily be mended by others.

good for nothing] Other things may be good for ſomewhat elſe, when they decay, ſalt cannot. So is it with unſavoury Miniſters, and relapſing Chriſtians.

to be caſt out] of the church, as unprofitable.

to be troden under foot] As not good for any uſe. See Luke 14. 35. & 21. 24.

V. 14. Ye are the light of the world] Not originally, like the ſun, as Chriſt is. John 1. 8, 9. but by participation, as the moon and the ſtars: ſo are Miniſters. Rev. 1. 20. John 5. 35. as alſo are other Chriſtians. 1 Theſſalo. 5. 5. Phil. 2. 15.

A city that is ſet on a hill] You muſt ſhew forth good example to others, far and neer, whereby you may be as exemplary to others, as an high hill or city thereon is conſpicuous.

cannot be hid] Your lives will be looked on, and ſcanned by all men; therefore ſee they be good.

V. 15. Neither do men light a candle] Mark 4. 21. Luke 8. 16, & 11. 33. Neither can you reaſonably think that I communicate to you divine light, to the end that you ſhould hide it in ſilence.

and put it under a buſhell] God intends that his graces given to his Miniſters or people, ſhould be uſed for the good of others, and not kept for their own good onely; the maſter of a family lighteth a candle for the uſe of the whole family. Luke 19. 20. 23.

a buſhell] μόδιος, is a meaſure, ſome ſay, containing about a pint leſſe then a peck; others reckon, that it containeth ſixteen Sextarios, who (accounting the Sextarios at about a pint and an half) make the great Modius two gallons and a pottle; which is the Modius Ponticus: the Modius Cyprius, is reckoned a peck and a pint.

V. 16. Let your light ſo ſhine] Manifeſt the graces that are in you, by your actions, as beams of light.

before men] Who ſee not your hearts, but your deeds.

that they may ſee] Not hear of them by others; but ſee, and be witneſſes thereof. See Phil. 2. 15. 1 Pet. 2. 12.

your good works] Not words onely, but works doth God require: good works, not other mens, but yours: not what your friends, kindred, or predeceſſours have done, but what you do. See Deut. 5. 28, 29. Rom. 2. 13.

and glorifie] Your end muſt be Gods honour, not your own. Matth. 6. 1. &c. though you can adde nothing to the infinite glory of God; yet muſt you confeſſe it, and give men cauſe to praiſe him for you. Gal. 1. 24.

your father] All good children ſeek their fathers honour, and maintain it, as knowing their intereſt therein; hypocrites ſeek their own glory with men, but ſo live, that the holy Name of God is blaſphemed becauſe of them, who profeſſe good, but practiſe impiouſly. Rom. 2. 23, 24. we may indeed vainly flatter our ſelves in that great prerogative of the name of Chriſtians, who yet ſo do, and live, ut hoc ipſum quod Chriſtianus populus eſſe dicimur, opprobrium Chriſti eſſe videatur, ſaith Salvian. de gub. Dei. l. 4. that it may ſeem a diſhonour to Chriſt, that we are called Chriſtians.

which is in heaven] Not your earthly fathers onely, but principally your heavenly father. chap 6. 9. & 23. 9. Mal. 1. 6.

V. 17. Think not that I am come] This is a preface to the following expoſition of the law, wherein our Saviour prevents their miſconſtruction thereof: they hearing the law otherwiſe expounded then their teachers uſed to do, verſe 21. 22. might think that Chriſt did abrogate the morall law, and bring in a new one: he warns them before hand, not to think ſo; for as Ambroſe lib. 9. ep. 77. ſaith of circumciſion, it is true of the whole ceremoniall law; non----gentibus mandata eſt, ſed ſemini Abraham. It was commanded the ſeed of Abraham, but not to the Gentiles: and that but for a time, till all was fulfilled in the Meſſias exhibited, with all the ceremonies thereof prefigured; and the fulneſſe of the Gentiles was to come in, the morall law ſtands ſtill in force, though the curſe due to the tranſgreſſours of the leaſt precept thereof, be taken away from thoſe that are in Chriſt by faith. Rom. 8. 1. Galat. 3. 13.

to deſtroy the law] Gr. To diſſolve; he neither by doctrine, or precept deſtroyed it, nor by practiſe, nor by abſolving thoſe from obedience thereto, which he delivered from the curſe thereof.

or the prophets] The interpreters of it. I give none other morall precepts then Moſes did, nor any other interpretations of that law, then the Prophets gave.

but to fulfill] Both by inſtruction, obſervation, and full ſatisfaction. Rom. 3. 31. & 8. 3. others take it of the fulfilling the ceremonies, types and predictions of the Meſſias in his own perſon, which he likewiſe did.

V. 18 till heaven and earth paſſe] Luke 16. 17. Till this world come to an end, the morall law ſhall ſtand in full force: heaven and earth ſhall be changed, rather then reduced to nothing.

one jot, or one tittle] Not the leaſt letter, or particle of a letter. A proverbiall ſpeech, ſignifying that exact obedience is due to the morall law, to the worlds end; but not concluding that we have power to fulfill it. This was a needfull doctrine, becauſe the Phariſees endeavoured to make void ſome part of it then, by their traditions chap. 15. 3, 4. and chap. 23. 4. The meaning is, that the leaſt letter, (ſuch as is י jod in the Hebrew, or ι iota in the Greek: a tittle κεραία, ſuch as are the Hebrew points, or accents) ſhould not paſſe, till all were fulfilled: how much more needfull is this doctrine now, when men would make all the law void, and not obligatory to beleevers?

ſhall in no wiſe paſſe from the law] No man hath power to abrogate, or diſpenſe with any part thereof; not that which he thinks leaſt needfull.

till all be fulfilled] Gr. Till all be done: that is nothing contained in the law, ſhall ever fail, but attain his full effect.

V. 19. Whoſoever] Of what ranck or degree ſoever he be.

ſhall break] James 2. 10. Diſobey in his practiſe.

one of theſe leaſt commandements] One of thoſe precepts of the morall law, which the Phariſees and others make leaſt account of, though indeed nothing is little in the law of God, becauſe the law-maker is great: therefore Salvian ſaid well, nihil leve æſtimetur quo Deus læditur. Let nothing be eſteemed little, with which God is offended; de gubern. Dei. l. 6.

and ſhall teach] Or ſhall teach: as Exod. 21. 15.

he ſhall be called] He ſhall be ſo, and ſo accounted.

the leaſt in the kingdom of heaven] He ſhall be of no accompt in Gods Church here, nor have any part in heaven, as verſe 20.

do and teach] Confirme the law both by teaching and example, publike or private.

great in the kingdom of heaven] Of great accompt in the kingdom of grace and glory. Let not therefore thy works confound thy words: let the Miniſter of Chriſts minde, life, and mouth accord. See Hieron. Nepotian ep. 14. l. 2.

V. 20. For I ſay unto you] Whatſoever the Scribes ſay unto you to the contrary, if you will believe me, it is otherwiſe.

except your righteouſneſſe] Your obedience to Gods Law.

ſhall exceed the righteouſneſſe of &c.] The one ſort were accounted men of the greateſt learning, the other of the ſtricteſt life, ſee chap. 15. 1. ye muſt go beyond them both; for they made conſcience of outward obedience onely, verſe 21. and of ſome commandments onely, chap. 15. 3. but ye muſt make conſcience of inward obedience alſo, verſ. 22 and of keeping all the commandments, as Luke 1. 6.

in no caſe enter into &c.] As chap. 7. 21. & 18. 3. & 19. 23, 24. Mark 10. 23, 24. Luke 18. 24, 25. Iohn 3. 5. Acts 14. 22. alluding to Numb. 14. 30. Pſalm 95. 11. it is true, their righteouſneſſe was generally, rather to ſay, then to do good, &c. to be ſeen of men, rather then in ſincerity unto God; and many other blemiſhes it had in the ſight of an all-ſeeing God: but the compariſon is not intended here between degrees of righteouſnes by the law, but between it (to which onely the Phariſees pretended, and cleaved) and the righteouſneſſe of the faith in Chriſt, without which no fleſh ever was, ever can be ſaved (Acts 4. 12.) So Ireneus l. 4. c. 27. interpreteth this exceeding; the Phariſee in his way could never come to heaven, becauſe he ſought righteouſneſſe onely by the works of the law, which made none perfect, in that it was weak through the fleſh, Rom. 8. 3. none were able to fulfill it: therefore Iſrael attained not to the law of righteouſneſſe, becauſe they ſought it not by faith, but as it were by the works of the law, Rom. 9. 31. your righteouſneſſe muſt exceed this: as doth the righteouſneſſe which is of faith in Jeſus (who perfectly fulfilled the law for us) or you ſhall not enter into the kingdom of heaven; for, by the deeds of the law there ſhall no fleſh be juſtified, Rom. 3. 20. and we are juſtified by faith only, without the works of the law.

V. 21. by them of] Or, to them.

of old time] It is a received opinion, delivered by tradition from father to ſon. Of what valew preſcription, and antiquity of errour is, may hence appear: it is a good obſervation of Tertul. de præſcript. c. 31. from the parable of the Envious mans tares, Matth. 13, it is (ſaith he) manifeſt by the very order, id eſſe Dominicum & verum, quod ſit prius traditum; id autem extraneum & falſum, quod ſit poſterius immiſſum: that is the Lords and true, which was firſt delivered; but that forreign and falſe, which was afterward caſt in: adde hereto that of Cyprian ad Cæcil. l. 2. ep. 8. if Chriſt onely is to be heard, non debemus attendere quid aliquis ante nos faciendum putaverit; ſed quid, qui ante omnes eſt, Chriſtus prior fecerit, neque enim hominus conſuetudinem ſequi oportet, ſed Dei veritatem, we muſt not attend what ſome before us thought was to be done: but what Chriſt did, who is before all: neither may we follow the cuſtoms of men, but the truth of God: antiquity of truth is venerable; but of errour the more deteſtable, by how much more it hath miſled. The holy Scripture ſufficiently determineth what is truth, and what is errour: & no queſtion ought to be moved among Chriſtians, where Gods ipſe dixit hath ſo determined; leſt yet we break the bond of charity (which is the ſinews of religion.) Auguſtines rule to Caſulanus ep. 86. is to be held: in his----rebus, de quibus nihil certi ſtatuit Scriptura divina, mos populi Dei, vel inſtituta majorum pro lege tenenda ſunt; in thoſe things concerning which the divine Scripture determineth nothing certain, (that is, neither commandeth nor forbiddeth) the cuſtome of Gods people, and inſtitutions of anceſtours (or elders) are to be held for Law.

thou ſhalt not kill] Exod. 20. 13. Deut. 5. 17. they repeated the words of the Law, but built falſe gloſſes thereon.

whoſoever ſhall kill] That is, for private revenge; or if it be acted by a private perſon. The Magiſtrate or Judge, taking away the life of a malefactor, according to the Law of God and man, ſinneth not therein; he ſinneth, if he executeth not juſtice, when the murderer is executed: Suo ſcelere punitur: Salvian. l. 7. it was not ſo much the Judge, as his own ſin that killed him.

ſhall be in danger of the judgement] Shall be liable to give accompt, to the leſſe court of twenty three Judges, who judged ordinary cauſes, and perſons.

V. 22. But I ſay unto you] I give you not a new law, but rightly expound the law of God unto you.

whoſoever is angry, &c.] They counted nothing ſin, but the external act: but unadviſed anger is murder of the heart; therefore Minucius Felix Octav. ſaid well, apud nos, & cogitare peccare eſt, with us evil thoughts are ſins: and Salvian. de Gub. Dei l. 8. non ſunt longè ab occidentibus, qui animo occiſionis oderunt, they differ not much from murderers, who hate with a minde to kill.

without a cauſe] Raſhly; aliud ira, aliud odium, ſaith Auguſtine hom. 40. the father is angry with his childe, but hateth him not, but to amend him; ſo is his anger an effect of love; ſo the Apoſtle ſaith, be angry, but ſin not, Epheſ. 4. 26. Truely as long as we here live, affections will oftentimes overbyas our reaſon; yet muſt we watch over their exorbitancy, moderari & regere poſſumus, amputare non poſſumus, Hieron. l. 2. ep. 20. we may (and muſt) moderate and rule them, we cannot cut them off.

in danger of the judgement] That is, he ſhall be liable to the puniſhments to be inflicted by the Judges. Chriſt ſpeaketh not here of civil judgements executed by Magiſtrates, but of Gods tribunal before which men are guilty of murder, not onely for taking away the life of a man, but alſo for affecting to hurt their neighbour by reproach; though, as there are degrees of this ſin, ſo ſhall there be of puniſhments thereof: but Chriſt accomodateth this whole ſpeech to the form of the uſual judicatures of the Jews: as their judgements by their triumviri, or three men deciding ſmall ſmatters, their twenty three Judges determining greater matters then the former; and their high Court of ſeventy and one Judges, who judged of the greateſt matters within their juriſdiction: Chriſt expreſſeth Gods judgements, by theſe things which were common, and better known to the Jews.

to his brother] To another man, verſ. 23, 24. an Hebrew phraſe, Gen. 26. 31. one to another, איש לאחיו, a man to his brother.

Raca] O vain man. See Judg. 9. 4. 2. Sam. 6. 20. Syr. רקא, coming of the Hebrew word רק rek, vacuus, inanis, Jerom againſt the Pelagians, l. 2. interpreteth Raca, vanus, & abſque cerebro; a vain, or brainleſſe fellow: So Hilary on Math can. 4. vacuitatis opprobrium eſt: it ſignifieth, ſaith the learned Iun. Tremellius, one void of judgement, reaſon, and brains: underſtand this of him that ſaith ſo in raſh anger: otherwiſe we finde the Phraſe uſed, James 2. 20. as our Saviour would not have us raſhly angry, leſt we ſhould be malicious: for ira mater eſt odii, Labo de Gub. Dei, l. 3. anger is the mother of hatred: ſo would he here prevent the effects thereof, prima enim ſemper iratum tela, maledicta ſunt, & quicquid non poſſumus imbecilli, optamus irati, Salv. ibid. the firſt weapons of anger are evil ſpeeches, and that which we cannot do, being weak, we wiſh we could, being angry.

in danger of the council] The meaning is, he ſhall be liable to a greater puniſhment in hell, as a greater offender was liable to the judgement of the Sanhedrim, or great Council.

ſhall ſay] Out of raſh anger, as before, otherwiſe our bleſſed Saviour, who never ſinned, uſed that word, Matth. 23. 17. 19.

thou fool] A word of greater diſgrace then the former, μωρὸς, it ſignifieth unſavoury, or without reliſh: Raca anſwereth the Greek word κενὸς, empty, that is μάταιος, fooliſh; and a fool is here, by a Metaphor, called inſipid, Hebr. שוטה ſote, which we call, Sot.

in danger of hell fire] To be caſt into Gehenna, to have the greateſt torments of hell inflicted on him: as the greateſt offender among the Jews, was to be judged, either to be burnt alive in the valley of Hinnom, or to have his carcaſe denied burial, and burnt there, among the carrion caſt out of the city, which was the greateſt diſgrace. See on Luke 12. 5. See Auguſtine de Civ. Dei. l. 21. c. 4. 10. 23.

V. 23. therefore] Seeing God forbids anger, and evil ſpeaking as well as murder.

if thou bring thy gift] The Jews thought God like ſome worldly princes, more regarding gifts, then the unity of their ſubjects; therefore offered many ſacrifices, but lived ſtill in malice: Chriſt ſhews them here, that ſuch ſacrifices did not pleaſe God. Charity is the ſalt of the covenant, with which every ſacrifice muſt be ſeaſoned.

to the altar] He ſpeaks according to that preſent ſtate of the Church, wherin altars and ſacrifices were in uſe: they are deceived who gather hence, that we muſt have altars and ſacrifices now: yet it may teach us by proportion to ſeek reconciliation before we come to the Lords table.

and there remembreſt] It ſhould have been done before; but if it were forgotten or neglected then, it muſt of neceſſity be remembred, and done now. This ſuppoſition of remembrance relateth to another ſuppoſition of a right preparation of a mans ſelf to that duty, which cannot be without a due examination of his own ſtate towards God and man.

hath ought againſt thee] Si nos eum in aliquo læſimus. Auguſtin. de ſerm. Domini in mont. l. 1. c. 20. if any man can accuſe thee, or charge thee with any wrong done to him. See Rev. 2. 4.

V. 24. leave there thy gift] Do not carry it away; our ſin againſt man, doth not diſcharge us of Gods ſervice; but God will not accept our ſervice, till we have ſought peace with all men. Hebr. 12. 14.

be reconciled] Do thy part to be reconciled; confeſſe thy fault, deſire peace, make ſatisfaction. Levit. 6. 1. &c. a purpoſe of reconciliation is not enough, it muſt actually be ſought, before we can be fitted for Gods ſervice.

then come] Then perſwade thy ſelf God will accept thy ſervice.

V. 25. Agree with thine adverſary quickly] See on Luke 12. 58. a ſimilitude taken from a debtor.

in the way] He alludeth to the cuſtoms of adverſaries in law, going before the Judge: the meaning is, prepare preſently (while the accepted time, and day of ſalvation laſteth) to ſtand before Gods tribunall; agree while you are both alive.

be caſt into priſon] Leſt for thy abuſing Gods patience and long ſuffering, thou be condemned and caſt into hell fire; the whole is allegoricall: by adverſaries delivering thee, is meant, leſt he whom thou haſt wronged, complain to God of thee; by the judges delivering to the officer, underſtand Gods execution of temporall and eternall puniſhments on the impenitent ſinners.

V. 26. till thou haſt payed] The meaning is, that God will not forgive injuries done to men, except the injurious make what ſatisfaction they can. Some underſtand theſe two verſes litterally, as counſell given us by our Saviour to avoid, and compoſe ſuits before tryall.

the uttermoſt farthing] That is never, becauſe that by ſuffering, thou canſt in no finite time ſatisfie the infinite and eternall juſtice of God. See on chap. 1. 25. and on Luke 12. 58.

V. 27. by them] Or to them.

Thou ſhalt not commit adultery] Exod. 20. 14. The Phariſees taught that the act of this ſin, was onely ſinfull before God, as it was puniſhable before men.

V. 28. Whoſoever looketh] With intent to luſt after her; or til he luſt after her Mark 13. 22. Job 31. 7. So that both wanton thoughts & looks are here condemned. See Ro. 7. 7. 2 Pet. 2. 14. therefore Iſidores rule is, ἢ ὁρῶν μὴ ἔρα, ἢ ἐρῶν μὴ ὅρα either ſeeing, luſt not, or luſting look not. ep. 173. in this, as Euthymius noteth, radicem abſcidit; he cutteth up ſinne by the root, in the heart and affections; leſt it ſhould bring forth death. See James 1. 14, 15. For the moſt part the actions of the inward man, at laſt, ſhew themſelves in the outward man; as, chaſtity of the inward man paſſeth to the bodies undefiled chaſtity; for he that is not acquainted with the hearts adultery, is certainly and invincibly modeſt and chaſt; therefore, as all ſeeds, and incentives of ſinne, muſt carefully be avoided; ſo this, oculus meretricis, laqueus amatoris eſt. Ambroſ. de pœn. l. 1. c. 14. the harlots eye, is the lovers ſnare. Luſt not after her beauty in thine heart, neither let her take thee with her eye-lids. Prov. 6. 25. Flee fornication. 1 Cor. 6. 18. Fly alſo youthfull luſts. 2 Tim. 2. 22. Fugiamus ergo tanquam ſequentem, quia non poſt nos, ſed in nobis ſequitur. ib. Ambroſ. let us therefore fly it, as that which followeth, not after, but in us, how? by daſhing the ſerpents egges---parvulos ad petram, that is, (as the ſame l. 2. c. 11. de pœnit. interpreteth) ---infirmas & lubricas cogitationes elidat ad Chriſtum; deſtroying ſin in the thoughts, by recalling them to the dreadfull tribunall of an all-ſeeing Judge.

on a woman] Underſtand all this to be a common rule to women as well as men; (which Chryſoſtom, Theophylact, and Euthymius note) ſo that when women look with ſuch affections, they ſin, and if they adorne themſelves to be looked upon, and luſted after, though poſſibly they do not affect any man, yet ἐκεῖναι φάρμακον ἐκέρασαν κἂν μηδεὶς πίνῃ, Theophylact; they have tempered the poiſon, though no man drink it. See Tertul. de cultu. fœm. c. 12.

hath committed &c.] For as Jerom ſaith well, ep. 22. in reſpect of the ſinne, nocuit & qui nocere diſpoſuit, he hath hurt, or done evil, who diſpoſed ſo to do, ſo here, jam affectu adulter eſt, is already an adulterer in affection. Ambroſ. l. 9. epiſt. 77.

V. 29. and if] Chap. 18. 8. Mark 9. 47.

thy right eye] Anaſtaſius underſtandeth this περὶ τῶν φίλων &c. of friends and kindred, the meaning is generall, whatſoever is not uſefull or neceſſary to this life, as the right hand, or right eye.

offend thee] Or do cauſe thee to offend.

pluck it out] The meaning is, there is a body of ſinne in us, which muſt be mortified. (Coloſ. 3. 5.) and all occaſions and incentives thereto abandoned, if we will be ſaved; therefore Jeroms counſell is very good l. 2. ep. 15. nulli parcas, ut ſoli parcas animæ; ſpare nothing, that thou mayeſt ſpare thy ſoul.

for it is better] It is better for a Chriſtian, miniſterio carere quam vita. Salvian. de gub. l. 3. to want the ſervice (of ſome members) then life eternall; as it is better for a man that hath a gangrene in one member, to cut it off, then to ſuffer it to infect the reſt, and endanger his life; ſo it is better for you to leave your deareſt ſinnes, or the occaſions of them, then that the whole man ſhould periſh by them.

V. 30. If thy right hand] See on verſe 29.

V. 31. Whoſoever ſhall put away his wife] Deut. 24. 1. or whoſoever will put away his wife; It ſeemes the Scribes miſinterpreting the law, taught, that any man that diſliked his wife, might put her away, ſo that he gave her a bill of divorce, whereby it might appear to any other man that deſired to have her, that ſhe was ſet free from her former husband.

V. 32. Whoſoever ſhall put away &c.] Luke 16. 18. 1 Cor. 7. 10. Matth. 19. 9.

ſaving for the cauſe of fornication] For that cauſe he might put her away, but for none other. Adultery diſſolveth the bond of matrimony, which conſiſteth in their being one fleſh.

cauſeth her to commit adultery] Underſtand this, if the divorced woman marry to another, her former husband being yet alive, which the party divorcing occaſioneth, by putting her away.

V. 33. by them] Or to them.

Thou ſhalt not forſwear thy ſelf] Exod. 20. 7. Levit. 19. 12. Deut. 5. 11. It ſeems by Chriſts anſwer, that the Phariſees taught, that if men did not forſwear themſelves, they did fulfill the third commandment; and ſo allowed or connived at ſwearing in ordinary communication, and of ſwearing by creatures; both which our Saviour condemns.

V. 34. Swear not at all] James 5. 12. That is in your ordinary communication; not at all, except where you have a lawfull calling thereto; as in caſe of witneſſe-bearing before the judge, or lawfull Magiſtrate, for the ending or deciding of controverſies, or further confirmation of juſt duty. See. Jer. 4. 2. Hebr. 6. 16.

neither by heaven] See Iſaiah 66. 1. Swear not by them, becauſe they are creatures, not God; nor are they thine; they know not the truth of what thou ſayeſt, nor can of themſelves puniſh thee for thy perjury; ſome interpret this prohibition with this condition, except thou mean to performe vows, or ſwear truth; for God will puniſh perjury, though thou ſwear not by him, but by ſome creature, heaven, earth, Jeruſalem, thy head; God is injured when his creatures are called to bear witneſſe to a falſhood, or engaged for it. See chap. 23. 16. &c.

V. 35. nor by the earth] See on verſe 34.

it is his footſtool] Iſaiah 66. 1.

neither by Jeruſalem] See on verſe 34. the city where he is publikely worſhipped.

city of the great king] Of God, Pſal. 48. 2, 3. with 87. 3.

V. 36. by thy head] See on verſe 34. thou hadſt it and every hair thereof of him.

one hair white or black] One hair thereof, by giving it that native colour: art onely imitateth nature, it cannot make any natural thing.

V. 37. let your communication be] James 5. 12. your ordinary communication. See on verſe 34.

yea, yea, nay, nay] Affirmative or negative, without oaths for confirmation of that which you ſay.

whatſoever is more then theſe] Cuſtomary ſwearing, by whatſoever they ſwear.

cometh of evil] From Satan, corruption of heart, evil habit, other mens incredulity, or your vain perſwaſion, that men will not believe you, except you ſwear, whereas that maketh your aſſertions more ſuſpected, to good and wiſe men.

V. 38. an eye for an eye] Exod. 21. 24. Levit. 24. 20. Deut. 19. 21. this intimates that the Jewiſh Doctors taught, that a private man might revenge himſelf, ſo that his revenge did not exceed the wrong; this Chriſt condemneth, for the Judges were to determine this.

V. 39. that ye reſiſt not evil] Luke 6. 29. Rom. 12. 17. 1 Cor. 6. 7. he doth not forbid private men to defend themſelves againſt injuries by lawful means, or to ſeek for repair and ſatisfaction by the uſe of the lawful Magiſtrate: but forbids private revenge or publike, out of malice, or by rigorous proſecution of the Laws.

turn to him the other alſo] Though he ſmite maliciouſly, or in way of diſgrace, as Joh. 18. 10. Micha. 5. 1. be ſo far from rendring evil for evil, as that thou be prepared, rather to endure more injuries, then unlawfully to revenge the former.

V. 40. ſue thee at the law, &c.] Unjuſtly: if by force, fraud, unjuſt cavils, vexing ſuits, or force he get away thy goods.

let him have thy cloak alſo] See on verſ. 39.

V. 41. compell thee to go a mile] Under pretence of authority, compell thee or thy cattel, to carry or ſerve him; (as purſivants, and ſuch meſſengers, uſe to take up poſt-horſes) See chap. 27. 32.

go with him, &c.] See on verſe 39.

V. 42. give to him that asketh thee] If he have need, and thou canſt ſpare it, Luke 6. 30. Galat. 6. 10. 1 John 3. 17.

from him that would borrow] Deut. 15. 8.

turn not thou away] As thoſe are wont, that refuſe to hear or regard thoſe that entreat them. See Iſaiah 58. 7. lend him for his need, Luke 6. 35.

V. 43. Love thy neighbour] Levit. 19. 18.

and hate thine enemy] This the Scribes collected (though falſly) out of the text, either from the miſapplied rule of contraries, or elſe becauſe they were commanded to deſtroy the inhabitants of the land of Canaan, Deut. 7. 2 & 25. 17. 19. which rule they would hold with their particular enemies alſo.

V. 44. love your enemies] Luke 6. 27. A man may happily do good to ſome whom he loves not; but here our Saviour requires love of heart to them, who heartily hate us: love your friends in God, and your enemies for Gods ſake.

bleſſe them that curſe you] Expreſſe your hearty love in good words and wiſhes to them who wiſh you ill.

do good to them that hate you] Shew your love in good deeds to them, as 1 Sam. 24. 17. Pſal. 7. 4. Gal. 6. 10. Rom. 12. 20. render not evil for evil, but overcome thine enemy with good, which is the moſt glorious victory of the ſaints.

pray for them] As Luke 23. 34. Acts 7. 60. 1 Cor. 4. 12. this ſheweth, that Chriſt would have us ſo far from deſiring revenge, that he will not have us pray for it: but in caſe of injury to commend our cauſe to God, and to pray him to give them repentance, and mercy: therefore he would have us bleſſe them: he ſaith not, ſpeak well of them who are wicked and injurious (Gods ſpirit teacheth no man to lie) but pray for them.

and perſecute you] See verſ. 11, 12. this is to imitate Chriſt, and his Saints, Luke 23. 34. Acts 7. 60.

V. 45. that ye may be the children] That ye may hereby appear Gods children, who being the God of love, doth good to his enemies. See 1 John 3. 10.

of your father] Of God, whom ye muſt imitate, Epeſ. 5. 1.

which is in heaven] Chap. 6. 9. whom you muſt imitate. ſo may you not earthly fathers in all things, becauſe they may erre, and do, in ſome: God is abſolutely holy, ſo is no mere man.

maketh his ſun to riſe] Cauſeth his ſun to give light, and warmth, and the rain to cool and refreſh wicked men in their perſons, and their fields, that they may be fruitful.

V. 46. for if] Luke 6. 32.

ye love them which love you] Them onely, verſe 47. for we muſt love them that love us, elſe are we worſe then Publicans or Heathens, verſe 47.

what reward have ye?] Ye ſhall have no reward from God, for that which ye do for your own ends and affections; for ye do but render love for love, and love your ſelves in loving them.

do not even Publicans the ſame?] You do no more then the light of nature teacheth men to do. The Publicans, taking up tribute and cuſtom for the Romans, were counted moſt vile, and impious by the Jews: (ſee Luke 19. 8. & chap. 9. 10.) according to their ſenſe Chriſt here ſpeaketh; do not thoſe, whom your ſelves condemn as wicked, as much? will you not excell them, whom you eſteem the worſt of men?

V. 47. if ye ſalute] Or lovingly embrace, or aſk of their welfare, as 2 Kings 9. 17, 18, 19, 22. the word ἀσπάσησθε ſignifieth lovingly to embrace: but the Syriac interpreter giveth it, if ye ſalute: in this one office of humanity, he underſtandeth all ther offices of civilitie and friendſhip.

what do ye more] See on verſe 46.

V. 48. Be ye therefore perfect] That is, ſincere and compleat in all parts of piety, eſpecially in love towards all men, James 1. 4. & 3. 2. Coloſ. 4. 12.

CHAP. VI.

Verſe 1. THat ye do not your alms] Or deal not your alms, ἐλεημοσύνην, mercy and almes: ſome read δικαιοσύνην, righteouſneſſe, ſo the Syriac words which ſignifie, alms or righteouſneſſe, come both of the Hebrew root, צדק, to be juſt. 2 Cor. 5. 21. before men to be ſeen of them] We may and ought to do good before men, that God may be glorified thereby. See chap. 5. 16. but our end muſt not be to be praiſed of them, but to pleaſe God, verſe 2. Non eſt ingrata eleemoſyna quæ fit & videtur, ſed quæ fit ut videatur, that alms is not unacceptable, which is given, and ſeen of men; but that which is given to be ſeen of men. True righteouſneſſe, which is ſelf-glorious, deſpiſeth the applauſe of the world, à Deo genita Cœlum ſpectat, P. Chryſologus ſerm. 9. being born of God, it looks up to heaven for it reward and approbation. That righteouſneſſe, quæ ſe humanis oculis locat, which hireth it ſelf out to the eyes of men, cannot expect the reward of the heavenly father, It would be ſeen, it was ſeen; it would, and it hath pleaſed men; it hath the reward it looked for, it ſhall never have the reward which it undervalued. Let us take great heed to our ſelves: a wrong end propoſed, depriveth of all the fruits of thoſe things we do, though with never ſo much labour, coſt, or vigilancy.

no reward] The word is uſually taken in Scripture, for a free recompence, Rom. 4. 4. See chap. 20. 8.

of] Or with.

your father which is in heaven] See on Chap. 5. 45.

V. 2. when thou doeſt thine almes] When thou giveſt an almes. See verſe 1. and Rom. 12. 8.

do not ſound a trumpet, &c.] Cauſe not a trumpet to be ſounded before thee, alluding to the manner of calling the people together, Numb. 10. 3, 4. it may be they did uſe to ſound a trumpet when almes were to be given, that the poor might not go up and down begging, or loſe their times in coming, when nothing was yet ready for them: the Phariſees gave their private almes ſo, that they might have many witneſſes of their liberality to praiſe them, as well as receivers to thank them.

as the hypocrites do] The phariſees who are counterfeits, as thoſe that act other mens perſons in a Comœdie. See on Luke 13. 15.

in the ſynagogues, and in the ſtreets] This they did, that all the city might take notice of their charity.

that they may have glory with men] That their neighbours might praiſe, and admire them for good and holy men: the vain glorious hypocrite is, as Jerom l. 2. ep. 23. ſaid of a Philoſopher, popularis auræ vile mancipium, a baſe ſlave to popular applauſe: but however men ignorant of the heart, praiſe and canonize the wicked for ſaints, yet God cannot be deceived; the moſt rotten wood ſhineth moſt in the dark, the light diſcovereth it: and ſo that which is highly eſteemed amongſt men, is abomination in the ſight of God. See on Luke 16. 15.

they have their reward] τὸν μισθὸν αὐτῶν, their own reward, or have all their reward: they may make their acquittance: as the word ἀποχὴ (derived from the word here uſed, and Phil. 4. 18.) ſignifieth, they have that which they deſired, and aimed at, the praiſe of men. See on verſe 1. Having therefore received the reward they propoſed to themſelves here of men, they cannot reaſonably look for it again of God in the life to come. Such was that word which the rich man heard in hell, Luke 16. 25. Remember that thou in thy life time receivedſt thy good things, &c. now thou art tormented: but O quanta apud Deum merces, ſi unuſquiſque in præſenti, prætium non ſperaret? Jerom. l. 2. ep. 14. O how great ſhould be our reward with God, if no man would hope for the reward in this preſent life.

V. 3. let not thy right hand know] A proverbial ſpeech, ſignifying, that we ſhould be willing to give almes, when none ſees us, or not regarding other mens aking notice thereof: give with a minde ſo free from oſtentation, and divulging thine almes to others, that thou mayeſt (if it were poſſible that thou couldſt) conceal it from thy ſelf; leſt thy frail minde ſhould encline to any deſire of humane applauſe.

V. 4. thy father which ſeeth in ſecret] Whereas men look for honor and reward for the good they do, how vain, and fooliſh is it to expect theſe from men; ſeeing the al-ſeeing God, who is a moſt juſt and plentiful rewarder of all good, ſeeth the good we do, and will before men and angels publikely recompence even that which men knew not? See Matth. 25, 34. 37. Honour is a ſhadow of merit; which, if thou followeſt, thou canſt never overtake: if thou flieſt, it will follow, and not be divided from thee, while the light giveth it appearance.

V. 5. As the hypocrites are] See on verſe 2.

love to pray ſtanding in the ſynagogues,] They affect it, Chap. 23. 6,7. and uſe it to be heard of men.

in the corners of ſtreets] They loved to pray in publick places, as at the corners; where divers wayes meeting, many paſſing to and again might take notice of their devotion.

have their reward] See on verſe 2.

v. 6. when thou prayeſt] Privately, for publike prayers are to be made in Gods publike worſhip, in places appointed, and convenient for conventions, and aſſemblies of people.

enter into thy cloſet] Ταμεῖον properly ſignifieth any private place, where grain, any other goods, ſtore, or treaſures were laid up. See on John 5. 2. What then ſaith Theophylact, ſhall I not pray in the Church? Yes, but with a well compoſed minde, and without oſtentation: ὁ τόπος οὐ βλάπτει, ἀλλ' ὁ τρόπος καὶ ὁ σκοπὸς, the place hurteth not, but the manner, and intention: many pray in private to be heard of men.

pray to thy father which is in ſecret] Remember thy buſineſſe is with God in private, not with men in publike, and ſeek to pleaſe him alone, and not men, as they do, who pray ſo loud in their chambers, that they may be heard into the ſtreets.

which ſeeth in ſecret] This is that ſoveraign remedy againſt vain ambition, to recall, and ſet us ever in the ſight and preſence of God, who beholdeth all things in heaven and earth; yea, the very thoughts and intentions of every heart: ſo that being contented with his knowledge of us, and all our actions, we may faithfully endeavour to approve our ſelves to him. See Heb. 4. 13. 1 Chron. 28. 9. Rom. 8. 27. 1 Cor. 2. 10. Revel. 2. 23. Pſal. 44. 21. Jer. 17. 10.

ſhall reward thee openly] Luke 14. 14 It appeareth when God will reward the merciful, in the reſurrection of the juſt. See 1 Cor. 4. 5. He is thy father, who as he is delighted and well pleaſed with ſuch thy works, Heb. 13. ſo will he not conceal thy vertues: how willingly do we ſpeak of any excellencies in our childe, or thoſe we love? God will aſſuredly reward thee, not before a few men of this ſoon-periſhing generation, but before all the world, men, and angels. See on verſe 4.

v. 7. uſe not vain repetitions] Ecclus. 7. 14. Eccles. 5. 2. All long prayers are not here condemned: nor ſuch repetitions as are uſeful to ſtir up affections, but vain and needleſſe ones (See chap. 26. 44. and Luke 22. 44.) ſuch as Chriſt upbraideth the Phariſees with, chap. 23. 14. or Elias Baals prieſts, 1 Kings 18. 27.

as the heathen do] It was a ſhame for the Jews to imitate the Heathens in prayer, whom they abhorred, as impious. See Chap. 18. 17.

they think they ſhall be be heard for their much ſpeaking] This is his firſt reaſon to dehort them: what more vain, then to think to pleaſe the all-wiſe God, with ſuch folly, as is irkſom to any prudent man? the brethren in Egypt, ſaith Auguſtine ep. 121. c. 10.) are reported to have frequent, but very brief prayers; and thoſe in a manner ſuddenly ejaculated: leſt that intention of minde, which being vigilantly erect, which is very neceſſary to him that prayeth, ſhould vaniſh, and be dulled with long continuance: and by this they ſufficiently ſhew, that this intention, as it is not to be dulled, if it cannot continue, ſo neither is it quickly to be broken off, if it could laſt. Abſit enim ab oratione multa locutio, ſed non deſit multa precatio; ſi fervens, perſeverat intentio; let much ſpeaking be far from prayer, but let not much prayer be wanting, if the intention continue fervent: to ſpeak much in prayer, is (ſaith he) rem neceſſariam ſuperfluis agere verbis, &c. to do a thing neceſſary with ſuperfluous words.

v. 8. your father knoweth] This is another reaſon, drawn from the omniſcience and goodneſſe of God: you know that God knows your wants before ye aſk, and hath a fatherly care towards you; and therefore need not many repetitions of the ſame thing, to acquaint him with your wants, as if he were ignorant of them: Prayer is (as Auguſtine ſaith, ep. 120.) neceſſary to move us, not to enforme God: becauſe he is a gratious father, his care and readineſſe to give, preventeth your duty in aſking: we do not beg to informe God; but to performe our duty, to recount his promiſes, to ſhew our filial dependance on him, and to acknowledge him the author and giver of all good.

v. 9. after this manner] This is a true ſumme, and forme of all Chriſtian prayers, ſet down both in precept and pattern. See Luke 11 2.

v. 14. for if ye forgive] Mark 11. 25. v. 19. lay not up for your ſelves] Let it not be your chief care to be rich: or labour not ſo much to be rich here, as in Heaven: all treaſuring here is not ſimply condemned. See 2 Cor. 12. 14. John 6. 27. and here, chap. 9. 13.

treaſures upon earth] Where can be neither ſtabilitie of any poſſeſſion, nor continuance of poſſeſſours.

v. 20. but lay up] Luke 12. 33. 1 Tim. 6. 19.

treaſures in heaven] In a ſure place, free from all the former inconveniences: get the ſpiritual riches of grace, which will go with you into Heaven: do good to the poor, that ye may be rewarded in Heaven, as Luke 12. 33. Theſe are true riches: ſo are not the ſeculars; for they many times hurt the poſſeſſours, and commonly make them worſe: if thou loveſt them, peribis cum illis, Auguſtine de verb. Domini, ſ. Luc. ſerm. 35. thou ſhalt periſh with them: they are alwayes in danger of loſing: thoſe are true riches, quas cum habuerimus perdere non poſſumus, which when we once have, we can never loſe again, ſaith the ſame. The poor mans hand is a bill of exchange for heaven, whereby thou mayeſt ſafely remit thy eſtate, becauſe the juſt God undertaketh repayment, Prov. 19. 17.

V. 21. your treaſure] That which you make moſt account of.

there will your heart be] That is, your minde and affection. See Coloſ. 3. 2. The minde will follow it treaſure; which, if earthly, are commonly to the heirs breve gaudium, a ſhort joy: but to thoſe that got them unjuſtly, a cauſe of eternal ſorrow, Timoth. ad eccleſiam lib. 1. It is a ſhame then, that an heavenly ſoul ſhould be faſtned to the earth. Phil. 3. 19.

V. 22. the light of the body is the eye, &c. Luke 11. 34. As in the body, the eye guideth all parts and actions, which may be conveniently performed, if the ſight be clear, which otherwiſe muſt be troubleſome, and confuſed: ſo in the ſoul, if the reaſon be rightly illuminated, all the acts of the ſoul will be more eaſily and orderly performed, which otherwiſe muſt needs be exorbitant, and evil.

V. 23. but if thine eye be evil] See on verſe 22. an evil eye importeth ſometimes a covetous minde; Prov. 23. 6. ſometimes an envious diſpoſition, chap. 20. 15. but here, more generally a minde not well informed, or affected: to the good ſpiritual eye belong, charity in the intention, and truth in election. Bernard. de praecept. & diſpenſat. cap. 17.

either he will hate the one, &c.] Either his affection will be more to one then the other: or if it be poſſible to love both alike, yet in doing the commands of the one, he muſt needs neglect the buſineſſe of the other.

Mammon] That is, riches. See on Luke 16. 9.

V. 25. Therefore I ſay unto you] That you may not with too much care make your ſelves more unhappy.

take no thought] Take not too much care, no not for things neceſſary, much leſſe for ſuperfluous: we may not underſtand this ſimply, as if we might take no care, nor uſe any providence for our ſelves and ours: (See 1. Tim. 5. 8.) but be not immoderately careful, or diſtruſtfull of Gods care and providence over us. The word μεριμνᾶτε, is derived παρὰ τὸ μερίζειν τὸν νοῦν, from dividing the minde, and diſtracting it from Gods ſervice, and confident truſt in him: they miſtake this place, who would hence conclude that Chriſtians may not labour, or take care, but live idlely: the Nicene Councell, well determined (l. 3. Bin. To. 1. p. 401. C.) againſt ſuch inordinate living. See 2 Theſ. 3 10. 11.

what ye ſhall eat] Cogitatio victus, ſpinae ſunt fidei, ſaith Jerom l. 2. ep. 19. thought of viands is the thorns which choak up faith: underſtand it of care with diſtruſt of Gods providence.

is not the life more then meat?] That is, more excellent, or of more valew: God that hath given you the greater, hath given you the means to maintain it, and will not deny you the leſſer.

V. 26. behold the] Conſider well how they are fed.

the fowls of the air] Not thoſe about the houſe, which we feed: but thoſe which flie in the air, which no man provides for, neither can they without Gods univerſal providence provide for themſelves.

they ſowe not] Neither is this added to forbid us to labour, but from diffident care would he hereby diſſwade us, becauſe God can, and doth provide for the moſt helpleſſe: ſee 2 Theſ. 3. 10 Prov. 24. 31. he would teach us, in an holy, and prudent endeavour, to rely upon Gods providence, who feedeth thoſe creatures made for mans uſe, without their ſowing or care for times to come, and therefore will not fail to provide for men, without their vain perplexing themſelves: we muſt labour, but not be over ſolicitous; believing that God giveth the encreaſe and fruit of our labours, as the forecited Councell determined.

yet your heavenly father] Not theirs, as yours: their Creator, but your Creator, and Father by adoption; much more will he provide for you children, if he doth it for thoſe who are onely his creatures. See Rom. 8. 32.

V. 27. which of you, &c.] It is a vain thing for you to take care for the one, who cannot do the other.

to his ſtature] He that would be tall, cannot: or the word may ſignifie, to his age, as John 9. 21. Heb. 11. 11. then it ſhould ſignifie, that none could adde to his appointed time. See Luke 11. 21.

they toil not] As men and women do to get apparel, or to adorn themſelves, or others.

V. 29. Solomon in all his glory] Sitting in his royal robes, on his ſtately throne, 2 Chron. 9. 7.

like one of theſe] God puts more glory upon one flower, then art and coſt can put on the greateſt Monarchs, their conjecture, that think Chriſt here ſpeaketh of that flower, which is now called among us, the Tulipa, is very probable: their reaſons are, that the ſhape ſo agreeth, that we may think them, both for their leaves and bulbous root, to be a kinde of Lily: theſe are but ſtrangers with us, but grow commonly in the fields, in thoſe eaſtern parts, where Chriſt converſed: and though in regard of the ſtrangeneſſe of the flower, the proper name was alſo ſtrange, and is now to us of theſe parts; yet might it be a ſpecies of that which the Greeks called κρίνον, which ſome interpret by λείριον, ſometimes put for any flower. Secondly, that admirable and glorious variety of colours to be found in the Tulip, more then in any flower, may perſwade us ſo to think. So laſtly, may the wondrous beautie and mixtures of thoſe colours in theſe flowers conclude, Solomons princely magnificence in raiment, for colour, varietie, and beautie overcome by theſe flowers.

V. 30. If God ſo clothe] This is another argument from the leſſer to the greater, to diſſwade us from diſtruſting care: if God ſo glorioſly clothe the flowers of ſo ſhort continuance, what will he not do for man, created in his own image to eternity?

the graſſe of the field] Not onely the flowers of the garden, and the high and fruitfull trees, but even the graſſe which we tread upon Gen. 1. 11. James 1. 10, 11. 1 Pet. 1. 24. See on verſe 28.

to day is, and, &c.] Of ſo ſhort continuance. Pſal. 90. 5, 6. Baſil on Pſal. 44. noteth, that this Lily, is a flower, of all, ſoon periſhing and fading away, and ſo aptly reſembling the frailty of man.

caſt into the oven] Of ſo little accompt as to be made fuell.

ſhall be added unto you] Not as the main gift, but over and above, Mark 10, 30. as riches to Solomon, 1 King 3. 2. προστεθήσεται importeth, a caſting in, as ſome over weight, meaſure, or number.

V. 34. no thought for to morrow] No diſtracting care, as before. God forbiddeth us all faithleſſe, diffident, and impious care for the future: incuria autem ſollicitudinis relaxata, non negligentiae, ſed fidei eſt. Hilarie in Math. 6. Canon. 5.

reſpite and freedom from care, which is, a moderate unbending and reſting thereof, is no effect of lazy negligence, but faith.

the morrow ſhall take thought] The time to come, as Exod. 13. 14. Prov. 27. 1. it will bring care enough with it, ye need not vex your ſelves for it before hand; or it will bring proviſion with it.

ſufficient unto the day] You will finde trouble enough to day, ye need not adde to it.

CHAP. VII.

Verſe 1. JUdge not] See Rom. 2. 1. judge not raſhly of mens perſons and actions, as they who miſconſtrue doubtful things: nor rigidly and uncharitably, as thoſe who exaſperate ſmall faults in others, and are indulgent to great crimes in themſelves: ſuch Judges were the Phariſees. See Rom. 14. 4. Periculoſum quippe eſt, de ſervo alterius judicare, & non facilis venia, prava dixiſſe de rectis, Jerom l. 1. ep. 45. for indeed it is a dangerous thing to judge another mans ſervant; and to ſpeak evil of the good, is not eaſily pardoned. ὐκ οἶδας ὅτι κ̀ χαλεπώτερον σεαυτῷ ποιεῖς τὸ δικαςήριον ὕτω δικάζων, ſaith Chryſoſtom. hom. 85. in Ioh. knoweſt thou not, that thou preſcribeſt, and fore-pronounceſt to thy ſelf a more grievous judgement, while thou thus judgeſt another man.

v. 2. with what judgement ye judge, &c.] Oftentimes ye ſhall finde men ready to judge as hardly of you, as you of them; or, God will judge as ſeverely of you, as you do of others: ſome retaliation ſhall be. See Luke 6. 38. James 2. 13. Jer. 30. 16. Ezek. 35. 15. Obad. verſe 15. Levit. 24. 19. He ſpeaketh here againſt unjuſt, and raſh judgement: unjuſt, as when an incompetent judge condemneth (of which Rom. 14. 4.) or when a competent judge, unjuſtly: raſh, of which 1 Cor 4. 2. See Luke 6. 38. ſuch alſo is partial judgement; of which Salvian l. 4. de gub. Dei, ſaith, in the very ſame crime, punimus alios, nos abſolvimus, we puniſh others, and abſolve our ſelves.

and with what meaſure you mete] Mark 4. 24. Luke 6. 38. Judg. 1. 7. a proverbial ſentence: it is very equal that a man ſhould buy by the ſame meaſure by which he ſells: you would be loth to be hardly cenſured by others: do not that to others, which you would not ſuffer at their hands.

v. 3. and why beholdeſt thou] That is, thou doſt evilly: indeed, as Lactantius ſaith, l. 2. c. 3. Facilius eſt de alienis judicare, quàm de ſuis, it is eaſier to judge of other mens faults, then ones own: the eye ſeeth not it ſelf, nor any thing too neer it: ſo we hardly ſee our own ſins, but are too quick-ſighted towards others: and as the moſt ravenous, and miſchievous birds are moſt quick-ſighted; ſo are the moſt wicked to finde fault with others. He ſpeaks here in the ſingular number, to ſhew the need of particular application.

the mote that is in thy brothers eye] With what face canſt thou tax thy brother for ſmall faults, when thou beareſt with greater in thy ſelf? Some think it ſhould be read, a ſplinter, rather then a mote, becauſe that anſwers beſt to a beam: but the Syriac readeth, לגלא, leggello, feſtucam, the mote.

v. 4. Or how wilt thou ſay, &c.] Thou oughteſt for ſhame, firſt to amend thine own faults, before thou cenſureſt another for the ſame; leſt thou hear, Phyſitian cure thy ſelf: ſin and ſelf love blindeth men ſo, that they can ſee no faults at home: and ſuch perſons are commonly cenſorious. See Geneſ. 38. 24, 25. which rendreth a man unexcuſable, and ſelf-condemned, Rom. 2. 1. 3.

v. 5. thou hypocrite] Raſh cenſuring ſmells very ſtrong of hypocriſie; when men would ſeem to be ſo good, that they (as blameleſſe) would be correctors of others, and are ſo bad, that they allow, or diſpenſe with worſe faults in themſelves.

firſt caſt out, &c.] Firſt amend thy ſelf: and (becauſe as Hilarie ſaith, Canon. 5. in Matth. Difficile quenquam----præſtare quod exigat; it is hard to perform the duty thou requireſt of others, and it is beſt, to teach rather by example, then words) ſuſpend thy judgement of others: and as they were wont to ſay of old, ἀφ᾽ ἑςίας ἄρχυ, Ariſtoph. begin thy cenſure at home, and amend thy own faults firſt. How ſhall a man reprove anothers faults, αὐτὸς ἀφ᾽ ἑςίας τὴν παῤῥησίαν ὐκ ἔχων, Gr. Nazianzen Cæſario ep. 51. his ſelf having no confidence at home, or within his own conſcience. Firſt then, examine thy ſelf, whether thou didſt never commit the ſame fault, whether thy ſelf be yet amended, and clear of it, leſt elſe, as Nazianzen ſaid, Orat. 1. our ſelves being full of ſores, we onely endeavour, ἄλλυς ἰᾶσθαι, to cure others, not our ſelves: in caſe thou wert never guilty of ſuch ſin, yet charity ſaith, Cogitemus & nos homines, & habere potuiſſe, Auguſtine l. 2. de ſerm. Domini in mont. c. 30. let us remember that we alſo are men, and might have had the ſame faults: it is too ſure, we have many others. Laſtly, if we have ſinned ſo, but do not now; let us remember the common frailty of men, that mercy, not malice, may uſher in our reproofs. See Galat. 6. 1.

v. 6. give not that which is holy unto the dogs] Apply not the promiſes of the Goſpel unto prophane men; or ſpeak no more of them, to ſuch as perſecute you for your meſſage: or reprove not ſuch, Prov. 9. 8. for they are miſchievous like dogs, Philip. 3. 2. and will profane, but never profit by holy things. By dogs and ſwine, he meaneth the obſtinate, profeſſed, and impure enemies of the Goſpel, and the Miniſters thereof, 2 Pet. 2. 22. Revel. 22. 15. Pſal. 22. 16. and by holy, and pearls, the excellent and unſearchable riches of Chriſt, Epheſ. 3. 8. opened in the Goſpel, which Chriſt called, a pearl of great price, chap. 13. 46. See this precept in the type, Exod. 12. 43, &c. Levit. 22. 10. 25. Numb. 1. 51.

pearls before ſwine] Apply not the precious promiſes of the Goſpel to ſwiniſh men, which regard them no more, then ſwine do pearl, of whoſe uſe they can have no ſenſe.

trample them under their feet] As ſwine would do the richeſt pearls: leſt they ſcorn, and deride the promiſes and threatnings of Gods word, which is the certain fruit of unbelief, which Euthymius calleth their feet, wherewith ad perditionem gradiuntur, they go to deſtruction.

turn again and rent you] As beaſts ſometimes do to thoſe that feed them; ſo impious hearers perſecute their teachers, and hate them. 1 Kings 22. 8. Jer. 18. 18. &c. and 26. 8, &c. Mark 6. 17. Acts 7. 52. 57, 58.

v. 7. ask and ye ſhall have] Chap. 21. 22. Mark 11. 24. Luke 11. 9. John 16. 14. James 1. 6.

ſeek] Seek diligently, timely, and conſtantly: and thou ſhalt finde eternal riches.

knock] Pray earneſtly, this threefold promiſe annexed to the threefold precept, muſt encourage us to inſtant, and conſtant prayer: if God had commanded ſome great matter, would we not have done it to be ſaved? how much more when he ſaith, Ask and it ſhall be given you? Were the means unknown to thee, or loſt, thou oughteſt to ſeek, See John 5. 35. if it were lockt up, and the door ſhut, Knock and it ſhall be opened: it may be we ſhall not finde and underſtand all things that we would, yet muſt we continue knocking, as Peter did Acts 12. and as Auguſtine ſaid, To. 6. contr. Priſcil. c. 12. we ſo believe in God, that, although aliqua nobis pulſantibus non aperiat, he do not open to us knocking, ſome things, yet we may by no means murmur againſt him; for he hath revealed enough for our ſalvation: the old Hereticks, the Valentinians and Marcionites, would ſo wreſt this text, as if they ought alwayes to be to ſeek in religion, and not to reſt in the Scriptures, and doctrine of the Apoſtolical Churches, becauſe Chriſt ſaid, Seek and you ſhall finde: it may be ſaid to our modern Seekers, as the Spirit ſaith to the Angel of the Church of Sardis, Rev. 3. 3. Remember therefore how thou haſt received, and heard, and hold faſt: the reaſon of this preſent ſpeech is in three things, in the matter, time, and manner: that we firſt conſider what we muſt ſeek, when, and how far: we muſt ſeek Chriſt, and the knowledge of Gods will for our ſalvation in him; until we believe in him, that we may be ſaved: but as Tertullian ſaith adverſ. Hæret. cap. 8. inveniſti, cum credidiſti: thou haſt found when thou believeſt: we need not now any curious ſearch after Chriſt, and the Goſpell, Cum credimus, nihil deſideramus ultra credere, when we believe, we deſire not to believe any thing beyond the truth: for this is that which we believed before, that there is nothing more (then what the Scripture ſpeaks of God, and our ſalvation by Chriſt) which we ought to believe. Ultra Dei verbum nihil invenitur, Hilarie de Trinitat. lib. 2. there is nothing found beyond the word of God: Let us remember, ſaith Tertullian, when Chriſt ſaid, Seek and ye ſhall finde: it was in the firſt fruits of his doctrine, when moſt doubted whether he were Chriſt, we now believing in him, muſt be no longer ſtaggering, and to ſeeke of our faith and religion.

v. 8. every one that asketh] In faith, and according to Gods will; for God will deny others, Jam. 4. 3. Jam. 1. 6, 7. chap. 20. 20, &c. Luke 9. 54.

receiveth] Though men be unkinde, and deny to help the neceſſitous, God will give according to his gracious promiſe.

v. 9. what man is there, &c.] Or, If there were a man among you, Chap. 12. 11. & 24. 45. Luke 11. 5. 11. is any of you ſo inhumane, that if his ſon ſhould aſk him for food, would give him poiſon?

v. 10. a ſerpent] Would any man give his childe miſchievous things? How much leſſe will God give us any thing to hurt us?

v. 11. if ye then being evil] Why doubt ye of Gods good will toward you, who is perfectly good, when your ſelves, who are ſo evil, and ſo ignorant, that you know not at all times, what is good for your children; and ſometimes ſo harſh that you will not hear them, nor give them that which you know is good for them; yet your paſſion allayed, your natural affection prevailing, you will be ſure to do them all the good you can.

your father which is in heaven] See on chap. 5. 45.

good things] The good gifts of his Spirit, Luke 11 13. the holy Ghoſt, the author of all ſpiritual good: bodily goods which we aſk, God doth not alwayes give us, that he may give us ſomething better; according to that which Auguſtine ſaith: non tribuit ſæpe quod volumus, ut quod mallemus attribuat, ep. 34. ad Paulin. many times he giveth us not that which we would, that he may give us that which we had rather have. See on Luke 11. 13.

v. 12. whatſoever ye would] Luke 6. 31. that is, do to others that, which you being well enformed, adviſed, and freed from evil and diſcompoſed affection, would have them do to you.

this is the law and the prophets] This is required in the doctrine of the Law and the Prophets, and is the ſumme of that they teach, concerning the duty of man to man: the equalleſt law, to do as we would be done unto.

v. 13. enter ye in] Luke 13. 24.

at the ſtrait gate] Loaden travellers cannot paſſe through a ſtrait and narrow gate: ſuch is the way to eternal life, full of difficulties: therefore muſt we ſtrive to lay aſide every weight, and the ſin which doth ſo eaſily beſet us, that we may run with patience, Hebr. 12. 1. So full of dangers, obſtructions, and lets is this way, that the Holy Ghoſt ſaith, 1 Pet. 4. 18. If the righteous ſcarcely be ſaved----&c.

wide is the gate] It is eaſie to go to Hell: our own corrupt nature leadeth us that way: the cauſe of ſo many and grievous perſecutions, is ſinners impatience to be pulled out of that path; there is nothing in the world ſo eaſie, as to become wicked, becauſe we are born ſuch.

many there be which go] Example of others may not lead us, if we will not go to Hell for company. See Exod 23. 2. there is no patronage for wickedneſſe in multitudes, ubi major eſt peccantium turba, major eſt divinitatis injuria, Salvian. de gub. Dei, l. 3.

v. 14. becauſe] Or, how narrow, &c.

Straight is the gate] We muſt be contented through many preſſures and difficulties to go to heaven; for it is like a narrow way, which if we finde not, and out of which if we fall; we cannot avoid utter and eternall deſtruction of body and ſoul: we have need of Solomons caution, as chiefly when we go into the houſe of God (where the way to life is opened to us) ſo in all the whole courſe of our lives, Keep thy foot, Eccles. 5. 1. as there are many crooked lines between two points, but onely one ſtraight one: ſo are there many wayes to errour and damnation, but onely one way to ſalvation, Acts 4. 12. John 14. 6.

v. 15. Beware of falſe prophets] Falſe teachers, 2 Pet. 2. 1. ſeducers: ſometimes called falſe Apoſtles, 2 Cor. 11. 13. deceitful workers. See 1 Tim. 1. 7. 2 Tim. 3. 5, 6. this προσέχετε, importeth a diligent heed to be taken, as of a great danger: as Matth. 10. 17. & 16. 1. So here is a threefold danger deſcribed: 1. They come to you: they are bold intruders, and run without ſending, or calling. See Jerem. 23. 21. 32. 2 Tim. 3. 6. 2. In ſheeps clothing, that is, whatſoever is ſpecious, fair in ſhew, and apt to deceive the ſimple. See chap. 23. 14. &c. chap. 24. 24. now as it is true, turpiora ſunt vitia quæ virtutum ſpecie celantur, Jerom. l. 2. ep. 22. Celant. more filthy are thoſe vices wch are hidden under a ſhew of vertue: ſo indeed are they more dangerous to beguile others: of ſuch men Syricius ſpeaketh, who (ſaith he) under the vail of an holy name entring the houſe of prayer, powre out ſermonem ſerpentinæ diſputationis, the ſpeech of a ſerpent-like diſcourſe, inter ep. Ambroſ. l. 10. ep. 80. 3 Within they are ravenous wolves: See Acts 20. 28, 29. Conſiderate quid de gregibus agatur, quando lupi paſtores fiunt, Greg. hom. 17. in Evang. do but think how it will go with the flocks, when wolves are made ſhepherds.

which come unto you] Which joyn with you: or pretending to ſhew you a more ready and ſecure way to heaven, offer you their miniſtery.

in ſheeps clothing] Appearance of harmleſſe innocency.

inwardly they are ravening wolves] See Acts 20. 29. whatever ſhews of good will they make, they ſeek to deſtroy your ſouls.

V. 16. by their fruits] By their falſe doctrine, ſelf-ſeeking, and wickedneſſe, verſe 23. 2 Pet. 2. 1. which at laſt ſheweth what they are, as ripe fruits do trees.

do men gather grapes of thorns?] Luke 6. 43. every tree bringeth forth it own proper fruit after it kinde, Gen. 1 11. James 3. 12.

v. 17. every good tree bringeth forth good fruit] As ſeveral kindes of trees bear ſeveral fruits; ſo of one kinde there are ſome better then others, which the fruit diſcovereth.

v. 18. a good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit] Not generally and conſtantly, though accidentally it may fail in ſome particular: ſo though the beſt of the ſons of men do ſometimes fall into ſin, yet they live not in it, 1 John 3. 9. Rom. 7. 15. 17. 20. 25. and theſe fruits of the fleſh, are from the remainder of the old man, and unregenerate part; as ſometimes wilde and unſavoury fruit, groweth on the ſuckers of the old ſtock, which are not pruned off.

v. 19. every tree] Chap. 3. 10.

that bringeth not forth good fruit] Chap. 3. 10. We cut down unfruitful trees, though they bear no dangerous fruit. So men ſhall periſh that live not godly, though they be not prophane or notorious ſinners: we muſt ceaſe to do evil, and learn to do well, Iſaiah 1. 16, 17. Luke 13. 7.

v. 20. by their fruits] See on verſe 16.

v. 21. not every one] Not any that doth hypocritically worſhip God in word, without a ſincere heart; the bare profeſſion of true religion, is not ſufficient to ſave any man. What is a holy name without deſert, but ornamentum in luto? Salv. l. 4. an ornament in the dirt? And again he ſaith, Our very religion which we profeſſe, accuſeth our errours.

Lord, Lord] Rom. 2. 13. James 1. 22.

doth the will of my Father] That is, who not onely carefully endeavour to keep Gods law, but alſo truely believe in Chriſt; (for this is the will of God, that every one who ſeeth the ſon, and beleeveth in him, ſhould have eternal life, John 6. 40) and alſo that herewith bring forth the fruits of ſanctification, and holy obedience; for otherwiſe faith is dead, James 2. and the diſſervices of profeſſours, are but teſtimonies, as Salvian ſaid, lib. 4. Mali ſervi & boni Domini, of the evil ſervant of a good Lord; qualis enim eſt illa confeſſio, quæ ſic Deo credit, ut pro nihilo ducat ejus imperium? Jerom. ep. 22. for what is that confeſſion which ſo believeth in God, that it nothing valeweth his commandments? this is the will of God, even your ſanctification, 1 Theſ. 4. 3. To do the will of the Father, is therefore to believe, and walk conſcionably, according to the rule of Gods word.

v. 22. many will ſay unto me] Many ſhall be ſo much deceived in themſelves, that we have need to beware of falſe Prophets, and to look carefully to our own condition, before it be too late. See 2 Cor. 13. 5.

in that day] At the day of judgement.

have we not propheſied] Verſe 15. We never thought that we ſhould have been rejected, we expected the chief places in heaven, in recompence of our ſervice which we have done. The beſt gifts are nothing worth without true godlineſs, and ſome hypocrites and reprobates have excellent gifts of knowledge and preaching.

in thy Name] By thy authority, or to manifeſt thy power: for all the abuſed gifts of Impoſtors and wicked men, they ſhall once hear, what have ye to do to declare my ſtatutes, Pſal. 50 16. It it is a moſt abominable impiety which taketh up the ſacred Name of Chriſt, to cloak and colour it; O unſpeakable and prodigious wickedneſs! what will not impious mindes do? armant ſe ad latrocinandum per Chriſti Nomen, auctorem quodammodo ſui ſceleris Deum faciunt, Salv. 5. ſ. they arme themſelves to rob by the Name of Chriſt, and after a manner make God the author of their wickedneſſe; whereas Chriſt is the interdicter and revenger of all evils, they ſay they do that wickedneſſe they commit, in Chriſts Name, and for his ſake, and the advancement of his cauſe; the greater ſhall their damnation be.

wonderful works] Properly, powers; now theſe excellent works above nature, are called powers; becauſe therein appeareth the extraordinary power of God.

v. 23. I will profeſſe] Or confeſs, make it known unto them, and to men and Angels.

I never knew you] Luke 13. 27. Though you thought ſo highly of your ſelves, as in opinion thereof to condemn others; and though others magnified and admired your excellencies, yet I never approved of you, nor owned you for mine, Pſal. 1. 6. Rom. 7. 15. 1 Cor. 8. 3. Galat. 4. 9. 2 Tim. 2. 19.

depart from me] Pſal. 6. 8.

ye that work iniquity] That live in ſin, notwithſtanding the excellent gifts which I beſtowed upon you, and the ſacred profeſſion, which you tooke on you.

V. 24. therefore] This is the concluſion of our Saviours ſermon upon the mount; wherein he ſheweth by a ſimilitude, the firm eſtate of thoſe that practiſe the things he taught them in this ſermon: and the failing condition of thoſe that onely heard them; leſt any ſhould think they muſt be ſaved, becauſe they had heard ſuch an excellent ſermon, and that from Chriſts own mouth.

Whoſoever heareth theſe ſayings &c] Luke 6. 47.

unto a wiſe man] The firſt thing that a wiſe builder goeth about, is to finde a good foundation to build his houſe on.

V. 25. founded on a rock] By rain deſcending, &c. he meaneth troubles and perſecutions, like ſtormes and tempeſts, trying the conſtancy of Chriſtians: others underſtand it by the terrible day of judgement: by founded on a rock, he underſtandeth thoſe that do Gods will, being built upon Chriſt, who is our rock and foundation. 1 Cor. 10. 4. Epheſ. 2. 20.

V. 26. to a fooliſh man] An unwiſe builder, that layes no good foundation, though he may build curiouſly in the ſight of men.

V. 27. and it fell] He that onely hears, will fall ſhort of ſalvation: for he is not founded on Chriſt the rock. James 1. 22. See Rom. 2, 13. Luke 11. 28.

V. 28. the people were aſtoniſhed] Mark 1. 22. Luke 4. 32. See note thereon.

V. 29. as one having authority] Not coldly as the ſcribes, but boldly as with infallibility of ſpirit, and authority from God. Tit. 2. 15. or not as ſcribes grounding on the traditions of men: but delivering what he ſpake as divine oracles. See 1 Cor. 2. 4. 1 Pet. 4. 11. or, not as a ſubject or miniſter. but as a ſpirituall king in his own kingdom: and therfore he ſaid, ye have heard, but I ſay, &c. chap. 5. 21. &c.

CHAP. VIII.

great multitudes] Thoſe that heard the former ſermon, chap. 5. 1. &c. and others comming in to them before they came into the city where the following miracle was wrought.

V. 2. And behold] Mark 1. 40. Luke 5. 12.

worſhipped him] By falling on his knees firſt. Mark 1. 40. and then on his face. Luke 5. 12. a ſigne of humility.

Lord if thou wilt] He dares not aſk to be healed, but leaves it to Chriſt to do as he pleaſed; when he had declared his affliction to him: note his modeſty; this is called asking. Luke 5. 12. he obtained what he deſired. verſe 3. See the like in Hezekiah, Iſaiah 38. 3.

thou canſt make me clean] This ſheweth his faith: though his diſeaſe was incurable by men, yet he is confident that Chriſt can heal it.

V. 3. touched him] The law forbad to touch a leper, leſt others ſhould be infected by them. Levit. 5. 3. but Chriſt was above the law, and healed him by touching him: the lepers touching others, defiles, Chriſts touching him cleanſeth.

ſaying] Not out of oſtentation, to ſhew what he could do, but out of pitty to the leper. Mark 1. 41. and to ſhew his beneficence and readineſſe to do good.

I will] It is true as thou ſayeſt; I confirm it by healing thee.

be thou clean] A word of effectuall command; as, Gen. 1. 3. Let there be light.

immediately his leproſie was cleanſed] An argument of Chriſts divine power, that could heal him ſuddenly by his word. See Luke 5. 12. &c. There is nothing between the work and command of God; quia in præcepto eſt opus, ſaith Ambros, in Luc. l. 5. his will is his word, and his word his work: voluntas ejus menſura rerum eſt; ſermo ejus finis eſt operis. Ambroſ. Hexam. l. 3. c. 2. init. His will is the meaſure of things, his word is the end, or finiſhing of the work. V. 4. ſee thou tell it no man] Make no ſtay to tell it or talk of it to any, but hie thee to the Prieſt; as, Luke 10. 4. or, do not publiſh abroad, what I have done for thee. chap. 9. 30. He might ſeem by his miracles to be ambitious of fame; but thus he prevents that opinion: and becauſe in his ſtate of humiliation, he would not be manifeſted before the due time. See Mark 1. 44. &c.

that Moſes commanded] Levit. 14. 4.

for a teſtimony unto them] That they may beleeve. chap. 10. 18. 24. 14. Mark 6. 11. or for a teſtimony againſt them, to render them inexcuſable if they beleeve not; (as, Mark 13. 9. Gal. 5. 3. James 5. 3.) and if they ſhould calumniate him as an enemy to the law. See Mark 1. 44, 45.

V. 5. And when Jeſus] Luke 7 1.

there came unto him] Not in his own perſon, but by the elders of the Jews. Luke 7. 3. (as John ſpake to Chriſt by his Diſciples. chap. 11. 3.) ſo he is ſaid to beſeech him; that is, by thoſe he ſent to beſeech him: it ſeemeth, he firſt ſent, and afterward came unto him himſelf.

a Centurion] A commander of a band of ſouldiers, conſiſting of an hundred men, or more.

V. 6. lieth] βέβληται Is caſt down. verſe 14.

at home] This heathen mans care of his ſervant, keeping him in his own houſe, and looking out for cure for him, is an example for us, to tender our ſick ſervants.

V. 7. I will come] Our Saviour refuſed to go to the rulers houſe, being twice entreated by the ruler himſelf. John 4. 47. 49. but here he offereth to go, being but ſent unto by the Centurion; poſſibly the other thought Chriſt could not heal except he came to him, but this man was confident he could.

V. 8. I am not worthy] The beſt men have loweſt thoughts of themſelves.

ſpeak the word onely] See on verſe 7.

V. 9. For I am a man under authority] If I being a man under the command of others, yet having others under my command, can thus do; much more canſt thou who haſt abſolute command? thus men ſhould take occaſion by their own command over others, and their ready ſubjection to them, to conſider Gods ſovereign authority over themſelves, and be ready to obey him in all things.

go, and he goeth] Not queſtioning why and wherefore, but without delay doing that which is enjoyned; ſo will this ſickneſſe be gone at thy command.

he marvelled] As man, and ſhewed ſome outward ſigne of admiration to others: as God, he knew the faith of the Centurion, for he gave it; as man he knew not all, and ſo he marvelled at a faith ſo rare and commendable.

no not in Iſrael] That is among the Jewiſh nation, who had been continually inſtructed in the ſcriptures teſtifying of Chriſt: Hence it appeareth, that the Centurion was an heathen man, though probably a proſelyte. Luke 7. 5.

V. 11. many ſhall come] Our Saviour takes occaſion from the commendation of the Centurions faith, to ſpeak of the calling of the Gentiles, and rejection of the Jews.

from the eaſt and weſt] From all parts, as Iſaiah 12. 12. and 43. 5. an alluſion made to Jacob. Gen. 28. 14.

ſhall ſit down] A metaphor taken from banquets or feaſts, where men of different conditions ſit down together. Iſaiah 25. 6. Matth. 22. 2. Luke 22. 30.

with Abraham, & Iſaac, and Jacob] the Jews ſcorn to eat with ſtrangers now, but the time ſhall come when ſtrangers ſhall enjoy eternall happineſſe with their holy anceſtours, and they themſelves ſhall be excluded.

V. 12. children of the kingdom] As chap. 9. 15. who were born of thoſe parents to whom the kingdom was promiſed: and by vertue of the covenant. Rom. 9. 4. it had ſtill belonged to them, had they not forfeited it by their unbelief and wickedneſſe.

into utter darkneſſe] The darkneſſe of hell. 2 Pet. 2. 4. Jud. verſe 6. compared to priſons, which were often times out of the city. Acts 12. 10. meaning, they ſhould be in a ſtate moſt remote from heavenly joy and bleſſedneſſe.

weeping] Iſaiah 55. 14. For their ſorrow and pain.

gnaſhing of teeth] A ſigne of envy at the felicity of Gods people. Pſal. 110. 12.

V. 13. go thy way] Take no further care, thy requeſt is granted. So 2 Sam. 14. 8. Mark 5. 34. & 7. 29. & 10. 52. Luke 7. 50. & 8. 48. John 4. 50. & 8. 12.

into Peters houſe] Which was in Bethſaida. John 1. 44. unleſſe he were born there, and lived at Capernaum: or removed his dwelling after he was called to be an Apoſtle, that he might the better attend on Chriſt: or elſe that at Bethſaida was his own houſe, and this at Capernaum his mother in laws houſe, which he uſed to repair to when he came thither, which is moſt probable: for the houſe here ſpecified, appeareth to have been at Capernaum. verſe 5. Mark 1. 21. 29. That was ſtill Peters houſe, though he truely profeſſed, that they had left all: that is, the preſent uſe, but not the propriety.

of a fever] Gr. Of a burning fever.

V. 15. He touched her hand] After he was entreated to heal her, Luke 4. 38. and had rebuked the fever, as one that had authority over it, Luk. 4. 39. non ſtat infirmitas ubi auctor ſalutis aſſiſtit, Chryſol. ſerm. 18. infirmity ſtandeth not, where the author of health aſſiſteth.

and miniſtred unto them] To ſhew her thankfulneſſe, and that ſhe was perfectly cured. See John 5. 8, 9.

V. 16. when the even was come] Mark 1. 32. Luke 4. 40.

poſſeſſed of devils] This miſchief of poſſeſſion, it ſeemeth, was then very common among the mallitious Jews: no wonder, where ſtriſe, envy, and malice are, that wiſdom is deviliſh, James 3. 14, 15. where love is, there God is, for God is love, 1 John 4. 8. where malice is, the devil eaſily taketh poſſeſſion of his own: if Chriſt own his diſciples by their mutual love, John 13. 35. Satan muſt needs know the mallitious and revengeful for his own.

with his word] Not as the blaſphemous Jews ſaid, through Beelzebub, chap. 12. but by his own word and power, as being Lord of all the creatures. See Pſal. 106. 9. therefore the devil neither would, nor durſt ſtay, when he ſaid, Go. verſe 9.

all that were ſick] Of all ſorts, or all that came to him to be healed.

V. 17. That it might be fulfilled] It was in a ſort fulfilled, by his having compaſſion on us, manifeſting a kinde of participation with us, in all our bodily infirmities, Heb. 4. 15. or by taking away bodily diſeaſes from men, which was a type of healing their ſouls: but it was principally fulfilled, by bearing all the puniſhment due to our ſins: ſo were we healed by his ſtripes, Iſaiah 53. 4. 1 Pet. 2. 24.

V. 18. great multitudes about him] So many, that he could not conveniently converſe with them, or attend that which was neceſſary for himſelf or his followers, Mark 3. 9 10. 20. which ſeemeth to have occaſioned the commandment following.

to the other ſide] For Capernaum was ſituate on the lake of Tiberias.

V. 19. a certain Scribe] See on Luke 20. 1. Syr. חד ספרא, ſophro chad, one Lawyer, or a certain Scribe, it ſeemeth they were one and the ſame. See Chap. 13. 52. Luke 10. 25. 1 Cor. 1. 20. and Tit. 3. 13.

whitherſoever thou goeſt] I will leave all to follow thee.

20. foxes have holes] He doth not ſay, Kings have palaces, but I have none; or rich men have houſes and lands, to entertain their followers, but I have none: but, the foxes and birds have, &c. as if he ſaid, thou art deceived, who thinkeſt of following me for temporal preferment, who poſſeſſe nothing ſecular, no not ſo much as an houſe.

neſts] Places of abode, or ſhelter, in trees, or other convenient receptacles, as Pſal. 84. 3. & 104. 17.

the Son of man] I that live in a mean repute, and a contemptible eſtate among men, hoc nomen impoſuit, quo ſe familiarius appellari voluit, &c. Auguſtine Honorato ep. 120. he gave himſelf this name, by which he would be more familiarly called.

hath not where to reſt his head] Either he lived in an hired houſe, or lodged with his Diſciples. He doth not forbid him to follow him, but ſecretly pointeth at his carnall intention in ſuch his tendering of ſervice: as P. Chryſologus ſaith, ſerm. 19. non repulit volentem, ſed fingentem prodidit, He repelled not one willing to follow him, but diſcovered a diſſembler.

V. 21. ſaid unto him] After that Chriſt had called him, Luke 9. 59.

ſuffer me firſt] Before I follow thee.

to go and bury my father] Let me ſtay till my father be dead, that I may performe the laſt office to him, and then I will wholly attend on thee.

V. 22. Follow me] Chriſt called him to preach the Goſpel, Luke 9. 60. in which caſe, parents and all were to be left, chap. 4. 20. 22.

let the dead bury their dead] Let them that are dead in ſin, bury them that are dead for ſin, 1 Tim. 5. 6. it ſeemeth an alluſion to the rites of prieſts and Nazarites, who were forbidden to be preſent, at the funeral exequies of the dead, Levit. 10. 6. Numb. 6. 6. non pietatis obſequium negat, &c. Chryſol. 5. ſ. he denieth not the obſequie of piety, but preferreth the ſervice of God before humane affections.

V. 23. when he was entred] Though he gave commandment to go over, verſe 18, yet the Diſciples took not ſhipping, till he was gone aboard himſelf.

V. 24. and behold] Mark 4. 37. Luke 8. 23.

the ſhip was covered with waves] She ſhipped much water in thoſe overgrown ſeas, in ſo much that ſhe was ready to founder, and ſink down.

he was aſleep] To ſhew the truth of the humane nature, and the weakneſſe of faith in his Diſciples.

V. 25. we periſh] Thus they cried out in their fear and affrightment, and by way of expoſtulation, as Mark 4. 38. Careſt thou not that we periſh? and therefore he juſtly checks them, verſe 26.

V. 26. O ye of little faith] As Math. 6. 30.

rebuked the windes] To ſhew his authority over them; leſt they might think the ſudden allay of the windes, was either natural or accidental: he commandeth them to ceaſe, that they might know it was by his extraordinary power: and to ſhew himſelf the Lord of ſea and windes, he ſpeaketh ſo in his Diſciples hearing, to aſſure them that all the creatures are ſubject to his command.

V. 27. the men] Which ſailed in this ſhip, or in the other veſſels in company. Mark 4. 36. Luke 8. 23.

V. 28. When he was come] Mark 5. 1. Luke 8. 26.

of the Gergeſens] Some think them to be a remnant of the Gergaſhites mentioned. Gen. 10. 16. they are called Gaderens by the other Evangeliſts, either becauſe the city had two names: or elſe both theſe cities ſtood neer together on the lake of Tiberias, and the countrey was called ſometimes by the name of the one, and ſometime of the other. See on Luke 8. 27. See Joſeph. de bel. Jud. l. 2. c. 20.

there met him] So great was Chriſts power over them, that they were enforced to come before him, who elſe would willingly have run from him.

two poſſeſſed with devils] Mark 5. 2. Luke 8. 26. mention but one. See on Luke 8. 27. Auguſtine. To. 4. de conſenſ. Evangeliſt. l. 2. c. 24. reſolves that the one mentioned was, perſona alicujus clarioris & famoſioris, quem regio illa maximè dolebat, &c. a more eminent and more noted perſon, whom that countrey ſpecially bewailed.

out of the tombs] Or, from among the tombs: they were made out of the cities, and ſo, that men might hide themſelves therein, See on Luke 8. 27. Theſe were ſolitary places, whither the devils carried the poſſeſſed from the ſociety of men, to make them in their ſuddain appearing, formidable to the paſſengers occaſioned to go by them.

exceeding fierce] The devil fills them whom he poſſeſſeth with cruelty.

V. 29. they cryed out] Before Chriſt ſaid any thing to them, they felt his divine power conventing them before him, of whom they were much afraid.

what have we to do with thee?] Why comeſt thou here to us? See 2 Sam. 16. 10. 2 Chron. 35. 20. John. 2. 4.

Jeſus thou Son of God] This confeſſion of the devils, is either out of fear, or malice, to make the world ſuſpect that to be falſe, becauſe Satan ſpake it. It is a true ſaying, Lyers ſo bring it to paſſe, ut nec vera dicentibus credatur, Jerom ep. Julian l. 1. ep. 2. that none believe them when they ſpeak truth.

to torment us before the time] As if he ſaid, This is our time to torment others: why doſt thou come to torment us before the day of judgement? either they feared that Chriſt would now ſend them to Hell to abide there, or it was a torment in their accompt, to be caſt out of thoſe they poſſeſſed, as Luke 8. 28, 29.

V. 30. a good way off] On a hill, as Mark and Luke teſtifie.

a herd of many ſwine] Some think theſe people were of thoſe whom the king of Aſſyria had placed in Iſrael long before; others that they were a kinde of Greeks, having a mixt religion, and ſo kept ſwine: others, that there was a Colony of Romans in thoſe parts. See Iſa. Caſaubon. exercit. 13. 34. and on Luke 8. 32.

V. 31. the devils beſought him] They could not go into ſwine without his leave, much leſſe into men.

ſuffer us to go, &c.] When they cannot hurt men, they deſire to hurt their goods, See Job 1. 10, 11. the reaſon why they deſired to deſtroy the ſwine, was firſt, that they might be doing ſome miſchief, though they could not do all they would: next that they might have occaſion of tempting the worldly Gadarenes to blaſpheme Chriſt, for the loſſe of their ſwine: and laſtly, that they might affect the Gadarens carnal hearts with diſlike of the Goſpel, which brought them ſuch loſſe, as it here fell out.

V. 32. he ſaid unto them, Go] Chriſt granted the devils petition, who ſometimes, and in ſome things, denieth ours; to teach us to ſubmit our wills wholly to his, who ſometimes granteth in juſtice, and ſometimes denieth in mercy.

when they were come out] Out of the poſſeſſed men.

the whole herd of ſwine ran] About two thouſand ſwine, Mark 5. 13.

ran violently down] Being carried by the power of the ſpirits poſſeſſing them.

into the ſea] Into the lake of Gennezareth.

and periſhed in the waters] Chriſt thus juſtly puniſhed them, who were the owners of theſe beaſts, knowing their hearts who preferred them before their own ſalvation by Chriſt; as many now do their pleaſures, which God therefore both in juſtice and mercy taketh from them.

V. 33. they that kept them, fled] For fear.

V. 34. they beſought him] They offer no violence unto him; they knew they could not that way prevail againſt him, by overpowering him, who could command the very powers of Hell.

depart out of their coaſts] Leſt they ſhould ſuffer any further loſſe by his being there: thus they preferred their ſwine before Chriſt, as Eſau, a portion of meat before his birthright. Gen. 25. 34. It had been a ſingular bleſſing that Chriſt vouchſafed to viſit them, had they made a right uſe thereof for their ſalvation: but marke how impious mindes abuſe and embitter all Gods favours; Secondly, obſerve what wretched petitions the blinded worldly men ſometimes preſent to God; how many deſire that, which if obtained, would prove a ſevere curſe unto them?

CHAP. IX.

verſe 1. I*Nto a ſhip.*] The ſhip which had newly brought him thither. chap. 8. 23.

into his own city] Capernaum; for as Chryſoſt. hom. 30. in Matth. and Theophyl. ſay, Bethleem brought him forth, Nazareth brought him up, and Capernaum was his dwelling place. Matth. 4. 13. thither he went to abide for a time, after he had been endangered at Nazareth. Luke 4. 29. It is called his city, becauſe he was very often there; after he had gone thorow all Galilee preaching. In the firſt yeer of his miniſtry, he ſetled in Capernaum; whence it is called of the Evangeliſts, his city.

V. 2. And behold] Mark 2. 1. &c. Luke 5. 17. but both anticipate and alter the order thereof: all agree in the ſubſtance. 1. The faith of thoſe that brought the ſick man. 2. Chriſt his anſwer. 3. The Phariſees calumny. 4. Chriſt his defence. 5. The miracle and effect thereof.

a man ſick of the palſie] Which is a diſeaſe well known of many; ſo luxating and diſſolving the ſinews, that beſides the pain, it rendreth one unable to help or move himſelf; and it is rarely cured by men.

ſeeing their faith] Theirs that took ſuch pains to carry him to Chriſt, as his alſo that would ſo be brought: he ſaw their faith, as man, by the fruits of it; in that they brought a man ſo incurable, let him down through the roof of the houſe, and laid him before him; ſaying nothing, as not doubting but that he would cure him if he ſaw him in that miſery. Mark 2. 4. Luke 5. 19. As God he knew it of his own omniſcience, without theſe forementioned effects: as he knew the thoughts of the ſcribes. Mark. 2. 8. Luke 5. 22.

ſon, be of good cheer] Be comforted, and doubt not of the recovery of thy health, now thy ſinnes are forgiven thee, which were the cauſe of thy ſickneſſe.

thy ſinnes are forgiven thee] Which he beſt knew, who forgave them as God, and interceded for him as the onely Mediatour between God and man. 1 Tim. 2. 5. hence it appeareth, that ſinne is the cauſe of all diſeaſes and miſeries. Secondly, that Chriſt is that onely Phyſician, who can cure body and ſoul. Laſtly, that the condition of beleevers is bleſſed, in that they obtain more then they could aſk or think; as this paralyticall man here did, whom he therefore called ſonne; becauſe faith made him a Sonne of God. John 1. 12. So good is our God, that faith obtaineth, before it can perceive it hath obtained: ſo he heareth us before we call. Iſaiah 65 24.

V. 3. Certain of the ſcribes] Luk. mentioneth the Phariſees alſo; they commonly joyned (as wicked men uſe to do) to oppoſe Chriſt.

ſaid within themſelves] ἑαυτοῖς. Syr. בנפשהון benaphſhehaun in their ſouls: that is, they thought within themſelves; they did not openly murmure, but ſecretly thought impiouſly, expecting the opportunity of cenſuring, when they were among other company. See on Mar 2. 6. Pſ. 14. 1.

this man blaſphemeth] βλασφημεῖν, is as it were βλάπτειν τὴν φήμην, to hurt anothers fame or reputation: Suidas interpreteth βλάσφημος, ὁ εἰς Θεὸν ἐξυβρίζων, one who injureth God with contumelious words; which is either when men detract from God his honour due; or attribute any evil to him. So they thought Chriſt derogated from Gods prerogative to forgive ſins, and arrogated it to himſelf: it is indeed in God alone to forgive ſinnes, Iſaiah 43. 25. this ſheweth therefore that Chriſt is God; which they would not underſtand in all his miracles which they ſaw.

V. 4. knowing their thoughts] See on verſe 2. Thus alſo he ſhewed himſelf to be God, by ſhewing what they thought: they diſſembled their calumny in their hearts, he ſaw it lurking there.

Wherefore think ye evil] of me, as a blaſphemer: he doth not doubtfully object, as one that ſuſpected their thoughts by ſome whiſpering, countenance, or outward geſture; but openly chargeth, and reproveth them for the ſinne of their heart which he ſaw, which none but God could do.

V. 5. Whether is it eaſier to ſay] Ye think it harder to heal the palſie, then to forgive ſinnes: ye ſhall know then, that I have power to forgive ſinnes, by my healing this man with my word: it is indeed more to remit ſinne, then to heal a ſick man, but not ſo eaſie to convince another, by a thing not ſeen, as by a work diſcernable by the eye.

V. 6. The Son of man] See on chap. 8. 20.

power] Gr. Authority.

on earth] Though he abide here on earth, and live here as man, converſant with men, and in a ſtate of humiliation.

take up thy bed] That all may know that thou art perfectly healed. See on chap. 8. 25.

V. 7. and he aroſe] Suddenly and perfectly cured, taking up his bed; who before, could not move himſelf. Luke addeth, glorifying God, as verſe 8. Chriſt having proved by this admirable work, that he, as God, had power to remit ſinne, as well as to take away the moſt deſperate effects thereof: all diſeaſes, (had the ſpectatours been conſtant to their own principles, that none can forgive ſinne but God onely) they might thence have come to beleeve in him the Meſſias and Redeemer, but envy and malice had blinded them ſo, that they could be conſtant in nothing but ſinne and errour.

V. 8. they marvelled] To amazement and fear, as Luke expreſſeth it.

glorified God] That is, they divulged the power and goodneſſe of God, ſhewed in that miracle, which is the principall end of miracles; that in conſideration thereof, we ſhould beleeve Jeſus Chriſt to be the Son of God maniſeſted in the fleſh: which though all did not hear, who marvelled and feared, yet doubtleſſe ſome did; who by the operation of the holy Ghoſt in them, truely apprehended him to be their Saviour and Redeemer.

unto men] That is unto a man; for ſuch Chriſt appeared unto them, though the power working theſe things, was confeſſed to be divine.

V. 9 And as Ieſus paſſed] Mark 2. 14. Luke 5. 27.

named Matthew] He is called Levi in the other Evangeliſts, he had two names.

ſitting at the receit of cuſtome] At the cuſtom-houſe: it ſeemeth to have been by the ſea ſide; Mark 2. 13. It may be, he was to receive the cuſtomes due from merchants and paſſengers.

and followed him] He adviſeth not with fleſh and blood, ſaying, how ſhall I live, whither ſhall I go; how ſhall I bear the malice of the Phariſees, who hate Chriſt and all his followers, but goes after him inſtantly. Gal. 1. 16. Luke ſaith, he left all: that is, his books, and buſineſſes of the cuſtomes and that courſe of life; wholly addicting himſelf to the ſervice of Chriſt: we may not conceive that he deſerted or gave away his eſtate, perſonall or reall; for he afterward entertained Chriſt at his houſe: verſe 10. but ſo uſed them, as his calling to Chriſt, and following him, would permit: So Peter, Andrew, James, and John followed Chriſt: they left their ſhips and nets, and fiſhing, yet Peter ſtill retained his houſe. chap. 8. 14.

v. 10. in the houſe] In Matthews houſe, who made a feaſt for him. Luke 5. 29.

many Publicanes and ſinners] Qui vectigalia redimebant, Publicani appellati &c. Volateran. de Magiſtr. & ſacerd. Roman. they that were here together, ſeem to have been the friends and acquaintance of Matthew, whom he therefore invited, that they alſo might hear, and be won to Chriſt and ſalvation: ſome here underſtand two ſorts of men; by Publicanes Matthews fellow-officers: and by ſinners, thoſe that were of notorious, bad and looſe lives, or ſuch as the Jews had caſt out of their ſynagogues; as, John 9. 22. 34. infamous perſons among them. (Of Publicanes ſee on Luke 3. 12.) Others think them to be all one, and the Publicanes were called ſinners, becauſe they were imployed by the Romans to gather their tribute, and for the moſt part did it with much rigour and oppreſſion of Gods people.

v. 11. When the Phariſees ſaw it] It is not likely, that the Phariſees would go into the houſe of a Publican to ſee it; but either they heard Matthew invite him, and ſaw them going along to the houſe, or elſe they knew it by report from others.

ſaid unto his diſciples] They ſtill catch up any occaſion to calumniate Chriſt. See on Luke 19. 7. they durſt not aſk Chriſt, becauſe they knew they were not able to deal with him, but ſay this to his diſciples, to alienate their affections from their Maſter; ſeeing that by their tradition, they were not to eat or commerce with Publicanes or infamous perſons.

v. 12 When Jeſus heard that] From his diſciples, or overheard the Phariſees ſpeaking to them.

They that be whole, need not a phyſician] I muſt converſe with theſe, becauſe they are ſpiritually ſick, and I am the phyſician of ſouls; they are ſinners, I am their Saviour; others think they have not ſo much need of me: bonus medicus qui infirmitates noſtras accepit. Ambroſ. l. 10. ep. 81. He is the good phyſitian, who took on himſelf our infirmities.

V. 13. go ye and learn &c.] You that glory in your knowledge, and will be the onely teachers of all others, are yet ignorant of the main; therefore go learn, for ſhame.

I will have mercy] Hoſ. 6. 6. chap. 12. 7. That mercy is better then ſacrifice, See Hebr. 13. 16. God by the prophet upbraideth them with their hypocriſie, who pretended ſo much ſanctity in their ſacrifices and offerings; when indeed, they had within them, neither love to God, nor charity to their neighbour: the prophet put חסד Cheſed, benignity, or beneficence: the Greek ἔλεος mercy. Hoſ. 6. 6. chap. 12. 7. for beneficence is a ſure effect of mercy.

and not ſacrifice] More, or rather then ſacrifice, as it is expounded. Hoſ. 6. See the like manner of ſpeaking, Gen. 32. 28. Prov. 8. 10. Luke 14. 12. 1 Cor. 1. 17. Chap. 6. 19.

I am not come to call the righteous] That is, illos juſtos, qui in ſanctitate generis, et literâ legis gloriantur. Paulinus Auguſtino. ep. thoſe righteous, who glory in the ſanctity of their anceſtours, and the letter of the law. Such as you Phariſees, who think your ſelves righteous, and all others contemptible ſinners: I come to convert ſuch as have not yet repented; and how ſhall I do that, if I converſe not with them: though they that are converted are infirme, yet have they not ſo much need of my preſence, as thoſe who are yet in impenitency, and ſo deſperately ſick in ſoul.

ſinners to repentance] 1 Tim. 1. 15.

V. 14. The diſciples of John] Matthew names theſe onely, becauſe theſe were the ſpeakers: Luke names the Phariſees onely, becauſe they ſet them on work, that they might diſgrace Chriſt, by that authority which John had with the people; Mark nameth both, becauſe both had hands in it.

why do we and the Phariſees] Mark 2. 18. Luke 5. 33. They propoſe themſelves as examples: and the ſenſe is, why do not you faſt, as well as we? as reprehending his neglect therein; we have our ſet faſts, why joyn you not with us therein. See zach. 7. 5. beſides, the Phariſees enjoyned their diſciples weekly faſts. Luke 18.

but thy diſciples faſt not] Either thy way, or ours taught us by John is not right: but we muſt know that John and Chriſt had divers ſchools and diſciples, but not contrary: for John was to prepare the way of Chriſt; and that Johns diſcipline was much more ſtrict and auſtere, then Chriſts ſchool could conveniently bear: therefore the Phariſees liked Johns auſterity better then Chriſts gracious affability, and commerce with ſinners; ſo that they could have found in their hearts to have received John as their Meſſias. John 1. Luke 3. therefore in this queſtion about faſting, the Phariſees and Johns diſciples joyn.

V. 15. Can the children of the bride-chamber] μὴ δύνανται, or as Nazianzen orat. 26. readeth ȣ̓ δύνανται, they cannot, that (ſaith he) is called impoſſible, which is not reaſonable, or convenient, which the interrogation implies: can the &c. that is, do you think it reaſonable, or fit? children of the bride-chamber after the Hebrew manner are thoſe called, which are moſt converſant and familiar with the bridegroom. See on Luke 20. 36. the whole ſenſe is; John Baptiſt, your maſter, taught you that I am the bridegroom, John 3. 29. that this time of my living here on earth, is the time of my eſpouſalls to my church. Epheſ. 5. 25. 27. &c. my diſciples are children of the bride-chamber: how can they mourn untill theſe feaſting dayes be over? that is the incomparable joy which they now have, in gathering a pure virgin church unto me, and eternall ſalvation, by preaching of the goſpel.

mourn as long] Can they be in heavineſſe while I, their Saviour am with them? is it reaſonable that they ſhould, in the very time of great joy, which ſhould be to all people, Luke 2. 10. in the day of ſalvation. 2 Cor. 6. 2. the time of rejoycing foretold by the prophets. Iſaiah 35. 1, 2. Jer. 31. 13. Joel 2. 23. zach. 2. 10. Zach. 9. 9.

when the bridegroom ſhall be taken from them] When I ſhall be taken from them into heaven.

V. 16. a piece of new cloth] Or raw or unwrought cloth: ῥάκους ἀγνάφου panniculi impoliti. Budæus. ſome interpret thus, as new cloth is not fit to be put upon the old, nor new wine into old caſk: ſo it is not fit to teach this doctrine of the goſpel newly manifeſted to you and the Phariſees, who ſtand too much upon old traditions: others better thus, as the old garment cannot long bear a new piece, nor the old veſſells new wine, becauſe of their weakneſſe: ſo my diſciples cannot yet bear this auſtere diſcipline, till I am aſcended up into heaven, and ſend down the gifts of my ſpirit in a more plentifull meaſure upon them.

V. 17 new wine into old bottles] See on verſe 16. He uſeth this manner of ſimilitude, that he might ſhew that he ſeparated Evangelii novitatem à legis vetuſtate— ſicut fructus ſeparatur à ſemine, the newneſſe of the goſpel from the oldneſſe of the law,— as the fruit is ſeparated from the ſeed. Tertul. l. 4. c. 11. adverſ. Marcion: ſo indeed is the goſpel to the law; diverſum ſed non contrarium, divers, not contrary: the goſpel was in the law, as the corn in the blade; underſtood, but not yet appearing, untill maturity in the fulneſſe of time; the harveſt of which Chriſt ſpake. John 4. 35.

V. 18. While he ſpake theſe things] While the Phariſees endeavour to calumniate Chriſt, God giveth him a double occaſion to convince them, and manifeſt his divine power.

a certain ruler] Mark 5. 22. Luke 8. 41. Jairus, whom they call ἄρχοντα τῆς συναγωγῆς a ruler of a ſynagogue. See on Luke 13. 14.

worſhipped him] By falling down at his feet. Mark 5.

lay thy hand upon her] His faith was ſhort of the Centurions, though he were ruler of a ſynagogue: the Centurion deſired Chriſts word onely. See chap. 8. 8

V. 19. Jeſus aroſe and followed him] Graciouſly complying with his weakneſſe, who could as well have raiſed her from the dead, by his word onely, abſent as preſent.

V. 20. with an iſſue of blood twelve yeers] She had been a long time ſick, and as it appeareth by the other Evangeliſts, had tryed many phyſicians, and was now in a wretched condition, having no more means to conſult others, yet Chriſt heals her.

came behinde him] Aſhamed to confeſſe her diſeaſe: we are aſhamed of the effects, not of the cauſe: of miſery, but not of ſinne.

touched the hemme] This was an admirable effect of faith, and modeſty: pium latrocinium, an holy theft. Chryſol. ſerm. 33. not wronging the owner, but relieving the taker; Chriſt was not hereby injured, but the helpleſſe woman cured.

V. 21. I ſhall be whole] The phyſicians could not cure me; onely a touch of the garment of Jeſus can do it.

V. 22. turned him about] That he might manifeſt this work of faith unto the people, that God might be glorified: and that not onely Jairus weak faith might be ſtrengthned, and he the more confidently look for the raiſing up of his daughter, but that we alſo may be aſſured, that he (who now ſitting at the right hand of God, hath not leſſe power or mercy, then when he was here in the form of a ſervant) will alſo heal and help us, if we come unto him in faith; non Chriſtus infirmantibus, ſed fides deeſt; Chryſol. 5. ſ. Chriſt is never wanting to the infirme, if faith be not.

be of good comfort] See on verſe 2.

thy faith hath made thee whole] See on chap. 8. 13.

from that hour] She was preſently cured, and never troubled with that ſickneſſe more.

V. 23. ſaw the minſtrels] It was an uſuall thing among Jews and Gentiles to have formall mourners, and alſo muſicians in their funeralls. Jer. 9. 17. and 48. 36. So ſaid Jerom ad Heliod. l. 2. ep. 24. Heſiodus natales hominum plangens, gaudet in funere: Heſiod bewailing the nativities of men, rejoyceth in their funerall.

v. 24. not dead but ſleepeth] She is not ſo dead, but that ſhe ſhall immediately be raiſed to life again. See on Luke 8. 52.

v. 25. when the people were put forth] He put them forth becauſe they derided him, verſ. 24. and therefore were unworthy to ſee the miracle done: or becauſe he would not yet manifeſt himſelf by ſuch works.

took her by the hand] As we uſe to wake them that are aſleep, by ſhaking them by the hand, and calling aloud to them.

and the maid aroſe] As one out of ſleep: ſo death it ſelf yieldeth to Chriſts divine power, who is the reſurrection and the life, John 11. 25. it was he that ſaid, O death, I will be thy death, or thy plagues, &c. Hoſea 13. 14. in his death thou dieſt, but we live: we give thee thanks, O Chriſt our Saviour, who are thy creatures, quod tam potentem adverſarium noſtrum dum occideris, occidiſti: Jerom 5. ſ. ep. 24. that dying thou haſt overcome this our ſo powerful enemy; though he raiſe us not up now, yet ſhall he at the laſt day: thus faith obtaineth, while fleſh and blood laugheth at the promiſes of Chriſt, and is put out from his bleſſed preſence.

v. 26. the fame thereof] Or, this fame, verſe 31.

v. 27. when Jeſus departed thence] Chriſt unceſſantly doeth good: and every place affordeth him opportunity of manifeſting his divine power.

two blinde men] The circumſtances ſhew that this was not the ſtory recorded, Mark 10. 46. Luke 18. 35. but another healing the blinde, which he did ſundry times.

followed him crying] He anſwereth them not, until he came into the houſe, verſe 28. that that little delay might the more kindle their deſire of obtaining, and leave a deeper impreſſion in their mindes of the favour received: we too ſoon forget that which we quickly obtain.

thou ſon of David] Chap. 15. 22. & chap. 20. 30, 31. meaning the Meſſias of the poſterity of David, under which title they uſually ſpake of their expected Meſſias. See chap. 1. 1. for now Chriſts frequent and admirable miracles, began to work in men an opinion that he was the Meſſias, chap. 12. 23. John 7. 31. Matth. 20. 30. 31.

v. 28. able to do this] To open your eyes; for ſo Chriſt underſtood their petition preſented unto him for mercy, verſe 27. though they named not this particular favour.

V. 29. then touched he their eyes] He could have reſtored them ſight onely by his word: but thus he pleaſed ſometimes to do, that they might underſtand that he was tyed to no means or manner, who ruled all the courſes of nature, and could diſpenſe with them as he pleaſed.

according to your faith] See on chap. 8. 13.

V. 30. their eyes were opened] That is, they could ſee: for the Jews called blinde eyes, ſhut. John 9. 26. 30. thus was that fulfilled which is ſpoken. Pſal. 146. 8. Iſaiah 35. 5.

he ſtraightly charged them] He forbid them with an earneſt commination.

ſee that no man know it] See verſe 25. Either Chriſt would not have this miracle publiſhed yet, or not to the inhabitants of thoſe parts: for all things are not to be publiſhed at all times, nor to all perſons. See chap. 8 4.

V. 31. But they] Contrary to his charge they publiſhed it all abroad.

V. 32. as they went out] Luke 12. 14. See on verſe 18. 27.

a dumb man poſſeſſed of a devil] Either he was natively dumb; or made dumb by the devil poſſeſſing him: that ſo he might deprive him of the uſe of his tongue, which is mans glory, and wherewith he honours God: the latter is moſt probable, becauſe Chriſt is not ſaid to looſe his tongue, but onely to caſt out the devil, and then he ſpake. verſe 33.

V. 33. it was never ſo ſeen in Iſrael] None of the former prophets ever did the like things.

V. 34. But the Phariſees ſaid] Theſe learned men blaſpheme Chriſt, when the ignorant people had more holy ſpeeches, and more reverend opinion of him: ſo eaſily doth malice embitter and overthrow all excellencies.

he caſteth out devils] Chap. 12. 24. Mark 3. 22. Luke 11. 25. It was a work ſo evident, that they could not deny it; yet they calumniate the means and manner.

the prince of the devils] There ſeemeth to be an order among devils (the authours of all diſorder) they rob God of his glory, and accuſe Chriſt under the notion of a Magitian, as if he had entred into covenant with the prince of the devils, and ſo gotten power to caſt out inferiour devils.

V. 35. And Jeſus went about] Mark 6. 6. Luke 13. 22. See on chap. 4. 23.

in their ſynagogues] They had ſynagogues in villages, as well as in cities: ſo Chriſtians had churches.

among the people] He was not like thoſe covetous phyſicians, carefull onely of rich patients, but negligent of the poor; he healed all.

V. 36. But when he ſaw the multitudes] Mark 6. 34.

mooved with compaſſion] On their ſouls; becauſe they wanted inſtruction.

fainted] Or were tired and laid down.

as ſheep having no ſhepherd] See Numb. 27. 17. Scattered abroad not knowing where to get food, and expoſed to many ſeducements, as people without a paſtour. See 1 Kings 22. 17. they had teachers, but none that tendred their good.

V. 37. The harveſt truely is plenteous] Luke 10. 2. It pitied him to ſee ſo many Galileans, like corn, ready to be gathered to God, by faith and repentance, and ſuch want of harveſters, that is Miniſters, to bring them in. John 4. 35. The peoples mindes were ſtirred up to expectation of better teaching by Jeſus preaching and miracles; this ſeems to be the occaſion of ſending the Apoſtles abroad, chap. 10. 15.

V. 38. that he will ſend forth labourers] Word for word, ἐκβάλῃ, is caſt forth, or as the Syriac interpreter hath it, thruſt forth labourers; for we are very ſlow in ſo holy and important a work.

CHAP. X.

Verſe. 1. And when he had] Mark 3. 14. Luke 9. 1.

called unto him] Not to be his attendants and hearers now, for that had he done before. Luke 6. 13. but having kept them with him for ſome time, to fit them for their publike miniſtry, and ſeeing many of the people willing to be taught, he now ſends them forth among the Jews, to inſtruct them. Luke 9. 1, 2.

he gave them power] And authority. Luke 9. 1.

againſt] or over; No king could give his ambaſſadours power over devils, neither could any of the Prophets give this power to his ſchollers; this onely the Lord of all the creatures could do.

all manner of ſickneſſe] See on Matth. 4. 23.

V. 2. the names of the twelve Apoſtles] They are called Apoſtles, becauſe they were firſt ſent by Chriſt to preach the goſpel: their names God would have recorded for their honour, who having been inſtruments of ſo much good, muſt not be forgotten: as alſo that we may imitate them; there were twelve in alluſion to the twelve Patriarchs, and relation to the tribes of Iſrael. chap. 19 28. Luke 22. 30. Revelat. 21. 12. 14. See Iſ. Caſaubon. exercit. 14. N. 5.

The firſt Simon] Theophylact ſaith, that Peter and Andrew, are named the firſt διότι καὶ πρωτόκλητοι because they were firſt called: and Chryſoſtom, hom. 33. in Matth. You ſee, how that οὐ κατὰ τὴν ἀξίαν τίθησιν &c. they are not placed, or reckoned according to dignity: for he thought John greater then James, after whom he is named. See chap. 4. 18.

who is called Peter] This name Chriſt gave him. John 1. 42. chap 16. 18.

V. 3. Matthew the Publican] Of Publicans, ſee chap. 9. 10. Cæl. Rhodigin. lect. Antiq. l. 20. c. 29. ſaith out of Firmicus. erunt (inquit) Publicani aut veſtigaliarii &c. Publicans, or Cuſtomers, officers of the cuſtom-houſe, or farmers of cuſtoms: Alexand. ab Alexandr. Genial. dier. l. 2. c. 29. ſaith (with Volateran, forecited. chap. 9. verſe 10.) they that farmed cuſtoms were called Publicans: they are deceived who think all the Publicans among the Jews were heathens. See Iſ. Caſaubon. Exercit 13. 71. 73. as alſo they who think it was, or is a contemptible office; it is true, the proud Jews deſpiſed them, as unholy and wicked, becauſe they gathered cuſtoms and tribute of them, who were impatient of any ſubjection. But theſe were anciently among the Romans, men of good accompt; as may appear by many ſpeeches of Cicero. Alexander ab Alex. forecited telleth us, principes equeſtris ordinis olim Publicani fuere: Hoſq; equitum Romanorum Publicanorum ordine continebatur &c. the chief of the order of knight-hood, were in times paſt Publicans, and the flower of the Roman knights, was contained in the order of Publicans: it is true that afterward this office was conferred on manumiſſed ſervants, and meaner men: and that among the Jews theſe men were in diſgrace: whence ſome obſerve his humility, in that though he were now an Apoſtle, yet he telleth what he had been; ſo doth Paul 1 Tim. 1. 13.

James the ſon of Alpheus] To diſtinguiſh him from the other James, the ſon of Zebede, and the brother of John. Matth. 4. 21. Mark 3. 17. (ſirnamed Boanerges, or ſons of thunder) he was ſlain by Herod. Acts 12. 2. but this James is he who was called, James the leſſe. Mark 15. 40. and the brother of the Lord. Galat 1. 19. becauſe he was the ſon of Mary Cleopas, the virgin Marie her ſiſter: his wife was alſo named Mary, as Jo. Druſius thinketh.

Lebbeus] Called alſo Judas, the brother of James. Luke 6. 16. who writ the epiſtle of Jude, as his brother did that of James.

V. 4. Simon the Canaanite] Or Canite, that is Zelotes. Luke 6. 15. this is added to diſtinguiſh him from Simon Peter verſe 2.

Judas Iſcariot] A man of Kerioth in the tribe of Judah. Joſh. 15. 25. or of Iſſachar. Jud. 10. 1. or a man of reward, for he betrayed Chriſt for money. chap. 26. 15. by this Epithete and the words following, he is diſtinguiſhed from the other Judas. See on verſe 3. See alſo on John 6. 71.

V. 5. into the way of the Gentiles] Not yet, till after my death, then ye muſt go preach to them. Acts 1. 8. when the middle wall of partition ſhall be broken down (Epheſ. 2. 14.) and the time of calling the Gentiles ſhall be come.

of the Samaritanes] A people mixed of Aſſyrians and Iſraelites. 2 Kings 17. and hated of the Jews. (John 4. 9.) whom Chriſt would not have his Apoſtles now offend.

V. 6. But go rather] You muſt firſt preach to the Iſraelites, of whom I come, and to whom I was promiſed. Acts 3, 29. & 13. 46. and principally ſent. chap. 15. 24.

to the loſt ſheep] They who belong to Gods election, though yet they continue in their naturall condition: he calleth them ſheep, quos Deus olim paſcebat, whom God of old did feed. Pſal. 80. 1. but loſt, becauſe now diſperſed and deſtitute of ſound teachers. Euthym.

V. 7. preach] Cry aloud, or proclaim like Heraulds, as Iſaiah. 58. 1.

the kingdom of heaven is at hand] Luke 10. 9. Teach the ſame doctrine that John Baptiſt, and I have done before you. See on Matth. 3. 2. & 4. 17.

V. 8. heal the ſick] Confirme the doctrine you preach by theſe profitable miracles, which I now give you power to do.

Freely give] Make no merchandiſe of the gift of miracles freely beſtowed on you: take no money for the cures ye do, neither withhold the power I give you, when ſoever you meet with occaſion to do good therewith; for indeed, all earthly things, ſervando totalitèr amittimus, ſed benè largiendo ſervamus. Greg. hom. 14. fin. by keeping, we utterly loſe, but by well beſtowing we keep them: ſo is it with theſe gifts beſtowed on us for others ſakes.

V. 9. Provide neither] Mark 6. 8. Luke 9. 3. or get neither, take none with you for this journey, that nothing may hinder you, and that you may have experience of Gods ſpeciall providence over you: therefore he aſketh them, Luke 22. 35. what they wanted by the way.

gold nor ſilver] No money of greater or leſſer value to buy proviſion: Chriſt forbad them not to poſſeſſe that which was their own, but would not now have them ſolicitous for any money to bear their charge, leſt they ſhould not have been duely ſenſible of Gods ſpeciall providence, which is never ſo well perceived as in the removall and abſence of all ordinary means: here is an excellent document againſt avarice; no man is born rich, nor liveth ſo poor as he was born: poverty (ſaith Ambroſ. l. 10. ep. 8.2.) is not of nature, but opinion: why do we deſire an heap of riches, as if it were neceſſary? nihil tam neceſſarium quàm cognoſcere quod non ſit neceſſarium: there is nothing ſo neceſſary for us, as to know what is not neceſſary.

in your purſes] εἰς τὰς ζώνας---in, or into girdles; either becauſe they uſed to have purſes in their girdles, or becauſe (as Euthymius ſaith) travellers uſed by the way to carry their purſes, Zonis appenſas hanged on their girdles: Alexander Severus ſaid, the ſouldier feareth not but only when he is (well) clothed--and having aliquid in Zonula; ſome money in his girdle, that is, his purſe. Æl. Lamprid.

V. 10. nor ſcrip] To put your proviſion in for your journey.

two coats] Two upper coats for change; and ſo of ſhoes, for he allowed them ſandals. Mark 6. 9.

nor yet ſtaves] For defence or offence: for they might carry a walking ſtaffe for more eaſe or convenience. Mark 6. 9.

the workman is worthy] Luke 10. 7. 1 Tim. 5. 18. God who imployeth you, will give you food, if men of whom ye deſerve it, ſhould neglect you.

of his meat] That is all manner of neceſſary proviſions.

V. 11. Into whatſoever city] Luke 10. 8.

enquire] Of the inhabitants, before you put your ſelves into any mans houſe; or try who is worthy.

who in it is worthy] That is, who feareth God, who is fit to have the goſpel preached unto him, and to have the honour to receive the ambaſſadours thereof.

till ye go thence] Remove not from one houſe to another, that ye may not offend him who firſt received you: or that ye may not ſeem to wander from houſe to houſe, as vagrants or give men ſuſpicion that thoſe were weary of you, by whom ye were firſt entertained: tarry in that houſe, till you go to preach to another city.

V. 12. Salute it] By wiſhing all happineſſe to the inhabitants thereof. as, Luke 10. 5.

V. 13. if the houſe be worthy] If they courteouſly entertain you, like ſonnes of peace. Luke 10. 6. this is the token intimated verſe 11. ſuch a token of diſcovery Eliezer prayed for. Gen. 24. 14. 18. 19.

let your peace come upon it] Preach the goſpel of peace unto them; or it ſhall come upon them: as, Luke 10. 6. that is, God will bring upon them all the good you wiſh them.

if it be not worthy] If they ſhew themſelves unworthy to have the goſpel preached unto them, by refuſing you who are the miniſters thereof. Acts 13. 46.

let your peace return unto you] Carry away the goſpel of peace with you, to preach it to others, that ſhall receive you more kindely: or, God will bring that good on you, that you wiſhed to them. See Pſal. 35. 13.

V. 14. Whoſoever ſhall not receive you] Mark 6. 11.

ſhake off the duſt of your feet] As a token that God will ſhake them off, and deſtroy them: See Nehem. 5. 13. or to ſignifie that ye will have no more to do with them: as, Acts 13. 51. God accounteth the reception of his miniſters, as if his ſelf were received: the good God, ſaith Salvian. de gub. l. 8. maketh one and the ſame honour or contumely common to himſelf and his ſervants: leſt any man ſhould think when he hurtth a miniſter, hominem tantum à ſe lædi, that he hurteth man onely: without doubt the injury of God himſelf is mingled with the injury of his ſervants: God ſo witneſſing; Zach. 2. 8. He that toucheth you, toucheth the apple of his eye.

V. 15. It ſhall be more tolerable] Groſſe ſinners that never heard the goſpel, are not in ſo bad a condition, as they that refuſe it. chap. 11. 24. See 2 Pet. 2. 21. and Salv. 5. ſ. l. 4. they do nothing in contempt of Gods law who know it not: if he ſay the Sodomites were leſſe damnable then they who neglect the goſpel, what may they hereafter expect, who contemne it, and the faithfull miniſters thereof?

in the day of judgement] Of the generall accompt, and great aſſizes of the world, whereof Acts 17. 31.

v. 16. Behold, I ſend you] Luke 10. 3 I ſhall ſend you after my reſurrection; for in this journey they had neither want, nor oppoſition, Luke 22. 35. It is likely that our Saviour being now to ſend them forth among the Jews, intermixed divers things, that concerned their ſending forth after his reſurrection, as chap. 24. ſpeaking of the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, he addeth divers things concerning the end of the world.

as ſheep] Altogether unarmed.

in the midſt of wolves] Into great dangers, where ye ſhall be compaſſed about with wicked men. See Pſal. 57. 4. Acts 20. 29. Ezek. 22. 27. Zeph. 3. 3. Matth. 7. 15.

wiſe as ſerpents] See Gen. 3. 1. Avoid dangers as far as you lawfully may: and give no juſt cauſe to men to perſecute you.

harmleſſe] Or ſimple: be like ſerpents in the one, who avoid dangers by flying and hiding themſelves; and like doves in the other, who do nothing to provoke: have the ſimplicity of the dove (ſaith Jerom lib. 2. ep. 16. Paulino) that thou mayeſt not machinate and imagine deceit againſt any man; and the wiſdom of the ſerpent, leſt other mens plots ſupplant thee: for matter of the fault there is not much difference, vel decipere poſſe, vel decipi Chriſtianum, whether a Chriſtian can deceive, or be deceived. Chriſt would have his wiſe and innocent; religion and wiſdom may not be ſevreed. Lactantius ſaith well, neque religio ulla ſine ſapientia ſuſcipienda ſit, neque ulla ſine religione probanda ſapientia, lib. 1. cap. neither may any religion without wiſdom be received, or any wiſdom approved without religion: ib. l. 4. cap. 2, 3, 4. yet of the two, it is more ſecure to want wiſdom, then innocency, as Tertullian ſaith adv. Valent. cap. 2. errare quam fallere, it is better erre for want of wit, then deceive with too much. The wiſdom of the world is excentrick to Gods, therefore the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 Cor 3. 18. if any man among you ſeemeth to be wiſe in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wiſe, that is, ſaith Salvian, lib. 6. ſi vult eſſe ſapiens, ſit bonus; quia nemo verè ſapiens, niſi verè bonus, if he will be wiſe, let him be good; becauſe there is no man truely wiſe, who is not truely good. Let the world count it fooliſhneſſe, as 1 Cor. 1. 18. or madneſſe, as Acts 26. 24. it ſhall appear at laſt to be the onely wiſdom. Let the impious Pharaoh ſay, Let us deal wiſely---Exod 1. 10 all the depth of Satan can never make wickedneſſe any better, then the moſt pernicious fooliſhneſſe.

v. 17. beware of men] Here it appeareth, that by wolves he meant cruel men: beware of thoſe men that are like wolves, verſe 16. blood-thirſty perſecutors.

in their ſynagogues] Some think that the ſynagogues were publike places of meeting; as well for civil, as ſacred affairs: others, that they did uſe to ſcourge men for offences in matters of religion in their ſynagogues: others, that they had two ſorts of ſynagogues, and did pray in the one, and ſcourge in the other: but concerning the laſt of theſe, we may more probably conceive, that they had their conſiſtories, or Councel-houſe, wherein they executed the decrees of their Councel in way of Diſcipline. See Acts 5.40. 2 Cor 11. 24.

v. 18. Before governours and kings] See chap. 27. 2. Acts 23, 24. 25. Acts 12. 25, 26.

for my ſake] Ye need not be diſcouraged; ſeeing it is not for evil, but for your religion that they perſecute you. Matth. 5. 11, 12.

for a teſtimony] I could keep you as eaſily from thoſe dangers, as I will certainly keep you in them; but that you ſhall herein honour God, in teſtifying his trueth, and leave your perſecuters inexcuſable.

againſt them, and the Gentiles] Ye ſhall be perſecuted both by Jews and Gentiles: to the one you ſhall be witneſſes for their juſt rejection, who ſo judge themſelves unworthy of eternal life, Acts 13 46, 47. to the other of the truth by you conſtantly profeſſed unto the death.

v. 19. but when they deliver you up] Mark 13 11. Luk 12 11, take no thought] Uſe no anxious and laborious preparation as Oratours and Lawyers do, when they are to plead.

it ſhall be given you] That is, to you Apoſtles. See the like Exod. 3. 11.

V. 20. it is not ye that ſpeak] Not ſo much you, as the Spirit of God in you, dictating what ye ſhall ſpeak, as 2 Sam. 23. 2. See alſo chap. 9. 13. neque enim & hoc ita fit de nobis, tanquam nihil facientibus nobis. Aug. ep. 105.

V. 21 and the brother] Luke 21. 16. Ye ſhall be ſo hated for the truth of religion, that all bands of nature ſhall be forgotten, verſe 35.

V. 22. hated of all men] That is, of very many, or almoſt all, John 3. 22. Phil. 2. 21. Luke 21. 17. Neither may this any thing diſcourage us from ſpeaking the truth, becauſe it begetteth us hatred, but rather cauſe us to rejoyce in our conformity to Chriſt: Gratias ago Deo meo quod dignus ſim, quem mundus oderit. Jerom l. 1. ep. 45. I thank my God that I am worthy to be hated of the world.

he that endureth to the end] Mark 13. 13. To the end of this mortal life, the limit and end of all our ſufferings, Revel. 14 13. to the death, that calmeſt haven, where no breath of evil ſhall move us, Revel 2. 10. & 22. 3. the meaning here is, he that endureth patiently, and with an unbroken minde, firmly relying on God for deliverance: it is not the beginning, but the end which crowneth actions. See chap. 24. 13.

ſhall be ſaved] Ye cannot otherwiſe be ſaved, 1 Cor. 10. 31. do all to Gods glory, that is, do nothing to his diſhonour.

V. 23. flee into another] Chriſt giveth liberty for flight, in caſe of perſecution: partly for their own ſafety, and partly alſo for the further propagation of the goſpel into other places. See Acts 13. 50, 51. & 14. 5, 6, 7. & 8. 4. Chriſt taught us this, not onely by precept, but alſo by practiſe. In his infancy he was carried into Egypt: ſo alſo afterward, often hiding from Perſecutors, ἔπρεπε γὰρ αὐτὸν ὡς ἐκ τοῦ πεινῆν καὶ διψῆν καὶ τοῦ παθεῖν, οὕτως καὶ ἐκ τοῦ κρύπτεσθαι καὶ φεύγειν δεικνύειν αὐτὸν φοροῦντα σάρκα καὶ γενόμενον ἄνθρωπον, ſaith Athanaſius, apol. de fugâ ſuâ ad Imper. Conſtant. For it was meet that he ſhould as well demonſtrate by his hiding and fleeing, that he bare our fleſh, and became man, as by hungring, thirſting, and ſuffering: See that whole Apologie, To. 1. as alſo Auguſtine on the ſame argument, epiſt. 180. Tertullian alſo wrote a book to Fabius concerning flight in perſecution, though leſſe orthodox. Auguſtines caution is here very requiſite, Ne quis temerè ſtationem deſerat, nec gregem perfidè prodat, vel exemplum ignaviæ præbeat; leſt any man ſhould raſhly deſert his charge, betraying his flock, or give example of lazineſſe: we may not flee without imminent danger, nor like falſe hirelings, for fear of the approaching wolfe, leave our flocks to ſeducers: we may flee, where we are perſecuted, and purſued to our deſtruction: ſo Paul eſcaped at Damaſcus, Acts 9. 24. So fled other holy men in like caſes: if our flock be all diſperſed by perſecution, we may alſo flee to ſecure our lives: laſtly, if the Church conſent to our withdrawing, and they have others able to officiate for us: in ſuch like caſes not to flee is to tempt God.

ye ſhall not have gone over] You ſhall not end or finiſh your preaching the goſpel to all the cities of Iſrael: this ſhews that they were not to flee onely to ſecure themſelves, but to haſten their work, to teach all the cities of Iſrael: or the meaning may be, ye ſhall have ſome cities left to flee unto, and where you may preach.

till the Son of man be come] See on chap 16. 28. They did not flee from city to city before, but after his reſurrection: See on verſe 16. Acts 8. 1. & 12. 1.

V. 24. the diſciple is not above his maſter] Luke 6. 40. John 13. 16. & 15. 20. If they perſecute me your Lord and maſter, you that are in a lower condition muſt not look to eſcape: the ſufferings of Chriſt muſt teach us patience: maleficum quidem me garriunt, titulum fidei ſervus agnoſco; Magum vocant & Judæi dominum meum, Jerom. ep. 45. lib. 1. ſome talk that I am wicked: I being a ſervant own the title of faith: the Jews alſo called my Lord Jeſus, Magician: it is a great honour, and undoubted ſigne of goodneſſe, to have the wicked revile and raile at us: they ſhould condemne themſelves, if they ſhould ſpeak well of any unlike themſelves; their cenſures are thy praiſes: but their praiſes call thy goodneſſe into queſtion.

V. 25. Beelzebub] It was the idol of the Ekronites, 2 Kings 1. 3. called ſo, either becauſe there were ſtore of flies in his temple, about the blood, and beaſts ſacrificed: or elſe becauſe the people troubled with their ſwarms, ſought to him for help: afterwards, as idols were called devils, Deut. 32. 17. So the Jews called the chief devil Beelzebub, in deteſtation of this idol, Matth. 12. 24. or it may ſignifie a dung-hill god, &c. See on Luke 11. 15

V. 26. for there is nothing covered] Mark 4. 22. Luke 8. 27. & 12. 2. Fear not what they can inflict upon you, for your innocency ſhall be made known here, or hereafter, Pſal. 37. 6 or, fear not, but preach the goſpel freely, for it will be known and prevail in the end: this ſenſe agreeth beſt with the following words.

N. 27 in darkneſſe] What I teach you in private when others are abſent, as they uſe to be in the night: therefore he addes, in the ear, to ſhew that he ſpake of private inſtruction.

upon the houſe tops] Openly, as in the higheſt places: for they could walk on their houſe tops, Deut. 22. 8. Matth. 24. 17. Acts 10. 9. and from thence, publiſh things to multitudes below: they muſt publikely preach, not as the Valentinians, who cunningly vailed that they taught, leſt the abſurdity thereof ſhould have appeared.

V. 28. fear not] Fear not man more then God: or ſo, as to do any evil, either for fear of man (who can onely take away a ſoon-fading life) to do that which God forbids, or to leave undone that which he commands: let us conſtantly remember that of Cyprian. l. 2. ep. 6. qui pro nobis mortem ſemel vicit, ſemper vincit in nobis: he that once overcame death for us, ever overcommeth it in us: and in ſpite of perſecutors, will raiſe us from death. See Acts 4. 19. & 5. 29. Dan. 3. 16, 17, 18.

them which kill the body] Luke 12. 4. Though tyrants be never ſo cruell, they cannot hurt you ſo much for preaching the goſpel, as God can for not preaching it.

hell] He doth not ſay, to deſtroy ſoul and body ſimply or abſolutely, ſo that they ſhould be no more, (for that many men would be contented withall, rather then to run the hazard of preſent perſecution) but to puniſh them eternally in hell, where the worme never dyeth; where it would be an unſpeakable advantage once to die, that they might not ever live to torment.

V. 29. Are not two ſparrows] He doth not inſtance Gods providence in the Prophets, or famous men; leſt they or we, ſhould think God onely took care for the excellent, but not for us: but in ſparrows, little birds, of ſmall price and accompt.

ſold for a farthing] The fourth part of our peny, but with them the tenth part of a Roman peny.

not fall on the ground] When they are ſhot: nor can the moſt powerfull tyrants kill you without Gods permiſſion: ſome interpret it; a ſparrow cannot light on the ground.

without your Father] Without his permiſſion, who governeth all things in heaven and earth: fear not therefore, he will be more carefull of you his children, then of the birds. See on chap. 5. 45. and 6. 32.

V. 30. but the very hairs] See 2 Sam. 14. 11. Acts 27. 34. Not your hearts, hands, feet, and thoſe parts which are (as they ſay) the partes integrantes; but even thoſe which ſeem to have been made rather for convenience and ornament, then neceſſity: if Gods providence be over theſe, how much more will he preſerve unto you your eſſentiall parts, and that, without which you cannot live?

all numbred] Every one, not onely knowen to God, but ſo kept, as it were by tale, that none can take away one of them without Gods permiſſion; much more are the dayes of your life numbred.

V. 31. Ye are of more value] More excellent creatures, of more eſteem with God, as bearing his image, and redeemed with the precious blood of his holy Son Jeſus; fear you not, he will not neglect you. See chap. 6. 26.

V. 32. Whoſoever therefore] Luke 12. 8.

ſhall confeſſe me before men] What more equall, then that ſervants which acknowledge and obey their maſters in time of danger, ſhould be owned by them in times of ſafety and honour: and that ſuch as forſake their maſters in troubles and dangerous conditions, ſhould afterwards be turned out of doors? thus will I deal with you, if you ſtand to me in times of perſecution, I will own you publikely at the day of judgement, otherwiſe I will diſcard you.

V. 33. but whoſoever] See on verſe 32. and on Luke 12. 9. Mark. 8. 38. Luke 9. 26. 2 Tim. 2. 12.

V. 34. Think not that I am come] See on Luke 12. 51.

to ſend peace on earth] He endeavours to correct the erroneous opinion of the Jews, and alſo the Apoſtles, who thought that the times under the Meſſias ſhould be peaceable, proſperous and glorious, miſunderſtanding the prophets, as if the things they ſpake of ſpirituall peace with God, had been meant of wordly peace with men.

but a ſword] War, and diviſion; as, Luke 12. 51. theſe are not proper fruits of the goſpel of peace, but accidentall: while they, who will not be reclaimed from their errours, diſſent from them that will. Acts 28. 24. 25. 29. John 7. 40 &c.

V. 35. againſt his father] The times ſhall be as unquiet, as thoſe ſpoken of Mich. 7. 6.

the daughter in law againſt &c.] No bands either ſacred or civil ſhall reſtrain wicked perſons from exerciſing their malice and cruelty againſt the profeſſours of the Goſpel. See verſe 21.

v. 36. of his own houſe] As if he ſaid, ſuch confuſion ſhall come upon the world, that all laws of God and nature ſhall be trodden down: no humanity or fidelity ſhall be left among the impious: not that this ſhould be at all times; but to arm the faithful, by forewarning them of theſe evils to come. See on verſe 21.

v. 37. he that loveth father or mother] See on Luke 14. 26.

more then me] As fear of evil, ſo likewiſe love of the world, and thoſe things thereof, which are reſpectively to be loved (as parents, wife, children) may diſtract their affections from Chriſt: this is here forbidden.

is not worthy of me] I count him not fit for my ſervice. See on chap. 3. 8. Luke 14. 26.

he that loveth ſon or daughter] This is added as a greater tryal, becauſe love rather deſcends then aſcends; and ſome can more eaſily part with parents then children.

v. 38. he that taketh] Chap. 16. 24. Luke 9. 23. Mark 8. 34. that is, who doth not willingly bear what God layeth on him: it is an alluſion to ſuch as were condemned to be crucified, who uſed to carry their croſſes. See on chap. 27. 32.

his croſſe] That is yet a greater tryal then before: a man may poſſibly be contented to loſe worldly comforts, that would not endure pain (Job 2. 4. 5.) eſpecially death, and ſuch a kinde of death, as was accurſed: but we muſt ſuffer any thing for Chriſts ſake. By croſſe, is meant the heavieſt and foreſt afflictions and calamities, by alluding to the cuſtom of Romans or Perſians, with whom that puniſhment was uſed and accounted moſt ignominious.

and followeth after me] And with ſuch an affection comes unto me: or is contented, if he be thereto called, to be crucified.

is not worthy of me] See on verſe 37.

v. 39. he that findeth his life] John 12. 25. that ſaves it, chap. 16. 25. Mark 8. 35. Luke 9. 24. and 15. 24. 32. ſo Prov. 24. 10. he that thinks he hath ſecured his life, by renouncing his religion: it is called finding, becauſe worldly men account them all loſt, who are dead.

ſhall loſe it] Shall go to Hell, and ſo loſe all comfort of life, as Tertullian ſaid adv. Gnoſt. c. 11. Perdet in Gehennam, qui ſe putat negando lucrifacere eam.

he that loſeth his life for my ſake] That dies for the teſtimony of the truth of religion, chap. 5. 11, 12.

ſhall finde it] In Heaven for ever, as Tertullian alſo ſaith, Perdet eam ad præſens, qui confeſſus occiditur, ſed inventurus eam in vitam æternam, he ſhall loſe his life for the preſent, who confeſſing is ſlain, but ſhall finde it to eternal life.

v. 40. he that receiveth you] Luke 10. 16. John 13. 20. that heareth your doctrine willingly, and entertaineth you: this is added to comfort them in diſtreſſes; for therein ſome ſhould receive them, and relieve them.

receiveth me] He ſhall have more divine gueſts. See Hebr. 13. 2. me and my Father. See on John 14. 23.

in the name of a prophet] Not for kindred or civil reſpects, but becauſe he is Gods meſſenger.

ſhall receive a prophets reward] Such a reward as a prophet ſhall have: or, as is fit for him that hath received a prophet, and ſo furthered Gods ſervice in an extraordinary manner.

a righteous man] A man fearing; God a religious man, Matth. 13. 17.

v. 42. whoſoever ſhall give to drink] Mark 9. 41.

unto one] How much more, if he give, and be beneficent to many?

of theſe little ones] Who newly made profeſſion of the true religion: and were as babes in it, Mark 9. 42. Luke 17. 2. Matth. 25. 40, 45. 1 Cor. 3. 1. 1 John 2. 12. 14.

a cup of cold water onely] The leaſt and cheapeſt curteſie, that can be ſhewed: how much more if he provide with greater charge to relieve him?

he ſhall in no wiſe] He ſhall be ſure of it.

his reward] The phraſe is altered, he ſaid before, the reward of a prophet, and of a righteous man, verſe 41. here he doth not ſay, the reward of a little one, leſt it ſhould be thought to be a ſmall reward; but, his reward: that is a reward proportionable to his work, and affection to the cauſe of God. See chap. 25. 34, &c. Luke 14. 14.

CHAP. XI.

Verſe 1. OF commanding his twelve diſciples] Of giving them precepts how to carry themſelves in their journey and preaching, chap. 10. and had ſent them away furniſhed with thoſe inſtructions.

in their cities] In the cities of Galilee. See chap. 9. 35. and 12. 9.

v. 2. John had heard] By his diſciples, as Luke 7. 18.

in the priſon] ἐν τῷ δεσμωτηρίῳ: the word cometh of δεσμῶ, to binde, and ſignifieth the place where priſoners are bound, or kept in ward. Suidas interpreteth it by φυλακὴ, a keep, or priſon: Syr. בית אסירא, in domo vinctorum. So the Hebrews ſaid, בית הסהר, beth aſire Gen. 39. 20. in the houſe of the priſon, or the place where the kings priſoners were bound. So Judg. 16. 21. בבית האסירים, bebeth haaſirim, in the houſe of the bound, that is the priſon. John was caſt into priſon, becauſe he reproved Herods inceſt. See Mark 6. 17.

the works of Chriſt] That is, his miracles; of which verſ. 4, 5.

he ſent two of his diſciples] Not for his own information, who was aſſured by Gods ſpirit, and a ſigne from heaven that Jeſus was the true Meſſias, John 1. 33. and bare record thereof, John 1. 29. 34. but to inſtruct his diſciples, who out of zeal to their maſter ſtood ill affected to Chriſt, as appeareth John 3. 26. chap. 9. 14. and very likely did not now acquaint John with Chriſts great works, out of love to him; but out of envie and reſpect of their Maſters credit.

v. 3. and ſaid unto him] By his diſciples whom he ſent, for John was now in priſon, 2 verſe. See chap. 8. 5, 6.

art thou he that ſhould come] The Meſſias promiſed in the prophets, and expected by the Jews, Gen. 49. 10. Iſai. 35. 4. Acts 26. 6, 7.

v. 4. again] Gr. going, or returning ſhew, &c. which in effect is, whereas John hath by you ſent this meſſage to me, tell him again from me thoſe things which ye do hear and ſee.

thoſe things] He doth not anſwer Johns meſſage otherwiſe then by his works done, whereof Johns meſſengers were eye-witneſſes, that he might demonſtrate himſelf to be the Lords Chriſt, by thoſe marks which the prophets had foretold.

v. 5. the blinde receive ſight] This is one of the marks which was foretold, Iſaiah 35. 5, 6. See John 10. 25, 37, 38.

the dead are raiſed] This they related to John, Luke 7. 12. 18. whether they ſaw it, or heard it from ſome eye-witneſſes.

the poor have the goſpel preached] Iſaiah 61. 1. Chriſt doth not (as worldly princes uſe) beſtow his favours on the eminent and great, but moſt commonly on the obſcure, poor, and deſpiſed of the world, 1 Cor. 1. 26, &c. in the prophecie it is, God ſent me to preach good tydings, ענוים banavim, to the meek: the meaning is, the poor in ſpirit, as chap. 5. 3. thoſe who know themſelves deſtitute of grace and true happineſſe thence enſuing.

v. 6. whoſoever ſhall not be offended in me] At my mean eſtate and ſufferings, chap. 26. 31. 1 Cor. 1. 34. or at my familiarity with ſinners, differing from Johns auſtere courſe of life, verſ 18, 19. the Jews expecting a worldly king for their Meſſias, glorious, rich and victorious, would not receive nor believe in him, becauſe they were offended at the form of a ſervant and man of ſorrows: and it ſeemeth by this part of Chriſts anſwer, that Johns diſciples were offended at Chriſt, becauſe he lived not apart from the multitude, nor in that external auſterity of life, which they admired in their Maſter, John Baptiſt, chap. 9. 14. which Chriſt ſo ſecretly reprehendeth in them, that he might not ſhame them before the multitude, nor let them go away in their errour. See note on Luke 7. 23.

v. 7. as they departed] Chriſt would not commend John before his diſciples, leſt they ſhould ſtill erre in preferring him before Chriſt; or the people ſhould think he flattered John before his diſciples, in hope to ingratiate with him, who had ſo high authority in the peoples opinion: but after Johns diſciples were gone, Luke 7. 24. he commends him to the people, who now might poſſibly have too mean an opinion of him in reſpect of his impriſonment.

a reed ſhaken with the winde] Why went ye into the wilderneſſe by ſuch multitudes? Surely ye would not have gone to ſee reeds that are ſhaken with the windes, or ſuch other unconſiderable things, which the wilderneſſe affordeth: and men in fine cloathing you could hardly ſee there; they are uſually in kings courts: nothing was there to be ſeen worth your labour, but onely John, whom you then eſteemed as a great prophet: and ye have no reaſon to think more meanly of him now, in reſpect of his impriſonment: ſome by reed underſtand an unconſtant perſon: a reed, as the winde bloweth, bendeth this way or that way: but John was no ſuch light perſon, but a true and conſtant ſervant of God, as in his unchangable teſtimony concerning me, ſo in his life and doctrine.

v. 8. a man clothed in ſoft raiment] In ſilk, or courtly apparel. See on Verſe 7. John was far from affecting any delicacy of clothing, or diet, See chap. 3, 4. hereby he intimateth that the teſtimonies, which John formerly gave concerning him, could not be for favour of any: for, the priſon in which he was now might ſufficiently teſtify, that he could not flatter Kings or Princes: and therefore notwithſtanding his meſſage, which was for his diſciples ſake; he changed not his teſtimony for all his bonds. See on Luke 7. 25.

v. 9. a prophet] See on verſe 7. a teacher of the truth. See chap. 21. 26. an holy and reverent Doctor ſent of God.

more then a prophet] A man preferred by God to an higher office, then ever any of the former prophets was — δεικνύων ἤδη παρόντα τὸν ἐξ ἀρχῆς καταγγελλόμενον συμβολικῶς, ſhewing him now preſent, who from the beginning was but typically foretold of, Clem. Alexandr. ſtrom. l. 5. and Ireneus l. 3. c. 11. adventum vidit & demonſtravit, he ſaw and demonſtrated his coming, perſwading many to believe in him; ſo that he & propheta & Apoſtoli locum habuerit, had the office both of a Prophet and Apoſtle: it is the office of a prophet ventura prædicere, non autem demonſtrare, to declare things to come, not to ſhew them preſent, as John did, and was therein greater then a prophet, Gregor. hom. 6. in Evang.

v. 10. Behold I ſend] See on chap. 3. 1. Mal. 3. 1.

my meſſenger. &c.] He ſhews a reaſon why John was greater then the prophets: he was the Harbinger deſigned by God to prepare the way of Chriſt, and the Herald to proclaim him now come into the world, who is the King of his Church. See Luke 1. 15, 16, 17, 74, 75.

v. 11. among them that were born of women] He prefers John not onely before the Prophets, as verſe 9. but alſo before all others that were born before him. Job 14. 1. and 15. 14. and 25. 4.

there hath not riſen] Or been raiſed, as chap. 9. 25. Luk. 7. 16. Joh. 7. 52. none greater then he hath appeared among men.

a greater then John] In dignity of office, and cleerneſſe and fulneſſe of doctrine, in publiſhing the entire performance of all things foretold of Chriſt; as his death, reſurrection, aſcenſion, calling of the Gentiles, which John ſaw not.

he that is leaſt in the kingdom of heaven] The leaſt in the miniſtery of the goſpel hath a more excellent function, in regard of the cleerneſſe of doctrine to be taught by him. See Luke 7. 28. John 1. 29.

v. 12. from the dayes of John] Luke 16. 16. the Scribes taught the people coldly before, but John hath kindled in their hearts a fervent deſire of hearing the goſpel.

until now] This zeal laſts in them ſtill, although John be caſt in priſon, and cannot now preach unto them.

ſuffereth violence] Or, is gotten by force, as the Syriack expreſſeth this βιάζεται: men run to hear the goſpel preached, as ſouldiers run upon a rich town beſieged, to get the wealth thereof, Iſaiah 60. 4. 8. 11.

and the violent] Onely they, who with ardent affections, overcoming all that ſtands in their way, preſſe into it, do, and ſhall attain poſſeſſion thereof: the violent (ſaith Ambr. in Luc. lib. 8.) qui vim facit, vehementi ſtudio properat: he that uſeth violence, haſteth with vehement deſire: the violent, or they that thruſt on men, as in ſtorming a town, one thruſts another, to get before him into it; ſo the people were ſo encouraged by Johns preaching to come to Chriſt, that every one was ambitious to come firſt.

v. 13. propheſied until John] The things they foretold of Chriſt, and the types of him in the law, began to be fulfilled in the time of John, there needed now no more predictions, but a manifeſtation of the Meſſias to Iſrael, which was Johns office to do. John 1. 31.

v. 14. If ye will receive it] If ye can endure to have the truth told you.

this is Elias] Mal. 4. 5. This is he who ſhould come in the ſpirit of Elias, Luke 1. 17. not Elias himſelf, whom the Jews vainly expected, John 1. 21. by this propheſie of Malachi he again ſhews the dignity of John Baptiſt, recalling to their mindes (who had heard it) the words of the Angel, Luke 1. 17. this was Elias, not in perſon, but in office. See John 1. 21.

v. 15. he that hath ears] See on chap. 13. 9. by this Epiphonema he exciteth us to believe his doctrine (for to hear, is here put, for to believe) intimating, that although we all have externall ears to hear, we are commonly deaf within: and this he ſpeaketh, as to make us conſider our great defects herein, that we may pray the Lord to open our hearts and ears to attend unto his voice, that we may no longer be deaf with them that ſhall periſh; aures cordis requirit, Greg. hom. 15. in Evang. he requires the ears of the heart.

v. 16. But whereunto] Luke 7. 31.

this generation] The men of this age, as chap. 24. 34.

it is like unto children] An alluſion to childrens ſports, who finde fault with the ſurlineſs of ſome of their companions, who would not comply with them in their paſtimes, though they aſſaied all wayes they could to allure them thereto; one while ſinging merry ſongs, otherwhile elogies, or ſad funeral ditties. See verſ. 18, 19. See on Luke 7. 32.

v. 17. we have piped] He taxeth the ſtupidity of hearers, moved neither with the gracious comity of Chriſt, nor the ſtrict auſterity of John, or thoſe who went before him: with thoſe who preached the gladſome tidings of ſalvation by faith, or the ſeverity of the law, to anſwer Gods promiſes or threatnings with faith and repentance.

but ye have not lamented] ἐκόψασθε, this word expreſſeth the geſture of mourners, and thoſe who are deeply affected at that they hear or ſee: κόπτειν, amongſt other things, ſignifieth to ſmite and ſtrike the breaſt: and alſo to mourn, as chap. 24. 30. ſo the penitent man ſmote his breaſt, Luk. 18. 13. ſo did the ſpectatours of Chriſts paſſion, Luke 23. 48.

v. 18. neither eating nor drinking] He eat locuſts and wilde honey, chap. 3. the meaning is, he uſed a moſt hard and auſtere diet, far from the common uſe of other men, abſtaining from feaſts and luxury.

he hath a devil] By whoſe aſſiſtance he can endure ſuch hardſhip: becauſe many of thoſe who are poſſeſſed, will endure much more hardneſſe then others ordinarily can, without much ſenſe thereof: Johns auſtere courſe was ſo far from winning many of them, that it incenſed them the more: they thought he hated mankinde, as Satan doth. Thus doth malice turn all that to occaſion of calumny and blaſphemy, which God appointed for their converſion and ſalvation.

v. 19. eating and drinking] In a more free uſe of the creatures, and graciouſly converſing with all ſorts of men in a more familiar courſe of life: his way differed from Johns, but both came to the ſame end: but the Jews were cenſorious of both, being won by neither.

a man gluttonous] Given to exceſſe, and abuſe of the creatures keeping company with men of looſe life.

wiſdom is juſtified of her children] Though there be many that ſcoff at all means of grace, yet the wiſe counſel of God, Luke 7. 30. in calling ſinners home by Johns auſterity, and Chriſts familiarity, is approved (as Pſal. 51. 4. Rom. 3. 4. Luke 7. 29.) by the followers thereof, as Luke 10. 6. which he ſaith, to ſhew that neither Chriſts, nor Johns labours had been fruitleſs to the elect hearers, though (as it commonly cometh to paſs) the wicked grew worſe thereby, and their judgement more heavy, by their contempt of Gods mercy offered them.

v. 20. then began he] Calling to minde the malicious and invincible ingratitude of the Jews: and particularly of certain cities where himſelf had taught, and done great miracles. See Luke 19. 13.

becauſe they repented not] Not becauſe they did not commend him and his preaching, but becauſe they did not amend by it.

v. 21. wo unto thee Corazin, &c.] Theſe were cities upon the lake of Gennezaret, where Chriſt converſed much, and taught often.

Bethſaida] The city where Philip, Andrew & Peter dwelt. See John 1. 44.

the mighty works] The great miracles, in curing all diſeaſes, &c.

in Tyre and Sidon] Cities of great traffick by the ſea, and of very impious manners: therefore, as the Prophets of old denounced great miſeries to come upon them, Iſaiah 23. 1. Ezek 26. 27. 28. Amos 1. 8. ſo doth our Saviour here pronounce a woe to them, and threaten great and fearfull judgements: Suidas ſaith, that Tyrus of old was a Metropolis: theſe were ancient, great, populous, and rich cities of Phœnicia. Sidon fell into the lot of the tribe of Aſher, who yet poſſeſſed it not, becauſe (ſaith Jerom de loc. Hebraic.) they were not able to beat them out: ſo ſaith he, Tyrus in tribu Nephtalim.

in ſackcloth and aſhes] Repenting, and manifeſting their repentance by ſuch outward ſignes of humiliation, as of old, and then were in uſe, with thoſe who repented & humbled themſelves for the diverſion of any imminent, or threatned judgements; and that not onely among the Jews, but alſo among the Gentiles, Job 42. 6. Jonah 3. 6. Heſter 4. 1. Jer. 6. 26. Lam. 2. 10. the meaning is, that thoſe miracles might have been ſufficient, to have overcome their malice, and moved them to repentance, which the Jews had ſeen done, and profited not by them.

v. 22. it ſhall be more tolerable] As there are diverſities of puniſhments in hell appointed for impenitent ſinners; ſo ye, that have refuſed the goſpel, ſhall at the day of judgement, be more ſeverely handled, then they that never heard it, though they lived more profanely then ye do, Heb. 2. 2, 3. and 10. 28, 29. So that he teacheth here. 1. That there ſhall be a future judgement, chap. 25. 31, &c. Acts 17. 2. That it ſhall be at the reſurrection. 3. That as there are degrees of ſins, ſo ſhall there be of puniſhment to the damned. 4. That the heavieſt puniſhment ſhall be to thoſe impenitent ſinners, on whom God had beſtowed the largeſt means of converſion.

v. 23. which art exalted unto heaven] By my abode in thee, frequent preaching and great miracles wrought.

brought down to hell] ἕως ᾅδου, עדמא לשיול, unto the pit or grave, Syr. See note on Luke 16. 23. and Acts 2. 27. שְׁאוֹל ſheol with the Hebr. ſignifieth the grave, which the Greeks give by ᾅδου, as Pſal. 16. So Gen. 37. I ſhall go down to my ſon mourning, εἰς ᾅδου, into the grave: the ſame word is alſo taken for Hell, the place of the damned, Luke 16. 23. Speaking here of the glory of Capernaum, he ſaith, it was lifted up to heaven, (that is, very highly exalted in dignity and priviledges, as alſo in her own opinion) and ſpeaking of her ingratitude, he preſently ſaith, that ſhe ſhould be thruſt down to Hell, that is, thy glory ſhall depart, thou ſhalt be deſtroyed and ruined, thou ſhalt be afflicted with extream and pittileſſe ignominy (which probably came to paſſe, when the Romans deſtroyed and waſted the reſt of Galilee) and thou ſhalt at laſt be damned in Hell, who contemnedſt ſo great means of ſalvation brought home to thee.

in Sodom] Which was ſo wicked, that it was deſtroyed by fire from Heaven, that ſad monument of Gods juſt indignation againſt ſins and ſinners: See Gen. 19. 24. 2 Pet. 2. 6. ſuper impium populum Gehennam miſit è Cœlo, Salvian de gub. Dei L. 1. he ſent upon an impious people, hell from heaven: that is, ſhowers of fire and brimſtone, wherwith the damned ſhall be tormented, Pſal. 11. 6. Iſa. 30. 33. Rev. 19. 20. and 20. 10. and 21. 8.

it would have remained] The Sodomites would not have been ſo wicked, as to bring that judgement on themſelves: either we muſt underſtand this with relation to mans apprehenſion and ſenſe, conſidering onely ſecond cauſes; as if it were ſaid, in mans reaſon ſo great miracles would have converted them, though grievous ſinners, and ſo God would have ſpared them, as he did Ninive: or he regarded his own omniſcience, as God, foreſeeing and certainly foreknowing what effect every cauſe ſhal and wil work in ſubjecto determinato, or the particular ſubject: and if any aſk, if God, who cannot be deceived, did indeed foreſee, that Sodom and Gomorrah would have repented, if he had given them as much means, as he did other ſinfull cities; why did he not give them, ſo that they might repent? We muſt know, that God being debter to no man, both mercifully giveth the means and the effect to repentance, amendment and ſalvation where he pleaſeth (Rom. 9. 18. 21) and juſtly denieth the means, or the effect thereof, where he will execute his juſtice, and not ſhew mercy, as Auguſtine ſaith (ep. 107) to Vitalis; Scimus eis quibus datur, miſericordiâ Dei gratuitâ dari: ſcimus eis quibus non datur, juſto judicio Dei, non dari; we know that to thoſe to whom it is given, it is given by the free mercy of God: we know that to thoſe to whom it is not given, it is, by the juſt judgement of God, not given: in this particular the Sodomites were grievous ſinners, Gen. 13. 13. Gen. 18. 20. ſo that their ſin is ſaid to have cryed to God: indeed, God had given them a righteous Lot, whoſe example might have been to them a lively doctrine to have reſtrained them from ſuch impietie: but their wicked converſation vexed his righteous ſoul, 2 Pet. 2. 8. they being nothing amended, but left more unexcuſable hereby: therefore it was an evident juſtice of God, not to give them more means of grace, who had buried that talent of the light of natural reaſon which they had received.

v. 24. it ſhall be more tolerable] See on verſe 22. it ſhall be more eaſy damnation to the Sodomites in the world to come (though the righteous God made them examples of his indignation againſt ſuch ſins for future times, 2 Pet. 2. 6.) not becauſe the Sodomites were leſs ſinners then the Capernaites; but becauſe the Capernaites deſpiſed, or neglected greater knowledge and means of ſalvation then was offered, or afforded the Sodomites. Conſider well you whom it now concerneth, what damnation awaiteth neglecters of the goſpel, and the adminiſtration thereof.

v. 25. at that time] This is ſaid to be when the 70 were returned, and had told our Saviour what good ſucceſs they had, Luke 10. 17. 21.

Jeſus anſwered] To the report of the 70 diſciples; or anſwering is put for the beginning of a ſpeech, as often in Scripture.

I thank thee] Or, I confeſſe unto thee, ἐξομολογοῦμαι, importeth either, or I acknowledge before thee, ſo הוֹדָה jadah in Hiphil, ſignifieth among the Hebrews; projecit, ſeu emiſit vocem, liberè faſſus eſt, or confeſſus eſt, Pſal. 118. 1, &c. confeſſion, and free acknowledgement of Gods mercy, is a praiſing and thanking him for the ſame.

theſe things] The myſteries of thy kingdom.

and prudent] From the Scribes, Phariſees, and worldly wiſe men.

and haſt revealed them] By my miniſtery, and thoſe whom I have ſent to teach.

unto babes] Νηπίοις, to ſimple men and women, who know no more in ſuch things, then children do in worldly affairs. (See Clem. Alex. Pædag. l. 1. c. 5.) that which the Hebrew expreſſeth by פְּתָיִם Pſal. 19. 8. and 116. 6. in both which places the 70 give it νήπια and Prov. 1. 4. 22. & 8. 5. & 14. 15. (which Symachus gives νήπιος) they render by ἀκάκοις, harmleſs perſons: but Prov. 1. 32. the 70 give the ſame word νηπίους: which Greek word is uſed ſometimes to expreſſe young brutes, plants, or that which hath ſmall ſtrength, as an infant: what theſe here mean may be gathered, chap. 18. 3. Rom. 16. 19. 1 Cor. 14. 20.

v. 26. even ſo] Ναὶ, yea, Syr. אִין, etiam, certè, profectò yea, ſurely, truely.

for ſo it ſeemed good] Gods pleaſure being known, we muſt reſt ſatisfied; there needs no other reaſon, where he will have it ſo; becauſe his judgements are ever juſt, though many times unknown to us: and he is Lord of heaven and earth & may do what he will with his own. Here we ſee that of Proſper de vocat. Gent. l. 1. c. 24. to be true, Ex Deo eſſe principium, & profectum, conſummationemq; &c. that the beginning, advancement, and conſummation of our ſalvation is of God.

v. 27. all things] Joh. 3. 35. not only perſons, but things; ſo great is the power of Chriſt. See c. 28. 18. others underſtand it of the knowledge of thoſe myſteries ſpoken of here, 2. 25.

are delivered] Chriſt then, as man, had not this power and knowledge of himſelf.

no man knoweth the Son] His divine nature, and eternal generation: or, no man knows what he is to do, or ſuffer, but the Father, who hath deſigned him to both.

neither knoweth any man] John 6. 46.

the Father] That is his eſſence, or divine ſubſtance: or how he will have the calling of the Jews, or Gentiles to embrace the goſpel, to be diſpenſed or diſpoſed: the Prophets ſaw but little hereof, 1 Pet. 1. 10, 11, 12.

to whomſoever the Son will reveal him] None elſe can know, nor can any know any further then Chriſt will reveal him. chap. 13. 11. Mark 4. 11. Luk. 8. 10. 1 Cor. 2. 7. Eph. 3. 5. Col. 1. 26.

v. 28. Come unto me] It ſeemeth an alluſion to Iſaiah 55. 1. where God calleth all that ſpiritually thirſt to him, with promiſe freely to refreſh them: the meaning is, truſt in me, ye that are troubled in conſcience for ſin, and I will bring you to true reſt in Gods favour, which by other means ye can never obtain: he calleth them who alone can give both will and ability to come: as Ambroſe ſaith, dat vires ſequentibus ſe, itaq; quò propior virtute fueris, eo fortior eris, l. 7. ep. 54. Syricio, he giveth ſtrength to thoſe that follow him, ſo that the neerer thou art to vertue, the ſtronger ſhalt thou be: obſerve here, 1. whom he inviteth, all the laboring and heavy loaden; 2. to what, I will give you reſt; 3. with what condition; that they ſubmit to the juſt and eaſy yoke of Chriſt.

all ye that labour] Or are ill at eaſe; Chriſt calleth all to faith and repentance, excluding none that are thereto prepared by a deep ſenſe of the intolerable burden of their ſin.

and are heavy laden] With the ſenſe of your ſins, and a guilty conſcience, of all burdens in this world, the moſt importable, Prov. 18. 14. the more heavy we feel our ſins, the neerer we are to Gods mercy to relieve us. See Pſal. 38. 4.

I will give you reſt] Peace of conſcience, in the free remiſſion of guilt and puniſhment, the aſſurance thereof, and freedom from the ſervitude of ſin. Rom. 6. 14.

v. 29. take my yoke upon you] Obeying my commandments.

learn of me, for I am meek] Imitate me in meekneſſe and humility: which thou wilt do if thou love Chriſt: for as Chryſoſtom ſaith, thou loveſt not him whom thou wilt not imitate, and him whom thou wilt not follow, thou doeſt but feign to love.

ye ſhall finde reſt] Jer. 6. 16.

unto your ſouls] Your outward man may be exerciſed with many troubles, but ye ſhall have inward peace.

v. 30. my yoke is eaſie] That which I command you is good for you and eaſie. See John 15. 12.

my burden is light] The word φορτίον, primarily ſignifieth the fraight or balaſt of a ſhip, wᶜʰ glides through the waves, as if it had no burden, and indeed cannot go ſafe without balaſt: now the regenerate conſent to the law of God, Rom. 7. 22. and therefore it is not grievous to them, 1 John 5. 3. not through any ſtrength or will of their own, but by the free grace of God, who giveth faith, Epheſ. 2. 8. love, patience, perſeverance, and all thoſe things which they have need of, for the accompliſhment of their ſalvation: the burden of Phariſaical traditions was heavy chap. 23. 4. and of oppreſſours, Iſaiah 9. 4. and 10. 27. Hoſ. 8. 10. the law was a burden, which neither we nor our fathers were able to bear, (ſaid Peter, Acts 15. 10.) it was figured in Moſes hands, Exod. 17. 12. Moſes hands were heavie. Lex manus graves habuit, Gregor. hom. 33. in evang. the Law had heavy hands, which ſtrook ſinners with an heavy judgement: but Chriſts burden is light, who requireth onely of us, that which is beſt for us: as to love, feare, and obey him, in which there is true happineſſe, out of which there can be none: he exacteth of us onely faith, chaſtity, ſobriety, mercy, ſanctity, all which (ſaith Salvian l. 7. de gub. Dei) non onerant nos, ſed ornant: do not burden, but adorn us: he commandeth his to believe in him, that they may be ſaved, John 14. 1. John 9. 16. that they love one another, John 13. 34, 35. John 15. 12. what eaſier burden then love? what ſweeter yoke then that which Gods love makes eaſie: every commandment of God is eaſie to him, who loveth; becauſe God is with him, and ſheddeth abroad his love in his heart, that he may cheerfully and willingly obey him: as Proſper noteth after Auguſtine, he that doth any thing onely out of fear, ſervilely doth it: nor is he a friend of the right, who if it could be, had rather not have that which is right commanded. Chriſt requireth (to make us bleſſed) that at leaſt we do hunger and thirſt for righteouſneſſe; that is, that we have a will to be holy. Vide ſi labor eſt, ubi velle ſatis eſt, Auguſtine, ep. 45. See whether that be a labour, where tis enough to be but willing.

CHAP. XII.

Verſe 1. [Eſus went on the ſabbath day] Mark 2.23. Luk. 6.1. שבת (of שָׁבַת, ſhabbath of ſhabath, ceſſavit, quievit) ſignifieth a reſt, or ceſſation; as, God reſted the ſeventh day from his work of creation, Gen. 2. 2. ſanctified and enjoyned the ſame for a weekly ſeventh-day reſt, Exod. 20. 10. and 35, 2. 3. So it ſignifies the Lords day, wherein we are to keep an holy reſt from all ſervile work. Secondly, all other ſolemn feſtival dayes, enjoyned by the Levitical law to be kept holy, and ſet apart from all ſervile work, were called שַׁבָּתוֹן Shabbathon, Levit. 23. 24, 39. Sabbaculum. 70. ἀνάπαυσις. ſo Ezek. 20. 21. they polluted שַׁבְּתוֹתַי Shabbethothai, my ſabbaths, that is, my appointed feaſts: ſo Coloſ. 2. 16. theſe are called Sabbaths, that is, ſuch reſts as were appointed ſome day of the week to be kept holy, by the ceremonial, not the moral law: for theſe feaſts were appointed by a poſitive law, onely for the time that the Leviticall law and prieſthood laſted; ſometimes this word importeth the whole week, as Luke 18. 12.

began to pluck the ears of corn] Which was lawful for them to do, Deut. 23. 25. though in another mans field.

v. 2. when the phariſees ſaw it] Who commonly went along with the multitudes which followed Chriſt, not with any intention to learn of Chriſt, but to obſerve all that he did, or ſaid, that they might cavil and calumniate: as here, it ſeemeth they watched for the ſame purpoſe: and vainly thought, they had now found a juſt occaſion to accuſe him of the breach of Gods laws.

thy diſciples] It is thy fault who teacheſt them no better, or ſuffereſt them in thy preſence to do theſe things: he that connives at others ſins, makes them his own; they ſo blame the diſciples, that they might caſt ſome impious aſperſions on their Maſter, concerning breach of Gods law, though never ſo far from the minde of the Lawgiver.

which is not lawful] Becauſe dreſſing of meat on the Sabbath was forbidden in the wilderneſs, Exo. 16.23. in regard of the Manna, (their then preſent food) which was forbidden to be gathered on the ſabbath; they conceived that the very plucking, and rubbing of the ears was alſo unlawful, and a ſervile work forbidden, Levit. 23. 7. and a capital crime, as that Num. 15. 23. thus hypocrites are over ſcrupulous in the ſmalleſt, but careleſs in the greateſt matters of the law, as charity and equity, as if they were of no conſequence.

v. 3. have ye not read] You that glory in the knowledge of the Scriptures, conſider what the man after Gods own heart (1 Sam. 13. 14,) did in caſe of neceſſity, if ye have read this, ye might there have found that which might free you from this errour.

what David did] 1 Sam. 21. 6. You muſt either blame your Patriarch David, or free my diſciples.

and they that were with him] David then had ſome attending on him in his flight, though he be ſaid to come alone to the prieſt, 1 Sam. 21. 1. it ſeemeth they ſtayed for him in ſome place nigh, and he brought of the ſhew-bread thither to them. See 1 Sam. 21. 5. for he being loath then to be ſeen in Nob, went alone to the tabernacle, that ſo, little or no notice might be taken of him, and that he might have the better convenience to confer privately with the prieſt.

v. 4. the ſhew bread] τοὺς ἄρτους τῆς προθέσεως, as if we ſhould ſay bread of appoſition, or ſetting before: Syr. דפתורה דמריא לחמא, the bread of the Lords table: the Hebr. called it לחם פנים, lechem phanim, bread of faces, or preſence, Exod. 25. 30. becauſe it ſtood before the Lord all the week, upon the golden table appointed for that ſervice, Levit. 24. 8, 9. and placed in the formoſt part of the tabernacle, to the North-ſide, next after the holy of holies: there was none other uſe thereof, but to be furniſhed with twelve loaves or cakes: ſome ſay, that thereby the twelve tribes of Iſrael might teſtifie and acknowledge, that God did perpetually feed them, and prepare a table for them, or to minde them of the poor: theſe loaves were made of two tenths of an Ephah, or buſhel of fine flower, and were ſet, by ſix in a row, upon this golden, or pure table before the Lord: the old bread which had ſtood there all the week, was taken away, and eaten by the Prieſts, Levit. 24. 5, 6. and new ſet in the place every Sabbath day; becauſe they were ever ſet before the Lord, they were called panes propoſitionis, and לחם התמיד lechem hattamid, perpetual bread, which we call ſhewbread, becauſe theſe loaves did ever ſhew, or preſent themſelves to the Lord upon that table inſtead of Iſrael; for as the ark ſignified the preſence of the Lord in his Church, ſo this table with the twelve loaves, ſignified the multitude of the faithfull, preſented unto him in his Church, under his view, care, and providence, continually ſerving in his preſence; and laſtly, his continual feeding them with the bread of life, Chriſt. See Joh. 6. 32. Eph. 5. 2.

which was not lawful for him to eat] According to the letter of the law: but according to the intent thereof, lawful.

neither for them which were with him] It appears hence, that they did eat of the ſhew-bread, as well as David, and this is added, leſt the Phariſees might think, that David might do it by ſome extraordinary warrant, being a prophet: they that were with him were no prophets, yet they alſo did eat it, and are not blamed, becauſe it was in a caſe of neceſſity, to which ceremonial laws muſt yield.

but onely for the prieſts] Exo. 29. 32, 33. Lev. 8. 31. & 24. 9.

v. 5. in the law] Numb. 28. 9.

the prieſts in the temple profane the ſabbath] That is, in your ſenſe, who judge any labor on the ſabbath to be profanation of the Law: but there are ſabbath-dayes works; therefore the prieſts labour bodily, killing cattle for ſacrifices on that day, and that in the court of the temple, and yet ſin not.

are blameleſſe] Such as you have no cauſe to complain of, blameleſſe, not onely by mercy or connivence, but according to the law. So the Greek word ἀναίτιοι ſignifieth unreproveable, or without crime: they do not violate the Sabbath, becauſe they do that which appertaineth to the ſervice of God: ſome note, that the Fathers though rigid obſervers of the Sabbath, yet held this Maxime, that neceſſity or danger of life, put by the ſabbath: that is in caſe of neceſſity, there was no breach of the Sabbath, neither was neceſſary labor therin, any ſervile work. See Tremel. note on this place.

v. 6. one greater then the temple] More holy, more excellent; Chriſt the Lord of the temple, ἡ ἀλήθεια οὐχ ὁ τύπος, Chryſoſt. hom. 40. in Matth. 12. the truth, not the type onely, which preceded in the prieſt: if they were blameleſſe, though they cut wood, kindled fiers, ſlew beaſts, and ſacrificed on the Sabbath day, becauſe all this was ſubordinate to the ſervice of the temple, how much more are my diſciples, in doing that which enableth them to attend on me in a greater buſineſs then ſacrifices.

v. 7. I will have mercy] See on Hoſ. 6. 6. and chap. 9. 13. God preferreth relieving mans neceſſities, before the performance of his own external ſervice: ſo he concludes works of mercy to be Sabbath-dayes works, and no profanations.

v. 8. for the Son of man] I who am the Lord of the Sabbath, declare, that the Sabbath which was appointed for man, muſt yield to mans ſafety and welfare; ſpecially when either of them are in jeopardy, Mark 2. 27, 28. hereto it is obſervable, which Athanaſius To. 1. de ſemente, and others note, that Chriſt wrought his moſt illuſtrious miracles on the Sabbath-dayes, not breaking the law, or introducing any new thing therein, as Tertul. adverſ. Marcion. l. 4. c. 12. excellently noteth; for (ſaith he) he here fulfilled the law, dum conditionem ejus interpretatur, dum facit quæ lex de Sabbati feriis excipit, dum ipſum Sabbati diem, benedictione patris à primordio ſanctum, benefactione ſuâ efficit ſanctiorem, &c. while he interpreteth the condition thereof, while he doth thoſe things which the law excepted from the Sabbath-dayes reſt, while he maketh the Sabbath-day it ſelf, (by Gods bleſſing holy from the beginning) more holy by his doing good thereon.

v. 9. when he was departed thence] Out of thoſe corn fields mentioned, verſe 1. Mark 3. 1. Luke 6. 6.

he went into their ſynagogue] See on C. 11. 1 on another Sabbath he went into the ſynagogue of the ſame town, Luk. 6. 6.

v. 10. his hand withered] His right hand, Luke 6. 6. the want whereof made his condition more calamitous.

they asked him] They stay not till Christ had done this miracle; but by their speech, first put him upon it, that they might pick a quarrel with him.

v. 11. What man ſhall there be among you] Will any of you that are ſo ſtrict for the Sabbath, let a ſheep periſh thereon for want of help?

v. 12. a man better then a ſheep] All creatures on earth were made for man, it were therefore a ſhame to ſave a ſheep, and ſuffer a man to periſh: it is lawful by your own tradition and practiſe, to ſave a beaſt on the Sabbath-day, and ſhould not I heal a man on the Sabbath?

it is lawful to do well &c.] Legal ceremonies ought not to hinder works of charity: Nulla neceſſitas major eſt charitate, Jerom lib. 1. ep. 37. Chromatio, there is no neceſſity greater then charity.

v. 13. Stretch forth thy hand] That withered hand: he commanded, and withall gave him ability ſo to do, by healing it on an inſtant, without which he could not have ſtretched it out: ſo when God giveth us ſtrength to do what he commandeth us, it is our duty, but his grace and mercy that we can in ſome good meaſure do it.

it was reſtored whole] So Chriſt ſhewed his divine power, as in many other like miracles.

as the other] Which was ſound and well.

v. 14. held a Council] The Phariſees went out of the ſynagogue, leaving the multitude, before whom they durſt not for ſhame calumniate him for this work of divine power and mercy, and took counſel to deſtroy Chriſt.

how they might deſtroy him] Here appeareth the invincible malice of theſe adverſaries: he healed all their infirmities and diſeaſes, and they conſult how to deſtroy him: to them belonged that which Moſes ſaid, Deut. 32. 5, 6. they are a perverſe and crooked generation: do ye thus requite the Lord, O fooliſh people and unwiſe? the wicked ſo abuſe the mercies of God, that even the good which he doth for them maketh them worſe.

v. 15. when Jeſus knew it] by his divine knowledge.

he withdrew himſelf] Though he could by his power have defended himſelf againſt all their attempts, yet he would deport himſelf as man, and by ordinary means keep out of their hands, til his time of ſuffering came. See Joh. 4. 1. 3.

great multitudes followed him] The multitude, whom in their pride of heart the Phariſees contemned, as ignorant, and impious (John 7. 49.) were more ſenſible of Gods mercy then they; and therefore followed him withdrawing himſelf: they envyed not his glory: conſider what a dangerous thing envy is.

he healed them all] That had need of healing, and deſired it. See chap. 4. 23. Mark 3. 10. the malice of ſome ſhall not overcome and intercept his mercy toward others.

v. 16. that they ſhould not make him known] Leſt the Phariſees ſhould finde him, and endeavour to deſtroy him before the appointed time, or till after his reſurrection, as chap. 17. 9. See alſo chap. 8. 4.

v. 17. ſpoken by the prophet] Iſaiah 42. 1.

v. 18. whom I have choſen] To be a Saviour of the world. See Hebrews 5. 5.

my beloved, &c.] Chap. 3. 17.

I will put my ſpirit upon him] Iſaiah 11. 2. & 61. 1. John 3. 34. Coloſ. 2. 9.

judgement to the Gentiles] ἔθνεσιν, by judgement he meaneth the true worſhip of God, preaching of the goſpel, the doctrine of ſalvation by Chriſt: by Gentiles, thoſe people which were not of the Jews, ſuch were the Galileans and Tyrians now preſent, ſuch are we. So was the propheſie then in part fulfilled: alſo hereby may be meant a ſetled eſtate of the Goſpell, becauſe Chriſt was to preach (as here by himſelf to theſe Gentiles, ſo by his Apoſtles to the world) the truth of the Goſpel, whereby to caſt out ſuperſtition; which thing whereever it is done, the Lord doth reign and judge there.

v. 19. ſhall not ſtrive] He ſhall do his office meekly and humbly, and not manage his ſpiritual kingdom by violence, nor unneceſſarily conteſt with the Phariſees, who conſulted how to deſtroy him, verſe 14. he ſhall not ſtrive with violence, vociferations and clamour, as thoſe, who having a bad cauſe in hand, think to make it good, by importunity and railing.

nor cry] As men enraged, Epheſ. 4. 31. as thoſe, who do all by tumultuous outcryes. See John 18. 40.

his voice in the ſtreets] As thoſe who clamour in the ears of the people abroad and in publick, for vain oſtentation, and to be heard of men, out of the houſe where they teach or pray; but ſhal teach the goſpel with all meeknes & modeſty.

v. 20. a bruiſed reed] By theſe two ſimilitudes are deſcribed Chriſts gratious clemency in dealing with the moſt infirme; as thoſe who had onely a deſire of grace, and ſome ſlender beginnings of converſion and faith, as many in this multitude following him, ſeemed to have: the meaning alſo may further be, that he ſhall not condemn ſuch as labour under the burden of ſin, but rather quiet their conſciences, chap. 11. 28, 29. Ezek. 34. 16.

ſmoaking flax] Alluding to the wick of a candle put out, that onely ſmoaks and gives no light.

judgement unto victory] Till he ſhall bring under, or confound all his enemies.

v. 21. in his name] In him, when they know him aright, leſt any ſhould think that this appertained to the Jews onely, he nameth the Gentiles to be converted, and to believe in Chriſt: in citing this propheſie, the Evangeliſt like a faithful interpreter, giveth the full ſenſe, though he omit ſome words leſſe pertinent to his purpoſe, or vary others, as they beſt might ſerve to expreſſe the matter which he hiſtorifieth.

v. 22. was brought unto him] Luke 11. 14. very like it is, that he was made blinde and dumb by the devil that poſſeſſed him. See on chap. 9. 32. and now he was brought unto Chriſt by ſome friends; when he had in his receſſe and withdrawing from the people, ſhewed himſelf to be the Meſſias, by healing many.

v. 23. all the people were amazed] The word and works of Chriſt have variable effects, as hearers and ſpectatours, theſe admire the power and goodneſſe of God, but the Phariſees blaſpheme.

is not this the ſon of David?] The Meſſias, See on chap. 9. 27.

v. 24. when the phariſees heard it] Chap. 9. 34.

this fellow] This man; ſo it is likely they might here call Chriſt in contempt, not vouchſafing ſo much as to name him; though οὗτος among the Greeks, did not alwayes import contempt of the perſon to which it related: but ſometimes it was a note of honour and eminency.

by Beelzebub,] See on Chap. 9. 34. and on Luke 11. 15.

v. 25 Jeſus knew their thoughts] They are charged in the foregoing verſe to have ſaid ſo, what need Chriſt then know their thoughts? The anſwer may be that they ſaid it in their hearts onely; or that he knew it the ſame way, by which he knows mens thoughts without any mans relation, though as man he heard it not his ſelf.

every kingdom divided] As diviſion overthrows, houſes, cities and kingdoms; ſo muſt it deſtroy Satans kingdom; if one devil ſhould give power to men to caſt out another. See Luke 11. 17.

v. 27. by whom do your children caſt them out] Some underſtand this of the Apoſtles, who were Jews: others of Exorciſts among them, Acts 19. 13. others of ſuch Jews as did by Chriſts name caſt out devils, but did not follow Chriſt, as Mark 9. 38. Luke 9. 49. yet none of theſe were blamed by the Jews: why then ſhould Chriſt be ſo taxed? The firſt interpretation is moſt probable.

v. 28. by the ſpirit of God] By power from God.

the kingdom of God] The kingdom of the promiſed Meſſias under the New Teſtament. See Luke 11. 20.

v. 29. or elſe how can &c.] If Gods powerful kingdom were not come among you, how could ſo many devils be caſt out? they are ſtrong, and will not be driven out of poſſeſſion by any, but a ſtronger hand.

v. 30. he that is not with me, is againſt me] As in war, he that fighteth not for his Prince, is an enemy: and as they which are to gather in their maſters harveſt, if they neglect it, are ſcatterers and deſtroyers; ſo they that will not defend me againſt blaſphemies (wherein they can) betray my cauſe and are enemies.

v. 31. wherefore I ſay unto you] He ſpeaketh this to ſhew, that either the Phariſees had committed this ſin, or to warn men take heed of it by them who had come neer unto it.

all manner of ſin] Great and ſmall. Mark. 3. 28. Luke. 12. 10. John 5. 16.

ſhall be forgiven unto men] To ſome men, or any ſin elſe may be forgiven.

blaſpheme againſt the holy Ghoſt] This is conceived to be a malitious oppoſing the truth of the goſpel, made known to us by the holy Ghoſt, joyned with perſecution of thoſe that profeſs it, (and that merely becauſe they do ſo) with final impenitency: See Auguſt. Macedonio ep. 50. paulo ante finem, and Auguſtin in Evan. Matth. ſerm. 11. poſt init.

v. 32. againſt the ſon of man] Againſt Chriſt by way of diſgrace as he is man, or againſt any man; for it is a grievous ſin, to calumniate or wrong any man, yet pardonable: but to ſin with ſo high an hand, as verſe 31. againſt God himſelf, as hath been ſaid, is unpardonable, Num. 15. 30. Heb. 10. 29.

neither in this world, nor in the world to come] That is, never: but ſhall be puniſhed both here, and in the life to come. Mark 3. 29. 1 John 5. 16.

v. 33. Either make the tree good] Either confeſſe that I am good, becauſe ye ſee me caſt out devils, and do good, or elſe convince me of any evil action, before ye prejudicate my perſon; or, either bring forth good fruits, that ye may appear to be good; or elſe confeſſe your ſelves to be evil, as indeed you are: be what ye ſeem, or ſeem as you are.

tree is known by his fruit] So muſt you, and I, by our words and actions.

v. 34. O generation of vipers] See on chap. 3. 7.

how can ye being evil ſpeak good things?] Hypocrites will ſpeak good things to deceive men: yet ſometimes the evil of their hearts breaks out into their tongues; let thy heart agree with thy tongue.

for out of the abundance, &c.] Luke 6. 45. The heart is the fountain of words and actions; according to the veins and quality thereof, the words do commonly reliſh.

v. 35. a good man] A man of a ſanctified heart and affection, will ſpeak to Gods honour and edification of others, Pſal. 37. 30, 31. but a wicked mans heart (like the unhealed waters of Jericho, 2 Kings 2. 19.) ſendeth out onely ſtreams of death and barrenneſſe.

the treaſure] That is, the abundance, and indeficient ſtore of the Spirit of ſanctification. See John 7. 38. 39.

v. 36. every idle word] Every vain word, as Epheſ. 5. 6. or of every falſe word: much more then for every injurious calumny, prophanation and blaſphemy.

give account] A metaphor from accomptants; as Rom. 14. 12. Phil. 4. 17. Eccles. 12. 14. we have need therefore to ſet a carefull watch before the doors of our lips; it is a good advice of Jerom ep. 22. lib. 2. Conſider long what thou muſt ſpeak, and being yet ſilent, take heed thou ſpeak nothing to be repented of; let thy thoughts ponder thy words, & lingua officium animi libra diſpenſet: and let the balance of thy minde weigh out the taſk of thy tongue.

v. 37. for by thy words, &c.] See Luke 19. 22.

and Or, as, Exo. 21. 15. 17. Num. 30. 4, 5, 6.

v. 38. then certain of the Scribes] Chap. 16. 1. Luke 11. 29. Theſe would pretend a willignes to believe might they but be ſatisfied, and convinced with ſuch a ſigne as they required, Luke 11. 16.

a ſigne from thee] A miracle, or ſigne from heaven, that we may be aſcertained that God hath ſent thee to teach us, Chap. 16. 1. John 6. 30, 31. for they had ſeen many miraculouſly healed, but yet could not believe or would not acknowledge the hand and power of God therein.

v. 39. adulterous generation A baſtardly brood, Hoſ. 1. 2. no true children of Abraham John 8. 39. becauſe ſo much degenerate from his faith and ſanctity See on chap. 16. 4. he noteth their vain confidence in being the poſterity of Abraham, in ſuch their defection from the love and true worſhip of God.

no ſigne be given unto it] No ſigne ſhall be given them now at their requeſt, but afterward one ſhall be given them in the death and reſurrection of Chriſt, which ſhall be to the ſhame and confuſion of unbelievers.

the ſigne of the prophet Jonas] Whoſe lying ſo long in the whales belly, was a type of Chriſts burial, or ſuch a miracle as was wrought upon Jonas.

v. 40. for as Jonas] Jonas 1. 17.

the Son of man be three dayes] Some part of three dayes; for he was buried towards the end of the ſixt day, lay in the grave the whole ſeventh day, and roſe not again until about the dawning of the firſt day of the week, of which the night was a part; ſo Hieron. in Jon. 2. 1. ſaith, that συνεκδοχικῶς, ſynecbdochically, a part is put for the whole.

in the heart] Within the body of the earth, ἐν τῇ καρδίᾳ, in the heart; ſo the Hebrews ſay לבב ימים, lebab janim, Ezek. 28. 2. the heart of the ſea. Jonah 2. 2. 70 βάθη καρδίας θαλάσσης, the midſt of the ſeas, or the deeps, ſo Deut. 4. 11. בלב השמים, lev haſhamim, the heart of heaven. 70 ἕως τοῦ οὐρανοῦ, up to heaven. Targ. עד עית שמיא, ad ſummitatem cœli, Exod. 4. 14. בלבו, belibbo. 70 ἐν ἑαυτῷ, within himſelf. And ſo Hilarie interpreteth this ἐν καρδίᾳ, interiora terræ, and Mark 2. 6. ἐν καρδίαις αὐτῶν, The Syriac gives the verſe 8. according to the Greek, ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, בנפשהון, benaphſhehun, in their ſouls, or within themſelves, or among themſelves: ſo doth it among other things import, the midſt, or the inward part of the earth: ſo was Chriſts body being buried within the earth; that is, in the grave.

v. 41. ſhall riſe in judgement] Alluding to the manner of humane courts of judicature; in which witneſſes are ſaid to ariſe, or ſtand up, to give in witneſſe or evidence. Deut. 19. 15, 16. Mark 14. 57. Acts 6 13. The very example of the Ninevites, in the day of judgement, ſhall be an argument of condemnation to the obſtinate Jews.

this generation] See on chap. 11. 16.

ſhall condemn it] Shall cauſe it to be condemned, as being againſt the men thereof an argument of condemnation.

becauſe they repented] Jon. 3. 5. They repented at Jonas preaching, who was but a Prophet, a meer infirm man; but the Jews would not repent at the preaching of Chriſt, God and man.

v. 42. The Queen of the ſouth] 1 Kings 10. 1. The Queen of Sheba, whoſe nation bare ſouth from Jeruſalem, and the land of Iſrael.

ſhall riſe up &c.] See on verſe 41.

from the uttermoſt parts of the earth] For Sheba was in the utmoſt parts of Arabia the happy: and on the mouth or entrance of the Arabian ſea. Jerem. 50. 26.

to hear the wiſdom of Solomon] In things natural and humane, 1 Kings 10. 3. whereas here is another manner of wiſdom, that is, unto ſalvation, 2. Tim. 3. 16.

v. 43. When the unclean ſpirit] Luke 11. 24. He could as eaſily have ſaid, The devil will more and more violently carry you into greater ſins, until at laſt he deſtroy you: but he uſeth this parabolical admonition, that the penitent might learn caution, and the reſt be leſſe exaſperated againſt him.

walketh through dry places] The devil is compared here to a man caſt out of his dwelling, and finding no contentment in dry places, & deſerts, incommodious for habitation.

ſeeking reſt] That is, a place to ſettle in.

and findeth none] For he reſteth not, except where he can do ſome miſchief: he is like a malecontented exile, ſo long as he cannot infeſt man.

v. 44. I will return] When he findeth not ſome more wicked heart, or ſome others to pervert to their deſtruction, he adviſeth with himſelf, how he may make them more impious and damnable whom he hath already corrupted, and ſet in the way to hell and damnation.

into my houſe] Here appeareth the miſerable condition of the wicked, how ever great, glorious, or happy they appear to the ſenſe of the world; they are but the devils houſes, wherein he claimeth and holdeth a perpetual intereſt, yea, though he ſometimes permit them to ſome more ſober fits and appearances of repentance and amendment, as he did Pharaoh, Ahab, &c.

findeth it empty] And none to hinder his re-entring.

ſwept and garniſhed] Either by ſome formal repentance, or ſecure, void of all fear of God, living in pleaſure, for this is Satans garniſhing, whereby the ſinner is made ready for him to entertain him again.

v. 45. then goeth he] Finding not the means to do miſchief to others, which he deſired and expected, he repoſſeſſeth himſelf of that heart he had before, by carrying the ſinner into ſome more deſperate and damnable condition then before he was in.

ſeven other ſpirits] That is, many, as Revel. 1. 4. ſeven a definite number is put for an indefinite more wicked then himſelf] To keep the more ſecure poſſeſſion, and do the more miſchief there.

and the laſt ſtate, &c.] See Heb. 6. 4. & 10. 26. 2 Pet. 2. 20.

to this wicked generation] Which ſeeks a ſigne, verſe 38. the Jews having been in ſome ſort freed from Satans dominion, by Chriſts abode among them, his doctrine and miracles: ſo that being now willing to deſtroy Chriſt, and to entertain Satan again, he intimateth that they ſhould be like a repoſſeſſed man, tenfold more children of the devil then before: conſider here the inevitable danger, you that relapſe, and turn again to the filthy vomit of your old ſins.

v. 46 while he yet talked to the people] This ſheweth a reaſon, why he would not preſently go to his mother and brethren; becauſe they came unſeaſonably to interrupt him in his Fathers work. See Luke 2. 49.

behold his mother] Mark 3. 31. Luke 8. 20.

and his brethren His kinſmen, (as Gen. 13. 8. ſee c. 13. 55.) where four of them are mentioned, James, Joſes, Simon, Judas.

ſtood without] Either in modeſty, becauſe he was inſtructing the people: or becauſe they could not get in for the preſſe.

deſiring to ſpeak with him] Concerning what is not recorded: ſome think to acquaint him with ſome dangers towards him by the Phariſees: as Acts 23 16.

v. 47. one ſaid unto him] One at firſt, and afterwards many. Mark 3 32.

thy brethren] See on verſe 46.

v. 48. who is my mother?] Not that he did in any meaſure deſpiſe his mother and brethren; but that he preferred the ſervice of God, and ſalvation of the people, and becauſe he would not be unſeaſonably troubled. See John 2. 4.

v. 49. behold my mother] He declareth hereby how he loveth and eſteemeth the righteous, even as his dear mother and brethren: he is the firſt-born among many brethren; and our brother, the word became fleſh, John 1. and ſuch as we are (as Hilary noteth de trin. lib 11.) ſin onely excepted. The ſpiritual kindred he preferreth; ſo ſhould we the houſhold of faith, Gal. 6. 10.

v. 50. Whoſoever ſhall do the will &c.] Matth. 7. 21. Not every one of you that heareth me, but he that faithfully doth my Fathers will.

and ſiſter] It may be there were preſent ſome of his kinswomen alſo, though they are not mentioned, or elſe he addes it for the comfort of thoſe religious women that followed him, and miniſtred to him. Luke 8. 2, 3.

and mother] The holy are dear and dear unto me, as are thoſe to whom the laws of nature, and fleſh and blood obligeth me; herein grace is better then nature.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſe 1. THe ſame day] On that day: which phraſe although in ſome places of Scripture it ſignifie not preciſely the very ſame day, but about that time, as in the Prophets, Iſaiah 4. 1. & 26. 1. yet in an hiſtorical narration as this is, it ſignifieth the ſame day, and here appeareth our Saviours unwearied endeavour in preaching ſalvation to the people.

went Jeſus out of the houſe] His going into the houſe is mentioned, Mark 3. 19. as it ſeems, to refreſh his diſciples, who by reaſon of the multitudes importunity, had not time to eat bread. Mark 3. 20. therefore Chriſt leaves his meat and the houſe, to go into a larger place where he might teach the people: ſo was it his meat and drink to do his Fathers work, John 4. 34.

and ſate by the ſea ſide] Mark 4. 1. by the ſea of Tiberias, John 6. 1. which lay neer his own countrey, whither he went, when he had finiſhed the enſuing parables, verſ. 53, 54.

v. 2. great multitudes were gathered &c.] The malice of the Phariſees, deſiring a ſigne from heaven to confirm his authority and doctrine, chap. 12. 38. though Chriſt would not ſatisfie, yet the people flock to him.

ſo that he went into a ſhip] The multitude preſſing him, as Mark 5. 31. Luke 5. 1. alſo that being freed from the throng, he might the better be heard and ſeen of his auditours, being at ſome diſtance from him, and all their faces towards him; therefore the ſhip was put off a little from the ſhore.

and ſat] This was the uſuall geſture of our Saviour teaching: as alſo of their doctors. Matth. 23. 2. See chap. 5. 1. Luke 4. 20. although he ſtood when he publikely read the ſcriptures. Luke 4. 16. theſe things are of their own nature arbitrary, and therefore are moſt ſafely regulated by the cuſtomes of time, place, and perſons, ſo as that we make no diviſion in things indifferent; but there follow the cuſtome of that church whereof Gods providence hath made us a part.

multitude ſtood on the ſhore] That they might more conveniently ſee and hear him.

v. 3. He ſpake many things &c.] He ſpake many parables, according to the ſeverall capacities of his auditours: and their various imployments: Some of them poſſibly were husbandmen; ſome merchants, others fiſhermen: he teacheth them all in their ſeverall elements: proverbs are ſometimes called parables, although there be no ſimilitude in them: as Pſal. 49. 4. (See on John 10. 6.) but here the word ſignifies, a ſetting forth of ſpirituall things, under certain repreſentations, and ſimilitudes, taken from things ſecular and worldly: in his ſermon on the mount, wherein he taught concerning bleſſedneſſe; the ſenſe and meaning of the law &c. he ſpeaketh more litterally and plainly, or in parables very eaſie to be underſtood: but here he ſpeaketh only in parables, not expounding them to the People: the reaſon is given, verſe 11. 34, 35. yet parables expounded (as ſome of theſe are afterwards) much help both underſtanding and memory, as ſhewing us the face of heavenly things in earthly glaſſes: alſo they work much upon our affections, when they are taken from things which we either love or hate. (See on Luke 5. 36.) and indeed, as the ſun is more eaſily viewed under ſome thinne cloud; ſo is divine truth under ſome ſimilitudes taken from things familiar and neerer to our underſtandings. See concerning allegories. Jerom. on Amos. l. 3 c. 9. Auguſtin. To. 6. contr. Fauſt. Manich. l. 12. c. 27, 28, 29. &c.

A ſower went forth to ſow] Luke 8. 5. This is the firſt of the ſeven parables in this chapter; wherein is intimated, that the ſeed of eternall life, which is ſown in preaching of the goſpel, thriveth not ſo well in one, as in another: and the reaſon is, for that men for the moſt part, either do not receive it, or loſe it, or ſuffer it not to ripen: therefore he admoniſheth his hearers, that their flocking after him, would not profit them, except they kept it in faithfull hearts, and brought forth the fruits thereof in newneſſe of life, which in likelihood a fourth part of them onely would do: the Lord ſoweth largely (ſaith Athanaſius, de ſemente.) but the fruit bearing is κατὰ τὸ ὑποκείμενον — according to the ſubject receiving it, when it withers on the ſtony ground &c. it is not ἀδυναμίᾳ τοῦ σπόρου, ἀλλὰ τῇ κακεξίᾳ τῆς γῆς in any impotency of the ſeed, but in the fault of the earth.

v. 4. Some fell by the wayes ſide] Some high wayes go thorow plowed fields, not incloſed in Champain countries, ſuch as it ſeems that was where our Saviour converſed. chap. 12. 1. there the ſeed could not enter, becauſe the ground was hardened by the feet of paſſengers: ſo the ſeed lying on the ground, was not received into the earth at all: as ſome hearers receive no benefit by the word preached, either becauſe they hear regardleſly, or underſtand not what they hear. verſe 19.

the fowls came and devoured] Here is mentioned another cauſe why they grew not: what the earth received not, the fowls carried away; what theſe fowls are, See verſ. 19.

v. 5. Some fell upon ſtony places] Where the grains might fall in between ſtone and ſtone, but could finde no good rooting: ſo ſome are a little affected at hearing of the word, as Herod was; but it can finde no firme ground in ſuch.

where they had not much earth] Not much care to receive, not much underſtanding to apprehend, not much faith to beleeve, not much will to obey, or not much love to retain it.

forthwith they ſprung up] They could not root downward, becauſe of the hardneſſe of the earth; but ſhot up ſodainly, becauſe, as Euthymius ſaith; quæ modicâ terrâ occultantur, velociter exoriuntur: ſeeds covered with little earth, ſoon ſpring up.

v. 6. when the ſun was up they were ſcorched] ἐκαυματίσθη Syr. It felt the heat the heat dryed up all the moiſture which ſhould nouriſh them, and ſo they periſhed.

becauſe they had no root &c.] Another cauſe of their decaying, is want of root which ſhould receive moiſture to nouriſh it, as the mouth doth food for the body: though the blade wither being blaſted, yet if the root be in any depth of earth, it may ſhoot out again; ſo though a Chriſtian be under ſome ſcorching temptations, dangerouſly blaſted in the outward man, yet if he continue in the faith, and love of God, grounded and ſetled (Coloſ. 1. 23.) he ſhall be like the tree planted by the rivers of water. (Pſal. 1.) but if this root fail, all periſhes.

v. 7. Some fell among thorns &c.] This had ſome root and growth; but is choaked up with thorns: ſo, the word in worldly hearers findeth ſome love to it, and purpoſes to obey it; but the cares and pleaſures of this world overgrow all, and make it fruitleſſe.

v. 8. fell into good ground] In the application, we may not think, that the heavenly ſeed found any good ground, but made it ſuch. Lydia indeed, like good ground, attended unto that which Paul preached. Acts 16. but God opened her heart thereto: the heart muſt be prepared, or the word ſhall never proſper, and profit: therefore the prophet ſaith, break up your fallow ground, and ſow not among thorns. Jer. 4. 3. that is, repent and root out your ſinnes: but the Lord ſaith alſo — I will take the ſtony heart out of their fleſh, and will give them an heart of fleſh. Ezek. 11. 19. See 2 Tim. 2. 19.

and brought forth fruit] The firſt ſprung not up: the ſecond ſprung up, but had not ſufficient root: the third grew up, but brought forth no fruit: but this grew up and fructified.

ſome an hundred fold, ſome ſixty fold &c.] Gods word doth not fructifie alike in all; the moſt fruit is beſt pleaſing to God. John 15. 2. 5. yet he deſpiſeth not the leaſt. chap. 12. 20.

ears to hear, let him hear] As if he ſaid, the parable is hard, and requireth diligent attention and conſideration. See chap. 11. 15. and Rev. 2. 7. let them whoſe hearts and ears God hath opened, be attentive: all are deaf, untill God open. See Pſal. 40. 6. If God have given thee an ear to hear, receive not the grace of God in vain; make good uſe of it, and hearken diligently to his word.

v. 10. the diſciples came] To wit, after he had done teaching the people, and was gone out of the ſhip: See Mark 4. 10. for it is not likely that our Saviour would leave teaching the people, to conferre with the Apoſtles, untill he had uttered all he had to ſay unto the people. See verſe 36.

and ſaid unto him] Two queſtions were now moved to our Saviour: the firſt recorded here: why he ſpake to the people in parables: the ſecond Mark 4. 10. 13. what was the ſenſe of the parable? to the firſt our Saviour anſwers, verſe 11. to the ſecond verſe 18.

Why ſpeakeſt thou unto them in parables?] In ſpeeches more obſcure then uſuall, and ſuch as neither they nor we underſtand: this ſheweth a pious charity in the Apoſtles, in that they not onely deſired to underſtand theſe parables their ſelves, but that the people alſo might underſtand them; and it is probable that they apprehended from Chriſts concluſion verſe 9. that themſelves alſo, yet wanted ſomthing of the ear to hear, and underſtand. See Mark 4. 10. So alſo it may appear in that Chriſt reproved them. Mark 4. 13.

v. 11. Becauſe it is given unto you to know &c.] To you that fear God I will interpret the parables; See Pſal. 25. 14. which not being unfolded, are hidden myſteries; and like the cloudy pillar, dark toward the Egyptians, but light to Iſrael. Exod. 14. 20. Proſper ſaith well, de vocat. Gent. l. 1. c. 24. ut Deus cognoſcatur, ex Deo ſit, that we may know God, it is of God.

to them it is not given] The underſtanding of things divine and heavenly, is to the faithfull: the reſt either know them not, or to their further condemnation, who knew their maſters will, and would not do it: the free grace of God maketh the difference.

v. 12. For whoſoever hath &c.] chap. 25. 29. It is the cuſtome of the world to give to rich men, and to take away from the poor; this they unjuſtly do: but God will juſtly reward thoſe that uſe his ordinances well, and puniſh them that abuſe them.

even that he hath] That which he ſeemeth to have. Luke 8. 18. or thoſe common graces which he did not well uſe when he had them.

v. 13. Therefore ſpeak I to them in parables &c.] The reaſon why theſe myſteries are no more plainly delivered unto them, is for their foregoing obſtinacy.

they ſeeing, ſee not] Though they daily ſee the miracles wrought by me, yet will they not take any notice of my divine power, that they may beleeve, and be ſaved. John 6. 36. See the like, Deut. 29. 2, 3, 4.

hearing they hear not] Though they hear with their outward ears that which might convince their errour, and inform them of the truth, yet they receive it not inwardly, but obſtinately withſtand it.

neither do they underſtand] Nor conceive aright, what is delivered unto them. John 2. 19, 20. & 8. 27. 43.

in them is fulfilled the propheſie &c.] This is no new thing, neither need it ſeem ſtrange unto you that they are ſo hard hearted: ſo was it with their fathers, and ſo it was foretold that it ſhould be with them. Acts 7. 51, 52.

By hearing ye ſhall hear] So Mark 4. 12. Luke 8. 10. John 12. 40. Acts 28. 20. Rom. 11. 8. Iſaiah 6. 9.

v. 15. for this people is waxed groſſe &c.] As in the body, when the heart is overgrown with fat, both that, and all the parts of the body, thence deriving vitall ſpirits, grow heavy, dull and inactive: ſo it is in the inward man; when the heart is grown ſenſuall and obdurate, men cannot apprehend Gods truth for their ſanctification and ſalvation. See Iſaiah 6. 10.

Their eyes have they cloſed] This ſheweth a reaſon of that heavy judgement denounced againſt Iſrael, Iſaiah 6. 9, 10. the obſtinate people would not hear, nor underſtand; but as thoſe who wilfully ſtopped their ears, and ſhut their eyes, that they might the more ſecurely run upon their own deſtruction, and neither hear nor ſee that which might ſtay them, and have made for their converſion and ſafety; deafneſs in a ſharp feaver (ſay Phyſicians) is a ſigne of madneſs: more miſerable are obſtinate ſinners: the lunatick have ſome excuſe; (the will is not in fault, where men are not themſelves, ſaid Salvian de gub. l. 6.) the more condemnable are theſe, qui ſani inſaniebant; who are wittingly mad, where there is wilfull maliciouſneſſe ἐκεῖ καὶ ἀποχὴ τῆς χάριτος there is abſence of grace, Cyril. Hieroſol. Catec. 6. therefore God juſtly deſerteth thoſe who unjuſtly firſt deſerted him, following their obſtinacy, by giving them up to ſpirituall blindneſſe; withdrawing the common light which he had given them: his judgements ever follow, they never precede mens ſinnes: where his eternall decree, and omniſcience precede, it is to appoint impenitent ſinners to puniſhment, not to ſinne.

v. 16 But bleſſed are your eyes] Ye are happy who underſtand theſe myſteries of ſalvation. chap. 16. 17. for as Ireneus ſaith, L. 4. c. 76. nec enim lumen deficit propter eos qui ſemetipſos excæcaverunt, the light faileth not for their fault who have blinded themſelves.

for they ſee] Ye not onely ſee with your bodily eyes, as theſe wicked men do; but alſo with the eyes of your minde. See John 6. 40.

v. 17. Many Prophets and righteous men] Your condition is better not onely then theſe wicked mens, but alſo then that of the fathers, who lived in former ages; for ye know more of me and heavenly myſteries, then they did; and where ye doubt, you have one preſent to reſolve you, and plainly and infallibly expound unto you any myſteries of eternall life and ſalvation; which the fathers ſaw but darkly, through the clouds of the law, and far off.

v. 18. Hear ye therefore the parable] I will tell you the meaning of it, though I conceal it from them, who wilfully ſtop their ears, and harden their hearts; their obſtinacy ſhall not hinder you. See on verſe 3. and chap. 15. 15. and on Luke 5. 36. and here on verſe 16.

v. 19. The word of the kingdom] The goſpel preached, which brings men into the kingdom of grace here, and ſhews them the way into the kingdom of glory, to be poſſeſſed hereafter: this is the ſeed before ſpoken of, called alſo the goſpel of the kingdom. chap. 4. 23. and the kingdom of heaven, chap. 3. 2.

underſtandeth it not] Or regardeth it not.

the wicked one] The devil, who is wicked himſelf, and endeavours to make all others ſo: here are the ravening birds, which devour the ſeed: by wicked one, underſtand one or more unclean ſpirits; who are ever ready, watching the oſcitancy, neglect, ſleepineſſe and careleſſneſſe of hearers; whereby they eaſily ſteal away the word preached from the heart, and memory of the hearers: look how hungry birds watch the ſowen fields to pick away the ſeed, ſo do the devils watch auditors while they hear; this the wicked one doth uſually.

That which was ſowen] The word preached; which would elſe bring forth according to the kinde and ſeaſon: as without good ſeed ſowen, the earth bringeth forth onely it own curſe, briers, thiſtles, thornes, and weeds; at the beſt, but graſſe for the beaſts: ſo is it with the ſoul of man, without this heavenly ſeed of Gods word, we bring forth nothing but ſinne and curſe.

in his heart] Which he had heard, but regarded not in his heart.

this is he which received the ſeed &c.] This is he who is likened to that portion of earth, which being neer the uttermoſt furrows, receiveth ſome overcaſt ſeed: who though he be joyned in place and number, to and with the people of God hearing the word, (as the highway is ſomewhere neer the furrows of corn) yet indeed he belongeth not to the good earth, but the highway, ſo hardned with treading (that is cuſtomary ſinning, and obduration of heart thereby) that no good can there take root, or proſper.

v. 20 He that received the ſeed] He that is here likened to ſuch earth.

anon with joy] εὐθὺς Preſently, the Syrian giveth it בר שׁעתה bar ſhabatheh—The ſame hour, as, chap. 8. 13. and here verſe 5. Forthwith, that which the Hebrews expreſſe by רגע אחד regah echad—Exod. 33. 5. in a moment, μιᾷ ὥρᾳ Rev. 18. 17. 19. in one hour: ſuch is the appearance of any good, in the rootleſſe hypocrite, as a morning cloud, and as the early dew it goeth away, Hoſ. 6. 4. as thoſe fructus horarii, ſoon ripe, ſoon rotten: like Jonahs gourd בן לילה ben laila Jonah 4. 10. the ſon of a night, which came up in a night, and periſhed in a night: ſuch was Ahabs, Sauls, and Pharaohs repentance. 1 Kings 21. 27. &c. 1 Sam. 15. 30. 31. 1 Sam. 24. 16, 17. 1 Sam. 26. 1. &c. Exod. 9. 27. 34, 35 &c. Such was Herods attention to Johns preaching. Mark 6. 20. So are many carnall hearers affected with the word, the ſame inſtant or hour they hear it, and thence it withereth away, and is no more thought of. By this examine thy condition, whether the word thou heareſt, and the affection it worketh in thee, in that hour thou heareſt it, take root in thy heart, untill it bring forth fruits of ſanctification, in the courſe and practice of thy life.

v. 21. yet hath he not root in himſelf] As corn not well rooted may make ſome ſhew, till ſome blaſt or ſcorching drought comes, but then it withers, and wilts away: ſo, they that have not Gods word rooted in their hearts, may make a fair profeſſion, till trouble come, and then they fall away.

perſecution ariſeth] When unexpected troubles ariſe, which fruſtrate the vain hopes he conceived of temporall peace, and proſperity, by the profeſſion of the goſpel; or thoſe forementioned promiſes.

offended] Or made to fall. Gr. ſcandalized.

v. 22. and the care of this world] The care of getting and mannaging worldly riches, and enjoying pleaſures, are compared to piercing thornes choaking up the ſeed; that is, good intentions wrought in the heart, by the word preached. See 1 Tim. 6. 9, 10. Luke 21. 34. 2 Tim. 4. 10.

choak the word] As overſhadowing briers, thornes, or weeds, keeping the ſun-beams from the corn, and with more ſtrong and rank roots, drawing away the fatneſſe of the earth (which otherwiſes ſhould nouriſh the corn) and thereby hinder it from all maturity of fruit: ſo do cares and pleaſures in the ſoul: indeed ſuch a ſevere juſtice of God followeth the contempt and neglect of his word, as that where it mendeth not, it leaveth the hearer much more condemnable. Hence cometh it ſo often to paſſe, that when men for the preſent having their conſciences convinced by the word they have heard, and being mooved by the evident power thereof to repent, and reſolve to become new men: yet they preſently fall back again into their old wicked courſes; ſo that (as Salvian. de gub. l. 5. well ſaith) a man might probably think, that they had rather repented of their repentance, then of their ſinnes: non tam prius pœnituiſſe quod male vixerint, quàm poſteà quod ſe promiſerint bene victuros; and that they had not before ſo much repented, for that they had lived wickedly; as afterward for that they had promiſed that they would live well: conſider this you fooliſh libertines, who think it enough if you frequent good ſermons; though you preſently after return to your filthy ſinnes: indeed Gods word is the ſouls antidote, and ſin is poyſon; but (ſaith the ſame Salvian.) quid prodeſſe poterit antidotum, cui ſuperfunditur venenum? what can the antidote profit, which hath more poyſon powred down upon it?

becometh unfruitfull] The hearer, or the word in the hearer becometh unfruitfull.

v. 23. into the good ground] But one ground of four is fruitfull; moſt hearers are fruitleſſe.

He that heareth the word &c.] Here are three properties of a good ſcholer of Chriſt; he muſt hear with his ear, underſtand with his heart, and practice in his life.

ſome an hundred fold &c.] As before, there were three ſorts of bad hearers, ſo now alſo of good ones all bear not fruit alike, ſome are richer grounds then other; ſo is it here in matters ſpirituall.

v. 24. The kingdom of heaven] See on verſe 19.

is likened to a man which ſowed] Chriſt ſheweth in this parable of the wheat and tares, or weeds, that the viſible church, ſhould ever unto the end of the world, have in it, ſome good, and ſome wicked hypocrites, united onely in externall communion, and profeſſion of religion, but no ſound members of the church, or body of Chriſt; which is neceſſarily to be obſerved, leſt either the faithfull ſhould be ſcandalized, or the truth of religion diſhonoured, and called into queſtion, by the evident apoſtacy of thoſe who go out from us, but indeed were no more of us, then the tares of the envious mans ſcattering, of the Lords good wheat.

good ſeed in his field] In the former parable, the ſeed was the word preached, here it ſignifies good men, raiſed up by God in his church: except we will alſo underſtand hence the doctrine of truth (which inſtrumentally maketh good men) on the one part; and hereſies, doctrines of devils &c. 1 Tim. 4. 1. (which evidently render men and women unhappy tares in the Lords field) on the other part.

v. 25. While men ſlept] The devil goeth ſo cunningly about his night-works, that he may not be deſcried, or takes occaſion by the negligence, incogitancy, or ſlothfulneſſe of thoſe that have the charge of others, to ſowe miſchief in Gods church. Iſaiah 56. 9, 10.

his enemy came] The devil, called שׂטן Satan. So 1 Sam. 29. 4. leſt in the battle, he be to us לשׂטן leſatan an enemy, or adverſary. 2 Sam. 19. 22. that you ſhould this day be to me לשׂטן, an adverſary. See chap. 16. 23. Rev. 1, 20. It importeth here, Gods enemy and ours: for as Chryſoſtom. hom. 47. in Matth. noteth, his endeavour is all againſt us, for the malice he beareth to the holy Majeſty of God. See 1 Pet. 5. 8.

ſowed tares] ζιζάνια ſignifieth that ſame infelix lolium (as Suidas interpreter alſo giveth ζιζάνιον) ours render it ray darnell, vinetare, tares, or ſomething very hurtfull to the corn, as any of theſe are among wheat; hereby are meant, (as Theophylact. Euthymius, Auguſt. de verb. Domini. ſ. Mattheum ſerm. 18. clearly gather from verſe 38.) the children of the wicked one, that is hereticks, ſchiſmaticks, hypocrites, wicked and profane men, living in the church. Pet. Chryſolog. ſerm. 96. ſaith alſo hæreſes inter fideles, inter ſanctos peccatum: inter pacificos lites &c. hereſies among the faithfull, (that is in the church) ſinne among the Saints, diſſentions among the peaceable: indeed all theſe are tares of the envious mans ſcattering, whereby he maketh men wicked, and diſturbeth the peace of the church, and flouriſhing of the truth among the wheat] Not in the world abroad, but in the church of God: ut periret dominica meſſis (as Chryſolog. ſer. 97. ſaith) onely to endammage the Lords crop; for being filled with the ſpirit of envy, he eſteemeth the deſtruction of men his gain: it is a ſtrange temerity to deſert a church for ſome wicked men therein being: where did the enemy ſowe his tares, but among the good wheat? perplexæ quippe ſunt iſtæ duæ civitates in hoc ſeculo invicemque permixtæ—theſe two cities in this world, are folded together, and mingled the one with the other. Auguſtin. de C. D. l. 1. c. 35. and a little before he giveth a good caution againſt uncharitable cenſure, meminerit ſané in ipſis inimicis ſuis latere cives futuros &c. let them remember that indeed among their enemies, ſome good citizens for the time to come, lye hidden.

and went his way] He would not ſtand to it, nor have it thought to be his doing; becauſe he can no otherwiſe deceive, then under ſome colour of good: if he ſhould appear, and ſhew himſelf with the impious and hereticall, all would as much abhor them, as fear his ſtratagems: therefore he transformeth his miniſters into angels of light. 2 Cor. 11. 14. that is, into ſeeming godly, religious, and zealous men, without which dreſſes and diſguiſes, he could never deceive the world by ſuch inſtruments.

v. 26. When the blade ſprung up] When ſuch men firſt profeſſe the true religion, they ſo cunningly hide their principles in obſcure termes, and vail their wickedneſs with ſhews of holineſſe, that it cannot preſently appear, who are good, and who evil: but afterwards, when good men are neerer their maturity, and the wicked to their height of maliciouſneſſe; an evident difference appeareth. So Chryſoſtom noteth the manner of hereticks, at firſt συσκιάζουσιν ἑαυτοὺς they overſhadow themſelves, untill they gain more confidence and aſſiſtance of popular favour and opinion; but then τὸν ἰὸν ἐκχέουσι they pour out their venome, with impudence undaunted; and ſo are known at laſt.

v. 27. the ſervants] Either this is added to fill up the ſimilitude, and need not be applyed, as not being after expounded by our Saviour, or elſe the ſervants are Miniſters and good men, who wonder how theſe tares came, and deſire to root them out, (See Rev. 17. 6.) but may not do what they deſire: the Miniſter muſt handle the cauſe of God, with arguments, not ſtripes: fides non eſt cogenda, ſed docenda; faith muſt be taught, not forced. Lactantius ſaid it well; religio cogi non poteſt: verbis potius quam verberibus res agenda eſt, ut ſit voluntas &c. l. 5. c. 20. religion cannot be compelled: this cauſe is to be handled with words, not ſtripes; that the will may have a part, without which can be no ſanctity.

v. 28. an enemy] ἐχθρὸς ἄνθρωπος the devil and wicked men. (See on verſe 25.) for both cooperate in broaching hereſie: the devil prompteth, and his miniſters act.

v. 29. Nay] This is not any prohibition, of excommunicating, or executing malefactors, by the civill power, but a prediction that ſuch ſhall be in the church, till the end of time, as our Saviour expounds it, verſe 39, 40. as Auguſtin ſaith ep. 146. donec diluvium tranſeat, ubi arca continet corvum & columbam. Untill the deluge paſſe away, wherein the ark (the church) containeth both the raven and the dove.--- let both grow together] For as Gregor. ſaith hom. 31 in evang. boni ſoli, nuſquàm ſunt, niſi in cœlo, onely good men (in any one ſociety) are no where but in heaven; where Chriſt will make his church glorious, not having ſpot or wrinckle; but holy and without blemiſh. Epheſ. 5. 27. why God ſuffereth wicked men to continue in his Church; there are many reaſons: as, that he might leave the impenitent more unexcuſable, whom the ſociety and example of the holy could not reclaime: that he might ſhew on them an example of long ſuffering and mercy, that alſo they might juſtly periſh who abuſe ſuch mercy, to ſecurity of ſinning: that he might hereby exerciſe his elect, and make their conſtancy more glorious, whom neither Satan nor the miſchievous examples of men ſo neerly united to them, could pervert; among other, Greg. Nazian. giveth this reaſon, orat. 4. poſt med. though his judgements are ever ready, yet he patiently expecteth, untill ſin, like ſome putrid and malignant humour, do quite break out, and ſhew it ſelf; then is his juſtice evidenced in ſtriking: it ſhould teach us a charitable patience in judging inferiours; though it is certain, that there is much difference, with what minde, and to what end one ſpareth that ſhould correct; for as there is ſometimes a miſericordia puniens, ſo alſo is there a crudelitas parcens, a puniſhing mercy, and a ſparing cruelty, Aug. ep. 54. Macedonio.

v. 30. gather ye together] Though both ſorts continue mixed together unto the end, yet at the day of judgement a ſeparation ſhall be of the one from the other, Mal. 3. 18, chap. 25. 32.

v. 31. the kingdom of heaven] Mark 4. 30. Luke 13. 19. the Church is here the ſeed.

v. 32. the leaſt of all ſeed] One of the leſſer ſort of ordinary ſeeds, for ſome may be leſſe. God raiſeth his Church out of very ſmall beginnings, that, it growing up beyond all mens expectation, his mighty power therein may appear.

in parables] The Pſalmiſts parables or proverbiall ſayings, had ſome reſemblance to Chriſts manner of teaching here by ſimilitudes and parables.

v. 36. went into the houſe] Though the diſciples were very deſirous to know the meaning of the parable, yet they ſtayed untill he came into the houſe; either becauſe they were aſhamed to aſk him before the people, or unwilling to interrupt him in his teaching.

v. 37. The Son of man] Chriſt himſelf, the moſt excellent Son of man, as verſe 41.

v. 38. children of the kingdom] Gods elect, appointed to be heirs of the kingdom of heaven. See on chap. 9. 15. and Luke 20. 36.

children of the wicked one] Not by nature, but imitation, children of the devil, verſe 19. hereby are not meant all wicked men, but ſuch as live in the church; See verſe 25. 41. 47. 48.

v. 44. The kingdom of heaven] The word of God which ſheweth the way to heaven; and openeth unto us the ineſtimable riches of Gods grace and mercy, hid from the worlds beginning, untill the preaching of the goſpel.

unto a treaſure] Of great value: as gold and ſilver, in great ſtore laid up.

hid in a field] Ireneus hereby underſtandeth, Chriſt hidden in the ſcriptures, per typos & parabolas. (l. 4. c. 43. Init.) by types and parables: It is rather the truth of Chriſt therein, which few finde, and ſo underſtand not how great and excellent theſe ſpirituall riches are, verſe 45. as men know not the value of an hidden treaſure.

he hideth] Not leſt others alſo ſhould finde it, but leſt himſelf ſhould loſe it: leſt men, or Satan ſhould beguile him of it: alſo good men hearing the doctrine of Gods mercy in Chriſt, take care to lay it up in their heart, that they may not be deprived of it. See Luke 2. 15. Pſalm. 119. 11.

ſelleth all that he hath] This is to ſhew, that no man can be partaker of this treaſure, unleſſe he value it above all worldly poſſeſſions, and be willing to part with all that he hath, rather then miſſe thereof. Luke 14. 33. Philippians 3. 8, 9.

v. 45. ſeeking goodly pearls] This parable ſhews, that men ſhould ſeek heavenly knowledge with as much affection, labour, coſt, and perill, if need be, as merchants do ſeek the choiceſt pearls; in the former, the treaſure was found unlooked for; here it is ſought: the firſt ſeemeth to relate to Gods free mercy, found of them that ſought him not. v. 47. like unto a net] This parable is to the ſame purpoſe with that of the tares: the word σαγήνη is that which we call a ſaine, probably from thence comming, a draw-net, that ſweeps along with it, all that comes into the way, as well traſh, as fiſh: it was a fit ſimilitude for ſome of the Apoſtles, whom of fiſher-men, he made fiſhers of men. chap. 4. 19.

v. 48. caſt the bad away] There are many in the church, which are not of the church. 1 John 2. 19. and therefore in the end ſhall be caſt out: but the full and perfect cleanſing of the church from them, is deferred unto the laſt day. οὐ γὰρ πᾶσα παραβολὴ ἐν τῇ γραφῇ ὅλη λαμβάνεται No ſimilitude in ſcripture is wholly applicable. Epiphanius. hæres. 77. N. 23

v. 49. So ſhall it be] Our Saviour applyes onely the end of the parable: ſo that we need not enquire what is meant by the ſea and ſhore.

v. 50. and ſhall caſt them] See verſe 42. He tells not what ſhall become of good men in the church: none may doubt but they ſhall be happy.

v. 51. all theſe things] Do ye underſtand all theſe &c. the parables I have not expounded, as well as thoſe I have expounded: their deſire of expoſition might occaſion this queſtion. See verſe 10. 36. hereby we are taught, that all we hear is loſt, if we underſtand it not.

v. 52. Therefore] Seeing you have profited ſo well, I admoniſh you to teach others that which I have taught you: you muſt not know onely for your ſelves, but for others alſo: the ſun ſhineth not for himſelf: the trees bear not fruit for themſelves; the fountains ſend not forth ſweet ſtreams for themſelves, but others uſe. See 1 Cor. 12. 7. chap. 5. 14. 15.

CHAP. XIIII.

Verſe 1. AT that time] When Jeſus went about Galilee teaching, and doing miracles for the confirmation of that which he taught.

Herod] The ſecond, here mentioned, was called Antipas. See Mark 6. 14. Luke 9. 7. There were three Herods, the firſt was Herod the great, Antipaters ſon, who is alſo called Aſcalonites, in whoſe reign Chriſt was born; he cauſed the children to be ſlain. Matth. 2. The ſecond, was called Antipas, ſon of Herod the great, whoſe mothers name was Malthaca, or Mariaca; he was Tetrarch of Galilee. Luke 3. 1. The third, was Herod Agrippa, nephew to Herod the great by Ariſtobulus: he ſlew James. Acts 12. 2. ſo were they all three murderers.

the tetrarch] He had a fourth part of the kingdom. See on Luke 3. 1. his father, Herod the great, divided his kingdom by will, to his three ſons: to Archelaus, he aſſigned the middle part, Judea and Idumea: to Philip Iturea, and the region of the Trachonites: to this Herod Galilee; but Auguſtus the Roman Emperour, (becauſe the very name of kings were in ſuſpition with them) otherwiſe divided the kingdom (that he might the more eaſily diſtract their powers, and keep them in ſubjection) into tetrarchies, or governments of fourth parts. Joſeph Antiq. l. 17. c. 10. 13. See Plin. nat. hiſt. l. 5. c. 18 the name is Greek, though of Roman uſe: τετραρχία ſaith Suidas, is, δι τέσσαρες λόχοι four bands of ſixty four ſouldiers, whoſe captain was called τετράρχης, a tetrarch: ſo happily Demoſthenes called each fourth part of Theſſalie, which was called τετρὰς a fourth, τετραρχίαν a tetrarchie, the word being compounded of τετρὰς and ἀρχὸς.

heard of the fame of Jeſus] That is, (as in Luke 9. 7.) all that Jeſus did; which being ſo much noiſed abroad, even while John Baptiſt was yet living, it may ſeem ſtrange, how Herod ſhould be ſo long ignorant thereof; but that we may conſider his careleſneſſe in religion; the too common policy of courtiers, unwilling to commend or ſpeak of good men (ſpecially to impious princes) leſt ſeeming to favour them, they ſhould endanger their favour at Court: and laſtly, Herods great diſtractions; yet through all theſe obſtructions, now at laſt the fame of Jeſus breaks into Herods ears: which the Evangeliſt therefore mentioneth, that it may appear that the preaching of the goſpel was not ſo obſcure, but that the knowledge thereof came to the ears of kings and princes, that none might pretend ignorance.

v. 2. ſaid to his ſervants] It was ſaid ſo firſt of ſome others, and then Herod terrified with a guilty conſcience, eaſily beleeving what he feared, followed their vain opinion. See on Luke 9. 7.

he is riſen from the dead] Syr. from among the dead; men beth mai the — ab inter mortuos--ſo בֵּין the prepoſition ſignifieth —— Some note here Herods opinion of Johns ſanctity as concurring with the Phariſees, who thought that the holy did eaſily return to life again: See Joſeph Antiq. l. 18. c. 2. the meaning is, as if Herod had ſaid, he hath more power now then he ever had: for John wrought no miracles, John 10. 41. poſſibly Herod might now fear ſome great practices in way of revenge, of his late murdering John Baptiſt. See on Luke 9. 7.

mighty works] Force and power, whereby great works are wrought. See chap. 12. 54.

do ſhew forth them themſelves] Or are wrought by him.

v. 3. For Herod] See chap. 4. 12. Luke 3. 19, 20.

laid hold on] Or cauſed him to be apprehended, by his officers: how long that was before this time, is not certain.

his brother Philips wife] Many faults did Herod commit: firſt, that he took another mans wife, while he was yet alive: Secondly, that he put away his own wife: Thirdly, that he took his brothers wife: Fourthly, in that when his brother had children by her, he yet took her to wife, which had not been lawfull, if his brother had been dead: So blinde and precipitate is filthy luſt, ſuch concatenations have ſinnes, they ſeldome go alone. Herods laſt ſinne was his worſt, he being reproved, added yet this above all, that he ſhut up John in priſon. Luke 3. 19, 20.

v. 4. It is not lawfull for thee to have] Levit. 18. 6. & 20. 21. obſerve Johns confidence; he doth not ſay, it may be dangerous unto thee, but ſpeaks home; it is not lawfull for thee; though thou art a king or governour, thou mayeſt not diſpenſe with Gods laws.

v. 5. when he would have put him to death] This ſheweth that he was willing to kill him, before Herodias provoked him: ſo hatefull is reproof to impious great men.

he feared the multitude] He feareth man, but not God. Mark addeth, that he feared John, (whom he then had in priſon) becauſe indeed his conſcience told him, that John was guiltleſſe: the truth is, he feared the vengeance of God on the perſecuters of Gods Miniſters, otherwiſe he would not have feared the people, who feared his tyranny. It is clear, that at firſt, Herod heard and reverenced John: and though poſſibly Herodias ſolicited him to that murder, to which his ſelf was inclined too much, yet fear did for a time reſtrain him; yet at laſt, the fit brake out; thus this Court-fox, Luke 13. 32. made ſemblance of one thing, but acted another: and ſurely he deſired to ſee Jeſus (Luke 9. 9.) with as good devotion as his father did, when he pretended a deſire to worſhip him. Matth. 2. 8.

becauſe they counted him a Prophet] chap. 21. 26.

v. 6. When Herods birth-day was kept] The birth dayes of kings uſed to be kept with great ſolemnity, feaſts, and triumphs. Gen. 40. 20. that which ſome conjecture here, is not improbable; that all this tragedy was but an impious compact between Herod and Herodias, that Johns death ſhould be deferred, onely to Herods birth-day; when many Peers and great men being preſent, the daughter of Herodias ſhould dance, Herod promiſe any thing which ſhe ſhould aſk: ſhe being fore-inſtructed, muſt aſk Johns head, Herod muſt ſeem very ſorrowfull, but at laſt (for a pretended conſcience made of performing his oath) do what he had promiſed, were it never ſo damnable.

the daughter of Herodias] By Philip her former husband, not by Herod. Joſephus Antiq. l. 8. c. 7. calleth her Salome.

danced before them] Thoſe laſcivious geſtures of a damſell, alone, at a feaſt, before ſo many men; may give us to conſider of immodeſt dancing, to which few come ſober, or go from it without ſome evill incentives: here was like mother, like daughter.

and pleaſed Herod] Mark addeth, and thoſe that ſate with him: theſe were compoſed to Herods minde, and knew how to applaud any thing which the king commended: though indeed how ever it ſeemed to them, yet the circumſtances conſidered, we may ſay with Theophylact ὅσῳ καλῶς ὀρχεῖται, τοσούτῳ κακῶς the better ſhe danced, the worſe it was. Behold here the miſerable depravation of impious minds: Herod is diſpleaſed with holy and wholſome preaching, but pleaſed with the laſcivious and impudent behaviour of Salome: you may know what men are, by their delights.

v. 7. he promiſed with an oath] Here is ſet down a miſchievous effect of malice and intemperance; a raſh and dangerous oath, with a promiſe ſo perniciouſly large, what ever ſhe would aſk, to the half of his kingdom, which he yet held at Cæſars pleaſure, and not long after loſt. The word here interpreted, promiſed, is properly uſed in mutuall bargaining, covenanting &c. wherein one demanded an oath, do you promiſe thus or thus to do? he is ſaid ὁμολογεῖν to aſſent or confeſſe, and by ſuch promiſe to oblige himſelf to perform: ſo, ſaith Euthymius, the promiſe here made, he calleth ὁμολόγησιν, which word often ſignifieth an aſſent, bargain &c.

Whatſoever ſhe would aſk] He excepted not that which was inconvenient or unlawfull. So, many in their jollity, raſhly promiſe, what they repent of afterward, verſe 9. or ſhould indeed do ſo.

v. 8. before inſtructed] Perhaps not before the feaſt: her mother poſſibly might be afraid to truſt ſuch a ſecret to her, long before it was to be acted: and Mark 6. 24. ſhe went out to aſk her mother, after the king had promiſed.

give me here John Baptiſts head in a charger] The mother was not content that John ſhould be killed, but muſt have his head in a platter, as the moſt deſired diſh of that feaſt, that ſhe might be ſure of his death, and ſatiate her ſelf with the ſight of it: ſo devilliſh a ſweetneſſe is in revenge, unto an harlots appetite: ſo quickly will thoſe whelps of a fierce kinde learn to be bloody, ſpecially againſt faithfull Miniſters who reprove them.

v. 9. the king was ſorry] Not ſo much for that he knew John was to be murdered, as becauſe he feared an inſurrection, and the juſt judgements of God following ſo impious an act.

for the oaths ſake] He made no conſcience of inceſt and murder, yet would be thought he made conſcience of an oath, unlawfully made, and more unlawfully performed, as if the ſame God which forbiddeth perjury, did not alſo forbid inceſt and murder. See Jam. 2. 10, 11.

and them which ſate with him, &c.] Either he feared they would account him a perjured man; or they in favour to Herodias preſſed him to performe his oath.

v. 10. and beheaded John in priſon] Not in publick, for fear of the people, verſe 5. Johns trial was the more, becauſe he had no means to clear his innocency before the people, at his death, nor any man to comfort him; this God permitted, that he might the more glorioully crown this juſt man, and leave an example of comfort, to thoſe who ſuffer unjuſtly, Euthym. Yet obſerve, that God, who will have the memory of the juſt ſacred, leaveth Johns juſtification, and Herods time-outlaſting infamy upon a record ſo publick, as ſhall be remembred while the Goſpel is preached: and ſo certain, as is the teſtimony of the holy Ghoſt, the Author of the Scripture, 2. Pet. 1. 19.

v. 11. His head was brought in a charger] A ſad ſight at a feaſt, but that which the revengefull moſt hunger for; there is no command of great men ſo impious, but it ſhall finde ſervants to execute it.

ſhe brought it to her mother] This execrable reward of her dancing, is preſented according to command to her: a chaſt and holy virgine would have ſtartled at the ſight, but ſhe carrieth it boldly, as inſulting over her mothers enemy, rendring up to her, theſe bloody gains: what juſt revenge followed all theſe actors, ſee Joſephus Antiq. l. 18. c. 9. See verſe 12.

v. 12. and told Jeſus] Either that he might prevent the like danger, or that they might be taught by him what courſe to take, now their Maſter was gone: this was the end of Johns former ſending to Chriſt. chap. 11. that they might at laſt be entred into his School: The diſciples of John give him an honeſt and civil buriall; either taking up the body caſt out, (the Gr. σῶμα, the Syriac giveth שְׁלָדָה---Shelado, the carcaſe, trunck, or body, as ſome ſay without an head, if we may beleeve Nicephorus: and Euthymius ſeemeth of the ſame opinion) or elſe by permiſſion of the tyrant, as Joſeph and Nicodemus afterwards did to the ſacred body of Jeſus: this laſt honour contributeth nothing to the happineſſe of the dead; yet is it a teſtimony of our charity, and hope of the future reſurrection: the end of Herods cruelty, was firſt the ſlaughter of his army by king Aretha, revenging the injury and diſhonour of his daughter Herods lawfull wife, whom he put away, for an harlots ſake. Secondly, his own depoſition and baniſhment to Lyons in France, with his inceſtuous Herodias, where after much miſery endured, he made away himſelf.

v. 13. When Jeſus heard it] Mark 6. 32. Luke 9. 10. of Johns death, or of Herods knowledge of him and his miracles.

he departed thence] From his own countrey. chap. 13. 53. or from the place where he was told of Johns death.

into a deſart place apart] From the parts of Galilee, more frequented, to a more ſolitary place, to ſhun Herods laying wait for him: for the time of his death was not yet come. So chap. 4. 12. & 12. 14. 15.

they followed him on foot] For both places were on the ſame ſide of the lake: he onely went over a creek by ſhip, and the people went about on foot: note their zeal, they go as ſoon as they hear he was gone: they go a great way about on foot, leaving buſineſſes, families, and cities of good accommodation, to follow Chriſt in deſert places.

v. 14. And Jeſus went forth] Out of the ſhip, and ſaw the people there before him. Mark 6. 33. ſuch haſt made they.

he healed their ſick] They carried ſick folk alſo with them, which could not be without much trouble: nothing hindred them from Chriſt.

v. 15. When it was evening] Mark 6. 35. John 6. 5. That is, the firſt evening, when the ſun was much declined, about three of the clock in the after noon, mentioned, 1 King. 18. 29. and the ſecond evening, verſe 23. which began at ſun-ſet: between theſe two evenings, they uſed to kill the paſſeover. Exod. 12. 6.

This is a deſart place] Neither time nor place are fit for proviſions.

The time is now paſt] Dinner-time, or the uſuall hour to provide, is paſt.

ſend the multitude away] They were tyed by the ears, in ſo much that they neglected their food: therefore the diſciples ſolicit Chriſt to diſmiſſe them: but now a dayes men think long till the ſermon be done.

v. 16. give ye them to eat] Chriſt by feeding ſuch a multitude with ſo little food, intimateth that they ſhall want nothing, which lay aſide all buſineſſes for Gods ſervice, and firſt ſeek the kingdom of heaven. chap. 6. 33.

v. 17. We have here but five loaves and two fiſhes] Comparing their ſhort proviſion, with the multitude of people, they marvelled why he ſhould command them to feed them.

v. 18. bring them hither] They ſay not, what ſhall we then eat our ſelves, but readily obey him: ſo the woman of Sarepta, 1 King. 17. 12, 13. 15.

to me] You cannot make a little ſufficient to feed ſuch a multitude; but I can.

v. 19. to ſit down on the graſſe] That they may more conveniently be ſerved, and their number more eaſily appear. See on Luke 9. 15.

looking up to heaven] To ſhew whence his power was to do this miracle: (and whence we muſt look for ſupplyes. See Pſal. 145. 15.) ſaith Hilari. in Matth. canon. 14.

he bleſſed] He gave thanks to God for that proviſion, and prayed for a miraculous bleſſing upon it.

and brake] As the maſter of a family, or chief perſon in the company uſed to do, that it might be diſtributed. See on Luke. 24. 35.

v. 20. They did all eat and were filled] This is added leſt any (to extenuate the miracle) ſhould think that they did not all eat, or that they were not all ſatisfied: ſo admirable an encreaſe was here of a little food, that a great multitude of gueſts were ſo well ſatisfied, that they left abundance more then they found at firſt. See on Luke 9. 17.

took up of the fragments] The remainder of the fragaments: this ſhewed the truth of the miracle, as alſo the greatneſſe.

twelve baskets full] See on chap. 15. 37. for each Apoſtle one basket: theſe baskets were ſuch as they uſed to carry bread, and other victualls in. chap. 16. 7. Mark 8. 14. ſo admirably did theſe viands encreaſe: I know not (ſaith Hilar. 5. ſ.) whether on the place of the tables, or in the receivers hands, &c. but admirably were they encreaſed: how ſhould it teach us confidence in God, and contentment in a little?

v. 21. they that had eaten] He ſaith not, they that were preſent, but they that had eaten, were about five thouſand: they are numbred that the miracle might be the more illuſtrious.

beſide women and children] Which probably were a very great acceſſion to this multitude.

v. 22. Straightway Jeſus conſtrained his &c.] That is, his attendants in ordinary; not all that came to learn of him. See chap. 13. 41. & 15. 36. & 17. 25. they were willing to have ſtayed with Chriſt, and not to leave him alone in a deſert, neer night: but yet to prevent their joyning with the people to make him a king. John 6. 15. he compelled them to go before.

unto the other ſide] See note on verſe 13.

v. 23. when he had ſent] Mark 6. 46.

into a mountain apart to pray] Chriſt chooſing ſolitudes for prayer, ſheweth us the danger of diſtraction and deviation of thoughts in prayer; and how neceſſary it is to chooſe convenient places to private prayers.

And when the evening was come] John 6. 16. the ſecond evening at and after ſun-ſet. See on verſe 15.

v. 24. in the mids of the ſea] Many things concurring, make this tryall the greater: it was a great ſtorme, it was dark. John 6. 17. the ſtorm continued till the laſt watch of the night: Chriſt was abſent, they knew not when he would come to releeve them: thus ſaith Chryſoſtom hom. 51. in Matth. 14. he would by degrees accuſtome them to endure great matters: in the firſt, danger at ſea. chap. 8. he was preſent, though aſleep, they could quickly awake him: but now abſent, and that very long.

toſſed with waves] βασανιζόμενον, tormented, labouring with contrary windes, and rough ſeas; it is a metaphoricall expreſſion taken from men tormented (for βάσανοι are torments, as Luke 16. 23. the rich man being ἐν βασάνοις in torments) tumbling up and down for eaſe; ſuch is a labourſome ſhip, heaving and ſetting in a ſtorm.

v. 25. in the fourth watch] They divided the night into four watches, See Mark 13, 35.

Jeſus went unto them] He came unto them walking on the water, ſhewing himſelf to be Lord of the ſea alſo; as he did Exod. 14. 22. we may endure ſore ſtreſſes, and mighty tempeſts; yet Chriſt will never forſake us, if we go when and whither he commandeth us.

v. 26. ſaw him walking on the ſea] Walking up and down, as on dry ground: all the creatures own, and in their ſeverall kindes, obey that word of their creatour, which at firſt gave them being, and their laws of nature: the deaf ſea is ſenſible of his power and preſence, her ſwelling waves even themſelves for him to walk on; onely man, is unthankfully rebellious againſt him, and will not acknowledge him. See Iſaiah 1. 3. Jer. 8. 7.

they were troubled] For they had never ſeen the like befor: they feared this apparition, as they did the ſtorm.

it is a ſpirit] φάντασμα of φαίνεσθαι, to appear or ſeem, a ſpectrum, that which a man ſeeth, or vainly imagineth that he ſeeth: an apparition: thus fear and forgetfulneſſe of Chriſts power diſcompoſeth and troubleth our mindes: they could not know Chriſt approaching.

v. 27. Straightway Jeſus ſpake unto them] Chriſt quickly hears the cries of his ſervants, and ſpeaks comfort to them, except the cauſe of his delay be in themſelves.

be of good cheer] Be confident: fear often ariſeth out of want of confidence rather then the greatneſſe of the danger, which others endure with leſſe trouble of minde.

it is I] He doth not ſay, I am Jeſus, as to perſecuting Saul. Acts 9. 5. but it is I: as ſpeaking to thoſe who well knew his voice.

v. 28 bid me come unto thee on the waters] If Chriſt commanded, he was confident that he alſo could enable him thereto: true believers are ſoon comforted with Chriſts voice.

v. 29. he walked on the water] This ſheweth an admirable confidence, and ſtrength of faith in Peter, that upon one word of Chriſt, durſt adventure to walk on a curſt ſea.

v. 30. when he ſaw the winde] That is, perceived it, by hearing and feeling the effects thereof: for otherwiſe he could not ſee it, John 3. ſo dangerous is it, to look too much on ſecond cauſes, and neglect the firſt: here our faith beginneth to fail, and we to ſink.

boiſtrous] Strong, or vehement.

Lord ſave me] By faith he trod underfeet the ſeas, by diffidence he began to ſink, and found what need he had of Chriſts aſſiſtance to ſave him.

v. 31. why didſt thou doubt?] What cauſe haſt to doubt, ſeeing I am with thee? this ſhewes thy faith weak: the ſtrongeſt faith hath need of help: it nothing advantageth to be neer Chriſt in place, if thou art not ſo in faith, ſaith Chryſoſtom hom. 51. in Matth.

v. 32. the winde ceaſed] Chriſt not onely comforts his in trouble, but alſo puts an end to their troubles: yet the ſtorm did not preſently ceaſe when Jeſus came in ſight, and ſpake to them: but when he came to them into the ſhip: their faith was not preſently awaked, and exerciſed enough: it is not without juſt cauſe, that God doth ſo often delay our deliverance from fears and troubles, though he knows them before we cry unto him.

v. 33. they that were in the ſhip] The reſt of the Apoſtles, other paſſengers, or the ſea men that carried them.

came and worſhipped him] They blame not Peter for attempting, nor commend him for walking on the ſea; but come directly to worſhip him, who had delivered them: they had ſeen lately a great miracle in his feeding the multitude, yet did they not worſhip him then: affliction taken away, ſooner brings men to acknowledge Chriſt, then proſperity given.

v. 34. when they were gone over] Mark 6. 53.

the land of Genneſaret] This lake of Genneſaret was nigh to Capernaum, which is alſo called the ſea of Galilee, and Tiberias, ſo that the countrey it ſelf took denomination from it. See on John 21. 1.

v. 35. had knowledge of him] By fame, report, or ſuch of them as had ſeen his miracles.

they ſent out into all that countrey] They would not engroſſe Chriſt to themſelves, but enforme others of his coming, that they might obtain health of body and ſoul of him alſo: this was their charity, that they wiſhed their neighbours the ſame good they had attained themſelves.

v. 36. the hem of his garment] The lower part or ſkirt thereof: this was a ſigne of modeſty, Matth. 9.20. the word ſignifieth a ſelvage, or fringe.

they beſought him] That which the poor woman did not, chap. 9. 20,21. herein they ſhew their faith and humility, as they had done their charity.

made perfectly whole] By the divine power of Chriſt: in that he healeth the ſick, we are taught to ſeek help of him, in all our diſtreſſes: and not onely to run to him our ſelves, but alſo to bring others to him, that they may be ſaved: there is no malady of body or ſoul ſo great, but that by his power he can cure it; nor ſo little, but in his mercie he will.

CHAP. XV.

Verſe 1. THen came to Jeſus] After the forementiond miracles: the more famous Gods miniſters grow, the greater is the envy of the adverſaries: the Scribes and Phariſees left Jeruſalem, to purſue Chriſt into Galilee. Mark 7. 1.

Scribes and Phariſees] In theſe great pretenders to the law of God, it appeareth, that none more dangerouſly wound religion, then thoſe, who would before men, ſeem the moſt zealous patrons, and profeſſours thereof.

which were of Jeruſalem] Not of lower towns, or leſſe villages: the more learned and honourable hypocrites are, the more dangerous enemies they are to Chriſt and the goſpel: though there were Scribes and Phariſees in every tribe of Iſrael, yet they of Jeruſalem being more proud, and injurious to Chriſt (as truſting on their wealth, greatneſſe, and popularity) were the moſt impious.

v. 2. Why do thy diſciples tranſgreſſe] They come not to diſpute the caſe, or to tax the Diſciples onely, but to quarrel with Chriſt himſelf: as if they ſaid, thou ſo teacheſt or tolerateſt them.

tradition of the elders] Which we have received from our anceſtours, who were holy men: or which the governours of our Church (whom we ought to obey) require of us: they ſaw the great zeal of the people following Jeſus, which the more their envy laboured to quench, the more they enflamed it; ſo that all their artifices, and plots turned to their diſadvantage, nor could they finde any thing juſtly to object againſt Jeſus, therefore they cavil at his diſciples.

for they waſh not their hands] The law of God enjoyned no ſuch neceſſity of often waſhings; but the Elders had brought in this tradition. See Mark 7.

v. 3. Why do ye alſo] Chriſt anſwereth the Phariſees by way of recrimination, ſatisfying the multitude, verſ. 10,11. and the diſciples more plainly, verſ. 15, 16, 17. So he repelleth their malitious calumny about things of no real moment, by detecting their hypocriſie, who would ſeem to make conſcience of tranſgreſſing mans laws, but not Gods.

tranſgreſſe the commandments of God] Moſt damnable is the tranſgreſſion of Gods laws, under pretence of godlineſſe.

by your traditions] διὰ τὴν παράδοσιν, which the Syriack giveth מטול metul, propter traditiones veſtras, that you may maintain your tradition, which they called their קבלה cabbala, which was, ſaith V. Shindler. Pentegl. doctrina patrum quam (קבל cibbel) accepit unus de ore alterius, & tradidit poſteris; the doctrine of the fathers, which one received from the mouth of another, and the ſame delivered to poſterity; this was that contained in their תלמוד talmud, which was doctrinalis farrago, a great collection of all their doctrines and traditions: theſe he calleth theirs, though received from the elders; becauſe they ſuperſtitiouſly held them againſt Gods law: and with that groſſe pride, that herein they were the moſt holy and unreproveable men in the world in their own conceit; being of fooliſh Ticonius minde (Auguſtin. ep. 48. and ib. To. 7. contra epiſt. Parm. l. 2. c. 13. fin.) who ſaid, quod volumus ſanctum eſt, that which we will, is holy.

v. 4. God commanded ſaying] In this particular, our Saviour proveth the charge he gave them, concerning their tranſgreſſion of Gods commandments.

honour thy father, and &c.] Exod. 20. 12. Deut. 5. 16. by honour is meant all kinde of duty, obedience, reverence, love, beneficence, protection, maintenance: by father and mother, natural parents, princes, governours, magiſtrates, miniſters and ſuperiours.

he that curſeth father or mother] Exod. 21. 17. Levit. 20. 9. Prov. 20. 20. Gr. κακολογῶν, which importeth not onely execration, curſing or imprecation of ſome evil; but alſo any evil, reproachful, undutiful or irreverend ſpeaking, to the parents injury, or diſhonour.

let him die the death] Our Saviour inſtanceth in a precept which hath the promiſe to the obſervers thereof, Ephe. 6. 2. and an annexed curſe to the tranſgreſſours, to ſhew them, and all men, the odiouſneſſe of this ſin before God, θανάτῳ τελευτάτω, Syr. מות ימות memoth iemuth (Tremel.) let him certainly, unpardonably, or unexcuſably be put to death: with them this ingemination importeth a vehemency and certainty, as Gen. 2. 17. in the day thou eateſt thereof, מות תמות moth thamuth, το θανάτῳ ἀποθανεῖσθε, dying thou ſhalt die; that is ſurely die. Unworthy is that unnatural creature of life, who is injurious to thoſe of whom he received life, who ſo impiouſly requiteth their tender care and pains for him.

v. 5. it is a gift] Mark 7. 11,12. Ye teach that a man may vow to give all that he hath to the temple, although he have poor parents wanting reliefe; and after that, he need not, or ought not to relieve them: or to ſay to their parents, that which I have offered to God, will do you as much good, as if I had therewith relieved you. See on Luke 21. 4.

by me] ἐξ ἐμοῦ, out of me, that is, out of my eſtate.

v. 6. and honour not] Though he honor not father or mother.

of none effect] You neglect it, as if it were of no force; they did not deny it to be a commandment, but upon the matter abſolved children from obedience thereto.

v. 7. ye hypocrites] He condemns them of hypocriſie, becauſe they made the kingdom of God to ſtand in outward things; and becauſe under pretence of worſhipping God, they overthrew the power of true godlineſs. See on Luk. 13. 15 propheſie of you] Not of them in particular, but of all hypocrites in general: as if he had ſaid, To you may thoſe words of the Prophet fitly be applyed.

v. 8. this people] Iſai. 29. 13. the Jews, the then peculiar people of God; amongſt them the prieſts and the prophets, the teachers eſpecially, were diſſemblers in religious acts, See Iſaiah 28. 7. Hoſ. 9. 8. Jer. 2. 8.

draweth nigh unto me with their mouth] He deſcribes their hypocriſie by two characters, 1. That in words, countenance and geſture, they made great ſhew and profeſſion of a reverend and moſt religious ſerving of God; not that all theſe external things were not convenient and requirable in the worſhip of God; but becauſe theſe onely were ſo far from being enough, that they were double iniquity, in that they made them mere cloaks of ſin; 2. that in theſe fair external ſhewes, they wanted in their hearts, true faith, repentance, love and fear of God.

v. 9. in vain do they worſhip me] Chriſt rendreth here the true ſenſe, though not the words of the Prophet; for albeit (in vain) be not in the Hebrew text; yet Gods denuntiation of judgements to come upon theſe pretenders to ſanctity, eaſily concludeth, that they worſhipped him in vain: that is not all: but rather depraved and polluted his worſhip and ſervice, by making it ſerve as a diſguiſe to their filthy ſins, quomodo Deum violat, qui hoc modo placat? Minuc. Fel. Octav. how doth he violate an holy Deity, who thus endeavoureth to pacifie him? Doctrines and traditions of men are not the oracles of God, neither is the obſervation of them his worſhip.

teaching for doctrines the commandments of men] Teaching their diſciples and hearers, to obſerve and keep their precepts, however unconſiſtent they were with Gods commandments.

v. 10. and he called the multitude] Mark 7. 14. he lets go the malitious Phariſees, and informeth the better affected people, that might poſſibly be offended at the fact of his diſciples, or corrupted by the falſe doctrine of the Phariſees: the Phariſees he ſaw were incurable, and applyeth himſelf to the people, who were flexible and enclined to learn.

hear and underſtand] We muſt at all times open our hearts and ears to receive Gods word; but this preface is here moſt neceſſary, becauſe men are hardly taken off from old traditions, and common and received opinions.

v. 11. not that which goeth into the mouth] Your meat and drink moderately taken, and thankfully uſed do not hurt your ſoul, (for every creature of God is good, &c. 1 Tim. 4. 4) though you do not with ſuperſtitious Phariſees ſo often waſh your hands; but your evil thoughts and words do hurt you.

defileth a man] κοινοῖ, that is rendreth one unclean or impure: ſo is it expounded, Acts 10. 15. Chriſt taketh this word from the cuſtome of the law, to apply to the ſpiritual eſtate of man: by the law, a man was to be eſteemed, unclean and defiled, who had touched any thing which the law counted unclean, as a dead body, &c. now, a thing which is common (in relation to Gods ſervice) is oppoſed to ſacred; therefore, as they reckoned all things ſacred or ſet apart to the ſervice of God) holy: ſo they eſteemed all things of common uſe profane, and ſuch as defiled them: hence were their frequent waſhings for their pretended purification. Mark 7. 1. &c.

v. 12. knoweſt thou, &c?] We ſee in their countenances, and hear by their words, that they are vexed at thee, or it is certain they are diſpleaſed, &c. See Exod. 10. 7. 2 Kings 2. 3. 5.

were offended] More alienated from thee and thy doctrine: as John 6. 60. 66.

after they heard this ſaying] Or when they heard, as Epheſ. 1. 13.

v. 13. Every plant] John 15. 2. all doctrines, traditions, or perſons.

ſhall be rooted up] Shall come to nothing: or if it be underſtood of doctrine, the ſenſe may be, it ought to be rooted out by bringing men to the knowledge of the truth: this agrees beſt with the ſcope of the place.

v. 14. Let them alone] If they will not be reformed, or better informed, let us take no further care for them, but endeavour to undeceive thoſe, whom they have miſled; leſt they periſh with them: or, do not you hearken to them, leſt like blinde guides, they lead you hoodwinkt to hell.

blinde leaders of the blinde] Luke 6. 39.

both fall into the ditch] It is a miſery to be blinde, but to be led by the blinde, or to be a blinde leader of the blinde, as Euthymius ſaith well, is certainly duplex malum, a double miſchief: a miſchief to thoſe poor ſouls, who have ſuch ignorant leaders, and a greater miſery to ſuch wretched guides as thoſe, who for ſecular gains, or honours, take upon them to teach others, and to lead them in the narrow way to ſalvation, who have not well learned the ſame their ſelves: theſe are (as Cyprian ſaid, l. 1. ep. 7.) non fidei duces, ſed perfidei magiſtri, &c. not guides to faith, but maſters of perfidoouſneſſe. See 1 Tim. 1. 6, 7. Deut. 27. 18. Iſaiah 42 19. and 56. 9, 10. and 59. 10. Lam. 4. 13, 14. Ezek. 3. 17. 18. and 14. 9, 10.

v. 15. then anſwered Peter] Mark. 7. 17.

this parable] That ſentence, v. 11. See C. 13. 3. that wᶜʰ thou ſaidſt concerning the difference of meats to be taken away: this he underſtood as figuratively ſpoken (whereas it was indeed literal) in which he was afterward more fully inſtructed by an expreſſe viſion, Acts 10. he calleth it here παραβολὴν, a parable, according to the Hebrew manner, who called any thing obſcurely and prudently ſpoken, משל maſchal; ſo are Solomons ſayings called, משלי שלמה miſchle Schelomo, the parables or proverbs of Solomon. See on Luke 5. 36.

v. 16. are ye alſo without underſtanding?] No marvel if others underſtand me not, when ye, whom I have ſo often inſtructed, do not.

v. 17. whatſoever entreth in at the mouth] He doth not ſay all; but whatſoever; that is, all kindes of meat, for of every kinde ſome remains, in a good concoction, to nouriſhment; our meat comes not into the heart, where ſin is hatched: nature keeps ſomething good for nouriſhment, it ſends away the reſt; and therefore the ſpecies of wholſome meat cannot defile us.

v. 18. which proceed out of the mouth] The heart being the fountain of thoughts, words, and actions, is taken (after the cuſtom of the Hebrews) for the underſtanding, will, and affections; and ſo being the principal ſeat of ſin, it is that evil treaſury whence all wickedneſſe iſſueth: and becauſe the greateſt part of ſin, (as blaſphemie, profaneneſſe, lies, falſe witneſſe, ſlandering, reviling, railing, obſcenity, heretical doctrines, &c.) cometh through or is fomented by the tongue, all which render ſinners polluted, and ſinful before God and man: therefore our Saviour ſaith, that thoſe things which proceed out of the mouth (the interpreter of a wicked heart) defile the man.

v. 19. out of the heart proceed evil thoughts] Gen. 6. 5. and 8. 21. the Jews, miſled by the Phariſees, thought theſe to be no ſins, Matth. 5. 21, 22, 27, 28. theſe therefore are put firſt to ſhew that all ſins, even in thought onely, defile the man.

v. 20. which defile a man] That is, make him guilty before God: out of the premiſes he inferreth this concluſion; ſeeing theſe are things which pollute a man, the Phariſees Maxime, (that to eat with unwaſhed hands is a ſin) is a falſe calumny: ſo that Chriſt here teacheth, 1. that the true worſhip of God conſiſteth in keeping his commandments: 2. that humane traditions are but vain worſhip, ſave onely where they are agreeing with, and ſubordinate to the worſhip of God commanded in his word: 3. that reall pollution of a man is not in unwaſhed hands, or any ſuch external matter not forbidden in Gods word, but in the impurity of the heart, and the proceeds thereof, which ought to be cleanſed by true faith and repentance, and otherwiſe cannot.

v. 21. Then Jeſus went thence] Mark 7. 24.

coaſts of Tyre and Sidon] Which bordered on Tyre and Sidon: that is, in that quarter where Paleſtina bendeth toward Phenice, and the ſea of Syria.

v. 22. of Canaan] Of the ſtock of the Canaanites which dwelt in Phenicia, neer the ſea, Numb. 13. 29. ſuch were the Sidonians, Judg. 1. 31. one of the poſterity of the Canaanites which Joſhua did not drive out. See Judg. 1. 30, 31.

have mercy upon me] She counts her daughters miſery her own; ſo ſtrong was her motherly affection.

thou ſon of David] Thou art the long expected Meſſias, of the ſeed of David: the promiſe of a Meſſias and Redeemer, being much ſpoken of among the Jews, it is likely that the report thereof came to the ears of the neighbouring nations: as alſo how Jeſus had with ſo many admirable works, declared himſelf to be the Meſſias: hence were ſuch confluences of people to him from thoſe parts, Mark 3. 8. Luke 6. 17. which this woman alſo hearing of, cometh on the behalf of her afflicted daughter.

v. 23. he anſwered her not a word] When Chriſt delayeth, and ſeemeth not to regard the elect that cry to him, he doth it, for his glory, their advantage, and the good of others.

for ſhe cryeth after us] They plead for her, not ſo much out of charity, as to be freed from her importunity. So Luke 18. 5.

v. 24. I am not ſent, &c. Chap. 10. 6. and 9. 36. to whom the promiſe was ſpecially made, Rom. 9. 4. to whom he was firſt to be revealed, Acts 3. 26. and 13. 46. and with whom he did perſonally converſe in his miniſtery, Rom. 15. 8.

unto the loſt ſheep] Who went aſtray and erred through ignorance, and negligence of their paſtors; who were dear unto God as his peculiar. See Pſal. 74. 1. and 79. 13. and 95. 7. and 100. 3. and 119. 176.

of the houſe of Iſrael] Of the people of Iſrael divided into tribes; but all thoſe tribes came out of Jacobs houſe, who was called Iſrael.

v. 25. and worſhipped him] Shewing her humility by her geſtures; and the conſtancy of her faith, by renewing her petition.

v. 26. it is not meet] Before, he would not vouchſafe her any anſwer, verſe 23. then he gave her a milde one, v. 24. but now he gave her an harſh denyal with diſgraceful terms, yet further to exerciſe her faith and patience.

the childrens bread] I muſt do wonders for Iſrael, the children, and peculiar people of God, not for the unconſiderable Canaanites, that are as dogs, in reſpect of Iſrael. The Iſraelites were before all nations of the earth, adopted Gods children, Exod. 4. 22. Pſal. 147. 19. 20. Iſaiah 1. 2. aliants from the covenant of grace, he calleth dogs, as Phil. 3. 2. See Pſal. 22. 16. Revel. 22. 15. the ſence is, that the Gentiles muſt be content to wait until God had refreſhed the Iſraelites with grace and mercy.

v. 27. truth Lord, yet the dogs eat the crumbs] There is enough falling from the table to feed and relieve us, the bread need not be caſt unto us: thy power and mercy is ſo great, that the healing my childe can be no wrong to thy Iſrael; though by thy free covenant and promiſes to the Jews, the firſt place for mercy belong to them; yet when the children are filled unto ſatiety, thy mercy is ſufficient and will extend it ſelf to us, yet unconſiderable Gentiles alſo. The Syriack addeth ונחיון, vechoin, and they live: that is, that they alſo may live: the good maſter ſuffereth not his dogs to ſtarve; much leſſe wilt thou, the moſt contemptible creatures which wait on thee: thou wilt not deny me that which is not denied to dogs: ſo ſhe compares the cure of her childe, to the crums which fall from the table of mercy and beneficence prepared for Iſrael, containing her reply in the allegory which Chriſt began: as if ſhe had ſaid, that which I beg, in reſpect of the full and continual favour beſtowed on Iſrael, is but as crums from a full table: thou beſtoweſt on them ſpiritual and eternal bleſſings, the temporal thou denieſt not the heathens: ſeeing all taſt of thy bounty, bleſſed Jeſus, ſend me not away empty.

v. 28. then Jeſus anſwered] Having received her reply, declaring her admirable confidence in the mercy of Chriſt, and ſeeing her holy importunity, which would receive no nay; he would now no longer hold her in ſuſpence, nor conceal his mercy, neither exerciſe her patience with any more dilatory anſwers.

O woman] Thus he ſpeaks, as it were admiring the victory of her faith, and applauding it to the multitude: therefore he had all the while ſeemed to repell her petition, that the conſequences might ſuit to this word; that (ſaith Chryſoſt.) στεφανώσῃ τὴν γυναῖκα, he might crown this woman.

great is thy faith] He commends her faith, becauſe that was the ground of this conſtancy of hers.

be it unto thee] This voice was, συγγενὴς ἐκείνῃ τῇ φωνῇ, of the ſame kinde of voice, which ſaid at firſt, Let there be an heaven, and it was made, Gen. 1. 1. Chryſoſt. 5. ſ.

even as thou wilt] She intimated her daughters miſery, but had not made her petition in particular, verſe 22. now he bids her make her own choice. God will not deny ſuch as be conſtant and fervent in prayer, chap 9. 29.

v. 29. Jeſus departed thence, and came nigh unto the ſea of Galilee] Mark 7. 31. Chriſt ceaſeth not to be beneficial, even there, where he is contemned.

and ſate down there] Either to reſt himſelf; or as chap. 14. 23. that he might there pray: and alſo for the more conveniency of receiving them, whom he foreſaw coming unto him with their ſick and infirme.

v. 30. great multitudes came] Iſaiah 35. 5, 6.

thoſe that were lame] By diſeaſe, or inward, and inbred weaknes: this ſhews their great charity and pains, that would carry theſe up the mountain to be healed, verſe 29.

maimed] κυλλοὺς, maimed: or thoſe who had loſt the uſe of their limbs, as by the palſie, or ſome other diſaffection of body, ſhrinking up the ſinews, or weakening them to a kinde of dead and helpleſſe impotencie: for we read not of any to whom our Saviour reſtored ſuch limbs, as formerly were by any caſualty cut off or loſt: though he could as eaſily have done that alſo, had it ſo pleaſed him.

caſt them down at Jeſus feet] Note their humility and faith: we read of nothing they ſaid, but only that they laid them before him, not doubting but he would heal them.

and he healed them] So the Evangeliſt contracteth the large ſtory of his admirable power and mercy, here ſhewed in curing all diſeaſes into a few words: So chap. 8. 16. and 14. 35. that we may conſider Chriſts immenſe power, and inexhauſted goodneſſe: but why he did ſo quickly cure all theſe, and ſo long delay the Canaanite if any aſk, they may firſt, therein ſee how he did indeed give bread to the children to the full: and next how he teacheth us, 1. that he moſt tryed her faith, to whom he had given the greateſt meaſure of faith: God proportioneth our tryals to the meaſure of faith which he giveth us: 2. that when he delayeth his favours; it is to the final advantage of his, whoſe patience he will abundantly recompenſe at laſt.

v. 31. the multitude wondred] Becauſe thoſe cures exceeded the courſe of nature, and the power of art.

and glorified the God &c.] They were far better then the high creſted Phariſees, who attributed all Chriſts miracles to Satan: ſo bitterly injurious is malice and envy; they had rather the devil ſhould have the honour of theſe great works, then Chriſt.

of Iſrael] That is, the God whom Iſrael worſhippeth, as Euthymius well interpreteth; for otherwiſe he is not onely the God of Iſrael, and the Jews, but of the Gentiles alſo. Rom. 3. 29.

v. 32. then Jeſus called his diſciples] Mark 8. 1. See alſo chap. 14. 22. by the following miracle, Jeſus ſhews that he will never be wanting to them that follow him, no not in a barren wilderneſſe.

I have compaſſion on the multitude] The like he did before, chap. 14. 14, 19. which he now doth again, to declare his indeficient mercy and power, never weary of ſupplying them who follow him; therefore he gives them food, whoſe ſickneſſe he had cured: he is ſtill our high prieſt, who is touched with the feeling of our infirmities, Heb. 4. 15.

they continue with me now theſe three dayes] If they had brought any food with them, in that time it might be ſpent: neither did they leave Chriſt to buy them any: ſuch was his unwearied mercy to inſtruct and cure them, and ſuch their zeal and patience, as that it overcame their care for domeſtical affairs, and bodily ſupplies.

I will not ſend them away faſting] Or I am not willing to ſend them away faſting; the words expreſs, rather an affection, then a reſolution to feed them: as chap. 8. 23. See Mark 8. 3. but the effect ſhewed both.

leſt they faint in the way] Which intimateth that ſome of them were ſo weakned with faſting, that they could not get home again without ſome refection: thus did Chriſt leave this following miraculous ſupply, to an extream exigent; to teach us conſtancy in our dependance on him: though his help come ſometimes ſlow, it will come ſurely and opportunely in our greateſt need, and to our beſt advantage: ſo did it here for their preſent relief and comfort, as alſo for the future confirmation of their faith.

v. 33. whence ſhould we have ſo much, &c.] Or, ſhall we have: it ſeemeth they had forgot their former ſupply, chap. 14. where our Saviour fed a greater number with fewer loaves and fiſhes, and more was left. See verſ. 34. 37, 38.

in the wilderneſſe] No food is here to be ſold: See the like diffidence in Moſes, Numb. 11. 21, 22. where to mans reaſon, there is the leaſt appearance of ſupplies from the creature, there is Gods power and goodneſſe moſt opportunely manifeſted in our ſupplies.

v. 34. how many loaves have ye?] He knew before, but aſketh, that they might conſider the greatneſſe of the miracle, and the more clearly ſee it in the remoteneſſe of all probable means to ſupply.

they ſaid ſeven] Becauſe Chriſt withdrew himſelf, and his diſciples often into the deſart, where no victuals were to be bought or procured, the diſciples uſed to carry ſome with them (See chap. 16. 7.) though very frugall and ſlender.

v. 35. to ſit down on the ground] That they might expect refection from him, and be the more attentive to the miracle. See chap. 14. 19.

v. 36. he took the ſeven loaves] In ſight of the people, that they might know there were no more, chap. 14. 17. there were onely five loaves and two fiſhes; but now ſeven, and few ſmall fiſhes: the power of God to relieve us is tyed to no means: much or little, few or many, are all one to him. See 1 Sam. 14. 6.

and brake them] That they might the better be diſtributed.

and gave to his diſciples] That they might ſee that done in their hands; which they thought impoſſible. See 2 Kings 7. 2.

v. 37. of the broken meat] See chap. 14. 20.

ſeven baskets full] It was a kinde of baſket wrought with twigs, of common uſe among the Jews, σπυρίδας the Syriack giveth אספרידין, aſperidon, which word both in the Greek and Syriack is uſed Acts 9. 25. for that baſket, in which the diſciples at Damaſcus, let down Paul by the wall.

v. 38. they that did eat] See chap. 14. 21.

v. 39. into the coaſts of Magdala] Whence ſome think Mary Magdalen had her name. See on Luke 8. 2. Mark 8. 10. it is ſaid he came into the parts of Dalmanutha, which was the name of a neighbouring tract of land, Euthymius thinks that region had both theſe names: moſt probably, ſay others, they were ſo joyned, as that they had fields, or commons lying together; ſo that when Chriſt was between them, he was neer, or on the coaſt of either.

CHAP. XVI.

Verſe 1. T*He Phariſes*] Theſe would be one conſtant party againſt Chriſt. See Mark 8. 11. Luke 12. 54.

with the Sadduces] With the Sadduces: of theſe two ſects ſee on chap. 3. 7. though they were at a great diſtance, in point of principles, and opinions one from another, yet they agree together againſt Chriſt, as Herod and Pilate, Luke 23 12. Acts 4. 27. yet againſt all their power and conſpiracy Chriſt prevaileth: all unity is not good; but that onely which is in Chriſt.

tempting him] Their purpoſe was to finde ſome occaſion to calumniate, and accuſe him, chap. 19. 3. and 22. 18. Some think it was onely to ſatisfie their own curioſity: but all other their attempts againſt him conclude them more ſeriouſly malitious.

a ſigne from heaven] Such an one as Moſes did, who fed our fathers with Manna from Heaven, John 6.31. thus they endeavour to obſcure our Saviours glory.

v.2 when it is evening] Ye are very careful,and ſkilful out of experience, to obſerve the uſual ſignes of fair or foul weather to come.

v.3.red,and lowring] ςυγνάζων,ſad: it is a Metaphor borrowed from the countenance, we are ſaid ςύγνάζειν, when we are troubled at any thing odious or grievous: ſo the ſkie is called ſad or lowring, when it is overcaſt with clouds and threatneth rain or ſtorms. So the Latines ſaid, triſtis hyems, ſad winter: ſo the Syriack gives it, במיראית שמיא, Shemaio chemiroith, cœlum triſte; ſo it tranſlateth σκυθρωποὶ Matth, 6. 16. and Luke 24. 17. by the ſame word, which we give, ſad.

hypocrites] See on Matth. 6. 2. and on Luke 13. 15.

ye can diſcern] γινώσκετε διακρίνειν: ye know how to diſcern.

the face] He putteth here πρόσωπον, as the Hebrews uſed פנים, panim: for the outward ſhew or appearance of any thing (as Gen. 1. 2. 1 Sam 14.25. 2 Sam. 17.19,&c) whereby one thing may be known from another.

can ye not diſcern] Or, ye cannot diſcern: you ſet not your mindes to it. See Luke 12. 56.

the ſignes of the times] So to diſcern, what is like to fall out,by reaſon to foreſee events,and ſo to diſpoſe of your affairs accordingly: or, the ſignes of the ſeaſons; that is,of the choiceſt times, ſuch as this is; the time of the Meſſias coming long expected, Acts 26. 6, 7. the accepted time, and day of ſalvation; whereof the miracles by me wrought are ſignes evident and undeniable; which were foretold by the prophets, Iſaiah 35. 4,&c. Matth. 11. 3, 4, 5.

v. 4. adulterous generation] See on chap. 12. 39.

ſeeketh after a ſigne] It was their malitious impudencie, who ſeeing many evident miracles dayly done by him, which their ſelves could not deny, John 11. 47. would yet require ſignes, as if none had been ſhewed them.

but the ſigne of the prophet Jonas] Such a one as was ſhewed on Jonas, the article added in the Greek, intimateth, that was a notable ſigne. See on chap. 12. 39, 40.

and he left them] Not onely that he might thence go to preach to others, as Luke 4. 42, 43. but as being juſtly offended at the hardneſſe of their hearts, Mark 3. 5. they came to tempt him, and not to learn of him, and therefore he leaveth them. Euthim.

v. 5. when his diſciples were come to the other ſide] They forgot it before they came into the ſhip, and did not until now remember it; poſſibly when the want thereof minded them of their neglect to provide as they were wont to do.

forgotten to take bread] Probably becauſe of our Saviuors ſuddain taking ſhip.

v. 6. take heed] ὁρᾶτε; the word among other things, ſignifieth, to weigh, examine or foreſee, as chap. 8. 4. Mark 8. 15. So the Syriack word חזו chaſau, of חזא, is interpreted by proſpexit, conſideravit. Mart. Troſtius Lex. Syr. See chap. 18. 10. examine and try whether it be ſound or no, as 1 Theſ. 5. 21. 1 John 4. 1. the next word interpreteth it, as the Syriack giveth it, diligenter cavete à, &c. which caution being doubled, ſheweth it is a ſerious and moſt neceſſary admonition.

of the leaven] Of their corruptions in doctrine: errour tainteth ſound doctrine, taking away the ſweetneſſe, and ſincerity thereof: falſe teachers are not to be heard, Deut. 13. 3. Jere. 23. 16. Matth. 24. 26. and if unawares we light on ſuch who corrupt ſound doctrine by mingling falſhoods therewith, as Irenæus lib. 3. cap. 19. ſaith, giving us gypſum pro lacte, lime inſtead of milk, deceiving by the ſimilitude of colour; there we muſt take heed what we hear, Mark 4.24. and as Beda ſaith in Cant. exp. lib. 1. excord concerning the books of the Heretical Biſhop Julian, Ita carpat botrum, ut & ſpinam caveat: ſo let one gather the grapes, that he allſo take heed of the thorn: in dictis ejus ſanos ſenſus ſcrutetur & eligat, ut non minus vitet inſanos: this our Saviour teacheth his diſciples by a ſimilitude; and an occaſion taken from their preſent forgetting to take bread, verſe 5.

of the Phariſees and of the Sadduces] The doctrine of theſe two ſects differed very much, and were both contrary to Chriſts doctrine; and would like leaven ſpread to the infection of the hearers; therefore Chriſt warneth his diſciples to beware of both: the Phariſees were much given to the obſervation of humane traditions, even to the adnulling and making void the holy Law of God, chap. 15. 3, 4, 5. they made fair ſhews of devotion and ſtrictneſſe of life, whereas they were indeed but meer hypocrites, chap. 23. 5. Luke 12. 1. they were ſo beſotted with the opinion of their own righteouſneſſe and merit, that thereby they became the moſt unreconcileable enemies of the Goſpel, which teacheth free juſtification by faith in Chriſt, theſe two being altogether unconſiſtent: for if righteouſneſſe can be by the law, Chriſt died in vain. Gal. 2. 21. See Galat. 5. 4. Rom. 9. 30,&c. the Sadduces maintained ſuch points, as overthrew all grounds of Religion, Acts 23. 8.

Sadduces] See on chap. 22. 23. and Luke 20. 27.

v. 7. among themſelves] One ſaid ſo to another privately: or, within themſelves, every one thought ſo in his heart.

it is becauſe] As if they had ſaid, Chriſt reproveth us for our forgetting to buy bread.

v. 8. When Jeſus perceived] Not by relation from them, but by his divine omniſcience.

O ye of little faith] The root of diffidence, care and thoughtfulneſſe about worldly proviſions, as if they were our main intereſt, is want or weakneſſe of faith. See chap. 6. 30, 31.

why reaſon ye among your ſelves] As if I could not feed you unleſſe you brought bread with you, or ſhould be beholding to the Phariſees for it.

becauſe ye have brought no bread] As if the occaſion of my ſpeech were onely the want of bodily food.

v. 9. Do ye not yet underſtand?] See chap. 14. 17. having ſeen two ſuch miracles of feeding ſo many, with ſo very little food, do ye not yet underſtand that I can if need be do the like for you?

neither remember] This is the third fault objected: the firſt was unbelief, verſe 8. the ſecond ignorance, the third is forgetfulneſſe. See Mark 6. 52.

five loaves of the five thouſand] That is, wherewith the five thouſand were fed.

v. 10. neither the ſeaven loaves] Chap. 15. 34.

v. 11. how is it that ye do not underſtand?] This is a queſtion implying ſome kinde of admiration.

v. 12. then underſtood they] They might well underſtand that he ſpake not of bread: and it ſeemeth that they gathered by our Saviours laſt words, that he meant the doctrine of Phariſees and Sadduces, the rather becauſe he uſed to teach ſpiritual things by occaſion of the temporal.

v. 13. when Jeſus came into the coaſts] Hereby it appeareth that the former diſcourſe was by the way,or ſome by place, whither Chriſt had withdrawn himſelf, ere he came to that journeyes end, as Luke 9. 18.

of Ceſarea Philippi] Built by Herod the great, at the foot of Lebanon, in honour of Tiberius: whereas the other called Ceſarea Stratonis, ſtood by the Mediterranean ſea, built in honour of Octavius. Joſephus de bello Judaico, lib. 1. cap. 16, &c.

he asked his diſciples] Not out of ignorance, as if he knew not what men ſaid of him; nor out of ambition, as deſiring to hear himſelf commended; but out of love to his diſciples, leſt they not rightly knowing him, ſhould fail of thoſe bleſſed fruits of faith which he intended them.

whom do men ſay] Mark 8. 27. Luke 9. 18.

that I the Son of man am] Do they think me but an ordinary man? are they offended at my low eſtate? or do they beleeve me to be the Meſſias, promiſed by God, and expected of the faithfull?

v. 14. ſome ſay, &c.] They repeat not the blaſphemies of Phariſees, but ſay what the better ſort ſaid of him; though they thought too meanly of him alſo, verſ. 19. 20.

John the Baptiſt] The Jews thought that prophets, and eminent men either did riſe again, or elſe that their ſouls came into other bodies, and that they then became more famous then ever before: hence it might poſſibly be, that they thought John Baptiſt was raiſed up again: See chap. 14. 2. this muſt be underſtood of thoſe that knew not Chriſt till after Johns death, for others might know them both together;and ſo that the one could not be the other.

ſome Elias] Becauſe it was foretold that he ſhould come as the forerunner of Chriſt, the Meſſias, Mal. 4. 5, 6.

others Jeremias]Becauſe he was as eager againſt the prieſts, and as much hated of them, as Jeremias was, and ſo might ſeem to have his ſpirit in him. Some think that the Jews expected the return of Jeremias, to finde the ark which he had hidden. 2 Mac. 2. 5.

one of the prophets] Or, one of the other prophets; for Jeremias was a Prophet alſo.

v.15.but whom ſay]Chriſt looks for confeſſion of the mouth, as well as faith in the heart, eſpecially of ſuch as are to teach others.

ye] Ye Apoſtles, who have ſeen and heard more then others, and ought therefore to know me better.

that I am] He examineth them not concern ng his doctrine but his perſon: it much concerneth us to have a good opinion of our teachers: but Chriſt was not onely a teacher but the Saviour of the world: to know and believe in him is life everlaſting.

v. 16. Simon Peter anſwered] He in the name of the reſt made this confeſſion of Chriſt.

thou art Chriſt] Gods anointed to be king and prieſt over his Church. John 6. 69. and 1. 49. Heb. 2 17. and 3. 1. and 4. 14. and 5. 6. and 6. 20. Luke 4. 18. Acts 4. 27. and 10. 38.

the Son] The ſon of God by nature, not by adoption, as we are: to declare his eminency and excellency the article is added to every word in the Greek: he had called himſelf the Son of man,verſe 13. and Peter here confeſſeth him the Son of God, one and the ſame perſon conſiſting of the two united natures, being both the Son of God,and the Son of man; very God and very man. See chap. 1. 23.

of the living God] This diſtinguiſheth him from falſe gods which were the works of mens hands; neither able to give life to others, nor having life themſelves. See Gen. 16. 14. chap. 26. 63. Rom. 9. 26. 2 Cor. 3 3. and 6. 16. 1 Theſ. 1. 9. 1 Tim. 3. 15. and 4. 10. Heb. 3. 12. & 9. 14. and 10 31. and 12. 22.

v. 17. bleſſed art thou]Who believeſt and confeſſeſt to ſalvation. See Rom. 10. 9, 10. and Matth. 13. 16, 17.

Bar-Jona] This diſtinguiſheth him from the other Simons: Simon was his own name before his calling, chap. 4. 18. John 1 42. the Evangeliſt writing in Greek, uſeth here the Chalde and Syriack word, then in common uſe among the Jews, inſtead of a ſirname; for bar in the Syriack, as בן ben in the Hebrew, is a ſon, of Jona; it ſeemeth a contract of Iωαννᾶ, whereof ſee John 1. 42. So we read Bartimæus, the ſon of Timæus,&c. Mark 10. 46.

fleſh and blood] That is, neither man, nor the wiſdom of man, nor carnal reaſon; But Gods Spirit. See John 1. 13. Galat. 1. 16.

v. 18. Thou art Peter] John 1. 42. that is, a ſtone: thou haſt glorified me by thy confeſſion of the truth, and I will honour thee,by making thee a pillar in my Church. Gal 2. 9. this name our Saviour gave him in his calling, Mark 3. 16. John 1. 42. to intimate his conſtancy.

upon this rock] That is,the rock confeſſed, not confeſſing; upon the rock of thy confeſſion that I am the Meſſias: for as Hilarie ſaith (de Trinit. l. 2.) Petra eſt fidei confeſſio, this confeſſion of faith is the rock, or Chriſt confeſſed is the rock, Epheſ. 2. 20. 1 Cor. 10. 4. See on John 1. 42. See alſo Hilarie de Trinit. l. 6.

will I build] Chriſt is both the builder,and the upholder of his Church.

the gates of hell]That is,all the power and policy of Hell: the gates of cities being in ancient time, not onely parts of ſpecial ſtrength, but places alſo of meeting for advice in matters of greateſt concernment. Geneſ. 34. 20. 24. Deuter. 3. 5. Pſal. 127. 5.

ſhall not prevail againſt it] Either to deſtroy it, or any of the elect: See John 5. 24. and 11. 25. 26. Revel. 20. 6. 1 Cor. 15. 55. or utterly to extinguiſh the light of truth, or to extirpate the profeſſours therof unto the worlds end, maugre all the power, malice, and machinations of Satan, and thoſe inſtruments which he ſhall imploy againſt it. See Acts 5. 39. Peter in few words had confeſſed the main ſum of the Goſpel, the truth of God, againſt which no falſhood ſhall finally prevail. Gods gifts are neither incerta, nor mutabilia (Proſper de vocat Gent. l. 1. c. 24.) uncertain, or mutable.

V. 19. I will give] The authority of Gods Miniſters is from God. See John 20. 23.

unto thee] With the reſt of the Apoſtles: not onely to thee, but alſo to others; for as the confeſſion which Peter made, was the confeſſion of all the holy Apoſtles; ſo alſo the power here given him, was given to all the reſt reſpectively, as may appear John 20. 23. where the ſame power is given to them all. See chap. 18. 18. and on chap. 10. 2. and on chap. 20. 24.

the keyes] A metaphor from ſtewards or officers of great houſes to whom the keyes are entruſted. The keyes of Eccleſiaſtical power; that is, preaching the Goſpel, and adminiſtring the holy Sacraments (which open unto us the kingdom of heaven) and whatever elſe appertaineth to faithful ſtewards of the myſteries of God. See Luk. 11. 52. Iſaiah 22. 22.

of the kingdom of heaven] To let in, and ſhut out of the Church here, and of heaven hereafter.

thou ſhalt binde] To binde and looſe, is to retain and remit mens ſins, John 20. 23. this properly belongs to God; as to ſave, Epheſ. 4. 32. Coloſ. 3. 13. Matth. 9. 6. Mark 2. 10. Luke 5. 24. to man onely miniſterially as they have the embaſſie of reconcilaition to them committed, 2 Cor. 5. 18. 20. ſo they remit to thoſe that believe, and retain to thoſe that are offended and gainſay, by the miniſterie of the word, and execution of Church-cenſures. See Acts 2. 38. and 10. 43.

on earth] Here among men.

ſhall be bound in heaven] That is, in Gods judgement; for here life is gained or loſt; and that according as we believe, and obey the word, or otherwiſe.

V 20. that they ſhould tell no man] Not that it was not true which Peter had confeſſed,verſe 16. or that it was not needfull to be known: but becauſe the time was not ſeaſonable until after his paſſion, and reſurrection, wherein he was declared the Son of God, verſe 21. and chap. 17. 9. Rom. 1. 4. then were the Apoſtles to publiſh the ſame every where, Acts 1. 8. yet, as occaſion ſerved, he taught before, that he was Chriſt, the Son of God, John 5. 18. Mark 14. 62.

v. 21. to ſhew his diſciples] He acquaints them before with his paſſion, that they might not be ſcandaled at thoſe things which they ſhould ſee him ſuffer.

go unto Jeruſalem] Or go thence unto &c. Chriſt was born at Bethlehem in an obſcure place; but he was to be crucified in Jeruſalem the chief city: that the accompliſhment of our redemption might be the more publike, and the more certainly divulged.

ſuffered many things] Shame, contumelies, ſlander, reproach, pains of death,&c.

of the elders] Which the Hebr. called זקנים, Zekenim, Deut. 21. 2. which was not ſo much a name of age, as dignity: of theſe conſiſted the Jewiſh Sanhedrim, ſuch as the Latines called Senatores; ſtiled uſually in this ſacred ſtory, Elders of the people, judges, rulers: this ſetteth off the bitterneſſe of Chriſts paſſion: it had been leſſe diſhonour to have ſuffered the rage of an ignoble vulgar; but here authority, and countenance of religion in the high prieſts, and chief men condemning him, made the aſperſions injuriouſly caſt on him, far more opprobrious.

v. 22. then Peter] Peter is here permitted to temptation, and ſin, that he might not be proud of that which Chriſt ſaid before, verſe 17. here we ſee, as in a glaſſe, the weakneſſe of the beſt men.

took him] Took him by the hand and led him aſide, as they uſe to do who intend to talk privately and familiarly with a friend.

to rebuke him] Out of carnal affection, to reprove him, for not having more care of his own ſafety.

be it far from thee] Ἵλεώς σοι, ſpare thy ſelf: thou ſhalt not go: no doubt but he ſpake this out of good affection to Chriſt: but here we ſee what good intentions are without a due knowledge of Gods revealed will: nihil intereſt, quo animo facias, quod feciſſe vitioſum eſt, Lactant. l. 3. c. 15. it ſkilleth nothing, with what intention thou doeſt that which is evil to be done.

v. 23. he turned] Away from Peter toward the other Apoſtles, as diſpleaſed with Peter.

get thee behinde me] Lead not me, nor give me counſell, but follow me, and learn of me, as verſe 24.

Satan] Σατανᾶ, the word generally ſignifieth an adverſary, chap. 4. 10. he called him ſo, either becauſe he had ſpoken like an enemy, or had ſhewed himſelf an inſtrument of Satan, ſet on work by him to diſſwade Chriſt from ſuffering for our ſalvation: this Chriſt takes ill, though Peter ſpake ignorantly, and out of affection to the perſon of Chriſt. The wiſdom of the fleſh is enmitie to God, Rom. 8. 7. ſo was this prepoſterous zeal in good Peter: how eaſily do we fall into ſinne, ſeeing our beſt affections are ſubject to ſuch errour?

an offence unto me] Thou layeſt a ſnare, or ſtumbling block before me.

the things that be of God] Although God hath revealed unto thee that I am his Son, verſ. 16, 17. yet he hath not acquainted thee with my paſſions, and therefore out of carnal affection, thou diſſwadeſt me from that, which is the end of my coming into the world, the fulfilling my Fathers will for mans ſalvation. See 1 Cor. 2. 14. So much differeth frail man, borne up by the grace and aſſiſtance of Gods ſpirit, from himſelf, left to himſelf and his own wiſdom of fleſh: there Peter was pronounced bleſſed, verſe 17. here he deſerved to be called Satan, and offence: therein Peter went rejoycing from the Councel, that he was counted worthy to ſuffer for the Name of Chriſt, Acts 5. 41. here he would have that done, which would have hindred the great work of our redemption, for which the Son of God became the Son of man, for our ſalvation.

v. 24. then ſaid Jeſus] Mark 8. 34. upon occaſion of Peters failing, he ſhews them, that not onely his ſelf muſt ſuffer, but all his alſo.

unto his diſciples] He called the people alſo to hear it, Mark 8. 34. for it concerned them likewiſe.

will come after me] Will follow me as a diſciple, and profeſſour of the goſpel, Luke 14. 26. and 22. 39. or deſires to come to heaven, whither I am going.

let him deny himſelf] Let him not have any regard of himſelf, which may in any meaſure hinder him from thoſe things wch he oweth to the ſervice of God. Set aſide all worldly reſpects, ſo far forth as they impeach or hinder the revealed will of God: Gregory hom. 32. in evang. it is not enough to leave that which we have, except we leave our ſelves, and yet quo ibimus extra nos? whither ſhall we go out of our ſelves? relinquamus nos ipſos, quales peccando nos fecimus: & maneamus noſmetipſi quales per gratiam facti ſumus; let us leave our ſelves in reſpect of that which we have made our ſelves by ſin: and let us remain our ſelves in reſpect of that which we are made by grace. We may here ſee how hard it is to follow Chriſt aright: grandis — virtutis eſt, & ſolicitæ diligentiæ ſuperare quod nata ſis, ſaid Hieronym. to Furia, ep. 21. lib. 2. it is a point of great vertue and careful diligence to overcome that which thou art born.

take up his croſſe] Not bear it unwillingly, murmuring at the burden layed on him: but cheerfully, as he that willingly and readily taketh up that burden, of which he is aſſured he ſhall make great advantage.

his croſſe] That portion of affliction which God hath appointed for him, and calleth him to ſuffer, chap. 10. 38.

and follow me] When he hath reſolved ſo to do, he is prepared to be my diſciple: or, it is not ſufficient that he deny his own will, and ſuffer for me, unleſſe he alſo imitate me in piety, and all holy converſation, chap. 11. 29. 1 Cor. 11. 1. Epheſ. 5. 2. or, let him not think much to deny himſelf and ſuffer for me, who ſuffer death for his ſalvation. See chap. 10. 24. 25. or, let him make account to follow me through afflictions into eternal glory, Luk. 24. 26. Acts 14. 21, 22. Heb. 13. 12, 13. this maketh much for the ſetting out the certain truth of Chriſtian religion; that Chriſt never propoſed ſecular riches, honours, or eaſe to thoſe who followed him, thereby to allure them to adhere to him: but contrariwiſe, the malice of an evil and injurious world, perſecutions for his Name ſake, ſhame, poverty, contempt, and death it ſelf: and yet, for the certain reward in the life to come, grounded on his word, they have in all ages ſince, ſo conſtantly profeſſed the goſpel, as that Satan by all his rages againſt them, could never deter them from Chriſtianity: nay, never more did the goſpel flouriſh, then in the midſt of bloody perſecutions: never were we leſſe overcome, then when we could not by many years ſlaughters be overcome. Reaſon have we to follow Chriſt patiently, whatever we endure: had he not ſuffered more for us, then we can ſuffer for him, we had not been ſaved.

v. 25. for whoſoever] Chriſts propoſitions for ſalvation are general: he is no accepter of perſons; whoſoever believeth, and obeyeth him, ſhall be ſaved, John 3. 16. Galat. 3. 28, 29.

his life] Ψυχὴν αὐτοῦ, his ſoul: it is a Synecdoche familiar with the Hebrews, thereby importing life; or it may ſignifie (as oft it doth) the whole man; for he that ſaveth, or loſeth ſoul or body eternally, loſeth both.

for my ſake] That he may glorifie me in a conſtant profeſſion of the truth which I teach in the goſpel.

ſhall finde it] That is, ſhall be ſaved, and finde eternal joy and bleſſedneſſe. See chap. 10. 39. ſo gainful a loſſe is it to ſuffer for the truth: ſo loſſefull a gain is it, by time-ſerving to provide for preſent peace, and eaſe, with denying or betraying the truth: the whole ſenſe Gregory excellently expreſſeth by a ſimile: frumentum ſi ſervas, perdis: ſi ſeminas, renovas, hom. 32. in Evang. as if one ſhould ſay to the husbandman, if thou keepeſt thy wheat, thou loſeſt it; if thou ſoweſt it, thou reneweſt it.

v. 26. for what is a man profited, &c.] As men deſire rather to preſerve their lives, then their goods, Job 2. 4. ſo do ye much more endeavour to ſave your ſouls, which are of greater valew then all the world; which being once loſt can never be redeemed by all the riches of the world.

his own ſoul] Or, his own life, as verſe 25.

v. 27. for the Son of man] I who ſeem now mere man, the man of ſorrows, contemptible; ſhall yet judge the living and the dead, wherein I will reward my conſtant ſervants, and puniſh others who feignedly cleave unto me.

in the glory of his father] As God, equal to the Father: or in the glory given him in his humane nature by the Father: like a glorious king.

and then] Not now preſently: here is our place of tryal and ſuffering: we muſt patiently expect ſatisfaction for all our wrongs, at Chriſts ſecond coming.

he ſhall reward] And ſave good men, but condemn the wicked, John 5. 29.

v. 28. there be ſome] He nameth them not, but meaneth thoſe diſciples, who ſaw his glory in the mount, and ſhould ſee him after his reſurrection: for the kingdom of God is here præſens eccleſia, Gregor. hom. 32. the preſent Church. See Mark 9. 1. Luke 9. 27.

ſhall not taſte of death] Shall not die, as Heb. 2. 9.

come in his kingdom] As chap. 17. 1, 2. where they ſaw a ſhadow of his glory, wherein he ſhall come to judge: or in his reſurrection, aſcenſion, ſending of the holy Ghoſt, and propagation of the goſpel by ſignes enſuing. See chap. 28. 18, 19, 20. Acts 2. 30. 32, &c. or coming in power by execution of judgements upon the Jews, to the utter overthrow of that nation, chap. 24. 3. 26. 27. 34. Luke 21. 6, 7, 24.

CHAP. XVII.

Verſe 1. A*fter ſix dayes*] Mark 9. 2. Luke 9. 28. See note thereon.

Jeſus taketh Peter] He took with him Peter; the prime Apoſtle in order; James who was firſt to ſuffer for him, and John the beloved Apoſtle, who was to out-live the reſt. See Mark 5. 37. See on Luke 9. 28.

into an high mountain] A fit place for his transfiguration, for height and ſecreſie. Some think this was mount Tabor, others are of other opinion: mount Tabor being (as Hieronym. de loc. Hebraic. ſaith) in the midſt of a field of Galilee; but. v. 22. it appeareth that this was done out of Galilee, vid. Mark 9. 30 Iſ. Cauſabon. exercit. 15. N. 26. defendeth the ancient tradition of the Church, that it was mount Tabor. S. Peter calleth it the holy mount, 2 Pet. 1. 18. it is not expreſſed in the goſpel, and therefore we may be ſafely ignorant hereof: Luke 9. 28. it appeareth that he went up the mount to pray: Secret prayers are more ardent, the minde being more attentive thereto, from diſtractions by external things: therefore he ſaith, when thou prayeſt, enter into thy chamber, or cloſet, ſhut the door, Matth. 6. 6.

v. 2. was transfigured] The ſubſtance of his body was not altered; but his countenance was far more glorious then before; (as Moſes face ſhined, Exod. 34. 29. 30. 2 Cor. 3. 7.) ſo were his garments, that the glory then appeared, quâ venturus erat poſteà in regno ſuo, Hieronym. in which he would afterwards come in his kingdom.

did ſhine as the ſun] In a moſt glorious manner. See the like manner of phraſe, chap. 13. 43. Dan. 12. 3. Judg. 5. 31.

his raiment was white as the light] It was glorious alſo, to an extraordinary excellency.

v. 3. Moſes and Elias] Some conceive that Moſes body was now raiſed up again; others are of other opinion: Moſes was the Prophet by whom the Law was given, and Elias a principal prophet; theſe were fitteſt to ſpeak concerning Chriſts paſſion; for as Hieronym. ſaith, the Law (repreſented here by Moſes) and the Prophets (by Elias) did frequently declare the paſſion and reſurrection of Chriſt; theſe ſhew that Chriſt was the Lord of the Law and Prophets; the ſcope of which was to declare him the onely Saviour, Acts 10. 43. theſe chief witneſſes appeare now to ſtrengthen the diſciples faith, againſt the ſcandall of the enſuing croſſe: if any aſk how the diſciples knew Moſes and Elias; let them conſider, that beſides Chriſts talking with them, whereby they might be enformed in this admirable preludium of light and heavenly glory, they might as eaſily have a ſpecial revelation, as Paul a divine rapt, to hear unſpeakable things, 2 Cor. 12. In the ſtate of innocencie, Adam knew Eve preſented to him, to be fleſh of his fleſh, &c. Gen. 2. 22. and here the Apoſtles knew Moſes and Elias whom they never before ſaw; it is moſt likely that in the ſtate of glory, wherein God ſhall be all in all; that our knowledge (ſubordinate to the happy communion of Saints) ſhall be more excellent, then in the ſtate of innocency, or regeneration here begun.

talking with him] About his paſſion; as, Luke 9. 31.

v. 4. It is good for us to be here] How delectable will heavenly glory be, when this glimpſe thereof, did ſo raviſh Peter, that he deſired to abide here.

v. 5. While he yet ſpake] 2 Pet. 1. 17.

a bright cloud] Not now a black dark one, as on Sinai in the giving of the law: this cloud was to convey Moſes and Elias away from them.

This is my beloved Son] chap. 3. 17. Not a ſervant as Moſes, Hebr. 3. 5. 6. and the Prophets; but a Son; alſo the double article here again differenceth Chriſt from other ſons: he is a Son by nature, but we by adoption: therefore he is called the firſt-born among the brethren; becauſe though he be of right, the onely Son, yet is he chief among many, in that he is the fountain and head of our adoption. Coloſ. 1. 13. Epheſ. 1. 6.

in whom I am well pleaſed] See on chap. 3. 17. duo grata vocabula, filius & dilectus (ſaith the Author of that tract. de baptiſm. Chriſti, apud Cyprian.) theſe are two words which are pleaſing to God, Son, and beloved.

hear ye him] He is the Prophet, of whom Moſes ſpake, Deut. 18. 15. Act. 3. 22. 24. He is the truth and eternall word of the Father, who ſpake by the Prophets: he onely can reveal the counſell of God, concerning our ſalvation, which is in the boſome of the Father. John 1. 18. God ſpeaketh by him. Hebr. 1. 2. if we muſt hear him, and his ipſe dixit muſt be our rule; then it is of no great concernment what men ſay; except their aſſertions be according to that which he ſaith, we may ſecurely neglect them: God hath ſaid, hear him. See Cyprian l. 2. ep. 3.

v. 6. They fell on their face] For fear, as by the words following it ſeems they did. John 18. 6.

v. 7. touched them] To raiſe them up, and to comfort them againſt exanimating fear.

v. 8. ſave Jeſus alone] to aſſure them that the voice from heaven concerned him alone, for Moſes and Elias were gone: So the vail of the law and Prophets taken away, we ſee Chriſt the end of the law and the Prophets to them that beleeve. 2 Cor. 3. 13. &c. See Hieronym. in loc.

v. 9. The viſion] Which they ſaw with their eyes: ſometimes the word חזון chazon (which the ſeventy commonly give by ὅραμα a viſion) is uſed for that which men ſee in a dream.

to no man] See on v. 20.

v. 10 Why then ſay the ſcribes] Hearing of his reſurrection from the dead, which they ſo little underſtood with relation to Chriſt (of whoſe reſtoring a temporall kingdom to Iſrael they dreamed) as that they reaſoned among themſelves what he meant thereby, Mark 9. 10. it is probable that they remembred what the ſcribes in their ſynagogues uſed to teach concerning the return of Elias, to go before Chriſt the Meſſias, whom having ſeen now talking with Chriſt, they demanded, how theſe things agree together. See c. 11. 14. Mark 9. 11. The ſcribes abuſed that propheſie of Mal. 4. 5. To make the people beleeve that the Meſſias was not yet come.

that Elias muſt firſt come] before Chriſt come: how canſt thou be our expected Meſſias, ſeeing Elias thy forerunner, is not yet come, except this be his coming which we have ſeen, and that he ſhal now go and manifeſt himſelf and thee to all Iſrael? and if he muſt declare thee, why doſt thou forbid us to declare, and teſtifie to the people what we have ſeen and heard concerning him? See Auguſtin. de C. D. l. 20. c. 29. and Tertullian de anim. c. 35.

v. 11. Shall firſt come and reſtore] Gr. ἔρχεται cometh that is, the ſcribes ſay true that Elias muſt come before the Meſſias: but they underſtand not what they ſpeak of.

reſtore all things] See Mal. 4. 6. Luke 1. 17.

v. 12. Elias is come already] That is, John Baptiſt in the ſpirit of Elias. v. 13. c. 11. 14. Luke 1. 17.

they knew him not] becauſe they looked for Elias in his own perſon.

of them] of the Jews.

v. 13. Of John the Baptiſt] See on. v. 12.

v. 14. And when they were come] Mark. 9. 17. Luke 9. 38.

kneeling down to him] in an humble manner, as men that tender petitions uſe to do.

v. 15. He is lunatick] He means troubled at certain times of the moon, with the falling ſickneſs or ſome like diſeaſe: whereby the devil probably took advantage about thoſe times, to torment him more v. 18. by joyning himſelf to ſecond cauſes. See c. 4. 14.

he falleth into the fire] when the evil ſpirit drives him.

v. 16. They could not cure him] Though they had caſt out ſome devils, yet thoſe they could not. See c. 10. 8. and verſe 21.

v. 17. O faithleſs, &c.] He blames the want of faith in the father, who doubted of Chriſts power, Mark 9. 22. the unbelief of the people which hindred Chriſts doing of miracles ſometimes. c. 13. 58. and the unbelief, or weakneſs of faith, in his diſciples. v. 20.

how long ſhall I be with you?] teaching you, and confirming my doctrine by miracles, and yet ye believe not.

bring him hither to me] though he were offended with them, yet he would heal the childe; that they might know that he could do what he would, which belongeth to God alone: ſo refelled he the cavils of the Phariſees in curing this wretched young man.

v. 18. rebuked the devil] ἐπετίμησεν αὐτῷ He rebuked him: that is the evil ſpirit in him: as, Mark 1. 23, 24. See Luke 9. 42.

v. 19. Then came the diſciples] To wit, when they were come into the houſe. Mark 9. 28.

why could not we caſt him out?] They were aſhamed that the Scribes and Phariſees had ſeen their inability: and poſſibly they were alſo afraid leſt they had loſt the power which Chriſt had given them, chap. 10. 1. and therefore ask this queſtion.

v. 20. becauſe of your unbelief] That is weakneſſe of faith, not an utter want of it: they had very little, as the words following import.

if ye have faith] Luke 17. 6. Underſtand this of faith of miracles: we may have a good and ſufficient meaſure of juſtifying faith unto ſalvation, and yet not have any faith of miracles.

a grain of muſtard ſeed] In a very ſmall meaſure. See chap. 13. 32.

ye ſhall ſay unto this mountain] This expreſſion is uſed to ſet out the greateſt miracle, as, 1 Cor. 13. 2. no prince with his army could ever remove a ponderous mountain: that is more then to lay it plain, which yet is a great work. zach. 4. 7. See on Luke 17. 6.

nothing ſhould be unpoſſible unto you] Nothing needfull for the confirmation of the doctrine taught by you, and to procure authority thereto.

v. 21. this kinde] God poſſibly at ſome time for cauſes beſt known to himſelf, gives more power to ſome evil ſpirits then to others: they that had long poſſeſſion, were very unwilling to part with it. Mark 9. 21. 29.

and faſting] Which is uſed on an extraordinary occaſions as a means to render our prayers more fervent. 2 Chro. 20. 3. Ezra. 8. 21. Dan. 9. 3. Jonah 3. 5. 7, 8.

v. 22. While they abode in Galilee] chap. 20. 17. Mark 9. 31. Luke 9. 44.

The Son of man ſhall be betrayed] He often puts them in minde of this, leſt they ſhould be offended at the ignominy of the croſſe; and to draw them from their opinion of a temporall kingdom, which they ſo much dreamed of. Mark 10. 35. 37. Luke 24. 21. Acts 1. 6.

v. 23. They were exceeding ſorry] Now reſenting that which our Saviour ſo often ſpake of, they were very ſad.

v. 24. tribute money] δίδραχμα. Mark 12. 14. calleth it κῆνσον: and Luke 20. 22. φόρον--- the didrachma was half the ſhekel of the ſanctuary, which the Iſraelites were by the law, Exod. 30. 13. to give for every mans offering: but after the Romans ſubdued them, they exacted the ſame for poll-money, or tribute; as they did alſo that cenſum which was a kinde of levy on their fields, or houſes. See Joſeph. Ant. l. 19. c. 15. ſome value this didrachma, at fifteen pence: ſome at a little leſſe: the ſilver ſhekel was half an ounce in poiſe; this tribute-money ſaith Maſter Beza, hath on it Samaritan letters, and on the one ſide, that ſacred pot in which the Manna was kept, with the letter Aleph on the top, ſignifying that it was a ſingle ſhekel: the double being as much more, in value four of their drachmas, with this inſcription שקל ישראל ſhekel Iiſrael, the ſhekel of Iſrael: on the other ſide Aarons rod which budded, with this inſcription ירושלם קדשה Jeruſhalaim kodeſchah; Jeruſalem the holy: it had this image. vid. Beza in loc.

v. 25. Jeſus prevented him] He knew what he would ask, and by preventing him ſhewed his divine omniſcience.

Of whom do the kings] Secular princes take it not of their ſons; how much leſſe ought they to exact it of the Son of God? or, the Emperour is but Gods deputy; therefore he ought not to take tribute of his onely Son.

v. 26. then are the children free] And much more I, who am the onely Son of God by nature.

v. 27. leſt we ſhould offend them] Leſt we ſhould give them occaſion to think that we deſpiſe authority, or leſt we ſhould give an example to others ſo to do, to the diſturbance of peace and order; thus would he teach us obedience to ſuperiours, though in our perſonall wrongs, and rather in things lawfull, to recede from our righr, then to diſadvantage our religion, by adminiſtring any matter of offence unto thoſe who are in authority.

Go to the ſea] Here he ſheweth Peter indeed what he ſpake in word, that he being the Son of Cod, ought to be free; for as much as (beyond the power of all the kings of the earth) he both knew the ſecrets of the deeps, and could command the creatures therein to do his will, and the fiſh of the ſea to become tributary to him: this ſheweth, as Chriſts power and omniſcience, ſo alſo Peters admirable faith, obedient in things ſo remote and diſtant from the reach of carnall reaſon.

a piece of money] A ſtater anſwering the Hebrew ſhekel, in weight, it is half an ounce of ſilver, in value two ſhillings ſix pence, after five ſhillings the ounce. See on verſ. 23.

CHAP. XVIII.

Verſe 1. AT the ſame time] ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ὥρᾳ, in the ſame hour, at that time when he was at Capernaum in the houſe whence he had ſent Peter to the ſea of Geneſaret, to fiſh for tribute. Mark 9. 33. Luke 9. 46.

came the diſciples] After they had diſputed by the way, which of them ſhould be greateſt; and were aſhamed to tell Chriſt what their controverſie was, though he aſked them (as appears in the other Evangeliſts) at length they are bold to propound the queſtion to him: yet ſomewhat reſervedly; for whereas they controverted which of them ſhould be greateſt, here they propound a generall queſtion, neither limiting it to themſelves, nor any other particular; and they adde in the kingdom of heaven: either in their own ſenſe (who expected a ſecular kingdom of Chriſt) or elſe to palliate their ambition with pretence of their deſiring nothing but heavenly things.

Who is the greateſt] τίς ἄρα, Who then is the greateſt; as if the occaſion aroſe from Chriſts pronouncing himſelf free from tribute, as being the Son of the heavenly king: this was a dangerous weakneſſe of the Apoſtles; for as Tertullian ſaith truely; de baptiſm. c. 17. æmulatio ſchiſmatum mater eſt; emulation is the mother of ſchiſme.

in the kingdom of heaven] The kingdom of heaven importeth the kingdom of grace here, and the kingdom of glory in the life to come: but ſeeing ambition is a ſtranger and exile to theſe, it is moſt likely that they enquired concerning the temporall kingdom which they expected.

v. 2 a little childe] A young childe whom he might take in his arms. Mark 9. 36. ſo the Prophets often taught the people by outward ſignes, and actions; as, Jer. 27. 1.

v. 3. except ye be converted] The Hebrews expreſſed repentance by converſion, intimating a change in the courſe of life, and going another way, as men that have gone wrong, turn about into the right path: it is likely that our Saviour here intendeth, that except they left the dangerous precipices of ambition, and became as little children, in humility of minde, it could not be well with them.

become as little children] Not in ignorance and infirmity, but in lowlineſſe of ſpirit. 1 Cor. 14. 20. he never ſaid, Peter, or James, or John ſhall be greateſt (which doubtleſſe he would not have left undetermined, if he would have had any one of them primate, and above the reſt, in authority) but equally dehorteth them all from vain and pernitious ambition; therefore he ſet the childe in the midſt of them, as an embleme and pattern of humility appertaining to them all.

Ye ſhall not enter into the kingdom &c.] No man can be ſaved without humility: ambition caſt the angels thence; except ye learn humility, you ſhall be ſo far from being greateſt in heaven, that ye ſhall not come there at all.

v. 4. Whoſoever therefore ſhall humble himſelf &c.] Whoſoever doth not think highly of himſelf, no more then this little childe doth; humbleneſſe of minde is the right way to preeminence.

v. 5. one ſuch little childe] One like ſuch a childe, in the quality before mentioned: See Pſalm. 131. 2. & 119. 141. receiveth me, that is, I will take it as done to my ſelf. So chap. 25. 40.

v. 6. But who ſo ſhall offend] Mark 9. 42. See on Luke 17. 2.

one of theſe little ones] One of an humbled ſoul; as verſ. 5. See on Luke 17. 2.

it were better for him] If he might ſo end his puniſhment, it were better for him to be caſt into the moſt helpleſſe condition temporall, then to endure eternall damnation in hell fire.

that a milſtone]. Poſſibly ſome great malefactors were ſo executed, to which cuſtome Chriſt might allude.

v. 7. Wo unto the world] Many miſchiefs will fall on mankinde, by reaſon of offences; for of them are both the offendants, verſe 8. 9. and the offended; verſe 10.

becauſe of offences] Lets and hindrances which ſtop the courſe of good works: the Greek word σκάνδαλα ſignifieth things which we ſtumble at. See on Luke 17. 1.

it muſt needs be] Neceſſitate conſequentiæ: becauſe of the wickedneſſe of men, it will certainly be ſo. See on Luke 17. 1. and God juſtly permitteth the ſame for cauſes to him beſt known. See 1 Cor. 11. 19. offences are inevitable.

but wo be to that man] This is added to ſhew, that Gods permiſſion, neither enforceth mans will, nor excuſeth any evil act.

v. 8. Wherefore if thy right hand] See on Matth. 5. 30. Mark 9. 45.

v. 9. It is better for thee &c] καλόν σοί &c. Underſtand here μᾶλλον, rather good for thee; that is, ἀνεκτότερον, as, chap. 10. 15. more tollerable.

v. 10. Take heed] ὁρᾶτε---See; as, chap. 16. 6. and 24. 4.

that ye deſpiſe not] See on verſe 6.

one of theſe little ones] Not in yeers, but in humility; as, verſe 3. God takes care of every one of them.

their angels] God ſets his Angels to guard and take ſpeciall charge over thoſe that are leaſt able to defend themſelves. See Pſal. 34. 6, 7. and 91. 11.

behold the face of my Father] Wait for Gods command, to be imployed for the good of poor and humble beleevers. Heb. 1. 14. they behold the face of God, non ſicuti eſt, ſed latente ſuâ naturâ in ſpecie quâ voluerit apparet. Auguſtin. ep. 112. Paulinæ. not as he is (in his incomprehenſible being) but his nature being concealed, he appeareth in what form he pleaſeth: not as he is in himſelf, ἀλλ' καθόσον καὶ αὐτοὶ χωροῦσιν &c. as much; or, as they are capable. Cyril. Hieroſol. Cat. 6.

v. 11. to ſave that which was loſt] Not onely men contemned of the world, but ſuch as were dead in treſpaſſes and ſinnes. Epheſ. 2. 1. and ſo of themſelves loſt. See chap. 15. 24. Iſaiah 27. 13. Luke 19. 10.

v. 12. how think ye] Luke 15. 4. Be ye your ſelves judges, and weigh the matter by common rules of experience: thus God ſometimes ſeemeth to appeal to mens conſciences. See Iſaiah 5. 3. 1 Cor. 11. 13.

one of them gone aſtray] As Jer. 50. 6.

doth he not leave ninety and nine] So many are much more worth then one; yet ſuch is his love and care of that one, that he leaveth them all to ſeek it. See on Luke 15. 4.

v. 13. He rejoyceth more of that ſheep] Becauſe the other were ſafe before, but this was in a manner loſt: See on Luk. 15. 5, 6, 7. 9. &c.

v. 14. It is not the will of your Father] It is not pleaſing unto him, that any of them ſhould periſh. Ezek. 18. 32. and his eternall and unchangeable decree is, that they ſhall all be ſaved. See Iſaiah 54. 10. & 61. 8. John 10. 28, 29. Rom. 8. 38. 2 Tim. 2. 19. Hebr. 6. 19.

v. 15. If thy brother ſhall treſpaſſe] Levit. 19. 17. See on Luk. 17. 3.

againſt thee] By doing thee a perſonall injury: or by ſaying, or doing ſomething impiouſly, or irreligiouſly againſt the law of God, whereby thou art juſtly ſcandalized or offended.

Go and tell him his fault] tarry not till he come to thee, if he neglect his duty go to him: ὕπαγε go, ſeemeth to prohibit delay; as wounds of the body, ſo ſinnes, which are the wounds and ſickneſſe of the ſoul, grow more uncurable by too much delay; why ſaith he not here; as, chap. 5. 14. go and be reconciled to thy brother? (See alſo, chap. 6. 14.) the anſwer is, that there he treateth of reconciliation onely, and the neceſſity of forgiving one another, but here he ſpeaketh of brotherly correption; where remiſſion of the offence commonly amendeth not, but indulgence often makes the offender worſe; therefore he ſaith, tell him of his fault; for as Chryſoſtom de Lazar. ſaith, reprehenſion makes good men better. See on Luke 17. 3.

between thee and him alone] That he may evidently perceive that thou doeſt it not to diſgrace him, nor to inſult over him; but out of deſire of his ſpirituall good, and the reparation of the wrong done.

if he hear thee] If upon thy admoniſion or reproof, he ſhall confeſſe his faults, ſatisfie thee, and amend. See on Luke 17. 3.

thou haſt gained thy brother] Thou haſt got a friend of him: or thou haſt been an inſtrument to ſave his ſoul. Jam. 5. 20. The end of our reproving muſt be, the gain of our brothers ſoul: the Apoſtle propoſed this end of his whole miniſtry; See 1 Cor. 9. 19.

v. 16. Take with thee one or two more] That he may the more reſpect thy words, & thou mayeſt have witneſſe of thy brotherly proceeding with him, if thou ſhalt be forced to complain publikely: what if my brother, being reproved, grow more obſtinate and pertinacious, muſt I give him over to himſelf, as deſperate and hopeleſſe? by no means, but take witneſſes with thee, that thy candor and fair dealing may appear before men, as it doth before God the ſearcher of hearts.

in the mouth] An Hebrew manner of ſpeaking who ſaid עַל---פִּי hal pi, in the mouth, Deut. 19. 15. that is, by the word or teſtimony. So is פִּי mouth, put for עֵדָה hada or עֵדוּת beduth witneſſe or teſtimony. See Deut. 17. 6. See v. Schindl. pent. in ערך et in פהה. See John 8. 17. 2 Cor. 13. 1. Hebr. 10. 28.

every word may be eſtabliſhed] Every matter or thing teſtified (as Luke 1. 37.) may be accounted certain and out of further queſtion.

v. 17. if he ſhall neglect to hear] If he do not vouchſafe to hear them, perſwading him to confeſſe his fault, and to repair thee, and give thee ſatisfaction: if he continue obſtinate, and will not hearken to good and peaceable advice.

tell it unto the church] Unto the miniſters, or governours of the church: or to the publike congregation, or multitude (as Vatablus interpreteth) he ſpake here to the Jews, to whom he preſently oppoſeth, an heathen or Publican: So that, becauſe the power of judicature concerning thoſe things, was then in their Sanhedrim, or Colledge of elders, he remitteth them in ſuch caſe, to complain to them for redreſſe: ſo he calleth thoſe who had the authority in matters eccleſiaſtical, the church which Luke 22. 66. calleth πρεσβυτέριον τοῦ λαοῦ &c. the elders of the people, and the chief prieſts, and the ſcribes.

let him be unto thee, &c.] Thou mayeſt then carry thy ſelf toward him, as towards a profane ſtranger, and contemner of government and religion: ſo the Jews accounted all heathens, and ſhunned their company: See chap 9. 10. & 1 Cor. 5. 9. 10, 11. 2 Theſ. 3. 14.

v. 18. Whatſoever ye ſhall binde on earth] John 20. 23. 1 Cor. 5. 4. &c. by convincing men of ſin before God, or of wrong done to men. Some undeſtand it of juſt excommunication of obſtinate ſinners.

in heaven] Before God.

whatſoever ye ſhall looſe] By reducing to repentance through your miniſtry and preaching the word: others underſtand it of abſolution, or freeing from the ſentence of excommunication, upon good and juſt ground.

v. 19. If two of you] Here he ſpeaks to them, as to private men met together to make peace, and to accord differences between party, and party; or for any work of piety and charity: or it may be underſtood of the party wronging, and wronged; or of the wronged and parties taken in to aſſiſt, though they be but two.

ſhall agree on earth] This word συμφωνήσωσι, is transferred from things bodily, to the ſpirituall; ſymphonie is properly in muſicall notes and cordes: ſignifying harmony, or conſent: but it is here uſed to import a conſent or agreement of minde and will.

touching any thing] Any good thing well carried, or well deſired, and to a good end; or about the reconciliation before mentioned.

v. 20. Where two or three] He promiſeth his gracious aſſiſtance to, and preſence with his Church, be it great and numerous, or ſmall: thus he confirmeth the authority of eccleſiaſticall cenſure, and comforteth them who unite in truth, and holy duties.

gathered together] In prayer, or any other religious works, agreeing together therein, as, verſe 19.

there am I in the midſt of them] this is an argument of Chriſts divine power, and ſpeciall preſence with his, as c. 28. 20.

v. 21. How oft] The queſtion is moved by occaſion of our Saviours former ſpeech. v. 15. Luke c. 17. 4. repeated the occaſion of Peters quære, which this Evangeliſt omitteth.

v. 22. Untill ſeventy times ſeven] As oft as he ſhall repent, and ask forgiveneſſe: here is a definite number for an indefinite; Peters ſeven is multiplied into ſeventy times ſeven. Luk. 17. 4. See Gene. 4. 24.

v. 23. Therefore] To this end I do tell you the enſuing parable, that ye may be willing to forgive often, who have had ſo many ſins forgiven you.

the kingdom of heaven] Gods ſpirituall government in the Church, reſtabliſhed by the Meſſias.

v. 24. Ten thouſand talents] Of a talent, See on 1 Chron. 22. 14. and Tho. Godwin. Moſes and Aaron. l. 6. c. 10.

v. 25. And his wife and children] as Tertullian de reſur. carn. c. 37. ſheweth the ſenſe is to be taken ex materia dicti; from the matter of the ſpeech: in parables, we are to conſider the ſcope and intention of the ſpeaker, and not overcuriouſly to diſcuſſe every particular: ſo here we muſt know, that God doth not alwayes ſhew extream rigour, untill the vindication of his juſtice, or the compulſion of a ſinner to repentance (which light afflictions do not alwayes effect) neceſſarily require it: onely he ſheweth, that if God ſhould deal with us according to the rigour and ſeverity of his juſtice, we could not anſwer him one of a thouſand: See Pſal. 143. 2. and therefore our onely ſanctuary is his mercy, and the way thither by humble ſupplication, and charity in forgiving each other: this was the courſe of old, when men had not to pay, to ſell them and theirs, for ſlaves, Levit. 25. 39. 2 King. 4. 2. See on c. 20. 7. to be made] ἀποδοθῆναι, to be given from thence to ſatisfie the creditour.

v. 26. worſhipped him] Or reverendly ſaluted him: this was a civill reverence, which was very uſuall in thoſe eaſtern-parts. Gen. 27. 3. & 33. 3.

have patience with me] God is ſaid in ſcripture to be ſlow to anger. Exod. 34. 6. that is, patient, not eaſily provoked, and not to ſtir up all his wrath. Pſal. 78. 38.

v. 27. Forgave him the debt] Did more for him then he aſked; he deſired but dayes of payment, and the king remitted the whole debt. See Luke 7. 42. Gods mercy (which can have no cauſe but it ſelf) is the ſole cauſe of our ſinnes remiſſion in Chriſt, we can thereto contribute neither merit nor ſatisfaction.

v. 28. an hundred pence] The Roman peny, is the eighth part of an ounce, which after five ſhillings the ounce, is ſeven pence halfpeny, a ſmall ſumme in compariſon of that which was forgiven him: teaching, that if God forgive us a debt incomparably greater, then we can have to forgive one another: then muſt we forgive, or elſe we ſhalbe unexcuſable: concerning their peny, ſee Godwin, Moſes and Aaron, cited verſe 24.

v. 29. his fellow ſervant fell down at his feet] This was a great degree of humiliation before his fellow ſervant: but nothing can move that heart to pity which is hardened to deſtruction.

v. 30. he would not] He that had found greater favour from a ſuperiour, denies a leſſe curteſie to an equal: the king had forgiven him the whole debt of 10000 talents, and he denies his fellow-ſervant time to pay an hundred pence.

v. 31. told unto their Lord] Out of their compaſſion, they tell all, with the circumſtances of the cruelty: theſe words are not to be ſtrained, as if God were enformed by any; for the evidence of every fact cryeth to him: onely it teaches us, that we have (beſides our own conſciences) ſo many adverſe witneſſes crying to God againſt our cruelty, as are acquainted with our ſins: becauſe they cannot but be ſorely offended at our injuſtice or cruelty.

v. 32. I forgave thee all the debt] This aggravates his fault, who would not forgive his brother: and ſetteth off Gods admirable mercy, who forgiveth all, where he forgiveth any one ſin.

becauſe thou deſiredſt me] Upon thy entreaty without further ſatisfaction: ἐπεὶ, after that, or becauſe thou entreatedſt me: this becauſe in the application, doth not import a cauſe, but a condition of obtaining mercy: the ſenſe is, ſeeing that at thy entreaty, I was contented to forgive ſo great a debt; thou oughteſt to have ſpared thy fellow-ſervant at his entreaty.

v. 33. on thy fellow-ſervant] Thou hadſt reaſon to pity him: he was thy fellow-ſervant, and might have ſatisfied thee; thou couldeſt never ſatisfie me, nor merit any mercy, yet I forgave thee.

v. 34. tormenters] Thoſe that keep men committed to priſon, in much hardſhip: Some ſay, the Romans (under whoſe Laws the Jews now were) uſed not onely to impriſon, but alſo cauſed them to be beaten there: the meaning is, God delivereth the unmercifull to perpetuity of torments, which they juſtly ſuffer, who would not be amended by mercy.

v. 35. ſo likewiſe] This parable informs us, that they ſhall finde God ſevere and implacable, that do not forgive their brethren, although they have been diverſly and grievouſly injured by them.

from your hearts] Sincerely, not in ſhew onely; neither ſeeking revenge, nor affecting it, no nor ſo much as remembring injuries, Levit. 19. 18. Rom. 12. 9. for ſo would ye have God forgive you. Epheſ. 4. 32. Coloſ. 3. 13.

every one] Of what ranck or degree ſoever: ſuperiours muſt as well forgive inferiours, as look for forgiveneſſe from them, or from God, who ſaith upon the matter, as Joſeph, Gen. 43. 3. 5. ye ſhall not ſee my face, except your brother be with you.

his brother] Not his fellow-ſervant, as before, but his brother, verſe 15. that very name carrieth a convincing argument of forgiveneſſe in it ſelf.

their treſpaſſes] Of all ſorts, great or ſmall.

CHAP. XIX.

Verſe 1. WHen Jeſus had finiſhed] Mark 10. 1. when he had performed his miniſtry in Galilee: this was the laſt journey which Chriſt made to Jeruſalem. See Luke 9. 51. hereof Chriſt ſpake chap 16. 21. and 17. 22. to ſhew his conſtancy to do Gods will to the death. Luke ſaith chap. 9. 51. τὸ πρόσωπον ἀυτοῦ ἐστήριξε, he ſtrengthened, or ſet his face to go to Jeruſalem: it is an Hebrew manner of expreſſion, ſignifying a fixed reſolution to do ſome thing, as Ezek. 4. 3. והכינתה את פניך vehachinotha eth phanecha---See alſo 2 King. 12. 17. & obfirmabis facies tuas: the circumſtance of time is here mentioned, to aſſure us, that Chriſt now ſet himſelf in the way with a conſtant reſolution to die for the Elect. See on Luke 9. 51.

he departed from Galilee] He paſſed over the water out of Galilee into Judea.

v. 2. healed them] See on chap 12. 15.

v. 3. tempting him] Seeking to entrap him: as, chap. 22. 16. 36. if he ſhould pronounce all divorces unlawfull, he ſhould ſeem contrary to Moſes, and ſo expoſe himſelf to the odium of the Jews, who religiouſly obſerved the law: if he ſhould allow of all divorces, he ſhould contradict his own doctrine, chap. 5. 32. and allow of the perverſe and uncharitable practices of the Jews, who on every ſlight occaſion put away their wives.

to put away his wife] To give her a bill of divorce, and ſo diſmiſſe her.

for every cauſe] Or for any cauſe κατὰ πᾶσαν αἰτίαν· αἰτία importeth, both a crime, and a cauſe: vid. Budæum αἰτία---Col. 2. here it better accordeth with the latter, ſeeing that the Jews uſed to put away their wives for deformity alſo. Deut. 24. 1. which if it were a cauſe, could not be a crime: and here πᾶσαν may be tranſlated any, (according to the Hebrew expreſſion: Pſal. 103. 2. & 147. 20.) ſpecially if we underſtand, cauſe, diſtinct from crime: none doubting but that ſome crime might be a juſt cauſe of divorce.

v. 4. Have ye not read] He reduceth them to the firſt inſtitution of marriage ſet out in ſcripture. See on chap. 12. 3.

that he which made] Gen. 1. 27.

male and female] He made but one wife for Adam, though he could have made him many, that if one had not pleaſed him, he might have put her away, and have taken another.

v. 5. And he ſaid] God inſpired Adam to ſay ſo, or God ſaid ſo by Moſes.

For this cauſe] Gen. 2. 24. Epheſ. 5. 31.

leave father and mother] This is not to be underſtood ſimply; for God cannot be contrary to himſelf, in prohibiting duty to parents, which is the firſt commandement with promiſe. Epheſ. 6. 2. But to declare the ſtrict bond of unity between man and wife; the ſenſe, is rather forſake father and mother, then thy wife: thou muſt dwell with thy wife 1 Pet. 3. 7. thou art not bound ſo to dwell with thy parents; except in caſe of their neceſſity.

ſhall cleave to his wife] he ſhall dwell with her: (as 1 Pet. 3. 7.) in holy converſation, comfortably, in loving and individuall ſociety of life: they mutually eſteeming themſelves ſo bound to cheriſh, aſſiſt, and comfort one another, as if they were members of one and the ſame body; to the uttermoſt of their power, defending themſelves from the attempts of Satan, and his agents; as alſo the advantages which he too often maketh on men and womens inordinate paſſions; leſt he ſhould thereby get any occaſion of dividing them; or in the leaſt meaſure alienating, or embittering their affections towards each other.

they twain ſhall be one fleſh] 1 Cor. 6. 16. They which were two, became one: this word fleſh, is taken for the whole man, or the body, after the manner of the Hebrews.

v. 6. no more twain] For the man is the wives head: Epheſ. 5. 23. and the head and body are no more twain, but one fleſh. See concerning this argument, Auguſtin To. 7. de nupt. concup. l. 1. c. 9. 10. 17.

God hath joyned together] Thoſe who are joyned together according to Gods ordinance, and by his providence.

let no man put aſunder] On any other termes then God hath appointed. See on chap. 5. 32. and here verſe 9.

v. 7. Why did Moſes] Deut. 24. 1.

a writing of divorcement] Which Moſes calleth ספר כריתת Sepher cherithuth, βιβλίον ἀποστασίου, the ſeventy

‘which they in after times wrote, according to this or the

and to put her away] ἀπολῦσαι, to looſe her from, to wit the band of marriage: thus the Jews did, when their wives diſpleaſed them, though they were chaſt, and they conceived that they had authority from Moſes ſo to do.

v. 8. becauſe of the hardneſſe of your heart] The common fault wherewith this people was branded, Exod. 33. 3. and 34. 9. Deut. 9. 6. and 31. 27. Iſaiah 48. 4. Ezek. 2. 4. and 3. 7. Acts 7. 41. leſt when once they diſpleaſed you, ye ſhould uſe them cruelly, Moſes permitted you to put them away; not allowing ſuch divorce, but preventing a greater miſchief.

ſuffered you to put away, &c.] They ſay Moſes commanded, verſe 7. Chriſt ſaith, Moſes ſuffered it, to wit in his political ordinances (wherin he could not but comply ſomwhat with the diſpoſition of that hard hearted people) not as being a miniſter of the moral law; or Moſes winked at it, but gave no law ſo to do; for Moſes words, Deut. 24. 1. may be read thus, and he hath written her a bil of divorcement, and given it, &c. and &c. and ſhe hath departed, and gone and been another mans wife; and the words of the 4 verſe ſheweth the main ſcope of that ſanction to be, not a precept of putting her away, but a prohibition of a future reception and taking her again, for that is abomination before the Lord---See Jer. 3. 1. though Moſes ſuffered this to thoſe who could not be perſwaded to keep their wives, and commanded ſuch to give a bill of divorce, for the future indempnity of the wife, againſt the huſbands implacable rage, yet he never gave a law, that the man ſhould therefore put away his wife, for any leſſe cauſe then adultery; neither were they any better then adulterers before God, who (except in caſe of adultery) put away their wives (verſe 9.) and married another. See chap. 5. 32.

from the beginning] From the firſt original and inſtitution of this ordinance concerning marriage.

v. 9. and I ſay] Or, but I ſay, as chap. 11. 19. See chap. 5. 31. Mark 10. 11. Luke 16. 18 1 Cor. 7. 11.

except it be for fornication] The band of marriage cannot be broken by a divorce, except it be for adultery; yet that needed not, had they duely executed the law concerning puniſhing adultery with death: but it ſeems that in the neglect thereof, our Saviour addes this caution: as to tax that neglect, and perverſe indulgence to adulterers, and adultereſſes; ſo alſo to condemn their raſh judgements, and unwarrantable practices, who deviſe other cauſes of annulling marriages: let all take heed that they preſume not to controule the wiſedom of their heavenly Maſter, by aſſigning other cauſes of parting them whom God hath joyned, then God hath ever declared in his word.

v. 10. If the caſe &c.] If a man be ſo ſtrictly and inſeparably tyed by this ordinance: thus fleſh uſeth to reaſon.

v. 11. all cannot] Cannot live without wives, nor all wives without huſbands.

receive this &c.] This the Greek word χωρεῖν properly ſignifieth: and metaphorically, as the Syr. interpreter gives it, non quivis eſt par huic rei: all are not ſo continent, as to live chaſtly ſingle. See 1 Cor. 7. 2. 8.

To whom it is given] By ſome peculiar means. verſ. 12.

v. 12. Which were ſo born] Unfit for marriage by nature, or not deſiring it.

made eunuches] Gelded: ſuch were appointed to keep the concubines of great men.

made themſelves Eunuches] not by diſmembring themſelves, but τῶν πονηρῶν λογισμῶν τὴν ἀναίρεσιν &c. Anaſtas. Sinait. q. 66. ex Chryſtom. by taking away evil thoughts; the meaning is, that to be abſtemious, and chaſt, βασιλείας οὐρανῶν ἐστι δῶρον, as Epiphan. hæreſ. 21. 5. interpreteth, is a gift of the kingdom of heaven: a gift of grace fitting them for the kingdom of heaven.

he that is able] If any man have received the gift of continency, that he can in ſingle life, keep himſelf an undefiled member of Chriſts myſticall body: otherwiſe, take heed that temporall advantages, caſt thee not eternally into hell-fire. See 1 Cor. 6. 9,10. 1 Cor. 7. 9. Hebr. 13. 4.

v. 13. Then there were brought &c.] Mark 10. 13. Luke 18. 15. after they ſaw how he helped and cured people of ripe yeers; the pious mothers began to hope, that he would alſo beſtow ſome bleſſing and heavenly grace on their children, if he would but lay his hands on them (which was the accuſtomed form of bleſſing, as appeareth in the ſtory of Iſaac, Gen. 27. 21, 22. and Jacob, Gen. 48. 14. 17. therefore they brought their children to our Saviour.

and pray] They who were excellent in gifts, and eminent in authority, uſed to bleſſe inferiours, by impoſition of their hands. (See Hebr. 7. 7.) which was a ſymbolum, and ſigne of bleſſing: ſo the prieſts were appointed a form of bleſſing, which (as repreſenting God) they were to pronounce to the people. Numb. 6. 24. &c therefore theſe parents deſired this ſolemn ceremony, and Chriſts prayers for their children, who were preſented unto him, in fide parentum, in their parents faith, as Euthymius ſpeaketh: this ſhews the great deſire they had of their childrens ſpirituall good.

The diſciples rebuked them] That is, thoſe that brought them. Mark 10. 13. It may be becauſe they brought their children ἀκόσμως ἢ καὶ τεθορυβημένως diſorderly, and tumultuouſly, as Theophylact thinks: they thought it a thing troubleſome to Chriſt, and not worthy of his greatneſſe and excellency, to meddle with children, who were not yet of capacity to learn the high myſteries of the kingdom of heaven, and needed no miraculous healing.

v. 14. of ſuch is the kingdom of heaven] Ye have no cauſe to blame them for bringing their children to me; for they have intereſt in the kingdom of heaven, as well as thoſe of riper yeers: and unleſſe ye be like them, ye ſhall never come there, chap. 18. 3. they have no appetite of revenge againſt thoſe that hurt them; when the parents correct them, yet they cleave to them, and prefer them before all others: if a Queen in a diadem and purple robes ſhould be offered (ſaith Chryſoſtom. hom. 63. in Matth.) they would rather ſee their mother though ſordid and poorly clothed, then another in the moſt princely attire: they deſire nothing beyond neceſſity; when they are ſatisfied, they let go the breaſt: they are not diſtracted with cares of this world; nor know they many ſinnes, wherewith yeers and maturity acquainteth the beſt of the meer ſons of men: if we will be ſaved, let us imitate theſe harmleſſe patterns, which come neereſt to our loſt ſtate of innocency.

v. 15. He laid his hands on them] It is not ſaid, that he prayed, as they that brought the children deſired. verſe 13. but onely that he laid his hands upon them: whereby he ſhewed that he had power of himſelf to bleſſe them: So Mark 10. 16. it is ſaid, he put his hands on them and bleſſed them.

v. 16. And behold one came] See Luke 18. 18. Mark 10. 17. he is ſaid in Luke, to be a certain ruler, a chief man in eminence or authority, not a vulgar or obſcure plebeian: it ſeemeth he came not to Chriſt treacherouſly, as the Scribes and Phariſees uſed, but with a minde to learn of him, whom he reverenced; yet in his ſtory appeareth, how dangerous an obſtruction and let to ſalvation, love of riches and the world is.

good Maſter] This preface, with other circumſtances ſhew, that he meant willingly to embrace the doctrine of Chriſt; and how little, fair intentions profit, where any thing is loved more then God, and our ſalvation.

What good thing ſhall I do?] Mark the queſtion, you that will underſtand Chriſts anſwer to him; he ſaith not by what means muſt I be ſaved? to which undoubtedly Chriſt would have anſwered, beleeve and thou ſhalt be ſaved (See Acts 16. 31.) but what good thing ſhall I do &c. he knew it was not in ſaying or profeſſing good; but yet he dreamed of merit of works; whereby he (as the Phariſees) thought he muſt be ſaved. See Rom. 9. 30, 31.

v. 17. Why calleſt thou me good?] Seeing thou ſuppoſeſt me to be meer man: he underſtood his hypocriſie, or preſumption on his works: therefore he here intimateth that which he ſaid, Luke 6. 46. why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I ſay? He denyeth not his goodneſſe; ſed magiſtri abſq; Deo excludit errorem, Jerom. but excludeth his errour, who took him to be a teacher without a Deity.

none good but one] None good ſo as God; that is originally, eſſentially, abſolutely, immutably good, 1 Sam. 2. 2. James 1. 17.

keep the commandments] He ſpeaks not this as if any man might be juſtified, and ſaved by the works of the law; but in anſwer to his queſtion, verſe 16. and to draw him from ceremonies to moral duties. See on verſe 16. Sanctity is via regni, the way to the kingdom, though not cauſa regnandi, the cauſe of reigning. Bernard. See Hebr. 12. 14. and compare it with Rom. 3. 28. Rom. 4. 14. Gal. 2. 21.

v. 18. Thou ſhalt do no murder] Exod. 20. 13. He mentioneth not the ceremoniall law, which the Jews ſtrictly obſerved, nor the duties of the firſt table, whereof they ſeemed very zealous; but of the ſecond table, wherein they were very negligent. chap. 23. and wherein they commonly fail, who hypocritically make fair, ſhewes of devotion in the firſt table, See Iſai. 1. 11. &c. and 66. 3. Jer. 7. 9. 10. 21. Mich. 6. 6, 7, 8.

v. 19. Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thy ſelf] This is the ſum of the ſecond table. Rom. 13. 9. Luk. 10. 27. Mark. 12 31. Matth. 22. 39. Gal. 5. 14.

v. 20. All theſe things have I kept] In the litterall ſenſe, and externally, he could not keep them in the large extent of the law, which reacheth to the thoughts, and ſecret corruptions of the heart: he might be unreproovable before men (as Paul was Phil. 3. 6.) he could not be ſo before the all-ſeeing God. vid. Pſal. 143. 2. 1 King. 8 46. Jam. 3. 2. the beſt on earth are but partly Spirit. Gal. 5. 17. Rom. 7. 17. 21. 23. Matth. 5. 22, 28.

v. 21. If thou wilt be perfect] If thou wilt indeed ſhew thy ſelf to be ſuch as thou ſayeſt thou art; Chriſt ſhews not here, wherein eternall life conſiſteth (for this precept is not univerſall) but hereby he detects, and convinceth the falſe opinion he had of his own righteouſneſs; and wherein he had hitherto ſecurely deceived himſelf: therefore Mark and Luke ſay, yet one thing is wanting: as if he ſaid; thou art not yet perfect, as thou vainly dreameſt.

ſell all thou haſt] Chriſt well knowing his covetouſneſs, thus toucheth the ſecret ſore of his minde, to ſhew him how imperfect he yet was: and as God, giveth him this ſpeciall commandement, which he diſobeying, diſcovereth a breach of the firſt precept of the law, and ſo indeed, keeps none.

thou ſhalt have treaſure in heaven] thou ſhalt not part with thy goods ſo much as change them for thoſe that are incomparably better: in ſtead of tranſitory riches which thou canſt not long keep, thou ſhalt have eternall, which can never be loſt; then riches become our goods when to Gods honour we beſtow them on the poor.

follow me] be my diſciple, and abide with me, that I may imploy thee in the miniſtry of the Goſpel. See chap. 4. 19.

v. 22. He went away ſorrowfull] It troubled him much that he had moved the queſtion, not finding Chriſts anſwer according to his deſire and expectation.

for he had great poſſeſſions] Poſſibly he would have parted with ſome part for Chriſt, but he would not leave ſo great an eſtate for him.

v. 23. To his Diſciples] Not that they were rich and ſo in danger of loſing heaven thereby; but that they ſhould not in after times be offended, if they could not bring rich men to God by their miniſtrey, See 1 Cor. 1. 26. neither ſhould attain to riches, themſelves.

a rich man ſhall hardly enter] becauſe it is hard for them not to truſt in riches (Mark 10. 24.) not to ſet their hearts on their encreaſes; to love them too much, to keep them from diſtracting them from Gods ſervice, and from choking up the ſeed of Gods word, and all good deſires and intentions of the heart: laſtly, becauſe it is hard for them, not to be covetous which expoſeth them to the ſnares of Satan, 1 Tim. 6. 9. 10.

v. 24. It is eaſier for a Camel] Theophylact ſaith that ſome ſay that κάμηλον, ſignifieth not here the living creature (that is a Camel) but τὸ παχὺ σχοινίον, &c. a great rope &c. That is, a cable, but indeed this is a proverbiall manner of ſpeaking, which Caninius noteth out of the Talmudiſts; though they the Elephant; and Chriſt mentioneth the Camel a beaſt better known in Syria, and likely according to their uſuall proverb, of their opinion which Theophylact citeth is Eli. Cretenſ. com. in Gr. Nazianzen. orat. 11. but Suidas ſaith, κάμηλος is τὸ ἀχθοφόρον ζῶον, a burden-bearing beaſt; but κάμιλος is τὸ παχὺ σχοινίον, a great rope, or cable. See Joh. Drus. præterit. lib. 1.

v. 25. They were exceedingly amazed] underſtanding the way to heaven to be much harder then they formerly conceived.

Who then can be ſaved] what rich man can be ſaved? or who can be ſaved: for how little ſo ever a man hath, he is naturally unwilling to part with that all, and to be left deſtitute, to the mercy of an unkinde world.

v. 26. Jeſus beheld them] As intimating that he knew their thoughts: for the Diſciples probably did not ſpeak out, but whiſpered among themſelves. Mark 10. 26.

with God all things are poſſible] be not troubled at what I ſaid; for God can and will ſave ſome rich men, ſuch were Abraham, Iſaac, Jacob, Job, Zacheus, v. 28. in the regeneration] Ye have followed me in preaching the goſpel, for the regeneration of the the Elect: or he meaneth that in the abſolute renovation in the reſurrection, they ſhould ſit &c.

judging the twelve tribes He alludeth to their manner of judgement, when their twelve tribes were entire and flouriſhing: he meaneth the univerſall Church conſiſting of the carnall and ſpirituall Iſrael: and he ſpeaketh of twelve thrones, according to the number of the Apoſtles, that they might know, that they ſhould all equally ſhare in dignity and honour; Judas excepted, into whoſe honour and office Matthias ſucceeded: you ſhall ſit judging, either by your doctrine, or by attending on me in a ſpeciall manner.

v. 29. every one] Not ye Apoſtles onely, but all others; no man ſhall loſe by obeying me.

or father, or mother &c.] That is, in caſe thou canſt not cleave to Chriſt, except thou forſake them: honour thy parents in God; and as farre as his honour and ſervice will permit; but where it is otherwiſe, præferenda eſt religio neceſſitudini, pietas propinquitati ſaith Ambroſ. l. 7. ep 56. Romulo. religion muſt be preferred before friendſhip, and godlineſſe before kindred: that, ſaith he, is true godlineſſe, which eſteemeth things divine, before humane, and eternall, before temporall. Sanctis omnia eſt Deus; God is all in all to the Saints.

CHAP. XX.

Verſe 1. FOr] This illative particle, and the repeating of the end of the laſt chapter, here, verſe 16. ſhews that this parable is inferred to expound the former concluſion.

the kingdom of heaven] The equity of Gods diſpenſation in the kingdom of heaven, is as if an houſholder, &c.

early in the morning] ἅμα πρωῒ together with the morning: ſo they ſaid, ἅμα τῇ ἡμέρᾳ with the day, and the latines, cum primâ lucè: with the firſt light; that is, as ſoon as it was day: God from the beginning of the world, had a care to provide workmen for his vineyard, the Church. Iſaiah 5. whom he ſent into it with the firſt light, the knowledge of him, and his will concerning mans ſalvation: the vineyard is the Catholike Church, which brought forth ſo many vine-branches, quot ſanctos &c. from Abel the juſt, unto the laſt-born Elect: Gregor. hom. 19. in Evang. manè mundi fuit ab Adam uſque ad Noe: the morning of the world (ſaith the ſame) was from Adam to Noah: the third hour, verſe 3. was from Noah to Abraham: the ſixt hour was from Abraham to Moſes; verſe 5. the ninth hour; verſe 5. was from Moſes to Chriſt: and the eleventh verſe 6. to the end of the world. See hereof alſo; Hilary canon. 20. in Matth. Theophylact and Euthymius, underſtand this of the divers ages of man, childehood, youth, middle age, old age, wherein they are called to the faith in Chriſt: Auguſtin de verb. domi. ſecundum Joh. ſerm. 59. propoſeth both theſe interpretations.

v. 2. When he had agreed] συμφωνήσας. See on chap. 18. 19. when he had made a contract, or covenant.

for a peny] The Roman penny, is the eight part of an ounce, which, after five ſhillings the ounce, is ſeven pence halfpeny. chap. 18. 28.

v. 3. About the third hour] This ſheweth the continuance of Gods care for his Church unto the end; becauſe he is compared to an huſbandman, that ſtill looks out for workmen. See on verſe 1.

ſtanding idle in the market-place] Whither idle perſons uſed to reſort. chap. 11. 16. Acts 17. 5. and where they who expect, or deſire imployment, are wont to wait.

v. 4. I will give you] God promiſeth a reward to his ſervants, to encourage them to the work. Pſalm. 19. 11. & 58. 10, 11. 1 Cor. 15. 58.

v. 5. About the ſixt, and ninth hour] See on verſe 1.

v. 6. about the eleventh hour] An hour before ſun ſet, or ſomewhat more; for the firſt hour began at ſun-riſing, in the equinoctiall; that is, at ſix of clock with us.

v. 7. Becauſe no man hath hired us] This might import their excuſe, who make no good uſe of thoſe excellent parts which God hath given them; under pretence that they have no calling to the Miniſtry: but (as hath been formerly noted) parables may not be overcuriouſly ſtretched to anſwer in morality to every particle, which they ſeem to point at: but the ſcope of the ſpeaker, is chiefly to be obſerved: and ſo here, as Euthymius noteth after Chryſoſtom, thoſe things are to be expounded onely, quæ opportuna videntur—cætera vero non ſunt curioſè ſcrutanda; which are opportune, -but the reſt may not be curiouſly examined. See on ch. 18. 25

v. 8. So when even was come] This need not be applyed, as being rather to fill up the parable, then otherwiſe: yet is it true, that God will in like manner appoint Chriſt, in the end of the world, to reward all his Miniſters and people, for all their ſervice done here, in his Church. chap. 16. 27.

v. 9. they received every man a peny] That is (ſaith Hillari cant. 20. in Matth.) obedientiæ ipſius præmium, the reward of his obedience, ſalvation; ſaith Euthymius, as much as was promiſed to the firſt, and more then the laſt could expect.

v. 10. They ſuppoſed] We muſt not think, that any that go to heaven will complain, that any have too much, or themſelves too little: (there is no envy or repining there, where all are full) but this is added, to give occaſion, in the words following, to ſhew; that Gods liberality in rewarding ſome, that have laboured leſſe then others, is no prejudice to his truth or juſtice, in rewarding others.

v. 11. They murmured] See on verſe 10. The Jews murmured, that God had equalled the Gentiles with them, in their intereſt in Chriſt, (See alſo, Luke 15. 29, 30.) but there can be no ſuch diſcontent in heaven.

v. 12. have wrought but one hour] Or have continued one hour onely, and thou haſt given them a reward equall with ours. So began the Lord, with the laſt, quia ad Paradiſi requiem, prius latronem quam Petrum perduxit. Gregor. hom. 19. in Evang. for he brought the penitent thief into the reſt of Paradiſe before Peter.

v. 13. I do thee no wrong] See on verſe 10.

v. 14. Take that is thine] By agreement, verſe 2. 13. Gods people ſhall receive all that God doth promiſe them; yet ſtil we muſt remember, that God freely juſtifieth ſinners, and that through grace, not any merits of thoſe whom he juſtifieth.

v. 15. to do what I will with mine own] I give onely that which is mine own: I have payed thee according to my agreement with thee; and thou haſt no cauſe to complain of me, for giving to others what I pleaſe, out of mine owne eſtate.

is thine eye evil] Doeſt thou envy them for my free liberality, wherein I do thee no wrong? the Hebrews by רע עין rah hen mean an envious eye. Prov. 23. 6. So the ſeventy eat thou not with ἀνδρὶ βασκάνῳ; Jerom, cum homine invido, with an evious man; according to this, Chriſt ſaith, an evil eye proceedeth from within, out of the heart of men. Mark 7. 21. 22. So alſo Deut. 15. 9. ורעה עינך 70. καὶ πονηρεύσεται ὁ ὀφθαλμὸς σου. So here, ὀφθαλμὸς πονηρὸς is an evil or envious eye. See Eccleſ. 14. 7. contrary hereto is, טוב עין the good eye, which Solomon ſaith ſhall be bleſſed, Prov. 22. 9. according to which, Sirac ſaith, Eccleſ. 35. 10. ἐν ἀγαθῷ ὀφθαλμῷ, with a good eye give the Lord his honour, and diminiſh not the firſt fruits of thy hands; that is with an heart free from envy. See on chap. 6. 23.

v. 16. So the laſt] See on chap. 19. 30.

for many] Some come ſhort of them and their reward, who were much inferiour to them in the worlds eſteem; becauſe they are onely outwardly called by the word, but are not elected to eternall life; or, the laſt ſhall have reward, which the firſt ſhall fail of; becauſe plerique Deum vocibus ſequuntur, moribus fugiunt. Gregor. hom. 19. in Evang. moſt follow God in words, but in their manners flie from him; they profeſſe that they know God, but in works they deny him. Tit. 1. 16. but why (ſay ſome) doth not God ſhew the ſame mercy to all thoſe whom he calleth? we know his judgements are ever juſt, though in many things we cannot underſtand the cauſe; let us ſay therefore with Proſper. de vocat. Gent. l. 1. c. 15. quid calumniamur juſtitia occulta, qui gratias debemus miſericordiæ manifeſtæ? why calumniate we his ſecret juſtice, who owe(all poſſible)thanks to his evident mercy?

v. 17. And Jeſus] Mark 10. 32. Luke 18. 31.

going up to Jeruſalem] Up, either in regard it ſtood ſomewhat higher then the plain about it, Jer. 17. 3. and 21. 13. or, as men are ſaid to go up to ſome chief place in a countrey, or head city of a kingdom: howbeit the word, aſcending, is oftentimes put ſimply, for going or travailing to a place, 1 Kings 22. 4. 6. 12. Jer. 34. 21. and 37. 5.

apart in the way] To acquaint them privately with his death and reſurrection, who were to be ſpecial witneſſes thereof, Acts 10. 41.

v. 18. we go up to Jeruſalem] Chriſt foreſheweth his readineſſe to ſuffer for us, by his words here, and by his going before them, Mark 10. 32.

the Son of man ſhall be betrayed] He had acquainted them with his paſſion twice before, chap. 16. 21. and 17. 22, 23. yet now he mentioneth it again, becauſe they underſtood not, why he would wittingly go among his enemies; and, afraid what would become of themſelves, they willingly declined that journey, Mark 10. 32. therefore he repeateth this hard leſſon to them again, that, when they ſaw one part of the prediction come to paſſe in his death, they might be confirmed concerning the other part, his reſurrection from the dead. The firſt time he told them of his death in general: the ſecond time he declareth the means, by treaſon: now he telleth them of the manner, by condemnation and crucifying: and in his laſt ſupper he reveals the traitor to them; all this did he, that they might not be dejected nor ſcandaled at that wch he ſhould ſuffer; conſidering that nothing came to him by chance, nor the power and will of man, but the determinate counſel of God, unto which he wittingly and willingly ſubmitted himſelf. chap. 26. 39. 42. this, in the preſent perturbation of minde through fear and ſorrow, though they did not now underſtand, yet they afterward confeſſed: See Acts 4. 27, 28.

unto the chief prieſts] Who, though they were ordained of God to be pillars of the Church, guides, and comforts to the people, yet in their corruption, became the moſt violent ſuppreſſours of religion, and perſecuters of the Miniſters and children of God, Jer. 20. 1. and 26. 8. Acts 4. 1. and 5. 17.

ſhall condemn him] Shall cauſe him to be condemned: for they had no power to do it themſelves, the Romans having taken from them the power of judicature, in matters capital, and concerning life and death.

v. 19. and ſhall deliver him] See on verſe 18.

to mock] They ſhall afflict him with words, ſtripes, and death. See chap. 27. 27. &c. John 19. 2. thus they as chief inſtruments delivered him to the Roman power: but ſtil we muſt conſider the ſupream mover, and the ultimate end, without which none of the reſt could have prevailed. God the Father delivered him for our redemption, Rom. 8. 33. Chriſt delivered up himſelf, Gal. 2. 20. John 10. 11. 13. Judas the traitour delivered him: the chief prieſts and Scribes delivered him, for they perſwaded the people to cry crucifie him: and Pilate delivered him to death: yet in this delivery God is juſt and merciful, but man unjuſt and impious, becauſe in one and the ſame thing, there was not one and the ſame end propoſed: God delivered his Son to death for us, that he might deliver us from eternal death: Judas betrayed him, becauſe Judas was covetous: the Jews delivered him up, becauſe they were envious: Pilate delivered him to be crucified, to gratifie the Jews: the end, and impulſive cauſes make the difference of actions. See on verſe 18. Acts 4. 27, 28. and Auguſtine ep. 38. ad Vincent.

to crucifie him] After the manner of the Roman execution of malefactors: ſo did he make his grave with the wicked: ſo was he numbred with tranſgreſſours, Iſaiah 53. 9. 2. ſo became he obedient to the death of the croſſe, Philippians 2. 8.

the third day] By this he comforteth them, and inſtructeth them againſt their ſorrow, and his ignominy, leſt they ſhould be ſcandaled at his ſufferings. See on chap. 12. 40.

he ſhall riſe again] See chap. 16. 21. it was a great tryal of their faith, that he, whom they believed, and profeſſed to be the Son of the living God, the Meſſias, and Saviour of the world, ſhould be permitted to ſuch impious hands, ſuch ignominy, and a death ſo ſhameful; but in his reſurrection he was declared the Son of God with power, Romans 1. 4. by his reſurrection the third day, death and hell were conquered, and we freed from the ſting and power thereof.

v. 20. then came to him] A little time after, in the ſame journey: it is likely they came to him apart, and privately. See verſe 24.

the mother of Zebedees children] Mark 10. 35. ſaith, James and John the ſons of Zebedee, came unto him, ſaying, &c. it ſeemeth their mother came with them, and ſolicited for them: theſe were, James the elder, and John the beloved; the mothers name was Salome, Mark 15. 40. this James Herod ſlew, Acts 12. and John was the beloved diſciple, and Apoſtle, who lived long after.

worſhipping him] Adoring him, Syriack: either kneeling down to him, or with ſuch reverence, as might import, and preſent an humble and hearty petition.

v. 21. what wilt thou?] It ſeemeth hereby that ſhe petitioned at firſt indefinitely, as ſome uſe; will you grant me one thing? not preſently ſaying what: but Chriſt well knowing what ſhe would aſk, would yet have her expreſſe her requeſt: to teach us, that no wiſe man may grant indefinite petitions, as impious and fooliſh Herod did: and alſo that he might have the more evident occaſion of reproving their ambition.

theſe my two ſons] Probably ſhe had heard from the two Apoſtles, her ſons, what our Saviour had ſaid, chapter 19. 28.

the one on thy right hand] Let them have the higheſt degree of honour in thy kingdom; which they (not yet underſtanding the ſpiritual kingdom of Chriſt) did ſuppoſe ſhould be with external honour and greatneſſe. See 1 Kings 2. 19. Pſalm 45. 9.

v. 22. ye know not what ye ask] Ye think that they who are principal in my kingdom ſhall have much ſecular honour and eaſe, with all affluence of worldly accomodations; but you will finde it quite contrary; for they muſt be more expoſed to troubles, & ſharp encounters, then others.

of the cup that I, &c.] A Metaphor taken from a man condemned to die by drinking poiſon. See Pſalm 11. 6. Iſaiah 51. 17. John 18. 11. Ezek. 23. 32. can ye ſuffer perſecution for the confeſſion of the truth of the goſpel? It is inopportune and prepoſterous which ye deſire: you muſt firſt taſte of my ſufferings, and then talk of honour after the victory: this queſtion hath the value of a deliberation: as if he ſaid, conſider firſt, how you will be able to ſuffer, which is the preſent condition of my kingdom, (chap. 16. 24.) and do you already talk of rejoycing with me? Such is our natural affection, we would fain be crowned before the conflict: and they are moſt ambitious, who are moſt impatient of the croſſe, or performing their duty: the onely bridle of ambition, is meditation of the croſſe; no man ſhall ſhare with Chriſt in glory, who doth not firſt in ſuffering, 2 Tim. 3. 12.

to be baptized] Shall you be able to endure thoſe overflowings of afflictions, which like deep waterfloods muſt compaſſe me about? See Pſalm 69. 2. 15. Pſalm 124. 4. and 116. 3. hence he taketh an expreſſion from the manner of baptizing then, by immerſion or dipping over head and ears in the water. See on Luke 12. 50.

we are able] Taking of it litterally; they knew they were able to do it: for they had often drunk of his cup, and had been baptized as he was.

v. 23. of my cup] Ye ſhall endure afflictions as I ſhall; ſo they did both; for James was ſlain, Acts 12. 1. and John was baniſhed, and ſuffered many ſad things, Rev. 1. 9. See Jerom. catal. ſcript. eccleſ. & Adricom. Act. Apoſt. Anno Chriſti 98. 99. 109.

but it ſhalbe given to them, for whom, &c.] Or ſave to whom; ſo the word is uſed Mark 9. 8. Chriſts power of diſpoſing of it, is not denyed; but he ſheweth onely to whom it is to be given.

v. 24. when the ten] All the other apoſtles, among whom was Peter, yet we read of no peculiar exception made by him, concerning his primacy: probably they all promiſed themſelves high dignities. Ambition troubled the Churches infancy; but much more in the growth thereof; as may appear in the ſeveral contentions of Biſhops, ſpecially that which was between thoſe of Rome and Conſtantinople, concerning the title of univerſal Prieſt or Biſhop, Mauritius the Emperour favouring John Biſhop of Conſtantinople, granted him that prerogative; Gregory Biſhop of Rome much ſtomaching it, inveighed ſharply againſt it; ſtiling that ſame John, proud, wicked, fooliſh, antichriſtian, &c. as appeareth in ſeveral epiſtles of his, ep. 188. l. 1. ib. ep. 192. ib. ep. 194. he ſaith, ego autem fidentèr dico, quòd quiſquis ſe UNIVERSALEM SACERDOTEM vocat, vel vocari deſiderat, in elatione ſua ANTICHRISTUM præcurrit, quòd ſuperbiendo ſe cæteris præponit, I ſay confidently, that whoſoever calleth himſelf univerſal Prieſt, or deſireth ſo to be called, he forerunneth Antichriſt in his pride; in that, in being arrogant he prefereth himſelf before others. Boniface the third, having at laſt obtained that primacy, by the favour of Phocas the then Emperor (which Phocas had murdered his Soveraign Lord, the Emperour Mauricius) it was continued in the woful effects thereof, which are mentioned in many hiſtories. In the Council of Conſtantinople, it was ordained, that every Biſhop ſhould keep within his own juriſdiction: To. 1. Canon. 2. So To. 1. Concil. Nicen. Can. 6. over the banks of which chanel, when ambition of Prelates once ſwelled, it overflowed the Chriſtian world, with many ſad calamities.

againſt the two brethren] Becauſe they ſought to be above them, who were too much enclined to the ſame fault. Mark 9. 33. 34.

v. 25. Jeſus called them unto him] That he might appeaſe this emergent contention, that he might reprove the ambition of one party, and the envy of the other, he would thus hear the matter, and reconcile them.

Ye know] See on Luke 22. 25. as before, chap. 18. upon the like occaſion, where he would quench thoſe unhappy and dangerous ſparks of ambition; he pleaded not any primacy granted to Peter: ſo neither doth he here, which doubtleſſe he would not have omitted, had he intended any ſuch right by his own donation, and right by himſelf formerly placed in Peter.

that the princes of the Gentiles] He ſpeaketh this to his diſciples, intimating thereby, that they were not to expect ſecular honours and dignities, by following Chriſt; much leſſe, ambitiouſly to ſeek after them: but to carry themſelves humbly one towards another, according to his example. Primacy and dominion is proper to ſecular princes; therefore whatſoever ſubject affecteth that, would uſurp that which God hath given them. See on verſe 26.

v. 26. it ſhall not be ſo among you] Another manner of life and ſtate muſt you look for, ſuch as I have undergone before you: you muſt not dominere (1 Pet. 5. 3.) but teach and be ſubject to princes, and labour in the goſpel to ſave ſouls. See on Luke 22. 26.

v. 27. let him be your ſervant] Let him carry himſelf humbly towards his fellow-ſervants: or let the moſt ambitious be leaſt eſteemed: let him that moſt faithfully laboureth in the word, and is of moſt holy converſation, be had in moſt honour: this is the chief dignity of eccleſiaſtical perſons, rather to be good, then great.

v. 28. as the Son of man] Here he propoſeth his own example, as John 13. 13. I who am the Lord of all, yet have ſo humbled my ſelf, as to take on me the form of a ſervant, Phil. 2. 7. and to lay down my life for the redemption of the elect; how much more ought you to ſerve in the miniſtration of the goſpel, for the ſaving of your fellow ſervants?

not to be miniſtred unto] Not to be attended on as a King in this world.

to give his life] John 10. 11, a ranſome] λύτρον, a ſatisfactory price of redemption. The Apoſtle calleth it ἀντίλυτρον, to free us from Gods wrath due unto us for our ſins.

for many] Sufficiently for all in regard of the worth and merit of it; though not efficiently in reſpect of the iſſue and event thereof: or they are many that are ſaved by Chriſt, chap. 26. 28. Rom. 5. 15. 19. though they be few in compariſon of them that periſh, chap. 7. 13. 14.

v. 29. as they departed from Jericho] Mark 10: 46. Luke 18. 35. John 6. 26. 1 Kings 16. 34.

v. 30. two blinde men] But one of better note then the other, called Bartimeus in S. Mark: theſe two were healed when Chriſt came out of Jericho: ſome think S. Luke mentioneth another healed before he went into it: and that is moſt probable. See on Luke 18. 35.

ſitting by the way ſide] As beggers uſe to do: it ſeemeth they were very poor, as well as blinde.

when they heard that Jeſus paſſed by] By the multitude going with him, and diſcourſing of him: or it may be they had aſked ſome of them, and they told them.

have mercy on us] See on chap. 9. 27.

v. 31. the multitude rebuked them] Either diſdaining their condition, as not fit to ſpeak to Chriſt: or thinking Chriſt could not heal them: or it may be they were offended at the high title, which they gave Chriſt: or miſdoubting they would but diſturb and retard his paſſage: or ſuppoſing they meant to beg ſomething of him.

but they cried the more] They were perſwaded that Chriſt could heal them, and would not be diſmayed becauſe the multitude would not give them leave to pray: true faith (the effect whereof is fervent prayer, Pſal. 116. 10. 2. Cor. 4. 13.) like as in the conflicts between the winde and fire, the more it is oppoſed, the more it is enflamed.

v. 32. and called them] Speaking his ſelf to them, and not ſending others to call them.

what will ye] He knew what they did deſire, and would aſk; but he would have them to declare it, that the people might be the more attentive to the enſuing miracle.

v. 33. that our eyes may be opened] The eyes of them, who by reaſon of any defect, cannot ſee, are as it were ſhut up; therefore they would have them opened, that is, their ſight reſtored. See on chap. 9. 30. they beg that which no meer man could have given them: it is a ſhort prayer, but the effect of great faith, by which they apprehended both his power to do it, and mercy to perform it.

v. 34. Jeſus had compaſſion] He granted both their ſuits: that which is ſpecified verſe 30. by pittying them, and that which is mentioned verſe 33. by reſtoring them their ſight. The fountain of this miracle was the mercy of Chriſt, whereby he pitied them: the external means, his touching their eyes: ſometimes he onely ſaid, Receive thy ſight, Luke 18. 42. ſometimes he anointed them, John 9. 6. to teach us, that he can help by ordinary means, without means, and contrary to the ordinary means.

preſently their eyes] This is a certain argument of Chriſts divine power: God onely can in an inſtant by his word, and touching them by his repairing hand, give ſight to the blinde.

and followed him] They became his Diſciples: this was an evident proof of their recovery, bodily and ſpiritual: and of their gratitude, who did not as many, after they had obtained their petition, go away home; but they followed Chriſt, that they might be further edified and confirmed: and for others ſakes, that they might confirme them, by teſtifying the power and mercy ſhewed on them, which Luke 18. 43. is called glorifying of God; true faith is ever thankful: this alſo is the end of our illumination and ſpiritual healing by Chriſt; that we may follow (not our own darkneſſe any more, but) Chriſt our light.

CHAP. XXI.

Verſe 1. WHen they drew nigh*] Mark 11. 1. Luke 19. 29.

to Bethpage] See on Luke 19. 29. it was a Sabbath-dayes journey from Jeruſalem: the valley of Jehoſhaphat (divided by the brook Cedron) being between that and Jeruſalem. See Joſeph. Antiq. lib. 20. cap. 6.

mount of Olives] A little hill on the eaſt ſide of Jeruſalem, planted with olive-tree. Zach. 14. 4. Acts 1. 12.

v. 2. over againſt you] This it ſeemeth he ſpake δεικτικῶς, pointing to it with his hand: therefore he named it not, it being then in ſight.

ſtraightway ye ſhall finde] Ye ſhall not need to look up and down for them, ye will ſoon ſee them: this he ſaith, leſt they ſhould think their finding it ſo, fortuitous.

a colt] Not yet weaned from the dam, or a young one.

v. 3. if any man ſay unto you ought] He furniſheth them with this anſwer, leſt they ſhould be put off, or retarded in that which he determined ſhould be done.

the Lord hath need] I who am Lord of all, and have more right to them, then they have uſe of them: therefore he would not have them ſay, our Lord, or your Lord, but the Lord of this univerſe: the Lord of all would thus uſe the poor mans goods, being made poor for us; though the earth and the fulneſſe thereof be his. See 2 Cor. 8. 9. yet he would not have them take up for his uſe againſt the owners will; but would have him perſwaded by two arguments of his juſt dominion and preſent neceſſity.

he will ſend them] He made the owner willing to let them go: thus he declareth, as his omniſcience, who foreknew and told them then the event; ſo alſo omnipotence, who could rule the wills and affections of all men, to that which he would have done: or he will ſend them, may import, the Lord will preſently reſtore them, or ſend them back again; the former agreeth beſt with Mark 11. 6. and the Syriack interpreter, & confeſtim dimittet eos huc.

v. 4. all this was done] Chriſt did not ſend for the aſſe to ride into Jeruſalem, for eaſe of his journey, or oſtentation, but that he might declare himſelf to be the Meſſias, whoſe coming in this very manner was foretold by the Prophets.

v. 5. Tell ye the daughter of Zion] Iſaiah 62. 11. Zach. 9. 9. John 12. 15. the citizens of Jeruſalem, which was built on mount Sion: it is an Hebrew phraſe often uſed in the Lamentations. See the like Pſalm 45. 12. and 137. 7.

ſitting upon an aſſe] As eminent perſons, or Judges uſed, Judg. 10. 4. and 12. 14. or to ſhew the peaceableneſſe of his kingdom.

and a colt] He rode on the one, though both be mentioned, as a mark of evidence, ſhewing the fulfilling of the propheſie.

of an aſſe] υἱὸν ὑποζυγίου, the foal of an aſſe under the yoak uſed to draw in the team.

v. 6. and the diſciples] Mark 11. 4. they made not excuſes, as unwilling to undertake that office, either as unworthy of them, or uncertain of the event; but reſting aſſured of the ſucceſſe, they finde it as they expected.

v. 7. put on them] Probably on the one, though both are named. See verſe 5.

their clothes] Their upper garments, which being worn looſe, were large and long, and ſo might the more commodiouſly be caſt over beaſts to be rid on.

ſet him thereon] Upon their garments: ſo did the captains when they proclaimed Jehu King, 2 Kings 9. 13.

v. 8. ſpread their garments in the way] They covered the way with them for him to ride on: as kings at their coronations, or at ſome ſolemnities of ſtate, uſe to have their way upon cloth.

cut down branches] Poſſibly ſuch as had no looſe garments to ſpare, cut down boughs of trees, and laid them in the way: theſe were ſignes of feſtivity and ſolemnity: whereby Gods all-diſpoſing providence gave them to underſtand, that the end of the law was now come, and the true tabernacle in which God dwelt, now preſent, Revel. 21. 3. Coloſ. 2. 9.

v. 9. cryed, ſaying] Thus they uſed to cry in the feaſt of tabernacles, or booths, made of boughs, Nehem. 8. 15. and it may be at other ſolemn times alſo.

Hoſanna] Save now, or ſave we beſeech thee: taken out of Pſal. 118. 26. which pſalm, as ſome obſerve, was wont to be ſung often in their ſynagogues, and to be expounded concerning Chriſts coming: and it was a ſolemn form of acclamation (and therefore left by the Evangeliſts in the Hebrew, as a thing commonly known among them) ſpecially in their feaſt of tabernacles, wherein they were to carry boughs in their hands, by the commandment of God, Levit. 23. 40. here their הושענא (a word compounded of the two words הושיעה נא hoſhihana, ſave, or help I pray) importeth as much as, Lord proſper, or give good ſucceſſe to our Meſſias which the next words import. See notes Tremel. in loc. See on John 12. 13.

to the ſon of David] They deſired God to preſerve their new King, the ſon of David, and ſo acknowledge Chriſt to be their King by this ſolemnity. See on chap. 9. 27.

bleſſed be he, &c.] Pſalm 118. 27. Well be it to him that cometh in the name of the Lord, that is to ſay, whom the Lord hath promiſed, and now given us for our king.

in the name of the Lord] This is an Hebrew manner of ſpeaking, importing him, who is, as it were the peculiar ambaſſadour of the Lord.

in the higheſt] Bleſſed is he that is in the higheſt, Luke 2. 14. or, ſave him, that he may ſave us, not onely here, but in heaven alſo. Pſal. 20. 9.

v. 10. And when] Mark 11.15. Luke 19.45. John 12.13.

he was come into Jeruſalem] The noiſe began at the deſcent of the mount of Olives, and the company (ſpecially by ſuch unuſual acclamations) might probably encreaſe in the way: but at his entring the city, the people thereof muſt needs take notice thereof.

all the city was moved] All the citizens of Jeruſalem were affected, at ſo ſtrange a noiſe, confluence, and poſtures of the people. See chap. 2. 3. Ruth 1. 19. Poſſibly the malitious Scribes and Phariſees, did either foment and put on this deſigne among the people, to cry him up as their king, that they might deſtroy him by the Roman power, as aſpiring to a kingdom; or that they took occaſion at leaſt from theſe voices of the people, to accuſe him hereof to Pilate: though we muſt ſtill remember, that thoſe things which men do wickedly, God, who createth light of darkneſſe, turneth to that which ſhall advance his glory: as here, theſe acclamations (who ever moved them) gave the faithful knowledge of their Meſſias, now exhibited; and left the unbelieving ſo much the more unexcuſable.

who is this?] They do not generally do this, as if they knew him not, who had done ſo many and ſuch unparalleld things among them, as drew all eyes and thoughts to admire, but they ſpeak as amazed, what this ſuddain pomp ſhould mean, what theſe acclamations and the noiſe of the multitude, as at the inauguration of a king: ſo was Adonijah troubled, 1 Kings 1. 41. 45. and Athaliah 2 Kings 11. 13.

v. 11. This is Jeſus, &c.] Probably ſome took him for the Meſſias, and others eſteemed him onely as ſome great prophet; who called him the Prophet of Nazareth, in regard of his education, and his parents abode there, chap. 2. 23. Luke 14. 16. 24.

v. 12. into the temple of God] Not to towers, or fortifications, but to the temple which might have ſatisfied them, what manner of kingdom his was: whereof alſo ſome ſhew appeared in his Harbingers taking up the aſſe for his ſervice: by the temple is here meant, that court of the temple, wherein the people prayed. Luke 1. 10.

he caſt out] He ſhewed himſelf to be the high prieſt and Lord of the temple, by purging it. He had done this once before, John 2. 15. but doth it now again, becauſe they had polluted it again. The firſt purging thereof ſeemeth to have been about the begining of his publike miniſtery; and this about the latter end of it: this was done the ſecond day. See Mark 11. 12.15.

all them] He ſpared none, great nor ſmall.

that ſold and bought] Cattle, or doves for ſacrifice. See on John 2. 14.

overthrew the tables] Shewing thereby that they ought not to be ſet up again. See on John 2. 14.

of the money changers] Which changed forraign coin into money there currant, that thoſe which dwelt far off might there according to the law buy ſacrifices, and pay their oblations: See on John 2. 14.

that ſold doves] Poor mens offerings, Levit. 5. 7. 11. and 14. 22. Luke 2. 24.

v. 13. it is written] Partly Iſaiah 56. 7. partly Jer. 7. 1. which he citeth to ſhew us how we muſt deal with the adverſaries of truth, by Scriptures; and how reformations of abuſes in the Church, ought to be according to Scripture, not humane inventions, which many times make the cure worſe then the diſeaſe.

my houſe] God calleth the temple his houſe, Iſai. 56. 7. not that he can be included, or dwell in temples made with hands (Acts 7. 48. 49.) but becauſe it was a ſymbolum, and pledge of his gracious preſence with his people: hence by a Metaphor it is called his reſt (Pſalm 132. 14.) and here Chriſt appeareth Lord of the temple, in that he reformeth it.

but ye have made it] Jer. 7. 11. Mark 11. 17. Luke 19. 46.

a den of theeves] A place to exerciſe your traffick, & frau in: whereby under colour of promoting Gods ſervice there, your care and ſtudy is to enrich your ſelves, and ſo make my Fathers houſe like ſuch a den or cave, where theeves lye in wait to ſpoil men paſſing by, making it a ſhelter for themſelves, and a receptacle for their purchaſes, or ſtoln goods, Hoſea 6. 9. he reproveth not onely the money changers, but the prieſts alſo, who made gain by them, τὸ γὰρ φιλοκερδὲς, λῃστρικὸν πάθος ἐστι, ſaith Theophylact, for deſire of gain is a theeviſh affection, in that he ſaid, my houſe ſhall be called the houſe of prayer; he ſhews what by right it ſhould be: but in that he ſaith, ye have made it a den of theeves, he declares the improp riation and abuſe thereof. So Mal. 2. 8. there is much difference between that which is, and that which ſhould be.

v. 14. and he healed them] To ſhew his divine power in his temple, into which he was to come, Mal. 3. 1. and to ſtop the mouths of Phariſees, if they ſhould again queſtion him for purging the temple.

v. 15. ſaw the wonderfull things] They take no notice of them, though they ſaw them; but calumniate him for ſuffering the children to expreſſe his honour due.

v. 16. heareſt thou what theſe ſay?] As if they ſaid, their blaſphemy is ſo palpable, that thou couldſt not for ſhame rebuke them, if thou heardſt them.

have ye never read] See on chap. 12. 2. thus he reproveth their ignorant malice, and approveth the acclamations of the children, by the teſtimony of David.

out of the mouth] Pſal. 8. 2.

thou haſt] Theſe children do not blaſpheme, but God hath ſtirred them up, to acknowledge me to be the Meſſias, to his glory.

perfected praiſe] Pſal. 8. 3. יסדת עז iiſſadta hoz, thou haſt founded ſtrength, which here is called praiſe: that is, ſtrong praiſe. See Pſal 29. 1. and 96. 7. and 118. 14. therefore the 70, which this Evangeliſt followeth, giveth it αἶνον, praiſe: the word κατηρτίσω, here uſed, imports a firme decreeing, or appointing a thing, which in Gods counſels is a perfecting that which cannot be altered, nor miſs effect, Eſther 1. 8. and mouth is here taken for teſtimony, as Chap. 18. 16. Theophylact interpreteth it, that the Spirit of God ſpake by them.

v. 17. went out of the city] He would not ſtay in the city in the night, to avoid all ſuſpition of his affecting a temporal kingdom, and to have the better convenience of ſolitude for prayer and private inſtruction, neceſſary for thoſe whom he would ſend to preach the goſpel to all nations.

to Bethany] A little village neer Jeruſalem, John 11. 18. about two miles off, that he might further confirme and comfort Lazarus (whom he had lately raiſed from the dead) and Mary and Martha his ſiſters.

v. 18. he hungred] Shewing thereby that he was ſubject to humane infirmities; and alſo that he might have occaſion to work the enſuing miracle. See chap. 4. 2. poſſibly he had eaten no ſupper, but ſpent the night in teaching thoſe preſent, or praying, as he often had done.

v. 19. and when he ſaw] Mark 11. 13.

Let no fruit grow on thee] See on Mark 11. 13. ſome conceive that our Saviour intended hereby, to foreſhew the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, becauſe they brought forth nothing but leaves of ceremonies: others think it was onely for an occaſion of the enſuing exhortation, verſe 21.

v. 20. when the diſciples ſaw it] On the morrow, as they paſſed by again, Mark 11. 20.

how ſoon is the fig-tree withered] They wondred at the event, who did not ſo much conſider the cauſe: it was more to be admired, why Chriſt curſed this tree, who was ever wont to bleſſe and preſerve his creatures. See Mark 11. 20, 21. ξηραίνει οὖν τὸ δένδρον, ἵνα σωφρονίζῃ ἀνθρώπους, he made the tree wither, that he might amend men, ſaith Theophylact : hereby ſheing them the condition of the Jewiſh ſynagogue.

v. 21. I*f ye have faith*] See on chap. 17. 20.

and doubt not] καὶ μὴ διακριθῆτε, the word ſignifieth a doubting, wherein a man doth, as it were with oppoſite opinions, contend with himſelf, recounting ſuch difficulties, as render him diffident and fluctuant, as not knowing what to reſolve, or which way to encline. See Rom. 4. 20. and on Acts 10. 20. but herein he meaneth that effect of faith in prayer which aſketh τὰ συμφέροντα, things profitable, and convenient, as Theophylact well noteth.

ye ſhall ſay unto this mountain] As if he had ſaid, there ſhall be nothing (which conduceth to Gods glory and your ſalvation) ſo hard, or ſeeming impoſſible to man, but ſtedfaſtly believing ye ſhall attain it. See on chap. 17. 20. and on Luke 17. 6.

v. 22. all things] Agreeable to Gods will, 1 John 5. 14. Mark 11. 24.

beleeving] Prayers without faith are fruitleſs, πιστεύοντες, this participle includeth a condition of obtaining (See Jam. 1. 6.) believing that God can, and will give. See on chap. 7. 7, 8. yet when God doth not give to the prayer of faith, Proſpers rule is ever to be held, nec eſt iniquitas apud Deum, qui ſæpe poſtulata non tribuit, quæ poſtulare donavit, contr. Collat. cap. 26. neither is there unrighteouſneſſe with God, who oftentimes doth not give thoſe things deſired, or entreated, which he gave (faith and an heart) to entreat.

v. 23. when he was come into the temple] To teach the people, and to perform this part of his prieſtly and propheticall office. See Mark 11. 27. and Luke 20. 1.

the chief prieſts and elders of the people] Theſe men ſeeing the glory of his miracles, the people following him, his caſting out the buyers and ſellers out of the temple, where the prieſts permitted them to be, they ſtomacked him, as concluding, that if he thus proceeded without their leave to meddle with the government of the temple, and teaching therein; their authority and honour, muſt ſoon ſuffer a total eclipſe, and come into contempt: therefore they queſtion his authority. Envy ever calumniateth good things, (as Euthymius noteth) it is the black ſhadow which ever waiteth on thoſe, on whom proſperity, or any popular opinion of excellency ſhineth.

by what authority] They queſtion not now his doctrine, which they knew they were not able to gainſay; nor his miracles, which clearly enough appeared to be the works of God; onely they move a captious queſtion: if he ſhould have ſaid, by divine authority, they would have accuſed him of blaſphemie; if he ſhould have anſwered, by humane authority, their ſelves were the rulers, who in an ordinary calling, had care and charge of the temple; if he ſhould have ſaid, without authority, they would have accuſed him of ſedition.

v. 24. I alſo will ask you one thing] As they aſked not with any minde to learn, but to finde ſome calumny againſt him; ſo neither doth Chriſt anſwer them ſo directly as they expected: for as Theophylact ſaith well, τοῖς κακούργως ἐρωτῶσιν, οὐ δεῖ ἀποκρίνεσθαι: we muſt not anſwer them, who malignantly enquire, or queſtion: but in that he anſwereth by his queſtion concerning John, they might have underſtood, that his authority was ſupream, he being the very God and Lord of the temple; if they had indeed believed John, who openly teſtified him to be the onely Son of God; ſo therefore Chriſt anſwereth them by a dilemmatical queſtion, verſ. 25, 26. ſo he taketh the ſubtil in their ſubtilty. 1 Cor. 3. 19.

v. 25. the baptiſme of John] That is, Johns miniſtery and doctrine, who preached the baptiſm of repentance. Mark 1. 4.

reaſoned with themſelves] They beat their heads about it, and muſed, or laid their heads together, well perceiving their unavoidable errour, and that they muſt be convicted in their anſwer to either part of Chriſts queſtion.

from heaven] From God (as appears by the oppoſition. So Dan. 4. 28. Luke 15. 18, 21.) that is, of divine authority, and inſtitution.

he will ſay unto us] Thus the hypocrites conſcience is ſelf-convicted: they feared that Chriſt by ſaying thus, would make their unbelief and obſtinacy appear to the people, whoſe good opinion was a great part of their ambition.

v. 26. If we ſay of men] See note on Luke 20. 6.

we fear the people] Leſt they ſhould ſtone us.

all hold John as a prophet] Chap. 14. 5.

v. 27. we cannot tell] They could, but durſt not. See verſ. 25, 26. See on Luke 20. 7.

v. 28. But what think you] He thinks it not enough to ſtop their mouth; but, by a parable, he makes them to condemn themſelves, as Nathan did David, 2 Sam. 12.

a certain man had two ſons] Theſe are expounded to be Publicans and Phariſees, verſ. 31, 32.

v. 29. afterward he repented] Thinking more ſeriouſly of the matter, he undertook, and went about that work, which he formerly declined and refuſed: this figureth out the Publicans and ſinners.

v. 30. and ſaid likewiſe] As verſe 28.

I go] Ἐγὼ I, he underſtood, ἀπέρχομαι, will go: or will do as thou commandeſt: hereby he noted the Phariſees, who profeſſed much readineſſe and willingneſſe to ſerve God, but did it not: the ſpeech is elliptical, uſual in caſe of anſwering commands, or offering ſervice, wherein they ſaid, הִנְנִי hienni, behold I, or I am ready: ſo Iſrael promiſed, Exod. 24. 3. 7. See Gen. 37. 13. 1 Sam. 3. 4, 5, 6. Iſaiah 6. 8.

v. 31. the firſt] Hereby they confeſſe by juſt conſequence, that the repenting Publicans and ſinners were better then themſelves, with all their fair pretences, and ſhews of good works.

into the kingdom of God before you] They made haſte to the kingdom of God, and ye are ſlow and remiſſe; you ſhould at leaſt have followed their example: this word, go before, is improperly taken in this place, where none follow: they ſhall go to heaven, rather then you; or, ſo ſhall not you: or, theſe whom you deſpiſe, as unholy, might be guides and patterns for you to follow, but that your pride and malice blinde you.

v. 32. John came unto you, &c.] Chap. 3. 8. by way of righteouſneſſe, he meaneth, living uprightly, being of an holy and honeſt converſation, or perſwading you to do ſo: as the Hebrews uſe the word דרך, derech, for life and manners, Pſal. 119. 1.

repented not] Of your evil deeds, or of your not believing John.

v. 33. Hear another parable] In the former parable he had ſhewed them their neglect of Johns doctrine: in this, he ſetteth forth their cruelty, ſhortly after to be exerciſed on himſelf; and uſhers it in by their fathers cruelty to the Prophets.

which planted a vineyard] Iſaiah 5. 1, &c. Jer. 2. 21. Mark 12. 1. Luke 20. 9. God planted the Jewiſh Church, as his vineyard, Pſal. 80. 9, &c.

hedged it] Herein is implyed Gods care of the ſafety and proſperity of it, Pſal. 35. 27. the meaning is, he defended, and preſerved it from the incurſions of the enemies, which otherwiſe would have deſtroyed it.

digged a wine preſs] Furniſh'd it with all things neceſſary.

built a tower] Made the place ſtrong; for a tower, between the curtains, is as a buttris, and ſtrength of the wall.

let it out to husbandmen] To the prieſts.

went into a far countrey] Left it wholly to their care, in outward appearance, as if he had been abſent; whereas indeed, as Theophylact ſaith, ἡ ἀποδημία Θεοῦ, ἡ μακροθυμία, the peregrination of God is his long ſuffering: he ſeemeth as if he ſlept, or were gone far off, when he forbeareth long, and doth not preſently puniſh ſinners.

v. 34. ſent his ſervant] The prophets whom the Jews ſlew.

v. 35. beat one] See on Luke 20. 10. So Paſhur the prieſt beat the prophet Jeremiah, Jer. 20. 2. and Zidkijah, Michaiah, 1 Kings 22. 24.

another they killed] Many others they ſlew.

ſtoned another] As if they had been blaſphemers: ſo Joaſh uſed Zechariah the ſon of Jehoiada, 2 Chron. 24. 21, 22.

v. 36. more then the firſt] They had more prophets a little before the captivity then formerly. See 1 Sam. 3. 1 with Iſaiah 1. 1. Hoſea 1. 1.

v. 37. ſent unto them his ſon] Chriſt himſelf, who here foretells his own death. See on Luke 20. 14.

v. 38. come let us kill him] See Chap. 26. 3. John 11. 53. Gen. 37. 19, 20. See on Luke 20. 14.

let us ſeize on his inheritance] Let us give lawes, and rule the Church according to our own will, as we have many yeers done.

v. 39. they caſt him out of the vineyard] Delivered him to the Romans to be condemned: and ſlew him without the city. Heb. 13. 12. See on Luke 20. 15.

v. 40. What will he do?] He makes them judges, having ſpoken the parable concerning them; meaning to condemn them out of their own mouth,as ver. 31. See on Luke 20. 15.

v. 41. He will miſerably deſtroy] κακὺς κακῶς ἀπολέσει, it is a kinde of Greek proverb, meaning he will with grievous puniſhments conſume thoſe impious tenants, and provide him better.

v. 42. Did ye never reade] Pſalm 118. 22. Acts 4. 11. See on chap. 12. 3.

which the builders rejected] Thoſe whom before he compared to huſbandmen, here he compareth to builders.

the head of the corner]. The chief ſtone in the corner is called the head of the corner; which being the ſtrength of the walls, the builders uſually make choice of ſome principal ſtone for that place. So Chriſt is to the Church, though refuſed of the prieſts, Epheſ. 2. 22. he is as Euthymius ſaith, conjunctio populorum, the ſtone which united the (two walls) the people (of the Jews and Gentiles) See Acts 4. 11. In unam fidem Abrahæ colligens eos, qui ex utroque teſtamento apti ſunt in ædificationem Dei, Irenæus l. 4. c. 42.

This is the Lords doing] That is, God appointed him to this office, though the Jews through malice and emulation rejected him. See Hebr. 5. 4, 5.

v. 43. the kingdom of God ſhall be taken from you] That is, the goſpel, the ſceptre of his kingdom; the word and miniſtery, whereby men are gathered into his kingdom, and his protection, as Euthymius interpreteth. See Acts 13. 46. Romans 11. 8, &c.

and given to another nation] As he foretold the rejection of the Jews, ſo alſo the calling of the Gentiles. See places forecited.

the fruits thereof] Every kingdom hath it own proper fruits: the fruits of Gods kingdom are the fruits of the holy ſpirit, not of corrupted fleſh. See Galat. 5. 22. Epheſ. 5. 9. the fruits here ſpoken of, muſt be, not onely meet for repentance, but alſo beſeeming Gods kingdom; not onely leaving evil, but alſo doing good.

v. 44. Whoſoever ſhall fall on this ſtone] Iſaiah 8. 14, 15. Rom. 9. 33. 1 Pet. 2. 7. the meaning is, as Theophylact after Chryſoſtom interprets, σκανδαλιζόμενοι ἐπὶ τῷ Χριςῷ, they who are offended in Chriſt; as contemners and unbelievers, who blaſphemed him: or as taking offence at my humility; he ſhall not hurt me, but deſtroy himſelf.

ſhall be broken] As a man falling upon a rock, breaketh not it, but his own bones.

it will grinde him to powder] Which Chryſoſtom and others underſtand of temporal and eternal deſtruction. See Daniel 2. 44.

v. 45. his parables] Theſe two forementioned, v. 28. 33.

they perceived he ſpake of them] Their own conſciences interpreted the parables concerning themſelves: yet were their hearts ſo hardened, that they could not repent.

v. 46. they feared the multitude] Wicked hypocrites abſtain from ſin: onely for fear of puniſhment: ſo for the preſent, theſe enemies of Chriſt (though in great authority) are awed by fear, leſt the people who honoured Chriſt ſhould fall upon them. Evil Magiſtrates are ſometimes kept from uſing cruelty, for fear of inferiours; their breaking Gods Laws, gives example to the people to break theirs: this is juſt with God, though the people ſin in ſo doing.

took him for a prophet] The people deſervedly took him for a prophet, whom the prieſts unjuſtly, and impiouſly accounted as an impoſtor. chap. 12. 24. Mark. 3. 22.

CHAP. XXII.

Verſe 1. I*ESUS anſwered*] To the thoughts of Phariſees, who were offended at the former parables: or he added more parables to the former: it is uſual with the Hebrews to ſay, he anſwered, inſtead of, he ſaid, or began to ſpeak. S. Luke recording this parable, ſheweth the occaſion of Chriſts ſpeech was, that which one ſaid unto him, who ſate at meat with him in the Phariſees houſe, to wit, bleſſed is he that ſhall eat bread in the kingdom of God. Luke 14. 15, 16.

by parables] See on chap. 9. 17. and 13. 3. 18. Luke 5. 6. in the former parable he had threatned deſtruction to the Phariſees, here to all the people: he ſhews the manner alſo, to wit, by ſword and fire; and that after his death the goſpel ſhould be preached to the Gentiles, &c.

v. 2. the kingdom of heaven is like] See on chap. 20. 1.

a certain king which made a marriage for his ſon] That is, prepared a marriage feaſt ſo magnificent as became a kingly ſtate. That which the Greek calleth here γάμους, the Syriack interpreteth by משתותא meſhtutho, (that which the Greeks called συμπόσιον) à bibendo; for שתה ſhetho, bibere, is properly to drink: but by a Synechdoche, to celebrate and keep a marriage feaſt: ſo Gen. 29. 22. Laban made משתה miſhte, which the 70 give as here, ἐποίησε γάμον, he made a wedding feaſt: that is, he ſent the tidings of Chriſts incarnation, or the goſpel; which is compared to a marriage feaſt full of joy, made by a king, therefore full of ſtate; not for a ſervant, or friend, but for his Son. God maketh this marriage between Chriſt and his Church of Jews and Gentiles. Jerom.

v. 3. his ſervants to call] His Prophets to foretell the coming of his Chriſt into the world, and invite men to receive him with joy (See Luke 14. 17.) ſignifying the hour or inſtant time, that they might prepare.

them that were bidden to the wedding] Thoſe who were formerly invited: that is the Jews, who had been before certified, and inſtructed concerning the coming of Chriſt our Saviour.

and they would not come] He ſent John Baptiſt, the twelve Apoſtles, the diſciples to invite the Jews to repentance, Matth. 3. 1, 2. Mark 6. 12. Luke 3. 3. and 9. 2. 6. but they would not. See on Luke 14. 18.

v. 4. other ſervants] The Apoſtles, &c. as verſe 3.

I have prepared my dinner] This is another call, to let the gueſts underſtand, that on Gods part all things are ready, and he expects their coming to him.

fatlings are killed] τὰ σιτιστά, altilia, or ſaginata, as divers of the ancient Latines tranſlate it: it is of σιτίζειν, to feed, as they uſe fatting beaſts, or fowls. The word τεθυμένα killed, of θύειν, properly ſignifieth things ſacrificed; but is uſed to ſignifie alſo things killed for a feaſt; the reaſon whereof might be, for that even profane Princes uſed to auſpicate their ſolemne feaſts with ſacrifices. See Iſaiah 25. 6.

v. 5. one to his farm] So worldly men look after ſecular riches, not valuing the eternal: ſo pleaſures and avarice keep men from Chriſt and ſalvation.

v. 6. entreated them ſpitefully] Calling them profaners, peſtilent fellows, movers of ſedition, impriſoned, ſcourged, and put them to death. See Acts 5. 40. and 21. 32. 2 Cor. 11. 24. Acts 12. 2. Acts 7. 58. Heb. 11. 37, 38. See alſo Joſeph. Antiq. l. 20. c. 8 what more ſpitefully could be done, then ſo ingratefully, and unworthily to requite them with injuries, who had none other end but to advance Gods honour in their ſalvation: we muſt not think much of our ſufferings; Chriſt foretold us, the world ſhall hate you: See Phil. 1. 28, 29, 30.

and ſlew them] So did the Jews, Stephen, Acts 7. and Herod, James, &c.

v. 7. he was wroth] See Luke 14. 21. Gods anger is the juſt execution of his judgements on the wicked and impenitent.

ſent forth his armies] The Romans (as Theophylact, Jerom, &c. interpret) called Gods armies, becauſe imployed by him to deſtroy Jeruſalem, as was foretold, Dan. 9. 26.

thoſe murderers] The Jews who ſlew the Apoſtles, ver. 6.

and burnt up their city] This was done to Jeruſalem by the Romans, wherein (as Joſephus de bel. Judaic. l. 7. and others report) periſhed 11 millions of men, women, and children; the reſt being ſold for ſlaves, or otherwiſe ſcattered among all nations; their temple and city were fired and demoliſhed.

v. 8. the wedding] The wedding feaſt.

were not worthy] The Jews for the moſt part were unworthy. Acts 13. 46. See alſo on chap. 10. 13.

v. 9. go ye therefore] Jerom and Theophylact underſtand by theſe ſecond meſſengers, the Apoſtles ſent to the Gentiles: which being true, we muſt alſo underſtand the miniſters ſent after them until the fulneſſe of the Gentiles be come in.

into the high wayes] The meaning is, Go preach the goſpell where greateſt confluences of people ought, or uſe to be in the Churches of the Gentiles: or preach to the moſt abject, and thoſe whom the Jewes deſpiſe. See Luke 14. 21.

as many as ye ſhall finde, bid] God calleth us, when we think not of it, Iſaiah 65. 2. Rom. 10. 21. and inviteth all without exception, in the rule, Mark 10. 15. Matth. 11. 28. though in ſome caſes, according to his juſt judgements, for cauſes beſt, and onely to him known, he ſometimes reſtraineth, either in the general, as Matthew 7. 6. or the particular, as Acts 16. 6, 7. See on Luke 14. 23.

v. 10. both bad and good] High and low, rich and poor, profane and civil; for men of all ſorts were to be found among the Gentiles. See chap. 13. 38. 47, 48. onely remember that God findeth none good to be invited, but maketh them ſuch by his invitation.

the wedding was furniſhed] Literally, the place where the wedding was furniſhed, or the tables were furniſhed with gueſts; ſpiritually, the Church was, by the preaching of the Goſpel, full of thoſe who gave their names to Chriſt, though of theſe, ſome were true believers, and ſome hypocrites.

v. 11. when the king came in] Some underſtand this of the day of judgement; others of the time of the goſpel here: wherein God, obſerving the hypocrites in the Church, takes them away by death, and ſends them to hell: the ſence is, when God cometh to judge: and this which followeth ſeemeth partly inferred to prepoſſeſſe an objection, which the Jews might have made; doth God reject us to call the Gentiles? are there not as wicked among them, as us? Yes: but he will come and examine who hath the wedding garment, and who not, and judge them accordingly: by this one without the wedding garment, are underſtood all thoſe, qui ſociati ſunt malitiâ, Jerom. who are combined in malitiouſneſſe. And here is a grave admonition to us, that we may not think it enough for us to take up rooms in the Church of Chriſt, if we walk not worthy of our high calling in him, God will finde us out.

had not a wedding garment] Converſation becoming the calling of a Chriſtian See Epheſ. 4. 1. Phil. 1. 27. 2 Pet. 1. 10. Revel. 19. 8. and 3. 18.

v. 12. Friend, how] He calleth him friend, becauſe he had invited him to the wedding, Jerom; yet hath it the ſence of a ſharp reproof of him, that ſo unworthily requited Gods gracious calling, in that he, who had obtained ſo much favour in a friendly invitation, would ſo diſhonour the company with an unſeemly habit, that is, ſuch impeity and wicked courſe of life, as became not the goſpel.

how cameſt thou hither?] As if he had ſaid, quâ fronte? how couldeſt thou for ſhame come hither, into ſuch company, ſo ſordidly habited? under this ſimilitude God reproveth the ſecure impudence of thoſe, who continuing in their filthy impurity of ſins, yet dare aſſociate themſelves with true Chriſtians.

not having a wedding garment] Divers diverſly expreſſe this, but all to one purpoſe: obedience to the moral law, and goſpel—quæ novi hominis efficiunt veſtimentum, Jerom; which make the garment of the new man. Proſper de promiſ. & prædict. part. 2. cap. 1. ſaith it is, as 1 Tim. 1. 5. charity out of a pure heart, and of a good conſcience, and of faith unfeigned: Hilary can. 22. ſeemeth to underſtand it of the gifts of the holy Ghoſt, and heavenly candor of holy converſation, as Phil. 3. 20. Chryſoſtom, Theophylact, Euthymius, &c. underſtand by the ſordid garment, ſinful uncleanneſs, and want of mercy and charity. Greg. hom. 38. in evan. ſaith alſo, the weding garment is charity. Note from all this, 1. that Gods all-ſeeing eye of juſtice, eaſily findeth out hypocrites: 2. that a bare profeſſion of Chriſtianity, and aſſembling in holy duties with them, ſhall never ſave any man, except he adorn that profeſſion with newneſſe and holineſſe of life; without peace and holineſſe no man ſhall ſee the Lord, Hebr. 12. 14. 3. that no man is called for the wedding garments ſake, neither accepted without it, that is, ſaved for his good works, nor without them, we we are called χάριτι μόνη πάντες, all by free grace, as Chryſoſtom, Theophylact, Euthymius, &c. here note.

he was ſpeechleſſe] ἐφιμώθη, he was muzled, 1 Cor. 9. 9. he could ſay nothing for himſelf; his own conſcience condemned, and ſilenced him: ſo ſhall it be to all thoſe, who now under the name of Chriſtians, diſhonour the goſpel, and profeſſion of Chriſt.

v. 13. to the ſervants] That attended on the gueſts, that is, to the angels and miniſtring ſpirits.

binde him hand and foot] Make him ſure, as they do condemned men: it importeth that the damned ſhall have no power to reſiſt, nor poſſibilitie of flying. from Gods ſevere judgements.

caſt him] ἐκβάλετε, caſt him forth; ſo the Syriack interpreter, ejicite.

into utter darkneſſe] See on chap. 8. 12. that is, as Proſper underſtandeth it, de vit. contempl. l. 3. c. 12 expulſion from the bleſſed preſence of God, who is mentium lumen weeping and gnaſhing of teeth] This importeth their bitter ſorrows, who ſhall be condemned to eternal death, non videndi ſenſum habituri ſunt, ſed dolendi, Proſper q. ſ. they ſhall not have ſenſe of ſeeing, but of ſorrowing.

v. 14. for many are called] Chap. 20. 16. many that are called do not come ſo far as to profeſſe religion, or any care for the life to come: and among them that do profeſſe well, many are not ſaved for want of faith and holy converſation.

but few are choſen] That is, (as Auguſtine ſaith to Paulinus epiſt. 59.) few are, ſecundum propoſitum vocati, in quibus Dei procul dubio præſcientia falli non poteſt, called according to his purpoſe (Rom. 8. 28.) in whom doubtleſſe the foreknowledge of God could not be deceived; neither is there any unrighteouſneſſe with God, who foreſeeing the whole maſs corrupted, in mercy choſe ſome to be veſſels of honour, to whom he doth freely give believing, and obedient hearts, that they may be ſaved; and in juſtice leaveth others to their own ſinful wills; who, diſbelieving, and diſobeying the goſpel, which calleth them to faith and repentance, are the immediate cauſes of their own juſt condemnation, as Clem. Alexandr. ſtrom. lib. 1. ſaith, οἱ δὲ μὴ θελήσαντες πεισθῶσι, ἑαυτοὺς ἀπέστησαν ἐλπίδι, but thoſe who would not obey, doubtleſſe withdrew themſelves from hope of eternal life.

v. 15. then went the Phariſees] When the Phariſees had attempted all means to deſtroy Chriſt, and could not prevail; at laſt they take this counſel. See Mark 12, 13. Luke 20. 20.

entangle him] παγιδεύσωσιν ἐν λόγῳ, how they might enſnare him in his anſwers; this word is properly uſed for catching as hunters do, with grins, ſnares, or toils, their intent was to bring Chriſt into danger, by occaſioning him to anſwer ſomething prejudicious to the Roman Emperour, and ſo they might deliver him to Pilate the Deputy, to be put to death as a mover of ſedition, Luke 20. 20. or that which muſt offend the people, and then they, the Phariſees might deſtroy him without fear of the multitude, which now mainly awed them, Chap. 26. 5.

v. 16. they ſent to him their diſciples] They would not go their ſelves to him; having been ſo lately foiled by him, chap. 21. but ſent their diſciples who ſhould feign themſelves juſt men, that they might avoid ſuſpition, and that Chriſt dealing more freely with them, might more eaſily be entrapped, Luke 20. 20.

with the Herodians] They were men who joyned with Herod to patch up a religion, mixed of Heatheniſme and Judaiſme: in likelyhood they maintained the lawfulneſſe of paying this tribute, and the Phariſees the unlawfulneſſe of it; ſo that if he ſaid it was unlawful, the Herodians were ready to accuſe him to the governour: if he ſaid it was lawful, the Phariſees were as ready to accuſe him to the people: though theſe ſo much differed in their own opinions, yet both readily agree together againſt Chriſt: See the like Chap. 16. 1. Luke 23. 12. See on chap. 16. 6. the Syriack giveth it, דְבֵית הֵרוֹדֵס, debeth Hirandis, of the houſhold ſervants, or Courtiers of Herod, Jerom and Chryſoſtom underſtand Herods ſouldiers.

the way of God] The way to Heaven, revealed by God.

in truth] Truely and ſincerely: thou ſpeakeſt neither for fear nor favour of Pilate or Herod, Theophylact. Thus are they ſelf-condemned while they ſeek accuſations againſt him: they confeſſe they know that he is true, why then did they not believe in him, that they might have been ſayed?

neither careſt thou for any man] Thou art not ſo afraid of any man, as therefore to conceal the truth of God.

the perſon of men] That is, the outward appearance, eſtate, or condition of men.

v. 17. tribute] κῆνσον, it is a Latine word made Greek, properly ſignifying a valuation of goods or eſtate, a taxing: according to the proportion whereof they payed tribute in the ſubdued provinces: and it is here taken for the tribute it ſelf, chap. 17. 24. it is called δίδραχμα, the half ſhekel of the Sanctuary; they aſk if it were lawful to pay this to Cæſar? The colour of this quære was, that God in the law had commanded it to be payed to him yearly, for the uſe of the temple, or tabernacle, Exod. 30. 13. The Romans conquering Judea, did impropriate, and take it to their own uſe; for which they afterwards making land ceſſes by appointment of of the Romans, called it tribute. So Auguſtus commanded all the provinces to be taxed, Luke 2. 1. this was layed on every family (Joſeph. Antiq. lib. 19. cap. 15.) now the Jews murmured every where at this, as an impious, or at leaſt unworthy thing; that profane men ſhould thus invade Gods right, and diſhonour them; hence was the inſurrection of Theudas and Judas, Acts 5. 36, 37. mentioned.

v. 18. Jeſus perceived their wickedneſſe] Their malice and miſcievous minde againſt him.

hypocrites why tempt ye me?] Hypocrites; for you would ſeem to be holy, but are impious; and you come to me with pretence of your good opinion of my truth and ſincerity; when yet I well know you come to tempt me, and to enſnare and betray me: he is God, and therefore cannot be deceived with words and fair pretences, as Chryſoſt.

noteth: an hypocrite is he, qui aliud eſt, aliud ſimulat. Jerom. who is one thing, and counterfeiteth to be another.

v. 19. ſhew me the tribute-money] He calls for it, that he might take occaſion from the ſight thereof, to confute them the more effectually. verſe 21.

a peny] In value ſeven pence half-peny, the Syriac interpreter hath, denarium argenti capitationis, a peny of ſilver, pole-money, or head-money.

v. 20. whoſe image or ſuperſcription] Or inſcription; he ſo attemperateth to their captious queſtion, as that, if they would acknowledge truth and reaſon, he had moſt appoſitely anſwered them: ſeeing Cæſar had power to appoint coins among them, he had therewith power and right to impoſe tribute on them.

v. 21. They ſaid unto him Cæſars] The Emperours ever uſed to have their images and ſuperſcriptions ſtamped on their coyn: probably containing ſome words, expreſſing their Empire over the Jews and other nations to them ſubject; which might have ſatisfied any, but the impudent and malicious. See on Luke 20. 19. for this whole ſtory.

render therefore] As a debt. Rom. 13. 7.

unto Cæſar] Ye think your payments to maintain Gods ſervice, free you from paying tribute to Ceſar: but you muſt maintain, both religion and civill power.

which are Ceſars] His ſtamp upon them, ſhews ye are his ſubjects, and therefore ought to pay tribute unto him: for coyning was ever a ſign of ſoveraign power. See on Luke 20. 25.

unto God the things that are Gods] Tithes, firſt fruits, oblations, and ſacrifices. Jerom above all, true ſanctity; for as Auguſtin ſaith well, epiſt. 45. Armentario he thus ſaid, that man might know quod Deus exigeret ab homine, imaginem ſuam in homine ipſo; ſicut ſuam Cæſar exigebat in nummo; that God requireth of man his own image in man himſelf: as Ceſar would have his, in his coyn.

v. 22. they marvelled] That he ſhould perceive their cloſe machinations, and ſo prudently diſappoint their ſubtilty. See Pſal. 9. 15. Prov. 21. 30.

v. 23. The ſame day] Mark 12. 18. Luke 20. 27. So vigilant is malice, that they give Chriſt no reſt.

the Sadduces] Who are interpreted juſti, ſaith Jerom. Chryſoſtom ſaith, the Evangeliſt admireth their impudency, who durſt aſſail him, the ſame day that the Phariſees were confuted. See on chap. 3. 7. and on Luke 20. 27.

which ſay there is no reſurrection] Act. 23. 8. as beleeving no ſpirituall ſubſtance ſevered from a body, and therefore that ſoul and body muſt die together.

v. 24. Moſes ſaid] Deut. 25. 5.

If a man die having no children] That is, if he have never a ſon, for daughters raiſe no name to their fathers, but go into another family: and in Deut. 25. a ſon onely is mentioned, both of him that is dead, and of him that marrieth his wife to raiſe up ſeed to him. See on Luk. 20. 28.

v. 25. left his wife unto his brother] According to the law.

v. 26. Likewiſe the ſecond] This is added to make the thing ſeem more abſurde, the more huſbands the woman had, as they conceived.

v. 27. the woman dyed alſo] Before her death there was no queſtion, therefore her death is mentioned.

v. 28. whoſe wife ſhall ſhe be &c.] As if they had ſaid, in the reſurrection, which ye ſuppoſe ſhall once be, which of the ſeven ſhall be eſteemed her huſband? or ſhall all have her to wife? See on Luke 20. 33.

for they all had her] See verſe 26. &c.

v. 29. not knowing the ſcriptures] Not acknowledging the books of the Prophets, out of which the reſurrection might be more clearly proved: nor yet underſtanding the law of Moſes; which ye acknowledge to be Gods word.

nor the power of God] Ye conſider not how well God is able to raiſe the dead: as he hath promiſed. See Philip. 1. 21.

v. 30. in the reſurrection] In the ſtate of glory, which ſhall follow the reſurrection.

given in marriage] Neither do men take wives, nor parents give their daughters in marriage.

as the Angels] Not without bodies, but without marriage, or any bodily neceſſities, to which they are ſubject in this mortall life, but of a ſpirituall converſation, as Jerom ſpeaks. See hereof Auguſtin Conſent. ep. 146.

v. 31. Have ye not read] See on chap. 12. 5.

unto you] You acknowledge it to be ſcripture, and to binde you.

v. 32. I am] Exod. 3. 6.

The God of Abraham] This was ſpoken when they were all three dead. He doth not ſay, the Lord of Abraham, for he is Lord of liveleſſe things alſo. chap. 11. 25. Pſal. 24. 1. but, the God of Abraham in covenant with him. Now ſeeing this covenant of God was with the bodies of theſe three Patriarks, as well as with their ſouls, as appears by their circumciſion; it follows, that as their ſouls were then alive, ſo their bodies muſt needs be raiſed from the dead, and be made eternally happy.

but of the living] Θεῷ γὰρ ζῶσι πάντες οἱ κατὰ Θεὸν ζήσαντες, all live with God, who lived to God, or according to his will. Gr. Nazianzen orat 21.

v. 33. The multitude] The people gave more reſpect to Chriſts doctrine then the Sadduces did.

v. 34. But when] Mark 12. 28.

he had put the Sadduces to ſilence] They thought it would be a great honour to them, to ſilence him that had ſilenced the Sadduces.

they were gathered together] They adviſed about the buſineſſe; or, they came together about Chriſt: as verſ. 41.

v. 35. a lawyer] He is called a ſcribe. Mark 12. 28. See chap. 2. 4. & chap. 8. 19. and on Luke 20. 1.

tempting him] Some think it was not out of malice, as verſe 18. and elſewhere: but out of deſire of knowledge, as the Queen of Sheba proved Solomon. 1 King. 10. 1. but others conceive it was a captious queſtion, to the end he might expoſe Chriſt to the hatred of the people: non ſcire deſiderans, ſed tentans. Jerom. not deſiring to know, but tempting: Theophylact ſaith he came ἐξ ἀμέτρου φθόνου: out of unmeaſurable envy; though being ſomething better informed, and anſwering diſcreetly, he were not far from the kingdom of God. Mark 12. 34.

v. 36. the great commandment] The greateſt: becauſe ſome counted thoſe concerning ſacrifices chiefeſt, as is intimated, Mark 12. 33. Some, that of circumciſion: ſome, that of the ſabbath.

v. 37. Thou ſhalt love the Lord] Deut. 6. 5. Luke 10. 27.

with all thy heart] With all the faculties of thy ſoul.

with all thy minde] This is here added, ſo Deut. 6. 5. and with all thy ſtrength or might, left out here, is added, Mark 12. 30. Luke 10. 27.

v. 38. The firſt] In order: for God muſt be loved before, and more then all men.

great commandment] It was none of the ten commandments in particular, but contains all the commandments of the firſt table, and therefore is counted the greateſt.

v. 39. is like unto it] Not equall to it: for duty to God is above duty to man: but like it in greatneſſe, becauſe it containeth all the duties of the ſecond table, as the other did of the firſt.

Thou ſhalt love] Levit. 19. 18.

thy neighbour] Another man. Luke 10. 27. 29. 30. 1 John 3. 23. Rom. 13. 8. nec enim Dominus verè ſine proximo, nec proximus verè diligitur ſine Deo. Greg. hom. 30. for neither is God truely loved without our neighbour, nor our neighbour truely without God.

as thy ſelf] As truely, as thy ſelf: ſincerely, though not without ſome inequality of degrees: as, John 17. 21. Acts 3. 22.

v. 40. all the Law and the Prophets] This is the contents and ſumme of them all.

v. 41. While the Phariſees] Mark 12. 35. Luke 10. 41. The Phariſees who arrogated to themſelves, the onely knowledge of the Law and Prophets: but were extream blinde concerning the myſtery of ſalvation by Chriſt: in the knowledge of whom onely, is eternall life, John 17. 3. Chriſt therefore very fitly queſtioneth them herein.

v. 42. What think ye] You who boaſt of the key of knowledge, and interpretation of ſcriptures: what do you beleeve concerning Chriſt?

of Chriſt] Chriſt proveth, that though he be truely Davids ſon, according to the fleſh, yet that he is alſo Davids Lord, as being God eternall: which the Phariſees not underſtanding, were not able to anſwer his queſtion.

Whoſe ſon is he?] Of whoſe ſtock, or family? for the Hebrews called a mans poſterity, his ſons.

of David] See on chap. 1. 1. They knew ſo much, that according to the promiſe of God, Chriſt was to come of the linage of David: ſo much they commonly read and interpreted to the people: but they neither knew, nor expected in Chriſt, any more then the perſon of a man: therefore, thus much and no more could they anſwer Chriſt: they thought he ſhould be ἄνθρωπος ψιλὸς, meer man, ſaith Theophylact.

v. 43. How then doth David in ſpirit] Non erroris incerto, ſaith Jerom: but by inſpiration of Gods ſpirit, he reproveth them, not for confeſſing him to be the ſon of David: but whereas they taught the vulgar, to expect onely a ſecular externall kingdom under the Meſſias: he hereby gives them occaſion in the preſence of the multitude, to conſider the glory and divine Majeſty of his kingdom: as he is the Son of God, and Davids Lord. He ſaith, how doth David in ſpirit ſpirit; Mark addeth the holy ſpirit: thus David ſpake, Pſal. 110. 1. See 1 Pet. 2. 19.

v. 44. The Lord ſaid unto my Lord] David profeſſed that God the Father ſaid ſo unto Chriſt, Davids Lord.

v. 45. call him Lord] See on verſe 42.

v. 46. Neither durſt any man] None of his adverſaries durſt aſk him any thing, after this, in the way of tempting him, for they ſaw plainly that they could not prevail againſt him; being ever convicted by evident truth, and divine wiſdom: therefore they came to violence, to deſtroy him by power: the venome of envy may ſometimes be eaſily overcome, but hardly ever reſt.

CHAP. XXIII.

Verſe 1. TO the multitude] Gr. Multitudes: to many gathered together.

and to his diſciples] When he ſaw there was no more hope to do good on the Phariſees, he addreſſeth himſelf to the people, and his diſciples, to undeceive them, and forearm them againſt their corruptions.

v. 2. ſit in Moſes chair] As Maſters and Teachers. verſ. 7. 8. 10. and expounders of Moſes law: for καθέδρα, importeth the office of teaching the word of God, law and goſpel: belonging to the Prieſts under the law, and the Miniſters under the goſpel: becauſe while they taught, they were wont to ſit: Suidas interpreteth καθέδρα by ἐπίσχεσις, a ſitting or tarrying.

v. 3. all therefore] becauſe God appointed teachers of the law, therefore Chriſt would have them to be heard, though their perſons were wicked: while they who have a calling to preach, deliver the truth, they muſt be heard, though not imitated, where they practice not. See Mal. 2. 7. Thus he ſpeaketh, ſaith Chryſoſtom hom. 73 leſt he ſhould leave the hearers any occaſion of diſobedience; to their greater condemnation: or contempt of their Miniſtry, whom he ſhould after ſend: in the Miniſtry, the ordinance of God is to be conſidered; ſive Paulus, ſive Judas baptizet, Chriſtus peccatum lavat, abſolvit, & delet: whether Paul or Judas baptize, Chriſt waſheth away, forgives, and putteth away ſin. de bapt. Chriſti (inter opera. Cyprian.) that obſerve and do] If they teach according to Moſes law, as they profeſſe to do; and go not out of the chair by their traditions: for in ſuch a caſe our Saviour forbids men to obey them. Matth. 16. 6. 12. true ſanctity is in doing good, not in ſaying onely.

But do not ye after their works] He calleth them their works, which he here condemneth in all this ſpeech following; as hypocriſie, ambition, avarice, pride, &c. for theſe things are no fruits of Moſes chair, but of Satans; which ſheweth how carefull Miniſters ought to be, leſt they caſt down in works, what they would build in words: but withall, that auditors may not compoſe themſelves to the examples of frail men, but to the truth of Gods holy word.

for they ſay and do not] They ſpeak well, but live ill: they are the ſon (chap. 21. 30.) who ſaid he would go, and work in the vineyard, but did not: qui autem docent tantum nec faciunt, ipſi præceptis ſuis detrahunt pondus; ſaith Lactantius l. 3. c. 16. they who onely teach, and do not (as they teach) their ſelves take away the weight from their own precepts; for who will obey, when teachers teach men not to obey: teach by example thou who requireſt obedience of others: be thou not like thoſe ſtones ſet on the partings of high wayes, which ſtand onely, (by their inſcriptions) to ſhew others which way to take, not to move themſelves: it is a ſhame for teachers, not to do what they bid others do; but a greater ſhame to do that which they forbid others; thou that teacheſt another, teacheſt thou not thy ſelf? Rom. 2. 2. by you the name of God is blaſphemed amongſt the enemies; See 1 Cor. 9. 27. of all the world which periſhed by the deluge, leaſt to be pittied were they, who built an ark for beleeving Noah, not themſelves.

v. 4. For they binde heavy burdens] Luke 11. 46. They preſſe others to the ſtrict obſervance of Gods law; See Acts 15. 10. This verſe interpreteth the foregoing; they ſay, they binde heavy burdens to other mens ſhoulders; that is, they preſſe their conſciences, telling them rigidly enough, what they muſt do, or be damned, but do not their ſelves, they will not move a finger to that duty their ſelves. It is a metaphor taken from ſome cruell Maſter, laying intollerable burdens on his beaſts and ſervants (under which they groan) but is moved with no compaſſion to eaſe or help them, not ſo much as with a finger.

with one of their fingers] They will not touch them, much leſſe lay them on their own ſhoulders; thus hypocrites, are commonly ſevere exactours of thoſe things, which themſelves chiefly neglect; as it was objected againſt the Athenians, they knew what was right, but would not do it, every one can ſpeak great things, but few do as they ſay, example is the moſt powerfull rhetorick, for as Gr. Nazianzen ſaith. Theodor. epiſt. 81. οὐ γὰρ οὕτως ὁ λόγος πείθει τοὺς πολλοὺς, ὡς ἡ πρᾶξις, ἡ σιωπῶσα παραίνεσις, for truely, words do not ſo much perſwade many men, as action, which is a kinde of ſilent exhortation. Non eloquimur magna, ſed vivimus, ſaid Minucius Felix. after Cyprian ſerm. 3. de bon. pat. who after the like manner ſaith, qui virtutum conſcientiam magis quam jactantiam novimus &c. we, who are rather acquainted with the conſcience, then the oſtentation of vertues, who do not ſpeak great things, but live, as the ſervants and worſhippers of God.

v. 5. to be ſeen of men] They do works indeed ſometimes, which ſeem morally good, but out of vain-glory, and ſo wanting the right end, which is the glory of God, they are but (as Moſes ſaid Deut. 32. 32.) the vine of Sodom, and of the fields of Gomorrah, their grapes are grapes of gall, &c. the fruits growing near the dead ſea, where thoſe cities ſtood, are fair without, but onely duſt and rottenneſſe within.

They make broad] Broader then other mens. So ambitious are hypocrites in all ſemblances of good. See Numb. 15. 38. Deut. 22. 12.

their phylacteries] φυλακτήρια, conſervatories. Chryſoſtoms interpreter calleth them, quadam cuſtodientia, means to keep in memory, to wit, the precepts of the law thereon written; for theſe were ribbands of blew ſilk; or as ſome think of parchment, which they wore upon their garments and foreheads; not in obedience to God ſo much, as oſtentation before men, of their ſingular zeal, and love to the law of God, as if they were very carefull obſervers thereof. See Deut. 6. 8.

and enlarge the borders of their garments] Hypocriſie eaſily learneth to abuſe any ordinance of God; ſo here, God commanded that they ſhould make them. ציצית tſitſith. Numb. 15. 39. 70. κράσπεδα, fringes in the borders of their garments, that they might look upon it, and remember all the commandments of the Lord, and do them— they enlaged them for ſhew to men; as if all ſanctity had conſiſted therein, that others might take the more notice of them, and think them to be the onely religious men.

v. 6. and love the uppermoſt rooms] Mark 12. 38, 39. Luke 11. 43. πρωτοκλισίαν the firſt place to lie down in feaſts; for they lay on pallets to eat, and their tables were beds; they might have taken the uppermoſt rooms, when due, and offered unto them; but they loved them, and ambitiouſly contended for them; πρωτοκαθεδρίας the uppermoſt ſeats in the ſynagogues likewiſe.

v. 7. and greetings in the markets] To be firſt ſaluted, as if the chief honour and reſpect were due to them before all others; and that in publike.

Rabbi, Rabbi] Ῥαββί, רבב, rabab, ſignifieth great, or excellent, &c. whence cometh רב, a maſter, or one excellent in any art, and רבי rabbi, was taken for a title of dignitie and eminencie, importing thoſe, who by impoſition of hands were declared to be wiſe men: it ſignifieth here, one preferred before other teachers, becauſe of his abundant knowledge, which makes him to be inſtead of many: their fault was, that they ambitiouſly affected that title above others, and took it to themſelves without giving due honour unto God their teacher: they loved to hear the title doubled, or often uſed.

v. 8. be ye not called ſo] Jam. 3. 1. they could not barre men from calling them ſo; but they ſhould not take pride and pleaſure in it: he addreſſeth this to his diſciples, whom he meant to furniſh with an extraordinary meaſure of knowledge, and largeneſſe of heart, that they might be the teachers of the world; leſt thereby they ſhould be vainly puffed up, and fall into Satans ſnares: for ambition begets love of eminency, and authority over others; and affectation of prelacy, uſhered in Antichriſt. Chryſoſtom noteth here, hom. 73. the great miſchiefs which came into the Church by the ambition of Prelates: for which, he ſaid, he could not abſtain from tears, when he heard, or thought of the firſt places, &c. It is true, they that labour in the word and doctrine, are worthy of double honour, 1 Tim. 5. 17. and much to blame are thoſe who deny it them: the contempt of the miniſtery is a wide door open to hereſy. Will the impious and ingrateful world, or no, they are the ambaſſadours for Chriſt. 2 Cor. 5. 20. and ſtewards of the myſteries of God, 1 Cor. 4. 1. but the dignity of the Miniſtery is one thing, and the ambition of Miniſters another.

one is your maſter] Your principal teacher: he alludes to Iſaiah 54. 13. Jer. 31. 34 arrogate not the glory of God to your ſelves; for what have you excellent in you, which you have not received, and learned of Chriſt?

All ye are brethren] All ye Apoſtles.

v. 9. Call no man your father] He ſpeaketh not this in a ſimple and litterall ſenſe: children may call their naturall parent father, and the people may without offence, uſe this name in reverence to their ſpirituall Fathers: ſo Iſaac ſaid to Abraham. Gen. 22. 7. אָבִי my father. So Jacob to Iſaac, Gen. 27. 18. &c. So 1 Sam. 20. 2. 2 King. 2. 12. 2 Kings 13. 14. but he taxeth here the flattery of thoſe who were the Phariſees ſycophants, giving them too high titles; and the pride of thoſe who ambitiouſly took the ſame, which is a greater title then Maſter, and ſo he attributeth it to his heavenly Father, and the other to himſelf in the next verſe. See more on verſe 7, 8.

For one is] Mal. 1. 6.

your Father which is in heaven] See on chap. 6. 9.

v. 10. Neither be ye called Maſters] Governours: for teaching Maſters were mentioned, verſe 8. guides of the way, verſe 16. chap. 15. 14. Rom. 2. 19, 20. the Scribes, although they were but blinde guides, yet did they ambitiouſly affect ſuch titles; but the Apoſtles muſt not.

v. 11. He that is greateſt] Here it appears that different places and titles, are not prohibited; but ambitious ſeeking of them, and proud glorying in them.

ſhall be your ſervant] That is, let him be ſo: as, chap. 20. 27.

v. 12. Whoſoever ſhall exalt himſelf] Luke 14. 11. and 18. 14. this is contrary to the courſe of the world; for men eſteem more of ſuch, as ſet forth themſelves, though with contempt of others: but God hateth and reſiſteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble; the ſweet water-courſes finde out the low valleys, which have the bleſſing of fruitfulneſſe, while the high mountains are barren: the ſeeming excellency of the proud, like riſing ſmoak, vaniſheth as it greatneth.

v. 13. But wo unto you Scribes and Phariſees] Luke 11. 52. This word is uſed, either to denounce the judgement of God eminent, puniſhment temporall or eternall: or it expreſſeth the ſympathy of thoſe who deplore and pitty: this was the laſt time he would warn the Scribes and Phariſees of their condition; and therefore having admoniſhed his Diſciples, and the people to beware of them, he now layes open to their conſciences, their principall ſins, and the miſeries to which they were liable for the ſame.

hypocrites] Chriſt uſing this term in his ſharpeſt reproofs, ſhews us that nothing is more deteſtable then hypocriſie; a hypocrite is he who counterfeiteth, or acteth another mans perſon. See Budæ. ὑποκρίνομαι.

Ye ſhut up the kingdom of heaven] Ye are ſo far from opening the door, that when it is opened by John Baptiſt, and me, ye will neither enter into it, nor permit others to enter, who ſhew ſome willingneſſe thereto. John 7. 48, 49. by threatnings. John 9. 22. or ye challenge the key of interpretation to your ſelves, and would not ſuffer any truely to interpret thoſe ſcriptures that treat of the Meſſias, and his kingdom; ſuch fruit beareth your abuſed authority in the Church.

againſt men] ἔμπροσθεν τῶν ἀνθρώπων, in the ſight of men, or before the face of men, when they are at the very door, and ready to enter: for many came to Chriſts teaching, ready to embrace the Goſpel of the kingdom, whom the Phariſees diſheartned, by their blaſpheming of Chriſt, traducing his doctrine; or by threatnings, and decrees of excommunication, endeavouring ſo to do.

v. 14. Ye devour widows houſes] Mark. 12. 40. Luke 20. 47. Ye oppreſſe and injure widows, who have none to help them, till you leave them not ſo much as an houſe to live in. Hoſ. 4. 8. it is ſaid, they eat up the ſinnes of the people: that is the ſacrifices offered for the expiation of the peoples ſins; the meaning here is, that ye perſwade fooliſh widows to give you entertainment, or to bequeath their eſtates to your ſocietie, pretending that you will gain them ſalvation, by your continuall prayers for them. See 2 Tim. 3. 5, 6. he nameth widows here, to aggravate their impiety, but we may conceive, that they alſo abuſed many others in like manner.

for a pretence make long prayer] Vitia non decipiunt niſi ſub ſpecie umbráque virtutum. Jerom Læta, l. 2. ep. 17. You make long prayers, that widows thinking you to be zealous and religious men, may truſt you with their eſtates, which you defraud them of: you would be taken for godly men, becauſe you make long prayers; ſo wrong you God and man.

therefore ye ſhall receive the greater damnation] Greater then other oppreſſours or impoſtors: and that firſt, becauſe ye are ſo cruel, as to beguile and impoveriſh helpleſſe widows; God taking on him the protectorſhip of them and orphans. See Exod. 22. 22. Secondly, becauſe as all ſin is out of meaſure ſinfull, (as being committed againſt an infinite juſtice) yet moſt damnable is that ſin, quam titulus bonitatis accuſat. Salvian de Gub. D. l. 4. Which a title of goodneſſe accuſeth: it more aggravateth our cauſe before God, ſi deteriores ſumus, & meliores eſſe dicamur, ſaith the ſame, if ſo be we are evil, and are reported to be good; how much more, when we take up, and abuſe the holy name, and worſhip of God, for a cloak of cruelty and wickedneſſe? this is an high injury to the holy Majeſty of a juſt and al-ſeeing God: therefore (as Chryſoſtom hom. 74. in Matth. well ſaith) whereas all that ſin, are worthy of puniſhment, moſt grievouſly ſhall he be puniſhed, who goeth to wickedneſſe, uſing ſuch a pretence.

v. 15. compaſſe ſea and land] Ye travell ſea and land; ye take great pains to convert Gentiles to your religion: as if ye were very zealous for Gods glory.

to make one proſelyte] προσήλυτον, A ſtranger (Hebrew גֵּר gher. of גּוּר, which among other ſignifications importeth, peregrinatus fuit, congregavit) comming over from heatheniſh ſuperſtition, to Judaiſme.

a childe of hell] Much worſe, and ſo more damnable.

v. 16. It is nothing] He is not bound to perform his vow, by the temple.

he is a debtor] He is bound to perform, who ſwears by the gold of the temple; or he is guilty (if he perform not: ſo the Syriac חַיָּב reus fuit, or debuit; peccavit: debitor reus Mar. Troſt. 234. So Rom. 13. 8. So they expreſſed a debtor, or guilty man, by one and the ſame word; whence it ſeemeth that phraſe is uſed in the Lords prayer, chap. 6. 12. forgive us τὰ ὀφειλήματα ἡμῶν our debts, that is the ſins whereof we are guilty: this ſeemeth to be out of the Syriac manner of ſpeaking, which was the language of our Saviour.

v. 17. That ſanctifieth the gold] That cauſeth the gold to be counted holy, becauſe it is ſacred, as ſet apart from common uſe, unto the ſervice of God, for the uſe of the temple.

v. 18. ſwear by the altar] This Chriſt ſpeaketh, not to allow any ſwearing by creatures, though of the moſt holy uſe, but to tax the fooliſh vanity of their traditions.

v. 19. the gift or the altar] The gift was not holy, before it was brought to the altar to be offered to God: but the altar was holy before, as being long before thy gift conſecrated to the ſervice of God, in that uſe which he appointed it, and ſo denominates the gift thereon offered, holy or ſacred to the Lord.

v. 20. and by all things therein] He is as much bound to perform his vow, as if he did ſwear by all thoſe things becauſe they all pertained to it: he doth not allow any ſwearing by creatures, though he condemn perjury, when men ſwear by them. See on Chap. 5. 33, 34.

v. 21. and by him] That is, in Gods account he is tyed to performe, as if he had ſworn by God himſelf.

that dwelleth therein] Not locally or circumſcriptively, for he is infinite and comprehendeth all things. See Act. 17. 24. Jer. 23. 24. but becauſe he choſe and appointed that place for his publick worſhip.

v. 22. by the throne of God] See Acts 7. 49. Heaven is called the throne of God; becauſe as the greateſt Majeſtie of kings is ſeen when they ſit on their thrones: ſo God manifeſteth his glory moſt in heaven, and to the heavenly creatures.

v. 23. for ye pay Luke 11. 42. that ye might ſeem exact obſervers of the law: this was commanded by the law, Levit. 27. 30. Numb. 18. 23. See hereof D. Godwin. Moſes and Aaron, lib. 6. cap. 3 omitted the weightier matters] Hypocrites are careful in ſmall matters, but negligent in the greateſt: βαρύτερα, is a comparative relating to tithing mints, &c. which they did by tradition, the law commanding tithes alſo of more important kindes: for it was as well juſtice to give the prieſts their tithes, as to render to any other that which was their own. See on Luke 11. 42.

judgement, mercy, and faith] Juſt dealing with all men, mercy in relieving the poor, and faithfulneſſe in covenants, promiſes and contracts.

Theſe ought ye to have done] He blameth not thoſe who do the ſmalleſt things commanded; but ſuch as think when they have done theſe, they have done all that is required, and ſo ſecurely neglect the greateſt duties: theſe &c. that is, juſtice, mercy, and truth; and not to have omitted your paying tithes: here is taxed the prepoſterous traditions of Phariſees. See on Luke 11. 42. and Doct. Godwin, Moſes and Aaron l. 6. c. 3. Eccleſiam fraudare ſacrilegium eſt. Jerom Nepotian. ep. 14. l. 2.

v. 24. Ye blinde guides] It is a wretched blindeneſſe, not to ſee the abſurdity and impiety of ſuch courſes; the worſe becauſe they were to lead others in religious practices. See Iſaiah 42. 19. wickedneſſe is ever pernicious: but then worſe, when the wicked thinks he needs no amendment; but worſt of all is it, when he thinketh himſelf a ſufficient guide, and reformer of others, who is himſelf incorrigible; Chryſ. in loc. this they owed to their malice: the God of love is light without darkneſſe. 1 John 1. 5. but τυφλὸν ἀληθῶς ἡ κακία, Athanaſius epiſt. ad ſolitar. vit. Agent. malice is truely blinde.

Strain at a gnat] It is a proverbiall ſpeech, the ſenſe is; you make a ſcruple of ſmall things, but nothing care for the main.

v. 25. For ye make clean the outſide of &c.] Luke 11. 39. Hypocrites make much adoe about ceremonies, their own traditions, or things externall and indifferent, but for the inward and moſt neceſſary parts of Gods worſhip, they are very careleſſe. See Mark. 7. 4.

full of extortion] Getting of other mens goods away from them by oppreſſion, ravage and violence. verſe 14. Ezek. 18. 16.

and exceſſe] In the intemperate uſe of the creatures: how admirable a folly was this in the Phariſees, to be over nice in having clean houſes, and utinſels, with ſouls ſo fowl? without controverſie, externall cleanneſſe and decent compture is commendable, and neceſſary, but the ſouls cleanneſſe is of concernment incomparably greater; for the purity thereof ſhall make us eternally bleſſed, chap. 5.

v. 26. Cleanſe firſt that which is within] He recalleth them from hypocriſie, to a ſincere and inward purity in which they ſhall have comfort. Tit. 1. 15. this conſiſteth not in externall ceremonies, &c.

v. 27. whited ſepulchres] See Acts 23. 3. Like thoſe ſumptuous tombs which cover ſtenchie and corrupted fleſh and bones of dead carcaſes. See verſ. 6, 7. 14, 15. 23. So were the Phariſees onely externally and to the eyes of other men, religious; but inwardly vitious and wicked; and ſo more abominably impious, then they who are apparently ſo. Neſcio enim quomodo turpiora ſunt vitia, quæ virtutum ſpecie cælantur; ſaith Jerom ep. 22. l. 2. Cælantia, for I know not how, more filthy are thoſe vices which are covered with ſhew of vertues: vizours of religion cannot deceive Chriſt our Judge: labour for cleanneſſe of heart, which David prayed for, Pſalm. 51. 10 If we have true purity there, all things ſhall be pure to us; it is onely ſin which defileth a man, whoſe root or fountain is within in the heart; if that be cleanſed, then (as it was ſaid of the unwholſome waters of Jerico healed, 2 Kings 2. 21.) death and barrenneſſe ſhall be no more in the words and actions.

v. 28. Even ſo ye alſo, &c] Thus our Saviour applying his ſimilitude, ſheweth himſelf the ſearcher of hearts, and detecteth their ſecret hypocriſie.

v. 29. Ye build the tombs of the Prophets] Ye are like your fathers, though you diſavow their cruelty againſt the former Prophets: you are injurious in perſecuting the living Saints, and would ſeem religious in honouring the dead: you build and adorn the tombs and monuments of the Prophets, and other juſt men, whom your fathers ſlew for preaching the truth, and reproving their ſins: and ye perſecute Chriſt and his diſciples for the ſame cauſe, and think ye are yet religious. See on Luke 11. 47.

v. 30. and ſay] you pretend you would not have done ſo: thus, as if your fathers vices were your vertues, you can remember and cenſure them, but not your own ſins.

v. 31. Ye be witneſſes] Your own words and actions teſtifie.

unto your ſelves] Or againſt your ſelves; as, Mark 6. 12. Luke 9. 5.

That ye are the children of them which killed, &c.] Ye imitate them in their impiety; though as yet ye cannot compaſſe your deſigne; for even now ye are plotting what they practiced: you ſeem to honour the ſilent dead, becauſe they reprove you not; but the ſurviving teachers of the ſame doctrine, you hate to the death, as your fathers did the former Prophets.

v. 32. fill ye up] Since ye will needs do ſo; that your judgement may come upon you. See Gen. 15. 16.

The meaſure of your fathers] They ſtored up to themſelves great wrath, by their killing the Prophets, but yet the meaſure is not full; there remaineth ſomething which you will do to exceed their wickedneſſe, and beyond which there can be nothing more impious: they ſlew the ſervants, but you will ſlay the Son of God; the Lord of all the Prophets: nihil eſt ultrà Dei injuriam, graviùs peccare quod poſſint. Ambroſ. in Luc. l. 7. c. 11. there is nothing beyond the injuring of God himſelf, that men can more grievous ſin.

v. 33. ye ſerpents] This he ſaith to intimate their kinred in wickedneſſe (as Chryſoſt. ſpeakes) like their parents, in veneno malitiæ--- (as Euthymius expreſſeth it) in the venome of malice.

generation of vipers] See on chap. 3. 7.

How can ye eſcape] Though ye may eſcape mans judgement, ye cannot Gods: or, whoſoever eſcapes hell, certainly ye cannot, who ſin out of ſo deſtinate a malice.

of hell] See on chap. 5. 22.

v. 34. Wherefore] Seeing ye are ſo cruell, ye ſhall have matter to exerciſe your cruelty: Gods work muſt be done, mans impiety cannot overcome Gods mercy; nor the abuſers thereof eſcape his juſtice.

I ſend unto you] After my reſurrection and aſcenſion into heaven.

Prophets and wiſe men, and Scribes] He calls the Apoſtles and Paſtours under the Goſpel, by that name of Prophet, which was beſt known to the Jews; and mentioned verſe 30. that they that honoured the dead Prophets, and their wiſe men and Scribes; might know what accompt they ought alſo to have made of the Apoſtles, that were more excellent then they. See on chap. 11. 11.

ye ſhall kill] Ye ſhall be permitted to exerciſe the like cruelty on them, which the Prophets have ſuffered.

in your ſynagogues] See chap. 10. 17.

from city to city] chap. 10. 23.

v. 35. All the righteous blood] All the blood of righteous men: ſo terrible ſhall your judgement be, that you may ſeem to anſwer for all the murders of the godly from the beginning of the world, unto that time.

of the righteous Abel] Gen. 4. 8.

of Zacharias] 2 Chron: 24. 22. Theſe are named, becauſe the blood of the one, was ſaid to cry for revenge. Gen. 4. 10. (as indeed all blood unjuſtly ſhed, doth) as did the mouth of the other at his death: or becauſe the one was the firſt righteous man, and the other the laſt Prophet, whoſe name is upon record in the old Teſtament. See note on Luke 11. 51.

whom ye ſlew] Becauſe the nation is ſtill accounted the ſame: So Mark 10. 3. John 6. 32. and 7. 22. Acts 7. 38.

v. 36. All theſe things] All theſe puniſhments.

upon this generation] For Jeruſalem was ſoon after deſtroyed.

v. 37. O Jeruſalem, Jeruſalem] Luke 13. 34. The name is doubled, to expreſſe great affection in the ſpeaker: as 2 Sam. 18. 33.

that killeſt the Prophets] Nehemi. 9. 26. Act. 7. 32.

and ſtoneſt them which were ſent] 2 Chron. 24. 21.

How often would I have gathered] He ſpeaketh of his humane and miniſteriall will: or, de voluptate ſigni: God often offered them mercy, protection, and ſundry favours, which they wilfully put by through their ſins, from which they would not be reclaimed. See on Luke 13. 34.

thy children] The Jews, whoſe mother city was Jeruſalem, to which they repaired for ſolemn and publike worſhip, judicature, and ſuccour, in war, or publike calamities. Luke 10. 14.

together] A long time ſtriving with them, to bring them to faith and repentance. See Pſal. 17. 8. & 91. 4.

ye would not] So Prov. 1. 24. Iſaiah 65. 12. & 30. 20. Jer. 7. 13. Ezek. 24. 13. nos calamitatum noſtrarum auctores ſumus---nos, inquam, nos, etiam Deo nolente, cruciamus. Salvian l. 8. we are the authors of our own woes---we, I ſay, we our ſelves, (againſt that which God would in mercy) torment our ſelves---nihil eſt in nos, crudelius nobis: there is nothing more cruell againſt us, then our own ſelves; we will not be healed. See Ezek. 18. 31.

v. 38. Your houſe is left unto you deſolate] Your city and temple ſhall be deſtroyed: God often and long offereth mercy, but at laſt (as Cardan ſpeaks out of Valer. Max.) tarditatem ſupplicii---gravitate compenſat; he recompenſeth the ſlowneſſe or delay of the puniſhment, with the grievouſneſſe thereof. See on Luke 13. 35.

v. 39. Ye ſhall not ſee me] In this bodily manner.

henceforth] For this was in his laſt journey to Jeruſalem; and the laſt time of his publike teaching. See on Luke 13. 35.

till ye ſhall ſay] Ye would be glad to have me preſent, when Jeruſalem ſhall be diſtreſſed; then would your ſelves be glad to cry, ſave Lord, which ye thought much to hear the children cry, chap. 21. 16. or after my reſurrection, ye ſhall ſee me no more, till good men among you rejoyce at my coming to judgement, with ſuch acclamations as Jeruſalem heard, chap. 21. 9.

CHAP. XXIIII.

Verſe 1. JEſus went out] Mak 13. 1. Luke 21. 5.

departed from the temple] Purpoſing to come there no more; having taught there, divers dayes together.

to ſhew him the building] Chap. 22. 38. He had foretold the deſtruction of the temple, they ſhew him the building, as they went toward the Mount of Olives, from whence was the Temples faireſt proſpect; pittying that ſuch a magnificent pile ſhould be deſtroyed: as if they ſaid, behold, what a goodly houſe thou wilt lay waſt. Theophylact.

v. 2. There ſhall not be left here] Luke 19. 44.

one ſtone upon another] It ſhall be utterly deſtroyed, and demoliſhed: it ſignifieth an extream and utter devaſtation, which came to paſſe by Titus and the Roman army, waſting all with fire and ſword, and evening with the ground, that magnificent Temple and city, which was the glory of the world. (See Joſeph. l. 7. c. 9, 10. 18. de bel. Jud.) though Titus by a ſtrict edict at firſt ſtorming the city, forbad the defacing of the Temple; yet the ſouldiers burnt it and the city: this ſiege began at the paſſeover, and the Temple was burnt (as ſome ſay) Auguſt. 10. when it had ſtood 589. yeers: the city was burnt, Septemb. 8. in the yeer of our Lord, 71. Abr. Bucholcer. ind. chron. Such is the truth of Chriſt, no power or counſell of men can defeat it: ſo miſerable was the blindneſſe of the Jews, who ſeeing theſe things come to paſſe, according to the prediction of Chriſt, could not then, cannot yet, repent and beleeve in him. See Jer. 7. 4. So juſt is God in rejecting them: ſo long as the malady ſeemeth to promiſe any hope of recovery, the Phyſician uſeth gentle means of recovery, but when he deſpaireth of the cure, then as Athanaſius ſaith, de prodit. Jud. ἀποτέμνεται μέλος the diſaffected part is cut off: ſo dealt God with them.

v. 3. upon the Mount of Olives] Mark addes, over againſt the Temple, which words ſhew the occaſion of this.

The Diſciples came unto him] That is, Peter, James, John, and Andrew. Mark 13. 3.

privately] Becauſe it was a dangerous queſtion to be asked in publike, concerning the deſtruction of the Temple, as may appear chap. 26. 61. Acts 6. 14.

tell us] Here are three diſtinct queſtions propounded; the firſt concerning the deſtruction of Jeruſalem and the Temple: the ſecond, about Chriſts coming, not to judgement, but as they dreamed, to his temporall kingdom: the third, concerning the end of the world: the anſwer to the firſt, (as ſome conceive) reacheth to verſe 23. to the ſecond, from thence to verſe 36. to the third, from that verſe to the end of the chapter: but indeed, to the firſt and third, he anſwereth ſomewhat promiſcuouſly, ſo that ſomethings muſt be underſtood of the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and ſome things concerning the end of the world.

v. 4. That no man deceive you] Satan will be buſie to ſeduce you by many and variable impoſtors, which he will ſend into the Church to corrupt the doctrine, which I have delivered you, but be you vigilant, that you be not deceived.

v. 5. in my name] Some pretending that they are authorized by Chriſt: as, Acts 19. 13. Some that they had the ſame authority with Chriſt; or that they were Chriſt the Meſſias: as here verſe 23. John 5. 43. Some promiſing them temporall deliverance, which they expected. Luke 24. 21. See Acts 5. 36, 37. and 21. 38.

v. 6. of wars] Slaughters, and bloody tumults, as among them, under Caius: ſo alſo among other nations.

rumours of wars] Reports, and expectation of other like troubles.

Be not troubled] Be not affrighted at them; be not dejected, but conſider Gods power and protection over you.

the end is not yet] Underſtand this of the Jews finall deſtruction, or of the end of the world.

v. 7. Nation ſhall riſe againſt nation] As, 2 Chron. 15. 6. Such troubles fell out under Claudius and Nero, as alſo many ſince, in divers parts of the world.

There ſhall be famine] Acts 11. 28. λιμοὶ ϗ λοιμοὶ. Sword, famine, peſtilence, deaths, three weapons; like Joabs three darts. 2 Sam. 18. 14.

peſtilences] Which uſually follow wars, and famine. Rev. 6. 5, 6. 8.

v. 8. Of ſorrows] They ſhall go before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, as the pains of a woman before her travell. See Pſal. 48. 6. Iſaiah 13. 8. Jer. 30. 6, 7.

v. 9. Then ſhall they deliver] Chap. 10. 17. Luke 21. 12. John 16. 1. Chriſt here paſſeth from his diſcourſe of common calamities, to the peculiar croſſes and ſufferings of his: the Jews ſhall apprehend you, and convent you in their conſiſtories; as Peter and John, Acts 4. and 5. chapters.

all nations] Not the Jews onely.

for my names ſake] For the profeſſion of Chriſt. See chap. 5. 11.

v. 10. Many be offended] Scandalized at the preſent calamities, befalling Gods people, ſhall fall from the Chriſtian profeſſion, chap. 13. 21. See 2 Tim. 1. 15.

ſhall betray one another] The Apoſtates, ſhall betray thoſe who will not with them deny the faith, and run to deſtruction of body and ſoul for company.

v. 11. Falſe Prophets] Acts 20. 30. 2 Corinth. 11. 13. 2 Tim. 2. 18.

v. 12. Iniquity ſhall abound] Becauſe of their cruelty toward Chriſtians, love to God and man, ſhall grow cold, not ſhewing it ſelf as before in offices of piety and charity. See 2 Tim. 4. 16. Hebr. 10. 25.

v. 13. But he that ſhall endure] Rev. 2. 10. Not a good beginning onely, but perſeverance ſhall crown our hopes.

ſhall be ſaved] Either freed from the common temporall calamities, or however he ſhall obtain eternall life, and ſalvation in Chriſt Jeſus; virtus boni operis perſeverantia eſt. Greg. hom. in Evang. 25. the vertue, or excellency of a good work, is perſeverance, the end makes happy: Paul began ill, Acts 8. 1. & 9. 1. but ended happily (See Rom. 8. 38. Phil. 3. 6, 7, 8. &c. 2 Tim. 4. 6, 7, 8.) Judæ laudantur exordia, ſed finis proditione damnatur. Jerom ep. 21. l. 2. Furiæ (See chap. 10. 4. & 26. 47. 49. & 27. 4, 5. Acts 1. 18.) Judas beginning is commended, but his end is condemned of treaſon: let him that thinks he ſtandeth, take heed leſt he fall. 1. Cor. 10. 12. See Ezek. 18. 24.

goſpel of the kingdom] Joyfull tidings concerning the kingdom of heaven.

v. 14. In all the world] To all the then known parts of the world the Goſpel was preached before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem. See Mark 13. 9, 10, 11. Rom. 1. 8. Coloſ. 1. 23.

for a witneſſe unto all nations] Of the mercy of God offered them in Chriſt, and of the obſtinacy of the Jews, that they might underſtand that God had juſtly rejected them, who were incorrigible.

Then ſhall the end come] Then the utter ruine of them, and the ruine of Jeruſalem, their Temple, and ſervice there, ſhall come, as verſe 8. See Ezek. 7. 2.

v. 15. When therefore ye ſhall ſee] Mark 13. 14.

the abomination of deſolation] Theſe words are taken from Dan. 12. 11. where we read, that from the time that the daily ſacrifice ſhould be taken away, to give, or ſet up שקוץ שמם ſhikkuts ſhomem 70. as here, τὸ βδέλυγμα ἐρημώσεως the deſtructive abomination; or as the Hebrew is given by ſome, abominationem ſtupendam, or obſtupefacientem; thus the Prophet called the profanation of the Temple, whether we underſtand it, with Theophylact, of Cæſars image there ſet up; or of the ſetting up of the Eagle (the ſigne in the Roman ſtandard) in the 13. yeer of Nero, in the moneth of May, in Judea, according to the word of the Lord by Moſes Deut. 28. 49. The Lord ſhall bring a nation againſt thee from far; as, ידאה הנשר iide hannaſher, the Eagle flyeth; in ſimilitudinem aquilæ volantis &c. Hutter: as a flying Eagle; a nation whoſe tongue thou ſhalt not underſtand: or that which (after the Roman Eagle was ſeen there in their flying colours) fell out in the time of Cæſar Adrianus; who for the Jews rebellion under their pſeudo Meſſias, Barcochebas, interdicted the Jews return to Jeruſalem; and to that purpoſe, not onely changed the name of Jeruſalem to Elia, but alſo cauſed the marble ſtatue of an Hog (which was an abomination to the Jews) to be ſet up over that gate of the city which opened toward Bethlehem; it was a certain ſigne and token of their deſolation and finall deſtruction; their ſceptre departed; they ſubjected to the Roman Empire, their Temple demoliſhed, their daily ſacrifice ceaſed, and they ſcattered over the world; was the completion thereof, which Daniel foretold, about 670 yeers before it came to paſſe; and this was about an hundred yeers after the blaſphemous Jews had cryed out, his blood be on us, and on our children: Gods juſtice is ever ſure, though ſometimes ſlow: See on Luke 21. 20. &c.

by Daniel] See Daniel 9. 27. & 12. 11.

in the holy place] In Judea, the holy land; before the holy city. See Iſaiah 63. 18. or as Theophylact thinks, Cæſars image ſet up ἐν τοῖς ἀδύτοις τοῦ ναοῦ, in the inward parts of the Temple.

let him underſtand] Let him take notice, that when they ſee the Roman colours flying in Judea, the Temple and city ſhall be deſtroyed, and the nation of the Jews finally ſcattered, according to the Prophet Daniels propheſie. Dan. 9. 26.

v. 16. Then let them] Being warned by theſe ſignes, let them flee to ſave their lives. See on Luke 21. 21.

into the mountains] For there would be no ſafety in any of their cities, So Gen. 19. 17.

v. 17. Not come down] If he can eſcape with life ſome other way; let him make all the haſt he can to be gone, and not ſtay to ſave ought of his goods.

v. 18. His clothes] His coat, or cloak, or other garment, ſuch as men uſe not to work in, in the fields; leſt tarrying too long in the city, the Roman ſiege ſhut him up to deſtruction, with the reſt which ſhall periſh there: ἱμάτια, ſignifieth either houſe furniture, carpets, coverlids, &c. or a coat, Budæus, ex Athena. l. 12.

v. 19. That are with childe] Such could not well flee, at the enemies approach, becauſe of their burden; nor nurſes from their children. See Luke 23 29.

v. 20. Not in the winter] Becauſe bad wayes, and foul weather might hinder them.

Neither on the ſabbath-day] They not underſtanding, that in caſe of neceſſity, it was lawfull to flee or make defence on the ſabbath-day, might more be expoſed to the fury of the enemy, neither could they that day get things neceſſary, by reaſon of their ſtrict obſervation of the ſabbath.

v. 21. Such as was not, &c.] To that nation. Luke 21. 23. Exod. 9. 24.

v. 22 No fleſh be ſaved] He ſpeaketh of the calamity of the Jews, and in this ſpeech relateth to the ſame, the meaning is, none of the Jews ſhould be ſaved from that ſlaughter, except the Lord ſhould ſhorten thoſe dayes of affliction before mentioned: fleſh is by a figure, taken for mankinde, and here, as Jer. 12. 12. and 45. 5. for the Jews.

for the Elects ſake] For the Elects ſake, ἐξ ἀυτῶν. Theophylact, of themſelves; or, which were among the Jews which ſhould periſh.

thoſe dayes ſhall be ſhortned] He meaneth τὰς θλίψεις καὶ τὸν πόλεμον. Theophylact, thoſe (dayes of) afflictions and wars, which were coming on the Jews: had they long continued, they muſt have all periſhed by the ſword and famine: but they had a ſpeedier end of their calamities; the obſtinate impiety of reprobates provoked Gods juſtice, to have continued them long; but his mercy prevailed for the Elects ſake to ſhorten them, and quickly end that bloody war, by giving the Roman a ſpeedy conqueſt: ſo that Jeruſalem was taken in five moneths, or there about; which could not have been, but that the ſeditious citizens burnt up their own ſtore of corn: See Joſeph. de bel. Jud. l. 6. c. 1. and the many fortified towers in Judea and Galilee, were taken in a yeer and half: which was then imputed to the hand of God, favouring and proſpering the Roman; Joſeph. q. ſ. l. 3. c. 11. l. 7. c. 16. all which God did for his truth and Elects ſake: for from that miſerable ſlaughter, Jeruſalem being rendred, there eſcaped above four hundred thouſand perſons. Joſeph. q. ſ. l. 7. c. 15. which were diſperſed among the nations.

v. 23. Then if any man &c.] Mark 13. 21. Luke 17. 23. Then when Satan ſhall be looſed, Rev. 20. 3. and become a lying ſpirit, in the mouths of ſeducing impoſtors. See 1 Kings 22. 22. 2 Cor. 11. 13, 14, 15. 2 Theſ. 2. 9. &c. Rev. 12. 9. 12. then, whatſoever men ſeem in excellency, or authority, if they preach otherwiſe unto you, then that you have received, let them be accurſed. Gal. 1. 8. hear them not.

v. 24. falſe Chriſts] Either ſuch as John calleth Antichriſts. 1 John 2. 18. or ſuch as ſhall feign and call themſelves Chriſt.

falſe Prophets] Thoſe who teach lies; falſely interpreting and applying the word of God to finiſter and impious ends: as do Sectaries, Schiſmaticks, and Hereticks: men pretending to much godlineſſe and gifts, with power to exerciſe the ſame in the Miniſtry, to which God calleth them not: ſo their oppoſition of the truth of Chriſt denominateth, and ſheweth them falſe; and their uſurping the Miniſtry, Prophets. for otherwiſe they could be but falſe and erring laicks, or people, they had not ſo much as a ſemblance of Prophets. Some underſtand here the falſe Prophet, mentioned, Rev. 16. 13. and ſome, Mahomet.

ſhew great] δώσουσι σημεῖα: They ſhall give, or openly ſhew forth: ſo the Hebrews uſe their word נתן nathan.

ſignes] That is lying wonders; as, 2 Theſ. 2. 9. Reve. 13. 13.

deceive the very Elect] Not among the Jews onely, but among the Gentiles alſo, called to the faith of Chriſt, which they did dangerouſly attempt, by their ſpecious pretences, and ſhews of extraordinary zeal and godlineſſe: for, as Minucius Felix ſaith, incautè creduli circumveniuntur ab his, quos bonos putavèrunt: the incautiouſly-credulous are circumvented of theſe, whom they thought to be good men.

v. 25. Behold I have told you before] That your ſelves by this forewarning, may be armed againſt their deluſions, and may not be troubled, when you ſhall ſee ſo many falling away from the truth, and giving heed to the ſpirit of errour. See John 16. 14.

v. 26. He is in the deſert] That is, Chriſt, or his true Church where he is preſent, is in the ſeparation, and among thoſe who withdraw themſelves from the publike profeſſours of Chriſtianity: for thoſe falſe Chriſts, and their inſtruments, uſed to draw men and women out into the deſarts, where they might more ſecurely, and without diſcovery or reſiſtance, make head, and gather congregations.

in the ſecret chambers] In the inward rooms, and private places, apt for conventicles: it is true, honeſta ſemper publico gaudet, ſcelera ſecreta ſunt: things honeſt ever rejoyce in being publike, impieties are ſecret: which though it be not alwayes ſo, becauſe the beſt are moſt perſecuted and ſuppreſt, and God is juſt in bringing wickedneſſe to light; yet ever the good would appear, and the vitious would be concealed.

v. 27. As the lightning] They need not ſeek Chriſt, his kingdom, or coming to judgement, in this or that peculiar place; he will appear like the lightning in a moment to the ſtartled world.

v. 28. For whereſoever] Luke 17. 37. A proverb uſed concerning things every where alike: the meaning is, it will be found of thoſe who look after it.

v. 29. Immediately after] The like calamities ſhall befall the Roman Empire, that had by them afflicted the Jews before. See Rev. 6. 12, 13. Theſe things may be ſpoken allegorically: as, Iſaiah 13. 10. & 24. 23. Ezek. 32. 7. Joel 2. 10. 31. & 3. 15. Job 30. 28. Jer. 15. 9. Amos 8. 9. Some underſtand it litterally to be fulfilled a little before, or at the laſt day; but that uſeth not ſo to be deſcribed, but by fire. 2 Pet. 3. 12. others take theſe things litterally for ſtrange fights in the heaven, either before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, or before the day of judgement: of which time they who underſtand it, conceive that he ſaith, immediately, that men may ever watch and provide for his coming: as, Phil. 4. 5. Hebr. 10. 37. 2 Pet. 3. 8. or immediately after the troubles of the Church under Antichriſt, which ſome think intended in the former verſes. as, 2 Theſ. 2. 8. or after the great troubles of the Church. Rev. 20. 7, 8, 9. whereof theſe Jewiſh or Gentile troubles might be a foregoing ſigne: ſome think the certainty of the thing onely here intended, and not the neerneſſe of time. See on verſe 33.

ſhall the ſun be darkned] Mark 13. 24. Luke 21. 25. See on Acts 2. 19. certainly he foretelleth the ſignes which ſhall precede the laſt day: but how the ſun ſhall be darkened, the moon obſcured, or the ſtars fall, it is rather to be expected then defined by us.

the powers of the heavens]. The ſpheres, and ſtars of heaven; except we take it allegorically, as ſome do.

v. 30. ſigne of the Son of man] Such as ſhall teſtifie that Chriſt is coming to judge: what that ſigne ſhall be, whether ſome extraordinary comet, as ſome conjecture, or the ſigne of the croſſe, or ſome other glorious light; the Scripture not determining, we ſhould but vainly enquire.

all the tribes of the earth] All families and kinreds: it is an alluſion to the Jews diſtributed into tribes.

ſhall mourn] They ſhall be in ſuch ſorrow, that they ſhall ſmite on their breſts, as with horrour of heart, and confuſion of face, by reaſon of thoſe grievous and inevitable judgements then upon them, for their contempt and abuſe of this Goſpel. See on Luke 21. 26.

They ſhall ſee the Son of man] Rev. 1. 7. At his laſt coming, ſitting on the clouds, as on a throne of glory. chap. 25. 31. Acts 1. 9. 11. 1 Theſ. 1. 17.

with power] With all the holy Angels attending him. 1 Theſ. 4. 17. chap 16. 27. & 25. 31.

and great glory] With a viſible brightneſſe, and divine Majeſtie.

v. 31. And he ſhall ſend his Angels] See 1 Theſ. 4. 16. and chap. 13. 41.

with a great ſound of a trumpet] Or with a trumpet and a great voice: as, Exod. 19. 19. & 20. 18. See Pſal. 47. 5. 1 Cor. 15. 52. 1 Theſ. 4. 16.

ſhall gather together] As the manner was to gather the people together with a trumpet. Numb. 10. 2.

from the four windes] From all quarters of the world. See Iſaiah 43. 5, 6. Rev. 7. 1 Zech. 2. 6. See on chap. 8. 11.

from one end of heaven] In reſpect of our ſight: otherwiſe, heaven is round, and hath no end. See Pſal. 19. 6. Deut. 4. 32. & 28. 64. from eaſt to weſt, from north to ſouth.

v. 32. yet tender] In the ſpring, when the ſap riſeth, and ſhooteth out into the branches. See on Mark 13. 28.

putteth forth leaves] Cant. 2. 13.

v. 33. When ye ſhall ſee theſe things] When ye ſhall ſee theſe things befal the Jews, look for thoſe things which ſhall ſhortly after befall the reſt of the world alſo: for the one is the forerunner of the other, as the putting forth of the leaves of the fig-tree, is of the ſummer. Or when ye ſhall ſee thoſe extraordinary things mentioned, verſe 29. look for Chriſts coming to judgement ſpeedily.

is near] The coming of the Son of man, Chriſt Jeſus. verſe 30. or trouble is near coming on the Gentiles, when Jeruſalem is deſtroyed: then it is neer, as it were certainly at the door. See Gen. 4. 7. James 5. 9. Phil. 4. 5. Rev. 1. 3.

v. 34. this generation ſhall not paſſe] Some alive ſhall ſee all fulfilled that I have ſpoken, concerning the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and the troubles accompanying it.

all theſe things] That are ſhortly to come, oppoſed to that day, verſe 36. where he ſpeaketh of the laſt day.

v. 35. heaven and earth ſhall paſſe away] Mark 13. 31. may ſooner paſſe away, then any of my words prove falſe: as chap. 5. 18. Luke 16. 17. Iſaiah 54. 9. 2 Pet. 3. 10.

v. 36. of that day] Of the day of judgement, and of the end of the world of which, verſ. 30, 31. which was expected of all Gods people, 2 Tim. 1. 18.

hour] The time and ſeaſon, 1 Theſ. 5. 1. hour taken at large, as 1 John 2. 18. Rev. 3. 10. and 14. 7. 15.

knoweth no man] God hath hidden that day and hour from us, that we might never be ſecure, but alwayes prepared for it; ut pendulo expectationis incerto mens ſolicita---adventus diem ſemper expectans, ſemper expectando ſperaret, &c. Hilar. de trin. l. 9. that the minde ſolicitous with a pendulous uncertainty, alwayes expecting the day of his coming, might in expecting always hope for it, and have a watchful care againſt that uncertain, certain hour. So ſaith our Saviour, be ye alſo prepared, becauſe ye know not what hour the Son of man will come. See Luke 12. 40.

not the angels of heaven] Much leſſe ſinful men on earth, who are far below them in knowledge.

v. 37. for as in the dayes of Noe] Gen. 7. See on Luke 17. 26.

ſo ſhall alſo the coming &c.] That came ſuddenly when the ſecure world thought of nothing leſs; and ſo alſo ſhal Chriſts coming be, to judgement, when the ſecure world leaſt expecteth him, 2 Pet. 3. 10. 1 Theſ. 5. 2, 3.

v. 38. they were eating and drinking] Men were then alſo given to brutiſh ſenſuality, and ſecure luxury, as here. v. 49. τρώγοντες, eating is proper to beaſts: he reproveth luxury, not a ſober uſe of the creatures. See on Luke 17. 27.

giving in marriage] See on chap. 22. 30.

v. 39. and knew not] Took no more notice of it, then if they had heard nothing at all of it, not believing what Noah had foretold.

took them all away] All the ſecure unbelieving world; of which number Noah and his family were not.

ſo ſhall alſo] So unprepared ſhall men be at the day of judgment, as if they had never heard thereof: and many of them who cannot but believe, or at leaſt fear it will come; yet vainly procraſtinate, and put off their repentance and preparation from day to day, until death and judgment ſuddenly come upon them, and finde them unprovided.

v. 40. Then ſhall two] See on Luke 17. 36.

in the field] At their harveſt work, other labour in ſowing, about their cattle, or other like employment.

the one] One of the two: they ſhall not be taken by families, as Noah was: but one friend ſhall be taken by Chriſt into heaven, and another left for the devil to carry into hell. Some think it alſo relateth to the deſtruction of Jeruſalem.

ſhall be taken] As led by the hand out of the common danger and deſtruction: an alluſion to Gen. 19. 16. the Syr. giveth by a word, which among other ſignifications, importeth to lead out, or into, as John 16. 13. Rom. 8. 14. or to take to ones ſelf, John 14. 3. See on Luke 17. 36.

v. 41. two women] Bondwomen, or of the meaneſt condition, ſuch as uſed to grinde at the mill, Exod. 11. 5.

v. 42. watch therefore] Mark 13. 35. watching is enjoyned all Chriſtians here; and Miniſters after, v. 45. Luke 12. 41. we muſt by faith expect our Saviour perpetually, and be ready to receive him, v. 44. qui enim pœnitenti indulgentiam promiſit, diſſimulanti diem craſtinum non ſpoſpondit, Proſper ep. for he that promiſed mercy to the penitent, hath not promiſed to morrow to the diſſembling. So alſo Greg. ho. 12. in evang. we muſt therefore alwayes expect the laſt day, which we can never foreſee.

v. 43. But know this] Luke 12. 39. 1 Theſ. 5. 2. this you muſt neceſſarily know, except you are willingly ignorant: as 2 Pet. 3. 5. this is evident to common reaſon.

in what watch] Matth 14. 25. that is, in what hour of the night, which they divided into certain watches.

broken up] Digged through, as thieves uſe to do, Exo. 22. 2.

v. 44. ſuch an hour as ye think not] Unleſſe ye watch; for the Maſter of the houſe dreams not of the coming of the thief. The ſecure man thinketh not of the ſuddain coming of Chriſt which will be more terrible.

v. 45. who then is] Luke 22. 42. See note thereon: as if he ſaid, Faithful Prelates are but rare, but ever bleſſed, as v. 46. ſuch a one is, as Theophylact expreſſeth him, σπάνιος ϗ δυσεύρετος, rare and hard to be found.

ruler over his] As a Paſtor over the flock, or a Steward of the myſteries of God, 1 Cor. 4. 1. See on Luke 12. 44.

houſhold] Over his ſervants, ἐπὶ τῆς θεραπείας αὐτοῦ, over his ſervice, over the reſt of his ſervants, famulitiam, interpret. Theophylact, over the ſons of his houſe, or family: Syr. over his domeſtical ſervants.

to give them meat] As Gods Steward: that is to preach the doctrine and knowledge of Chriſt, which like thoſe five loaves which Chriſt bleſſed, is not diminiſhed, but encreaſed by giving out to many, or like the widows oil, 2 Kings 4. encreaſed onely by pouring out.

v. 46. bleſſed, &c.] Happy ſhall they be, if they perſevere in their faithful diligence, and care for the people of God: though perhaps they may ſuffer many unworthy things of a preſent impious world, as the Prophets, Apoſtles, Martyrs, and moſt faithful Miniſters, ever did; yet happy ſhal they be when Chriſt appearing to call them from hence, ſhall finde them vigilant over the flock committed to their charge.

v. 47. ruler over all his goods] All that he hath: of a ſteward he will make him overſeer of all his eſtate, Gen. 36. 4. 6. he ſhall advance him to a greater command and dignity. See Rev. 2. 26. and here verſe 45. the meaning is, he ſhall reign with Chriſt, and be partaker of the riches of his grace, and bleſſedneſſe.

v. 48. that evil ſervant] But if the evil ſteward neglect the ſalvation of the people; if he tyrannize over them.

ſay in his heart] If he think with himſelf, Pſal. 14. 1.

my lord delayeth his coming] It will be long ere he comes: as 2 Pet. 3. promiſing himſelf a long life, and time to repent in, and to make his peace. So ſecurely contemning and abuſing the long ſuffering and patience of God; preſuming to do any violence and injury to Gods people, becauſe he doth not preſently appear againſt them, and their impiety.

v. 49. to ſmite] To exerciſe any kinde of cruelty on his fellow ſervants (by vertue of his authority) for whoſe good and welfare he was put into that office, which therefore he ought to have had the more care of, 1 Pet. 4. 10.

with the drunken] If he give lewd example of luxury and intemperance, making him ſcandalous, his miniſtery leſſe effectual, and the very doctrine he preacheth deſpicable, ſo cauſing the name of God to be blaſphemed.

v. 50. when he looketh not for him] Of which (day) he thought not, ſaith the Syriack interpreter: the judgements of God are not ſo much as in the thought of the wicked: they cry, peace, peace, till ſudden deſtruction come upon them, then are they the moſt dejected men of the world. See 1 Sam. 28. 20. and Dan. 5. 1, 2, 6, 7.

v. 51. cut him aſunder] διχοτομήσει αὐτὸν, cut him in two pieces; either by renting his ſoul from his body; or body and ſoul caſt out of Gods bleſſed preſence, divided him from the elect to damnation. See on Luke 12. 46.

his portion with hypocrites] He ſhall have greater puniſhment then ordinary: as alſo hypocrites muſt expect; becauſe counterfeit ſanctity is double iniquity. See Job. 20. 29. Pſal. 11. 6.

weeping, &c.] Matth. 8. 12. and 13. 42. 50. and 22. 13.

CHAP. XXV.

Verſe 1. THen] The Evangeliſt proſecutes the concluſion of Chriſts laſt ſermon, concerning his glorious and ſudden appearance to judgment, and our duty in watching, leſt that day finde us unprepared, or unfaithful in our duties: then. in the day of Chriſts coming, mentioned chap. 24. 51.

the kingdom of heaven] The Church in this world, Greg. hom. 12. in Evang. as Matth 13. 41. or the condition of men in the Church of God.

virgins] The cuſtom then was to make marriage feaſts in the night: the bridegroom uſed to come with a choice company of young men, which were called the children of the bride chamber, chap. 9. 15. certain virgins of the acquaintance or kinred of the bride, uſed to go meet the bridegroom, attending him unto the wedding-houſe: to which cuſtom Pſal. 45. 14. alludeth; ſhe ſhall be brought unto the king, in raiment of needle work, the virgins her companions that follow her ſhall be brought unto thee: by virgins here are ſignified pure ſouls, as 2 Cor. 11. 2, 3.

which took their lamps, and went forth] They carryed them forth (as the cuſtom then was) lighted for the ſervice of the bridegroom and his train; in which there was both ſolemnity, and accomodation of light for the company paſſing by the way.

v. 2. Five of them] He ſaith not this to intimate that there were as many wiſe or good men, as wicked which are truly fooliſh: the whole world (unregenerate) lieth in wickedneſſe, 1 John 5. 19. but he ſimply noteth the difference, in an equal condition; in which all Chriſtians alike, profeſſe their hope of ſalvation by Chriſt, and their expectation of him to judge the living and the dead; yet among theſe there is much difference, ſome truely believe, ſome are hypocrites; ſome profeſſe in words onely, but not in heart, having a form of godlineſſe, but denying the power thereof: they confeſſe they expect a judgement; but live as if they thought in their hearts, there were no God to call them to account. See Pſal. 14. 1,&c. none but the fooliſh can think, and do thus; or hope to impoſe on Gods all-ſeeing juſtice: but they are wiſe, who truely fear God, and endeavour to ſerve him faithfully (Pſal. 111.10) though there are but few ſuch.

were wiſe] So ſhewed they themſelves, in providing timely for their preſent employment.

were fooliſh] Theſe ſhewed themſelves ſuch, in neglecting the main, for which they were called, and came together: ſuch are they, who profeſſing faith in Chriſt, yet prepare not themſelves againſt his coming. For as Auguſtine ſaith, de verb. Domini ſerm. 23. theſe are not qualeſcunque animæ, ſed tales, quæ habent catholicam fidem, & habere videntur bona opera in Eccleſia Dei, not every, or any ſoul, but ſuch as have (or profeſſe) the Catholick faith, and ſeem to have good works in the Church of God. In his 120. epiſtle to Honoratus, he interpreteth this ſomething neerer, of men (alienâ laude lætantibus, & propter ipſam inanem laudem, non propter conſcientiam ſuam, ubi illis teſtis eſt Deus, bona operantibus) rejoycing in others praiſing them, and doing good, not for their conſcience ſake, where God is their witneſſe, but for vain praiſe of men.

v. 3. took their lamps] By which is repreſented, profeſſion of faith and ſanctity.

but no oil] Beſides that which was burning, and ſpent ere the bridegroom came, verſe 8. that is, they had no good works of faith, (charity and ſanctity) without which, faith is dead, and inactive. See Galat. 5. 6. James 2. 26. ſo Jerom on this place ſaith, they have no oil, who ſeem to confeſſe the Lord with the like faith, ſed virtutum opera negligunt, but neglect good works.

v. 4. oil in their veſſels] In their lamps: the meaning is, they prepared to meet Chriſt, with faith, repentance, and charity; which is, (as Jerom ſaith) lumen indeficiens, a light which ſhall never fail, or go out: See 1 Cor. 13. 8. faith ſhall end in enjoying, but charity ſhall be perfected, not ended in heaven: this oil then is that which the Apoſtle ſpeaketh of 2 Cor. 1. 12. the teſtimony of their conſciences: this to carry oil with them, not to buy of thoſe that ſell, that is of flatterers, Auguſtine ep. 120. who do good, ut laudetur Deus, that God may be praiſed.

v. 5. while the bridegroom tarried] It was not a little time, inter priorem & ſecundū adventum Domini, Jerom, between the firſt and ſecond coming of the Lord Chriſt: Chriſts coming muſt be expected with holy patience, Habak. 2. 3. Mora ſponſi pœnitentiæ tempus eſt, Hilar. can. 27. the bridegrooms tarrying is the time of repentance.

all ſlumbred] Some died (as Jerom interpreteth) others after long attendance, and expectation, began to be poſſeſſed with ſecular cares, diſtracting their thoughts from a preſent watch, and looking for Chriſt; ſo Auguſtine ep. 120. which ſlumber, elect and reprobates are in ſeveral degrees, ſubject to. Good men are at ſome times ſomewhat more negligent then they ſhould be; but they alwayes keep a good conſcience, and an heart prepared, in ſome good meaſure to receive Chriſt, Acts 23. 1. and 24. 16. 2 Cor. 1. 12. Cant. 5. 2. their ſecurity is but of infirmity, and their eſtate was made ſure before; the carnall and worldly have, at beſt, but the lamps of profeſſion, and want the oil and ſubſtance of religion, that is, the power thereof, 1 Tim. 1. 5. 2 Tim. 3. 5.

v. 6. at midnight] Subitò quaſi intempeſtâ nocte, & ſecuris omnibus, ſuddenly, as in the ſtill of the night, Jerom, Euthymius; becauſe he will come ἀνέλπιστος, unexpected, as Theophylact ſpeaketh: or as Hilarie can. 27. cunctis ignorantibus, in a time which none knows; Chriſt will come when he is leaſt looked for: as the bridegroom came at midnight, later then the uſual manner was.

a cry made] This is generally underſtood, by Chryſoſtome, Theophylact, Euthymius, Jerom, Hilary &c. of the voice of the Arch-angel, and the trumpet of God, to awaken all, even thoſe who are in the graves, and depths of the ſeas, of which John 5. 29. 1 Theſ. 4. 16. 1 Cor. 15. 52. which is moſt certainly true: but this circumſtance relateth alſo to the cuſtom, and accomodation of the parable: and in the ſubſtance of the matter, we may underſtand this noiſe, to be alſo the voice and importunity of them, who exhort, and admoniſh us to prepare, and meet Chriſt.

the bridegroom cometh] Chriſt cometh: ſo will he do to call us hence at our death and day of judgement.

v. 7. trimmed their lamps] Which is to be underſtood of the wiſe virgins, the fooliſh carried onely dead lamps, without that which Chriſt commanded, chap. 5. 16. an alluſion to Exod. 30. 8. 2 Kings 9. 30.

v. 8. gone out] Or going out, which in the temple ſhould not be, Exod. 27. 20. the moral whereof was, we ought to perſevere in faith and ſanctity, chap. 24. 13. Revel. 2. 10. Coloſ. 1. 23. Hebr. 3. 14.

v. 9. not ſo, leſt there be not enough for us and you] Not fearing the failing of their own ſtore, as if they were uncertain of their own ſalvation; but becauſe (as Jerom ſaith) neque poſſunt in die judicii aliorum virtutes, aliorum vitia ſublevare, in the day of judgement, the vertues of the one cannot relieve the vices of the other: See Ezek. 14. 14. and 18. 20. ſo ſaith Auguſtine ep. 120. Non deſperanter, ſed humiliter dictum eſt. it is not (by them) ſpoken deſpairingly, but humbly; for who can ſo preſume on his own conſcience, that he can be certain, that it can ſuffice him in Gods judgement, except the merciful God judge in mercy, not the rigour of juſtice, in which none can ſtand? Pſal. 143. 2.

go ye rather] Not that the juſt ſhall ſend the wicked at the day of judgement to purchaſe grace: but it ſhews that they who neglect to get it here, have no means left to get any then: ſo Elijah mocks the prieſts of Baal, 1 Kings 18. 27.

buy] Iſaiah 55. 1. Rev. 3. 18.

for your ſelves] Every one one muſt be ſaved by his own faith, Rom. 1. 17. Rom. 14. 12. 22. Galat. 6. 4.

v. 10. while they went to buy] This is ſpoken to ſhew us, that (as there was no Manna to be found on the Sabbath) ſo ſhall there be no place for repentance and good works in death: and that the faithful onely, who in a carefull watch continually, expect the coming of Chriſt ſhall be ſaved. See Job 14. 14. Luke 12. 37.

the door was ſhut] They who neglect Gods call, and are not ready when he cometh, ſhall be ſhut out of the gate of mercy, Pſal. 95. 11. here life is gotten or loſt to eternity. They that were ready with their lamps burning, that is, with faith and good works, as Auguſtine foreecited, interpreteth, went into eternal joy with Chriſt, the reſt were ſhut out.

v. 11. Lord, Lord] Chap. 7. 22. and 25. 37.

open to us] To wit the door of mercy: receive us alſo.

v. 12. I know you not] Chap. 7. 23. the Lord knoweth who are his, 2 Tim. 2. 19. but he will not own thoſe in judgement, who will not own and obey him now, when he offereth mercy. Admirable is the power of faithful prayer, and timely repentance; but as Jerom ſaith, quid prodeſt, voce invocare, quem operibus negas? what availeth it to invocate him with thy voice, whom thou denyeſt in thy works? See, Pſal. 50. 15, 16. Eſaus too late tears ſhew us the danger of deferring repentance and converſion unto God. See Heb. 3. 13, 15. 2 Cor. 6. 2. Eccles 12. 1.

v. 13. watch therefore] Chap. 24. 42. Mark 13. 33.

delivered unto them his goods] Put them into ſeveral offices, and places for the good of his Church, Epheſ. 4. 11. 12.

v. 15. five talents] Of a talent. See 1 Chron. 22. 14.

according to his ſeveral ability] According to the ſkill and wiſdom in dealing which was given them, 1 Cor. 12. 7. according as he knew they had knowledge to mannage that which was entruſted to them: this δύναμιν, the Syr. interpreter giveth, juxta facultatem ſuam. Jerom, ſecundum propriam virtutem, that is, as his ſelf interpreteth, pro accipientium viribus, according to the abilities of the receivers: who yet conſidereth not in his ſervants, ſo much lucri magnitudinem, the greatneſſe of the gain, as ſtudii voluntatem, the willingneſſe of their care and endeavour. Proſper noteth well here, de vocat. Gent. l. 2. c. 8. he gave according to their proper abilities, ſed non ſecundum proprium meritum, but not according to their proper merit. In the one, two, or five talents, we muſt underſtand the diverſities of Gods gifts, which are not all conferred on any one man. See Epheſ. 4. 11. 1 Cor. 12. 7. 11. 29. Rom. 12. 6. 1 Cor. 4. 2.

v. 16. traded with the ſame] Was laborious in his calling, according to his gifts.

made them other five talents] Encreaſed his gifts by uſing them to the benefit of others, and did twice ſo much good, as before his imployment. See 2 Tim. 1. 6. the power and fruit of Gods graces in us, is in their uſe to his glory, and the gaining of ſouls to Chriſt: he ſhall be judged a faithful ſervant, who ſo employeth them. See Rom. 15. 15, 16. ſuch were the Prophets and Apoſtles.

v. 17. likewiſe he that had received two] He means thoſe who are of meaner gifts and meaſures of grace, (as were, and are the ſucceeding miniſters of Chriſt, not aſſiſted, as the Apoſtles with infallibility of ſpirit) who have not that admirable evidence of ſpirit, and largeneſſe of heart; yet of a meaſure which God maketh ſufficient to gain ſouls; theſe are alſo accepted of God as faithfull ſervants, if they do, as Peter ſaid, as every one hath received the gift, even ſo miniſter the ſame one to another, as good ſtewards of the manifold grace of God, 1 Pet. 4. 10. if they who are of mean gifts, be faithful and diligent, God accepteth their will and endeavour.

v. 18. digged in the earth] Importing thoſe Miniſters, who for ſhame, ſloth, or fear, will not exerciſe the gifts they have: or any other, who receive Gods grace in vain: againſt which the Apoſtle exhorts, 2 Cor. 6. 1. which concerneth both teachers, and hearers.

v. 19. a long time after] In the end Chriſt will come and call men to accompt; meaning in the general, from Chriſts aſcenſion into heaven, unto his coming again to judge: this time hath already been 1614 years: in particular, the life of man, the remainder whereof is very uncertain.

cometh and reckoneth with them] Chriſt will certainly come again to judg every man: therfore it behoveth us ſo to live, as every hour expecting him: he will call every one to a ſtrict account, how we have employed his gifts: how carefull ought we to be, how we uſe our time, health, ſtrength, underſtanding, offices, or authority? theſe all are our Maſters talents, and he wil once bring us to an account of their improvement.

v. 20. other five talents] See on verſe 16.

v. 21. over a few things] In a ſmall charge, Luke 16. 18.

over many] I will prefer thee: as men do ſervants whom they have found faithful. See on chap. 24. 47.

into the joy of thy Lord] Come and receive the fruit of my bounty, the reward of thy fidelity. See verſe 34.

v. 24. which had received one talent] He is alſo called to account, as well as they who had received more talents, that no man may think to be excuſed from giving account by the meanneſſe of his place or parts.

that thou art an hard man] He would (as hypocrites, and evil ſervants uſe to do) tranſmit the fault from himſelf to his Maſter: one of Adams ſons, Geneſ. 3. 12. but indeed, God is (as Auguſtine ſaith well Armentario, ep. 45.) benignus exactor, non egenus: & qui non creſcit ex redditis, ſed in ſe creſcere facit redditores: a bountiful exactor, not a needy: and who encreaſeth not by things rendered to him, but who encreaſeth the renderers in themſelves.

v. 25. Lo thou haſt that is thine] Chap. 20. 14.

v. 26. His lord anſwered] By this anſwer he ſignifieth that they have no excuſe for their ſloth, who ſuppreſſe Gods gifts and ſpend their time unprofitably; or that murmur, and lay their defects in duty on Gods providence; whereas it is moſt true which Proſper ſaith, de vocat. Gent. lib. 2. cap. 1. nec damnati juſta querimonia, nec juſtificati verax eſt arrogantia, ſi vel ille dicat non meruiſſe ſe pœnam, vel iſte aſſerat meruiſſe ſe gratiam; neither is the complaint of the damned juſt, neither the arrogance of the juſtified veritable; if either he ſaith, he hath not deſerved the puniſhment, or this affirme that he hath deſerved grace.

thou wicked and ſlothful ſervant] By theſe ſharp and yet well deſerved reproofs, that appears, which Proſper ſaith, de vocat. Gent. lib. 2. cap. 8. that not onely, de non ſervato, ſed de non aucto munere damnabuntur; for that men have not kept, but becauſe they have not encreaſed the gift, they ſhall be condemned.

thou kneweſt] Were it as thou ſayeſt; thou ſhouldſt have been the more careful to pleaſe me: and art now the more unexcuſable by thine own confeſſion. chap. 12. 37. Luke 19. 22.

v. 27. to the exchangers] Such as kept banks, to take mens moneys, and make profit thereof for them: the meaning is, thou oughteſt to have committed it to the hearers, who bringing forth fruits, would have rendred me the intereſt of good works: ſo Jerom, Chryſoſtome, Hilary, Euthymius, and others, underſtand here by uſury.

v. 28. take therefore the talent from him] God juſtly takes away his gifts, from thoſe that abuſe, or make no good uſe of them: underſtand this of thoſe gifts or graces which are common to elect and reprobates; as gifts, or parts of nature, or art, office, charge, &c. for the gifts and graces of regeneration are ἀμεταμέλητα, Rom. 11. 29. ſuch as God never repenteth of, or recalleth, ſee John 16. 22. God ſometime taketh away that which therein men ſeem to have, Luke 8. 18. when by pulling off their vizards, he diſcovereth their hypocriſie; making it appear to the world, that their pretences to faith and good works, were but ſemblances and falſe ſhadows of things which had no being.

and give it unto him which hath ten] Not that the elect ſhall have or receive any good from the reprobate: but becauſe their reward in heaven ſhall be ſo great; as if the happineſſe which ſeemed due to all others, in mans judgement muſt accrew to them, and be put on their accompt.

v. 29. for unto every one] Chap. 13. 12. Mark 4. 25. Luke 8. 18.

v. 35 for I was an hungred] Chriſt taketh that which is done for his poor ſervants, as done unto himſelf: and this reward of mercy, is not for their own ſakes, or merit of the giver, but as they are members of Chriſt; and becauſe Chriſt will juſtifie theſe by faith, which worketh by love and charity.

ye gave me meat] We need none other argument to incite us to give to the poor ſaints, if we underſtood and firmly believed this one: he that giveth an hungry ſoul (which is a ſervant of Chriſt) food; feedeth Chriſt in that almes.

v. 36. naked and ye clothed me] In ſe aſſumit bonas operationes noſtras, ad hoc, ut præſtet nobis retributionem bonorum ſuorum, Irenæus. l. 4. cap. 34. he taketh on himſelf our good works, that he may yield us a retribution of his goods: he accepteth what we do for the poor, as done to himſelf, not that he wants, but à nobis propter nos fieri vult (ſaith the ſame) he will have us do it for our own ſakes: neither may we look hereon, as meritorious works of men, but as being the certain fruits and effects of true faith, apprehending his merits, by which we ſhall be ſaved: which being his gift, Epheſ. 2. 8. he doth but crown his own gifts in us: ſo true is that of Bernard: meritum meum miſeratio Domini eſt: my merit is Gods mercy: as likewiſe that which Proſper ſaith, de vocat. Gent. lib. 2. cap. 1. Neminem indebitè damnans, neminem debitè liberans; noſtra plectens cum punit noxios, ſua tribuens cum facit juſtos, condemning no man unduely, freeing or acquitting no man duely (or according to his deſerts) puniſhing that which is ours, when he correcteth offenders, giving that which is his own, when he juſtifieth, or maketh men righteous. Conſider you oppreſſours, if they ſhall be damned, who feed not, and clothed not Chriſts poor, what hope of pardon have you, who take their bread from their mouths, and their clothes, and all temporal comforts from them: conſider you mercifull to your comfort, that whatſoever you have done for Chriſts poor, you have done for Chriſt, who is not unfaithfull to forget the labour of your love.

v. 37. the righteous] Thoſe whom he called bleſſed, v. 34. now he calls righteous, for God will make all them righteous here, whom he intends to make bleſſed hereafter. Luke 14. 14. Revel. 20. 6.

when ſaw we thee, &c.?] In thine own perſon: theſe anſwer as thoſe, whoſe left hand knew not what their right hand did, chap. 6. 3. the holy ever think humbly of their own works: and ſuch ſhall be that bounty of Chriſt rewarding, that the receivers ſhall admire it as incomparably more then due to them.

v. 40 unto one of the leaſt,&c.] Gr. Unto one of theſe my brethren, which are the leaſt; that is, which are leaſt ſet by in the eyes of the world. It is a greater token of love, to do good to his for his ſake, when he is abſent, then to do it to him, if he were preſent: and that which is done to a mean Chriſtian for his ſake, ſhall be rewarded as well, as that which was done to an Apoſtle, chap. 10. 41. 42. for Chriſt here counteth the meaneſt Chriſtian, as well as the moſt excellent, his brethren.

v. 41. Depart] Chap. 7. 23. Pſal. 6. 8. to be deprived of Gods bleſſed preſence, is a chief part of the miſery of the damned.

from me] None unclean, and defiled with the guilt of uncleanſed ſin, ſhall enter into heaven, the preſence of Chriſt. See 1 Cor. 6. 9. 10. Rev. 21. 27. the wicked ſhall not have any part of happineſſe with him, but ſhall be turned into hell, Pſal. 9. 17. to be puniſhed in everlaſting deſtruction with the devils, 2 Theſ. 1. 9.

into everlaſting fire] Incorruption, and immortality ſhall be even to the bodies of the wretched caſtawayes, ſo that nec ipſi æternam pœnam finiant, nec ipſos conſumat immortalis pœna, ſed puniat, Proſper de vit. contemplat. c. 3. neither ſhall they end their eternal puniſhment, neither ſhall immortal pain conſume, but ſtill torment them. See on verſ. 46.

v. 42. ye gave me no meat] They that feed not the poor ſhall go to hell; what torments ſhall be to them, who by fraud, violence, or any whatſoever pretence, take away from them, and undo, and begger them and theirs?

v. 43. ſick and in priſon, and ye viſited me not] If they ſhall be damned (whatſoever an impious world think or ſay to the contrary) who neglected to comfort the ſick, and the priſoners; how dreadful and heavy ſhall their judgement be, who afflict the ſervants of Chriſt, caſt them into priſon, or with heavy exactions take from them their means of comfort? there remaineth yet one way for them to eſcape the ſevere, and otherwiſe inevitable wrath of a juſt God; that is, by true and timely repentance; which is not onely in ſaying, God be merciful to me; but in reſtitution, and preſent repairing thoſe whom they have injured or oppreſſed, after the example of Zacheus, Luke 19. 8, 9. and the converted jaylor, Acts 16. 30. 31. 33. 34. who brought Paul and Silas out of the dungeon, and waſhing their ſtripes which he had given them, ſet meat before them, and wherein he could comforted them.

v. 44. When ſaw we thee, &c.] See on verſe 37.

v. 45. to one of the leaſt] Let all oppreſſours now take to heart theſe words, which, will they nill they, they ſhall hear in their judgement: the injuries which are done to the leaſt, meaneſt, or pooreſt ſervant of Chriſt (however men deſpiſe, or judge them evil, it ſkilleth not) he taketh as done to his own ſacred perſon. See Acts 9. 4. becauſe then, the wiſeſt of the ſons of men are not able to determine, who are Chriſts: Gamaliels grave counſel is moſt neceſſary for them, Acts 5. 38. Refrain from theſe men, and let them alone, leſt happily ye be found even to fight againſt God.

v. 46. Theſe ſhall go away] See Daniel 12. 2. John 5. 29. Rev. 14. 11. and 20. 11.

into everlaſting puniſhment] Which verſe 41. he calleth everlaſting fire, in other places, hell, Gehenna, the worm which dyeth not, the lake burning with fire and brimſtone, extream darkneſſe, where ſhall be weeping and gnaſhing of teeth: certainly the moſt intenſe torments of body and ſoul, hopeleſſe, helpleſſe, endleſſe: behold the end of ſin, ſpecially oppreſſion and cruelty.

but the righteous into life eternal] Theſe ſhall go with Chriſt into heaven: in this life elect and reprobates are mixed together, like the tares and wheat, chap. 13. the ſeparation ſhall be in the day of judgement; the reprobate ſhall live alſo, but to eternall puniſhment: to theſe (ſaith Auguſtine de ſpir. & anim. cap. 56. mors eſt ſine morte, finis ſine fine) death is without death, and the end without end. (See on verſe 41.) but the elect ſhall live in an endleſſe, changleſſe, full, ſecure, and unſpeakable happineſſe, eternally fillled with joy and glory.

CHAP. XXVI.

Verſe 1. WHen Jeſus had finiſhed] All the forementioned ſpeeches concerning the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and his glorious coming to judgement.

he ſaid to his diſciples] They onely were now with him; to whom he would reveal the inſtancie of his paſſion; to enform them that he layed down his life for the elect; and foreknowing that which ſhould befall him, he went willingly to Jeruſalem, to do his Fathers will, concerning which he here enformeth them, to prevent the ſcandal, which might otherwiſe have dangerouſly ſhaken their faith, if they ſhould have conceived his ſufferings fortuitous, compulſory, and involuntary. Which doctrine, though it was for the preſent, but like new ſowed ſeed under clods, no growth thereof yet appearing, it did after the reſurrection of Chriſt, ſpring up to no ſmall maturity of faith and confidence in them, and thoſe who ſince believe, in that therein appeareth the voluntary ſacrifice for the remiſſion of ſins, and his admirable victory over death, which he ſo willingly encountered.

v. 2. You know] Mark 14. 1. Luke 22. 1. John 13. 1. for Chriſt had often foretold them of his death. See on chap. 17. 22.

Paſſeover] It was requiſite that Chriſt whom the Paſcal Lamb repreſented, ſhould be offered up at that feaſt. See on Luke 22. 1. and undoubtedly, it was by the divine providence of God, that the ſacrilegious prieſts and elders of the Jews, who had ſo often ſought occaſions of putting Jeſus to death, ſhould not at any other time finde it, then at this ſolemnity of the Paſſeover: that he then ſuffering might actually ſhew, that he was indeed that Lamb of God, which taketh away the ſins of the world. John 1. 29. to the end, that now the legal ſhadows might ceaſe, in the exhibition of him, and the work by him to be performed for the accompliſhment of our redemption, which had been long before promiſed and prefigured: ſo were the legal ceremonies fulfilled in their change; and ſo it appeareth that the Paſſeover was not onely appointed to remember them of their deliverance from the Egyptian bondage; but to aſſure the faithfull of a greater, and more happy one, from the ſpiritual Pharaoh, and his heavy-handed taſk-maſters, ſin, and death eternal.

v. 3. Then aſſembled] As John 11. 47. John ſheweth the cauſe of this their convention; becauſe the people more and more flocked to him daily: and Caiphas counſelled to deſtroy him, as if he could no otherwiſe be overcome then by death; in which was indeed the moſt glorious victory of Chriſt and the elect: the general advice was, not at the feaſt, leaſt the people ſhould tumult: yet here it appeareth, that nothing was diſpoſed by them, but by the divine hand of God, no not ſo much as the time of his paſſion: they who propoſed only to kill Jeſus, judged another time more ſeaſonable, but God, who appointed hereby both to redeem the elect, and to ſtrengthen their faith concerning the ſame, appointed this very time for Chriſts paſſion.

Caiphas] See on Luke 3. 2.

v. 4. by ſubtilty] They durſt not take him by force for fear of the people.

and kill him] By the power and authority of the Roman Preſident, which they thought their ſafeſt way, Acts 3. 15.

v. 5. Not on the feaſt day] That is, of the Paſſeover; for that muſt be ſpent in holy duties: after that the Galileans to whom he is ſo much known, will be gone home again: this reſolution they changed, when Judas preſented them a ſooner opportunity, by his offering to deliver Chriſt unto them.

v. 6. Now when Jeſus] Mark 14. 3. John 11. 1. this ſtory was before the aſſembly of the prieſts; for it was ſix dayes before the Paſſeover, John 12. 1. and the aſſembly was but two dayes before, verſ. 1. 3. but it is ſet after, becauſe it was the occaſion of Judas repairing unto the prieſts.

of Simon the leper] Who had been a leper, if he had been ſo ſtill, Chriſt would not have eaten with him contrary to the law: it may be he had been healed by Chriſt, and now made him a feaſt, as John 12. 2. and as Matthew did after his calling to be an Apoſtle, Mark 2. 14. 15. Luke 5. 29. John nameth the woman who anointed our Saviours feet, which Matthew and Mark omit, and theſe mention the name of the man, which John omitteth; John ſaith ſhe anointed his feet, Matthew and Mark ſay the head: both were anointed; for the ointment being ſo abundantly poured on his head, ſome ran down to his feet. See on John 12. 3.

v. 7. a woman] Mary ſiſter of Lazarus, Joh. 12. 3. of divers who anointed Chriſt, See Iſ. Caſaub. exerc. 14. n. 17. et ib. n. 26.

an alabaſter box] Theſe boxes kept ointment without corruption, as ſome ſay. See hereof Plin. N. hiſt. lib. 36. 8. and lib. 13. 2. of very precious ointment] μύρου βαρυτίμου, ointment of an heavy price, that is, πολυτίμου. So the Syriack סגי דמין ſaggi demio, of great price. See verſe 9.

on his head] As they uſed to do to welcome their friends, and chief gueſts, Luke 7. 47. Pſal. 23. 5.

v. 8. his diſciples] One of them, to wit, Judas who bare the bag, John 12. 4. 6. See like phraſe, chap. 27. 41. with Luke 23. 39 or it may be others might ſecond Judas in it.

this waſte] Unneceſſary ſpending of precious ointment.

v. 9. and given to the poor] Under a pretence of charity to the poor, he clokes his own covetous, and theeviſh affection, who would have been filching ſome part thereof for his own private uſe, had ſuch a ſum come into his hands. See John 12. 6. though the other diſciples if they ſeconded him therein might ſpeak ſimply, and mean well to the poor.

v.10. why trouble ye the woman] We ought not raſhly to condemn all, that we think not orderly or reaſonably done. c. 7. 1 ſhe hath wrought a good work] Chriſt, the moſt abſolute pattern of temperance, defendeth this expence, in reſpect of the circumſtances, not to draw it into a common example of waſte: doubtleſſe Mary was moved to this extraordinary work, by a ſecret inſtinct of the Spirit of God, making her confident to perform this office: Chriſts teſtimony was a ſufficient aſſurance to her, of Gods acceptance of her work, though the perverſe condemned it: never any good wanted ſome adverſary to calumniate it: let the impious world (which liketh nothing, but it own) uſe their liberty of raſh judgement; it ſhall be happy for us, if God appear for us. See Iſaiah 50.7. 1 Cor. 4.2. Rom. 8.33.

v. 11. For ye have the poor] Deut. 15.11. ye ſhall alwayes have occaſion to do good to the poor: but this is the leaſt office of love and piety, wherein ſhe can ſhew her gratitude to me, who ſhall very ſhortly be taken from you.

v. 12. for my burial] For a preparation to my burial. Mark ſaith, chap. 14. 8. ſhe is come aforehand to anoint my body to the burying: for this reſpect Chriſt accepted it, that in this ſigne, they might, as in the figure learn, that his ſepulchre ſhould breath out the ſweet ſavour of life and ſalvation to the elect. See John 12. 7. alſo, anointing the dead (then in uſe. Mark 16. 1. John 19. 40.) was no idle ceremony, but a token of their hope and aſſurance of the reſurrection from the dead.

v. 13. whereſoever this goſpel] The Syriack hath, this my goſpel: the goſpel in general, not onely this part thereof: thus he confirmed what he had ſaid before: Mary was ſo far from being blame worthy, that the memory of this act of piety, ſhall live to all ages: true and happy applauſe, is not from men, who many times miſtake, but God who will ſet a juſt price on the ſaints works, however men undervalue them. See Rom. 2. 29. 1 Cor. 4. 5. 2 Cor. 8. 18.

in the whole world] This made much for the conſolation, and confirmation of the diſciples (that Chriſt here, not obſcurely intimateth their ſucceſſe in preaching the goſpel, not onely in Judea, but all the known world) as alſo of us, whoſe calling and ſalvation, Chriſt intended before, and in his paſſion.

there ſhall alſo this] He gently taxeth their raſh cenſure of Maries fact; and for that they had not his future kingdom in a due eſteem: as if he had ſayed, you think it much which is thus beſtowed on me; but my kingdom ſhall be glorious through the world (Iſaiah 11. 10.) you cenſure her love and beneficence; but the odours thereof ſhall not onely fill this houſe of Bethany, but the whole world, in which her memory ſhall be honoured.

for a memorial of her] The memory of ought done for Chriſt, or any of his, God will not ſuffer to periſh, Pſal 112.6. the memory of the juſt is bleſſed, Prov. 10. 7.

v. 14. Then one of the twelve] Mark 14. 20. Luke 22. 3. What ſociety of men ſhall we finde free from traitors, when the holy family of Jeſus, hath a Judas?

Judas Iſcariot] See on chap. 10. 4. and on Luke 22. 3. and John 6. 71.

went to the chief prieſts] He undertook the betraying of his Maſter, not ſolicited by them; but offering himſelf to this imployment. See Luke 22. 4. he knew that they hated Chriſt, and would gladly deſtroy him, ſo that he ſhould be ſurely welcome to them with this offer: ſo eaſily fall they into mutual complyance, who are led by one, and the ſame ſpirit: Satan was entred into Judas, John 13. 27. 30. the Phariſees were filled with the deviliſh ſpirit of envy and malice, James 3. 14. 15. Matth. 27. 18. to them therefore he goeth, confident of a market: of chief prieſts, ſee Mark 14. 1. and chap. 27. 1.

v. 15. What will ye give me, &c?] So miſchievous a root of evil, is covetouſneſſe (1 Tim. 6. 9. 10.) That it will eaſily ſet Chriſt himſelf to ſale. This unhappy wretch will make up his thieviſh hope of gain which he promiſed himſelf, or would have had for the precious ointment, out of the ſale of his holy maſter: nor doth he ſet any definite price, but aſk an indefinite one; as one willing at any rate to part with his intereſt, putteth the price to the buyers pleaſure.

and I will deliver him] This was Satans maſter-piece on Judas, whom he had as his liege-man: to make the traitor hang himſelf, was much to perſwade a ſelf-loving caitive to, but the juſt judgement of God on the traitor: on Satans part principally evil, in that he did not ſooner put him on to ſelf-execution, which at laſt muſt be ſo; on Judas part, in all this action the onely appearance of good (there is nothing good in ſin, but the juſt puniſhment thereof) but to make himſelf an holy Jeſus (the ineſtimable, matchleſſe price of our redemption) at ſo poor a price, ſets off to admiration, the malice of Satan, and the impudent preſumption of the covetous traitor. The ſale of Joſeph bit the ſellers conſcience, with ſad remorſe at laſt. (See Gen. 42. 21. and 44. 16.) God will certainly finde out all unrepented wickedneſſe, ſpecially ſuch: they ſold a brother, not the Lords anointed: Slaves are ſold, not Lords. Remember Lots wife, ſaith our Saviour, Luke 17. 32. remember Judas, you that think it lawful gain by any ſale; take heed of covetouſneſſe, it will make thee willing to betray Chriſt; and ſo, not much more innocent, then if thou didſt.

thirty pieces of ſilver] See chap. 17. 9. So much as a ſlave was valued at, Exod. 21. 32. See how mean accompt Judas makes of his Maſter.

v. 16. from that time] From the time that he had contracted with the high prieſts for the treaſon.

he ſought opportunity] Luke 22. 6. Expreſſeth it; that he was to deliver him ἄτερ ὄχλου, without the multitude, in their abſence, or without ſtirring them, without tumult; when the multitude might not know of it, who were wont to follow him. Sometime when he was private, onely with his diſciples: which as Origen notes, he did by finding opportunity of night, and his being with his diſciples onely in the garden at Gethſemane, without the city; he greedily longed to perform his wicked undertaking, that he might have his money promiſed him, verſ. 15.

v. 17. the firſt day of the feaſt of unleavened bread] That is, of the Paſcal ſolemnity, during which no leavened bread might be had, Exod. 12. 19, 20. to wit, on the fourteenth day of Niſan, on which, preparation was made, for the eating the Paſcal Lamb the night enſuing, Exod 12. 6. 18.

v. 18. to ſuch a man] They are taught how to finde him, Mark 14. 13, 14. Luke 22. 10, 11.

my time is at hand] The time of my death.

v. 20. When the even was come] Mark 14. 18. Luke 22. 14. John 13. 21. The Evangeliſt noteth the time preſcribed by the law to eat the Paſſeover, Exod. 12. 6. Levit. 23. 5. Deut. 16. 6. thou ſhalt ſacrifice the paſſeover בערב bahareb, 70 ἑσπέρας, in the evening, that is, between the two evenings, or before it was dark. ערב harab, properly ſignifieth, mixed; ſo here it may be ſpoken of the mixture of light and darkneſſe; the end of the day, and beginning of night, in a doubtful twilight to ſhew us, how Chriſt our Paſſeover fulfilled the law.

he ſate down with the twelve] ἀνέκειτο, it ſignified ſuch a poſture, as fitted that ſolemnity; ſo Æmilius Portus, the interpreter of Suidas giveth κεῖμαι, jaceo, or, ſitus ſum; ſo Thucydides ſaith, the city κεῖσθαι καλῶς, to be well ſituate; ſo is the compound ἀνακεῖσθαι uſed alſo; ſome interpret this ἀνέκειτο here, he ſupped or eat the Paſſeover, that is, in that poſture which was preſcribed, Exod. 12. 11. which poſſibly might be ſtanding; and the Syriack uſeth a word here סמך of the ſame value with the Hebrew סמך, ſemach, which in the firſt ſignification importeth, innixus fuit, he leaned, (as here in the firſt inſtitution on the ſtaff which he was to have in his hand) and ſo alſo incubuit. But by the general conſent of the learned in thoſe rites, that poſture mentioned Exod. 12. 11. as the ſprinkling of the lintels and door poſts with the blood of the Lamb, appertained onely to that one night, in which Iſrael was to come out of Egypt in haſte; and was not to be continued after their ſetling in Canaan; ſo that there appeareth not any neceſſity to conclude, that Chriſt adminiſtred the Paſſeover ſtanding, and afterwards ſat down to the ſecond courſe, or common ſupper, as if this ἀνέκειτο related only to that, and not the former poſture; ſome learned Divines are here of one opinion, and ſome of another.

with the twelve] Here appeareth the admirable impudency of this blinde traitor; who after he had ſold his Lord, cometh again to preſent his ſervice; and to ſit at table with him; poſſibly he hoped that Chriſt knew it not (though he had formerly ſeen ſo many experiments of Chriſts omniſcience) or he might think, that for his admirable meekneſſe, he would not reveal it; ſo preſumptuous are wicked men; ſo merciful and long ſuffering Chriſt, who well knowing Judas from the beginning, yet permitted him to communicate with him, and his holy apoſtles: yea, ſaith Auguſtine ep. 163. Eleaſio & Felici, he ſuffered his betrayer, (who had already received his price) to remain amongſt the innocent; uſq; ad ultimum pacis oſculum; which (had there been any prejudice to the holy, by his ſociety,) he would never have permitted.

v. 21. one of you ſhall betray me] Seeing the impudency of Judas, who having conſpired with his enemies, and contracted for the price of his blood, yet durſt boldly preſent himſelf to this holy ſacrament, he thought good to forewarne his diſciples, by diſcovering the traitor; that by ſtriking a terrour into his conſcience, he might lead him to repentance, or leave him unexcuſable to the ſeveritie of Gods juſtice; one of you my diſciples; this was to render, and declare the treaſon the more deteſtable; he could have named him at the firſt; but thus he revealed the treaſon, and concealed the traitor, until his incorrigible impudency enforced a detection of the perſon alſo.

v. 22. they were exceeding ſorrowful] That he muſt die now, that by treaſon, that by one of them, none but Judas knowing who the traitor was.

every one of them to ſay] Or, ſaid each one of them, verſe 74.

is it I?] Every one fearing, that himſelf might be within the compaſſe of others ſuſpicion: and deſirous that Chriſt pronouncing for him, might before the reſt of the diſciples acquit him of their jealouſie.

v. 23. he that dippeth] Or hath dipped, Pſalm 41. 9. one of them that now eateth with me, as Mark 14. 20. Luke 22. 21.

v. 24. The Son of man goeth] Out of this world, or he ſhall be put to death.

as it is written of him] His death with the remarkable circumſtances thereof, and the means, by treaſon, was all foretold by the former Prophets, Luke 24. 26. 44. Iſaiah 53. 4, 5, 7, 9, 12. Pſalm 41. 9.

but woe unto that man] He cannot hurt me, but he will make himſelf eternally unhappy.

good for that man] God will glorifie his juſtice in puniſhing him: but it had bin better for himſelf, that he had never had any being.

v. 25. which betrayed him] Judas who a while after betrayed him, and was now plotting it, verſe 16.

thou haſt ſaid] Thou haſt ſaid the truth: compare verſe 64. with Mark 14. 62.

v. 26. as they were eating] Before they removed from the table: for it is not likely, that Chriſt would mix the Lords Supper with the Paſſeover: and it is ſaid Luke 22. 20. 1 Cor. 11. 25. of the cup, that he took it after ſupper, that is, after the Paſcal ſupper.

Jeſus took bread] 1 Cor. 11. 23, 24.

bleſſed it] Many Greek copies have εὐχαριστήσας, giving thanks. Chriſt minding forthwith to fulfill the promiſes of the Old Teſtament, inſtituteth a new covenant, with new ſignes; and conſecrates them with prayer to God, conſiſting, partly of praiſe and thankſgiving to God his Father, verſe 27. and partly of petition for a bleſſing upon the elements, as Luke 9. 16. and yet, the bread and wine are changed, not in nature, but in uſe: for they become undoubted tokens of Chriſts body, and blood, by his own inſtitution, that faith may finde what to lay hold on, both in the word, and in the elements.

this is my body] Either by a trope called Metonymia, one name is put for another; the bread is called Chriſts body, becauſe it is a ſigne thereof: or by a figurative enuntiation, the bread is ſaid to be his body, becauſe it repreſenteth his body, truly and properly ſo termed; as the rock is ſaid to have been Chriſt, becauſe it repreſented Chriſt, 1 Cor. 10. 4. both in effect come to one, the phraſe being Sacramental, and of common uſe in ſpeech of ſignes and reſemblances, either ſacred, or other: Geneſ. 17. 13. and 40. 18. and 41. 26, 27. Exod 12. 11. Matth. 13. 38. Revel. 17. 9. 12. 15. 18. See on Luke 22. 19.

v. 27. the cup] To wit, with the wine in it, verſe 29.

gave thanks] As verſe 26. the prayer which then he uſed, conſiſted, as before, of two parts; it is called ſometimes by the name of the one part, a thankſgiving, as here; ſometimes by the name of the other part, a bleſſing, as 1 Cor. 10. 16.

drink ye all of it] They then which take away the Cup from the people, do not according to Chriſts inſtitution of this ſacrament, to be received of all in both kindes, which they then ſtrictly obſerved.

v. 28. this is my blood] The wine in this cup is a ſeal of the covenant ratified in my blood, which ſhall be ſhed ſhortly, to procure new legacies for many. See Exod. 24. 8. See here verſe 26.

of the new teſtament] Whereby the inheritance of eternal life is given as a legacie to all true beleevers, or of the new covenant.

which is ſhed] That ſhall ſhortly be ſhed. See the like phraſe chap. 3. 10. See on Luke 22. 20.

for many] Not for you alone, but for many others. See John 17. 20.

for the remiſſion of ſins] To ſatisfie Gods juſtice for their ſins, that in mercy, through the merits of Chriſt he may forgive them, who could make no ſatisfaction for themſelves, Rom. 3. 25. 26. Epheſ. 1. 7.

v. 29. I will not drink henceforth] This is the laſt ſolemn meal, or feaſt, that I ſhall make with you on earth: but I ſhall converſe with you after my reſurrection for a time, and to all eternity in a new ſpiritual way, in heaven.

till I drink it new] In a new kinde, after my reſurrection: the main thing here intended, is an expreſſion of the heavenly joy.

v. 30. an hymne] Or Pſalm; when they had made an end of their other ſolemn ſinging; which, ſome think, was of theſe ſix Pſalms, Pſal. 112. and 113. and 114. and 115. and 116. and 117. it may be, ſome other.

to the mount] Towards it, for Gethſemane lay between the brook Kidron, and mount Olivet.

v. 31. Then] About that time; for the words immediately following ſeem by Luke and John to be ſpoken in the houſe.

all ye] Mark 14. 27. John 16. 32.

ſhall be offended] See on chap. 11. 6.

for it is written] That ſhall not fail which is written of me; it was ſuch a ſpeech, as may be proverbially uſed: when the ſhepherd is ſmitten, the ſheep are ſcattered.

I will ſmite the ſhepherd] Zech. 13. 7. Chriſt here (as John 10.) compareth himſelf to a ſhepherd, in whoſe paſſion the diſciples ſhould be ſcattered for fear.

v. 32. I will go before you] This he ſaith to comfort them; his ſmiting ſhould be but for a ſhort time: but he ſhould quickly go before them again, like a ſhepherd before his flock, Mark 14. 28. and 16. 7.

v. 33. yet will I never be offended] Peter truſted overmuch in his own ſtrength, which is a dangerous confidence.

v. 34. before the cock crow] John 13. 38. his morning crow to break of day, Mark 13. 35. or crow thrice, as Mark 14. 30. for Peter denyed him once before the firſt cock-crowing, and thrice before the ſecond, Mark 14. 68. 72.

thou ſhalt deny me] Thou that art now more forward in promiſing, then the reſt, ſhall yet not onely be offended at me, but alſo utterly deny me, that ever thou kneweſt me.

v. 35. Though I ſhould die with thee] Peter meant no leſſe: but was not yet well acquainted with his own infirmity.

likewiſe alſo ſaid all the diſciples] Leſt they ſhould ſeem inferiour to Peter in love and dutie, in affection, or fidelitie; they equal him in words, though not altogether in their failing: they were all warned as well as Peter, in the general of their being ſcattered, yet were thus confident; therefore Chriſt leaveth them to the experience of their own diſability.

v. 36. then cometh Jeſus] Mark 14. 32. Luke 22. 39.

Gethſemane] The valley of fatneſſe, neer mount Olivet; like that, by Lebanon, Iſaiah 28. 1. 4. or an oil-preſſe, as ſome interpret the name; or the paſture of butter, as others; howſoever the name ſeems to import a rich and fat ſoil. See Geneſ. 27. 28, 29. Chriſt is not taken in the city, leſt the people ſhould reſcue him: nor in the day time; but in the night, and in a ſolitary place, to which he was retired.

ſit ye here] See the like Geneſ. 22. 5.

v. 37. Peter and the two ſons of Zebedee] who had been in private with him, to ſee his divine power and glory, (to arme them againſt any ſcandal to be taken at his ſufferings) to wit, at the raiſing of Jairus daughter from the dead, chap. 9. and in his transfiguration on the mount chap. 17.

very heavy] This ſhews the truth of his humane nature; in that he feared death, and felt ſo much ſorrow at the approach thereof; but the reaſon chiefly was, becauſe it brought with it a deep ſenſe of his Fathers wrath, againſt ſin, and ſinners; for whom he was now to ſuffer, and become a ranſome.

v. 38. My ſoul is exceeding ſorrowful] Thus he expreſſeth the grievouſneſſe of his approaching paſſion for ſinners, in whoſe place he ſtood a ſurety, that they might afterward reſent his admirable love to the elect, and preach the ſame to the edifying of others: as alſo to ſtirre them up to an holy ſympathy.

and watch with me] He ſaith not, watch and pray for me, as if he had need of their prayers, or mediation; but to expreſſe a common danger (whereof he had warned them verſe 31.) leſt themſelves ſhould enter into temptation, which he ſaw now imminent over them.

v. 39. fell on his face] Mark ſaith, he proſtrated himſelf, in effect it is the ſame. Luke ſaith, he kneeled on the earth, it may be ſo firſt, and after proſtrated; all is to expreſſe a vehement and ardent humility in prayer; for which the moſt humble poſture is beſt, as to acknowledge God, the Lord of body and ſoul; ſo is it the more apt to ſtirre up our ſelves and others to fervency of ſpirit, which is the life of prayer: Look on Jeſus in this poſture, you unreverend profeſſours of faith in him; how wretched an impudencie do you expreſſe, while with unbended knees, and zealeſſe hearts, you petition him, now ſitting at the right hand and glory of God the Father, careleſly ſitting? The Lord Jeſus in the dayes of his fleſh kneeled, and proſtrated himſelf on the earth, and are you too good to bend the knee to him in prayer, who deſcended ſo low to ſave you?

let this cup paſſe from me] A kinde of expreſſion which the Hebrews uſed, to ſignifie Gods wrath, and mans afflictions in the execution thereof, under the ſimilitude of a cup. See chap. 20. 22. See on Luke 22. 42. he ſaith, if it be poſſible; that is, as Auguſtin lib. 3. de Conſenſ. Evang. c. 4. interpreteth; if it be thy holy will: the ſame epiſt. 121. Proba. noteth; that God giveth to ſome in anger, and denieth others in mercy: he gave the Iſraelites quails. Num. 11. he gave the devil that which he deſired and begged, leave to enter into the ſwine (Luke 8. 32.) Theſe things are written, leſt any ſhould think highly of himſelf, that he is heard, in that which it had been good for him not to have obtained: and leſt any ſhould deject himſelf, or deſpair of Gods mercy, if he be not heard in ſomething which he petitioneth for; quo accipiendo affligatur atrocius vel à proſperitate corruptus, penitùs evertatur. ib. c. 14. in receiving whereof he ſhould be more heavily afflicted, or (corrupted by proſperity) quite overthrown: we know not what to pray as we ought. Rom. 8. 26, the ſafeſt way is to learn of our Saviour, not as I will, but as thou wilt: not what I would in my humane infirmity, but what thou wilt, and knoweſt beſt in thy divine will, and wiſedom.

v. 40. findeth them aſleep] Here is an example of mans infirmity, in dueties moſt important; ſpecially in ſorrow, or any other vehement perturbation of minde. See on Luke 22. 45.

and ſaid unto Peter] Who had promiſed and proteſted ſo much before, with him he reproves the reſt: to ſhew the moſt confident, how unable they are, of themſelves, to reſiſt temptation; and conſequently, what need they have to watch and pray.

one hour] If ye cannot watch with me one hour, how much leſſe would you be able (as you profeſſed) to ſuffer death for, or with me?

v. 41. Watch and pray] See chap. 24. 42. This watchfulneſs is not ſo much from ſleep, as carnal ſecurity, but now he bids them take heed of both theſe; neither is it enough to watch to diſcover the dangerous approaches of the enemy, but we muſt alſo implore the mercifull aſſiſtance of the Lord, that we may be able to withſtand.

that ye enter not into temptation] That ye be not tempted: becauſe they were drouzie in his great conflict, he awakeneth them to a ſenſe of their own hazard: as if he had ſaid, except you watch and pray (how ever confident you are of your own ſtrength) a fearfull ſtorm of temptations will endanger your faith: this is that he ſaid to Peter, Satan hath deſired to winnow you. Luke 22. 31. therefore Peter afterwards, thus endeavoured to ſtrengthen his brethren: be ſober and watch, &c. 1 Pet. 5. 8. he ſaith not ye ſhall be overcome; but ſheweth the means by them to be uſed, that they may not be overcome, which is not in their own ſtrength, but Gods aſſiſtance.

the ſpirit indeed is willing] You have through Gods grace, a good will; but the corruption of fleſh and blood much hindreth: by ſpirit, he meaneth that affection which was guided by the holy Ghoſt, the regenerate part: by fleſh, he meaneth the remainder of corrupted nature: he remembreth them of the one, leſt they ſhould deſpair; and of the other, leſt they ſhould preſume on their own ability, and ſo be overcome in their ſecurity; theſe two Paul expreſſeth. Rom. 7. 18. 23.

v. 42. If this cup] Since this cup may not be avoided. See on verſe 39.

thy will be done] This is the voice of one reſting on Gods will. See chap 6. 10. Acts 21. 14. Thus Chriſt taught us, both by precept and example, to ſubmit our wills and deſires, to Gods good pleaſure: this he ſaith, not that his will differed, or was contrary to the will of his Father; for as Gregor. Nazianzen ſaith, orat. 36. ὡς μία θεότης, οὕτω καὶ βούλησις, as the God-head is one, ſo alſo is the will of God: but for that the will of the aſſumed nature was ſubject to humane infirmity, without ſin; which therefore (even in that it would not have ſuffered, as man) yet ſubmitted it ſelf to the will of God, by that abundance of the ſpirit which dwelt in him bodily. Coloſ. 2. 9. whereby he alſo obeyed to the death. Phil. 2. 8. willingly: for, as Proſper noteth (ſentent. ex Auguſtino) nemo invitus benè facit, etiam ſi bonum eſt quod facit: no man unwillingly doth well, though that be good which he doth.

v. 43. and found them aſleep again] Being oppreſſed with ſorrow, as Luke expreſſeth it: this ſheweth the neceſſity we have to watch and pray, ſeeing our very dangers make us dull and unmindfull to call on God: ſo both in joy and ſorrow, Satan layeth his ſnares: ſo frail are we after many warnings, in the midſt of greateſt hazards we are apt to forget our ſelves.

v. 44. prayed the third time] As 2 Cor. 12. 8. Leaving us an enſample of perſeverance in prayer.

ſaying the ſame words] Which yet, nothing detracted either, from the ſubſtance, or efficacy of his prayer: this was no vain repetition (which he forbade. chap. 6. 7.) but an invincible, and unwearied fervency of ſpirit. See Luke 22. 44.

v. 45. Sleep on now] Infirm fleſh and blood is ſtill like it ſelf, hardly amended by any admonitions: therefore he telleth them, ye may ſleep now; or ye will have little liſt to ſleep anon, whether I awake you or no, your enemies will awake you, though my admonitions have not yet: this is Gods uſuall method, where words prevail not, afflictions muſt.

into the hands of ſinners] To the power of the Roman ſouldiers. See Acts 2. 23. Gal. 2. 15. So God ſtill afflicteth and correcteth his children by the wicked; yea, and by Satan himſelf. Rev. 2. 10.

v. 46. Riſe, let us be gone] Let us go meet them: Chriſt offered himſelf willingly to be taken; that in ſuffering willingly, he might make ſatisfaction for the wilfull fall of man: this ſheweth the effect of his prayers, and a new ſupply of ſtrength, and his victory over that fear and infirmity of fleſh and blood, with which he had wreſtled; he now willingly meeting with his enemies, and his paſſion, and offering up himſelf a voluntary oblation (as was prefigured. Exod. 35. 5. 21. 29.) ſo ſaith he, not let us flie, but let us go hence. John 14. 31. that is to meet with the armed band, which he knew were then coming to to take him.

v. 47. While he yet ſpake] Mark 14. 43. Luke 22. 47. John 18. 3.

Judas one of the twelve came] For he was their leader and captain. Luke 22. 47. he was awake to betray Chriſt, when the reſt were aſleep: it is the miſery of ſecure fleſh and blood; the righteous (too ſecurely meaſuring others by their own ſhadows, and confident in the goodneſſe of their cauſe) are not ſo vigilant for good, as the wicked are for evil: ſo good men ſleep while theeves and murderers watch to pillage and deſtroy them: the willing ſpirit is infirm, while ſleepleſſe malice is patient of any labour or hardſhip to accompliſh its deſigne.

with him a great multitude] He had the place of an Apoſtle, to lead men to the faith of Chriſt, but he leadeth them to deſtroy Chriſt; what is, or ever was worſe, then the beſt things corrupted? you ſee whoſe diſciples they are, who lead multitudes, againſt Chriſt and his truth.

with ſwords and ſtaves] To take him by force, as they uſed to apprehend malefactours. verſe 55. and to keep him from reſcue.

v. 48. gave them a ſigne] Becauſe many of them knew him not, and others might be miſtaken in the night.

whomſoever I ſhall kiſſe] In effect he ſaith, whomſoever I ſhall familiarly ſalute: for in ſuch ſalutes, they were wont to kiſſe. 1 Sam. 10. 1. & 20. 41. 2 Sam. 14. 33 & 15. 5. & 19. 39. Exod. 18. 7. Acts 20. 37. 2 Sam. 20. 9. Luke 7. 45. Rom. 16. 1 Cor. 16. 20. 1 Theſ. 5. 26. 1 Pet. 5. 14. So that Judas is not ſaid to have named him, but to give a ſigne of friendſhip, that he might under that ſemblance play the traytour; how vainly impudent are ſinners, hoping to impoſe on God? Jeſus foreſaw all this and diſcovered it.

v. 49. hail Maſter] χαῖρε ῥαββί, It was an uſuall form of ſalutation which the Hebrews expreſſed by שלום לך ſhalom lecha, or שלום לך ſhalom lach. Jud. 6. 23. & 19. 20. 1 Sam. 25. 6. 1 Chron. 12. 18. Exod. 18. 7. they asked each other לשלום to peace, or of peace, and each others welfare; the 70. give it καὶ ἠσπάσαντο ἀλλήλους, they ſaluted each other: the Greek, here tranſlated to the letter, ſignifieth rejoyce: which the Latines interpret, ſalve, as we ſay, God ſave you: ſo this traytour, in words wiſheth Chriſt proſperity, joy, and ſafety, as in generall, ſo poſſibly he would be underſtood concerning the preſent danger of his enemies; as if he had been none of their company: ſo impudent is he, that he bluſheth not to lie againſt ſo evident a truth; of him may be ſaid that is written, Pſal. 55, 21. The words of his mouth were ſmoother then butter, but war was in his heart—and he calleth him Maſter, whoſe Magiſterie he not onely acknowledgeth not, but openly contemneth, by leading up an armed company to apprehend him as a malefactour.

v. 50. Friend wherefore art thou come?] He upbraideth not his perfidiouſneſſe, but with all mildeneſſe inviteth him to repentance: thus ſtiling him, he ſaith not what he was; but what he ſhould have been; or what he ſeemed, but was not: nor aſketh he the cauſe of his coming, as not knowing it, for he had before detected him; but as openly reproving him; as if he had ſaid, thou haſt confederated with mine enemies to deſtroy me; thou haſt forſaken my ſervice, and the fellowſhip of theſe my Diſciples; wherefore comeſt thou to us again? what haſt thou to do here? by theſe like queſtions, he would recall the traytour to confer with his own conſcience: I know thee well, and thy intention; conſider, and be aſhamed of thy treaſon, by ſo much more deteſtable, by how much more vailed with ſemblance of love.

laid hands on Jeſus] God ſo permitting, that thereby the work of our redemption might be accompliſhed in his death and paſſion: he is taken, that we may be delivered.

v. 51. One of them] Namely Peter; and the ſervants name was Malchus, whoſe right ear was cut off. John 18. 10.

drew his ſword] Miſunderſtanding Chriſts words. Luke 22. 36. 38.

v. 52. Put up again thy ſword] Thou art no Magiſtrate to right me, nor am I to be defended by the ſword.

for all they] Gen. 9. 6. Rev. 13. 10. He meaneth all they who kill, being not called thereto by the ordinance of God, either by a generall warrant, as the Magiſtrate; or ſome ſpeciall command from God, as 2 Kings 9. 7. all ſhall periſh who ſmite for private revenge: he ſpeaketh not of the publike Magiſtrate, who beareth not the ſword in vain; nor doth he ſo limit the puniſhment of murderers to the ſword, as if none periſhed otherwiſe: the main is to ſhew, that God, who hath determined to maintain humane ſocieties, will commonly make them exemplary in this life, who are deſtructive to others: rarely doth murder go unpuniſhed here. See Pſal. 55. 23.

v. 53. Thinkeſt thou] This is the ſecond reaſon whereby Chriſt repreſſeth Peters endeavour ſo to defend him: he had no need of mans defence, who was now to die for mans redemption: cannot I deſtroy my enemies by my word which gave them life? have I not innumerable companies of Angels ready to defend me, if I would give them commiſſion ſo to do? See Auguſtin. Honorat. epiſt. 120. c. 11.

twelve legions] The Roman army conſiſted ordinarily of twelve legions: ſuch an army of Angels could Chriſt have had: or it is a definite number for an indefinite; more then twelve, importeth an infinite number. See Dan. 7. 10 2 Kings 19. 35. Iſa. 37. 36. he here oppoſeth Angels, to men; many to few; heavenly to earthly; the invincible to the infirm; where theſe charge, an hoſt is not able to infeſt one of them. See on Luke 8. 30.

v. 54. But how then] The reaſon why I do not now pray to God for Angels to defend me, is becauſe the ſcripture hath foretold my death for mans ſalvation; not that I doubt of ſpeeding, were it neceſſary, and according to my Fathers will.

that thus it muſt be] Iſaiah 53. 10. As ſome ſay, neceſſitate conſequentiæ, non conſequentis, in neceſſitie of conſequence (in reaſon; becauſe God is true) not of the conſequent (in fact, becauſe God is juſt, and his preſcience according to which he revealed this in ſcripture, nihil ponit in eſſe: his foreſeeing of ſin, is no cauſe thereof) for the Jews who thus apprehend, and crucifie Chriſt, are not hereby excuſed; which they muſt have been, had that they did been of ſimple, inevitable neceſſity, not voluntary: there is no neceſſitie to ſin, nor ſin where there is an abſolute neceſſity: for God cannot be the author of any ſin: as there is no ſin in him, ſo neither is there any of him, Fulgent. See Luke 24. 26. 44.

v. 55. Are ye come out] He expoſtulateth with them, who came with ſo much warlike proviſion againſt him; what need you arm ſo many againſt one unarmed man? wickedneſſe is ever cowardly and diffident.

as againſt a theefe] See on verſe 47.

v. 58. But Peter followed him] This is ſet down to make way to the ſtory of Peters denying him. verſe 69. &c.

a far off] As one not belonging to him.

v. 59. Sought falſe witneſſe] They were all reſolved to deſtroy Chriſt, and therefore regard neither equity nor truth; but lay hold of the moſt impious means to compaſſe their deſigne: what greater injuſtice, then for judges to ſuborne falſe witneſſes? malice is ever diligent, but commonly unjuſt.

v. 60. Yet found they none] That could accuſe him of any evil; or whoſe witneſſe agreed. Mark 14. 56. and therefore could they not legally condemn him. See Deut. 17. 6. Thus God did every way ſhew forth his Sons innocency; that it might appear, that he dyed not for himſelf, but us.

two falſe witneſſes] For one would not ſerve. Deut 19. 15. they are called falſe witneſſes, for depraving, and miſreporting Chriſts words and meaning.

v. 61. This fellow] οὗτος; This man. See on ch. 12. 24.

I am able to deſtroy] Though that had been true if he had ſaid it, it was falſe that he did ſay ſo; juſtly might he ſay, every day they wreſt my words; all their thoughts are againſt me for evil. Pſal. 56. 5. he ſpake concerning the temple of his body, which when they ſhould deſtroy, he would raiſe it up in three dayes. John 2. 16. they to render him odious to the people, (overmuch addicted to, and truſting in the dignity of their Temple) teſtifie that he ſaid, that he would raiſe up their materiall Temple in three dayes: we need not wonder that ſo many falſe, and injurious conſtructions are made of our words; thus they uſed Chriſt who could not erre.

v. 62. Anſwereſt thou nothing] Seeing their depoſitions inſufficient, he endeavoureth to draw ſomething from Chriſt himſelf.

v. 63. But Jeſus held his peace] Seeing it was to no end to ſpeak, the ſentence being given, before any witneſſe was examined.

I adjure thee] So 1 Kings 22. 16. Ἐξορκίζω; the meaning is, upon thy oath, and by the authority of a judge; in the name of God, I command thee: In the primitive Church, they were called Exorciſts, who having the gift of miracles, caſt out devils, by calling on the name of Chriſt. See on Acts 19. 13.

that thou tell us whether thou be the Chriſt] This he asketh, not intending to beleeve the truth, but to deſtroy Chriſt; thinking hereby to enſnare him; if he confeſſed it, as a blaſphemer; if he denyed it, as an impoſtour, and deceiver of the people.

v. 64. Thou haſt ſaid] See on chap. 27. 11. It is an ingenuous confeſſion of truth; which Mark more expreſly hiſtorifieth; he ſaid I am.

neverthеleſſe] Or furthermore.

I ſay unto you] I tell you, though ye will not beleeve what I now ſay; but hereafter ſhall, when ye ſee it come to paſſe.

hereafter ye ſhall ſee] Chap. 16. 27. At my ſecond coming; leſt they ſhould conclude, that Chriſt could not be the Son of God, whom they had convented before them, and bound as a malefactour; he who could have convinced them by more evident arguments (the time of his birth; the ſceptre departed from Judah; the place Bethleem; the linage, of the ſeed of David, the manner, of a Virgin; by his doctrine, which he preached to the poor; by his miracles, &c. would propoſe (for preſent) two more obſcure arguments: one from his ſitting at Gods right hand, which they ſhould once ſee: the other from his coming in the clouds of heaven, to judgement: as if he ſaid, you cannot deny him to be the Meſſias, and Son of the living, God whom you ſhall ſee coming to judge you, whom ye ſhal ſee ſitting at Gods right hand: I tell you this now, to leave you unexcuſable then, if ye will not now beleeve.

at the right hand of power] In the higheſt honour with God. Luke 22. 69. of the power of God; that is, of the divine Majeſtie, Hebr. 1. 3. & 8. 1. or of God Almighty. Mark 16. 19. Acts 7. 55. Rom. 8. 34. Epheſ. 1. 20. Coloſ 3. 1.

v. 65. The high prieſt rent his clothes] As if his heart were ready to break, for zeal to Gods honour: ſo the Jews uſed to do at blaſphemie. 2 Kings 18. 37. & 19. 1. So the ancient heathens alſo did in their mourning.

what further need have we of witneſſes] To prove that this man ought to die.

v. 66. What think ye?] What puniſhment do you think him worthy of? he would have Jeſus condemned by a common conſent, and ſentence of all: and asketh that which he full well knew; for they had already condemned him before his tryall, and reſolved to deſtroy him, whatſoever he ſhould or could alleadge in his own juſt defence.

v. 67. Then did they ſpit in his face] A token of contempt, and abhorring. Numb. 12. 14. Iſaiah 50. 6.

and buffetted him] Iſaiah 50. 6.

v. 68. Propheſie unto us] This they required after they had covered his face. Mark 14. 65. as if they had ſaid, by this we will try thee; if thou art ſo much as a Prophet, tell us now, who ſmote thee?

v. 69. Now Peter] Mark Mark 14. 66. Luke 22. 55. John 18. 25.

Jeſus of Galilee] Either for diſtinction ſake, becauſe there were many of that name. Acts 13. 6. Col. 4. 10. or in way of contempt. See John 7. 52.

v. 70. I know not what thou ſayeſt] I neither know him, nor well underſtand what you mean hereby.

v. 71. This fellow] οὗτος, this man. See on chapter 12. 14.

v. 72. I do not know the man] Now he more plainly denied Chriſt then verſe 69. ſins have ſpeedy growths.

v. 73. Thy ſpeech bewrayeth thee] Coming nearer to the Syriac and Samaritan dialect, then that of Jeruſalem. See Judg. 12. 6.

v. 74. Then began he to curſe] Mark by what degrees ſin ſprings up, if once admitted to root: firſt he denies his Maſter, then forſwears him; thirdly curſes himſelf, if he knew him; or imprecateth ſome fearfull miſchief to come upon himſelf, if he knew him: ſee here the wretched fruit of confidence in our ſelves: it is a ſad document hence to be learned; let him that thinks he ſtands, take heed leſt he fall.

v. 75. And Peter remembred] Put in minde of Chriſts words, by the crowing of the cock; and Chriſts looking back upon him. Luke 22. 61.

he went out] Either leſt he ſhould be endangered by diſcoverie, or tempted again, or that he might weep privately. See Gen. 43. 29. paſſionate grief loves ſolitude.

and wept bitterly] The falls of Gods ſervants humble them, and cauſe in them a godly ſorrow to repentance, never to be repented of, and ſelf loathing for their doing that which diſpleaſeth God. See Ezek. 6. 9. See on Luke 22. 62.

CHAP. XXVII.

Verſe 1. W*Hen the morning was come*] Aſſoon as it was day. Luke 22. 66. they ſo much deſired Chriſts death, that they could not ſleep that night. chap. 26. 47. See Prov. 4. 16. malice is vigilant as the devil, and induſtrious to do miſchief.

all the chief prieſts] Mark 15. 1. Luke 22. 66. John 18. 28. By all the chief prieſts, underſtand the high prieſt, his ſurrogate, and thoſe of the Sanhedrim: where the high prieſt and his Sagan, or ſecond high prieſt ſate chief, See 2 Kings 23. 4. for though the high prieſt did not alwayes ſit in that court in perſon, yet in matters relating to the civill and eccleſiaſticall intereſt (as they would have this cauſe of Chriſt to do) wherein both Conſiſtories aſſembled (as here, all the chief prieſts and the elders of the people took counſell againſt Jeſus) there it is moſt likely that the high prieſt and his counſell, would meet with the civill conſiſtory of 70. judges: it is Satans miſchievous policy to unite conſpiratours againſt Chriſt, ſo, as that none of them will be miſſing to an impious convention and enterprize, whereas the ſame findeth his chief advantage againſt truth by dividing the profeſſours thereof, or by making them cold, and ſecure on the goodneſſe of their cauſe.

took counſell] Aſſembled themſelves to adviſe.

to put him to death] They blaſphemouſly accuſed him of blaſphemy: (it is uſuall for the wicked to caſt their own faults upon the guiltleſſe) but fearing that Pilate would not put him to death for that, and themſelves had no power. (John 18. 31.) they now reſolve to endite him of treaſon, and ſedition, as appears in the charge. John 19. 12.

v. 2. When they had bound him] They put on him all appearances of a malefactour: ſo they lead the holy Jeſus bound to Pilate, the Lord of life to be tryed as a delinquent, for his life.

delivered him to Pilate] That they might deſtroy him by the abuſed hand of juſtice: for to have done it privily, would have been infamous and dangerous to the actours, as murder uſeth to be; and in a tumultuous way, would have been apparently dangerous to the liberties of the city, and priviledges of ſtate. See Luke 24. 20. But God in his incomprehenſible wiſedom, and love to mankinde, had appointed, that for the work of our redemption, he ſhould die that death, which was then moſt infamous; that thereby he might deſcend as low by humility, and diſhonour, ſhame and infamy for mans repair, as mans ambition had aimed high, to his own ruine, and deſtruction: there man affected to be as God; here Chriſt God and man, ſuffereth as the worſt of men.

v. 3. When he ſaw that he was condemned] By the conſiſtory of the prieſts, whoſe ſentence he now thought would take effect; which it may be, fell out beſides his expectation, who poſſibly might dream that his Maſter would now have eſcaped their hands by miracle, as at other times he had done. Luke 4. 29, 30. John 10. 39. & 8. 59.

repented himſelf] Was ſorry that he had done it; this was not any effect of faith, or love to God, ſuch as is a condition of pardon. Acts 2. 38. Matth. 9. 13. Mark 1. 4. Luke 24. 47. Acts 11. 18. 2 Cor. 7. 9. 2 Pet. 3. 9. but of deſperate and impatient ſorrow, proceeding of ſelf love, and fear of that which his conſcience told him, he muſt ſuffer; not that he had offended God, or could hope and truely beleeve in his mercy: I beleeve (ſaith Ambroſ. l. 2. de pœn. c. 5. if that book be his) that even Judas might not have been excluded from pardon, by ſo great mercy of God, ſi pœnitentiam non apud Judæos, ſed apud Chriſtum egiſſet] true repentance is in hope of pardon by Chriſt, to turne unto God in newneſſe of life.

and brought again the thirty pieces] To reſtore that which is unjuſtly taken away, is ſuch a neceſſary practice, as that there can be no true repentance without it: but this reſtitution to the prieſts, nothing advantaged Judas, who neither beleeved, nor turned unto the Lord: the thirty pieces were thirty ſhekels, of which, See on Nehem. 5. 15.

v. 4. I have ſinned] Here was contrition, confeſſion to the prieſt, and as much ſatisfaction as Judas could make them; yet no remiſſion: he had ſinned againſt Chriſt, and the prieſts could not forgive him.

innocent blood] Thus he that betrayed him, acknowledged his innocency; which ſerveth to acquit Jeſus, and to condemn Judas: he confeſſed, quaſi evitaſſe ſit pœnam prævenire ſententiam. Cypr. lib. 2. ep. 8. as if to prevent the ſentence, were to avoid the puniſhment; he ſaith innocent blood, that is an innocent man: thus God would wound the conſciences, both of Judas and the impious high prieſts.

what is that to us?] Such is their hardneſſe of heart; they could not ſay he was guilty of any thing, wherewith they could charge him, (though they who gave money to betray him, would have the world beleeve, that they were guiltleſſe) they lay all on Judas; yet they ſtill proceed to kill the Lord of life.

ſee thou to that] Thus audaciouſly do they tranſmit their ſin to others, and in their hardneſſe of heart and impenitency deſiſt not from acting what they knew they had wickedly deſigned; but againſt their own conſciences precipitately go on.

v. 5. He caſt down the pieces] To ſhew his utter diſlike of his own fact; perhaps to perſwade them to deſiſt, and not to preſent him to Pilate to be condemned.

and hanged himſelf] He that betrayed our Saviour, now condemns himſelf to hell, Acts 1. 24. not enduring to ſee his Maſter ſuffer, in whom he could not believe to ſalvation: it is a miſerable ſanctuary againſt ſorrow, which the deſperate ſelf-murderers finde in death.

v. 6. It is not lawfull, &c.] To put them into the treaſury of the temple: the hire of a whore might not be brought into it.

the price of blood] They were not afraid to give money to ſhed blood, but to put it into the treaſury afterward: they feared to defile their treaſury, but not their ſouls. Hypocrites ſtrain at gnats, and ſwallow camels, chap 23. 24.

v. 7. the potters field] The beſt whereof was taken off for the potters uſe: thus even the wicked, unwittingly, and oftentimes unwillingly fulfill that truth of God, which the Prophets have foretold.

to bury ſtrangers in] Men of another religion, with whom the Jews would not be joyned, no not in the grave; or poſſibly, to bury thoſe of their own religion and tribes, who coming out of other nations to Jeruſalem, died there: the price of Chriſts blood purchaſed a place of reſt for us Gentiles, who were ſtrangers, and aliants to the common wealth of Iſrael. unto this day] It had a name from this occaſion, ſo it kept it, till this Goſpel was written: hereby God would have the death of his Son, and their ingratefull wickedneſſe remembred.

v. 9. Then was fulfilled] When the Prieſts bought the potters field, with the thirty pieces of ſilver, which Judas had received for betraying Chriſt, and reſtored unto them again.

by Jeremiah the Prophet] Seeing this propheſie is read in Zachariah, it may be it was delivered at firſt by Jeremiah, and after written by Zachariah, who in many things imitates him, hence the Hebrews ſay, the ſpirit of Jeremiah was in Zachariah: or it might be partly out of Jeremiah, and partly out of Zachariah; for Jeremiah alſo bought a field. chap. 32. or Zachariah might (as many other) have two names.

v. 10. As the Lord appointed me] Theſe words run, as if they were ſpoken by the Prophet, to ſhew that in Zachariah, was a type of that in Matthew.

v. 11. Art thou be king of the Jews?] Becauſe the Jewiſh rulers had, with that accuſation, given him up to Pilate, as one that affected or challenged the crown of Iſrael.

thou ſayeſt it] As the thing is, though not in thy ſenſe. chap. 26. 64. or, doeſt thou ſay it, John 18. 34.

v. 12. He anſwered nothing] To this their ſecond accuſation: he anſwered to the former. verſe 11. now he did not anſwer, either out of a deliberate purpoſe that he might die, or becauſe he knew their reſolution, and what ſhould be. See chap. 26. 63. Iſaiah 53. 7.

v. 13. How many things] Many things indeed were objected, but either of no probability (as that of his affecting the kingdom) or no proof for them, as forbidding payment of tribute to Cæſar; or far from the matter of their preſent charge; as his filling Jewry with his teaching: all which calumnies needed no refutation.

v. 14. to never a word] Or not ſo much as to one thing. as chap. 18. 16. or, not ſo much as one word. Iſaiah 53. 7.

to releaſe a priſoner] One priſoner: it may be they, at the beginning of that cuſtome, deſired it, as a memoriall of their deliverance out of Egypt.

v. 16. A notable priſoner] A robber: John 18. 40. a raiſer of ſedition, and a murderer. Mark 15. 7. Acts 3. 14.

v. 17. When they were gathered together] To wit, when before the multitude there was mention made of this cuſtom. Mark 15. 8.

Barabbas or Jeſus] It appears that Pilate was very willing to ſave Jeſus, in that he ſet ſo vile a man againſt him: very likely it is, that he could have named ſome other priſoner, who had been committed for ſome lighter offence; but he names Barabbas, in hope the people would not have choſen him, but Chriſt.

called Chriſt] By many ſo accounted.

v. 18. He knew that of envy] As well as by what he had heard of him, ſo by their frivolous charges.

they had delivered] That is Jeſus into the civill Magiſtrates hand: ſo true is that of Syneſius, de provident. βασκανία γὰρ ὑπ' ἀρετῆς οὐ παύεται μᾶλλον, ἀλλ' ἐξάπτεται, envy is not ſo much ſuppreſſed by vertue, as inflamed; or not ſo much appeaſed, as enraged.

v. 19. with that juſt man] Guiltleſſe, good, and innocent. See verſe 4. 24. Luke 23. 47. Acts 3. 14. & 22. 14. & 7. 52.

I have ſuffered many things, &c.] I have been much troubled about him in my ſleep this night: which might come to paſſe by ſpeciall providence, the more to atteſt Chriſts innocency, and to render Pilate more unexcuſable.

v. 20. But the chief prieſts] John 18. 40. Acts 3. 14. Here appeareth the devilliſh malice of the prieſts, perſwading the people (whom they ought to have led to Chriſt and ſalvation) to deſtroy Jeſus with their outcries: duces eſſe principes erroris maximè prophanum; Theodoret, in Jerem. it is moſt profane for princes to be leaders into errour: or, for the chief among the people to be ringleaders of errour.

and deſtroy Jeſus] By not aſking his life: or that they ſhould not onely ask pardon for Barabbas, but alſo clamour to have Jeſus put to death: as they did, verſe 22.

v. 21. Said unto them] To the multitude of the Jews.

whether of the twain will ye that I releaſe] He had once before asked this queſtion, verſe 17. but it ſeemeth, the anſwer was retarded, by his wives ſodain meſſage to him; therefore (as Euthymius thinks) now he repeateth the queſtion.

they ſaid Barabbas] Being before inſtructed by their prieſts and elders, as Salome was by Herodias, to ask John Baptiſts head. See on John 18. 40.

v. 32. let him be crucified] Too much pitty in ſparing Barabbas, and as much impious ingratitude toward Jeſus. Here is an example of an inconſtant and precipitate vulgar.

v. 23. What evil hath he done?] The Judge did reaſonably enquire of a crime to be alledged, and proved by them, who were ſo audaciouſly forward to anticipate his ſentence, and to preſcribe ſo ſevere a puniſhment: and this very queſtion ſummoned the people to be witneſſes of Chriſts innocency, and their own fury.

they cryed out the more] When they would do nothnig legally or juſtly againſt him; they fall to begging his blood; that the evil which they could not atchieve by law or reaſon, vociferando perficiant, Beda, they might do by outcries.

v. 24. A tumult was made] He doubted leſt they would take him by force, and raiſe ſome ſedition.

waſhed his hands] Thereby intending to ſignifie that he was free from the guilt of Chriſts death. See Deut. 21. 6. Pſal. 26. 6. but the deep ſtains of blood cannot be waſhed off with ſeas of water.

ſee ye to it] Take heed leſt ye be plagued for importuning me to condemn him.

v. 25. His blood be on us, and on our children] That is, the guilt and puniſhment thereof. See John 2. 19. if there be any offence committed in ſlaying him, let us and our poſterity ſmart for it, and bear the burden thereof, which they do to this day; and how heavily it fell on them, and their children, in the deſtruction of Jeruſalem; the eccleſiaſtical hiſtories abundanrly ſhew; the fruit of this raſh and wicked imprecation, came ſpeedily and heavily upon them then. See on chap. 24. 22. See 2 Sam. 3. 28, 29.

v. 26. When he had ſcourged Jeſus] He ſatisfied their deſire, in releaſing Barabbas; and herein endeavoured to pacifie them by ſcourging Chriſt. Luke 23. 16. John 19. 1. 4.

v. 29. A crown of thorns] Not a golden one to honour him, but of thorns, to diſgrace and vex him; this, ſaith Proſper, de promiſ. & prædict. part 3. 20. that ſheep prefigured, qui in ſpinis cornibus detentus immolatus eſt pro Iſaac, which being held by the head, was ſacrificed inſtead of Iſaac.

John 19. 17.) but becauſe Chriſt had been ſo rudely handled by them, that he could carry it no longer, therefore they compelled Simon to carry it out of the city: ſome conceive that he only helped Chriſt to bear it, carrying up the hinder part thereof, and cite to that end; Luke 23. 26. John 19. 17. others think, that onely the tranſom or upper end thereof was born from the ground, the nether part might eaſily be drawn along the ſame.

v. 36. They watched him there] The ſouldiers appointed for the guard attended, by the croſſe, leſt any ſhould take him down before he was dead: herein, by Gods providence, his enemies alſo became witneſſes of his death, leſt unbeleevers ſhould have objected againſt his reſurrection, that he was not dead. See John 19. 34, 35. &c.

v. 37. The king of the Jews] So was he indeed, though this were done in mockery. See John 1.49. and on Luk.23. 38. John 19. 19. 22.

v. 38. Two theeves crucified with him] This was to diſhonour him, and to make the world believe that he alſo was a malefactor, therefore they placed him in the midſt, as a principall ringleader of ſuch men; See Iſai. 53. 12. he was crucified with theeves, ſed quos paſſio jungebat, cauſa ſeparabat. Auguſtin Bonifac. ep. 50. But thoſe whom the like paſſion united, the cauſe ſeparated. See Luke 23. 41. This preceded in the head, Chriſt, which followed in many martyrs.

v. 39. They that paſſed by] Who uſe to pity ſuch as ſuffer (though juſtly) See Lam. 1. 12. Yet now they deride Chriſt, who was innocent; we read not that they were ſo inhumane and pittyleſs to the theeves who were truely guilty. Luke 23.41. See on Luke 23. 35.

come down from the Croſs] But therefore he would not come down, untill he had perfected the worke of our redemption there to be performed; becauſe he was the Son of God and the Meſſias; who therefore came into the world, that he might fulfill this his fathers will, by becoming obedient to the death of the croſs. Phil. 2.8.

v. 41. The chief prieſts] Their malice to Chriſt was ſhewed in life and in death: it might ſeem much below their dignity, to be preſent at an execution, and it was unworthy of their high calling to inſult over a dying man.

v. 42. He ſaved others, himſelf he cannot ſave] He would not ſave himſelf, that he might ſave others: this is a ſcoff like that (Luke 4.23.) which the proverb expreſſed, by Phyſician cure thy ſelf.

let him now come down from the croſſe] Fooliſh perſecuters, he will riſe from the dead, who will not yeeld to your inſulting opprobries, by deſcending from the croſs; plus fuit mortem reſurgendo deſtruere, quā vitā deſcendendo ſervare. Gregor. hom. 21. It was more, to deſtroy death by riſing again from the dead, then to preſerve life by coming down from the croſs: could Pilate ſay, what I have written, I have written; and ſhall not Chriſt perfect our ſalvation which he hath begun; but they ſay, let him come down and we will believe him: vain tempters, he will not ſo purchaſe credence with you, for ſi deſcenderit neminem ſalvum faciet. Bernard. de 7. ſig.

we will believe him] This they ſaid in ſcorn, and confidence that he could not have come down, if he would: for when he did more then this, by raiſing himſelf from the dead, (for it is more to reſtore, then to preſerve life) yet they believed not.

v. 43. He truſted in God.] Pſalm. 22.8.

this was the Son of God] A man beloved of God; or not guiltleſs onely, but more then a man; for they being heathen men eſteemed their great and excellent men, Sons of their Gods: See Luke 23. 47. It is not certain that they acknowledged the deity of Chriſt; See Dan. 3. 25.

v. 55. A far off] Either in modeſty they would not be among the throng of Souldiers: or it may be they permitted none to come neer the croſs; or they were afraid to be queſtioned as his followers, as Peter was. chap. 26. 58.

to ſee the ſepulchre] To ſee whether it were ſafe, and ſhut up as they ſaw it. chap. 27. 61. out of their love and fear: ſo ſolicitous were they for the body of Ieſus, that they might embalm him. Mark 16. 1. Luke 24. 1. Not knowing that he was riſen from the dead.

v. 2. There was] Or there had been.

a great earthquake] Which ſeems to have been when the women were in their way, there was one at his paſſion. chap. 27. 51. and another at his reſurrection. By many ſignes did the Lord manifeſt this glorious work of Chriſts riſing again a triumphant conquerer over death and hell; as to confirm our faith concerning the reſurrection of the dead, ſo alſo to form the hearts of theſe witneſſes thereof, to a reverend elevation of minde to the truth of Chriſts deity; by the power whereof, he not only raiſed up his own humane body, but alſo manifeſted himſelf to be the Lord of life, who will alſo raiſe up ours from the duſt of the earth, which now trembled at the ſurrendry of her Lord to life again.

for the angel of the Lord] Or an angel, two are mentioned. Luke 24. 4. Iohn 20. 12. Either one was neereſt at hand to ſpeak for both, or one appeared at firſt, and two when they came back: this, for importeth not a cauſe, but a conſequence of the earthquake: Chriſt riſing from the dead, gave this triumphant ſignall of his victory over death, hell, and the devil, as to the watch at Ieruſalem, ſo to the inhabitants of the earth, whoſe foundations he thus ſhook at his pleaſure; for it is moſt likely that he roſe in this earthquake.

rolled back the ſtone from the door] Performing the office of a door-keeper; not but that Chriſt could have done it without his miniſtry, but out of duty to Chriſt: alſo he removed it that the women might go into the ſepulchre, and ſee that Chriſt was gone thence, and that the ſouldiers might, to their aſtoniſhment, ſee what he came for; not to raiſe up Chriſt, who could command the creatures to give way to him; but for their ſakes who were to behold the ſame, and teſtifie it to others. See Iuſtin. Martyr. quaeſt. 117.

and ſate upon it] Expecting the coming of thoſe women, to whom he was to declare and teſtifie the reſurrection of Chriſt; for they were but in the way when the earth ſhook as Chriſt roſe from the dead: they were ſolicitous by the way as they came, whom they ſhould get to roll away the ſtone, that they might go into the ſepulchre to embalm Chriſt. Mark. 16. 3. Here God (whoſe aid is never wanting in due time and manner, to holy deſires) provideth ſo as that they found it readily opened by the Angel.

v. 3. His countenance was like lightning] As Dan. 10. 6. See here chap. 17. 2. Mark 16. 5. ſaith, they ſaw a young man; that is, the Angel who had aſſumed that ſhape, which intimated him, of entire ſtrength and agility: this Majeſty in his countenance, ſhewed that he was no man of the vulgar, but an heavenly meſſenger.

white as ſnow] Act. 1. 10. See this phraſe Pſal. 51. 7. Lam. 4. 7. Dan. 7. 9. Reve. 3. 4. 5. 18. & 44. & 6. 11. & 7. 9. 13.

v. 4. The keepers did ſhake] At the ſight of his glory, and in conſcience of their own guilt: ſeeing the earth tremble the grave open, the heavy ſtone rolling away from the ſepulchre, the dead body which they had in charge to watch, gone; a perſon of ſuch a dreadful preſence, & heavenly glory, as ſpake him more then man; they could not but know, that they had not now to deal with infirm man, but God: therefore all aſtoniſhed they tremble, and become like dead men: here were two main cauſes of fear. 1. Their own horrour of conſcience who were actors in the death of Ieſus. 2. Fear of their Governour, whoſe anger they might well expect, if he ſhould not credit their reports, but conſtrue all, as incredible excuſes of their own default, and negligence in watching. Thus God ſhewed them how vain it was to take up arms againſt him; and alſo made them witneſſes againſt themſelves and the malicious prieſts.

v. 5. The angel anſwered] To the womens fear. verſ. 8.

or he ſpake, as chap. 22. 1. it is poſſible that the watch coming to themſelves again, fled into the city, as verſe 11. as the women came ſome other way, ſo that they miſſed them; for the women, without any let by the watch, entred into the monument (which probably they would not have ſuffered, had they been preſent) they ſaw the angel, and were afraid, but not as theſe armed keepers: a good conſcience is the beſt armour, and ſureſt fortification.

fear not ye] Though the ſouldiers be fled for fear of me, yet be ye not diſmaied: they watched Chriſt for evil, ye ſeek him for good: the keepers had cauſe to fear Gods revenging hand, who helped to murder his beloved only Son; but you have cauſe of hope and joy, not fear and ſorrow: the reſurrection of Chriſt is a due cauſe of terrour to the enemy, and of joy to us who believe.

I know ye ſeek Jeſus] This is one cauſe, why he would not have them fear, for he is on their ſide, who came not with the impious watch, as enemies; but as faithful ſervants of their Lord, to do him honour; for he ſaw the proviſion which they brought to embalme Chriſt.

was crucified] He nameth that which is a ſcandal to the world, as the Chriſtians ground of rejoycing, Galat. 6. 14.

v. 6. he is not here, he is riſen] This is another argument of conſolation; he is not now in the ſepulchre: that was not enough; for Magdalen thought they had conveyed him thence, Joh 20. 13. therfore he addeth, he is riſen to life again; the conquerour of death, and Lord of life.

where the Lord lay] Believe your own eyes (See Mark 16. 14.) let them help to enform you: ſee the place where the ſacred body of Chriſt was layed in the ſepulchre, he is not now there, but riſen from the dead.

v. 7. Go quickly and tell his diſciples] To put them out of their heavineſs: the Lord will quickly comfort the afflicted, except the cauſe of his delay be in our ſelves.

he goeth before you into Galilee] So had Chriſt foretold them, Mark 16. 7. chap. 26. 32. (See Micah 2. 13.) therefore he ſaid, Luke 24. 6. remember how he ſpake unto you. See note thereon.

lo, I have told you] Aſſure your ſelves of it: fail not to deliver your meſſage, I have delivered mine.

v. 8. with fear and great joy] Being affrighted at the ſight and preſence of the Angel, but comforted at the joyfull tidings of Chriſts reſurrection.

to bring his diſciples word], They are made the firſt witneſſes of his reſurrection, quæ ardentius dilexerunt, Cyprian de reſur, who more fervently loved, and more devoutly ſought Chriſt. Death began from that ſex, and of the ſame, God appointed the firſt witneſſe of life reſtored, in the reſurrection of Chriſt.

v. 9. Jeſus met them] Chriſt not onely ſent an Angel to publiſh his reſurrection, but appeared in his own perſon to the women, and ſends them to tell his Diſciples: heres both a remedie againſt fear, and reward of obedience.

all hail] See chap. 26. 49. χαίρετε, rejoyce ye: it is a form of ſalutation, which the Syriack expreſſeth by שלם לבן, ſhelom lechen, peace be unto you: as the Hebrews ſaid, שלום לכם ſhalom lachem, peace be unto you, fear not, Geneſ. 43. 23. the 70 ἵλεως ὑμῖν, Chald. שלם לכון, ſhelam lechon. So Moſes is diſmiſſed by Jethro, Exod. 4. 18. לך לשלום lech leſhalom. 70 βάδιζε ὑγιαίνων, go in, or to peace, or health: Chriſt here not only ſaid this, but wrought the effect in their hearts, in a ſpiritual illumination and joy.

held him by the feet] Worſhipping him: Either they endeavoured ſo to do, and were prohibited by Chriſt, as John 20. 17. or Chriſt firſt appearing to Magdalen, forbade her onely to touch him then; but permitteth theſe now: (See John 20. 17.) for now they were comforted, and their wavering mindes better aſſured then at firſt: moſt likely Chriſt haſtened Magdalen to contribute her information to the reſt; intimating that her holding him by the feet now, though holy, was unſeaſonable, he having aſſigned her a greater work, which ought firſt to be diſpatched; that his diſciples faith might run no longer an hazard, by her delay. See on John 20. 17.

and worſhipped him] Though the humanity of Chriſt be a creature, and ſo, not of, & by it ſelf to be adored with divine adoration, but to adore the Deity, to whom alone all divine worſhip is due (Matth. 4. 10.) yet becauſe, from his conception, the Deity is perſonally and indiviſibly united to his humanity, and ſo Chriſt is truly God, as truly man, from whom the Deity cannot be divided, neither in true faith, nor faithful invocation; therefore whole Chriſt is to be adored; that is, God the eternal word become fleſh, in and with the humanity of Chriſt.

v. 10. Tell my brethren] His diſciples: this high title Chriſt gave them before, chap. 12. 50. ſo now alſo after his reſurrection, to ſhew the continuance of his affection to them. See Pſal. 22. 22. John 20. 17. Heb. 2. 11. Rom. 8. 29.

v. 11. ſome of the watch came into the city] Now appear another ſort of witneſſes, above all exception, becauſe of the adverſaries partie; which this Evangeliſt exactly relateth, ſhewing particularly when, who, to whom and with what ſucceſſe theſe teſtified concerning thoſe things they had ſeen. 1. the time was, before the women could come to the ſepulchre, the watch themſelves ran into the city, to enform. 2. the parties were ſome of the watch: the more underſtanding part thereof, the reſt for fear ſcattering and diſperſing themſelves in the city. 3. The high Prieſts, who ſet them on work, are enformed not without a ſingular hand of divine providence, to convince and ſhame the malitious enemies of Chriſt, and authors of that counſel to guard the ſepulchre. 4. The ſucceſſe was not as in reaſon might have been expected, the high Prieſts repentance, and happy acknowledgement of their errour to undeceive the people whom they had miſled: but a Pharaoh like hardneſſe of heart: for they further endeavour to ſuppreſſe the truth, by bribing the ſouldiers to lie, and the Preſident to connive at their wickedneſſe.

v. 12. large money] ἀργύρια ἱκανὰ, ſufficient moneys: money not a little, Syr.

v. 13. his diſciples ſtole him away] Pilate might the rather believe this, becauſe the Prieſts had given him an hint hereof beforehand, chap. 26. 64. more eaſily do wicked men believe improbable lies, then probable truth.

while we ſlept] Very credible witneſſes, that could certainly tell what was done, while they were aſleep: if you were then aſleep, how knew you that his diſciples ſtole him away? Lactantius rule is commonly true, hæc enim eſt mendaciorum natura ut cohærere non poſſint, l. 5. c. 3. this is the nature of lies, they can ſeldom hold together. This lye wanted all colour of truth: they would have made Chriſts vertue his diſciples crime, who recovered their Maſter (not as was pretended, by theft, but) by faith, alive, not dead.

v. 14. come to the governours ears] Be heard by the Governour, as they might well fear it would, though they would do what they could to keep it from him: and might well fear the iſſue: for if they appeared to be the authours of a lie, they might expect his diſpleaſure: if they ſaid true, they might expect ſome ſevere puniſhment for ſleeping in their appointed watch.

ſecure you] We will make you ἀμερίμνους, without care: we will provide for your indemnity, by preventing the danger, that might come to you thereby; for it was puniſhable to fail in the due performance of ſuch like truſts. See Acts 12. 19.

v. 15. this ſaying is commonly reported] Though the Preſident could not but know it was falſe, as contradicting it ſelf: ſo probably he could not but queſtion them, why they came off their watch, before the end of the third day: yet for fear of tumult (as it is too common now adays) he had rather bear with the diſhonour of God, then his own perſonal danger or detriment.

unto this day] So eaſily do untruths finde entertainment among the vulgar, too incredulous of truth? this was the juſt judgment of God, to ſend them ſtrong deluſions, that they ſhould believe lies, who would not receive the love of the truth, that they might be ſaved, 2 Theſ. 2. 10. yet for all this, the elect every where believed See 2 Cor. 4. 3, 4.

v. 16. the eleven diſciples] This Evangeliſt is brief in repeating Chriſts apparitions to his diſciples after his reſurrection, which the other ſupply. Theſe eleven are mentioned, chap. 10. 1. 26. 44. Judas the twelfth was gone, chap. 27. 5. the chief are mentioned; but it is likely that more, or all the reſt went into Galilee to meet him; for they alſo were brethren. See verſe 10. the Apoſtle ſaith he was ſeen of more then 500 brethen at once, 1 Cor. 15. 6. Some make this ἐπάνω, to relate to the place, not to the number: as if the ſenſe were, he was ſeen above; when he aſcended: ſo this 500 ſeeing him at once may be underſtood of their coming together to the mount of Olivet, Acts 1. 6. 12. ἵνα αὐτοῖς καὶ τὴν ἀνάληψιν αὐτοῦ δείξῃ, Oecumenius; that he might ſhew them alſo his aſſumption.

into a mountain] What mountain of Galilee this was, is not mentioned; probably he went thence to mount Olivet neer Jeruſalem; for thence he aſcended, Acts 1. 12. and this was neer Jeruſalem.

v. 17. when they ſaw him] When the multitude of diſciples ſaw him alive from the dead, in his own former figure, lineaments & appearance, not yet in the Majeſty of his glorified body, leſt they ſhould have conceived that it had been ſome other body riſen, not that Jeſus which was crucified, dead, and buried: this glory after his reſurrection was veiled, rather for their ſakes, then miſſing on his: in that they could not have known him, and it was neceſſary for his diſciples ſo to attend him, ut poſſit cognoſci, Auguſtin. de C. D. lib. 22, cap. 19. that he might be known of them.

they worſhipped him] Acknowledging his reſurrection and divine power, by adoring him. See on verſe 9.

being now more confident then ever that he was indeed their Meſſias, the Son of the living God: for ſo he was declared by his reſurrection from the dead. Rom. 1. 4.

but ſome doubted] Till he came neer to them, ſhewed them the prints of the nails (John 20. 25.) and ſpake to them: ſo the Syriack interpreter giveth it, dubitaverant, had doubted: one tenſe for another. See Mark 16. 11. 13. Luke 24. 11. 37. their unbelief makes for the confirmation of our faith: for their doubts being cleared, and the truth manifeſted, they left poſterity nothing rationally to doubt of.

v. 18. All power] Abſolute power without reſtraint and limitation, all dominion and authority to rule and govern.

is given unto me] God the Father hath given it to me; and I have now received it as man, who as God had the ſame power with the Father from eternity, (Philip. 2. 7.) and now give the ſame in the fulneſſe of time: now I have put off the forme of a ſervant, wherein I was to ſuffer death for mans redemption; therein I was obedient, but now God hath highly exalted me, and given me a name above every name, &c. Phil. 2. 8. &c.

in heaven], Which comprehendeth power of ſending the holy Ghoſt, Acts 2. 33. power over Angels, Phil. 2. 10. Heb. 1. 4. Coloſ. 1. 16. power to give heaven to all his, chap. 25. 34.

in earth] Power to gather a Church out of all nations. Pſal. 2. 8. Mark 16. 15, 16. and to rule over all. See Acts 10. 36. 42. Epheſ. 1. 20, 21, 22. Revel. 17. 14. Dan. 7. 14.

v. 19. go ye therfore] Be not therfore afraid to execute your charge, which by a ſupream authority I commit to you; fear not the face of man, doubt not the ſucceſſe: be ye my ambaſſadours to this purpoſe, adminiſtring this power among them.

teach all nations] Not onely Jews, but Gentiles alſo. See Acts 10. 34. 35. 47.

baptizing them] Adminiſtring to them the Sacrament of baptiſme, to all nations, wherein were ever many children, not here excepted in the Apoſtles charge to baptize.

in the name, &c.] εἰς τὸ ὄνομα, into the name, by that right initiating them, and receiving them into the profeſſion of the ſervice of one God in three perſons, and of depending on Chriſt alone for ſalvation. See 1 Cor. 1. 13. 15. and 10. 2. with Exod. 14. 31. Rom. 6. 3.

v. 20. to obſerve] Obedience is required of Believers. See Rom. 2. 13. faith without works is dead; it ſaith as once barren Rachel, Gen. 30. 1. Give me children, or elſe I die.

all things] Not ſome only, See Pſal. 119. he that maketh choice of Gods commandments, which he will obey, and wᶜʰ not, is his own ſervant not Gods: almoſt to be perſwaded to be a Chriſtian, is but as good as nothing: it is not enough to be baptized, but we muſt adorn the profeſſion there made, by doing that which God commandeth: Chriſts ſpeech comprehendeth (as Theophylact well noteth) θεολογίαν καὶ πρακτικὴν ἀρετήν, that is, contemplative and practical vertue; knowledge and obedience.

I have commanded] Not what mans traditions command: will worſhip is a ſtranger to his Sanctuary, none ſuch may come neer, Numb. 16. 40. it is as ſtrange fire which came not from Heaven, God will not be ſerved therewith.

I am with you alwayes] Though your work be hard, I will aſſiſt you, and your ſucceſſours in the miniſtery at all times, to the worlds end: Os Chriſti evangelium eſt, in cœlo ſedet, ſed in terra loqui non ceſſat, non ſimus ſurdi, nam ille clamat, Aug. de temp. ſerm. 205. the goſpel is Chriſts mouth; he ſitteth in Heaven, but ceaſeth not to ſpeak on earth; let us not be deafe for he crieth out. Laſtly, here is comfort to all believers; for this ſheweth, as Jerom ſaith, ſe nunquam à credentibus receſſurum, that he will never depart from believers: as more particularly for all the ſucceſſours of the Apoſtles, the faithful Miniſters: Chriſt thus ſpeaks, leſt our Miniſtery ſhould ſeem to be executed, humanâ tantum operâ, onely by the work of man, Proſper de vocat. Gent. l. 2. c. 2. To the Miniſters may be applyed that which J*ehoſhaphat* ſaid to his Judges, 2 Chron. 19. 6, 7. when he had told them the Lord would be with them: wherefore now let the fear of the Lord be upon you, take heed and do it; for there is no iniquity with the Lord our God, nor reſpect of perſons: it was Gods promiſe to him, who bare the figure and name of Jeſus, Joſh. 1. 5. I will be with thee, I will not fail thee, nor forſake thee: it is the promiſe of our Jeſus, who leadeth us into our promiſed reſt: Behold I am with you alwayes unto the end of the world; be ſtrong therfore, and of a good courage, fear not the malice of perſecutors; ipſe certamine agonis noſtri, & coronat pariter & coronatur, Cyprian lib. 2. ep. 6. Chriſt in our conflict both crowneth, and is crowned. Fear not the ſucceſſe; it is Chriſt who giveth the increaſe, 1 Cor. 3. 7. God could have done this work without our Miniſtery, or by his angels; but he will give man the honour of this Miniſtration, where his own holy Spirit will work to make it effectual to the edification, and ſalvation of his elect: ſo fitted and prepared here, as were the materials of Solomons temple, that no noiſe of the builder ſhall be heard in rearing up the ſame there, where propheſies ſhall ceaſe, love be perfected, and faith end in enjoying the promiſes of God in Chriſt.

Amen] This word is current in all languages, and is originally Hebrew: ſo J*eremie* the Prophet ſaid, אמן יהוה, amen Jehovah, Jer. 11. 5. The Hebrews uſed it after their prayers or bleſſings, therein wiſhing the ſucceſs, truth, confirmation and conſummation of thoſe things they prayed for: it is aſmuch as faxit Deus, certò fiat. See Deut. 27. 15. which the 70 give γένοιτο, ſo be it. It is ſometimes doubled for the greater confirmation. See Numb. 5. 22. ſo afterward in the primitive Church, the people uſed to anſwer, when their prayers ended, Amen. See 1 Cor. 14. 16. 2 Cor. 1. 20. Rev. 1. 7. Jer. 2. 8. 6. It is put here for confirmation of a certain, and infallible truth. (See on John 3. 11.) Faithful is he that hath promiſed to be with us unto the end. Lord Jeſus ſo be it. Amen.

v. 4. John did baptize] See on Matth. 3. 1.

the baptiſme of repentance] John did teach thoſe whom he baptized, that this baptiſme did waſh away their ſins, who truly believed and repented. See chap. 16, 16. janua regni pœnitentia eſt cum fide, Jerom; faith and repentance are the gate of the kingdom: repentance was a part of Johns doctrine, and by baptiſm they profeſſed and teſtified their repentance.

for remiſſion of ſins] εἰς ἄφεσιν, &c. unto, or that they might obtain remiſſion of their ſins; not by the external waſhing with water onely, which is the Miniſters part, but by the inward Baptiſme of Chriſt, by the Spirit of regeneration: nor is repentance the cauſe, but the inſeparable condition of ſins remiſſion; which God alſo giveth (2 Tim. 2. 25.) who freely forgiveth the penitent. See verſe 8. only the blood of Jeſus cleanſeth us from all our ſins. 1 John 1. 7. John 1. 29. See on Matth. 3. 11.

v. 5. and there went out] Matth. 3. 5.

all the land] χώρα, the region is here put for the people thereof: and all, for many, or the greater part; or of all parts, and towns, ſome. See Luke 3. 10. &c. Jer. 9. 26.

confeſſing their ſins] See on Matth. 3. 6.

v. 6. clothed with camels hair] Matth. 3. 4.

v. 7. one mightier then I] John doth, as a faithful Miniſter ſhould do, leſſen himſelf, to advance Gods honour, referring the whole power of his miniſtration unto him, who alone can make it effectual. See 1 Cor. 3. 7.

I am not worthy to &c.] His meaning was to expreſſe the condition of the meaneſt ſervant, who ſtoops to pull off his maſters ſhoes; as if he ſaid, I am unworthy of the meaneſt ſervants office in his family.

v. 8. but he ſhall baptiſe you] He ſheweth that the whole efficacy of baptiſme proceedeth from Chriſt, inwardly baptizing. See Matth. 3. 11.

v. 9. and it came to paſſe] Matth. 3. 13.

v. 10. coming up out of the water] John coming up, ſaw it. John 1. 33. 34. it is likely that he went into the water with Chriſt, as Philip did with the Eunuch, Acts 8. 38.

the heavens open] Or cloven, or rent, See on John 1. 32.

the ſpirit like a dove] See Matth. 3. 16. See on John 1. 32.

deſcending upon him] On Chriſt. See on Matth. 3. 16.

v. 11. a voice from heaven] See Matth. 3. 17.

v. 12. Immediately] Or ſhortly after.

the ſpirit driveth] Or ſends away, as v. 43. or putteth forth, as John 10. 4. or leadeth him thither, Matth. 4. 1.

v. 13. with the wilde beaſts] In the place where no man dwelt, Luke 1. 80. Acts 8. 26. alluding to Job 5. 22. in this triple neighbourhood of Chriſt, with Satan, wilde beaſts, and Angels, it appeareth which God teſtified from heaven, that he is indeed the holy Son of God: that Satan tempted him, it was more, then for us to be taken. Greg. Nazianzen orat. 36. he tempted him, but could not prevail; this ſhewed him more then man: the wilde beaſts were about him, and hurt him not, but acknowledged their ſubjection to him the ſecond Adam, as unto the firſt in his ſtate of innocency: and the Angels in their Miniſtery acknowledge him their Lord and God, who made them miniſtring ſpirits. Hebr. 1.

Angels miniſtred unto him] After the fourty dayes faſt expired, and the temptations ended, Matth. 4. 11.

v. 14. After that John was caſt into priſon] After Johns impriſonment, Chriſt ſhewed himſelf more evedently in the office of the Meſſias.

Jeſus came into Galilee] Matth. 4. 12.

v. 15. the time is fulfilled] The time foretold by the Prophets for the manifeſtation of Chriſt is fully come, Gal. 4. 4.

the kingdom of God is at hand] Chriſt did now by the preaching of the goſpel, take poſſeſſion of his kingdom.

repent ye] Faith and repentance are the ſumme of the Goſpel. See on verſe 4.

v. 16. now as he walked] Matth. 4. 18.

he ſaw Simon] He ſaw him before, John 1. 42. but now he called him to his apoſtleſhip.

v. 17. I will make you fiſhers] See Matth. 4. 19. Luke 5. 10. he ſaith not, ye ſhall make your ſelves, as they do, who intrude themſelves into the miniſtery (as Gregor. Nazianzen ſaith, ἀνίπτοις χερσὶν, with unwaſhed hands; or as the ſame ſpeaks, orat. 20. at once ſowed and grown up (as the Poets feigned thoſe gyants) in one day, we make them ſaints, and commend them to be wiſe and learned, who have learned nothing, neither have brought any thing towards the miniſtery before their will to be ſo. See Heb. 5. 4, 5. Gregor. Nazianzen orat. 1.

v. 18. ſtraitway they forſook] See Matth. 4. 20. Luke 5. 11.

v. 20. they left their father] See Matth. 4. 22.

with his hired ſervants] That by them he might mannage his affairs, and they attend him.

v. 21. went to Capernaum] Matth 4. 13. See on Matth. 11. 23. Luke 4. 31. See on John 2. 12.

v. 22. aſtoniſhed] See on Luke 4. 32. and Matth. 7. 28.

v. 23. there was in the ſynagogue] Luke 4. 33.

of an unclean ſpirit] See on Luke 4. 33 Matth. 10. 1. unclean, ſaith Euthymius, quaſi immundiciis ac ſceleribus, &c. as rejoycing in uncleanneſſe and ſin. See on chap. 5. 2

v. 24. let us alone] ἔα it is a particle ἐκπλήξεως, of exclamation, proceeding from grief or aſtoniſhment, at ſome new, or unexpected thing, which troubleth and perplexeth; as much as ah. Euthymius interpreter giveth it, ſine, that is, dimitte nos; ſuffer, or let us alone: and Suidas giveth it by συγχώρει, ſine, concede, permitte, it is taken for an imperative of ἐάω, ſino, permitto, thence ἔα for ἔαε.

Jeſus of Nazareth] Becauſe he was bred there, though he were born at Bethlehem. See Matth. 2. 23. this was the ſubtilty of Satan, who well knowing, that Chriſt was, according to the propheſies born at Bethlehem; yet to perſwade the people, that Chriſt was not the Meſſias expected and promiſed, he calleth him Jeſus of Nazareth. See John 7. 42.

art thou come to deſtroy us] Did God therefore ſend thee into the world, to reſtrain us from doing miſchief, which is a torment to us? See Luke 8. 31. the devils know that they are already damned, but yet they ſhall not be fully tormented before the end of the world. See 2 Pet. 2. 4. Jude v. 6.

the holy one of God] So is he indeed the holy Saviour of the world, figured by the high Prieſts title, Exod. 28. 3. 6. and foretold, Dan. 9. 24. but mark how unconſiſtent falſhood is, the devils plots entangle himſelf: if the holy one, then certainly come to caſt thee out: and here he confeſſeth Chriſt, in hope that none will believe that which the devil ſaith, but all in vain, they all believe Chriſt to be the holy Saviour, who are regenerate by his ſpirit.

v. 25. Jeſus rebuked him] ἐπετίμησεν, rebuked him with threatning.

hold thy peace] Jeſus refuſeth teſtimony of the evil one: Satan is a lyar, John 8. 44. and the father thereof: needs muſt his teſtimony render truth it ſelf ſuſpected with men: it is an uſual puniſhment of lyars, not to be believed when they ſpeak truth. The devil never ſpeaks truth, but to deceive. See Acts 16. 18. and Pſal. 50. 16.

come out of him] Thus Chriſt would rather ſhew himſelf to be that holy one of God, by caſting out the unclean ſpirits, then by their teſtimony; and appear ſuch in the effects of divine power, then the words of diluding ſpirits: Gods cauſe hath no need of ſin or ſinners to ſupport it. See on Luke 8. 41.

v. 26. had torn him] Or pulled him with grievous pain, as by caſting him into a convulſion fit, (which may be without renting) Luke 4. 35. ſo σπαράξαν imported: thence is σπαραγμὸς, convulſion. σπαράσσω ſeemeth compounded of σπάω traho, to draw, (whence is σπάσμα, convulſion or cramp) and ἀράσσω, pulſo, &c. ſo that it properly ſignifieth to tear or break, by drawing up together: this Chriſt preſent now permitted, that Satans malice might appear; but would not ſuffer him further to hurt, that the power of him that caſt out Satan might be known.

v. 27. among themſelves] Or within themſelves, as Matth. 16. 7.

what new doctrine is this] Not blaming it, as Acts 17. 19. but acknowledging it to be ſtrange and extraordinary; in the matter of his teaching, and the manner of the confirmation thereof by miracles, which none of their late teachers could do.

with authority] Not by prayer to God as a ſervant, but ſuo jure, by his own juriſdiction, command and power over them.

v. 28. the region round about] Not onely into Galilee, but alſo into all the countreys thereon bordering.

v. 29. forthwith] Matth. 8. 14.

James and John] It may be theſe dwelt together in one houſe, for they came with him.

v. 30. Simons wives mother] See Matth. 8. 14.

v. 31. lift her up] Matth. 8. 15.

v. 32. when even was come] Matth. 8. 16. the Sabbath then ending, the people were of opinion, that it was then lawfull to carry their ſick to be healed, which they conceived to be unlawfull on the Sabbath day.

v. 33. All the city] That is all thoſe at leaſt whom it concerned to bring their ſick; and probably a very great part of the citizens of Capernaum beſides, ſeeing the ſick born along, and hearing what was done for them by Jeſus, would go along to ſee the miracles.

v. 34. Of divers diſeaſes] This ſhewed his omnipotent power to repaire man.

ſuffered not the devils] For it belonged not to them to preach the goſpel. See Acts 16. 18. nor would Chriſt receive a teſtimonie from them. See on verſe 25. The Syriack gives it, he would not ſuffer them to ſpeak, becauſe they knew him: and therefore (as he well knew) would out of malice reveal him: as ſome of his Miniſters, wicked men, preached Chriſt of ill will. See Phil. 1. 15.

v. 35. And there prayed] He uſed to take the nights and mornings for prayer, not onely becauſe theſe are freeſt from diſtractions, and ſo moſt accommodate to prayer, but becauſe he might have the day free to preach, and heal the ſick.

v. 36. they that were with him] Probably, Andrew, James, and John, mentioned verſe 29.

v. 37. all men ſeek for thee] That is, many men enquire for thee, which it ſeemeth came to Simon Peters door, by reaſon of the wondrous works which he had there done in the evening paſt.

v. 38. let us go into the next towns] That he might heal their ſick, and inſtruct them alſo as well as the Capernaites.

came I forth] From God, John 16. 28. See Luke 4 43.

that I may preach] Though prayer be a part of Gods worſhip, and an holy exerciſe, yet being advertiſed by the Apoſtles, that opportunity was offered to preach the goſpel, he aroſe from that for this.

v. 39 he preached] ἦν κηρύσσων, he was preaching: that is, by degrees, and in time, he preached through all. See Matth. 4. 23.

caſt out devils] As verſe 25. Matthew 4. 24. and 8. 16.

v. 40. a leper] See on Luke 5. 12.

v. 41. I will be thou clean] See on Matth. 8. 3. and on Luke 5. 13. he will alſo heal and cleanſe us, if we call upon him in faith.

v. 42. immediately the leproſie] See on Matthew 8. 3. and on Luke 8. 3.

v. 43. ſent him away] So Luke 8. 38.

v. 44. ſay nothing] Till thou have firſt been with the Prieſt to offer according to the Law for thy cleanſing: this might be to prevent the inconvenience which followed, verſe 45. See on Matth. 8. 4.

ſhew thy ſelf to the prieſt] Any of Aarons poſterity might judge of a leper, whether he were cured or not. Levit. 13. 2.

v. 45. but he went out] From the preſence of Jeſus, Luke 5. 15.

to publiſh it much] He could not conceal what he had received: Chriſt did juſtly decline popularity, becauſe it ſomething hindred the courſe of the goſpel, by creating him untimely dangers: and the cured man did juſtly glorifie God, who had done ſo great a work upon him.

the matter] τὸν λόγον, the ſpeech: an Hebraiſm, the word is put for the thing done.

could no more openly] As he was wont, and as he would, without too much confluence of people, and hazard to himſelf, from the malitious Scribes and Phariſees.

Verſe 1. HE entred into Capernaum] See on chap. 1. 21. and Matth. 11. 23.

that he was in the houſe] Where he uſed to remain; for he choſe Capernaum to dwell in, and left Nazareth.

v. 2. not ſo much as about the door] Neither the houſe, nor entrance thereto was able to receive ſuch a multitude as came unto him.

preached the word] Of the kingdom, the goſpel which declareth the will of God for our ſalvation by Chriſt: thus Jeſus took the advantage of ſuch conventions, to publiſh the goſpel, which was his charge and office.

v. 3. bringing one ſick of the palſie] Matth. 9.2. Luke 5. 18. Chriſt ſheweth by healing this man, that we by faith in him recover our loſt ſtrength.

which was borne] Like a living corpſe.

v. 4. they let down] They brake through the flat roof of the houſe, and ſo let down the man that was ſick of the palſie, into the lower room where Chriſt preached: becauſe they could not for the preaſſe of people, by any other way bring him into Chriſts preſence. See on Matth. 10.27. Luke 5. 19.

the bed] The word ſignifieth a couch, ſuch as men uſe to reſt themſelves on in the day time.

v. 5. ſaw their faith] See on Matth. 9. 2. Luke 5. 20.

v. 6. reaſoning in their hearts] Reaſoning within themſelves, or thinking with themſelves: for he that thinks of a matter of doubt, wherein he pondereth the difficulties, or advantages, on the one part and the other, hath in himſelf, as it were, two parties, opponent, and reſpondent: See on Matth. 9. 3.

v. 10. the Son of man hath power on earth] See on Math. 9. 6. and on Luke 5. 24. that you may know by the miraculous effect which you ſhall forthwith ſee; that even he who now in the form of a ſervant and man of ſorrows appeareth to you, onely a Son of man, (being yet truly God alſo) hath power to remit ſins.

v. 11. Ariſe take up thy bed and go, &c.] See on Matth. 9.6.

v. 12. all amazed] ἐξίστασθαι πάντας, word for word, paſt themſelves; or out of their wits: the Syriack interpreter expreſſeth it, they all wondred, Matth. 9. 8.

we never ſaw it on this faſhion] That is, never ſince God choſe us to be his peculiar people, and ſhewed his power and mighty hand among us.

v. 13. He went forth] From the Scribes convicted by this miracle, becauſe he ſaw, that all the mercy which he ſhewed on that people, was but as water to unſlackt lime, in that it did not extinguiſh, but incenſe the Scribes and Phariſees anger the more.

by the ſea ſide] Which was neer Capernaum.

all the multitude, &c.] The goſpell offends the proud, while the mean ſort of people profit by it, 1 Cor. 1.26. who as they are more free from vain opinion of knowledge and excellency in themſelves, ſo are they more apt and ready to receive inſtruction from others.

and he taught them] This was the cauſe of his going out to the multitude: and he never omitted any opportunity of teaching them: this he calleth his meat and drink: John 4. 34.

v. 14. as he paſſed by] By the ſea ſide, where cuſtom-houſes commonly ſtood for the convenience of Merchants to enter their goods, and the officers to receive cuſtoms. Matth. 9. 9.

v. 21. of new cloth] See on Matth. 9. 16. or raw, or unwrought cloth. So Budæus interprets panniculi impoliti.

v. 22. new wine in old] Another ſpeech to the ſame purpoſe: the ſum is, that all men may not be rigidly compelled to one and the ſame form of living: becauſe there are different conditions, and all things agree not to all men; ſpecially that we ought to ſpare the infirme, leſt we ruine where we intended to repair, and oppreſſe with too much weight, where we ſhould build up: it is no ſmall ſkill, to know the ſtate, condition, and qualitie of our flocks, that we may attemperate our doctrine to their capacity. See 1 Cor. 3. 1, &c.

v. 23. through the corn fields on the Sabbath] See on Matth. 12. 1.

the ſhew bread] See on Matth. 12. 4.

and gave alſo to them which were with him] To prevent an excuſe which might be brought in reſpect of the dignity of Davids perſon.

v. 27. the ſabbath was made for man] For mans ſake; that it might be ſet apart for the publick worſhip of God, mans edification in the uſe of Gods ordinances, and his reſt, as alſo for the reſt of that which God had made ſubordinate to him.

v. 28. Son of man is Lord alſo of the Sabbath] He means that Chriſt, as God, ſanctified the Sabbath, and had power thereof, for the altering it to another day (as he did from the ſeventh day from the creation, to the ſeventh, beginning at his reſurrection, which was before the firſt day of the week) or that any man may in caſe of neceſſity get food on the Sabbath-day.

alſo of the Sabbath] Or even of the Sabbath.

v. 2. And they watched him] The Phariſees who were preſent, watched to entrap him, v. 6. ſuch auditors Gods Miniſters often meet withall, inſomnis malitia, malice is reſtleſſe. See on Luke 6. 7.

v. 3. Stand forth] He bids him ſtand forth, that the miracle might be the more manifeſt.

v. 4. or to do evil] It is good for me to ſhew mercy in healing this man, it is evil to neglect him, when I can heal him, (for he that ſaveth not, when he may and can, killeth) the queſtion is, which think you may I do on the Sabbath-day? Matth. 9. 12. he ſaith poſitively, it is lawful to do well on the Sabbath-dayes. Probably he firſt asked the queſtion, and then reſolved it his ſelf.

v. 5. with anger] Men when they have wrong done unto them, are angry; but with ſinful affection: but Chriſt is angry without ſin (as we ſhould be) becauſe he is angry only at ſin. See Epheſ. 4. 26. Gregory expreſſeth it well, ſic culpam tuam inſequor, ut te diligam, I ſo purſue (or puniſh) thy fault, that I love thee.

v. 11. and unclean ſpirits] In them, into whom they had entred: they who were vexed with unclean ſpirits.

thou art the Son of God] See Matth. 8. 29.

v. 12. that they ſhould not make him known] Jeſus came into the world, that he might be known to the ſalvation of the elect; and it is life everlaſting to know him (See John 17. 3.) but he would not admit the teſtimony of unclean ſpirits: his doctrine and miracles ſufficiently manifeſted him to the world; the truth needeth neither lies, nor liars to ſupport it. See on chap. 1. 25. neither would he yet be manifeſted to thoſe Gentiles, now about him; before he had made himſelf more known to the Jews, to whom he was ſent.

v. 13. goeth up into a mountain] Matth. 10. 1.

v. 15. power to heal ſickneſſes, &c.] To the end that ſuch admirable power might be as a ſeal to their Apoſtleſhip, for the confirmation of their doctrine.

v. 16. Simon he named Peter] See on Matth 10. 2. Luke 6. 14. and on John 1. 41.

v. 17. Boanerges] Βοανεργὲς. Syr. בני־רגשי benai-regeſhi, filii fragoris, which being their mother tongue, in which Chriſt ſpake, ſome think the name here uſed by the Evangeliſt, to be corrupted Syriack; as but few words which are ſtrangers to the Greeks, are uncorruptly written in their letters. The name is compounded (ſaith Druſius, ad vet. N. T. com. 1.) of בני, ſons, which they anciently pronounced bane, and רעם raham, (of רעם tonuit) as Pſal. 77. 18. קול רעמך kol rahamcha, the voice of thy thunder; which the 70 give, as the Evangeliſt here, βροντῆς. The Greeks wrote רעם-ργὲς, turning the laſt letter (ם) m, into (σ) s, as was uſual with them. So bane, and reges (whoſe firſt vowel point, omitted) make boanerges, whereof the Greek (neer the ſound of their βοᾷν of βοάω) make Boanerges, and this בני־רגשי, benai regeſhi, is according to the Hebrew manner of ſpeaking, put thunderers; as they ſaid alſo, בן־מות, ben meveth, filius mortis, 1 Sam. 20. 31. בן ברית ben berith, a ſon of the covenant, alſo, a ſon of peace, that is, peaceable. Some think this name compounded of בני and רעש, commotus fuit, or רגש, ragaſh, ſtrepuit. Chriſt thus named them, either becauſe their voice ſhould be heard in the world about, or becauſe they ſhould preach more powerfully or vehemently then others.

v. 18. Thaddeus] He had three names, Lebbeus, Thaddeus, and Judas, See Matth. 10. 3. Luke 6. 16. by the two former he is diſtinguiſhed from Judas the traitor.

v. 19. Judas Iſcariot] See on Matth. 10. 4. and John 6. 71. this diſtinguiſheth him from Judas the brother of James, mentioned Luke 16. 16. Jud. 1.

v. 20. the multitude cometh together again] After he returned from the mount to the houſe, they preſently flocked unto him.

not ſo much as to eat bread] For the importunity of the multitude, deſiring to hear, ſee him, and to have their ſick healed.

v. 21. his friends] οἱ παρ' αὐτοῦ, they that were of him, Syr. אחוהי, achinauhi, his couſens or kinred: it is of אח, ach, a brother, they ſo uſed to call kinſmen: now they that were diſtracted, or thought to be ſo, were to be provided for by their kinsfolk: we may not conceive, that all his brethren or kinſmen thus miſtook him: for ſome of them, as James and John were his diſciples, and better inſtructed.

he is beſide himſelf] Gods Miniſters are often cenſured thus, 2 Kings 9. 11. Acts 26. 24. 2 Cor. 5. 13. therefore went they out from Nazareth, where his kindred dwelt, unto Capernaum, where Jeſus now was, to lay hold on him, and carry him away from the multitude, that they might take care of him, as of a diſtracted man; for they did not yet all believe in him, John 7. 5.

v. 22. he hath Beelzebub] Syr. Beelzebub is in him: they could not for ſhame ſay he was mad, whoſe divine wiſdom had ſo often convicted them, and put them to ſilence before the multitude, therefore they blaſphemouſly impute that to the ſpirit of Satan, which was the work of God. See Matth. 9. 34.

v. 23. called them unto him] From them who thus murmured among the people, ſhewing them, that he knew all that they had ſaid, though they were bodily abſent, which was an argument of his deity.

in parables] In ſimilitudes taken from things more known and familiar to them.

Satan caſt out Satan] How can one devil have power to diſpoſſeſſe another? See Matth. 12. 25. 26.

v. 24. if a kingdom] If the people of an earthly kingdom be divided into factions, and inteſtine contentions. See on Matth. 12. 25.

v. 25. if an houſe be divided] See on Matth. 12. 25. for, as Greg. Nazianzen ſaith, orat. 34. ſtriſe is ἀρχὴ λύσεως, the beginning of diſſolution, the nerves and ſinews of ſociety, is happy concord.

v. 26. if Satan riſe up againſt himſelf] Unity is ſuch a bond of ſociety, that not ſo much as Satans kingdom can ſubſiſt without it. See on Luke 11. 17.

v. 27. into a ſtrong mans houſe] See on Matth. 12. 29. and Luke 11. 21, 22.

v. 28. verily I ſay unto you] Matth. 12. 31.

all ſins ſhall be forgiven] They onely are without hope of pardon, who do malitiouſly and conſtantly oppoſe Chriſt whom they know. See Heb. 6. 6. and 10. 26. the ſin againſt the holy Ghoſt, is duritia cordis, ad finem hujus vitæ &c. Auguſtine ep. 50. hardneſſe of heart, and impenitency unto the end of this life: underſtand it with reſiſting a known truth, out of deſtinate malice.

v. 29. he that ſhall blaſpheme againſt the holy Ghoſt] He that contrary to the inward motion of his conſcience enlightned by the holy Ghoſt, and convinced of the truth of the Goſpel, ſhall out of meer malice and contempt oppoſe it.

is in danger] ἔνοχός ἐστιν, that is, as the Syriack gives it, is guilty of, or liable to eternal damnation; τῇ ἀρᾷ ἔνοχος, that is, execrable, devotus manibus, as Budæus interpreteth it.

v. 30. becauſe they ſaid, he hath an unclean ſpirit] The Evangeliſt ſheweth the cauſe of our Saviours ſpeaking here concerning the ſin againſt the holy Ghoſt, which the Scribes and Phariſees here committed, by their wilfull and malitious attributing that to Satan, which they could not but know was the finger of God, and work of his holy Spirit.

v. 31. there came then] Matth. 12. 46. then or therefore, becauſe he ſpake this, they thought him mad, as verſe 21. and would pull him out of danger: the Evangeliſt returneth to the hiſtory begun, verſe 21. they came to him as he was in this ſerious conteſt with the Scribes and Phariſees.

and his mother] Probably his unbelieving kindred giving information of his danger, might perſwade his mother to come with them, that they might thereby the more eaſily perſwade Jeſus to withdraw himſelf from the multitude. See on Matth. 12. 46.

his brethren] By brethren the Hebrews underſtood all that were of the ſame ſtock and kinred. Gen. 13. 8.

v. 32. behold thy mother] See Matth. 12. 48.

v. 33. who is my mother, &c.] See on Matth. 12. 48.

v. 34. behold my mother] See on Matth. 12. 49. the ſpiritual kinred ought principally to be accounted of. See Galat. 6. 10. Pſal. 16. 3.

v. 35. Whoſoever ſhall do the will, &c.] See on Matthew 12. 50.

by the ſea ſide] The ſea of Tiberias: See on Matth. 13. 1.

ſate in the ſea] In a ſhip which was put off a little from the ſhore.

the whole multitude] See on Matth. 13. 2.

v. 2. many things in parables] See on Matth. 13. 3.

v. 3. a ſower to ſowe] The ſame doctrine of the goſpel which is every where ſowed by faithfull miniſters, hath not the ſame ſucceſſe every where; God mercifully opening the hearts of ſome hearers, and juſtly hardening the hearts of others, ſo that the ſame word proveth a ſavour of life to ſome, and a ſavour of death to others. This is the ſcope of this parable. See on Matth 13. 3.

v. 4. Some fell by the way ſide] See on Matth. 13. 4.

v. 5. on ſtony ground] See on Matth. 13. 5.

v. 6. Sun was up] See on Matth. 13. 6.

v. 7. among thorns] Matth. 13. 7.

v. 8. on good ground] Matth. 13. 8.

v. 9. He that hath an ear, &c.] Matth. 13. 9.

v. 10. with the twelve] Matth. 13. 10. These with others that followed him.

v. 11. Unto you it is given] Matth. 13. 11. To you that fear God, I will interpret the parables. See Pſal. 25. 14. which not being unfolded are hidden myſteries.

unto them that are without] To ſtrangers, and ſuch as are none of ours. 1 Cor. 5. 12.

v. 12. That ſeeing they may ſee] Matth. 13. 14.

v. 13. Know you not this parable] This ſo much expreſſed in particulars, to make it more eaſie? how then will ye underſtand the hardeſt?

v. 14. He that ſoweth] For the meaning hereof, See on Matth. 13. from verſe 18. unto the 24. verſe.

v. 19. The cares of this world] The unneceſſary and diſtracting cares about ſecular affairs.

and the deceitfulneſſe of riches] 1 Tim. 6. 17.

of other things] About other things.

v. 21. to be put under, &c.] Matth. 5. 15. The light of knowledge is given to the edification of our ſelves and others. See 1 Cor. 12. 7.

a buſhel] The word in the originall may ſignifie a leſſe meaſure.

v. 22. for there is nothing] Matth. 10. 26. See on Luke 8. 17.

v. 23. He that hath an ear] So verſe 9. Here repeated to intimate our extream dulneſſe, and negligence in hearing the word of Chriſt.

v. 24. Take heed therefore what ye hear] βλέπετε, properly ſee; but here, take heed, or be very carefull: three cautions are very neceſſary in hearing; take heed firſt, whom ye hear; hear not Satans ſeducing Miniſters. See Deut. 13. 3. 8. Jer. 23. 16. Matth. 24. 23. 26. It is very dangerous to liſten to the tempter. Mark 24. 24. Secondly, Take heed what you hear: ſin firſt entred by the ear, when the woman would hear the tempters deluſions; and yet evil words corrupt good manners. 1 Cor. 15. 33. Thirdly, take heed how ye hear. See on Luke 8. 18.

with what meaſure ye mete] Matth. 7. 2. The more uſe we make of Gods ordinances, the more grace God will give us.

v. 25. For he that hath] Matth. 13. 12.

v. 26. So is the kingdom of God] God doth as it were, ſow, and reap in the Church, though men obſerve it not.

v. 27. and ſhould ſleep] Though he ſeemeth not to regard or look after the ſeed ſowed; or though the ſeeds-man the Miniſters work ceaſe, when he hath done his part.

he knoweth not how] It is the Miniſters part to ſowe with all diligence, and leave the ſucceſſe to God: for that ſecret power and providence whereby the ſeed cometh inſenſibly to blade and ear, cannot be diſcerned by man, onely it is known by the fruit and effect, as they ſay, non in fieri, ſed in facto eſſe, grown, not growing.

v. 28. of her ſelf] By a certain power implanted in the creature (by that omnipotent word of God, who ſaid at firſt, fiat, let it be ſo) whereby it moveth or altereth it ſelf, by a natural courſe without mans help. See Gen. 1. 11.

v. 29. fruit brought forth] παραδῷ ὁ καρπὸς, this ſubſtantive being of the nominative caſe, it appeareth that here is an Hebraiſme, as if it were ſaid, according to the ſignification of verbs in Hithpael (in which they ſignifie, actionem ejuſdem in ſe ipſum) when the fruit hath given, or produced it ſelf. Euthymius well interpreteth it, cum maturuerit, when it is grown ripe.

v. 30. whereunto ſhall we liken] Matth. 13. 31.

v. 31. is leſſe then all the ſeed] Chriſt would hereby ſhew, that of ſmall beginnings God effecteth admirable things in his Church, which ſheweth the greatneſſe of his power above mans.

v. 32. it groweth up] Matth. 13. 32.

v. 33. many ſuch parables] Matth. 13. 34.

as they were able to hear it] According to the capacity of the hearers: for hearing is here put for underſtanding; as, 1 Cor. 3. 1. So Chriſt accommodated his diſcourſe to the preſent hearers apprehenſions: as, John 3. 12. which he well knew.

v. 34. he expounded all things] ἐπέλυε, he diſſolved, or opened by explication. See the like phraſe 2 Pet. 1. 20.

v. 35. and the ſame day] Matth. 8. 23.

v. 36. they took him] They caried him away, ſetting ſail, or rowing, and putting off from the ſhore: for he had preached, beeing aboord the ſhip, all this while, v. 1.

as he was in the ſhip, &c.] He had no reſt, nor refection all the day, and departed at even, without going aſhore again at that time.

v. 37. there aroſe a great ſtorme] See on Matth. 8. 24. Luke 8. 23.

v. 38. aſleep on a pillow] He thus ſeemed to leave them to hazard, that they might learn, πειρασμοὺς φέρειν, to bear tentations, ſaith Theophyl. Had he waked, either they would not have feared, or prayed: he permitted them to this fear, to awaken their devotion by his ſleeping: that they might in the iſſue be more ſenſible of his power, commanding ſea and windes.

careſt thou not that we periſh?] This ſpeak they out of their fear and infirmity: it is true the humanity ſleepeth; but the Deity, (which keepeth Iſrael) neither ſlumbers nor ſleeps.

v. 39 rebuked the winde] See on Matth. 8. 26. ἐπετίμησε, it is an Hebrew manner of ſpeaking, as Pſal. 106. 9. ויגער בים jighehar bejam, he rebuked the ſea: the 70 give it in the word here uſed ἐπετίμησε, &c. (See alſo Nahum 1. 4. Zech. 3. 2.) The Syriack interpreter giveth it, repreſſit ventum, he repreſſed the winde.

and ſaid unto the ſea, peace, and be ſtill] σιώπα, peace; this is his word of rebuke: Syr. זגיר zegir, their זגר zeghar importeth, increpavit, or ſilentium impoſuit; as it were with threatning words: in which ſenſe they ſeem to uſe their גער gehar 1 Tim. 5. 1. he ſtilleth the raging of ſea and windes. See Pſal. 107. 29. this ſheweth the deity of Chriſt: he but ſpeaketh to the deaf ſea and ſtormy windes and they obey him: he ſpeaketh to the dead, and they hear him: more deaf then ſea or dead men, are obſtinate ſinners who cannot hear and obey Chriſt, ſo long crying to the turbulent railers, and ſeditious quarrellers, peace, and be ſtill.

there was a great calm] This preſent calm ſheweth the preſence of the Lord of the creatures; naturally the ſea rageth long after the winde flats; but here it was preſently ſmooth and calm.

v. 40. that have not faith] That is, firm confidence in my power and drovidence, which ſleepeth not. Pſal. 121. 4.

v. 41. feared exceedingly] Becauſe he did not appeaſe and rule the waters, as Moſes with a rod; or as Elias Jordan, by prayer: 2 Kings 2. nor with the Ark, as Joſhua; Joſhua 3. he ſeemed to them ὑπὲρ ἄνθρωπον, above, or more then man; therefore they feared his preſence, whom they had not as yet duely underſtood, or obſerved with due reverence of ſuch a Majeſtie preſent. See Matth. 8. 27.

CHAP. V.

Verſe 1. THey came over] Matth. 8. 28.

of the Gadeiens] Gergaſa and Gadara were near, and the coaſt named from either: this was a city of Arabia, over againſt Tiberias and Galilee. (Luke 8. 26.) beyond Jordan, joyned to mount Gilead, or Galaad (Jer. de loc. Hebr.) in the lot of the tribe of Manaſſes: Joſeph. de bel. Jud. l. 3. c. 2. calleth it Gadarida. Suidas ſaith it is the ſame which was called Antioch, and Seleucia. See on Luke 8. 39.

v 2. with an unclean ſpirit] ἐν πνεύματι ἀκαθάρτῳ, in an unclean ſpirit: it is an Hebraiſme ſignifying, with, or by. See Exo. 6. 6. I will redeem you בזרוע bizroah &c. in a ſtretched out arm: that is with or by, &c. Here it may import that the ſpirit held him faſt, as it were lockt up, and bound. Matth. 8. 28. Two are mentioned: but it ſeems this here, was the moſt notorious; and ſo he onely named.

v. 3. among the tombs] See on Matth. 8. 28. and on Luke 8. 27.

no man could binde him] No man could keep him bound, with whatſoever they bound him: as, verſe 4.

v. 4. pluckt aſunder by him] See on Matth. 8. 28.

v. 5. night and day] So importunate a tyrant is Satan where he getteth dominion: ſo tormenteth he the damned ſouls. Rev. 14. 11.

in the mountains and in the tombs] They had their tombs generally in mountains, or deſart places. Gen. 23. 9, 10. 2 Kings 23. 16. not in the cities; perhaps leſt they ſhould be defiled by touching them: See Numb. 19. 16. Great families had the more large and ſtately tombs, hewed out of rocks, or built up and arched with ſtone or brick, ſo that they might receive many bodies.

crying and cutting himſelf] Crying, he was terrible to others paſſing by him; cutting or beating himſelf with ſtones, he we was cruel to himſelf: ſo wretched a ſlavery it is, to ſerve Satan, whoſe onely delight is to make us hurt our ſelves and others: conſider this, you that take pleaſure in ſin. See Rom. 6. 12. 16.

v. 6. and worſhipped him] A great token of Chriſts divine power, that the very devils are in ſubjection to him, or that he ſhould ſuffer any man in his power, to worſhip him.

v. 7. What have I to do with thee] See on Matth. 8. 29. Becauſe the diſciples in the ſhip doubted ſaying, what manner of man is this? here is a more evident teſtimony of his deity, from the very enemies, the devils: Theophylact, mark how unconſiſtent Satans words and actions are; he worſhippeth him, and yet aſketh what he hath to do with him?

I adjure thee by God] So ſaid the high prieſt. Matth. 26. 63. the meaning of this place is: I deſire thee to ſwear to me by God, that thou wilt not torment me. So Luke 8. 28. I beſeech thee torment me not. See 8. 29. in which ſenſe it was common in fear or danger, to deſire to be ſecured by the oath of him that had power over them: ſo ſaid Rahab to the ſpies; Joſhua 2. 12. ſwear unto me by the Lord, I pray you, becauſe I have ſhewed you mercy. See Gen. 21. 23. & 25. 33. Jud. 15, 2. 1 Sam. 30. 15. Satan here knowing that his petition was neither of merit nor power, he interpoſeth the name of God, hoping thereby to prevail.

v. 8. For he ſaid] Or, for he had ſaid: Chriſts bidding him go out, was the cauſe of the adjuration: verſe 7. It is the devils torment to be caſt out of poſſeſſion, where he thought all his own: the kingdom of Chriſt is his torment, whoſe onely pleaſure is to deſtroy bodies and ſouls.

v. 9. What is thy name] Chriſt asketh his name, to ſhew the greatneſſe of the poſſeſſeds miſery, and wonderfull delivery; not that Chriſt might inform himſelf, but that the ſtanders-by might know their multitude. Theophylact, Euthymius, &c.

my name is legion] A great multitude, like a Roman legion of ſouldiers. See on Luke 8. 30.

v. 10. He beſought him] Either the chief devil there preſent, or elſe the man overmaſtered by the ſpirits, and cauſing this petition to be uttered by his voice.

out of the countrey] Not that Satan loveth one countrey better then another, who hateth all mankinde; but that he deſireth to be there where corruption of manners, ignorance of God, and contempt of his word and ordinance, giveth him greateſt hope of deſtroying ſouls.

v. 11. nigh unto the mountain] This countrey is for the moſt part hilly; for the mountains of Galaad run through it. See on verſe 1.

v. 12. All the devils beſought him] Which were in the poſſeſſed.

ſend us into the ſwine] This ſheweth, as Satans malice, who will be hurting beaſts, rather then not hurt at all; ſo under what reſtraint his fierceſt malice is, who cannot meddle with the meaneſt beaſt, without leave of God firſt obtained. See Job 1. 10.

v. 13. Forthwith Jeſus gave him leave] Among many other reaſons, this was one, to ſhew the power of Chriſt in ſaving this man from the poſſeſſion and tyranny of ſo many devils as appeared, ſo quickly precipitating a numerous herd of ſwine into the ſea: that the devils are preſently heard, and Gods ſervants ſometimes long delayed, and ſometimes obtain not what they ask at all; ſheweth that God ſometimes granteth in judgement, and denieth in mercy, or delayeth that which he will give, to our greater advantage.

down a ſteep place into the ſea] Strabo ſaith l. 16. that in Gadaris there is a lake of water ſo bad and unwholſome, that if the beaſts drink thereof, they looſe their hair, hoofs, or horns: the herd running here violently down, ſhew that Satan would have ſo driven this man, had not God reſtrained Satan, and preſerved the man, to become ſuch an admirable inſtance of his mercy: mark how Gods gracious providence watcheth over men, whom he might ſeem to have given over to utter deſtruction: who could ſeem more deſperate then this wretched ſoul, with a legion of devils in him? what could Satan ſeem to himſelf more ſecure of, out of hell? yet God even then had ſuch a mercifull care of him, as to limit Satans power, that he might reſerve him then to be pulled as a brand out of the fire, when his converſion might beſt ſerve to advance Gods glory: truſt in God, and deſpair not, you afflicted ſouls, whatever you ſuffer for the preſent: God hath an eye toward you, and even then preſerveth his Elect, when Satan thinketh he is moſt ſecure of their deſtruction.

v. 14. They went out to ſee] Poſſibly the thing ſeemed incredible to them; or they deſired to ſee him who had done ſo admirable a work; or that they might intreat him to leave them: as, verſe 17. See on Matth. 8. 33. and Luke 8. 34.

v. 15. they came to Jeſus] Matth. 8. 34. They come to Jeſus, that he might go from them: how much better affection did the Samaritans ſhew toward him? John 4. 40.

clothed and &c.] See on Luke 8. 35. The devils made him teare his clothes, and go naked, to adde to his miſery, by depriving him of the comforts which God had given men therein. See Luke 8. 27.

v. 16. told them how &c.] They told thoſe who came out of the city to ſee what was done, how Jeſus by his word and command onely, drave out a legion of devils, out of the man who had ſo long infeſted that way; and alſo, what became of the herd of ſwine.

v. 17. to pray him] That they entreated, ſheweth that they were afraid of his power, and their own further loſſe of ſecular things: they feared (ſaith Theophylact) μήποτε καὶ μεῖζόν τι πάθωσι, leſt they ſhould ſuffer ſomething greater; too many love their ſwine better then Chriſt.

v. 18. that he might be with him] Fearing leſt the devil in Chriſts abſence ſhould repoſſeſſe him: he is of a contrary affection to the Gaderens: ſo the ſame ſun-beams ſoften wax, and harden clay.

v. 19. go home and] See on Luke 8. 39. He would feign have attended Jeſus ſtill; partly in thankfulneſſe, as Euthymius notes; partly for fear of repoſſeſſion; as, verſe 18. but Chriſt ſendeth him home, who often directeth us to ſomething better, then that we well deſired. See Acts 16. 6, 7.

and tell how great things] Though Chriſt repulſed of the unworthy Gaderens, did according to their merit, deſert them; yet in his invincible mercy, he left them not without one meſſenger who could out of ſufficient experience preach unto them the omnipotency and mercy of Chriſt: neither can we reaſonably conceive, that Jeſus ſent him away before he had alſo inſtructed him in the goſpel, for his own converſion and others: therefore he ſate at Jeſus feet, Luke 8. 35. and this was the greateſt mercy which God had ſhewed him.

v. 20 and began to publiſh] Here appeareth the admirable power and mercy of Chriſt, who made a preacher of ſo wretched a vaſſall of Satan: he that thus changed him, gave him this ready obedience: ſo following his own works to their conſummation.

all men did marvell] All that heard what Chriſt had done for this man: this admiration poſſibly was a previous diſpoſition to their faith in Chriſt.

v. 21. paſſed over again] Into Galilee, where many had ſeen his former miracles.

v. 22. One of the rulers of the ſynagogue, Jairus &c.] The congregations were not without ſome government: for in every ſynagogue, it appeareth there were ſome rulers: anarchicall parity is a late ſprung up muſhrom. See on Mat. 9. 18. and on Luke 13. 14.

fell at his feet] Matth. 9. 18. This was an effect and ſigne of his faith in Chriſt, and tender affection to his childe, whoſe life he ſo ſubmiſſively begged on his bended knees, this poſture charactereth this man, humble, and modeſt, and much unlike the inſolent Phariſees: Chriſt beſtoweth his favours on the humble.

v. 23 lyeth at the point of death] Or in extremity; or is at the laſt gaſp. Matth. 9. 18. he ſaith, ſhe is even now dead: but it ſeems it was after his ſervants had told him ſo verſe 35.

come and lay thy hand] See on Matth. 9. 18.

v. 24. and thronged him] Many following with eager deſire to ſee the miracles, preſſed upon him.

v. 25. which had a bloody iſſue] Or being in an iſſue. See on Matth. 9. 20.

v. 26. had ſpent all] Coming into a double miſery, of being ſick and poor, ſhe came by this means to a double happineſſe, health of body and ſoul, verſe 34.

grew worſe] Going to the worſe; more weak by ſundry medicines; Phyſick like good counſel, leaves them more uncurable, whom it recovereth not; this ſhews, as her deſperate condition, ſo the abſolute power of Chriſt in this miracle: there is no malady ſo deplored, and deſperate that Chriſt cannot cure it.

v. 27. when ſhe heard of Jeſus] That is, the miracles which he did, beyond all power of man.

ſhe came] After ſhe began to deſpair of help by Phyſitians, ans, then ſhe cometh to Chriſt; then nearer health, when (in reſpect of man) ſhe ſeemed furtheſt from it: God doth moſt readily help the moſt helpleſſe; ſo when men under ſail loſe ſight of the land, they are fain to look up to heaven for ſtars to ſail by.

v. 28. if I may but touch his clothes] See on Matthew 9. 21.

v. 29. ſhe felt in her] Knew. verſe 33.

that ſhe was healed] See on Matth. 9. 22.

v. 30. knowing in himſelf] That is, he knowing what miracle he had wrought: ſhe thought ſhe had obtained this favour which Chriſt knew not of; it was not meet ſhe ſhould go away with that errour; neither that Gods glory in this miracle ſhould be obſcured: therefore he asketh who touched him; as ſhe knew ſhe was healed: ſo Chriſt knew that his power had healed her.

vertue had gone out of him] As light or heat, goeth out of the ſun, not by diminution of the cauſe, but by production of the effect: ſo power went out of Chriſt; yet ἀμείωτος μένουσα, the ſame remaining in Chriſt undiminiſhed: as Theophylact expreſſeth it.

v. 31. his diſciples ſaid] Not knowing the preſent miracle, nor what Jeſus meant hereby.

ſayeſt thou who touched me?] Among this multitude thronging him, he diſtinguiſhed this one, whoſe faith touched him: nothing is hid from him.

v. 32. He looked round about to ſee] This he did, that ſhe might voluntarily confeſſe the benefit ſhe had received, to Gods glory, and the confirmation of Jairus and others faith; not that he was ignorant who, or where ſhe was.

v. 33. fearing and trembling] ὡς κλέψασα τὴν ἴασιν, ſaith Theophylact; as, having ſtollen a cure. See Luk. 8. 47.

v. 34. thy faith hath made thee whole] To the commendation of the effects of faith, he ſaith, thy faith hath healed thee, when it was his power which healed her: ſo faith ſaveth us, not by any merit of faith, but by his merit whom faith apprehendeth.

go in peace] This is a form of bleſſing; mark here, unto what true happineſſe, bitter, deſperate, and long afflictions bring Gods children, to whom ſuch bitter means are ſanctified.

be whole of thy plague] Or continue whole: as, Dan. 1. 21. let it not return on thee: for ſhe was healed before Chriſt ſpake: of thy plague, that is thy infirmity, as Euthymius well interpreteth.

v. 35. from the ruler] From his houſe; properly, not from him, but to him, for he was now with Chriſt.

why troubleſt thou the Maſter] To go to thy houſe, for ſhe is dead.

v. 36. be not afraid] As if I could not raiſe thy dead to life again; which thou ſhalt ſee done.

onely beleeve] Have confidence that I both can and will releeve thee: thus he comforteth him, and cheriſheth his weak faith.

v. 37. ſave Peter, and James, and John] Luke 8. 51. Theſe onely he admitteth. Matth. 17. 1. they were unworthy to ſee his power, who diſbeleeved and derided his truth, as the wicked Jews did.

v. 38. them that wept and wailed greatly] This alſo ſetteth off the excellency of the miracle, in that there was no hope of life left in her to mans judgement: onely the Lord of life could help here.

v. 39. The damoſell is not dead] See on Luke 8. 52. mortua eſt vobis, mihi dormit, Jerom, ſhe is dead to you, but onely ſleepeth in reſpect of my power: for the Lord of life could as eaſily awake her from death, as ſleep.

v. 40. they laughed him to ſcorn] Being aſſured that ſhe was dead. Luke 8. 53.

But when he had put them all out] Such as mock and ſcorn Chriſt, are unworthy to be witneſſes of his mercy.

and them that were with him] The three diſciples mentioned, verſe 37. who were enough to witneſſe the truth: the reſt of the Jews he left without: as, for their unworthineſſe, ſo for his avoiding oſtentation.

v. 41. Talitha cumi] Theſe are Syriac words, which the Evangeliſt retaineth and interpreteth, קומי טליתא To ſhew that Chriſt ſpake in their then vulgar tongue: not as exorciſts whiſpering or muttering ſtrange and unknown words, but ſpeaking plainly to expreſſe his divine power, able to raiſe the dead to life.

v. 42. Straightway the damoſell aroſe] That quickning voice, (John 5. 28, 29.) recalled her ſoul. See Matth. 9. 29. See on Luke 8. 55.

v. 43. Something ſhould be given her to eat] To ſhew that ſhe was not onely revived, but alſo fully recovered: So Luke 8. 55.

CHAP. VI.

Verſe 1. HE went out from thence] Matth. 13. 54.

into his own countrey] Nazareth, where he was bred: as, verſe 3. not Bethleem where he was born.

v. 2. From whence hath this man] See on Matth. 13. 54.

What wiſedom is this?] That is, whence is this wiſedom? whence hath this man this wiſedom? as, Matth. 13. 54. the expreſſion of their doubt is not improper, conſidering that the fountain whence wiſedom is, ſheweth what it is. See Jam, 3. 15. 17. Matth. 21. 25. if it be from above, from heaven: it is good, holy and happy: but if of men, earthly, ſenſuall, deviliſh.

even ſuch mighty works] δυνάμεις, They mean ſuch admirable works, as ſpake him more then man.

are wrought by his hands] That is, by him, as Vatablus interpreteth: hands are put for power ſometimes: as, Pſal. 28. 5. &. 19. 1.

v. 3. Is not this the Carpenters ſon?] See Matth. 13. 55, 56.

are not his ſiſters] After the manner of the Hebrews, who by brethren and ſiſters underſtand, all their kinſfolk.

v. 4. A Prophet is not without honour] See on Matth. 13. 57. and on John 4. 44.

but in his own countrey] He may poſſibly be diſhonoured elſewhere, but for the moſt part his own countrey affordeth him leaſt honour.

v. 5. Not many mighty works] See on Matth. 13. 58. Not becauſe he was infirm, but becauſe they were unbeleeving, as Theophylact well noteth: he would not there do many great works, which muſt have been to their further condemnation: he could not, that is, they were not capable.

v. 6. And he went round about] Matth. 9. 35. Luke 13. 22.

v. 7. and he calleth] Matth. 10. 1.

over unclean ſpirits] To caſt them out of the poſſeſſed: leſt men ſhould contemn the preaching of obſcure and unlearned fiſher-men, he furniſheth them with this power, for the confirmation of their doctrine.

v. 8. that they ſhould take nothing] Nothing to hinder them: otherwiſe we muſt know, this precept was peculiar to them, and bindeth us not from making neceſſary proviſions for journeys, no more then their command in the next place bindeth us: he would teach them ſaith Theophylact, contempt of money, and riches. τὸ ἀφιλοχρήματον, that is, ἀφιλοχρηματίαν.

v. 9. but ſandals] Theſe were in ſtead of ſhoes, being onely a pair of ſoles, bound to, or buckled over the foot, which were, and are ſtill in uſe, in hot and dry countreys.

not put on two coats] That is, they ſhould take no change of garments with them to trouble them, or hinder their work of preaching the Goſpel.

v. 10. there abide] See note on Matth. 10. 11. and Luk. 9. 4. leſt they ſhould ſeem inconſtant for their eaſe, or belly ſake.

v. 11. Whoſoever ſhall not receive you] Matth. 10. 14.

more tolerable for Sodom] He doth not ſay, tolerable, but more tolerable: to ſhew, that as there are degrees of ſinnes, ſo ſhall there be of puniſhments: and that the Lord is a ſevere revenger of the contempt and neglect of his word and ordinance, as appears in the example of Sodom, on which, as Salvian ſaith, he ſent down gehennam è cœlo. lib. 1. de gub. Dei. Hell (that is ſhowers of fire and brimſtone) from heaven. 2 Pet. 2. 6. Gen. 19. and again, l. 4. He ſaith the Sodomites were leſſe damnable then, Evangelia negligentes, as appeareth in the Jews rejection to this day.

v. 12. preached that men ſhould repent] So John Baptiſt preached, Matth. 3. So Chriſt. Matth. 4. Repentance is the key of Chriſts kingdom, as hath been noted.

v. 13. they caſt out many devils] As occaſion was preſented, by them who brought the poſſeſſed to them, or as they otherwiſe met with them.

and anointed with oil] Jam. 5. 14. Though the Evangeliſt in his uſuall way of brevity, mention not Chriſts command to the Apoſtles, to anoint with oil: yet is it more then probable, that Chriſt did ſo command them, elſe they would not have done it. This might then be uſed as a ſymbolum and pledge of the divine grace, by the power whereof, they healed: and principally to ſtrengthen the faith of the ſick, whoſe common errour is, ſo much to depend on ſecond cauſes, that they can hardly beleeve they can be healed, without the concurrence and uſe of ſome ſuch outward means, as they fancie: which we ſee in Naaman, 2 Kings 5. 11. and many others. Therefore oil being in great uſe, ſpecially in thoſe countreys (though Chriſt had neither furniſhed them with the art of Phyſicians, in the uſe of ordinary and naturall means, but the power of doing miracles, by extraordinary and ſupernaturall vertue; neither might they ſo uſe any externall means, whereby to obſcure the evidence of Chriſts power given them to heal) yet thus would Chriſt comply with the infirmity of ſome, and exerciſe the faith of others, who ſhould ſee ſuch admirable effects of means ſo weak; ſo ſaith Jerom, infirmitatem fidei virtute corroborat, he ſtrengthened the infirmity of faith by his power: they who now uſe oil, anoint their ſick, and make it a ſacrament, ſhould firſt conſider, and ſhew us where Chriſt inſtituted it for a ſacrament (for that appertaineth to him alone) next, if they pretend from that of Saint James 5. 14. let them either ſhew us the like effect following, as is here ſpecified, and whereof the Apoſtle ſpeaketh, verſe 15. and the Lord ſhall raiſe him up, or ſhew us cauſe, why a now naked and effectleſſe ſigne ſhould be uſed, and outlive the gift of healing in the Church: or why they commonly uſe it where their ſick are paſt hope of recovery.

v. 14. Herod heard of him] See on Matth. 14. 1. The Goſpel comforteth the godly, but vexeth the wicked.

was riſen from the dead] See on Matth. 14. 2. and Luke 9. 7. So wretched was the conſcience of this wicked man, ὥςε τὸν νεκρὸν φοβεῖσθαι ſaith Theophylact, that he feared a dead man.

v. 18. It is not lawfull] Levit. 18. 16.

v. 19. a quarrell againſt him] Or an inward grudge, and therefore watched opportunity to be revenged.

v. 20. feared John] See on Matth. 14. 5.

heard him gladly] The tyrant was contented to hear Gods word, that at leaſt he might ſeem holy, but the ſeed fell upon ſtony ground.

v. 21. a convenient day was come] See on Matth. 14. 6. This day was fitting to Herodias malicious deſigne; when wine and luxury would make them daring to any miſchief: mark how vigilant malice is.

v. 22. the daughter of Herodias] Which Herodias had not by this Herod Antipas, but by Philip his brother: Joſephus calleth her Salome. See on Matth. 14. 6.

v. 23. he ſware unto her] See on Matth. 14. 7.

unto the half of my kingdom] This was ſpoken to aſſure her of obtaining that which ſhe would aſk, ſuppoſing ſhe would aſk much leſſe: here is a ſhamefull example of a debauched Prince, not onely giving ſo diſhonourable a pattern of imitation to his family, and ſubjects; but alſo ſo evident a teſtimony of his own levity, and precipitate dotage, in his making ſo unproportionable and indefinite a promiſe, to ſo unworthy a merit: mark the injuſtice of the wicked; John preached to ſave Herods ſoul; that was valued ſo much worſe then nothing, that it was requited with death: an immodeſt dancer, for pleaſing an intemperate company, is thought worthy of great reward.

v. 24. ſhe went forth] To conſult with her mother: it ſeemed the women ſate not then at table with them.

v. 25. I will that thou give me] Seeing thou haſt given me a free choice, I deſire onely that thou give me, &c. ſo had Herodias inſtructed her in her own bloody arts: ſo quickly do children learn their parents evil qualities: evil, to which corrupted nature is prone, is eaſily learned, but any good, hardly.

v. 26. exceeding ſorry] In appearance at leaſt. See on Matth. 14. 9.

v. 27. ſent an executioner] Or one of his guard: the word ſignifieth one that beareth a dart; and the kings guard was ſo called, becauſe they did bear darts: others ſay they were called ſo, becauſe they did cut off mens heads with a ſword.

and beheaded him] See on Matth. 14. 10.

v. 28. The damoſel brought it to her mother] See on Matth. 14. 11.

v. 29. and laid it in a tombe] See on Matth. 14. 12.

☞ v. 30. And the Apoſtles] Luke 9. 10. It may be they were afraid at the tidings of Johns death, and durſt not preach abroad any longer, but came back to Chriſt, as to tell him what they had done, ſo to know what they ſhould do. See on Matth. 14. 12. There Johns diſciples relate their grief and loſſe, to Chriſt; here the Apoſtles give Chriſt an accompt of their ambaſſy: ſo rivers return to the place whence they went out. Jerom eccleſ. 1.

v. 31. Come ye your ſelves] Having diſmiſſed the people, he retireth with his Apoſtles.

apart into a deſart place] To refreſh your ſelves after your travell.

and reſt awhile] So had Chriſt a tender reſpect to their infirmity, that by a little reſt, they might be enabled to their future Miniſtry.

v. 37. give ye them to eat] See on Matth. 14. 16.

ſhall we go and buy] This is a kinde of diſtruſtfull ſpeaking, of a thing which they conceived impoſſible, or very difficult. So Numb. 11. 21, 22.

two hundred penyworth of bread] Which according to the value of their peny, is about twenty five crowns, ſix pound five ſhillings; the Roman peny being ſeven pence half-peny. See Matth. 18. 28.

v. 38. how many loaves have ye?] See the ſame hiſtory. Matth. 14. 17. &c. Luke 9. 13. John 6. 9. He aſketh not this as if he were ignorant, but to make them the more ſenſible of the following miracle; having before ſurveyed their ſlender ſtore, and greatneſſe of the multitude, ſo that they might evidently perceive, in this defect of naturall means, a divine hand and power of God ſupplying them.

v. 39. by companies] Word for word, by banquets, banquets after the manner of the Hebrews, who have no diſtributives: as, chap. 6. 7. now he calleth the rows of them that ſate, banquets. See on Matth. 14. 19. and on Luke 9. 15. John 6. 10.

v. 40. Sate down] Fell down.

in rancks] The word ſignifieth, the beds in a garden; by beds, and beds; that is, they ſate down in rows one by another, as beds in a garden.

v. 41. looked to heaven] See on Luke 9. 16.

v. 42. were filled] See on Matth. 14. 20. and on Luke 9. 16. John 6. 12.

v. 43. twelve baskets full] Elias was miraculouſly fed at Sarephath, but we read of no remainds: Moſes fed Iſrael with Manna, but the worms eat the remainder: but Jeſus as the Lord of the creatures, ϗ περισσεύειν ποιεῖ ſaith Theophyl. maketh it ſuperabound in the remainder.

of fragments] Of broken bread and fiſh.

v. 44. about five thouſand men] See on Matth. 14. 21. Luke 9. 14. John 6. 16.

v. 45. to the other ſide] Over againſt Bethſaida, but on the ſame ſide of the water; for the lake was crooked. See Matth. 14. 22.

unto Bethſaida] Or, over againſt Bethſaida.

v. 46. When he had ſent them away] That is, the people, verſe 45. for his diſciples were gone before, and he ſtayed ſome time after, to diſmiſſe the people.

v. 48. toyling and rowing] A lively image of the Church, toſſed to and fro in this fluctuant world.

About the fourth watch] See on Matth. 14. 15.

would have paſſed by them] Seemed to them as if he would have paſſed by them.

v. 49. a ſpirit] φάντασμα, an apparition; as, Matth. 14. 26. a ſpectrum δοκήσεις διανοίας Suid. ſuch as we ſeem to ſee in dreams.

v. 50. He went up unto them] For their better ſecurity, and that he might ſhew himſelf preſent, which in their fear they could not otherwiſe have eaſily beleeved.

v. 51. beyond meaſure] Becauſe they ſaw the winde obey him, and the ſea calmed.

v 52. conſidered not the miracle] Theſe miracles ſeemed new and ſtrange unto them, becauſe they had not well conſidered the former.

v. 53. When they had paſſed over] See on Matth. 14. 34.

v. 54. Straightway they knew him] See on Matth. 14. 35. Chriſt being rejected in his own countrey, and arrived ſodainly among them of whom he was not expected, is received to their great profit.

v. 55. ran thorow that whole region] That is, the people of thoſe parts, every one gave knowledge to his friends, who were ſick and infirm, that Chriſt was come, to the end that they might bring their ſick, or come to Chriſt to be healed. See on Matth. 14. 35.

to carry about in beds] See chap. 2. 4. they carried them about, as they had intelligence of the place where Jesus was, untill he had healed them.

v. 56. into their streets] Into their markets, open places and wayes; presuming that Christ would be intreated to cure them; who onely with his word could do it.

border of his garment] See on Matth. 14. 36.

as many as touched him] As many as touched Jesus, or the hemme of his garments; they touched it for his sake, by whose power they hoped for health.

were made whole] See on Matth. 14. 36. They who withall beleeved in him; otherwise it would nothing advantage them to touch his sacred body: so did they who strook him, bound him, scourged, crucified him, all this but further condemned unbeleevers: the main is faith in Jesus; so, they who now touch him, are saved no lesse then these were.

CHAP. VII.

Verse 1. Then came the Pharisees] Matth. 15. 1. συνάγονται] were congregated, as the Syriac gives it: they came together with one consent: so that howsoever some more perniciously active then others, might call them together, yet they well knew each others minde, and willingly came together, to take counsell against Christ.

v. 2. eat bread] Bread, after the manner of the Hebrews, importeth any kinde of meat. See on Luke 11. 3. and Luke 14. 1.

with defiled hands] κοιναῖς χερσὶ with common hands for the Pharisees would not eat with unwashen hands, supposing themselves defiled by touching of that which was (not sacred) of common. See Matth. 15. 11, 12.

v. 3. oft] Or diligently, as they who wash by rubbing their hands with water, Greek πυγμῇ which the Syriac giveth דבטיר לאיח dabbeti loith, it commeth of the Hebrew במל among other things, signifying neglexit: and in the Syriac by an antiphrasis בטיל betal is curæ fuit, curavit solicitus. See chap. 4. 38. Rom. 12. 17. 2. Tim. 2. 15. Luke 10. 34. so also בטילאיח battilaith, diligently, carefully, curiously; as, Luke 1. 39. Theophylact interpreteth, πυγμῇ by ἄχρι τοῦ ἀγκῶνος, up to the elbow: an expression taken from common use of those who tuck up their clothes to the elbowes, that they may wash vessels clean; with so much care did the superstitious Pharisees observe traditions of men, so little caring for the commandments of God.

holding the traditions] Observing diligently κρατοῦντες with might and main, holding fast concerning traditions, see note on Matth. 15. 2, 3.

v. 4. from the market] Or any other civill affairs; they would not eat, before they had washed themselves lest they should be defiled by commercing with strangers: See John 18. 28.

the washing of cups] By these words are understood all kindes of vessels which are appointed for ordinary use.

pots] Sextarius is about a pint and an half.

tables] Or beds.

v. 5. Why walk not thy disciples] Why live not; an usuall manner of speaking among the Hebrews, with whom a way often was put for a course of life. Psal. 119. 5. Psal. 128. 1. Psal. 1. 1. See on Matth. 15. 2.

v. 6. Well hath Esaias prophesied] That speech of Isaiah, spoken against the hypocrites of his time, fits you as well as if he had prophesied of you by name.

of you hypocrites] Hypocrisie is commonly joyned with superstition.

this people] Isaiah 29. 13. Matth. 15. 8.

v. 7. in vain do they worship me] That which they do pretending to serve me, is vain. See on Matth. 15. 9.

v. 8. laying aside the commandment of God] The inventions of superstitious men, do not onely not fulfill the law of God, but also utterly destroy it.

v. 9. full well] An ironicall speech, meaning, you do very ill in so doing.

reject] Or frustrate, or make void, despise; so ἀθετεῖν importeth. Luke 10. 16.

v. 10. Honour thy father] Exod. 20. 12.

who so curseth] See on Matth. 15. 4.

let him die the death] Let him surely die. Exod. 21. 16. See on Matth. 15. 4.

v. 11. Corban] See on Matth. 15. 4. and on Luk. 21. 4.

v. 12. ye suffer him no more] They did not forbid him to do any more for his parents, but they pronounced him innocent, if he did no more: or they tell him he hath given all to God already; and therefore may give nothing to his parents: or, so much, that he cannot; but their sons offering should bring a blessing upon them.

v. 13. of none effect] See on Matth. 15. 3.

by your tradition] See verse 2.

v. 14. When he had called] See on Matth. 15. 10.

v. 15. from without a man] See on Matth. 15. 11.

v. 16. If any man have ears] See on Matth. 11. 15. and 13. 9. &c.

v. 17. the parable] See on Matth. 15. 15.

v. 18. Are ye without understanding] See on Matth. 15. 16.

v. 19. purging all meats] Cleansing the body by carrying away that which could not be turned into nourishment.

v. 20. That which cometh out of a man] See on Matth. 15. 18.

v. 21. from within] Gen. 6. 5. and 8. 21. Matth. 15. 19.

out of the heart] See on Matth. 15. 19, 20.

v. 22. covetousnesse] All kinde of craftinesse, whereby men gain by the losse of others.

wickednesse] Or malice; as, Rom. 1. 29.

an evil eye] See on Matth. 20. 15.

blasphemy] Evil speaking or detraction.

v. 23. come from within] discovering themselves by evil actions, proceeding from the heart.

and defile the man] See on Matth. 15. 20.

v. 24. into the borders] Matth. 15. 21. Into the uppermost coasts of Palestine, which were next to Tyre and Sidon. See on Matth. 11. 21.

v. 25. A certain woman] See on Matth. 15. 22. They that know they want Christ, will lay out for him.

v. 26. a Greek] Or Gentile.

a Syrophenician] Phenicia, is that region of Asia and Syria, in which was Tyrus and Sidon; whence the inhabitants were called Syrophenicians, inhabitants of that part of Syria, which is called Phenicia. Matthew following the old custom of the Hebrews, calleth her a Canaanite. See on Matth. 15. 22.

v. 27. to cast it to dogs] The meaning is, that though Christ might do good unto the Gentiles, yet might it not be to the prejudice of the Jews. See on Matth. 15. 26.

v. 28. yes Lord] That is, truth Lord; for it is enough for the whelps, if they can but gather up the crumbes that are under the table; I crave no more: that which thy Israel may spare from their wants, will sufficiently relieve me.

eat of the childrens crumbs] See on Matth. 15. 27.

v. 29. for this saying] For so excellent a faith; so admirably expressing it self in confidence and humility: all which importeth not her merit, but his mercy crowning his own graces in her, who had given her such faith, and such thoughts to be expressed. See on Matth. 15. 28.

v. 30. her daughter laid upon the bed] Quietly, not tossing to and fro in torments, as before: for the unclean spirit was cast out by the power of Christ, though in respect of his humanity, he were absent.

v. 31. again departing] Rather going back from: for it appears not in the story, that he had been there before; or else, again signifies the working of another miracle.

of Decapolis] It was a little countrey so called, of ten cities, which the four governments did run between, and compasse. Plin. l. 3. c. 8. they are thus reckoned. 1. Damascus. 2. Opoton. 3. Philadelphia. 4. Raphana. 5. Scytopolis. 6. Gadara. 7. Hippon. 8. Pella. 9. Galasa. 10. and Canatha. See Plin. lib. 5. c. 18.

v. 32. one that was deaf] This seemeth a naturall disease, and therefore the more admirable was the cure: here again appears the faith and charity of those, who brought him to Christ, confident that he both could, and would cure him, though no meer man could have prevailed against so great a defect of nature.

v. 33. put his finger in his ear] By these externall means, he pleased to comply with the faith of infirm spectatours; he could as easily have cured him by his word. See on chap. 6. 13. though he did not this without a mysterie, (as some note) intimating that the finger of God onely can supply such naturall defects.

and spit] See on John 9. 6.

v. 34. and looking up] To shew that he referred all to Gods glory. chap. 6. 41. Matth. 14. 19. John. 11. 41. and 17. 4. and that this was done by a divine power.

Ephatha, that is, &c.] He sighed, out of commiseration of mans miseries. See chap. 1. 41. The word here used is Syriac אתפתח ethphathach, which the Evangelist interpreteth, be opened: of the Hebrew word פתח pethach (Joh. Buxtorf. Jun.) aperuit.

v. 35. His ears were opened] That is, restored again, or formed to a naturall faculty of hearing.

his tongue was loosed] The tie-bond, or impediment to his tongue, or speech was loosed, or taken away: so the work of Christ appeared in curing both infirmities at once, and presently.

v. 36. so much the more] So chap. 1. 45. and Matth. 9. 31.

Chriſt would have had it concealed to a ſeaſonable time, but they, out of an importune zeal, were carried away with an immoderate fervour to publiſh what they ſaw: for it ſeemeth Chriſt charged them that brought him to be cured, to be ſilent.

v. 37. beyond meaſure] As principally, at the effect of his power in healing; ſo, that for all this he neither deſired any retribution of any thing, neither would have ſo much as applauſe with men; which by his command he would have ſuppreſſed.

he hath done all things well] Here ſeemeth a ſecret oppoſition of ſome ill opinion, or report of Chriſts enemies: as if they had ſaid, they are wicked and injurious, who can ſpeak evil of this man, he hath done nothing, but good, and well: it is a wonder why the Phariſees blame, and accuſe him, as an evil doer, when all that he doth, is for our good: the life, preſervation, and welfare of man: and they inſtance in the particular cures, which they had ſeen done, as a certain evidence hereof. Matth. 15. 30. reckoneth up more.

CHAP. VIII.

Verſe I. THe multitude] Which followed him, ſome to hear the Goſpel, ſome to ſee his miracles, ſome to be cured, ſome for other ends. Matth. 15. 32.

having nothing to eat] They being in ſuch a place, as that they could not accommodate themſelves with victuals, and having been three dayes with him.

v. 2. I have compaſſion] See on Matth. 15. 32. Chriſt is the ſame yeſterday, to day, and ever; ſo that ſtill he hath compaſſion on us in all out wants.

v. 3. They will faint by the way] ἐκλυθήσονται; to the letter, they will fall in ſunder, or be diſſolved; for when men fall in a ſwoon, there is a kinde of diſſolution of the ſinews: See on Matth. 15. 32.

v. 4. here in the wilderneſſe See on Matth. 15. 33.

v. 5. How many loaves have ye?] See on Matth. 15. 34.

v. 6. to ſit down, &c.] See on Matth. 15. 35.

took the ſeven loaves] See on Matth. 15. 36.

v. 7 a few ſmall fiſhes] Matth. 15. 36.

v. 8. ſo they did eat] Matth. 15. 37.

v. 9. four thouſand] Matth. 15. 38. beſides women and children.

v. 10. parts of Dalmanutha] See on Matth. 15. 39.

v. 11. and the Phariſees] Matth. 16. 1. The obſtinate enemies of the Goſpel; giving no credit to the miracles already done, require new; but Chriſt being herewith diſpleaſed, departeth from them.

came forth] The Phariſees came out of their houſes, on purpoſe to encounter with him.

ſeeking of him a ſigne from heaven] That they might hereby know that he was ſent from God: not that they might learn and beleeve in him, but to tempt him.

v. 12. he ſighed deeply in his ſpirit] Being very ſorry for theſe mens hardneſſe of heart, and unbelief.

there ſhall no ſigne &c.] If a ſigne be given: See Pſal. 95. 11. The Hebrews uſe ſuch ellipticall expreſſions of oaths, or imprecations; אם im. by an apoſiopeſis and ſodain reſtraining the ſpeech, as in paſſion: ſometimes they ſpeak more large, and mention a revenge from God. as, 2 Sam. 3. 35. Pſal. 132. 3. ſo here, εἰ δοθήσεται, if it ſhall be given; that is, it ſhall certainly not be given, it is a kinde of oath, or proteſtation.

v. 13. he left them] Matth. 16. 4.

v. 14. the diſciples had forgotten] Matth. 16. 5.

v. 15. Beware of the leaven] See on Matth. 16. 6.

leaven of Herod] The contagious doctrine of the Herodians mentioned; Matth, 22. 16.

v. 16. They reaſoned among themſelves] Diſputed among themſelves what our Saviour meant by the word leaven.

becauſe we have] Matth. 16. 7. The Lord blameth our negligence, who forgat to take bread with us: poſſibly they might think of his going again into the deſert for ſome time.

no bread] They whoſe mindes are too much fixed on earthly things, do not quickly apprehend the heavenly, though never ſo plainly ſet forth unto them.

v. 17. becauſe ye have no &c.] Or, ſaying it is becauſe, as, Matth. 16. 8.

v. 18. ſee ye not] See ye not my works which I have done before your eyes.

hear ye not] My doctrine, wherein I have taught you to depend on the providence of God for things neceſſary to this life? Matth. 6. 25.

v. 19. I brake the five loaves] Matth. 14. 17. and 16. 9. chap. 6. 43.

v. 20. And when the ſeven] Verſe 8. Matth. 16 10.

v. 21. that ye do not underſtand] How cometh it to paſſe, that ye do not underſtand things ſo plain and evident? Chriſt in all this ſpeech reproveth, as with admiration, the incogitancy of his diſciples, in that they did not ſo ſeriouſly as they ought, minde thoſe things which they ſaw and heard of him: whence it came to paſſe, that they yet underſtood not (after ſo many miracles ſeen) thoſe things which plainly ſpoke his power, providence and wiſedom: and it is as if he ſaid; I appeal to the teſtimony of your own ſenſes, whether you do not ſtupidly miſtake: what have your eyes ſeen in my former works? what have your ears heard? Is all loſt? Poſſibly he here awakeneth them to better attention, and caſting off that ſleepy thought of fleſh and blood which clouded their underſtandings, by fixing toomuch on ſecond cauſes; not without a ſecret alluſion to that which he ſaid to the Jews. chap. 4. 12.

v. 22. Bethſaida] A little fiſher town, on the ſea of Galilee, over againſt Dalmanutha; See Matth. 11. 21. John 1. 24.

bring a blinde man unto him] Led unto him; being well aſſured by that which they had ſeen or heard of him, that if he but touched him he ſhould recover.

v. 23 by the hand and led him] See chap. 7. 33. To avoid the opinion of thoſe, who might elſe think, that he did theſe miracles, to gain popular applauſe. See John 9. 6.

ſpit on his eyes] See on chap. 7. 33.

He asked him if he ſaw ought] This he ſaid to exerciſe his faith; for Jeſus well knew how much he had healed; and it was not impotency, but his will to heal this man, not (as many others) all at once, but by certain degrees; for cauſes beſt known to himſelf.

v. 24. I ſee men as trees, walking] He perceived ſome motion, but could not at firſt diſcerne that they were bodies of men which he perceived: a true reſemblance of illumination, which encreaſeth in us by degrees.

v. 25. and made him look up] He commanded him to try once more, whether he could ſee well or not.

v. 26. tell it to any in the town] Poſſibly he dwelt in ſome out part, next the fields: the often repetition of the like charge, ſheweth, that the time was not yet come, that he would manifeſt himſelf; but would by ſmall and more private beginnings collect his Church, of thoſe who ſhould beleeve to eternall life. See on verſe 30.

v. 35. will ſave his life ſhall loſe it] See on Matth. 16. 25. Luke 9. 24.

v. 36. What ſhall it profit a man] See on Matth. 16. 26. Luke 9. 25. illud ſolum eſt lucrum, ubi fructus perpetuus. Ambroſ. l. 4. epiſt. 44. That onely is (true) gain, where there is perpetuall fruit thereof: moſt fooliſh of all men are they, who purchaſe the tranſitory pleaſures or riches of this world, with loſſe of eternall and true happineſſe.

v. 37. in exchange for his ſoul] To redeem it from deſtruction; as if he ſaid, no worldly poſſeſſions, no riches, can redeem, or be a price of redemption for a loſt ſoul. See on 1 Pet. 1. 18. Pſal. 49. 6, 7.

v. 38. ſhall be aſhamed of me] Matth. 10. 33. See on Matth. 16. 27. Luke 9. 26. Shall refuſe to own or acknowledge me: *S*ee Rom. 1. 16. or ſhall be aſhamed of my ſufferings; or think it a ſhamefull thing to ſuffer perſecution for the Goſpel and confeſſion of my Name. *S*ee 1 Cor. 1. 23.

when he cometh in the glory &c.] This he mentioneth to intimate the greatneſſe of that glory wherein he (who now came in the form of a ſervant. Phil. 2. and man of ſorows. Iſaiah 53. 3.) ſhould come again to judge the living and the dead.

They are here called holy Angels, to diſtinguiſh them from the impure and evil angels; ſo alſo to let the hearers know that they ought not to be ſcandaled, when they ſhould ſee wicked men aſhamed of the croſſe and humility of Chriſt: ſeeing that the holy Angels ſhould adminiſter unto him in his ſtate of exaltation and glory, which ſhall be true and eternall; leſt otherwiſe Chriſt be aſhamed of them (that is, will not own them as his) hereafter. Matth. 7. 23.

CHAP. IX.

Verſe 1. VErily I ſay, &c.] See on Matth. 16. 28.

taſte of death] Shall not have experience of death, or ſhall not die; as Hebr. 2. 9. Matth. 16. 28. John 8. 52. the Hebrew word טעם taham, guſtavit; by a Metaphor is transferred to the ſoul, and ſignifieth, cognovit, ſenſit expertus fuit. So Pſal. 34. 8. Prov. 31. 18. in the like manner, the Greeks uſed their word, γεύω, Hebr. 6. 4. γευσώμεθα ἀλλήλων, let us try, or have experience of each other: ſo the Latines uſed their guſtare, guſtare ejus ſermonem volo, &c. a proper and proportionable expreſſion here, of the bitter effect of Adams taſting the forbidden fruit: he died (with his poſterity) by ſo taſting, and we ſo taſt by dying.

v. 2 after ſix dayes] Matth. 17. 1. Luke 9. 28.

v. 3. his raiment] It did as it were ſparkle, the heavenly glory of Chriſt, (which ſhould within a few dayes be again eclipſed and obſcured by his croſſe and paſſion) avouched by the conference of Moſes and Elias, and his Fathers voice from heaven, in the hearing of his three diſciples, witneſſes hereof: this was manifeſted unto them, ne timerent opprobrium crucis, Jerom; leſt they ſhould fear the ſhame of his croſſe.

v. 4. Moſes and Elias] See on Matth. 17. 3. Luke 9. 30. becauſe the people ſaid, that Chriſt was either Elias, or one of the Prophets, he ſheweth them, τοὺς κορυφαίους τῶν προφητῶν, Theophylact. the chief of the Prophets, that they might underſtand what the Lord differeth from his ſervants: alſo becauſe the adverſaries calumniated him, as an enemy to the Law and Prophets: here he hath teſtimony of Moſes, & one of the chief prophets: all this was extream neceſſary for the confirmation of the Apoſtles, who were to preach the goſpel to the world, leſt their faith ſhould have ſtaggered at the adverſaries importunate pretences of zeal to the Law and Prophets, to overthrow the doctrine of the Goſpell.

v. 5. it is good for us] Matth. 17. 4. This Theophylact thinks they ſaid, fearing leſt Chriſt would go down again, and die; they thought, if the Jews ſhould come up againſt him to the mount, they ſhould be ſafe, having with them Moſes, who triumphed over the Egyptians, and Elias, who commanded fire from Heaven to conſume the fifties.

v. 6. for they were ſore afraid] For the extraordinary glory which they ſaw: the apparition of Moſes and Elias, and the ſudden fear which ſtartled their mindes, in expectation of ſome change to doubtful events; they were almoſt beſides themſelves with fearful amazement.

v. 7. there was a cloud] See on Matthew 17. 2. Luke 9. 34, 35.

v. 8. Save Jeſus only] See on Matthew 17. 8. Luke 9. 36.

v. 9. Tell no man] See on Chap. 8. 30. See on verſ. 10.

v. 10. they kept that ſaying, &c.] They divulged it not until a ſeaſonable time; for ſo Chriſts prohibition is to be underſtood; not ſimply that they ſhould never tell it, but not until he were riſen again from the dead, as Matth. 17. 9. the reaſon poſſibly might be, leſt in his paſſion, eclipſing all his glory for the time, the hearers unbelief of ſuch a relation, ſhould dangerouſly have ſhaken their faiths towards the reſt of the goſpel.

what the riſing of the dead ſhould mean] They underſtood that there ſhould once be a reſurrection from the dead, John 11. 24. but ſo much did they yet dream of a temporal kingdom, that they could not underſtand what he ſhould mean by his reſurrection from the dead, ſhortly to be, while yet he lived: how, and when this ſhould be, they admired, thinking, as Euthymius ſaith, that this was but ſome parable.

v. 11. Why ſay the Scribes] If it be true that the Scribes ſay, that Elias muſt firſt come, how can the Meſſias ſuffer, ſeeing Elias is not yet come to reſtore all things?

v. 12 reſtoreth] Or fulfilleth, Mal. 4. 5, 6.

how it is written] Concerning the ſuffering of Chriſt, Iſaiah 53. Pſal. 22. ſo ſhall it be, ſo ſhall he ſuffer.

and be ſet at nought] He telleth them beforehand, how ignominiouſly the unthankfull Jews ſhould uſe him, leſt they ſhould be troubled when they ſhould ſee it; therefore he ſheweth from Scriptures, that theſe very things were foretold.

v. 13. but I ſay unto you] The fooliſh opinion of Rabbins is here refelled, concerning the coming again of Elias.

that Elias is indeed come] And you are witneſſes thereof, who ſaw him in perſon with me on the mount; but John Baptiſt, who came in the ſpirit of Elias, they have ſlain, and after him now the Meſſias will they ſlay alſo.

as it is written of him] The name of Elias given unto John, portended, that he ſhould alſo finde an Ahab, and a Jezabel to perſecute him for his reproving their ſins.

v. 15. when they beheld him were greatly amazed] Some think, that the divine Majeſty which ſhined in him on the mount, did yet appear when he came to the multitude; as the glory of Moſes face returning from the mount, Exod. 34. 29. to the aſtoniſhment of the people beholding him; with this difference, that Chriſt appeared to them as amiable, as Moſes terrible, Exod. 34. 30. Theophylact, Euthymius, &c. therefore they came running to him to ſalute him: it ſeemeth his approach ſilenced the inſolent Scribes contention with the diſciples in the abſence of Jeſus.

v. 16. what queſtion ye with them?] That is, among your ſelves, or with my diſciples: he aſketh not as ignorant of their oppoſitions, but taketh occaſion hereby, to interpoſe for the defence of his, and the Goſpel which they profeſſed.

v. 17. one of the multitude] The Scribes for fear of conviction, and the diſciples for ſhame held their peace: but the man, who was the occaſion of the controverſie, anſwered for all: as if he had ſaid, I brought my ſon hither, ſuppoſing thou hadſt been preſent, but thy diſciples could not cure him.

a dumb ſpirit] That is, making my childe dumb, hindring his ſpeech, Euthymius.

v. 18. whereſoever he taketh him] Be it never ſo dangerous a place, fire, water, precipice, as verſe 22. it taketh him at certain times, and by fits.

teareth him] Or daſheth him, caſting him down, as verſ. 20. with an inward torment, as if he would ſplit him, or rent his bowels. See on Chap. 1. 26.

and he foameth] Or, ſo that he foameth: which foaming and gnaſhing of teeth, were ſignes of vehement torture, and hot pains.

and pineth away] With extreamity of pain, and grief of minde.

and they could not] Hence probably aroſe the conflict: the diſciples either not confident to attempt caſting out the unclean ſpirit; or attempting without ſucceſſe; the Scribes preſently inſulted, and jeered them; having ſuch blaſphemous calumnies ready in their mouths againſt Chriſt himſelf, they were not to ſeek for ſome impious objections againſt the diſciples and their doctrine: therefore Chriſt, who permitted them for their unbelief to this ſeeming foil, cometh in due time to reſcue them, and defend his own cauſe.

v. 19. Bring him to me] See on Matth. 17. 17. Luke 9. 41.

v. 20. when he ſaw him] So ſoon as Jeſus had looked on the boy that was brought unto him, the devil began to rage in this manner.

the ſpirit tare him] ἐσπάραξεν, here σπαράσσειν, is as much as ῥήσσειν, v. 18. there given daſheth him: to wit, as it were with violent convulſions tormenting him; for ſo the Greeks uſe σπάραγμα. See on Luke 9. 42.

v. 21. how long is it ago?] He aſketh not becauſe he knew not, but that the ſpectatours might well underſtand, how inveterate, and habitual this evil was; and that he had long ſince deſtroyed him, had he not been reſtrained by the ſame divine power, who now caſt him out.

v. 22. into the fire] As v. 18. Gr. both into the fire, or even into the fire.

if thou canſt do any thing] εἴ τι δύνασαι, which the Syriack interpreter giveth, quod poſſis, what you are able, help me: he meaſured the power of Chriſt with humane reaſon, not yet apprehending his omnipotency.

v. 23. If thou canſt believe] That is, if thou canſt believe, I can do this thing for thee; if thou canſt believe, fear not.

all things are poſſible to him, &c.] Chriſt can, and will do any thing which is good, for them that truſt in him.

v. 24. ſaid with tears, Lord I believe] Conceiving from Chriſts ſpeech good hope of his childes recovery, if the obſtruction and let thereto, were not in himſelf, in ſenſe of his own weakneſſe, and his childes miſery, he ſeriouſly profeſſeth his faith; for as Jerom ſaid, Epiſt. 9. Lib. 2.

Nemo mentiens plorat; no man lying weepeth, or weeping lyeth.

help thou my unbelief] Supply with thy goodneſſe, what is defective in my faith. That which God giveth, he oft times gives by certain degrees, as the conditions of the gifts and receivers require: ſome men, acceptâ fide, diffidentia non carent, Proſper de vocat. Gent. lib. 2. cap. 11. having obtained faith, yet want not ſome diffidence, as he well knew, who ſaid, I believe, help thou mine unbelief; and they who ſaid, Lord encreaſe our faith, Luke 17.

v. 25. that the people came running together] Toward him, to ſee what would be done.

v. 26. rent him ſore] The neerer the power of Chriſt is to cure, the more furiouſly doth Satan rage: ſee on Chap. 1. 26. this Chriſt permitted Satan to do; not that he hath any pleaſure in the miſery of any of his, but to the end that the multitude (ſeeing à quibus calamitatibus liberandus eſſet, Euthymius; from what calamities he was now to be delivered, and the horrid cruelty of the Devil) might the better conceive the power and mercie of Chriſt, delivering the poſſeſſed, which no art, care, nor power of man could do.

v. 27. and he aroſe] When the ſtanders by ſaid he was dead in that terrible fit, Jeſus took him by the hand, caſt out the devil, and the young man was preſently well again: there is no eſtate ſo deſperate, whence the hand of Chriſt cannot raiſe. Let thy hand help me, ſaid David, Pſal. 119. 173. and Pſal. 31. 5. Into thy hands I commit my ſpirit; though the Saint fall, he ſhall not utterly be caſt down, for the Lord upholdeth him with his hand, Pſal. 37. 24. bleſſed are the people who have the Lord for their God: ſerve him, and fear not the malice of Satan: Chriſts hand of divine power is as neer thee now in every diſtreſſe to lift thee up, as was that ſacred hand of fleſh neer this afflicted young man then, to raiſe him when the ſtanders by ſuppoſed him to be dead.

v. 28. why could not we?] See on Matth. 17. 19.

v. 29. but by prayer and faſting] See on Matth. 17. 21. we have need, not onely of faith and prayer, but alſo of faſting and extraordinary humiliation, to caſt Satan out of his poſſeſſion.

v. 30. and they departed thence] He and his diſciples: Matth. 17. 22.

and paſſed thorow Galilee] Paſſed aſide thorow, Chap. 11. 20. and 15. 21. 29. they went by by-wayes, out of the common rode into, and thorow Galilee, becauſe he would be private with his diſciples. See Chap. 2. 23.

v. 31. for he taught his diſciples] Therefore he withdrew himſelf, as to prepare for his approaching Paſſion, ſo alſo to prepare and inſtruct his diſciples, againſt the ſcandal thereof: and to fit them to preach the goſpel to the nations of the world.

v. 32. they underſtood not that ſaying] Concerning his ſuffering, which they thought could not befall their expected Meſſias, of whom they had ſo many glorious promiſes. See Chap. 8. 32.

v. 33. and he came] Matth. 18. 1.

and being in the houſe] Where he was wont to make his abode.

v. 34. who ſhould be greateſt] In the temporal kingdom of the Meſſias, which they yet expected. Acts 1. 6. See on Luke 9. 46.

v. 35. If any man deſire to be firſt] In my kingdom, they that have higheſt places, muſt not look for moſt honour, but take moſt pains for the ſalvation of others.

v. 36. when he had taken him in his armes] ἐναγκαλισάμενος, that is, as Luke 2. 28. interpreteth, ἐδέξατο εἰς τὰς ἀγκάλας, he took him into his armes, to ſhew him for a pattern of that which he would have his be: a childe is not ambitious of honour, he envieth not, is not covetous, nor revengful.

v. 37. one of ſuch children] One like theſe little ones. v. 41.

receiveth not me, but him that ſent me] He doth not onely receive me, but alſo him that ſent me.

v. 38. and John anſwered him] Luke 9. 49.

we forbade him] Out of perverſe zeal to their Maſters honour; as Joſhua envied Eldad and Medad, Num. 11. 27, 28.

v. 39. for there is no man] See 1 Cor. 12. 3.

in my name] God who is the author of an ordinary vocation, worketh alſo extraordinarily ſo often as it pleaſeth him; but an extraordinary vocation pretended to, muſt be juſtified by an extraordinary commiſſion, & appear by ſome extraordinary approbation: as Amos 7. 14, 15. and here; and alſo by the doctrine which they preach.

lightly] ταχὺ, lightly, quickly: he ſhall finde much to do, firſt to quiet his own conſcience.

v. 40. He that is not againſt us] He that oppoſeth not the goſpel, but preacheth, or profeſſeth it.

is on our part] Not that Chriſt eſteemeth them his, who are indifferent, neither hot, nor cold (Rev. 3. 16.) neither true friends, nor profeſſed enemies; but to teach them who are his, a candid charity, interpreting all things to the beſt, where appeareth no manifeſt argument to the contrary. Neither doth that (Matth. 12. 30) He that is not with me, is againſt me, conclude any thing againſt this: for there he principally reſpecteth the mindes of men; here the actions; here the Apoſtles, there himſelf: there he pronounced them his enemies, who did not with faithful and ſincere hearts joyn themſelves to him, there being no mean between Chriſt and Belial; here he admoniſheth his diſciples to take none for enemies who did not declare themſelves ſuch; ſpecially thoſe who did any thing which might ſerve to advance the goſpel, and cauſe of Chriſt: interpret nothing in the worſt ſence, where a better may be made.

v. 41. for whoſoever] Matth. 10. 42.

he ſhall not loſe his reward] This ſheweth how profitable it is to further the work of the Goſpel: that endeavour ſhall not miſſe of a reward.

v. 42. whoſoever ſhall offend] Matth. 18. 6. God is ſo ſevere a revenger of offences, that a man were better ſuffer any thing here, then be an occaſion thereof.

that a milſtone, &c.] See on Matth. 18. 6. & on Luke 17. 2.

v. 43. and if thy hand] Matth. 5. 29. and 18. 8.

offend thee] Or cauſe thee to offend.

to go] ἀπελθεῖν, to go away from this world.

v. 44. their worm dieth not] Iſaiah 66. 24. the worm ever biting the conſcience of the damned: that is, the memory of evil done, Jerom, Theophylact: the remorſe of conſcience, Euthymius: the immortal torment thereof, continually afflicting them: grief of minde, Auguſtin. de C. D. lib. 21. cap. 9. this is that ſecret tormenter, which with ſilent ſtripes teareth the wicked, endleſſe, and hopeleſſe caſt-away.

the fire is not quenched] The fire is, pœna inconſumpta, Jerom in loc. an endleſſe pain, immortalis mortis, of immortal death, as Bernard calleth it, in pſal. qui habitat.

v. 45. Cut it off] See on Matth. 5. 29, 30. and 18. 8.

v. 46. where their worm] See on verſe 44. this repetition declareth our great need, often to be warned of the judgement to come. See alſo verſe 48.

v. 47. offend thee] See on verſe 43. and Matth. 5. 30. and 18. 9.

v. 49. Every one ſhall be ſalted with fire] As every meat-offering in the law was to be ſeaſoned: ſo muſt we be with the graces of Gods Spirit, which are cleanſing like fire, Matth. 3. 11. to burn up the droſſe of ſin. It is an alluſion to the manner of ſacrificing. See Levit. 2. 13. no unſavoury oblation could be acceptable. The moral is opened, Eccles. 5. 1. 4. and Rom. 12. 1. ſalt was preſcribed them (to reſiſt corruption) Jerom interpreteth it to be wiſdom; becauſe ſaith he, there is no good work without wiſdom: as alſo their fire; the fire of the altar which came from heaven, that is, love and zeal: to offer with ſtrange fire was abomination, Levit. 10. 1. &c. Matth. 5. 23. 24. See the moral, Jam. 3. 17. ſalted with fire may ſeem an improper ſpeech, as alſo baptized with fire, Matth. 3. 11. but becauſe both were uſed in ſacrifice, and both are cleanſing, Chriſt fitted one word to both: intimating, that though the word of God were as ſharp as ſalt; or their afflictions grievous (therefore ſometimes are they ſtiled fiery tryals) yet men muſt be contented hereby to be bettered and made more pure (See Iſaiah 1. 25.) it being incomparably better and eaſier for them ſo to be ſeaſoned and refined now, that they may be a pure and acceptable ſacrifice to God, then to be left to Hell fire eternally.

v. 50. ſalt is good] Matth. 5. 13.

but if it have loſt his ſaltneſſe] If Miniſters who ſhould ſeaſon others, have loſt their abilitie thereto; who ſhall mend them?

have ſalt in your ſelves] Keep grace, yet loſe not peace: Hebr. 12. 14. See Matth. 5. 13. Coloſ. 4. 6. we muſt ſeaſon our ſelves, as wel as others; leſt we be like the water of baptiſme, peccata baptizatorum diluens, ſaith Gregory, hom. 17. in evang. waſhing away the ſins of the baptized, and then be caſt away our ſelves. See 1 Cor. 9. 27.

and have peace one with another] Be ye cleanſed from the corrupt humour of ambition, and carnal affectation of ſuperiority: then ſhall ye be wiſe, and ſo love one another, that all men may know that ye are my diſciples, Joh. 13. 35. ambition is an evident madneſſe; and diſſention (the undoubted iſſue thereof) extream folly, if it be ſo, to ruine our ſelves: reſtleſſe ambition was the devils ruine, and his maſter-piece on man.

CHAP. X.

Verſe 1. HE aroſe from thence] ἀναστὰς, ariſing, or he aroſe and went from thence: in the Hebrew ישב, jaſhab, Jaſhab ſignifieth, ſitting, tarrying, or dwelling: ſo alſo קום kom, which the Syriac here uſeth; he aroſe, or ſtood up to go away. See Matth. 19.2.

by the farther ſide of Jordan] In reſpect of ſome creek: for Jury and Galilee were on the one ſide of Jordan.

v. 2. to put away his wife] ἀπολῦσαι, to looſe his wife from him: for the wife while the husband liveth δέδεται is bound to him, Rom. 7.2. in oppoſition hereto, is often ſet ἀπολύειν, Luke 16.18. or ἀπολῦσαι, Matth. 19. 8. among other things ſignifying abſolutum dimittere, to diſmiſs one being unlooſed, or diſcharged from bonds, as Matth. 27. 21.26. John 19.10. underſtand their queſtion to be, as Matth. 19.3. whether it were lawful for a man to put away his wife on every occaſion, they made no queſtion but he might for ſome.

v. 3. what did Moſes command you? This Chriſt beſt knew, who gave the Law by Moſes; but thus in all controverſies he would reduce them to the Law of God, hereby taking occaſion to expound Moſes by Moſes, the Law by the Law, one Scripture by another, (as appeareth v. 6,7,8.) For Geneſis 2.24. it is ſaid, Therefore ſhall a man leave his father and his mother, and ſhall cleave unto his wife.

v. 4. Moſes ſuffered to write a bill, &c.] Deut. 24.1. See on Matth. 19.7.

v. 5. he wrote you this precept] See on Matth. 19.8. this γράφειν is as much as ἐπιτρέπειν, v. 4. to permit, as Matthew hath it. For Moſes commanded not diſmiſſion of the wife; but (as a civil Magiſtrate) permitted it, to avoid murder and cruelty: rather charging the unreconcileable, with a command to write and publiſh the diſſertion of their wives, then any wayes approving that which was not according to Gods law and inſtitution: ſo our law reſtraining intereſt to eight per cent. rather cautioneth againſt extortion, then approveth uſury.

v. 6. from the beginning] Of the world, cap. 13.19. when matrimony was inſtituted.

God made them male and female] One man and one woman; that two united into one fleſh, might be the fountain of propogation to all mankinde.

v. 7. leave his father, &c.] See on Matth. 19.5.

v. 8. one fleſh] Gen. 2.24. As they were one, (the woman being made of a part of man) ſo would God have them but one, in holy unity.

v. 9. what therefore God hath joyned] See on Matth. 19.6. God is the Author of this bond, therefore man may not at his pleaſure diſſolve it.

v. 10. asked him again of the ſame] Of that which he had taught concerning indiſſolubility of marriage, it being a point which the Scribes and Doctors had never taught the people, therefore they yet underſtood it not.

v. 11. ſhall put away his wife] Matth. 5.32. and 19.9.

committeth adultery] Except he put her away for adultery, Matth. 19.9.

againſt her] Whom he hath put away.

v. 12. and if a woman, &c]. If a woman ſhall go from her husband, and take another man, ſhe is an adultereſs.

v. 13. brought young children.] See on Matth. 19. 13. Luke 18.15.

v. 14. he was much diſpleaſed] ἠγανάκτησε, he grieved, had indignation, or took it very ill: the Syriac gives it אתבאש לה ethbeſh leh, which Troſtius giveth indignatus eſt. The word באש baaſh (whence it cometh, and which out of the Syriac we tranſlate he had indignation, Matth. 26.8. Matth. 14.4.) properly ſignifieth fatuit: and by a Metaphor, gravis, ingratus fuit auribus, as Geneſis 21.11. it was grievous, unwelcome, diſpleaſing, or odious: ſo that this giveth us to underſtand, that Chriſt abhorred and abominated (as a loathſome and odious thing which he could not endure to hear or ſee) this perverſe zeal of theirs, which (though probably out of a good meaning) prohibited children to be brought unto him: So the Greeks expreſſe an odious word λόγος σαπρὸς, Epheſ. 4.29. rotten, ſtinking, rancid, or corrupt communication, ſuch as good men loath to hear: by this we may conjecture, how acceptable their zeal is to Chriſt who forbid Infants baptiſm, whereby they are brought to Chriſt, and implanted into him, Romans 6. ſeeing he giveth this reaſon, for of ſuch is the kingom of God, that is, the kingdom of Heaven, Matth. 19.13. The impediment which is commonly objected Chriſt taketh away, verſ 15. where he ſaith, Whoſoever doth not receive the kingdom of God as a little childe, hee ſhall not enter therein: which is in effect as if he had ſaid, the tender age of children is ſo far from barring children from the kingdom of God; that, except they who are of ripe years become like little children, their baptiſm ſhall not advantage them to give them admiſſion into the kingdom of Heaven. If the inheritance of the kingdom be theirs, that which is thereto ſubordinate muſt be theirs: ſuch is baptiſm, which (as the Ark in the deluge) ſaves us, 1 Pet. 3.20.21. if theirs, then it is odious to Chriſt to keep them from that which implanteth them into him. See on Luke 18.16.

v. 15. as a little childe] We muſt be like children in humility, ſimplicity and innocency, if we deſire to enter into the kingdom of Heaven.

v. 16. he took them up in his arms] See on c. 9.36.

and bleſſed them] In the Syriac ובריך אנון ubarech innun, of the Hebrew ברך barach; which ſignifieth to bend the knee, 2 Chron. 6. 13. Pſal. 95.6. to pray; for the Syriac word ברך berach or ברך berech, ſignifieth the ſame, Acts 20.36. Matth. 27.29. Rom. 11.4. &c. thence metonymically it ſignifieth he bleſſed, Mark 8.7. Matth. 14.19. &c. that is, according to the ſence of the Hebrews, he prayed for, or pronounced a bleſſing on them, 2 Sam. 8.10. Exod. 12.32. Pharaoh ſaith וברכתם גם--אתי uberachtem gam othi, ye ſhall alſo bleſſe me, that is, as the Chalde giveth it, pray for me. Concerning Infants we muſt know that God comprehended them in the Covenant as well as their fathers, and therefore Chriſt bleſſed them.

v. 17. that I may inherit life] Two things are to be eſchewed by them who will be ſaved, that is, 1. Opinion of their own merits: 2. Love of riches. Theſe two undo many ſouls: both theſe were in this young man. See on Matth. 19.16.

v. 18. why calleſt thou me good] See on Matth. 19.17.

v. 19. thou knoweſt the commandments] Chriſt anſwereth to his queſtion and ſenſe: hee ſaid, what good ſhall I do? thinking he muſt be ſaved by the works of the Law, which is indeed to decline and wave free-juſtification by faith in Chriſt: therefore Chriſt to convince his conſcience, remitteth him to the Law, by which is the knowledge of ſinne, Romans 7. 7. but no juſtification from ſinne, Romans 8. 3. See on Matthew 19. 16, 17. and on Luke 18. 20.

v. 20. all theſe have I obſerved] See on Matth. 19. 20. Luke 18.21.

v. 21. loved him] ἠγάπησεν αὐτὸν, loved, kiſſed, or cheerfully and in a friendly manner received him, as truly pittying him, who having with ſo much care outwardly kept the law of God, which many did not; yet did but deceive himſelf with a vain opinion of righteouſneſs, as if he were perfect, or neer thereto; when yet without faith in Chriſt he could not poſſibly be ſaved.

Sell what thou haſt] This is no Evangelical counſel, but a precept; though not binding all particularly to ſell all and give it away to the poor: yet in the general it bindeth every one to be willing to leave all at Gods command, or where his honour requireth it.

v. 22. went away grieved] With a ſad heart and heavy countenance, afflicted, as the Syriac Interpreter hath it. See Matth. 19.22. Luke 18.23.

v. 23. ſhall they that have riches] See Matth. 19.23. Luke 18.24. That is, who truſt in riches (as here Chriſt interpreteth v. 24.) the vulgar fault of rich men.

v. 24. that truſt in riches] See Pſalm 62.11. 1 Tim. 6. 17. The danger is not in riches, but the abuſe thereof: this he ſaith to his Diſciples whom he ſtileth children, becauſe ſo he accounted them in his love and care of them, that they might underſtand the myſteries of eternall life.

v. 25. eaſier for a camel] See on Matthew 19.24. Luke 18.25.

v. 26. who then can be ſaved] See on Matthew 19.25. Luke 18.26.

v. 27. with men it is impoſſible] See on Mat. 19.26. Luke 18.27.

v. 28. then Peter began] See on Matth. 19.27.

we have forſaken all] Matth. 19.27. Luke 18.28.

v. 29. or wife, or, &c.] The meaning is, that God is a bountiful rewarder, and that the want of that which for his ſake we forgo, ſhall be recompenſed with better ſpiritual ſupplyes.

v. 30. ſhall receive an hundred fold] Either of temporal bleſſings when afflictions and perſecutions are over, as Job did receive more then he loſt; or in a bleſſed ſupport in midſt of troubles; as experience of Gods mercies, the Mother of Hope, Rom. 5.4. and the quiet fruits of righteouſneſs at laſt, Hebr. 12.11. Such a gain, is, loſſe for Chriſts ſake, they ſhall finde bleſſings temporal and eternal, as Iacobs ſonnes parting from Egypt, found in their ſacks both corn and their money again, wherewith they had purchaſed it.

v. 31. but many] Matth. 19.30.

v. 32. they were in the way] Matth. 10.27.

Jeſus went before them] The Diſciples abhorred this journey to Ieruſalem, knowing that the high prieſts & elders maliced him to the death, therefore to animate his timorous Diſciples, he manifeſted himſelf a cheerful leader of the way, by his pace, countenance, and geſture: to let them know that he feared not death, but now that the hour was come, offered himſelf thereto.

they were amazed as they followed] Not yet underſtanding why he would caſt himſelf again upon ſuch apparent dangers.

they were afraid] Full of thoughts, as miſdoubting their own ſafety.

he took again the twelve] See Matth.20.17. and on Luke 18.31.

what things ſhould happen unto him] The often repetition of this one leſſon, ſheweth, how ſlow they were to underſtand it, how unwilling to learn it.

v. 33. behold we go up to Jeruſalem] This is our laſt journey thither.

v. 34. ſhall mock him] See Matth.20.19.

v. 35. and James and John] Matth.20.20.

ſaying] By their mothers mediation, Matth.20.20. See the like Matth.8.5. compared with Luke 7.3.

v. 36. that I ſhould do for you] See on Matth.20.21.

v.37. that we may ſit on thy right hand, &c.] See on Matth. 20.21.

v. 38. ye know not what ye ask] See on Matth.20.22.

v. 39. ye ſhall drink indeed, &c.] See on Matth.20.22,23.

v. 40. is not mine to give] Not mine in the ſenſe wherein you deſire this priviledge; that is, as being an earthly Monarch: the heavenly rewards are not here to be diſtributed in ſuch reſpects; nor is my kingdom or glory of this world.

v.41. when the ten heard it] The other ten Apoſtles. See on Matth.20.24.

v.42. exerciſe lordſhip, &c.] Princes and Rulers according to Gods ordinance rule over their ſubjects in this world; but I have no ſuch temporal kingdom here, neither muſt ye expect it, but be humble like me whom ye ought to imitate. See on Matth.20.25. Luke 22.24, &c.

v. 43. ſhall be your miniſter] or let him be, your ſervant. See on Matth.20.27.

v. 44 of you will be the chiefeſt] Matth.20.27.

v. 45. the ſon of man came not to be, &c.] See on Matth. 20.28.

v. 46. blinde Bartimeus] See on Matth. 20. 29, 30. and Luke 18. 35. This Evangeliſt nameth the blinde man as being well known about Jericho. בר bar, ſignifieth in the Syriac, a ſon: ſo that which we ſay Bartimeus, is as much as the ſon of Timeus: as alſo Bartholomeus was the ſon of Ptolome. So Barnabas, and other names are compounded. See on Luke 18.35.

v. 47. heard that it was Jeſus] See on Matth.20.30.

v. 48. hold his peace] See on Matth.20.31.

cryed the more] See on Matth.20.31. and Luke 18,39.

v. 49. Jeſus ſtood ſtill] See on Matth. 20.32. and on Luke 18.40.

they call] Probably the Diſciples who were confident of the cure, becauſe Ieſus would have him called to him.

be of good comfort] θάρσει, be confident, be of good cheer. So Matth. 9. 2.22. He calleth thee, who cureth all that come unto him for help.

v.50. caſting away his garment] His upper garment, ſome Cloak or Mantle, &c. ſo joyful was he that Chriſt called him, that he caſt away, or off, what ever might hinder him, and came cheerfully to Chriſt.

v. 51. what wilt thou that I, &c.] See on Matth. 20.32. and on Luke 18.41.

Lord that I may receive my ſight] ῥαββονί, or ῥαββουνί, for ſo were their eminent Doctors called. See Iohn 20.16. See on Matth.20.33. and on Iohn 1.38.

v. 52. thy faith hath made thee whole] See c. 9.23. Mat.9. 2.22. Mat.8.13. faith the fountain of prayer and confidence, and conſtancy, obtaineth of God a ſupply of all our wants and defects.

immediately he received ſight] See on Mat. 20.34. and on Luke 18.43.

and followed Ieſus in the way] Not led as before, but ſeeing as the reſt of the multitude: probably he went along rejoycing, to ſee him of whom he had received ſo gracious a favour, and above all, that he might hear the word of Chriſt to edifie and confirm him more.

of his diſciples] This αὐτοῦ ſheweth that they were two of his own Diſciples, that is, Apoſtles: for many others followed him to learn of him, and ſo might be called Diſciples alſo.

v. 2. the village over againſt you] See on Matth 21.2.

never man ſate] For holy uſes (ſome ſay) they made choice of beaſts, that had not been before imployed otherwiſe.

v. 3. if any man ſay] See on Matth.21.3.

v. 4. they went their way] See on Matth.21.6.

v. 5. what do ye looſing, &c.] As if they ſaid, why meddle ye with other mens goods? why do ye that which is not lawful?

v. 6. and they ſhall let them go] The owners hearing what the Lord had bid them ſay, preſently permitted them quietly to carry away their beaſts for the uſe of Chriſt.

v. 7. caſt their garments on him] See on Matth.21.5,7.

v. 8. ſpread their garments] See on Matth. 21.8. Luke 19. 36. John 12,13.

v.9. Hoſanna] See on Matth.21.9. Luke 19.37,38. John 12.13. He often came to Ieruſalem, but never with ſuch acclamations and ſhew of Majeſty: formerly he came privately, becauſe he would decline their envy; but now that the time of his paſſion was come which himſelf had determined λαμπρότερον ἔρχεται, he cometh more glorioully, that they might know him to be truly God, and the expected Meſſias; if not, that it might be to their greater condemnation, ſaith Theophylact.

bleſſed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord] Well be it to him that cometh to us from God, or that is ſent of God.

v. 10. bleſſed be the kingdom, &c.] Be it now happy and proſperous as we have long expected.

v. 11. when he had looked round] As being Lord of that houſe, he appeared, as viewing what was amiſſe and to be amended or reformed, which he preſently did, caſting out profaners from the temple.

v. 12. he was hungry] See on Matth.21.18.

v. 13. ſeeing a fig-tree] Matth.21.19.

if happily] Or to ſee if happily, as Geneſis 3.22.

he found nothing but leaves] A true Embleme of an Hypocrite, who makes a ſhew of godlineſs, but yet is fruitleſs and neer the curſe, Matth.3.10. Hebr.6.8. Iſay 5.5,6.

for the time of figs was not yet] Iſrael was repreſented by this barren tree, Iſai. 5.7. Luke 13.8. which brought forth only ſhews of holineſs, obſervation of ceremonies (that law affording them onely ſhadows, but no fruit) but not the ſubſtance of godlineſs, which is the fruit which God looks for. In the Letter we muſt conſider, that the time of new fruits could not yet be, it being but the firſt moneth, as it was called after the captivity ניסן Niſan (which anſwered partly to our March, and partly to April) in the tenth day whereof the Paſchal Lamb was to be taken, and on the fourteenth day the Paſſeover (to which they were now going to Ieruſalem) was to be eaten, Exod. 12.3.6. therefore ſo ſoon in the ſpring the fig-tree could not bear any of that years fruit: and certainly Chriſt did not irrationally go at an unſeaſonable time to ſeek fruit thereon: So that it may moſt probably be concluded, that he ſought ſome figs of the old ſtore which uſe to hang on all the yeer, ſpecially in thoſe hot countreys: So that in the Letter, albeit the tree could not yet yeeld any new fruits, becauſe the time was not yet come, yet might it have ſhewed ſome remainds of the former fertility. And in the type, if the Jewes (hereby repreſented) might finde excuſe for their not yet believing in Chriſt, before the fulneſs of that time was come; yet were they unexcuſable, that they neither brought forth to the Lord fruits of righteouſneſs according to their firſt covenant under the Law, which ſaid, Do this and live: Nor according to the ſecond covenant under grace and the Goſpel, which ſaid, Believe and thou ſhalt be ſaved: therefore Chriſt came this once to the fig-tree, not ſo much for his own ſake, (who well knew, both it, and how otherwiſe to have ſupplyed his own wants) as for the Apoſtles whom he would fore-inſtruct concerning the rejection of the Jews, to whom he came, three yeers ſeeking fruit, Luke 13. (which may import the time before the Law, under the Law, and now under the Goſpel) and found none. This, Chriſt neceſſarily inſtructed them in, in regard that it muſt have been no ſmall ſcandal and grief to the Apoſtles, that their kinred, the Iſrael of God, muſt for their unfruitfulneſs be under the curſe (like this withered fig-tree) and withered and conſumed for their rejecting the Goſpel, whereof they were to be preachers, as may appear Rom.9.2,3. Therefore as God inſtructed Jonah by the withered gourd; ſo here Chriſt enformeth his Diſciples by this ſoon withering fruitleſs fig-tree. See on Matth.21.20.

v. 14. Jeſus anſwered] That is according to the Hebrew manner of ſpeaking, hee began thus to ſay on this occaſion.

never man eat fruit] Poſſibly this was becauſe he knew that this tree had not yet born fruit, or that it bare little, and was ſo unprofitable to the owner; but however, the Lord of all creatures might juſtly diſpoſe of it, who (whatever right he gives men in his creatures) may juſtly give, and take at his pleaſure.

his diſciples heard] They were to be witneſſes of what was done on the morrow; neither would they have admired, nor much obſerved the power of Chriſt herein; if they had not heard, when he had thus curſed it.

v. 15. and they came] Matth. 21. 12.

and began to] That is, did caſt out; for he had done it once before, John 2. 15. See the like phraſe, chap. 10. 32.

to caſt out them that ſold] Chriſt ſheweth indeed, that he is the true king, and high Prieſt, and therefore the revenger of the abuſes of the temple.

v. 16. that any man ſhould carry any veſſel] That is, any common ones, ſuch as they brought into the temple, who made it a market place.

v. 17. My houſe ſhall be called] Shall generally be ſo accounted and taken.

of all nations the houſe of prayer] πᾶσι τοῖς ἔθνεσιν, unto all nations, this was perfectly fulfilled in the Church of Chriſt, gathered of all nations, which began from this Temple, out of which ſounded that Goſpel, which was ſpread over the world. See Iſaiah 2. 3. and 56. 7. See on Matth. 21. 13. and on Luke 18. 10. and 19. 46. and on John 2. 16.

a den of theeves] Thus he calleth it, διὰ τὸ φιλοκερδὲς, Theophylact, for their covetouſneſſe: for theeves ſeek gains, by any, though never ſo unjuſt wayes.

v. 18. how they might deſtroy him] They had long before determined to do it, now therefore they conſult how they may, with leaſt danger to themſelves, becauſe they feared the people would take his part.

v. 19. he went out of the city] That he might not ſo much as ſeem to give any occaſion of tumult to the city, prone thereunto.

v. 9. What ſhall therefore the Lord] See on Matth. 21. 40. and on Luke 20. 15.

he will come] This anſwer is attributed to the chief prieſts and elders, Matth. 21. 41. See note thereon. They could ſee their own faults, as men ſee their faces in a glaſſe; looking from themſelves they ſee themſelves: we ſee our own ſinnes beſt in another perſon. See 2 Samuel 12. 5, 6, &c.

unto others] The calling of God is not without exception, tied, to perſon, place, or time, when one nation or people abuſe his mercies long beſtowed upon them, he giveth it at his pleaſure to ſome others, who ſhall render him better fruits.

v. 10. head of the corner] See on Matth. 21. 42.

v. 11. This is the Lords doing] Pſal. 118. 23.

v. 12. to lay hold on him] They were very deſirous to do it.

v. 13. and they ſend] See on Matth 22. 15, 16.

v. 14. thou regardeſt not the perſon of men] Gr. thou lookeſt not upon the face. The Areopagites did judge in the dark, that they might not be moved with any mans outward ſhew: theſe here pretend, that Chriſt did not ſo judge by outward appearance, that the truth ſhould therby ſuffer any prejudce but teacheſt the way of God in trueth] the way that God hath appointed us to walk in.

v. 15. a peny] See Matth. 18. 28.

v. 16. Whoſe image is this] See on Matth. 22. 20.

v. 17. render unto Ceſar] See on Matth. 22. 21. and on Luke 20. 25.

to God the things that are Gods] The Goſpel joyneth the authority of the Magiſtrate, or Prince, with the ſervice of God. See on Matth. 22. 21.

they marvelled] See on Matth. 22. 22.

v. 18. Then come the Sadduces which ſay, &c.] See on Matth. 22. 23. and on Luke 20. 27.

v. 19 If a mans brother die] See on Matth. 22. 24. and on Luke 20. 28.

v. 20. ſeven brothers] Matth. 22. 25. Luke 20. 29.

v. 21. the ſecond took her] Matth. 22. 26 Luke 20. 30, 31.

v. 22. ſeven had her] Matth. 22. 26 Luke 20. 31, 32.

v. 23. Whoſe ſhall ſhe be] See on Matth. 22. 28. and on Luke 20. 33.

v. 24. Ye know not the Scriptures] See on Matth. 22. 29.

v. 25. neither marry &c.] See on Matth 22. 30.

as the angels] See on Matthew 22. 30. and on Luke 20. 36.

v. 26. the God of Abraham] See Matth. 22. 32.

v. 27. Not the God of the dead] See on Luke 20. 38.

v. 28. one of the Scribes] See on Matth 22. 35.

v. 29. The Lord our God is one] Deut. 6, 4. this εἷς ἐστι, is one, excludeth pluralitities of eſſence, or natures, not of perſons.

v. 30. love the Lord thy God, &c.] See on Matth. 22. 37, 38. Luke 10. 27.

with all thy ſtrength] As much as poſſibly thou canſt: the meaſure of love to thy neighbour, muſt be thy ſelf; but the meaſure wherewith we muſt love God, muſt be to love him without meaſure.

v. 31. the ſecond is like] Of the like importance in reſpect of thy ſalvation; for thou canſt not be ſaved without love to God and thy brother, & what ſhal it then profit us, if loving our ſelves we bawk our neighbours? or what again ſhall it advantage us, if loving our neighbours, we neglect our ſelves? Greg. hom. 17. in evang. love thy neighbour as thy ſelf; but love both in God.

v. 32. thou haſt ſaid the truth] ἐπ' ἀληθείας, &c. thou haſt ſpoken in truth: the Syriack giveth it, as we, thou haſt ſayd the truth. He came to prove Chriſts wiſdom, and hearing it, giveth teſtimony thereto.

v. 33. more then all whole burnt-offerings] More excellent and more acceptable to God, 1 Sam. 15. 22. theſe ceremonies never pleaſed God, without the other duties which we owe to him, and reſpectively alſo to our neighbour. See Iſaiah 1. 13. 16. 17. Hoſ. 6. 6. Mich. 6. 6, 7.

v. 34. anſwered diſcreetly] νουνεχῶς, as it were from νοῦν ἔχειν: he anſwered as one having a ready minde, as we vulgarly ſay, with his wits about him, or learnedly and ſkilfully: for ſo the Hebrew חכם, chacham ſignifieth, and thence is the Syriack word חכימאית chimaith, here uſed, derived.

v. 35. that Chriſt is the Son of David] Chriſt denieth not that which he voucheth here of the Scribes, but proveth his Deity by the words of David. See on Matth. 22. 42.

v. 36. ſaid by the Holy Ghoſt] See on Matth. 22. 43. ἐν τῷ πνεύματι ἁγίῳ, in or by the holy Spirit: he intimates that it was not ſo much David, as the holy Ghoſt that ſpake by David. See 2 Pet. 1. 21.

The Lord ſaid] Pſal. 110. 1.

v. 37. the common people heard him gladly] Many of the common people, or the greater part of them, while he taught them, cheerfully and attentively hearkened to that he ſpake.

v. 38. Beware of the Scribes] βλέπετε, Look to: as, chap. 8. 15. Matth. 23. 5. The manners of all Miniſters, are not incautiouſly to be followed as examples of our lives.

in long clothing] ἐν στολαῖς, a ſtole, is a kinde of veſture or robe, long to the heels, which anciently the Perſians uſed to wear: the Latines did more ſpecially take it for a womans garment: στολίον, was a ſhort coat ſuch as Philoſophers commonly wore: but in this place it ſeemeth to ſignifie that fringed garment, mentioned Deut. 22. 12. כסות cheſuth. See on Matt. 23. 5. and on Luke 20. 47.

ſalutations in the market] See on Matth. 23. 7.

v. 39. chief ſeats] See on Matth. 23. 6.

v. 40. [devour widows houſes] They ſpoil thoſe whom Gods law gave a ſpeciall charge to preſerve. See 2 Tim. 3. 6. and on Matth. 23. 14.

receive greater damnation] That is, more then ordinary puniſhment in hell: becauſe they not onely ſerved ſin and Satan, in their contempt of Gods laws, but alſo made a pretence of his holy worſhip, to ſerve their unhallowed deſires and impieties: counterfeit ſanctity, is double iniquity.

v. 41. ſate over againſt the treaſury] See on Luke 21. 4.

money] χαλκὸν, Here is a metonymie of the matter: braſſe, is here put for any kinde of money, whether of braſſe or other mettall, which the Romans uſed, as do ſome nations now: ſo they uſed the word as, gravis ære, full of money, æs alienum, debt: the Syriac hath a word here עורפנא hurephano, hereby ſignifying any kinde of ſmall money.

into the treaſury] Or cheſt, whereinto they put their beneficence. 2 Kings 12. 10, 11. 2 Chron. 24. 8.

v. 42. two mites] It was, (ſay ſome) a ſeventh part of one peece of that braſſe money. See on Luke 21. 2. though ſhe well knew the ſlenderneſſe of her ſtock, and how little thoſe her two drops, could adde to greater floods of others beneficence, yet ſhe would not want will, though ſhe did ability to her minde: nothing deſpairing, but that God would accept the will which he had given, who had not given her wealth.

v. 43. He called unto him his diſciples] He called them apart, probably; that neither his diſciples might be ignorant how God accepteth the will of thoſe who cheerfully give, though they cannot bountifully; nor the widow might hear, to move her to any vain glory (a weed which will grow on the leaſt ground) nor the people to envy.

this poor widow hath caſt in more] See on Luk 21. 3. this was an epitome of great wealth; much in Gods gracious acceptance, who as Gregory ſaith, hom. 5. in evang. cor, non ſubſtantiam penſat, weigheth the heart (of the giver) not the value of the gift: ſo rich men give, ſecure of their wealth, to bear it; but poor men, of Gods favour, to ſupply them with more: it is our affection, not our ſtore, which commendeth our gifts to God, who can never be covetous, nor leſſe gracious in accepting the beſt we can preſent. See 2 Cor. 8. 12.

v. 44. but ſhe out of her want] Out of her exceeding ſmall ſtore, 2 Cor. 8. 2.

all her living] That is, all the means ſhe had to live on: all that for preſent ſhe had to ſuſtain her life: ſo βίος ſignifieth, both life, and livelyhood: ſhe gave all, who had no more left her to give, or to relieve her ſelf; but muſt work for more; whereas others gave of that abundance, or ſtore, which lay by them, whereof they had not ſo much as preſent uſe.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſe 1. AS he went out of the temple] Matth. 24. 1.

ſee what manner of ſtones] How beautifull, Luke 21. 5. and large, verſe 2. Joſephus antiq. lib. 15. c. 14. reporteth, that they were white hard ſtones, of a very great magnitude: no doubt it was a very ſtrong, beautiful and magnificent ſtructure; but no ſtrength can reſiſt, nor worldly magnificence appeaſe Gods anger againſt obſtinate ſinners. Becauſe he had ſaid, their houſe (the temple in which they ſo much gloried) ſhould be left deſolate, they admiring that ſuch a goodly fabrick ſhould be demoliſhed, ſhew him εὐπρέπειαν, the comelineſſe thereof. Theoph.

v. 2. Seeſt thou theſe great buildings] Thou thinkeſt, they ſhall ſtand for ever, becauſe of their ſtrength, beauty and magnificence; which, in relation to ſecond cauſes, might poſſibly be; but as, except the Lord build the houſe, their labour is but vain that build it, Pſal. 127. 1. ſo alſo, except he keep it.

one ſtone upon another] That is, it ſhall be utterly deſtroyed. See Matth. 24. 2. thus he foreſhews their miſery, and therewith their many comforts, in the midſt of their calamities.

thrown down] καταλυθῇ, diſſolved, or deſtroyed, as chap. 15. 29.

v. 3. on the mount of Olives] See Matth. 24. 3. it ſeemeth it was where they had the temple in ſight.

v. 4. Tell us when] See on Matth. 24. 3.

v. 5. leſt any man deceive you] See on Matth. 24. 4.

v. 6. come in my Name] See on Matth. 24. 5. many ſeducers pretending to my office, name, authority, or doctrine, that thereby they may ſeduce unſtable ſouls: errour and impiety can no wayes deceive, but under ſome ſhew or ſhadow of vertue.

I am Chriſt] That is, he whom ye look for. See Matth. 11. 3.

v. 7. When ye ſhall hear of wars] See on Matth. 24. 6. now are theſe times foretold; for now alſo, as Cyprian l. 2. ep. 2. madet orbis mutuo ſanguine, the world is wet with mutual blood.

the end ſhall not be yet] See on Matth. 24. 6.

v. 8. Nation ſhall riſe &c.] See on Matth. 24 7.

theſe are the beginnings] Ye ſhall have greater ſorrows afterward.

of ſorrows] See Matth. 24. 8. ὠδίνων, here is a Metaphor taken from a womans travell, whoſe pains greaten by degrees, unto the birth.

v. 9. take heed to your ſelves] βλέπετε ἑαυτούς, the Syriack giveth it, reſpect your ſoul: the meaning is, take heed of the dangers which ſhall then beſet you.

they ſhall deliver you up] The enemies of the goſpel ſhal deliver you up to ſecular powers, that they may perſecute you: ſo they did to Herod, Agrippa, Nero, &c.

for a teſtimony] For a teſtimony againſt themſelves, to leave them without all excuſe of their unbelief and diſobedience, who having heard the goſpel ſo evidently preached by you, yet regarded it not.

v. 10. the goſpel muſt firſt be publiſhed] Before ye be thus perſecuted: ſo was it before Jeruſalem was deſtroyed. See Rom. 10. 18. See on Matth. 24. 14 among all nations] To the Gentiles, as well as to the Jews. To ſome nations it was not preached until after the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, many were remote, and ſome then undiſcovered.

v. 11. when they ſhall lead you] To the Magiſtrates. See on Matth. 10. 19. and on Luk. 12. 11. and on Luk. 21. 13. 14.

it is not you that ſpeak, &c. Gods Spirit will guide your tongues: this was a ſpecial promiſe to the Apoſtles.

v. 12. brother ſhall betray brother] Out of a blinde zeal they will accuſe each others, and complain of each other to the Magiſtrate; ſo forgetting all laws of nature, as if their religion taught them to be cruel and unnatural: let him that readeth conſider our preſent condition.

v. 13. ye ſhall be hated of all men] Of moſt men with whom you ſhall converſe: or of all worldly men; or of ſome of all ſorts. The like manner of ſpeaking, ſee Phil. 2. 21.

for my Names ſake] For profeſſing me to be the Saviour of the world.

endure unto the end] That ſhall conſtantly endure afflictions and perſecutions, for profeſſing the goſpel. See on Matth. 24. 13.

v. 14. the abomination of deſolation] Theophylact thinketh, that was his ſtatue who deſtroyed the city. See on Matth. 24. 15.

v. 15. on the houſe top] See on Matth. 24. 16. and on Luke 21. 21. let him make haſte away, and not ſtay to fetch any thing out of his houſe, leſt ſo doing he be ſhut up with the beſieged, and ſo periſh.

v. 16. to take his garment] See on Matth. 24. 18.

v. 17. with childe] See on Matth. 24. 19. they cannot fly.

v. 18. in the winter] See on Matth. 24. 20.

v. 19. ſhall be affliction] One affliction ſhall follow another, and one calamity another. See on Luke 21. 22.

from the beginning of the creation] That is, of the world created, as chap. 10. 6.

v. 20. except the Lord had ſhortned] Except he had ſhortned this war of the Romans with them, none of the Jews would have been left alive. See on Matth. 24. 22. Theoph. So is this ὐκ ἂν ἐσώθη πᾶσα σὰρξ, all fleſh ſhould not be ſaved, after the Hebrew manner, put to ſignifie no fleſh, as Pſal. 143. 2. כל חי, col chai, all living, that is, none: this, be ſaved, the Syriack well giveth, non viveret, &c. not a Jew ſhould have been left alive. Theoph.

for the elects ſake] That is, for the believing Jews ſake.

v. 21. Lo, here is Chriſt] See on Matth. 24. 23.

Believe him not] See on Luke 17. 23.

v. 22. ſhew ſignes] Give ſignes. See on Matth. 24. 24. 2 Theſ. 2. 9.

v. 23. but take ye heed] See on Matth. 24. 25.

v. 24. tribulation] As verſe 19. See on Matth. 24. 29. Luke 21. 25.

v. 25. powers of heaven] See on Matth. 24. 29.

v. 26. ſee the Son of Man] See on Matth. 24. 30. then he will come manifeſtly, who for our redemption deſcended, tanquam pluvia in vellus, like the dew into Gideons fleece. Jerom.

v. 27. ſend his angels] His own Angels. See on Matth. 24. 31.

and ſhall gather together] By the Miniſtery of his Angels. Matth. 13. 41. and 24. 31.

his elect] His own elect.

to the uttermoſt part of Heaven] His elect both in Heaven and Earth; for all of them ſhall attend Chriſt at the day of judgement, Jude 14.

v. 28. branch is yet tender] Or now tender, or already tender, which is ſo in the ſpring, not in the winter. See chap. 6. 35. and 8. 2. and 15. 42. 44. and on Matth. 24. 32.

v. 29. when ye ſhall ſee theſe things] See on Matth. 24. 33. Luke 21. 31.

that it is nigh] The kingdom of God, Luke 21. 31.

v. 30. This generation ſhall not paſſe] See on Matth. 24. 34. Luke 21. 32.

till all theſe things be done] Begin to be accompliſhed: for the deſtruction of Jeruſalem came, while ſome of this age were alive.

v. 31. Heaven and earth ſhall paſſe] See on Matth. 24. 35. Luke 21. 33.

v. 32. But of that day] Mentioned, verſe 26. See on Matth. 24. 36.

and hour] Or ſeaſon.

no not the Angels] Much leſſe men.

neither the Son] As man, he knew not all things at once, but by degrees. See Luke 2. 52. and it ſeemeth that he had not yet this ſecret revealed unto him, untill after his aſcention, wherein he laid down the form of a ſervant.

but the Father] The latter day is not curiouſly to be ſearched for, which the Father alone knoweth: we muſt rather take care that we may be ever provided for it: for therefore God concealeth it from us, that we might never be ſecure, but ever ſtand upon a carefull watch.

v. 33. Take heed, watch and pray] See on Matth. 24. 42. Theſe are munimenta ſpiritualia, Cyprian epiſt. 1. ſpirituall fortifications.

the time] That is, καιρὸς, the ſeaſon: that ſet and appointed time, which God hath determined.

v. 34. as a man taking a far journey] Thus ſhall it be in the kingdom of God, as if a man ſhould take a long journey: ſo is Chriſts going into heaven, leaving his houſe the Church: out of the worldly mans belief, as out of his ſight: he committed to every one his charge; ſome to govern, ſome to obey: every one to be vigilant in his calling, ſanctimony of life, and expectation of judgement to come. See Matth. 25. 14.

and gave authority to his ſervants] τὴν ἐξουσίαν, the charge of his domeſticall affairs.

the porter to watch] Leſt any miſled ſervants ſhould go away: or robbers and ſeducers enter to ſpoil: See the morall, Acts 20. 28, 1 Pet. 5, 8, 9.

v. 35. For ye know not] Seeing the danger is both inevitable and intollerable, if Chriſt coming to judgement finde us negligent and unprepared (for there ſhall be then no place for repentance) and ſeeing we cannot know the hour when he will come, it highly concerns every Chriſtian to ſtand upon a carefull and conſtant watch.

at midnight &c.] By theſe termes may be underſtood that we may expect death and judgement at all times; and that no age of man is exempt from death: live every day as if it were thy laſt.

v. 36. leſt coming ſuddenly] That is, in an hour that ye thought not of, before ye have repented, and returned unto the Lord, in true faith, and newneſſe of life.

finde you ſleeping] That is, ſecure in your ſins. See Matth. 24. 43. 44.

v. 37. what I ſay unto you] Tell the reſt of my diſciples, and all others, for their learning and comfort, what I have told you, verſe 3.

I ſay unto all, watch] The word of Chriſt is without exception of times, places, or perſons addreſſed to all, ut noviſſimi per primos audiant, Jerom. that the laſt may hear by the firſt. Expect the hour which ſhall bring thee to judgement; for that is to every man his day of judgement: every man goeth hence ſuch, qualis judicandus eſt illo die, Auguſtin. ep. 80. as he ſhall be judged at that day: the life of a good and wiſe man, is a continual meditation on death, and preparation for the ſame; when Satan can make men forget this, he eaſily bringeth them aſleep in ſin.

CHAP. XIIII.

Verſe 1. Feaſt of Paſſeover] See on Matth 26. 2. Luke 22. 1, 2.

the chief prieſts] Though there were but one high prieſt at a time, yet there were ſome chief of every courſe or ranke, (into which David diſtributed them, 1 Chron. 24. 6.) which gave the name to thoſe claſſes or courſes, and by which they were diſtinguiſhed and known: and theſe heads, or chief of their fathers houſe, are here meant: ſo that the ſenſe is, the high prieſt, with his Suffragan, and the chief prieſts of every courſe. See more hereof, on Matth. 27. 1.

v. 2. Not on the feaſt-day] The feaſt of Paſſeover, being ſo ſolemn, ſeemed not accommodate to their purpoſes; but ſo Gods providence brought it to paſſe, that the truth might agree with the figure. See on Matth. 26. 2.

v. 3. being in Bethany] Matth. 26. 6.

Simon the leper] That had been a leper. See on Matth. 26. 6. John 12. 1, 2, 3.

Rhodigin. l.* 27. c. 26. it is called here a box νάρδου πιστικῆς as if he had ſaid, it was ſpikenard fidelis or bonæ fidei faithfull, or true nardus, to diſtinguiſh it from that which was ſometimes adulterated or counterfeit.

ſhe brake the box] Syr. ופתחתה napethachteh, and ſhe opened it: of פתח, pethach to open; it ſeemeth, that ſhe did not break the box in pieces, but opened it ſo, that it might run out largely and freely, on the head of Jeſus.

v. 4. had indignation] See on Matth. 26. 8.

why was this waſt?] Wicked men think all is waſt that is beſtowed on Chriſt.

v. 5. three hundred pence] See chap. 6. 37. Matth. 18. 28. This came to above nine pound ſterling.

given to the poor] See on Matth. 26. 9. John 12. 5.

v. 6. Why trouble ye her] Gr. make her labours: it ſeems they were very troubleſome to her, and hindred her.

a good work] See on Matth. 26. 10.

v. 7. Ye have the poor with you alwayes] Ye ſhall not want occaſions of doing good to the poor, when I am gone. See on Matth. 26. 11. John 12. 8.

v. 8. anoint my body to the burying] See on Matth. 26. 12.

v. 9. Where ever this goſpel] See on Matth. 26. 13.

v. 10. Judas went unto] Went away unto. See on Matth. 26. 14.

v. 11. promiſed to give] See on Matth. 26. 15.

v. 12. The firſt day of unleavened bread] Or day before; for they muſt prepare for it before hand: our Saviour being made ſubject to the law for us, doth celebrate the Paſſeover according to the law.

when they killed] When they uſed to kill; or ſacrifice.

the Paſſeover] That is, the Paſcal Lamb, metonymically; which is uſuall in ſacramentall ſpeeches.

v. 13. Go ye into the city] Into Jeruſalem.

bearing a pitcher of water] For purifications, waſhings, or other uſes.

v. 14. Whereſoever he ſhall go in] Into whatſoever houſe you ſhall ſee him go; take this for a ſigne of the houſe which you ſhould go to.

where is the gueſt-chamber?] κατάλυμα, the lodging: the word is uſed for an Inne. Luke 2. 7.

v. 15. a large upper room] ἀνώγεον ſignifieth that part of the houſe which is higheſt from the ground, to whatſoever uſe it is put: but becauſe they uſed to ſup in that part of the houſe, they called it among the Latines, cœnaculum, a ſupping chamber.

v. 20. that dippeth with me, &c.] That uſeth to eat meat with me: which was anciently eſteemed a ſtrict bond of friendſhip. Pſal. 41. 9. See on Matth. 26. 23.

v. 21. Son of man indeed goeth] See on Matth. 26. 24.

but wo unto, &c. Matth. 26. 24.

v. 22. As they did eat] The figure of the law, by and by to be fulfilled, was now to be repealed; and in place thereof, the ſeal of the new covenant, anſwerable thereto, inſtituted; and that to continue untill Chriſts coming again to judgement. 1 Cor. 11. 26.

v. 23. He took the cup] See on Matth. 26. 27. Luke 22. 20.

v. 24. This is my blood] See on Matth. 26. 28.

v. 25. I will drink no more of] See on Matth. 26. 29. He alludeth unto the cuſtom of the Jews, who were not to eat or drink any more that day, after the concluding cup: the meaning is, I have lived and converſed with you hitherto as man with men: but henceforth I will be with you, as in the eternall kingdom, where we ſhall live another kinde of life: and from this time, though he did after his reſurrection, eat and drink with them; yet that was not for his neceſſity, but to confirm their faith in the reſurrection: for then had he neither bodily infirmity, nor neceſſity.

v. 26. an hymne] Or pſalm. See on Matth. 26. 30.

v. 27. all ye ſhall be offended] Matth. 26. 31. Chriſt foretelleth how he ſhall be forſaken, leſt they ſhould be ſcandaled at it when they ſhould ſee it ſo come to paſſe.

I will ſmite the ſhepherd] Zech. 13. 7. That is, Chriſt the good ſhepherd, (John 10.) ſtanding in the place of ſinners, ſhall be afflicted to death: and then his diſciples and thoſe that beleeve in him, ſhall for a time, be ſcattered for fear.

v. 28. But after that I am riſen] See on Matth. 26. 32.

v. 29. yet will not I] Matth. 26. 33. This ſaid he preſuming on his own ability, and ſincere affection to Chriſt: here is a grave document, concerning mans infirmity, and danger in ſecurity.

v. 33. with him] None were there with him but they.

v. 34. My ſoul is exceeding ſorrowfull, &c.] See on Mat. 26. 38. It importeth an extraordinary ſorrow: more then any humane ſorrow: to him might juſtly be applyed that, Lam 1. 12.

v. 35. that the hour might paſſe from him] The time of my paſſion determined by thee, and foretold in ſcriptures, which I now feel coming on me.

v. 36. Abba Father] So Rom. 8. 15. Galat. 4. 6. The children ſpeaking Syriac, uſed to ſay אבא abba to their fathers, thererefore the Greek retaineth it, and expounds it by ὁ πατήρ; the Syriac readeth אבא אבי abba abi, Abba my father, or father, my father; and this ingemination is proper for great exigents, vehemency of paſſion, and earneſt petitions for relief in extream dangers, or deprecation of the imminent: אבא abba is a Chalde and Syriac word formed of the Hebrew אב ab, by adding א a, and doubling the ב b. See on Matth. 26. 39. Luk. 22. 42.

v. 37. Couldſt thou not watch one hour?] He ſpeaketh by name to Peter, though the reſt were alſo concerned; becauſe Peter, who had moſt, or firſt profeſſed conſtancy toward Chriſt, might ſpecially be admoniſhed to watch and pray againſt his imminent temptation; by the ſenſe of this preſent infirmity now creeping and ſtealing on him: as if he had ſaid, if you cannot watch one hour with me, how much leſſe will ye be able to watch many, or reſiſt the greater tryals, which will quickly fall upon you.

v. 38. Watch and pray] See on Matth. 27. 41.

v. 39. the ſame words] τὸν αὐτὸν λόγον the ſame ſpeech. See on Matth. 26. 44. It is lawfull to repeat the ſame words, again and again in prayer, as Chriſt here did; if there be faithfull and ſerious intention of the minde therein: otherwiſe, the vain repetitions of hypocrites are unſavoury, and prohibited by Chriſt, where they think to be heard for their much ſpeaking. John 8. 59. John 10. 39. and fearing he would do ſo again: or that the high prieſts would ſuſpect Judas himſelf of fraud toward them in pretending to deliver him unto them, whoſe power to elude and eſcape them (as at firſt, Samſon did the Philiſtines) Judas did foreknow; and ſo he might fail of his thirty pieces promiſed him for his treaſon, or ſuffer their diſfavour.

This the Evangeliſt mentioneth, to ſhew, what danger it then was to follow Chriſt; or to be ſuſpected of his party: this ſetteth off the malicious rage of his enemies; and how hard it had been for the Apoſtles, to have eſcaped their boundleſſe violence, had not the divine providence of Chriſt preſerved them, for the greater work to which the Lord had aſſigned them: which may comfort us in the enemies greateſt fury; he can and will preſerve us to the work he hath appointed us.

v. 4. Pilate asked him again] Matth. 27. 13. For he had asked him once before, in the judgement-hall, where his enemies would not come to appear againſt him. John 18. 33. now leſt they ſhould ſay Pilate had not dealt ſincerely, he here asketh the ſame queſtion again in their preſence, out of the hall.

v. 5. Pilate marvelled] Believing him to be innocent, he could not but marvell, why he ſpake nothing in his own defence, ſpecially ſeeing the judge expreſſed ſo much inclination to acquit him. So far is the wiſdom of man from apprehending the counſels of God concerning the great work of our redemption, which Chriſt would not attempt to hinder, by anſwering for himſelf, that he might be acquitted.

v. 44. Marvelled if he were already dead] Becauſe they who were crucified, were very long in their torments before they could die; and becauſe probably he might hear that Jeſus had power to raiſe the dead, he might poſſibly think, that he would have delivered himſelf from the croſs; therefore he marvelled: he knew not the counſell of God concerning Chriſt ſuffering, though himſelf were a chief acter in the performance of the ſame. and Peter] If the Angel had not named him who denied his Maſter, poſſibly he might have been afraid to come, vocatur ergo ex nomine, ne deſperet ex negatione, Gregor. hom. 21. q.ſ. he is called by name, leſt he ſhould deſpair, becauſe he had denied Chriſt; for which Peter being now full of heavineſſe, and fluctuant thoughts, had need of ſome ſpeciall comfort.

as he ſaid unto you] Matth. 26. 32.

v. 8. neither ſaid they any thing to any man] Either for fear of the Jews, they durſt tell no man by the way; or it was for haſte which they made to tell the diſciples, as they were commanded. Matthew 28. 8. Luke 24. 9. 22. 23.

v. 9. appeared firſt to Magdalen] John 20. 14. Of theſe apparitions: See Iſ. Cauſabon. exercit. 16. N. 186.

out of whom he had caſt &c.] As He from whom he had caſt out. Luke 8. 2. See the great mercy of Chriſt, making her the firſt witneſſe of his reſurrection, who had been moſt miſerable.

v. 10. ſhe went and told them] As Chriſt had commanded her. John 20. 17. and the Angels here verſe 7.

that had been with him] Who followed him and had been converſant with him, as his diſciples, and hearers; whoſe faith he would have now confirmed in the aſſurance of his reſurrection from the dead, and not to be hazarded by any longer delay of the ſame.

as they mourned and wept] See on Luke 24. 17. They in their infirmity of faith, not yet apprehending what he had taught them concerning his reſurrection the third day; mourned and wept; as if he had ſtill been dead; but he would now have them ceaſe from that ſorrow, and be aſſured that he was alive again: Chriſt will ever ſend comfort to his, in due time, and at laſt wipe away all tears from their eyes. See Pſal. 9. 9.

v. 11. and they] Or, Yet they, as, Acts 7. 5.

when they heard that he was alive] Mary told them that the Angel aſſured her, that Chriſt was alive, verſe 6. and that ſhe had alſo ſeen him, verſe 9.

beleeved not] The greatneſſe and ſtrangeneſſe of the matter, exceeded their preſent faith (Luke 24. 11. See Exod. 6. 9.) which had been ſhaken, and almoſt overwhelmed, with ſo many and great fears.

v. 12. in another form] In another habit then he had converſed with them in: and therefore they took him for a ſtranger. Luke 24. 18, as Mary did for the gardner. John 20. 15. v. 13. neither beleeved they them] All this is recorded, that we may the more confidently beleeve thoſe to have been moſt free from any compact in their teſtimony, who were ſo ſlowly, and hardly induced to beleeve the Goſpel themſelves.

v. 14. Afterward] Luke 24. 36. John 20. 19. another time, after his appearing to Mary, and her relating the ſame to the diſciples.

as they ſate at meat] ἀνακειμένοις, As they ſat together, at ſupper; as may be gathered from Luke 24. 33. compared with verſe 36, for thoſe two diſciples at Emaus knew Chriſt in his breaking bread, and preſently returned to Jeruſalem to tell the diſciples thereof; while they were ſpeaking, ſuddainly Chriſt ſtood by them, it is probable therefore, while they ſate at ſupper, whom he calleth the eleven; that is, the Apoſtles in generall, or indefinitely taken for thoſe of the eleven, who were gathered together, with others at Jeruſalem, where it is ſaid (Luke 24. 33.) that Cleopas and another of them found the eleven together; yet Thomas was not there. John 20. 24. for after the death of Judas Iſcariot unto the election of Matthias, Acts 1. 26. the Apoſtles were commonly called the eleven. See Matth. 28. 16. Luke 24. 36. &c.

v. 15. And he ſaid unto them] Matth. 28. 19. not preſently upon this mentioned apparition, but when the diſciples went into Galilee (Matth. 28. 16.) there to meet Jeſus on the mountain, where he had appointed them.

Go ye into all the world] Not into Judea alone (as Matth. 10. 5, 6.) But now the partition wall is broken down (Epheſ. 2.) and they muſt preach, adminiſter the Sacraments, and confirm the ſame with miracles among the Gentiles alſo.

to every creature] That is, to every nation, as Matthew expreſſeth it. (See 1 Pet. 2. 13.) to all mankinde without exception: omni ergo creaturæ prædicatur Evangelium, cum ſoli homini prædicatur &c. Gregor. hom. 29. in evang. the Goſpel is preached to every creature, when it is preached to man onely, for whom all things on earth were created: this word κτίσις, ſometime ſignifies the creation of the world: chap. 10. 6. Rom. 1. 20. Sometimes the things created. chap. 13. 19. Rom. 8. 22. Sometimes all mankinde, men and women of all conditions, as here: Chriſt would have them know, that as he is the creatour of all men, ſo would he now have the gladſome tidings of ſalvation by faith in him, and free remiſſion of ſinnes, to be publiſhed unto all the nations of the world: the Goſpel was not now to be ſhut up within the limits of any particular Church; like the dew in Gideons fleece, while the floor was dry. (Jud. 6. 37, 38.) but to be communicated to all: and as it was ſent to all, ſo was it entruſted to the care and miniſtry of all the Apoſtles, and their ſucceſſours the Miniſters of the Goſpel: the Hebrews call man the creature, by way of excellency or eminency, as being Gods maſter-peece, among the creatures, on whom he ſet his own image.

v. 16. and is baptized] He that beleeveth, and by baptiſm maketh profeſſion of his faith: underſtand this, de adultis, Gods free grace to infants, is not tyed to the externall ſigne.

but he that beleeveth not] John 3. 36.

v. 17. theſe ſignes] Theſe miracles which you ſhall work where you preach, to confirm your doctrine, ſhall be ſignes of my preſence with you, and their faith that beleeve in my Name.

ſhall follow them that beleeve] This power of miracles continued accordingly for a time in the Church, untill Chriſtianity was more publikely profeſſed. See Irenæus l. 2. c. 58. albeit, all beleevers had not this power to do miracles; yet ſome ſucceſſively had (for many yeers after the aſcenſion of Chriſt) for the confirmation of others; and it was neceſſary thereto. Ut enim fides creſceret, miraculis fuerat nutrienda, Gregor. hom. 29. in Evangel. That faith might grow, it was to be nouriſhed with miracles, as we water new ſet plants, till they have taken good root, then we water no more: ſo did the power and providence of God work here.

in my Name] By my power: as, Acts 3. 6. Acts 4. 7.

ſhall they caſt out devils] As Paul did: Acts 16. 18.

v. 18. they ſhall take up] Acts 28. 5.

if they drink any deadly thing] Poyſon, as they write of John and others, in the eccleſiaſticall hiſtories.

they ſhall lay their hands on the ſick] So Acts 28. 8. Paul laid his hands on Publius the governour of Melita his father, and healed him: ſo Peter healed Eneas of his palſie. Acts 9. 34.

v. 19. received up into heaven] Luke 24. 51. Chriſt having accompliſhed his office upon earth, aſcended into heaven; from whence he confirmeth the doctrine of his Apoſtles by ſignes and wonders, in the primitive Church, and governeth the ſame unto the worlds end. See on Acts 1. 11. He aſcended into the third heaven. 2 Cor. 12. 2. the throne of God, and place of the bleſſed: the ſcripture mentioneth three places, under the name of heaven. 1. The ſupreme, where God moſt evidently manifeſteth his glory to thoſe heavenly creatures, which ſtand in his divine preſence. 2. The ſtarry heaven, where all the ſtars and planets which we ſee, move in their proper orbs. 3. That ſpace which is between the moon and the earth; whereof the birds, are called fowls of the heaven. Matth. 6. that is, they flie in the air. See Hebr. 4. 14. Epheſ. 4. 10. which places are to be underſtood, of theſe two inferiour heavens, the air and ſtarry firmament.

ANNOTATIONS

On the Goſpell according to

S. LUKE.

The ARGUMENT.

THe Goſpel is the gladſome tydings of Salvation by Chriſt: This Goſpel (as the Penman his ſelf interpreteth, Act. 1. 1. ) is the Hiſtory of thoſe things that Jeſus began to do and teach, until the day that he was taken up, &c. That is as much thereof, as God ſaw good to Record by his Miniſtery: That (as the other Evangeliſt ſaith) we might beleeve that Jeſus is the Chriſt the Son of God, and that in beleeving, we might have life through his Name. Joh. 20. 30. 31. This ſacred Hiſtory was dictated by the H. Ghoſt, whoſe Penman was Luke.

Luke was of Antioch in Syria, by profeſſion a Phyſitian, (Coloſ. 4. 14.) he was a follower and faithfull Aſſiſtant of Paul (2 Tim. 4. 11.) and ſo became alſo a Phyſitian for the ſoul: But who was the firſt Miniſteriall means of his Converſion, is not certain: Some think he was one of the 70. Diſciples: And that other unnamed, Luke 24. 18. who with Cleophas, after Chriſts Reſurrection, went to Emaus: If ſo, he had had Chriſt the beſt Teacher: But others think Paul converted him at Thebes: But his ſelf beſt ſheweth in his Preface, what Inſtructers he had, thoſe who from the beginning were Eye witneſſes and Miniſters of the ſame Goſpel: Luke 1. 2. Whence it is evident, that ſome of the Apoſtles inſtructed him in the Myſteries of Salvation by Chriſt, and faithfully related to him this wholl Story.

Matthew it ſeems wrote to the Hebrews, and the other three Evangeliſts to the Gentiles in the Greek tongue, wherein Luke in an Elegant ſtile, dedicateth two excellent Peeces (this Goſpel, and the Acts of the Apoſtles) unto Theophilus an honourable perſon, and in him to all the faithfull, who are lovers of God.

The occaſion of his writing (whether he were incited thereto by Peter, as ſome think, or by Paul as others) was (that which he declareth in his Preface) for as much as many have taken in hand to ſet forth the Story of thoſe things, whereof we are fully perſwaded ——it ſeemed good alſo to me——&c. Luke 1. 1. Thus God by the unanimous conſent of a ſufficient number of Witneſſes (writing at divers places, and times) pleaſed to confirm the Truth of the Goſpel unto us.

Concerning the Matter and Subject of this Goſpel, we muſt know, that the Evangeliſt purpoſed to declare, That Jeſus the Son of the Virgin Mary, was that promiſed Seed (whoſe fore-running Meſſenger was John Baptiſt, according to the Propheſies:) Whoſe admirable Conception by the Holy Ghoſt, made not againſt the truth of his Humane Nature, and Nativity, according to the Fleſh: Who in the fulneſſe of time (the Scepter being departed from Judah) in the fourty two yeer of the reign of Auguſtus Cæſar, was born in Bethlehem Judah, grew up to mans ſtature and perfection, undertook his publick Miniſtery and Office of the Meſſiah, ſhewing himſelf in Doctrine and Miracles, (ſpecially in his glorious Reſurrection from the dead, and Aſcenſion into Heaven) truly God and Man, in Unity of Perſon, the Saviour and Redeemer of the Elect: All which he relateth in this order.

1. In the three firſt Chapters he rehearſeth his Conception, Nativity, and the Witneſſes thereof; to which he annexeth his Genealogie.

2. From the fourth Chapter to the tenth, he ſetteth down the preparation to his Miniſtery, in his tentation, the beginning of his Preaching, Miracles, Ordination of Apoſtles, Transfiguration on the Mount, and departure out of Galilee.

3. From the tenth Chapter to the twentieth, he recordeth what Chriſt did in his laſt paſſage towards Jeruſalem.

4. In the twentieth, and the following Chapter, he telleth what he Taught in the Temple, his Diſputes with the Phariſees and Saduces, as alſo of the deſtruction of the City and Republick of Iſrael, where he inſerteth ſome things concerning his ſecond coming to judgement.

5. Thence he cometh to the Hiſtory of his paſſion, Chap. 22,23. The concluſion and loweſt degree of his Obedience and Humiliation.

6. The laſt Chapter containeth the Truth of his Reſurrection, his Apparitions to his Diſciples, ſpecially the two going to Emaus, and his glorious Aſcenſion into Heaven, the aſſured Pledge of our intereſt therein, whereof he hath in our nature taken Livery and Seiſin.

CHAP. I.

Verſe 1. M*Any have taken in hand*] It ſeemeth that Matthew and Mark wrote not before Luke, had they, he would have ſpoken more reverendly concerning them: Whether he mean by many, thoſe counterfeit pieces under the titles of the Goſpel of Nicodemus, Thomas, according to the Egyptians, or according to the twelve; it is uncertain; becauſe he nameth neither theſe, nor others like: but affirming a full aſſurance of that which he (with the other holy Evangeliſts) writeth, he ſeemeth modeſtly to deny, that others had the ſame.

to ſet forth in order] To compoſe and write the Hiſtory of Chriſt his Life and Doctrine.

which are moſt ſurely believed] Of which we were aſſured, or ſo certified, that we nothing doubt of their truth.

v. 2. they delivered them unto us] Meaning the Apoſtles, who continually attending on our Saviour Chriſt, ſaw theſe miracles, and heard this doctrine, which this Evangeliſt converſing with them, by the infallible aſſiſtance of the Holy Ghoſt, and their relations, here recordeth: for he was not ἀρχῆς μαθητὴς, ἀλλ' ὑστερόχρονος, which Theophylact noteth, not a Diſciple from the beginning, but of later time.

were eye-witneſſes] Of thoſe things which Chriſt did. See 1 John 1.1. Hebr. 2.3.

Miniſters of the word] He meaneth either of the Goſpel (whereof themſelves were a part) or of Chriſt, the eternal Word, John 1.1. 1 John 1.1.

v. 3. it ſeemed good to me] By a divine inſpiration, as Acts 15.25,28. See alſo 1 Cor. 7.40. 2 Tim. 3.16.

moſt excellent Theophilus] This was ſome excellent and renouned perſon in the Church of thoſe times: this title is given to honourable perſons, and men in authority, Acts 23.26.

v. 4. that thou mighteſt know the certainty] He having exactly learned all theſe things now writeth them to the further edification of Theophilus, ſomething before enformed hereof by word of mouth.

5. Herod king of Judea] Herod the great, ſon of Antipater; not Herod Tetrarch of Galilee, mentioned Luke 3.1.

of the courſe of Abia] See 1 Chron. 24.5,10. David appointed the ſons of Aaron to miniſter by turns (See on Mark 14.1.) or ſeveral courſes.

daughters of Aaron] Of the poſterity of Aaron, verſ. 36. Elizabeth is called the Couſin of Mary, though ſhe were of the Tribe of Juda, and Davids Family: for that law Numb. 36.8. which cautioned that the daughter ſhould marry in her own Tribe, leſt there ſhould be confuſion in the inheritances of the Tribes; concerned them only that poſſeſſed an inheritance, in any tribe of the children of Iſrael, and forbad not any of the Tribes to make affinity and marry with a daughter of a Levite; who had no inheritance in that land aſſigned them, Numb. 18.20.

v. 6. they were both righteous before God] That is, of ſincere lives: approved of God; as Iob was, Iob 1.8. not without all ſin, but without blame before men. See Phil. 3.6, 12. Such were they as God required Abraham to be Geneſis 17.1. Upright and ſincere, free from hypocriſie: and juſtified by faith in Chriſt. See Rom. 4.22.

walking in all] that is, living in, and endeavouring to keep all the commandements. See Pſal. 119. 1. 6. not that they attained perfection by the works of the Law: (See Phil. 3. 12.) but as he that walketh in a ſtraite way, ſomtimes ſtumbleth, falleth, and doth not preſently come to the end of that way, but by ſome other ſupply of his lameneſſe or infirmity; ſo is it here.

v. 9. According to the cuſtome] See note on v. 5. and according to Gods law, this office appertained to Aaron and his ſons. Exod. 30.7. 1 Chron. 6. 49.

into the temple of the Lord] into that court which was called holy; into which onely the Prieſts entred. Exod. 28. 43.

v. 10. The whole multitude] See Levit. 16.17.

without] in that part of the temple which was called the peoples court. See Levit. 16.17. 1 Kings 7.12.

v. 11. The altar of incenſe] See Exod. 31. 1.

v. 12. And fear fell upon him] The ſodain and unexpected ſight of the angel not onely troubled, but terrified him. So Dan. 10.8. if the appearance of one angel ſent to comfort, ſo much affrighted this juſt man, in the work of his holy calling, what dread and terrour ſhall fall upon the wicked when Chriſt, (God and man) ſhall appear with all his angells to judge the wicked for all their willfull acts of impiety?

v. 13. Thou ſhalt call his name John] this is not only a prediction, but a precept, and the impoſition of a name before the nativity, was ever an argument of Gods marking thoſe parties to ſome excellencies. See Matth. 1. 21. this name ſignifieth the grace of God: intimating that which ſhould be in his perſon and office: See note on John 1. 6. So that Zacharies prayer was heard in that the Meſſias ſhould now come: and in that Elizabeth, for whom he had often prayed, ſhould alſo conceive and bear a ſon.

v. 14. And thou ſhalt have joy, &c.] So great, as that it ſhall break out into rejoycing, for that thou ſhalt obtain a deſired iſſue, above hope and the common courſe of nature, and for that thou ſhalt know the ſingular office to which this childe is aſſigned, that is, to be the immediate Herauld to proclaim the Meſsias, and the fore-runner to prepare his wayes. And this joy ſhall not be onely domeſtick, but alſo publick, as concerning the intereſt of all thoſe which expect Chriſt the Saviour of Iſrael.

v. 15. great in the ſight of the Lord] That is, God ſhall highly eſteem him, and make him excellent.

ſhall neither drink wine nor ſtrong drink] σίκερα, which Theophylact, Euthymius, &c. interpret πᾶν τὸ μέθην ἐμποιεῖν δυνάμενον, any thing which may make drunken: So alſo Jerome lib. 2. ep.14. Nepotiano. The word is taken from the Hebrew שכר inebriatus fuit, thence שכר, ſhechar, and in the Syriac שכרא, Levit. 10.9. Aaron and his ſons were forbid to drink יין wine, and alſo שכר which the 70 give σίκερα; as here, ſo where Hanna ſaid ſhe had drunk neither wine nor שכר ſtrong drink: the 70 give it μέθυσμα: the Syriac by שכר underſtand alſo, fædum, deformem a filthy or deformed perſon: ſuch are they who are overcome with drink: and therefore the Lacedemonians were wont to make their Helots, or Slaves drunken; that themſelves being ſober, and obſerving τὴν ἐκείνων ἀσχημοσύνην their uncomely and filthy behaviour, it might be a remedy to them; cauſing them to loathe that ſinne, the effects whereof were ſo ſhameful and loathſome. See Clemens Alexandrinus Pædag. lib 3. cap.8. The meaning of the Angel is here, that John ſhould be conſecrated unto God, as a Nazarite. See Numb. 6.3. Judges 13.4,5. 1 Sam. 1.11.

filled with the holy Ghoſt] That is, he ſhall have an abundant meaſure of the Spirit of ſanctification even from his mothers womb; and in his ripe age, for the execution of his charge. See Jer. 1.5. Gal. 1.15. Seeing then Infants are capable of grace, and the holy Ghoſt, wee may ſay for them as Peter for his hearers, Acts 10. 47. Can any man forbid water, that theſe ſhould not be baptized, which have received the holy Ghoſt as well as we? See note, on Acts 10.47.

v. 16. many of the children of Iſrael.] See Malachi 4.6. He ſhall be the means of their converſion, by his preaching accompanied with the power of the holy Ghoſt to make it effectual. See Acts 26. 18. 1 Corinth. 3. 5, 6. James 5. 19. 20.

v. 17. he ſhall go before him, &c.] That is, immediately before Chriſt the Meſsias, the king of Iſrael, to declare his coming, and preſence. See John 1.29. Malachi 4.5. Matth. 11. 14.

in the ſpirit and power of Elias] That is, with as great a meaſure of grace, and gifts of Gods Spirit, to make his miniſtery powerful. See Matth. 11. 11,14. Mal. 4. 6.

turn the hearts of the fathers to the children]. By his miniſtery, the unnatural, degenerate, and wicked children, ſhall be converted, and become obedient children to their fathers, and to the Church of Chriſt; ſo, as their fathers ſhall acknowledge them to be their children indeed: For the diviſion which followeth the Goſpel, that is, an accidental effect, which the corruption of man produceth, and not the Goſpel of peace.

to the wiſdom] ἐν φρονήσει. Here ἐν is put for εἰς. So the Interpreter of the Syriac, ad cognitionem rectorum, to the knowledge of right things. Jerome, on Mal. 4. giveth the meaning, Ut credant poſteri eorum in Dominum Salvatorem in quem & illi crediderunt, that their poſterity may believe in the Lord their Saviour, in whom (Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob) themſelves beleeved; the whole ſence is, by the example of their holy Fathers, they ſhall be wiſe and believe, and ſo be of one heart and conſent with their fathers.

prepared for the Lord] Prepared for Chriſt, as John proclaimed, c. 3. 4.

v. 18. For I am an old man, &c.] Conſidering the ordinary courſe of nature; he was ſlow in believing ſo great a miracle. Abraham laying aſide all natural reaſon, believed above hope. See Rom. 4. 17.

v. 91. I am Gabriel] גבריאל fortitudo Dei. This name ſignifieth the power of God: he putteth him in minde, that he was the ſame Angel, who ſome hundred yeers before, was ſent to the Prophet Daniel, to declare the time of Chriſts coming, Dan. 8.16. Dan. 9.21. that he might aſſure him of the fulfilling of the ſame, now in the fulneſs of time.

that ſtand in the preſence of God] This Hebraiſme, borrowed from thoſe who wait on Kings, importeth a readineſs to adminiſter or ſerve. See 1 Kings 10.8. Prov. 22.29.

v. 20. thou ſhalt be dumb] Becauſe thou deſireſt a ſigne; this ſhall be both a puniſhment of thy incredulity, and a ſigne to confirm this faith, as Chryſologus Ser. 90. ſaith, Ut ex te & in te credendi regulam conſequaris: that from thy ſelf, and in thy ſelf, thou muſt attain a rule of believing.

v. 21. waited for Zachary] For he was to diſmiſſe them with a bleſſing. See Numb. 6.23. Now they waited longer then ordinary, without the holy place, to which the people of the Iews were to reſort, as v. 10.

v. 22. he could not ſpeak] Not onely becauſe a marvellous ſtupor of fear had invaded him, but becauſe God had, for the time, taken away his faculty of ſpeaking, for a ſigne unto him (that he might believe) and to the people, that at the preaching of Chriſt now at hand, their Prieſthood ſhould be ſilenced.

they perceived that he had ſeen a viſion] By his ſilence, pale countenance, beckning with, and lifting up his hand toward Heaven, or the holy place whence he came, by theſe or the like means God would prepare the people to conceive an high opinion of John the forerunner of Chriſt.

v. 23. were accompliſhed] At Jeruſalem he was to officiate one whole week. See 2 Kings 11. 1. Chron. 9.25. which ended, he went home.

v. 24. hid her ſelf] See kept her chamber, or otherwiſe concealed her miraculous conception ſo long, until it was evident, and out of doubt that ſhe had indeed conceived.

v. 25. to take away my reproach] For barrenneſs was counted a diſhonour to the women. See 1 Sam. 1.6,11.

v. 26. the ſixt moneth] Reckoning from Elizabeths conception.

v. 27. to a virgin eſpouſed] That is, promiſed in marriage: a woman ſo promiſed was ſaid μνηστευθεῖσα. See Matth. 1.18. and here c. 2.5.

of the houſe of David] Of the ſtock and linage of David, (ſo ſome Greek Copies have it) as was alſo Joſeph, Luke 2. 4. Matth. 1.16.

v. 28. highly favoured] or graciouſly accepted, much graced (ſee v. 30.) freely beloved: as the Apoſtle uſeth the word Epheſ. 1.6. honoured with this ſingular grace, to be the Mother of the Meſsias: therefore he ſaid ſhe was bleſſed among women: he ſaid not to be honoured as God: οὔτε γὰρ Θεὸς ἡ Μαρία, ſaith Epiphanius adv. hæreſ. l.3. tom.2.23. for neither was Mary a God.

v. 29. ſhe was troubled] At the appearance of the heavenly Majeſty which probably ſhined in the Angel, and at that ſtrange ſalutation.

v. 30. thou haſt found favour] Thou art in Gods favour, who hath freely choſen thee to this honour which thou thoughteſt not of.

v. 31. and behold thou ſhalt conceive] See Iſaiah 7.14.

his name Jeſus] See Matth. 1.21. a Saviour of his people.

v. 32. the ſon of the higheſt] So he ſhall be called, and ſo is he from all eternity: the onely Son of God by nature: God manifeſted in the fleſh, 1 Tim. 3.16.
